THE AUBURN COURIER

Microfilmed for:
ECKHART PUBLIC LIBRARY
Auburn, Indiana

STARTS WITH

JULY 6 1899

MICRO PHOTO DIVISION
BELL & HOWELL COMPANY

IL

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Volume XXIX | Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, Thursday, July 6, 1899. | Number 27.

COURT NEWS

The trial of the Chappell case was continued and the following additional testimony introduced:

The defense began to put on witnesses yesterday afternoon, the chief point being to show that the road used due care in running, and made the proper signals. The engineer, fireman and brakeman of train No. 4, that killed Chappell, all testified and swore that the proper signals were made. The fullest statement was by Fred G. Shepherd, the brakeman. He said he was in the rear car, a dining car, at the time of the accident. He had noticed that in running through Hamilton, no signals were displayed at the station, for had that been done, it would have been contrary to rules, this being the first section with the second section following close. They went on past the station and over the long bridge, the whistle blowing the regular two long blasts followed by two short ones at each crossing. When Chappell was struck he knew nothing of it till he noticed the train was slowing up and heard the engineer blow four sharp blasts to tell the brakeman to get out and run to the rear to flag the second section, which would follow close. He jumped out, took torpedoes, lantern and flag, and ran back up the track towards Hamilton, past the wreck of the buggy, saw forms lying there, but could not stop as second section was due. Put torpedo on south rail, used flag and lantern and stopped second section just after it had passed the station and had reached the west end of the long bridge. Then this train blew a whistle for agent to bring help as an accident had occurred. A doctor and others were got and we slowly ran east over the bridge to where the accident occurred. There were already a number of people on the spot. The sections of No. 4 did not stop at Hamilton, as it is a flag station for No. 4.

Angus Kerr, the fireman, testified to about the same thing. He rang the bell at the crossings and the engineer blew the whistle.

Mrs. Beavers testified for the road. She lives 80 rods east and a little north of the place where Chappell was killed. Was sitting in the house and Mr. B was on the lounge. He said "No. 4 is late." She answered, "There it comes," for she heard the whistle. The train slowed up after it passed their place, and then went back. She soon heard of the accident and went over to see.

Witnesses also testified that anyone should have seen the lights from the train, as the coaches had plenty of windows through which the light shone. Much attention was given to this and to the number of wheels on a coach and an engine.

This, Thursday, morning, the defense went on. Mrs. Gipe, the lady to whose house just east of the crossing Mrs Chappell was carried after the accident, was sworn and testified that Chappell was habitually reckless and careless in going across the track. He went across there often, as he lived out that way. She said he had also talked with her as to one time when he was driving toward Hamilton about two weeks before. A train was coming from the east, and he hurried on to get across before it reached the crossing. She told him to look out or he might be killed. He said he did not care if he did. Mrs Hamman heard it. He often drove rapidly over. I often spoke to him of these things and told him the train would not stop for him. The evening he was killed I was sitting out of doors. Did not see the train at Hamilton. They did not stop long there. May have let off a couple of passengers. I went into the house and got ready for bed. Husband got ready to come to bed, and just as he told me to go to bed, I heard the whistle at Hamilton (She tried to make the attorneys understand that she had been sitting "on her feet" in the yard, and finally got off the witness stand and showed them how she did it.) It appears all this was to call attention to her former testimony that her husband had gone to bed and she was reading a paper. (Both sides had a long, hard fight over this witness.) I soon threw down the paper and went to window. Came back to chair, but could not read. Seemed as if something was to happen. Went to window again and heard train whistle for our crossing. Soon heard a crash. Saw the train. It whistled before it got to crossing, and heard it whistle after crash, and then at Beaver's crossing. Went down to crossing and saw a woman lying there. Asked her if she was Mrs. Chappell. She said yes. Asked if she was bad hurt. She said yes. She was brought to my house.

Jacob Gipe sworn. Agreed in the main with what his wife had said. When we were getting ready for bed, my wife was at the northwest window. The crash was heard right after we heard the whistle. We dressed in a hurry. She got to the gate first. Mrs Chappell and the little girl were brought to our house. Her mother, Mrs. Everts, came about 11 p. m. All staid till the 9th. Was paid for keeping them. My wife was taken sick the same night. Mrs. Everts helped some, and Mrs. Beavers, and some things were brought from Chappell's.

J. B Zeigler sworn. Live in Hamilton. Am a harness maker. Been there 19 years. I was in my shop that evening. Heard the train come into town; thought they were running pretty fast. Heard train whistle at the crossings east, then followed by more whistling beyond. Soon another train came from west. We saw something had happened. A lot of us went to the place. I helped get Chappell on the train and brought back to Hamilton. Cross-ex. The train ran faster than usual. Only saw it as it passed town. Saw lights.

Samuel Zeigler sworn. Was at my house in Hamilton. Heard whistle for all the crossings, then the danger whistles. Heard no bell. Train ran very fast. Soon people came up and said the Chappell family had all been killed at the Butler crossing. Told them it must be the Gipe crossing.

Mr. Newton was called, sworn. I live about 120 rods east of the Butler crossing, and 40 or 50 rods west of the Gipe crossing. Cars enter a cut near my house and are in one till they get to Gipe's crossing.

Wm Lock lived then about 150 feet west of Gipe's on north side of wagon road. I was in the house near door. Did not see the train till it passed the road. Heard the train whistle for that crossing. Heard train running. Don't remember any bell ringing. Heard no crash. Heard railroad men holler. Found Gipe there. He said a man was killed.

Mrs. Malinda Stout sworn. I live on south side of railroad across from the station. I was at home; saw train as it passed station. Saw train as far as Gipe's crossing. It whistled at all the crossings. Heard unusual whistling down there. Train had lights. Did not count how many blasts. Think should be 3, but at last crossing was but one.

Aaron H. Stout sworn. Last witness is my wife. Live on the DeKalb county side of line. Saw both sections pass. Never was at Gipe's crossing, and don't know of the overhead bridge beyond. Heard no bell, but heard whistles at the crossings.

Mrs Hammon sworn. I was standing at the gate at Gipe's the day Chappell went by, when Mrs. Gipe told him he would get killed some day and heard her say it.

Ada Sewell sworn. Live 2 miles west of Hamilton. June 2, 98, I lived near station in Hamilton. I was on front porch. Heard it whistle at Fee crossing west, but did not see it. It whistled at Hamilton, at the Butler crossing and at Gipe's. After the accident heard a number of whistles. Bell was ringing as it went past Hamilton. I could see light of train at Gipe's. That evening I heard of the accident. Was at Gipe's and saw Mrs. Chappell a few days after he was buried. She was just able to sit up. She said she did not think it would have happened if she had had her way. She said nothing about seeing the train.

Mrs. Gipe recalled. On Christmas night of the year before, saw Ray Chappell at the M. E. Christmas tree. He was under the influence of liquor, (She was also also asked as to her talking about her testimony in a public way at dinner at the Baxter restaurant today noon, and in the presence of other witnesses and some of the jurymen. She admitted she had talked some, but thought she and the others were all through and free to talk.) She is a great talker and kept talking as she went away. The attorneys wrangled a good deal about it and similar matters.

Mrs Sewell recalled. I had a talk with a brother of C. M. Brown at noon. Judge Hammond asked her if she was not mistaken in saying she heard the whistles. She said she could not remember. She thinks it was Attorney C. M. Brown who asked that.

Mrs. Hamman recalled, and said she did not remember about the M. E church affair.

T. Lannum sworn. Saw first section go east. I was on Butler and Hamilton road; was about ten rods away from railroad. Heard it coming. It whistled at all crossings. Did not notice any bell. Saw headlight. As I got east saw something was wrong and went over there. Don't think I ever saw train run faster.

Warren Kinney sworn. Train ran at high speed. It whistled at all crossings. Heard unusual whistling and then saw a red light being brought up towards town to warn the section which soon came. Train had lights.

Albright sworn. Testimony like the preceding.

Eugene Greenwood sworn. Saw that train. I was a mile south. Heard whistles and directly long whistles. Said something is wrong.

FRIDAY FORENOON.

John Krontz, county surveyor, was put on the stand. He had prepared an outline plat of the grounds at the Gipe crossing, and explained the conditions there. From the track, going west, the ground was level for 25 feet; then it gradually rises to 7½ feet above the track. Going west on the track, the bank on each side of a cut begins at about 200 feet from the crossing, and the cut, or rather the bank each side gets higher, till at a distance of 700 feet it is 7½ feet higher than the track. While I was there a man drove down to near the track and turned around. (This was to show that Chappell could have turned around there and so have avoided a collision.)

A. G. Trippier sworn. Live in Peru. Am one of the road's engineers. Been with them a year. Educated at University of Illinois. Was at Gipe's crossing with Krontz, J. J. VanAuken and two section men. We all helped to make the surveys. He was shown Krontz' map, and said it was substantially correct. Road crosses the railway track at an angle of 18 degrees and 40 minutes. His testimony agreed substantially with that of Krontz.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Samuel Aldrich sworn. Said Ray Chappell was not intoxicated that Christmas at the M. E. church, but distributed the gifts to the children.

George Baxter, son of J. W. Baxter, of Auburn, was sworn. Was visiting at the home of my grandfather, Andrew Baxter, and on the porch when that train went by. Uncle George called attention to its high rate of speed. No bell was ringing. Train did not whistle at the Fee crossing. It was 2½ miles west of Hamilton, and the Fee crossing is over a mile west of Hamilton. No wind. Could hear noise of train well enough. Green lights were on the rear of the train, showing there was another section coming.

Frank Baxter sworn. Am son of John W. Baxter. But he was prevented from being a witness, as it was shown he had been in the court room a good deal, it not being till now known that he would be a witness. The judge had told attorneys that all witnesses must be kept out of the room.

R. C. Baxter sworn. Andrew Baxter's house is 35 to 40 rods from the railroad.

Mrs. Mary C. Everts, mother of Mrs. Ray Chappell, was recalled. Am mother of Mrs. Ray Chappell. Got to the scene of accident about 11 p. m. Mrs. Chappell did not become conscious till in the forenoon of next day. Mrs. Chappell said they did not see the train. It was nearly a week before her mind became clear. But she did not know when her husband was buried. He was killed Thursday evening and buried Saturday. Mrs. Chappell did not fully

(Continued on Page Four.)

SCHAAB'S SPECIAL SALE

Beginning Saturday July 8th, and Closing Saturday July 15th.

Giving you seven days in which to buy choice merchandise at greatly reduced prices. To those who have taken advantage of previous sales given by us, we need only say "This Sale Shall Eclipse Them All." To those who have not we would say that the sales we have given have proven the most satisfactory to our patrons. We can give several very good reasons why such has been the case. We do not buy cheap trash especially for these sales, what we offer is exactly what you get from us all the season—only at this time we see fit to greatly reduce the price. We do not crowd your buying into one or two days, thus being only able to half wait on you, every article sent out during these sales must prove entirely satisfactory or we prefer having you return the same to us.

We quote prices on a part of our stock to give you an idea of what we propose to do for you.

WOOL DRESS GOODS.

All $2 00 silk and wool for	$1 50
All $1 75 silk and wool for	1 35
All $1 50 silk and wool for	1 15
All $1 00 dress goods for	75c
All 75c dress goods for	58c
All 50c dress goods for	38c
All 40c dress goods for	30c
All 30c dress goods for	21c
All 25c dress goods for	19c

WASH DRESS GOODS.

All 15c striped and fancy Pique	10c
All 35c striped and fancy Pique	25c
All 30c Dimitys	15c
All 25c Dimitys	19c
All 6 and 7c Lawns	5c
All 8c Lawns	6c
All 15c Lawns	10c
All 50c Ginghams	38c
All 35c Ginghams	19c
All 15c Ginghams	10c
All 10c Ginghams	7c

DOMESTICS.

Lonsdale Bleached Muslin	6¼c
Lancaster & Amoskeag standard Ginghams	5c
All 10c Shirting	7½c
Fine Unbleached 5 and 6c Muslin for	4c
All Prints (the best makes)	4c
All 8c Shirtings	6c

We will mark all fancy silks to sell at 1-4 less than regular price. Table linens, napkins, towels and crashes (of which we have an exceptionally strong line) will be sold with a 20 per cent. discount.

We have too many ladies' fancy hose, the prettiest ever seen in the county, our prices during this sale will be 38c for 50c quality, and 25c for 35c ones. One lot of 50c to $1.00 corsets will close at 25c.

SHIRT WAISTS.

Have been exceedingly popular this season and our line has been very fine. We realize that the proper time to close them out is when people want them. Notwithstanding the fact that we are having a grand trade, we will nevertheless quote the following prices:

All $1 75 shirt waists we reduce to	$1 25
All 1 50 shirt waists we reduce to	1 13
All 1 25 shirt waists we reduce to	88c
All 1 00 shirt waists we reduce to	75c
All 75c shirt waists we reduce to	57c
All 50c shirt waists we reduce to	38c

We have a few $1.00 and $1.50 waists carried over from last year. Your choice while they last.....

35 cents

We have 9 of the Famous Beidfield $10.00 Ladies Suits, which we mark $7.50.

25 per cent Off on Wool and Worsted Skirts.

CLOTHING.

Traveling men and people generally who are posted speak of the high grade of clothing we carry. The fact that we absolutely warrant each and every garment to give you perfect satisfaction is conclusive evidence that our line of clothing must be above the ordinary. Here you will find the celebrated Hart Schaffner & Marx, Micheals Stern & Co., Garson Meyer & Co., and several other equally prominent makes. We must have room for the largest fall stock we've ever bought. The following reductions in price will no doubt produce the desired result.

Men's All Wool Cheviot $6.00 values for	$3 75
Men's $7.50 and $8.00 suits we give you for	5 00
Men's $10 00 suits for	7 50
Men's $12 00 suits for	9 00
Men's $15.00 and $16.00 suits for	10 50
Boys' age 10 to 18 years, $5.00 suits	$3 50
Boys' age 10 to 18 years, $7.00 and $8.00 suits	5 25
Boys' age 10 to 18 years, $10.00 suits	7 00
Boys' age 10 to 18 years, $12.00 suits	9 00
One lot of Childs' Reefer suits age 4, 5, 6 and 7, $2.50 suits	1 25
Same in $4 00 and $5 00 suits	2 50

Boys' age 8 to 16 suits.

$1 50 suits for	$1 13
3 00 suits for	2 25
5 00 suits for	3 75
2 00 suits for	1 50
4 00 suits for	3 00

¼ OFF ON ALL ODD PANTS AND VESTS.

Extra Super All-Wool Ingrain Carpets. FALL PATTERNS 49c

We Offer 33⅓ Discount from marked price on LACE CURTAINS.

On Portiers ranging from $2.50 to $20.00 the pair we make..... 25 per cent Reduction

We invite you to visit our store during this sale. We will not annoy you urging you to buy, but will be pleased to sell you whatever you think you can use advantageously. Come Early and Often.

We Are Saving You Money.

SCHAAB & BRO.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

1899. JULY. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
						1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31

N. M. 7th. F. Q. 15th. F. M 22nd. L. Q. 29th.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

Steamer MargarettOlwill Lost.

A special from Toledo states that the Cleveland and Toledo steamer State of Ohio, has arrived there with only one surviving member of the crew of the steamer Margaret Olwill, which foundered in a gale off Lorain, Ohio. The Olwill's crew was composed of about twelve men. L. P. Smith, the owner, who lives in Cleveland, has received a message saying that the Olwill is lost with all on board except one man. She was in the limestone trade between Cleveland and Kelley's Island.

Duncan Coyle is the survivor. He says the Olwill encountered a gale on the way from Kelley's Island to Cleveland. Capt. Willughby, of the State of Ohio, says he cast a line to another man besides Coyle, but he was too weak to catch it.

Andree Again.

T. J. Barou, formerly an eastern newspaper man, has written the following to the Associated Press from Wrangel, Alaska, under date of June 14: "Information received here several days ago, seemingly confirms the story that Andree, the Arctic explorer, is dead. A Norwegian who was a passenger on the Aosallie, a steamboat bound for Skagway, showed a letter supposed to have been written by Andree. The letter, in a sealed bottle, had been washed ashore off the Norwegian coast and dated May 4. The lattitude was given at 74 north, and the balloon was somewhere to the westward of Iceland. 'I am leaving balloon and provisions—Andree' were the words written."

Mayor of Muskegon Assassinated.

Mayor James Balbirnie of Muskegon, Mich., was assassinated by S. W. Tayer, a disappointed office-seeker. Tayer shot the Mayor while the latter was standing in the doorway of his store. The ball entered his left breast above the nipple. After the shooting Balbirnie turned and ran upstairs to his living rooms and dropped in the hall. He expired fifteen minutes later, Tayer swallowed some carbolic acid and then turned the revolver upon himself and fired. The ball entered his left breast. He died soon afterward.

Entire Family Poisoned.

Preston Oglesby, aged 11 years, died at Wildwood, Carter County, S. C., of hydrophobia. He was bitten by a dog ten weeks ago. The same dog bit a horse, hog and ox at the same time, and these died within three weeks. The horse was bitten through the nose, and the chickens which ate out of his trough had spasms and died. A chicken owned by a negro was killed by the dog. The family ignorantly cooked the chicken and the entire family died from eating it.

Presidential Party Returns.

The presidential party has returned to Washington. Mrs. McKinley looked very pale and was assisted from the carriage to her rooms by the President and Dr. Rixey, she being unable to walk without support. Her condition is not regarded as serious, so her physician says.

Five Men Are Scalded.

St. Louis special: The steamer St. Paul blew out the flues of her boiler north of Alton, Ill., badly scalding five of the crew. The vessel was landed safely. Melvin Johnson, colored, and Jack Mack died after reaching here.

A Jealous Woman's Deed.

At Bloomington, Ind., Mrs. W. E. Martin, wife of a railroad man, shot Miss Ida Oglesby four times, inflicting fatal wounds. Mrs. Martin accused Miss Oglesby of having alienated the affections of her husband.

Flood Causes Wrecks.

Port Arthur (Texas) special: A flood has caused a number of railroad wrecks. The water flooded many houses. Several fishermen are lost. Two railroad wrecks were caused by blinding rain and fog.

Five Men Drowned.

Five men were drowned in the Mississippi River a mile above Clarksville, Mo., by the overturning of a skiff. They were government laborers engaged in the river improvement work.

Killed in the Ring.

Kid Wanko of Washington, Pa., knocked out Felix Carr of Huntington, W. Va., at Parkersburg, Pa., in the fourth round. Carr died soon after without regaining consciousness.

Wreck on the Big Four.

The Knights of Pythias special on the Big Four, from Bloomington to Champaign, was wrecked at Mayview, Ill. Several are injured seriously.

Chicago Attorney's Fortune.

The friends of Attorney John R. O'Connor, of 2126 West Twenty-fourth place, Chicago, are congratulating him upon his good fortune in having been officially notified that he was one of four heirs to a $6,000,000 estate in Dunfermline, Scotland.

No More Sunday Base Ball.

The Supreme Court of Indiana has overruled the motion for a rehearing in the Sunday base ball case. This means that there will be no more Sunday ball in Indianapolis if the Mayor enforces the law, and he has said that he would.

EASTERN.

Joshua Gray, aged 75, one of the best-known inventors in Massachusetts, died at Medford.

Fire at Coney Island destroyed Koster's concert hall at Jones' Walk and the Bowery and several smaller places of amusement. Loss $30,000.

Fire damaged the More-Phillips Chemical works at Camden, N. J., to the extent of $100,000. Three large buildings used in the manufacture of phosphates were destroyed.

For the second time within six weeks, distinct earthquake shocks were felt in towns along the Connecticut river from a point a short distance east of Hartford as far as Saybrook.

The eight-oared shell race for the intercollegiate championship of America, at Poughkeepsie, on the Hudson, was won by Pennsylvania in 20:04. Wisconsin came in second in 20:05½.

The terra cotta works of William Galloway, Philadelphia, were entirely destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The fire is supposed to have originated in one of the kilns.

A partial examination of the books of ex-Tax Collector George L. Griswold, who was arrested at Norwich, Conn., the other day, a self-confessed embezzler, shows a shortage of about $25,000.

The four upper stories of a six-story building in Boston were destroyed by fire. The principal loss, other than on the building, falls on the Boston Book Binding Company. The loss is $180,000.

J. W. Smith was at work on the Cincinnati Saengerfest building when some timbers being hoisted about seventy-five feet above him fell. A heavy joist struck him squarely, knocking him down and fracturing his skull.

More than 2,400 members of the East Side Trousers Makers' Union went out on a strike in New York. Incidentally above 5,000 women and children will be thrown out of employment. The men had been working sixteen hours a day for $6 a week.

Mrs. George B. Barrow, when arraigned before Justice Werner in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court at New York, pleaded guilty to the charge of kidnaping Baby Marion Clarke. She was sentenced to twelve years and ten months in prison.

William Ballard, a colored hostler, was arrested in New York, accused of the murder of his employer, Clayton Young, a horse owner, in St. Louis, on Aug. 22, 1896. Ballard said he killed Young because the latter had frequently beaten and abused him.

Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau of the Department of Agriculture, and Philander Johnson, a newspaper writer of Washington, were rescued from drowning while bathing in the surf at Cape May by Congressman Henry C. Loudenslager, chairman of the Pension Committee, and W. H. Kirkpatrick of the Philadelphia Press.

Fire in Laurel, Del., destroyed seventy-eight buildings, including two hotels, a bank, the postoffice, two drug stores, nearly all the business houses and the homes of the most wealthy residents of the place. The loss is estimated at over $200,000, insurance $20,000. It is believed that the fire was caused by incendiaries who wished to cover up a murder.

WESTERN.

Judge William H. Clark, aged 39, is dead at Los Angeles, Cal.

Col. Thomas Cornelius of Portland, Ore., a pioneer of 1845, is dead.

W. H. Sullivan of Chicago was drowned in the Yellowstone river at Anaconda, Mont.

Colorado is to be represented at the Paris exposition by a gold statue of a girl to cost $1,000,000.

A Mecca lubricating oil well worth $100 a day was struck on Richard King's farm, near Warren, Ohio.

By the capsizing of their boat in the Yellowstone river at Greycliff, Mont., three men lost their lives.

An agreement has been reached by Cleveland street car men and the company by which the strike is called off.

Rev. Paul Wetzel of Kansas City, Mo., one of the first German Dunkers clergymen to preach in the country, is dead, in his seventy-sixth year.

A strike of 3,000 men in the large packing houses at the Chicago stock yards caused the suspension of hog killing operations, and but little canning is being done.

James F. Walton of the Walton Architectural Company, Cincinnati, has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the United States Court. Liabilities $46,489, assets none.

Frank Neal, the St. Louis boxer, known as "Dutch" Neal, who succumbed during a bout with Harry Peppers of San Francisco at the Adelphi Theater in Chicago, is dead of blood clot.

Miss Cora Rosebrook, aged 38 years, died in St. Luke's hospital in St. Paul from injuries received in the tornado at New Richmond, Wis., making a total of 114 known dead so far.

Miss Lena Falk of Chicago was drowned at Put-in-Bay while rowing with a male companion. The sea was rough and the boat capsized, drowning the woman before help could arrive. The man was rescued after some difficulty.

Harry Douglass of Nevada City, with twenty-five other picked miners from various counties of California, who left June 2 last year for Siberia under the leadership of John T. McCall, have perished from privation and cold.

Frederick Schatz of Graytown, Ohio, who died at the home of his wife, was not killed, but died of heart disease. Wm. H. Schatz stated that the dispatches sent out to the effect that his father was murdered by the wife are absolutely false.

At Harper, Kan., John Kornstadt, a 16-year-old boy, has confessed to having murdered his cousin Nora, the 10-year-old daughter of Tony Kornstadt, a farmer. He first assaulted her and then threw her into an abandoned well, where she was found.

Bartley, Neb., and adjacent territory was visited by a destructive hail and rain storm. For miles to the northeast not a stalk of corn or spear of wheat was left standing. Little hail insurance is carried by the farmers, and the loss will be heavy.

Jennings, one of the train robbers at Hartville, Mo., on trial for complicity in the Macomb hold-up in January last, for which robbery "Jack" Kennedy was given seventeen years in the penitentiary, was found guilty and sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary.

Another of the Macomb train robbers was convicted at Hartville, Mo., when the jury brought in a verdict finding young Joe Shepard guilty and fixing his punishment at seven years in the State penitentiary. He is a son of Jake Shepard, a member of the old James gang.

Private Wesley Kirby of Company H, Twenty-fourth infantry, was shot through the leg by Private Frank Wigfall of the same company at the headquarters at the Presidio, San Francisco. The wound is serious, and no cause is assigned for the attempt to commit murder.

John and David Howard of Beaver County, Oklahoma, have invented a horseless carriage which is propelled by wind by means of sails like a ship. These men have ridden from their home in Fulton to Beaver City in this strange vehicle, and at times traveled fifteen miles an hour.

At Shell Mound, Cal., J. E. Gorman of the Golden Gate Pistol and Rifle Club tied the world's fifty-yard pistol shooting record, which has been held for a long time by E. H. Partridge of the Massachusetts Rifle Association. His ten shot scores on the standard ammunition target were 93, 96, 92, 95, 89; total, 465.

At Osgood, Ind., while Albert Shaw was absent two men entered his house, struck Mrs. Shaw a blow that rendered her unconscious and dragged her downstairs. They then tied her hands fast to her knees and put her on the floor while they searched the house. Failing to find anything of value, they departed. Efforts to capture them have failed.

SOUTHERN.

The Southern Pacific Railway Company has issued an order that after July 1 no more liquor is to be sold at any railroad hotel over its entire system.

Three negroes are dead and one is fatally injured as a result of a riot between the white and negro miners at the ore mines near Cardiff, Ala.

While alone at the home of H. M. Beckett at Ridley, Tenn., the house caught fire and Edith Beckett, aged 5, and the 3-year-old son of J. P. Cawthorn were burned to death.

The steam tug Bernice, belonging to Patterson, Downing & Co. of Mobile, was burned at Round Island, Miss. William Foore, a passenger, was lost. The remnant of the tug was towed into Pascagoula.

A Norfolk and Southern passenger train, when within a mile of Elizabeth City, N. C., dashed into a buggy, killing Henry and William Mann, aged respectively 14 and 10 years, and Charles Baker, aged 14.

The elder House at Indian Springs, a watering place about seventy miles from Mason, Ga., was destroyed by fire. About 100 guests were in the building. All escaped but two, who were slightly injured. All the baggage was lost.

By the sinking of the steamer Apalache, plying between Columbus and Apalachicola, Fla., in the Chipola river, near Wewahitchka, Fla., four persons, one of them a Chicago woman, were drowned. The steamer's boilers exploded as she sank and several persons were injured.

FOREIGN.

The Empress of Russia has given birth to a third daughter, who has been named Marie.

Sir Thomas Lipton's cup-challenger, Shamrock, was launched at Millwall, England.

The Queen Regent of Spain has signed the bill for the cession to Germany of the Caroline Islands.

The South African republic is reported to be placing large orders for rifles in Italy for immediate delivery.

Baron Godin and Baron Bounet, Bavarian officers, were killed while attempting to ascend the Ackerispitze, in the Tyrolese Alps.

The British House of Lords, by a vote of 68 to 182, defeated the bill legalizing the election of women as councilors and aldermen.

Cardinal Count Franz de Paula von Schonborn, archbishop of Prague and primate of Bohemia, is dead, in his fifty-fifth year.

Vonolel, the famous Arab charger of Lord Roberts of Kandahar, and Perdita II., the well-known mare of the Prince of Wales, are dead.

Anti-budget riots have been in progress in Saragossa, Spain. The troops fired on the mob in the Plaza de la Constucion, killing one person and seriously wounding two others. Many persons were injured. Seventeen persons received dangerous wounds.

IN GENERAL.

Prof. Samuel Harris of Yale College is dead, aged 85.

Thirty-three cases of yellow fever, with five deaths, have been officially reported since the beginning of the present outbreak at Santiago.

The village of St. Raymond, thirty-five miles from Quebec, was almost wiped out by a fire. Forty buildings were burned. Loss $50,000, well insured.

A. R. Hill of Vancouver, B. C., was killed by a street car. Hill, who was a common laborer, claimed to be the heir of Lord Armstrong, the famous gunmaker, but the peerage list gives no heir to Armstrong.

A number of mirror manufacturers who control the business of the United States in that line have formed a combine for the regulation of prices and production. J. M. Conroy of Conroy, Prugh & Co. was elected president.

Bradstreet's views the trade situation thus: "Less than the average effect of approaching mid-summer influences is discernible in current trade reports. Prices, too, show a strength unusual at this period, and particularly in view of recent steady advances. This is notably manifest, of course, in the iron and steel industry, where the tendency of values is still upward. Hopes of improvement in the woolen goods industry have materialized in an active demand at leading markets for the manufactured product. Improved crop reports are responsible chiefly for lower quotations of products declining in price this week. Cotton crop prospects have continued to improve, and the raw product is lower. Raw sugar is lower on unanimous reports of improving crop prospects the world over, but refined sugar is in heavy domestic demand and firm. Lumber retains all of its early activity and strength alike as regards movement and prices. Wheat, including flour, shipments for the week aggregated 3,746,718 bushels, against 2,790,471 bushels last week. Corn exports for the week aggregate 2,872,432 bushels, against 3,285,301 bushels last week."

MARKET REPORTS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 2, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2, 24c to 26c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 19c; eggs, fresh, 12c to 13c; potatoes, choice new, 40c to 50c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.50; hogs, choice light, $2.75 to $4.00; sheep, common to choice, $2.50 to $4.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 74c to 75c; corn, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 29c to 30c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $3.00 to $5.00; wheat, No. 2, 74c to 75c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 34c to 36c; oats, No. 2, 26c to 28c; rye, No. 2, 57c to 59c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 72c to 74c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 35c to 36c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 27c to 29c; rye, No. 2, 64c to 66c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2, 78c to 80c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 35c to 36c; oats, No. 2 white, 30c to 31c; rye, 58c to 60c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 74c to 76c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 25c to 26c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c; clover seed, new, $3.95 to $4.05.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 3, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 27c to 29c; rye, No. 1, 60c to 61c; barley, No. 2, 41c to 43c; pork; mess, $8.00 to $8.50.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $4.50; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.50; lambs, common to extra, $4.50 to $7.25.

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, $3.00 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 80c to 81c; corn, No. 2, 40c to 41c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 34c; butter, creamery, 15c to 19c; eggs, Western, 14c to 16c.

WHAT OTIS HAS DONE

DETAILS OF PRESENT SITUATION IN PHILIPPINES.

Country Held by Troops Sixty Miles North and South of Manila—Growing Desire for Peace—Natives Combining to Drive Out Insurgents.

Gen. Otis, in reply to a cable from the War Department at Washington asking for information regarding situation and conditions in the Philippines, cabled as follows:

"Adjutant General, Washington: Rainy season. Little inland campaigning possible in Luzon. We occupy large portion of Tagalog country, lines stretching from Imus south, to San Fernando north, nearly sixty miles, and to eastward into Laguna province. Insurgent armies have suffered great losses and are scattered; only large force held together about 4,000 in Tarlac province and northern Pampanga. Their scattered forces are in bands of fifty to five hundred in other portions Luzon; in Cavite and Batangas provinces could assemble possibly 2,000, though demoralized from recent defeat. Mass of people terrorized by insurgent soldiers, desire peace and American protection; no longer flee on approach of our troops unless forced by insurgents, but gladly welcome them. No recent burning of towns. Population within our lines becoming dense, taking up land cultivation extensively; kept out of Manila much as possible as city population is becoming too great to be cared for.

"Natives southeast of Luzon combining to drive out insurgents; only hope of insurgent leaders is United States aid. They proclaim near overthrow of the present administration, to be followed by their independence and recognition by United States. This is the influence which enables them to hold out; much contention prevails among them and no civil government remains.

"Trade with ports not in our possession, a former source of insurgent revenue, now interdicted; not certain of wisdom of this policy, as people in those parts are without supply of food and merchants are suffering losses; meditate restoring trade privileges, although insurgents reap benefits. Courts here in successful operation under direction of able Filipinos. Affairs in other islands comparatively quiet, awaiting results in Luzon. All anxious for trade, and repeated calls for American troops are received. Am giving attention to Jole Archipelago and Palawan Islands.

"Our troops have worked to the limit of endurance. Volunteer organizations have been called in and replaced by regulars, who now occupy salient positions. Nebraska, Pennsylvania and Utah now taking transports, and Sixth infantry sent to Negros to relieve California. These troops are in good physical condition; sickness among troops has increased lately, due mostly to arduous service and climatic influences. Nothing alarming.

"Of the 12 per cent of the command reported sick nearly 6 in general hospital, of whom 3 per cent have typhoid and 1½ malarial fevers; 25 per cent have intestinal trouble; remaining 55 per cent have various ailments, 14 of which are due to wound injuries. Many officers and men who served in Cuba break under recurrence of Cuban fever, and regular regiments received are inadequately officered.

"OTIS."

The inadequacy of the number of officers mentioned in the last part of the cablegram has been remedied by the sailing of the transports Zelandia and Sheridan.

GERMANY REJECTS SCHEME.

Colonel Von Schwatzhoff Puts a Check on Disarmament Plans.

The Russian proposals for a standstill of armament have been submitted to a sub-committee of the peace conference at The Hague. This move was all that saved them from immediate rejection. Their eventual rejection is sure.

Col. Gross von Schwatzhoff of the German delegation made a speech against the disarmament scheme which is the sensation of the conference so far. In reply to the Czar's plea for disarmament on the ground that a maintenance of large armaments is crushing the nations, he said that Germany was not being ruined and her wealth, contentedness and standard of life were daily increasing. He said further that a reduction of peace forces was only one small step toward a reduction of offensive power.

Length of military service, development of railway, enabling rapid mobilization and economical conditions were all factors in a nation's military strength. He concluded by saying with amazing frankness that to only consider the non-increase of armaments and leave out all these other factors might seem a plausible scheme for peace to an outsider, but to a military expert it was so manifestly absurd that he wondered it could ever have been put forward in earnest.

Many of the delegates say that Col. von Schwatzhoff's speech was a smashing blok to Russian arguments. The German peace delegates have privately informed their colleagues that they are now instructed to support the principle of arbitration.

BELIEVE SHE WAS MURDERED.

Evidence Showing that Belle Slavin Did Not Commit Suicide.

When the body of Belle Slavin was found in the office of the National Bank of Commerce at Wichita, Kan., death having resulted from a bullet wound in the head, it was supposed that she had committed suicide. Later developments seem to indicate that the young woman was murdered and the police are working upon that theory.

Miss Slavin, who was the bank's stenographer, was permitted to take in outside work, which often kept her at the bank until 10 o'clock at night. Mr. Jobes, president of the bank, now states that on the afternoon previous a strange man came to the bank and asked to have some work done. Miss Slavin told him to bring it around after 6 o'clock. Mr. Jobes says that he observed the stranger surveying the interior of the bank very critically. A citizen heard a pistol shot just after 7 o'clock. When Miss Slavin's father and another citizen went in search of her they found the bank door unlocked, papers were scattered around the floor, the contents of several drawers were disarranged, and Miss Slavin's keys were missing. The revolver found by the young woman's side was not hers.

AMERICANS SUE ONTARIO.

Lumbermen Claim Damages Under the New Timber Regulations.

Don M. Dickinson of Detroit has filed a big bill of damages against the province of Ontario at Ottawa, on behalf of Michigan lessees of Ontario timber lands for violation of the crown timber licenses. Ontario now requires all these lessees to manufacture the logs into lumber in Ontario, and as a consequence several mills in Michigan have had to shut down. The claims reach the total of $986,500. The constitutionality of the Ontario statute is now being tested in the courts, but the case will not likely reach the final court of appeal, the British privy council, until next November.

WORLD'S WOMEN MEET.

International Council Commences Its Sessions in London.

The International Council of Women opened in the convocation hall of the church house, London, England. The Countess of Aberdeen, president of the council, in her address, after cordial words of welcome, sketched the duties of the council. She said international arbitration should ever be placed foremost in its program, advocated the establishment of an international bureau of information regarding all that affects women, and warned women against arrogating to themselves alone the duties of curing all evils.

Lady Aberdeen afterward introduced Mrs. May Wright Sewall of the United States, vice-president of the council, who was enthusiastically received as a possible successor to the presidency.

For officers the international council has some of the most prominent women in the world. They are: President, Countess of Aberdeen; vice-president, Mrs. May Wright Sewall of the United States; treasurer, Baroness Alexandra Grippenberg of Finland; recording secretary, Mme. Maria Martin of France; corresponding secretary, Miss Teresa F. Wilson of London.

The nations represented at the congress are the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Sweden, Canada, Denmark, Holland, India, New South Wales, Tasmania, Norway, Palestine, China, New Zealand and the Argentine Republic. The United States is represented by Mrs. Fannie Humphreys Gaffney, Susan B. Anthony and Rev. Anna H. Shaw. Among the well-known American women who are in attendance at the congress are Dr. Sarah Hackett Stevenson, Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller, Mrs. Florence B. Kelley, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Grannis and Miss Alice Burditt.

NEW CANAL COMBINATION.

It Proposes to Construct an Isthmian Water Way.

Articles of incorporation for the American Isthmus Ship Canal Company have been filed in Trenton, N. J. Through these articles the first announcement was made of the new combination, which, it is said, includes many men of large wealth, headed by former Mayor William R. Grace, and expects to carry to completion the isthmian canal scheme. Although the nominal capital is $30,000, the articles of incorporation give the right to increase it to $250,000,000.

It is estimated that between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 will be needed to carry out the project, the greater part of which will be expended in buying off the holders of concessions. According to the papers of incorporation, the object of the company is to acquire any and all concessions, rights and franchises on the American isthmus, to build a canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans, to own lands, mines and railroads; to colonize and to build, own and operate any canal from ocean to ocean and to obtain aid from the United States, England, France, Germany or any other Government to that end.

TRUSTS ON THE DECLINE.

So Says Crawford Fairbanks, Who Organized Strawboard Combine.

Crawford Fairbanks of Terre Haute, Ind., the brewery magnate and the promoter of the strawboard trust, has a vivid idea that the trusts are, so to speak, on their last legs.

"Did you read that expression of the Attorney General of the United States in which he said that the investors in trusts would be the sufferers—not the public?" said he. "Well, his head may be level. The investors have a stomachful of trusts. Trust stock is down from 15 to 20 points and the investors don't bite like they did. The furore is wearing off. It takes a bigger chunk of bait and a better quality to have a tempting effect than it did awhile back. I don't think that it will be possible to put through any trust deal on a large scale in the future."

POWERFUL NEW SHELL TESTED.

Device of Far Greater Destructive Power than Shrapnel Invented.

A shell of terrific explosive power, wide radius of destruction and a capacity to annihilate by bursting fragments and a shock as effective as a streak of lightning will be the feature of the fall campaign in the Philippine Islands. Tests of the charge of this terrible engine of war have been made at Sandy Hook, the Government guarding closely its secret of manufacture. A shell of this nature charged with an explosive equal to melinite or dynamite falling near a battalion of the enemy would kill or cripple a very large percentage of the battalion. The chances of escape from this tremendous machine will be decreased 100 times, experts say, as compared with shrapnel discharged at the same objects.

PLAGUE GETS TO HONOLULU.

Two Deaths from Bubonic Scourge in Hawaiian Harbor.

The steamer Nippon Maru, from Hong Kong, which has reached Honolulu, has been quarantined in consequence of a death, believed to be from bubonic plague, having occurred on board three days before her arrival. One Chinese passenger died on board just before the vessel reached Nagasaki and the Japanese health authorities had the body cremated and held the vessel in quarantine for several days. Three days before reaching Honolulu another death occurred among the Chinese. The Honolulu health officers made a bacteriological examination, resulting in the finding of bubonic plague baccili in the body.

Sparks from the Wires.

Percy Cox, 19, Westfield, N. J., hanged himself.

E. B. Weeks found murdered in his home, Bogue Sound, B. N. C.

E. G. Leake, Elkton, Ky., stabbed Homer Scott, colored, to death.

Joseph Lincoln, 65, relative of Abraham Lincoln, dead, Chattanooga, Tenn.

E. C. Robinson, Lexington, Mo., killed himself in a Cincinnati hotel. Arsenic.

Congressman Charles Dick will manage the Ohio campaign for the Republicans.

Joe Lepps, Louisville, Ky., in a family row, killed his stepfather, George Bowmaster.

So much gambling in Cuba that Gen. Brooke threatens to close some of the places.

John Hayes, Belaire, Md., engaged in a pistol battle with Policeman Bateman. Both dead.

Emile Zola, at Paris, filed papers opposing the verdict condemning him to a year's imprisonment.

Two principal witnesses in murder cases pending in San Saba County, Texas, were assassinated.

Jos. Hopper, Summerville, Texas, suddenly became insane and killed Samuel Davis with an ax.

Four freight cars crashed through the bridge, Pacific, Mo., and fell into the river. No one hurt.

Capt. Peter Dervies, Grand Rapids, Mich., is trying to secure homes in Georgia for 100 Dutch families.

Mrs. Margaret Trishman, Mammoth Hot Springs, Yellowstone Park, cut the throat of her 5-year-old son. Insane.

THE PUBLIC EYE

Never since the war has there been so much excitement in Mississippi. "Private" John Allen is stumping the State against Gov. McLaurin for the United States senatorship. In almost every hamlet the men have met in debate, and Allen never misses a chance to poke fun at his antagonist. Allen, who has been famous for years as the wit of the lower house of Congress, was nicknamed "Private," because he says he is the only man on record who served in the Confederate army and who has since admitted that he was not a colonel. Once when he met a former Confederate general in joint debate the latter referred to the fact that this was his first visit to the town since the war. "Then," he said, "at the head of our forces I was able to turn back the Northern marauders who had come to despoil you of your homes and your liberty. When I lay down to sleep in my tent that night, I thanked God I had been able to turn back the horde of assassins from the North." The great gathering cheered the general to the echo. When Allen replied he paid the greatest tribute to the heroic deeds of the previous speaker. "As that heroic commander," he said, "kneeled down in his tent to thank God that he had been able to save your homes, he was guarded by a humble private soldier, who had fought during the preceding twenty-four hours. When the last Yankee had fled from the field that private shouldered his musket and with veneration in his heart for his heroic commander, guarded his tent for the ensuing twelve hours, while the hero slept. I was that private." Allen had never been in the town in his life before, either during or since the war, but his retort won him the election. He is giving Gov. McLaurin a hot canvass and consequently the interest in Mississippi is at a white heat.

JOHN ALLEN.

-:—:-

Maj. Marchand, whom Paris has been saluting as a new Napoleon, had a hard time getting into the army at all. He was the son of a widow, and as such was exempt from military service. But the taste for military life was strong within him, and at the age of 18 he wanted to enlist. His mother refused her consent, however, and instead bound him as a clerk to a lawyer in the little village where the family lived. He proved a poor student, spending most of his time poring over geography and history. One day he was told to engross a deed. His master, who suspected the boy of idleness, stole into the room an hour later, and found him with a map of China on his desk. He had stuck the map full of pins with red and black heads to indicate the relative positions of the French and the Black Flags in Tonkin, and was studying the progress of that campaign. The attorney dismissed him in disgrace, and he finally persuaded his mother to let him enlist in the marines.

MAJ. MARCHAND.

-:—:-

Rev. Dr. Newton M. Mann, pastor of the Unitarian Church of Omaha, declares that he wants his congregation to go to sleep during church services. "I regard it as a compliment to my integrity and indisputable evidence of confidence in the soundness of my theological views to have prominent members of my congregation go to sleep in their seats and thus rest during my discourse." Last week Sunday he delivered a sermon upon the ethics of "Sleeping in Church During the Regular Service," in which he uttered the above remark. Ever since the town has talked of little else than the remarkable sermon. Some insist that it was a fine piece of sarcasm leveled at his critics. Dr. Mann, however, declares that he spoke in entirely good faith. In concluding his startling sermon Dr. Mann asserted that he wanted all members of his congregation to feel entirely at liberty to sleep whenever they felt like it in his church. He further announced in all seriousness that he accepted this condition as the best evidence that his congregation trusts him and has unlimited faith in the soundness of his theology.

REV. DR. MANN.

-:—:-

Lieutenant Commander Hodgson, who is one of the latest officers to become involved in the Schley-Sampson controversy, is a native of Georgia. He graduated at the Naval Academy in 1875, and served for the next two years in the Asiatic squadron. Since graduation he has served four terms at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He spent 1888-90 on the Pinta at Sitka, Alaska. In April, 1898, he was relieved from duty at the Naval Academy to serve on the Brooklyn, Admiral Schley's flagship. It was while engaged on this service that he had the famous conversation with Admiral Schley, around which the dispute between the friends of the two commanders centers.

A. C. HODGSON.

-:—:-

The formation of the United Forwarding Company, which is to compete with the older express companies, marks the sixtieth anniversary of the establishment of the express business. Its originator was William F. Harnden of Boston, who on March 4, 1839, made his first trip from Boston to New York, delivering a few bundles of books and some bank notes for Boston brokers. Mr. Harnden made four trips a week, and made himself particularly useful to the press as he brought information from distant points quicker than it was forwarded by the mails. A year later Alvan Adams started a competing line, which has since developed into the great Adams Express Company. The first express line west of Buffalo was established by Wells in 1845. It was the foundation of the Wells-Fargo express lines. In 1853 the United States Express Company was formed, and in 1855 the American Express Company came into existence.

W. F. HARNDEN.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Mystery in a Disappearance—A Boy Kills Two Men—Beer Causes a Murder—Y. M. C. A. Homes Are Projected—Sale of Light and Power.

Most mysterious circumstances surround the disappearance of Henry S. Brown of Anderson, one of the best known and wealthiest men in that section. It is thought that he has killed himself. He left home the first of last week and later addressed a letter to the members of his family, stating that he had gone for good and that they would never see him again. He told them how all of his financial affairs stood, where his money was and that he had taken but $10—all that he would need. No trace has since been found as to his whereabouts. Brown is 63 years of age. His finances were in good condition and his family relations were pleasant.

Boy Shoots Pawnbrokers.

Willie Brown, a 16-year-old boy, entered the pawnshop conducted by H. Horwitz at Marion and asked to be shown a revolver. The clerk, Max Cunapop, waited on him and filled the chambers with loaded shells. A dispute arose as to the payment of the purchase price, and the proprietor and clerk attempted to throw the boy out of the store, when he opened fire on them, shooting Cunopop twice through the stomach and Horwitz once through the bowels. Cunopop is dead. The boy was taken to jail.

Plan Y. M. C. A. Homes in Cities.

At a State conference Anderson was selected as the place and Nov. 23 to 26 as the dates for the State Y. M. C. A. convention this year. There are many issues on which will make this the most important annual State convention yet held. The movement to establish and build Y. M. C. A. homes in all cities of 20,000 and over will be pushed through.

Wedding Ends in a Tragedy.

At Jonesboro a keg of beer given to friends by the bridegroom resulted in the killing of one of the wedding party. After drinking the beer James Terrell and Samuel Wiley quarreled and Wiley killed Terrell. Wiley says that he killed Terrell in self-defense. Wiley was arrested.

Light and Power Plant Sold.

The Hartford City Light and Power Company has disposed of its business to H. M. Herbert of Cambridge City and R. Ellison of La Grange, who took immediate possession.

Within Our Borders.

Robbers are making nightly raids in Princeton.

Ed Hevenridge, Ladoga, cigarettes, golden gates.

Leah Stanton, 2, Sweetser, drank gasoline and is dead.

Mrs. Mattie Gorman, Centerville, suddenly went insane.

Edwin Terrell, farmer near Franklin, found dead in his barn.

Logansport police will get more money for guarding the town.

Mrs. Lucretia W. Denlingen, Morristown, found dead in bed.

Washington letter carriers promoted from $600 to $850 a year.

George Armstrong, 32, Newport, nearly sawed in two in a sawmill.

Charles Wilcox, Elkhart, caught a 23-pound pickerel in Baldwin lake.

Evansville cops are arresting everybody that hasn't taken out vehicle license.

Swain Bros.' sawmill, Rushville, is in ashes. Loss $20,000, and forty men are out of work.

Rev. Alonzo Childs, 88, Franklin, sixty years in the ministry and an old circuit rider, is dead.

Mrs. R. E. Johnson, Hartford, found a blue racer coiled on the bed with her sleeping baby. No one hurt.

Godman Brake Company, Anderson, has been taken from a receiver's hands by a new company, which paid all debts.

William Eichele, 26, Evansville, was drowned in Pigeon creek by a boat capsizing. Three companions narrowly escaped.

James Lytle, Strawtown, returned from the Valparaiso school, with what had been diagnosed as chickenpox, but it has turned out to be smallpox.

Charles Schultze, aged 50 years, a farmer, committed suicide at Valparaiso by taking half a pound of paris green. He leaves a wife and six children. Ill health was the cause.

The whole family of John Houk at Bruceville, consisting of eight persons, was poisoned by eating green beans that had been in a brass kettle. The prompt arrival of a doctor saved their lives.

The Russell Harrison Street Railway and Electric Lighting Company's property at Terre Haute has been sold at receiver's sale for a total of $56,000. The purchasers are representatives of Lee Higginson & Co. of Boston, who in turn represent Boston capitalists.

Thomas W. Wright of St. Louis paid down $503,120 in cash for the Union steel mills in Anderson, which he purchased at receiver's sale. He will at once turn them into the Republic Steel Company. The Standard Oil and other unsecured creditors, who will not get a cent on the settlement, began suits testing the validity and the priority of the secured claims.

The extensive barn owned by Nathan Lawson, near Gaston, was burned the other night.

The Wind of the Night.

I.

The wind's at the casement. O wind o' the night!
Do you envy this shelter—this flickering light?
You have stormed the pale stars from the heaven above:—
Would you hound this lone hearth, with its ashes of love?
Far—far be your flight,
O wind o' the night,
To the terrible seas, with their billows of white;—
To the fearful seas, where the black skies frown,
And the gray gulls scream as the ships go down!
Fast in flight—
O wind o' the night,
From the ashes of love and the phantom of light!

II.

The wind at the casement. O wind o' the night,
Beat down the rude portals in wrath and in might!
You have blown the bleak stars from the heaven above:—
Wreak your rage on this hearth, with the ashes of love!
Nay, wing not your flight,
O wind o' the night,
To the seas where the drowned souls are shrouded in white;
For the seas they lie east, and the seas they lie west:
But the stormiest sea's in the human breast!
Stay your flight,
O wind o' the night:—
Here are ashes of love for you—embers of light!

III.

The wind's at the casement. O wind o' the night,
Toss o'er my bleak bosom lost tresses of light!
Reveal through the clouds—through the shrouds o' the skies,
The smile on her dear lips—the light of her eyes!
I am weary to-night
As your wings in their flight,
For the fall of her beautiful tresses of light!
For the seas they lie east, and the seas they lie west,
But they bring her no more to the love of my breast!
Stay your flight!
O wind o' the night:—
Here are ashes of love for you—embers of light!

F. E. STANTON.

NOT WHILE HE LIVED.

I worked with the gang in Nine Pits colliery about fifteen years back, and there was one man there who hailed from South Wales as I got pretty friendly with.

I've called him a man, but I don't know the title comes right. He was more like a stunted boy than a man, and more like some sort of a queer animal than either. He had monstrous large head and shoulders, and a pair of little, bowed, twisted legs, no bigger than a child's of nine years old.

I've said we were pretty friendly, but I don't know as I was anything more than civil to him.

He was clever and could speak English as well as any of us. He had been two years or more at the Nine Pits and he brought some money with him when he came, for he had a cottage of his own and a tidy piece of garden, which was above what the rest of us had.

There wasn't a man of six feet amongst us stronger than he was. To have seen him swing his pick would make you hold your breath. He could walk, you see, down some of the narrow, low galleries, where chaps like we would have to crawl.

I lived along with my father and sister then. We were precious poor, and father used to say he hoped Hetty would marry someone able to keep her and so give us a lift that way.

One day a new hand came to the pit, Jim Marwood by name. See him on Sunday going to chapel, clean and smart, as straight as a pole, with his blue eyes looking so frank and smiling, and you'd say he looked a picture.

He struck up a mighty affection for me before he had been a month in the gang. He told me all about his friends and such-like, most confidential, and I found out he had to keep his mother and hadn't a six-pence he could call his own.

Well, one day—I remember it as clear as yesterday—it was between the lights on a September evening, I was smoking my pipe in our back room—father was out of the house—when I heard voices in the other room across the passage. It was Matty and my sister talking together.

Matty was the dwarf. He had a long Welsh name, but we called him "Matty" in the general way, because of his rough hair, and he didn't seem to mind the joke.

"I love you!" he says to Hetty. "I've loved you ever since I've seen you. Won't you marry me? I'd be a good husband to you."

"Marry you?" she says. "Why, Matty you must be dreaming! Of course I won't."

He was silent for a minute; then he says: "I'm stunted and crooked. I know, but I love you better than any other man will ever love you, and I've a comfortable home to offer you."

"If you had twenty homes I wouldn't have you," she answered quick. "So do say no more about it."

He spoke short and savagelike.

"Jim Marwood's the man that stands between you and me. Do you think I've been blind? Jim Marwood has got your heart and do you think you will ever marry him while I'm alive?"

"It is Jim Marwood that has got my heart and I have his, and I'm not ashamed to say it before you or any man. I know you've got your cottage and your garden that you are so mortal pround of, and I know Jim is poor, and we shall have to wait for years but you needn't think you'll frighten me out of marrying him. I'd never marry such a miserable, wicked, ugly little wretch as you! So don't flatter yourself I would."

The next day we were all underground as usual. Somehow or other Matty and Marwood and me found ourselves always pretty close together. He seemed to me to be hanging on to Jim in a way I didn't like, hearing what I had heard, and I kept as close to both as I well could.

I noticed that the dwarf scarce took his eyes off Jim except at 12 o'clock, when we stopped for our bits of food, and then he sat in a corner by himself under a truck and scribbled on a scrap of paper, with a queer sort of smile on his face.

In the afternoon we got down to a lower level. It was a dangerous part of the mine, as we all knew, and we kept our davy lamps pretty tight, I can tell you.

"There's fire damp about here," said one of the men.

"And a spark would settle the lot of us, wouldn't it?" said the dwarf.

"Ah, that it would!" Jim answered.

Nothing more was said about the fire damp, however, and the day, the longest day I had ever known, came around to 6 o'clock without an explosion.

The cages were ready for us to get up to the top of the shaft, and most of the men had gone.

"You go now," says I to the dwarf.

"No," he answered, "I'm going to stay a little overtime to-night. You all go on and send the cage down for me. And, look here, give this to your sister Hetty—will you?— and tell her to open it."

He put a bundle into my hand tied up in a handkerchief. I took it gingerly enough, for with such suspicions in my mind I half expected it might go off in my face somehow.

"What are you afraid of?" he asks, sharp.

"Nothing," I says, as sharp.

And we touched the signal rope, and up went Jim and me, and the dwarf stood underneath and turned his face up, watching us out of sight.

Well, I felt more comfortable when we put our feet on firm ground on top of the shaft and had sent the car down again for him.

"Wonder what's in that bundle," says Jim.

"Maybe Matty will tell you some time." I replied, little thinking how it concerned him.

I took it home and called Hetty to open it. Our cottage wasn't far from the pits and it couldn't have been above ten minutes since the dwarf had put it in my hand.

She undid the knot, and there—if you would believe it—were the title deeds of his cottage and $60 tied up in a bit of canvas and the scrap of paper I had seen him scribble under the truck. There were the words on it:

"What is here is for you. 'Ugly and miserable' I am, but 'wicked' I am not. I said you shouldn't marry him while I was alive and I shall keep my word. Think kindly of a dwarf, if you can. God made me as well as him."

We hadn't got to the end of the poor dirty little letter when we heard a sound that made our hearts stand still—a long, dull, roaring shook the earth where we stood, as if it was thunder under our feet.

"An explosion in the mine!" says Hetty, with a face as white as chalk.

It was no use trying to dig him out. He knew where he opened his davy lamp—and he must have opened it—that human help could never reach him there.

She cried about it for a week and said she should never be happy again. But I think she is happy now, for she married the Easter after. They live in Matty's cottage still, and the garden is all abloom with flowers.—London Evening News.

ANIMALS THAT CLIMB.

Some of Them Learn with Difficulty the Use of Trees.

In New York men cheerfully go up to the twenty-seventh story in elevators, and sleep on the third floor o' nights; but primeval man is not a climber, nor do animals take to it without a long course of development, says the New York World.

African natives who have lived in one-story huts show the greatest fear of climbing stairs, and will sometimes go up on hands and knees. Dogs often have to be trained to climb stairs, instinctively distrusting the upper stories. It has been conjectured that this is because the dog's forelegs break easily below the shoulder, and the beast seems to realize this. The fox has no such fear, and has been known to climb a tree with plenty of small limbs to the height of seventeen feet.

Swimming comes easier than climbing to most animals, as well as to many races of men. Rats and guinea-pigs can swim well and climb not at all, although their cousins, the squirrels, are at home in the trees.

Prairie dogs, which live on plains and have no use for climbing, can be taught the trick, but when they try to jump from a height they usually fall on their heavy, stupid heads, and either stun themselves or break their teeth. They lack the inherited instinct that should teach them what can and what cannot be done. Australian rabbits, of the same family of rodents, can climb very well, having lived for generations in forests.

Bears can climb well if little, but the grizzly and other large species stay mainly on the ground. A bear always climbs down a tree stern foremost, as does the domestic cat until she has nearly reached the ground, when she turns and jumps; but most wild cats run down a trunk head first, even the heavy leopard being a more skillful climber than the light house cat. The tiger and lion, however, do not climb, for no discoverable reason except that they fear falling on account of their weight.

Mother Cat and the Foxes.

Mr. Buck Harrington, living near Tip Top, just over the line in Meade County, who is a great fox-hunter, has quite a curiosity in a mother house cat that has assumed the care of four young foxes. Mr. Harrington has killed eight grown foxes this year, and after catching the last one he secured the four little ones, only a few days old, and carried them home for his children to see; put them down on the floor, and, while the children were enjoying the sight, the mother cat, which had lately lost her own little ones, ran in and grabbed one in her mouth and ran from the room, and soon returned for another, and again and again till she took them all, nestled them up to her in her bed, and has been tenderly caring for them for ten days or more.—Elizabethtown (Ky.) News.

It is calculated that the yearly production of paper in the world is three billion pounds weight, and this emanates from 2,801 mills.

STRAWBERRIES CHICAGO EATS

CHICAGO eats strawberries. A monster shortcake four miles wide and a fraction over seven miles in length, in weight 504 tons and containing 168 tons of strawberries, would be her daily consumption if all of the berries shipped to the windy city were made up in shortcake. But they are not, although most of them no doubt find their way between crusts which are served with sugar and cream. It would take a freight train of twenty-five cars to move the cake. The shortcake estimate is made on most liberal basis—allowing many more berries than are generally found in Chicago cakes. The weight of the berries is figured at one-third. The cost of the berries alone—at wholesale prices—is $23,000, and it costs on an average $2,000 per day to ship these berries to Chicago.

Chicago eats more strawberries to the person than any other city in the world. She consumes almost as many berries as does New York, because she is nearer to the greatest strawberry market and is able to get them fresher and better. She also has the advantage of getting the best berries grown in all the world. Chicago is the greatest market, not only for the Indiana, Illinois and Michigan shippers, but also Arkansas and Tennessee. She practically takes all of these three greatest crops. She pays prices ranging from $1 to $3 per crate, owing to the season. She never becomes glutted. This can only be said of one other city in the United States—New York. The Chicago strawberry season, starting with Florida berries and closing with northern Michigan, is about seven weeks. There is nothing in the vegetable world that so demonstrates the phenomena of the zones as do strawberries. Their march north is just as regular as clockwork and can be figured on almost to the hour by the strawberry brokers. The most remarkable feature of the strawberry production is the small acreage. Strawberries can be raised almost anywhere, but the acreage of land that produces the berries that are marketable and profitable is surprisingly low. Ten acres will furnish employment for fifty-five men and women during the season and each acre produces a net revenue on three weeks' picking of something over $300, or $3,000 for the patch. Each acre each morning gives about thirty-five to forty crates. The farmer picks, sorts, boxes and crates and hauls the berries to the special express stations, where the special express trains are waiting. He pays 10 per cent to his Chicago "strawberry broker," pays 14 cents for his crate, 36 cents for the picking, 33 cents for the shipping into Chicago—a total of about $1. He will average about 50 to 60 cents on each crate. The pickers are "professionals," many of whom start with the season in Florida and work through to the last crops in Michigan. They live in tents and cook their own meals. By scientific culture the American strawberry is constantly becoming larger and larger.

HE BEAT TWO NATIONS.

Skipper Marks Defied America and Great Britain.

Captain George Marks, of the American schooner Helvetia, is a man who successfully defied the authorities of two nations, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. When he collected his little bill for $650 from the owners of his boat, Canadians of Valley Field rejoiced with Americans. Fireworks, which had been bought for the Queen's birthday anniversary, were set off in honor of the doughty captain's victory. The little Canadian village had never heard such cheers as rent the air when Captain Marks, his wife and his soldier son walked down the gang plank in possession of a good roll of Dominion bank bills. Captain Marks' picturesque defiance of two nations aboard his stanch Helvetia sufficiently refutes the theory that "steam spoils romance at sea."

Captain Marks is a plain American citizen. He reached Valley Field, Canada, early last winter with a fleet of eighty vessels, which were passing through Canadian waters on their way to the great lakes. The whole fleet was caught in the ice, and there it had to remain throughout the winter. While the vessels were locked up in the ice the company which owned them went into liquidation, and a receiver was appointed, who finally sold the entire fleet, the Helvetia going to a Cleveland syndicate. Crews and captains of all the ships were paid off, with the exception of Captain Marks, who says that he was told his account was not in shape and would be got ready as soon as possible, and that then he would receive the money.

CAPTAIN MARKS AND HIS SCHOONER HELVETIA.

Captain Marks' crew left for their homes. His wife, who had been cook, remained with her husband, and weeks went by without the agent returning to pay the captain his money. He went to see the United States vice consul, who said he did not see that he could do anything under the circumstances. Captain Marks then engaged a local crew, his son having arrived, kept on living on the vessel and awaited developments. The syndicate paid for provisions for Marks and his wife, but declared that they were not responsible for any salaries.

Until his salary was paid Captain Marks was determined not to leave. The owners sent Captain Packer and a crew of five men to take charge of the Helvetia. Packer explained his mission. Very emphatically Marks declared that he would stay where he was until he got his money.

Captain Packer telegraphed to Cleveland for orders. He was told to lay the matter before the United States vice consul, Mr. Gorman. Mr. Gorman put the matter to the Washington authorities. He was directed to instruct the opposing parties to proceed in accordance with the law.

The Helvetia's new owners then engaged counsel in Montreal and swore out a warrant for "the arrest of George Marks, Sr.; George Marks, Jr., and Jennie Mitchell, wife of George Marks, Sr." A band of detectives from Montreal was sent to take the captain. They found the Helvetia securely barricaded. Young Marks had fought at San Juan, and he knew a thing or two about the usefulness of barbed wire. He surrounded the schooner's deck with a high fence, and posted pickets day and night.

Captain Marks met the detectives with the assurance that he was "darned glad" to see them, but would never give up the ship until he had a bullet in his heart or $650 of wages in his pocket. This sentiment was echoed by his wife, his son, and the twenty men of his crew. Citizens on shore encouraged the plucky skipper. When the detectives brought fire ladders and attempted to scale the ship's barricade, friendly Canadians seized the ladders and came near throwing the detectives into the water.

Captain Marks explained that "my own consul has gone back on me and some one named Cridler, connected with the State Department in Washington, ordered me off the boat without a dollar, and me 500 miles from home."

Detectives who were sent to investigate the enemy's intrenchment reported that a small army would be required to dislodge the captain. Mr. Archambault, Attorney General to the province of Quebec, was asked to issue warrants, and to allow troops to assist in the arrest of the captain, but he replied that such an action could not be friendly toward a United States citizen or to the government itself, and he therefore did not propose to take any hand whatever in the matter.

Completely discouraged, the lawyers for the vessel owners went to Valley Field with the amount Captain Marks had demanded, in Dominion bank bills. It was counted out to the captain and a receipt taken for the claim in full. Friendly relations are again established between the Marks family and the governments of Great Britain and the United States of America.

HEAD OF THE SUGAR TRUST.

H. O. Havemeyer, Whose References to Trusts Created Interest.

The testimony recently given before the Industrial Commission by Henry O. Havemeyer, the king of the sugar industry in the United States, created much general comment and interest. The last remaining prominent man in the famous sugar refining family, Mr. Havemeyer delights in the honest simplicity and directness that characterize many Americans who have won enormous wealth as entrepreneurs. Mr. Havemeyer in his testimony referred to the very humble start which his family made in 1802. The poor emigrants found out that by boiling sugar (and being honest) they could make a neat profit. The two immigrants were brothers, and they worked hard and spent nothing. Thus, when they died, they left a fine business house and factory to the cousins who succeeded them. Henry O. Havemeyer is a son of one of these cousins—F. C. Havemeyer. The latter was a graduate of Columbia and his son, Henry O., was educated at home and abroad. Mr. Havemeyer, while interested in art, letters, and music, has devoted his best efforts to the tremendous business of which he is the heir and is now the head.

H. O. HAVEMEYER.

American Postal Statistics.

Many people will be surprised to learn that the postal establishment of the United States is the greatest business concern in the world. Charles Emory Smith, the postmaster general writing in the Cosmopolitan, tells us that it handles more pieces, employs more men, spends more money, brings more revenue, uses more agencies, reaches more homes, involves more details and touches more interests than any other human organization, public or private, governmental or corporate. The Postoffice Department directs 78,570 postoffices, musters an army of 200,000 employes, spends this year $105,000,000 and counts receipts of nearly the same amount. It handled last year 6,214,447,000 pieces of mail matter, of which 2,825,767,000 were letters, so that every minute confides 12,000 new messages to its hands. It manufactured and delivered postage stamps to the number of 3,623,821,608 and the value of $71,788,333. It carried 2,069,742,000 newspapers.

SAFE THAT FLOATS ON WATER.

New Device for Saving Specie in Case of Shipwreck.

The present methods of transporting bullion across the ocean may be revolutionized by a device known as the Anderson safe float, now building in the Crescent shipyard, Elizabethport, N. J. The purpose of this invention is to insure the perfect safety of mail matter, gold and valuables in case of fire at sea or shipwreck, and it consists of an elliptical chamber of metal twenty-two feet long and fourteen feet broad, fireproof and water tight. Before the vessel leaves port it is fixed on the after deck. Thieves can no more get into it than into a bank vault, and in case the vessel sinks it floats free until towed into port.

It is kept upright by its form and by putting the heavy metals which it contains at the bottom. By night its presence is shown by the phosphide of calcium light, which is ignited by water and burns with a flame four feet high calling attention not only to the float but to the boats and passengers that may be near it, thus giving one more safeguard to human life. This light is already used on the Franklin life buoy, indorsed by the Government.

Electric light can be used if preferred, and the inventor has arranged for a foghorn and a bell, to blow and ring automatically, like the bell on a harbor buoy. The float is so arranged that late mail matter may be put in up to the moment the vessel carrying it leaves the dock. During the present summer the experimental float now being built is to receive a practical test. It will be taken to sea, loaded with thirty-four tons and set afloat in the presence of a committee of experts. Its action by day will be observed and the distance at which its light can be seen at night measured. After a sufficient test it will be towed ashore, hoisted out upon a pier by a derrick and opened to see how the contents have been affected by the water, if at all.

THE ANDERSON SAFE FLOAT.

As every year several hundred million dollars in gold cross the water, not to mention private checks, drafts and money orders, the value of the invention is self-evident.

The Ruling Passion.

Husband (rushing into the room)—Come out, quick!

Wife—What's the matter?

"The house is on fire, and we will be burned to death if we hesitate a moment. Run, run for your life!"

"Yes, I'll be out in a minute. I've got to tidy up the room a little, so that it will look decent when the firemen get here."

THIBET'S WILD HORSES.

A DUEL OF STALLIONS AND A BATTLE BETWEEN HERDS.

Almost Human Characteristics of the Animals—Movements Directed by Military Science—Fall of the Big White Stallion—A Conflict in Which Many Fell.

William Jameson Reid, who spent several years in exploring China and Thibet, gives the following account of the wild horses of Thibet in his book, "Through Unexplored Asia:"

"Wild horses, called by the Sifanese Dzerlikadu, are very numerous in the country to the eastward of Sukul at the base of the mountain ranges. They are generally in large herds, very shy, and when frightened continue their flight for days. They are never hunted owing to the difficulties of the chase, but are captured by strong nooses attached to sunken stakes, distributed in the districts which they are known to frequent, in this manner insuring their capture without injury. These horses usually roam over the country in groups of fifty to a hundred. Each lot of mares is led by a stallion, the size of whose family depends on his age, strength and courage, his individual qualities keeping his herd together. Over this he maintains the most strict watchfulness, for if he descries intruders from other herds in his ranks he rushes to the encounter and tries in every way by biting and kicking to drive them off. During the breeding season the males are exceptionally aggressive, and encounters among themselves, and even attacks on human beings, are of frequent occurrence.

"Long before reaching this country we had been entertained by numerous narratives of a more or less nebulous character concerning the almost human characteristics of these animals, in which stories we had placed no more faith than in those usually told by the natives. The head man of Sukul we had immediately concluded was no better than his fellows, for he told such astonishing tales of the doings of this equine nation that we momentarily expected he would tell of cities, forts and houses built by them. We were all the more surprised, therefore, when, on the second day, he came to us with the assertion that, if we were still incredulous, he was ready and willing to put proof to the test, as several of his hunters had reported a number of herds in the valley plain to the southward. Accordingly, shortly before nightfall, we rode for some hours, until we had reached a spot whence we could overlook the plain where we were informed the astonishing wonders of which we had been told might be performed.

"About 10 o'clock, as, shivering with the almost Arctic coldness of the weather, we were making futile efforts to keep warm, and cursing our stupidity in coming to verify fairy tales, we were aroused to action by an ominous stir among our ponies, who were straining at their tethers and whinnying nervously. A few minutes later a weird, shrieking howl, as of some soul in dire distress, floated through the air, sounding near at hand and yet far removed. Following the guide, we mounted to a little jutting crag overlooking the broad plain which stretched away for miles from the foot of the broad plateau, and there, indeed, saw a sight which almost beggared description. The broad expanse, lighted by the new moon, which rendered the surrounding country almost as luminous as day, was filled with herds upon herds of horses of every size, color and description. For several moments we were dumbfounded at a sight so thrilling and awe-inspiring—a vast, surging mass of living, breathing animals busily engaged in feeding on the luxuriant grass of the valley. Suddenly, upon the night air resounded a blood-curdling neigh, as clear as a bugle call; and immediately the herd stopped feeding and stood with heads erect, as a mightly army at the call of its leader. Another prolonged neigh, pitched in a somewhat higher key, and, like a whirlwind, the whole herd bolted up the valley, as orderly and regularly as the finest disciplined army, with the three or four who seemed to be the leaders symmetrically arranged ahead of the main body, and flanking and rear detachments posted with studious exactness.

"On reaching the head of the plain once more they came to a halt and grazing was resumed. Our attention had been so drawn in following the action of this herd that we had not noticed that another fully as large had come from far down the valley and had installed themselves on the feeding grounds just vacated. The scene in front was now all-engaging; cold and fatigue were alike forgotten in the enthralling interest of the moment. For half an hour both herds cropped the short grass in silence, when a shrill neigh from the group nearest to us attracted our attention in their direction. They had all stopped feeding, and stood restless and fearful, as if detecting the approach of some terrible enemy. Suddenly from out the compactly gathered mass sprang a gigantic stallion, who, after pawing the earth and meanwhile neighing fiercely, proceeded at a gallop a full half mile up the valley, stopping every few hundred feet to repeat his bellicose neighing. Following his movements, we now saw that another animal was galloping down in a similar manner from the other herd, doubtless to accept the challenge. The newcomer was a magnificent snow-white, and, with the clear light of the moon shining upon him, he presented a gigantic appearance when contrasted with his smaller antagonist. When within a quarter of a mile of each other, the two beasts came to another halt and stood facing their respective herds, pawing the ground and neighing fiercely, bending their shapely necks much in the manner of two actors in sword combat making the preliminary flourish previous to deadly action.

"This overture lasted for fully fifteen minutes, when with startling suddenness both animals leaped around and rushed at each other with the velocity of well-aimed projectiles. Nearer and nearer they came in their mad, onward career, and we were waiting the moment when the two grand beasts must come together with tremendous force. But, no! for when within twenty feet of each other they came back on their haunches, and eyed each other cautiously for a moment, as if awaiting the necessary opening. And then, with one last defiant neigh at each other, they leaped to the encounter.

"To describe the events of the next ten minutes would require pages of hyperbole to give in any measure a faint idea of the supreme grandeur of this herculean struggle between two giants. They rushed at each other time and time again like immense catapults; they fought with tooth and hoof, while no other sound could be heard—the two herds, who had meanwhile approached nearer to the struggle, gazing on their leaders as if carved in stone. One would have had to be within a few feet of the titanic combat to describe accurately the events of that short quarter of an hour. The two beasts could be seen rearing in the air, locked together like two wrestlers, their teeth tearing each other and their great hoofs relentlessly kicking in all directions with the force of pile-drivers. Both animals were tiring perceptibly, when in an instant all was over. A sharp rally, and then the ghostly form of the big white stallion rose alone, and on the ground lay the prostrate body of his antagonist. The victor contented himself with giving utterance to short, exultant neighs, and ever and anon kicking the body of his defeated foe.

"We had seen the great equine duel, but we little knew what was yet in store for us. Soon there was a movement in both herds, and with the same military promptness as we had witnessed before, with the mares and colts in the centre, the two bodies formed, and without the least warning or signal rushed at each other. It seemed as if the very heavens were falling in. The din and crash as they swept together, even at our distance, was terrific, and in the clear moonlight could be seen the rolling mass of contestants surging like a huge wave over the plain. At the end of ten minutes, and as suddenly as it had commenced, the battle terminated, and the two herds slowly separated. We could now see some of the results of the awful conflict, for, scattered here and there all over the plain, were the forms of those who had fallen in the sanguinary conflict."

YET FORTUNE TELLERS FLOURISH.

Sad Fate of a Foolish Miss Who Consulted a Clairvoyant.

"Beware of a blonde woman; she's trying to plot against you, and just now everything is favorable to her schemes." Imagine your sensible Polly going to a fortune teller!

I tried colored and white both in one day! I'll have to live a long time to get through with all that has been foretold. The dark lady read my "horoscope," and according to her, and the planets, I've a great career before me, being, as she said, "on the go" all the time. She also told me—ah! how far from the truth she was—that I didn't "keer" for children. "You ain't got no use for 'em," she observed; "can't bear ter hev 'em botherin' round."

"You are really wonderful!" I murmured.

Then she gave me a charm which would insure a speedy marriage, and promised after examining my hands that I'd never have to work. "You'se always got ter be taken keer," was the expression; "you ain't got no faculty for work."

I said she astonished me. So she did, and charged fifty cents for doing it.

I think that nearly every one has a sneaking belief in a fortune teller. I have myself told folks their past, present and future, dealing in glittering generalities for past and present, and letting my imagination swing for what was to come. Do you know, those people credited me with quite wonderful powers. Clever people, too, who knew five times as much as I do. The love of the mystic and marvelous is pretty deeply implanted in the minds of even the most sensible of us, I am afraid.

I know of a well brought up and highly educated young woman who was immersed in a love affair that caused her a great deal of uneasiness, for the love seemed to be of a jug-handled sort—all on one side, as it were.

There was no evidence that the young man cared anything for her, but she was positive that he did, and absolutely wretched until she could ascertain.

In a weak moment—we all have 'em—she consulted a clairvoyant.

This party was dirty, ill-garbed and lived in a house odorous with frank and outspoken vegetables.

But by some mysterious means—a lucky guess, probably—she got at once to the seat of my young friend's trouble.

"You're in love," she murmured out of the depths of her trance, "and you don't know whether he loves you or not?"

The little fool gasped an agitated affirmative.

"Yes, he loves you," continued the seedy seeress. "I see him poring over your picture at his place of business. Now he's kissing it. If you can get down there in half an hour he'll propose."

She paid her dollar and rushed down town, not realizing what she was doing.

She found the young man in his shirt sleeves opening a barrel of crockery.

He seemed confused and surprised at her visit, as she stammered out something about being in the neighborhood, etc.

He didn't ask her to be seated, being evidently in awe of his employer, who was glaring at them sternly.

So little missy made an excuse and fled home to have a good cry.

Two months after the crockery expert married another girl.

And the fortune teller still flourishes!—Polly Pry, in New York Herald.

Odd Jury Verdicts.

"Death by smallpox accelerated by neglect of vaccination," was the decision of a coroner's jury; but for odd verdicts it is difficult to beat this one by a jury of our own country: "We find the defendants not guilty, but believe they hooked the pork."

Faithful Subscribers.

Nevin Pomeroy, editor of The Chambersburg (Penn.) Repository, takes a natural pride in the fact that the Crawford family, of Fayetteville, in the State, has been a subscriber to the journal since its founding, 100 years ago.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....JULY 6, 1899.

COURT NEWS

(Continued from First Page.)

realize when he was buried.

Mrs. Ray Chappell recalled. Mrs. Gipe did not talk with me that evening as far as I know. I was unconscious. Did not say to Mrs. Ada Sewell that the accident would not have happened if I had had my way.

This closed the evidence, and after informal talk court adjourned.

SATURDAY.

The jury, court, attorneys and court reporter Willennar all went up to Hamilton this forenoon, so as to examine the ground for themselves. That will end to-day's work. On Monday the arguments of the attorneys will begin and may last a day or so.

There were a number of other witnesses but we can give only a part of them for want of space. The omitted witnesses gave nothing different.

As noted Saturday the jury, judge, attorneys court reporter and bailiff went up to Hamilton to look for themselves, at the ground where Chappell was killed.

Today, Monday, the forenoon was taken up by arguments on side issues, and after noon the arguments proper began. The first was for the plaintiff and made by John W. Baxter.

Last evening J. E. Rose, who made thefirst argument for the defense, had closed his speech, and the court adjourned till this morning, when Judge Hammond was to follow with the second agument for the defense. When he was done, Judge McBride was to close for the plaintiff. But when the jury came together, it was found that Mr. Purdy was suffering from one of his periodical attacks of heart trouble. At first he thought he could stand it as these spells wore off in a few hours. But it was finally decided to adjourn one day and begin tomorrow morning, when he will probably be all right.

We have already noted the arguments made Monday by J. W. Baxter for the plaintiff in the Chappell case and that of J. E. Rose that afternoon for the defendant. When court met this morning, Judge Hammond made the closing argument for the railroad and occupied the forenoon. In the afternoon, the last argument was that of Judge McBride for Chappell. Many gathered in to hear all these; able, ingenious and eloquent. At the close Judge Best will give the jury their instructions.

R. C. Bell attorney for the Lake Shore road was here today and got an order from court to remove the overhead bridge at the east side of Corruna.

Would Have Cost Him His Life.

I have been using Foley's Kidney Cure and take great pleasure in stating it gave me permanent cure of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life. I recommend it to anyone afflicted with kidney trouble.

OSCAR BOWMAN, Lebanon, Ky.

Down the Mississippi.

Many of our people well remember Roy Smith, the little black eyed lad who a few years ago spent the summer with his relatives of the COURIER family. He was a chum of John Richards Will Lampot, Hugh Harter and other boys of his age. He was a lively lad, and when he and the others named, invented and used a genuine war whoop to call their chums together, it made life a burden to the older ones about them. Roy is now a young man and from having been a carrier boy for daily papers has blossomed into a newspaper man and sketch writer. Now, he has recently started from the headwaters of the Mississppi, Lake Hernando de Soto of the Mississippi, and with another young man, the two will float down the Gulf in a small boat. The expenses of the trip will be met by writing letters to the Chicago Record and to some magazines for as they take a camera, they can illustrate their articles. The following additional is from the Laporte Iowa paper, on which Roy recently was employed:

This trip is to be made in a boat made to their special order by the King Folding Canvas Boat Company of Kalamazoo, Michigan. It is fourteen feet long, made of specially woven, heavy puncture-proof canvas, treated with waterproofing and preservatives. The boat only weighs 55 pounds, and can be folded up and carried like a valise. It will carry half a ton if necessary. This is the same kind of a boat which Walter Wellman, the well known Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times Herald, took with him on his North Pole expedition. Lieutenant Swartka also used the same boats in his explorations of the Yukon river in Alaska. It is made for dangerous navigation and cannot break or warp.

The outfit they will take along will be as light and compact as possible. A couple of pairs of blankets, a few cooking utensils, a small wedge tent and a fishing outfit, will be all they will take along in the way of necessaries.

During the journey they will pass through more than 300 towns and cities, and Mr. Smith will call at about 500 newspaper offices to extend the glad hand of newspaper fellowship and tell the astonished editors all about it.

GET YOUR EYES OPEN.

You may, for years, have been troubled with your stomach. Many articles of food eaten by you may cause distress for hours after eating, a fullness, etc. This is suggestive of dyspepsia and sooner or later, unless you do something to correct the evil, you will find yourself a confirmed dyspeptic. A SMALL DOSE OF DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN taken after each meal will give you greater relief than anything you can get.

Lusty Liars.

The Fort Wayne Journal of June 26, was led into publishing a false dispatch, dated at Lima, Lagrange county, which asserts that "last week," whenever that may have been, "twenty prominent democrats of the 12th district met at Waterloo" and organized a movement against Hon. J. M. Robinson. The article went on to say that "The leaders of the movement are said to be ex-Senator J. E. McDonald of the Ligonier Banner, the party organ of Noble county, John W. Hanan of Lagrange county who is said to have the congressional bee buzzing in his bonnet, Rev. Father Duehmig of Avilla and several other prominent democrats of Whitley county." The meeting was "secret" and the members adjourned well pleased with the outlook," etc, etc. Now, in the first place, no such meeting was held. In the second place, at least one of the men, Father Duehmig says he was not there and never heard of such a meeting. Thirdly, democrats are not in the habit of blindly following leaders, who whether in the right or in the wrong, hold "secret" meetings for the purpose of boosing the party. And lastly, we don't believe there are "Twenty prominent democrats in the 12th district" who are opposed to Hon J. M. Robinson, the present efficient and popular member of congress. Therefore we say the whole thing is painfully to thin fake.

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life.' Only 50 cents at H. B. McCord's drug store. Every bottle guaranteed.

More Than All Others.

ROME CITY, Ind.

Dr. C. D. Warner, Coldwater, Mich.

Dear Sir:—It gives me great pleasure in recommending your White Wine of Tar Syrup to the public as an excellent cough cure. I have sold over a gross within a short time and I always warrant a cure and have never had a bottle returned. I sell more of your White Wine of Tar Syrup than all other cough remedies I keep in stock. I sold one dozen bottles to one of my customers.

Respectfully yours,
J. P. CHAPMAN.

Davenport, the druggist.

GAVE UP ALL HOPE.

Louis Pricket, 509 Bryan Ave., Danville, Ill., writes: I had suffered several years with asthma and after trying a great many remedies I had given up all hope. I was advised to try Foley's Honey and Tar. It immediately stops the coughing spells and I get my breath more freely. It is the only medicine that ever gave me relief.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Working Night and Day

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health Only 25c per box. Sold by H. B. McCord's drug store.

The Match Factory.

Saturday those licensed to marry were Jay Kepler and Ada A. Rohm, John W. Brown and Bertha Draggoo. Monday—Milton O. Shull and Emma F. Glawe, John Ahrens and Alice Purdy. Today—Albert J. Miller and Estella Martin, Wm. H. Wilkins and Blanche Fisher.

FOR SALE

Farm of 30 acres, sandy loam, two orchards, log house with frame addition, log barn, large frame granary. Farm lies on pike road 5 miles from Butler, Ind. This farm must be sold and you can have it at your own price. 4t

J. LINK,
Auburn, Ind.

"I have received more benefit from one bottle of Foley's Kidney Cure than from months of treatment by physicians" writes V. B. Conklin of Bowersville, O.

Junk Wanted

Please save your money. Don't forget to bring all your junk to H. Greenberg, three blocks north of M. E. church in Auburn, who pays for rags, rubber, copper, brass, zinc, lead, scrap iron and all kinds of hides and furs.

Best Cash Prices

Obituary of Mrs. Olinger.

Barbara (Loutzenhiser) Olinger was born in Stark county, Ohio, December 8, 1820; and departed this life at her home, south of the Rakestraw schoolhouse, July 3, 1899, at the ripe age of 78 years, 5 months and 15 days. She lived with her parents until united in marriage to George Olinger, March 28, 1838. To them were born eight children, six sons and two daughters, five of whom are still living. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Seneca county, Ohio, where they lived until 1846 when they moved to DeKalb county, Indiana, and settled on a farm two miles west and a half mile south of Auburn, where they lived together until three years ago when death separated them by the removal of Mr. Olinger. When a young woman Mother Olinger was received into the German Lutheran church in Canton, Ohio, in which faith she lived and died. She found in God her only strength and support during life's changing scenes. When the evening of life came, we may say with one of old, "Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like a shock of corn cometh in in its season." Mother Olinger possessed the traits of noble womanhood and lived an excellent life. The living may find many things in her character worthy of emulation. She was a loving mother and devoted wife, a kind and obliging neighbor. For her kindness and good life she shall be cherished in the memories of the living. Mother Olinger leaves to mourn her death five children, twenty-three grandchildren, three great grandchildren, and one sister who was at her bedside during the last days of her life beside many other friends.

The funeral service was conducted from the Lutheran church in Auburn, July 4 at 2 p. m., Rev. J. D. Brosy officiating. Interment took place in Evergreen cemetery.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

SOLDIERS' WIDOWS' HOME.

Wilmington, Ill., Sept. 13, 1897.

Syrup Pepsin Co., Gents: Your Syrup Pepsin has been used in our Home with great success. The ladies under my charge have grown so attached to it as a corrector of the many ailments of the stomach and bowels, that too great praise cannot be given it. In the relief of indigestion and sick headache it works to perfection.

MARGARET R. WILKINS, Matron.

DEAR SIRS: I take great pleasure in adding my testimony as to the efficiency of Syrup Pepsin as used in our Home. We use it in all cases of constipation and indigestion. Respectfully,

EVA J. SWEET, Nurse.

Red Hot From The Gun

Was the ball that hit G. B. Steadman of Newark, Mich., in the Civil War. It caused horrible Ulcers that no treatment helped for 20 years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him. Cures Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Boils, Felons, Corns, Skin Eruptions. Best Pile cure on earth. 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist.

$50 for One Bottle of Medicine.

This is to certify that my wife was for years afflicted with asthma, and was so far gone that several physicians decided that her case must terminate in consumption. I was induced to try a bottle of Dr. Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup. To our great satisfaction it gave almost immediate relief, and two bottles completely cured her. She is now well and healthy, but I would not be without the medicine if it cost $50 a bottle.

WM. H FARRIS,
Chairman Board Township of Wilton, Monroe Co., Wis.

Davenport, the druggist.

Mott's Nerverine Pills

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. $1.00 per box by mail; 6 boxes for $5.00.
MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Prop's, Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

WANTED!

We will pay $2.00 per cord CASH for all the good live elm bolts, 10 inches and over in diameter, 32 inches long, delivered on our yard in Auburn.

Greenler Co.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO.	CURES.	PRICES.
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations.	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic...	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults.....	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis.....	.25
9	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache.....	.25
10	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo...	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach.	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods....	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods.....	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness.....	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions..	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains.....	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague.....	.25
18	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
26	Whooping-Cough.....	.25
27	Kidney Diseases.....	.25
28	Nervous Debility.....	1.00
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed...	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever.....	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.
Sold by druggists, or sent, on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts. New York.

Monday's Daily.

—Mrs. Barclay was out to church yesterday for the first time in several months

—If you have good live elm bolts for sale it will pay you to read the advertisement of the Greenler Co. 25-30.

For sores, ulcers, burns, galls, piles, nothing so good as Banner Salve, the most healing medicine in the world. 25c.

—James McClellan was able to come out and eat with the family on Friday for the first time since his fall. He is getting along nicely.

—Stella Tarney went to Geneva, Ill., last week to attend the meeting of the Y. W. C. U. of which, we believe she is president. She will be home some time this week.

—Mrs. Bernie Trentman and baby arrived this morning from Smithville, Texas. Mr. Trentman is expected to reach here Wednesday with the body of Eugene Girardot.

—John Reyher's barn at Garrett was partially destroyed by fire last night, entailing a loss of about $200. A horse and buggy and other property were removed without damage.

—Miss Mary Essig, of Jackson township is securing subscriptions for the purchase of the Lockwood meeting house, to be used hereafter by the M. E. church. This will be a part of the Spencerville circuit. Miss Essig is the efficient superintendent of a good Sunday school, now held in the Lockwood building.

Tuesday's Daily.

—July economy in ladies' shoes at Bishop & Beidler's.

—M. B. Masters and family spent the day at Robison Park.

—Will Campbell came home from Fostoria last evening for a short visit.

—The Greenler Co., wants your live elm bolts. See their advertisement elsewhere.

—Schaab's big special sale advertisement is in todays weekly. Read it over carefully for the good bargains.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—Fred Huelsenbuck of Avilla was a caller Saturday and reported all his wheat cut on Friday, the first in his neighborhood. Fred is always an early bird.

—The Greenler Co., Auburn, will pay $2.00 per cord, cash, for good live elm bolts ten inches and over in diameter and 32 inches long, delivered at factory in Auburn. 25-30.

—It is hardly necessary to call attention to the full page advertisement of G. W. Lackey. You can't miss it, nor can you afford to miss the great bargains they are giving at their coming midsummer clearing sale.

—Married at the home of Geo Ettinger west of the ward school house last Sunday at 4 p. m. by J. D. Brosy, Edward Warner, of Fort Wayne, and Alice Frederick, of Allen county. They expect to make their future home in the city of Fort Wayne.

—A little son of Agent Young at the Junction was hustling around to get as much out of the Fourth as possible when he ran a big sliver into his foot. Dr. Baxter was called and removed it, but it took a hard pull. The lad suffered some but will soon be all right.

—The jury stripped for business Monday afternoon, when the argument of attorneys was hottest. Eight has their coats off, five both coat and vest, and all the others took off vests and left the coat on. They looked comfortable, took their taffy and kept their own counsel.

HALF RATES ON B. & O.

Camp Meeting at Mountain Lake Park, Maryland.

On June 29 to July 10, inclusive, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell tickets to Mountain Lake Park, Md., at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Mountain Lake Park to and including July 15, 1899.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill. 26-27

There is No ? About it.

No question indeed with those who have used it, but that Foley's Kidney Cure is absolutely reliable for all kidney and bladder diseases.

Wednesday's Daily.

—Dr. Johnston is some better, we are glad to say.

—For sale or rent, good residence. Inquire. F. E. EUKHART.

—Mrs. Sam McAnally has been quite sick for several days but is reported improving.

—Miss Mary Baxter went to Indianapolis today to visit her cousin, Mrs. Daisy Starr.

—Attorneys R. C. Bell and N. D. Doughman of Fort Wayne were in town today on legal business.

—Mrs. Jennie Heywood and Mrs Zigler of Butler are visiting in the family of P. V. Hoffman.

—Miss May Adams of Kankakee, Ill., is visiting at the home of her grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Adams.

—George Shugers arrived today accompanied by his little nephew for a visit with relatives and friends.

—One of our latest new subscribers for the Weekly is D. S. Reinoehl, formerly of Fairfield, but now of Richland.

—The Roann Cooperage Co., begin tomorrow to work day and night. We are glad to see their business booming.

—Cory Shugers in East Auburn has put down a fine cement walk, adding greatly to his property. John Treesh did the work.

—Mr. Trentman received a telegram this forenoon from his son Bernie. He was then at Taylor, Texas, and will likely reach here Friday.

—E. A. Triplett of Sedan went onto our 1900 list today, "just as easy," for he knows it is easier to keep ahead than to get ahead when one is behind.

—To all points in competition where the fare is $2 or more we have free bus and free baggage to the Junction. tf SPROTT & KNAPP, Agency B. & O. Ry.

—Married: At the residence of and by Rev. W. O. Butler at Waterloo, July 4, Mr. Jay Kepler to Miss Ida Aurelia Rohm. Both of DeKalb county.

—L. E. Gregg and George Campbell have some of those little tree like plants from Cal. VanAuken's, called "Worlds Fair Trees." They are quite pretty.

—James McClellan in East Auburn is putting a porch along the entire east and north fronts of his residence. It will add much to the looks and comfort of his home.

—Hon. T. R. Marshall and wife of Columbia City were in town a few hours today on their way home from a visit with Mrs. Marshall's parents at Salem Center.

—George Quince and family returned last evening from a two weeks visit with relatives. Mr. Quince was employed at his trade the greater part of the time while there.

—Married at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Fales, by Rev. W. O. Butler, July 3, Mr. Milton O. Shull, of Butler, to Miss Emma F. Glawe Both of Dekalb county —The Forty-ninth senatorial district of Iowa balloted last week 3,273 times to get a republican candidate for that little office. Office holding seems to be increasing in popularity.

—S. P. Imhoff has nearly or quite killed three fine plum trees by spraying with too strong a solution. It is quite a loss to him, as they were thrifty and just beginning to bear.

—Geo. Campbell is getting one of the nicest places for an inexpensive one, in town. The front of the lot is as high as the street, and though the rear end is low, it is as dry as any in town, and he will have a good garden.

—Drs. Matheny and Casebeer have a supply of the recently developed consumption cure, that has been tested for some two or three years and are ready to try it on patients or to furnish to physicians. This will be a matter of the highest scientific interest.

—Adam Conrad who was here Sunday, says his family are all well, and doing quite well, though he himself has had ill health. His oldest son, Miner Conrad, has for some years been in the employ of the Chicago and Rock Island railroad system and by faithful and valuable services, has kept creeping up the ladder, till he is now Master Mechanic at a salary of $1800 a year. It is another case of the DeKalb boy with his pluck and luck.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

July Economy!

This For Your Considerat'n Ladies!

Ladies' Fine Chocolate Shoes, vesting inlaid stay, plain toe, no tip, hand turned most stylish & latest tan dress shoe in the citys, sold at $4, to close at..... $2.98

Ladies' Fine Tan Shoes, outside leather scroll, lace stay, silver eyelets, sold at $3.50 to close at $2.47

Ladies' Fine Tan Shoes, fancy scroll vesting lace stay and collar, sold at $3.50 to close at..... $2.47

Ladies' Fine Tan Shoes, all kid, a very pretty serviceable shoe, sold at $2.75, to close at..... $1.98

Ladies' Fine Tan Shoes, silk vesting top, a handsome, neat shoe, sold at $2.75, to close at..... $1.98

New Stylish Goods. No Old Cheap Trash. See our window.

Gentlemen! Your Attention!

Gents' Fine Vici Kid and Russia Calf Shoes, vesting tops sold at $4.00, to close at..... $1.98

Gents' Vici Kid and Russia Calf Shoes, light and dark shade, sold at $2.50, to close at..... $1.98

Gents' Fine Genuine Kangroo, Shoes in all kangroo and vesting top, sold at $2.75 and $3.00, to close at..... $1.98

Thirteen Styles at Same Price. See our Window.

BISHOP & BEIDLER,
Your Shoemakers, Auburn, Ind.

A Summer DAY

And the thought of many to follow makes you think of hot weather wearables. Just as with everything else, you'll wish to buy them right; you'll feel it best to patronize the stock that meets each price and quality requirements. Thrifty buying here for the end of June and early July comers; prices for reliable summer merchandise that makes the economy of this stock apparent, that makes interesting buying for you.

Percales in Blue and Light fancy colors. Per yard	5 to 8c
Dimity in open stripes, Swiss effect. Per yard	12 to 15c
Apron Girgham. Per yard	5c
Ginghams, the pretty stripes for Shirtwaists and Dresses. Per yard	7 to 10c
India Linens in White and Black. Per yard	8 to 16c

We will sell PARASOLS this week at 50 per Cent Off
Regular Price

White Silk with Chiffon Ruffle sold at	$2 25	This Week	$1 75
Black Silk with Chiffon Ruffle. Sold at	2 25	This Week	1 75
Fancy Silk Cover with Chiffon Ruffle. Sold at	1 98	This Week	1 48
Black Silk with Fancy Chiffon Ruffle. Sold at	1 75	This Week	1 25
White Ribbed Silks, new things. Sold at	2 25	This Week	1 75
Black Silk with Fancy Border. Sold at	1 75	This Week	1 25

Telescopes, Canvas, with Leather Trimmings for 48c to 88c each.

Tin can lids at	40 doz	Lunch Baskets from	10c to 2 c
Mason can lids at	23c doz	Granite Coffee Pot	24c to 43c
Tin cans	35c doz	Nickel Coffee Pot	58c to 75c
Glass Tumblers	15c doz	Stew Kettles in all sizes and all prices from	12c to 43c
Bread Knife, Cake Knife and Pruining Knife, the set for	18c	Sprinkling Cans from	18c to 38c

Bazar Store.

What Can We ..Offer.. You

In the way of.....

HARDWARE and FARM MACHINERY

that will attract your attention?

We have the most complete stock ever seen in our city, and you know that, as usual, our prices are right

Do you need anything for spring that we carry

?

Do you know that we have built up a wonderful trade by right prices and right goods.

?

Do you know that we have the most complete stock of

Hardware,
Farm Machinery
Wagons and Buggins

in DeKalb County

?

If you will drop in and see us we will be able to convince you at once that we have the goods that you want, and the prices alone will tell the story.

Don't fail to see our Carriage Repository, it is the finest in Northern Indiana,

Culbertson & Boland,
Auburn, Ind.

A LITTLE KNOWN FACT.

That most serious diseases originate in disorder of the kidneys. No hope of good health while the kidneys are wrong. Foley's Kidney Cure is guaranteed to make the kidneys right.

HUMBUGS

are they who tell you other cough syrups are just as good as Boggs' Cherry Cough Syrup. If you can not get it from your druggist notify us at once and on receipt of 25 cents we will send you a bottle. Guaranteed. McCord's.

SUPPLEMENT TO

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....JULY 6, 1899.

SCHOOL GIRL POETRY

Forty Years ago, Young People Were About Same as Now

The following lines were composed by an Auburn school girl, Miss Hattie E Altenberg, now the widow of the late G. W. Hanes whose home for many years has been about two miles west of Butler. The lines are dated July 3, 1859, but were probably composed a month or so earlier, while the school was in session. It will be seen that the names of about all the students are woven into the lines. The article is headed:

SONG OF THE SCHOLARS.

Come students and listen a moment I pray
And hear a few words which I have to say
Concerning the scholars who went to the school
And when they were under Mr. Larimore's rule.

There was Miss Dessa George, neat as a plum,
And Mr. Charles Roedel she had 'neath her thumb,
And frequently Mr. Gross she would happen to meet
And accidentally run over a cow in the street.

And little George Ralston and Eli Lessig
They thought they were some, if th[illegible]
so big,
But then that's all ri[illegible] prove tr[illegible]
For nobod[illegible]

[illegible] Simmons and Leo Gillig,
[illegible] will laugh when I tell you of it.
[illegible] night how Sarah from Leo ran away
And it grieved him so he could not study next day.

There was Eugene Benner and Miss Carrie Roedel,
Sometimes they would laugh and sometimes they would giggle;
But in a short time they both left our school
So Mr. Larimore had them no longer to rule.

And now comes Miss Moody and Mr. Guy Plum
Miss Moody seemed to think that Guy he was some,
And Guy, he admired her beautiful way
And would offer to assist her in her algebra.

Samantha Patterson, I must tell how.
When she would meet Mr. Rohm, how polite she would bow,
She would pass out and exclaim, "It's a very fine day."
And he would answer her in some similar way.

Emma Dittmar and Hartman, of them now I speak,
When they attended our school, they look very meek,
It was seldom you'd see them laugh, or ever,
But never scornful, Oh, never, no never.

And now Mary Rhodes, I think it is time.
That you and Mr. Foster appear in our rhyme,
How you used to study and sometimes get crossed
When you went to recite in your Paradise Lost.

Hattie Pembroke and Joseph McKay I'll not pass,
How they used to recite in their grammar class;
Sometimes they would study nearly half of the night,
For fear they'd not have every word parsed just right

And now comes Em. Latson and Mr. Sam Mac,
He thought he was some, with his large silk cravat
Sometimes he'd go home with Em a kiting
And then read a piece on the art of handwriting

And now Mr. Browning, I'll bring you in my lay
(And now please do stop, I heard some one say,)
So I hope I've not slighted any amongst all
So, I'll bid you good by till the term opens next fall.

At The Poor Farm

Quite a number of our active church workers went out to the Poor Farm yesterday afternoon and held religious services for the benefit of the inmates. They were led by Rev. Henry Arlen, who preached to them. Mrs. Ehlers was another active member of the party others being C. E. Baxter, Mr. and Mrs S. Duck, Miss Edna Davis, Miss Athens Hoffman, Mrs. Dr. Baxter and Miss Dollie Husselman, Mr. and Mrs. Mott, Geo. Schmadels and Mrs. Simp. Johnson. The inmates took deep interest in the meeting to the great gratification of the visitors. And all unite, in praising the good condition of the institution and the care given to the inmates. They say it is a model of neatness and good order, and the most perfectly kept they ever saw. As the visitors are all private citizens, their testimony is very complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Bartels. They go again in two weeks.

Tramp Arrested.

A few days ago a freight train pulled into the Garrett yards, when a brakeman noticed that the seal of one of the cars was broken and an investigation found a tramp inside. The fellow, who gave his name as James McDonald, boarded the train a few miles east of the Junctin at which [illegible] other men whom [illegible] in th[illegible] [illegible] before reaching [illegible] Several boxes of merchandise in the car had been broken open, but the value of the goods taken was not learned. McDonald was lodged in jail by deputy Sheriff Hartford last night and will be held pending further investigation.

OBITUARY

Vera Esmeralda, daughter of Wid. and Katie Feagler, was born Feb. 26, 1899 and departed this life July 1, 1899, aged 4 months and 5 days. She leaves to mourn her early death, her parents and one sister. She budded on earth to bloom in heaven The funeral services were conducted in the Lutheran church at Richland Center by Rev. E. E Campbell.

Mr and Mrs. Feagler desire to thank the chior for their excellent music and the neighbors for their kindness, for their assistence during the sickness and death of their child.

Blaze at the Junction

Dr. Baxter, while on a professional trip at the Junction this forenoon, had a chance to do a little fire department business. The old log house belonging to Mr. Morr, just at the west, caught fire and made a big blaze. Everybody rushed to the scene, and got out the agricultural implements stored in it, and the only contents lost were about ten bushels of oats. The building was burned. The supposition is it caught from a passing engine.

Grant and Wilmington.

H. S. McIntosh reports a grand success for the graduating exercises of Grant and Wilmington townships last evening. The meeting was held at Norris Chapel, the point most convenient for both. The graduates were Carleton Hanes, Percy Close, and Albert Girardot, but there were volunteer orations by Marguerite Wymer, Alfred Moudy and Dean Metcalf.

There was music by a local orchestra, the Waterloo male quartet, an instrumental number by Miss Madge Jackman, of Waterloo, and a solo each by Miss Emma Butler and Carl Voss, of Waterloo, and H. S. McIntosh. Supt. Coe was also present, and altogether the two townships have reasons to be proud of the occasion.

BUTLER.

The glorious Fourth came to Butler in a very quiet way and but little demonstration was made even by the small boy.

The bicycle factory has absorbed the lawn swing factory, and we may now look for an advance in the price of the comfort so much enjoyed by the girl and her best fellow after the stars come out these warm summer nights.

J. A. Campbell and wife [illegible] Saturday and Su[illegible] in th[illegible] [illegible] report wonder[illegible] in this heretofore, almost inaccessable region. Great ditches have been cut from the river, back into the interior by steam dredges and the low wet lands drained into these great ditches and a vast vast region that a few years ago was almost inaccessable is now blossoming over with great stretches of vigorous corn and oatsfields. The little town of Woodburn station is located here. For a long time it was difficult to reach it, as roads if there were any were about impassable; now a nice graveled pike runs to it and the town only about four years old is growing rapidly. The country around is being cleared very fast, and good houses and barns dot the roadside where three or four years ago were only tangled brush and miry wallows. The land is black loam, and the vicinity is destined to become the garden of Allen county.

John Thiel, an old resident of our place is reported dead in Mich.

R. C. Campbell, daughter Vera, and Mrs. Hamilton spent the Fourth in Napoleon, O.

Edon, O., had many Butler people for 4th of July guests.

MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

They overcome Weakness, irregularity and omissions, increase vigor and banish "pains of menstruation." They are "Life Savers" to girls at womanhood, aiding development of organs and body. No known remedy for women equals them. Cannot do harm—life becomes a pleasure. $1 per box by mail. Sold by druggists. MOTT CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Eureka Harness Oil is the best preservative of new leather and the best renovator of old leather. It oils, softens, blackens and protects. Use on your best harness, your old harness, and your carriage top, and they will not only look better but wear longer. Sold everywhere in cans—all sizes from half pints to five gallons.

Eureka Harness Oil

Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

A Correction.

In publishing the list of allowances made by the board of commissioners, as given in the COURIER, there is one of $14.50 for medical services rendered by Dr. Nusbaum to "John Apple." This is a mistake. It should be "John Applegate." He is the man who was sick so long in south Auburn of consumption, and finally died. The name was furnished wrong to the auditor, and by him to the COURIER. John Apple never received any hel[illegible] the public.

[illegible]medals

Fred Huelsenbeck is now a peaceful farmer. but like thousands of our own farmers he was once a soldier and passed through many dangers. He counts his battle at 22, and is proud of his service for the Fatherland. He has a bronze medal as a mark of honorable service. It is in the farm of a Greek cross with a circular center, having on one side the words "Der Main Armee, 1866," On the other side, on the arms of the cross are "Gott war Mit Uns; Ihm sei die Ehre," (God was with us. To him be the honor) And within the central circle we read, "Preussens Siegreichen Heere," (Prussia's Victorious Army). It will be seen that this medal was given to honor his services in the war with Austria in 1866, when the battles of Koenigratz broke the power of Austria and put her off of the German empire.

Another medal in which Fred takes great pride is one to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of the great Kaiser William, grandfather of the present William II. It is a large, bronze medal, round and heavy. On one side are the words, "Wilhelm der Gross, Deutscher Kaisor, Koenig von Preuss." (William the Great, Emperor of Germany, King of Prussia) The center had a fine picture in raised work, of the famous old king. On the other side is an emblematic picture and the words, "An Andenken an un den Hundersten Geburts tag des Grossen Kaiser Wilhelm I, 1791-1891". In memory of the 100th birthday of the great Emperor William II.) Of course Fred is quite proud of these medals, as he has a right to be.

MID-SUMMER
CLEARING SALE
At Lackey's Big Dry Goods Store
AUBURN, IND.

ANOTHER OF THE ANNUAL SALES THAT HAVE MADE THIS STORE FAMOUS WILL BE GIVEN ON Tuesday, Wednesday & Thursday,

JULY 11TH, 12TH, 13TH, 1899.

With a free and generous hand we acknowledge our appreciation of the confidence and patronage of our friends by distributing quantities of the most desirable merchandise at prices that cannot be equaled. Every department in this big store will contribute its share of bargains. Store will be open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., during this sale.

DOMESTICS

Notwithstanding the recent advances in cotton goods, we quote a few items, as indication of what you will find in this large department.

Standard Dress Prints, per yd	3c
Heavy, yard-wide, unbleached muslin, per yd	4c
Good quality, yard-wide bleached muslin, per yd	4c
Amoskeag Ginghams, large assortment of staple and broken checks	5c
1 Lot 8c and 10c values in Fancy Ginghams, per yd	6c
8c Values in yard-wide Percale	5c
Windsor Percales 12½c quality	10c
Fine Zephra Ginghams 15 and 18c values, per yd	12½c
Good Heavy plaid and stripe shirting 7c values, at	5c
12½c value in Blue Denim per yd	8c
9-4 Unbleached Sheeting worth 15c, 2½ yards for	25c
White Shaker Flannel, good values at 7c, now per yd	4c
10 Yards For	35c

WASH GOODS

Scotch Lawns, nice fine quality, desirable patterns; would be cheap at 6c Sale price per yd	3c
3000 Yards Lattice Lawn, 30 inches wide, very desirable summer goods Sale price	4c
1 Lot Batiste, fine sheer goods, 8c quality Per yard	6c
1 Lot 30-inch Dimity, 10c quality Sale price	7c
All 18c, 20c and 25c Organdy During this sale	15c

DRESS GOODS

36-inch Byadere Stripes, half wool; all colors, worth 20c Sale price	15c
One Lot of mixtures, 36 inches wide, good 25c values Sale price	20c
42-inch all-wool novelties, consisting of about 35 pcs. all colors, worth from 50 to 65c per yd Sale price	39c
10 Pieces Stylish Crepons in Black only, strictly up-to-date; worth 60c to $1.25 per yd Sale	49, 59, 73 and 98c
Skirt Lengths at about	1-2 regular price

CORSETS

Extra made White Summer Corset Sale price	20c
All 50c Corsets during this sale Each	39c
C.C.C. High Bust, 5 hook, in drab and white; sold everywhere for $1.00 Sale price	79c
1 Lot unboxed corsets in Drab, well-made, perfect form; worth 40c Sale price	29c

EMBROIDERY

One Lot of Hamburg Edgings, extra values at 5c Sale price	3c
12 Pieces, nice patterns, 3 inches wide, worth 7c & 8c per yard Sale price	5c
One Lot 10c values Sale price per yard	7c
One Lot 6 to 8 inches wide, fine Cambrics, worth 22c to 25c per yard Sale price	16c

Muslin Underwear

A Well-Assorted Stock of high grade Muslin Underwear, consisting of Corset Covers, Drawers, Skirts, Gowns, &c, will be sold at a discount of 25 per cent from our usual close prices during this sale.

HANDKERCHIEFS

Ladies' white hemstitched handkerchiefs, a 5c value	3c
100 doz Ladies' fine handkerchiefs, in cambric, linen, &c, regular 10c goods Sale price	7c
Japinette Handerchiefs, plain and fancy borders, 15c goods Sale price, 3 for	25c
Turkey Red Handkerchiefs, large size	5c
Children's Handkerchiefs Each	1c

GLOVES

Ladies' Two-Clasp Kid Gloves in Black, Brown, Tans and Green, most all sizes, 90c values Sale price	65c
Ladies' white Chamois Gloves, 50c values Per pair	25c
1 Lot Ladies' Musquetaire Kid Gloves, Elbow length, worth $1.25 Sale price per pair	58c
Men's Harvest Gloves, 25c value Sale price	18c
Ladies' Lisle Thread Gauntlet Gloves, 25c value	19c
All 50c Silk Mitts, now	35c

No Goods Can Be Taken On Approval During This Sale!

WHITE GOODS

Checked Nanisooks, 12½c values	8c
Striped and Checked Nanisooks, large assortment 12½ and 15c values	10c
India Linens 8c values	6c
Striped, Figured and Plain White Piques and Welts from	10 to 20c

Many other equally as good values in this department.

SHIRT WAISTS

All our 50c values, large assortment, no old chestnuts, this seasons goods Sale price	29c
One lot White Pique Waists, bargains at 75c Sale price	48c
Nice quality White Pique, considered cheap at $1 00 Sale price	73c

All of our large stock of waists correspondingly reduced.

LACES

One lot 50 pieces Valenciens Laces, 5c values Sale price	2c
Fine Valenciens Laces, large assortment Sale price	3, 5, 8 and 10c
Cotton Torchon Laces from ¼ to ¾ inches wide Per dozen yards	10c

We carry everything desireable in laces and you will find our prices the lowest.

LADIES' SKIRTS

Duck Skirts, plain and fancy, well made, perfect fitting, worth $1 25 Sale price	98c
Linen Skirts, nicely trimmed, we start them at	83c and up to $2.48

Don't confound these skirts with the trashy crash ones.

HOSIERY

This is one of our strong departments. We don't aim to see how low priced we can buy hosiery, but how good—the best for the least money.

During this sale we will offer Ladies' fast black seamless hose, 12½c values for	8c
Children's fast black ribbed, sizes 5 to 9, per pair	8c
Children's Fancy Lisle Hose, all sizes, 25c values	19c
50c values in the fancy lisle	39c
Men's Fast Black ½ Hose, 15c values	10c

We can give you any grade of ladies' or children's hose and guarantee the price, quality considered, to be at least 25 per cent. lower than same goods can be bought elsewhere.

24 Sheets good quality writing paper and 24 envelopes for 5c

NOTIONS

Kant Open Hooks and Eyes, 2 doz on card, price per card	2c
Good Adamantine Pins per paper	1c
One Bund'e of 8 papers hair pins	5c
One Dozen Pant Buckles	5c
Box of 12 dozen Pant Buttons	8c
Needles for the Eldridge, New Home, Domestic, Singer and White sewing machines, all sizes, per paper	5c
Wool Soap per cake	4c
Fairbank's Fairy Soap, 2 cakes	5c
Large size Hair Curlers	5c
Good quality Leather Purse	5c
Scissors warranted all steel, 4 to 8 inches long, per pr	35c
Spool Cotton (200 yards on spool) good quality, three spools for	5c

Goods Bought During This Sale Cannot Be Exchanged!

GENTS' FURNISHINGS

Up-to-date Shirts, no plugs, no holdovers, not much to pay either. For instance, the popular 50c negligee, cool comfortable summer shirts Sale	43c
Working Shirts, well made, full 36 inches long, with yoke, warranteed to fit and give good service	43c
The 25c kind, a leader with some people at that price	19c
New creations in neckwear by the leading manufacturers. The summer sort, cool, comfartable and dressy at	19, 38, 69c
Others will ask you 25c, 50c and 75c.
Men's Japinette Handkerchiefs to 15c kind, sale 3 for	25c
Harvest Handkerchiefs, large size, white or colored	5c
Crash Hats, worth 25c, sale price	19c
Men's Golf Hose, cheap at 50c, during this sale	36c
Men's Leather Belts worth 25 and 50c, sale price	17&35c
Good Quality 4-ply Linen Collars, 15c kind	10c
Men's Suspenders, so-called cheap stores ask 23 cents for them—our price	15c

CARPETS and RUGS

25 Moquett Matts, size 18x36, worth 90c, sale price	69c
25 Moquette Rugs, size 27x63, cheap at $1.75 Sale	$1.48
25 Moquette Rugs, size 30x72, others ask $3.25, Our Price	2.73
Smyrnia Rugs, 27x63, nice bright patterns	1.39
1 Lot short lengths carpets, ranging from 2½ to 10 yard lengths, worth 60c per yd, sale price	39c
1 Lot nice patterns, fresh goods, 15 to 25 yd lengths, Lowells, Hartfords and other good makes, yd.	42½c
10 pieces China Matting, the 15c quality, sale price per yard	10c
Better grades at	12½, 18 and 23c

SILK WAISTS

10 only left out of a big lot of Taffita silk waists, sold all season at $4, we clean out the balance at	$3.25
What is left of our $3.50 silk waists go now for	2.73
$5 00 Black Satin Waists Sale price	4.48

TABLE LINEN. TOWELS

Turkish Towels 16x13 size, worth 15c. Sale price	5c
Barber Towels, nice soft goods Sale price per doz	50c
All Linen Towels, worth 15c each Sale price	10c
Good Values in Towels at	19 and 23c
54-inch Unbleached Table Linen, worth 30c Sale	23c
56 inch Unbleached Linen, worth 40c Sale price	35c
58 and 60 inch Linen, 50c values	45c
60-inch Bleached Linen 60c, values Sale price	50c

LACE CURTAINS

50 Pairs Lace Curtains, 3½ yds long, sale price	50c
50 Pairs Lace Curtains, 3½ yds long, sale price	69c
Brussels Net Curtains, worth $5.50, per pair	$4.65
Better grades at	5.00, 6.00 and 7.00

UMBRELLAS AND PARASOLS

50 Black Serge Umbrellas, cheap at 50c we make the sale price	35c
One lot 26 inch Gloria Silk, Paragon frames, steel rods, considered bargains at $1 25, sale price	97c
Parasols, we start the little ones all colors, the 25c kind, at	19c
Better grade Children's at	38 & 49c
Ladies' Parasols in white and colors at	98c, 1 23 & 1 48

MILLINERY

Child's Sailors, 15c values	10c
1-3 OFF on all Untrimmed Hats
BARGAINS IN FLOWERS—One lot worth 75c to $1.25 per bunch Now	29c
$5.00 Trimmed Hats Now	$3.69
$3.00 and $3.50 Trimmed Hats	2.25
$2.00 Trimmed Hats	1.25

Large Line of Baby Bonnets at low prices

WE HAVE the STOCK and the NERVE TO MAKE the PRICES

BOUNDARY FIGHT.

GREAT BRITAIN WANTS SLICE OF NEW GOLD FIELDS.

Contends that We Must Give Up Some of Alaska—Americans Construe the Meaning of the Treaty One Way, and the British See Another Way.

Aside from the Philippine war, the subject engrossing most public attention is the dispute between the United States and England over the line which cuts Alaska off Canada. The question, officially, is in the hands of an Anglo-American commission, whose report is being withheld by the two governments because, as it is reported, the commission could not agree upon terms. Where the matter will end nobody knows now, for both Uncle Sam and John Bull are anxious to get for their subjects as much of the gold land of Alaska and British Columbia as they can. This commission was assigned several other matters of arbitration or adjustment, but the boundary question is the one which demands the quickest settlement, for it is liable any day to create trouble between the two governments.

As to the Alaska boundary question,

MAP OF ALASKA, SHOWING TERRITORY IN DISPUTE.

Canadians are understood to want an outlet on Lynn canal at or near place marked or further down the coast. The boundary line, as given in the above map, is the American line. The Canadians contend that in general it should be drawn nearer the coast, and seek a port at the place indicated by the cross.

it is unfortunate that the commission failed to agree. As to which party is to blame for this non-agreement, there seems to be a general agreement. Scarcely had the commission been appointed before Ontario passed a decree practically prohibiting the export of logs. Not to be behind in international amity, British Columbia passed a law confining all mining privileges in that province to British subjects. The members had worked together in greatest harmony for the accomplishment of the great purpose of the commission, but since it was seen that provinces such as Ontario and British Columbia had it in their power to enact laws which might make of no effect a general settlement as proposed the difficulties have greatly increased.

A year ago a provisional boundary was agreed upon with the exception of a few miles of the Dalton trail at the end of Chilkoot pass from Pyramid harbor. At the same time the growing importance of the Alaska territory in dispute as furnishing the gateway to the El Dorado of the North impresses the necessity for the prompt settlement of the boundary dispute. To understand the difficulties of the case a historical and geographical review is necessary.

History of Question in Dispute.

By the Webster-Ashburton treaty of 1842 between the United States and Great Britain the northern and eastern boundaries were accurately defined from the Rocky Mountains to Mars Hill, at the eastern end of Maine. In regard to the northern and western boundary, after considerable discussion and diplomatic fencing, the question was left unsettled. Out of this boundary question grew the excitement which led to the adoption of the campaign cry, "Fifty-four forty or fight." How this old boundary question has been at least partially revived involves an interesting play of treaty against treaty and rights against rights. To understand it, it is necessary to go back to the ukase of the Emperor Alexander I, in 1822, by which he declared all the territory of the Pacific coast north of the fifty-first parallel of north latitude Russian territory, and by the same ukase made that part of the Pacific Ocean lying north of the fifty-first parallel of latitude in America to 49 degrees north latitude on the Asiatic coast a closed sea. The effect of this ukase was to exclude United States whalers from the Northern Pacific, an exclusion which the Government of the United States vigorously protested, and as a result, in 1824, by treaty between the two governments, the Northern Pacific was made an open sea.

Evaded War with England.

By the Oregon settlement of 1846 Great Britain got to the Pacific, that solution at the time being regarded as preferable to fighting or to a probable contest all along the Pacific coast with England for supremacy. The United States sacrificed the great Northwest in order to acquire New Mexico and California. Everything considered, that probably was the best solution. It gave the United States a compact territory, and, admitting that Canada and the United States are always to remain separate countries, it is but reasonable the former should have its outlet on the Pacific in British Columbia. By acquiring Alaska, however, in 1867, the British outlet in the Pacific now intervenes between parts of the United States. Curiously but naturally enough, Great Britain, or rather Canada, is now seeking another outlet to the coast, and this time through what, since the cession of Alaska to the United States thirty-two years ago, has always been considered American territory. What historical or treaty right has Great Britain or Canada to such an outlet? The question is not an easy one to answer. Great Britain's title to British North America from the 141st degree of west longitude (meridian of Greenwich) rests, like that of the United States to Alaska, upon her treaty with Russia. Russia's right certainly was a vague one, and amounted at best only to a claim in regard to the vast interior of whose extent at the time she had no conception. Great Britain's title to the Northwest east of 141st degree of longitude has never been seriously questioned. It is only in regard to the southeastern part of the boundary line, which is formed irregularly by mountains and a line extending thirty miles from the coast, that there has arisen a question in recent years which has grown into great importance by the discovery of a new gold field in the Klondike region.

Now Is the Time to Act.

By the same treaty (1825) the free navigation of the Stikine river was granted, but this also at the time was regarded as of little importance. The discovery of gold in the Stikine changed the situation. As early as 1863 the British Colonist, an English newspaper of Victoria, B. C., perceived the desirability of Great Britain's acquiring in some way a depot on the Pacific for this part of the British possessions. It affirmed that the strip of land stretching along from Portland Canal to Mount St. Elias, with a breadth of ten marine leagues, "must eventually become the property of Great Britain, either as the direct result of the development of gold, or for reasons which are now yet in the beginning, but whose results are certain." At that time the British Colonist looked forward to obtaining this strip from Russia either peaceably or forcibly, and conjured up a vision of the British lion and the Russian bear looking at each other from the opposite sides of Bering straits. Possibly Russia also may have felt that such a contest was coming and wisely saw that for her, situated as she was, it would be unprofitable. Not caring to stand at the door of British America on the Pacific, she probably counted upon making the United States doorkeeper. And this is a role that, until recently, would have been pleasant enough to the United States. The events of the last year have, however, greatly modified the traditional feeling between the two countries, and the present is, therefore, a most opportune time to arrive at a satisfactory settlement of all territorial or other questions at issue between the two countries.

Some of the Difficulties.

But to arrive at such a solution it is necessary to know where the equities lie. Those being determined, it is next requisite to ascertain what, if anything, the other party has to offer in return for waiving or yielding any of these equities. This is the difficult part of the subject. By the terms of the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, the provisions of which were adopted at the treaty of cession between Russia and the United States in 1867, the line of demarcation between Russian America, as it was then called, and Great Britain's North American possessions, was defined.

When this treaty was made it was supposed there was a range of mountains running down the entire coast, practically, thus forming a natural watershed and line of demarcation. The Russians cared only for a foothold along the coast, as it was with the fisheries they were concerned. The treaty, however, made provision as to how the boundary should be determined should it be found that at any place there is no such natural boundary by limiting the Russian (now United States) territory to a distance of ten marine leagues, or thirty miles, from the coast. The Canadian and British contention, as now made, turns upon the Portland canal. The British, at least until recently, have claimed that the words Portland canal or channel in the convention were a mistake for Behm canal, or Clarence inlet, or else that what is now called Portland canal was not then so called.

Construe Treaty Differently.

This difference in the respective American and Canadian boundary lines of the Alaska pan-handle strip arises from wholly different methods of construing the treaty. There are many intricate questions involved in the methods of construction. For instance, in determining the ten marine leagues from the coast to which, in the absence of a mountain chain, the American territory extends, shall sinuosities of the shore of the mainland be followed or should the line be run from headland to headland? Again, shall the line be considered to run ten marine leagues east of the outer shore of the islands? In that case in many instances the line would not reach the mainland, as some of the islands are more than thirty miles across. On the other hand, the Hon. David Mills says that in pursuance of its method of determining the boundary the United States in many places has drawn its boundary line "more than 100 miles from the coast." To explain these divergent points of view it is necessary the nature of the Alaskan coast be understood, or at least that part of it, nearly 500 miles long, extending south by southeast from the body of the territory, as this is the part with which the boundary dispute concerns itself. As to this part of the Alaskan coast it may be said in general that a lofty mountain range extends from Observatory inlet to Cook's inlet and then sweeps toward the Asiatic side along the peninsula. A group, or several groups, of islands, many of them of considerable extent, lie off the shore and from Cross sound to Observatory inlet and the coast below to Puget Sound there is a series of islands which are so situated as to leave between them, as one writer upon Alaska has described it, "an unbroken line of inland navigation the most extraordinary in the world."

Would Claim Far Inland.

The British contend that, under international law, when an inlet, or arm of the sea, is less than six miles wide it is to be considered territorial water of the country in which it is situated, and that what is known as the three-mile limit would apply. The British and Canadians assert that the territorial waters of the United States commence at Point Bridget, at the mouth of Berner's bay, where the Lynn canal is less than six miles wide, and that consequently ten marine leagues from Point Bridget would make the boundary line at Point Seduction. This would place Dyea twenty-two miles within British territory and Skaguay sixteen. The United States, however, in its maps has followed the coasts of inlets, especially of such great inlets as those along the Alaskan coast, where the water is salt and of great depth, and plainly a part of the ocean. Even granting the British contention that in the case of the Lynn canal the territorial waters begin at Point Bridget, the American settlements at Dyea and Skaguay, Katsihin and Pyramid harbor, were made in good faith and at a time when there was no question as to whether they were in American territory. Following the precedent established by Great Britain herself in the Venezuelan case, these places, in case of the boundary line being submitted to arbitration, should be excepted. To regard the coast line as running across the heads of inlets, when they are more than thirty-three miles long, as the British contend it should, would affect the territory bordering upon the Lynn canal, especially the White and Chilkoot passes, which, according to American contention, are within ten marine leagues of the coast, but not according to the British contention. It is now practically or provisionally agreed that the boundary line crosses the White and Chilkoot passes, as while these do not constitute a mountain chain, they may be said to serve the purpose of a mountain barrier and thus come within the meaning of the treaty of 1825.

PROTECTS THE HORSE.

New Sunbonnet Keeps the Animal's Head Cool.

An exceedingly unobtrusive storm or sun shade for horses has been designed by Schooler C. Harn, of Bladensburg, Ohio. It is a cup of a general flat shape, and designed to fit closely to the head of the animal. Inside of this a damp sponge may be placed in warm weather, and in cold weather it acts alone as a protection from the wet and cold. One of the features of this patent is the arrangement of slotted feet on the bottom, which permits of its instant adjustment to any harness without straps or buckles.

SUN OR STORM SHADE.

An Awful Fling.

Mrs. Styles—I'd have you understand that I know a good many worse men than my husband.

Mrs. Myles—My dear, you must be more particular about picking your acquaintances.

WOMAN AND HER WAYS.

BEAUTY IN GROWING OLD.

To woman the loss of beauty is so sharp a trial, the change from the grace and slenderness of girlhood so severe a discipline, that there is commonly a touch of acrimony in the phrase with which she sets aside some pet decoration or some fashion which it would be ridiculous to assume. Unless she can put all this away and take in their place the sweet calmness of later life, to render her face lovely and lovable and for the rose that has faded on her cheek can substitute that smile which some women wear who have conquered and found peace in their victory, she will lose that rarest beauty which comes with old age, says the Philadelphia Press.

When a good and clever woman has reached that beautiful tableland of life from which she looks over the many battles on its plains, and yet feels sure that life is worth living, she has nothing to envy in those just beginning. To learn the use of gentle, regular exercise and sensible and invigorating diet; to keep every power at its utmost output of activity; to keep in touch with the day, and temper its ardor by our knowledge and experience; to be a balance wheel for the complex machinery of a modern household; to strive to look as freshly and as fastidiously careful as in the days of youth are not easy tasks; but when a woman so meets her old age she is of more value than any other member of the family circle, and need not sigh for any hour of past importance.

Fashions for Little Children.

Dresses for little girls are nearly always prettier, cheaper and give greater variety if made to be worn with a guimpe. Even in winter the guimpe is best made of wash goods, unless the child is very delicate. Any half-worn wool frock can be kept always dainty and fresh-looking for the use of a variety of muslin guimpes.

The first model shows a short-waisted dress for a little girl; with a long-sleeved, high-necked guimpe, which makes the frock practical for any kind of wear. This little dress is in the quaint Gretchen style, cut square neck, with a short full puff for a waist, and with the short sleeve; also a full puff, capped with a bias ruffle. The skirt is plain and round, reaching halfway between the knees and shoe tops. The guimpe is a fitted waist, with a yoke made in any style, with plain sleeves—elbow sleeves may be worn, or in warm weather the guimpe may be left off.

COSTUMES FOR CHILDREN.

The yoke apron in second illustration is a very pretty, but simple pattern. It can be made of cambric or gingham, is without tucks or puffs, with the trimming limited to a narrow edge of embroidery at the tops of the yoke, and a deep frill in the arm-holes. The fullness is held in place by two four-inch ties from the under-arm seam.

Stand Up to Fit a Shoe.

"People would find less difficulty with ready-made shoes," said the experienced salesman, "if they would stand up to fit them on, instead of sitting down. Nine persons out of ten, particularly women, want a comfortable chair while they are fitting a shoe, and it is with the greatest difficulty you can get them to stand for a few minutes, even after the shoe is fitted. Then, when they begin walking about, they wonder why the shoes are not so comfortable as they were at first trial. A woman's foot is considerably smaller when she sits in a chair than when she walks about. Exercise brings a larger quantity of blood into the feet, and they swell appreciably. The muscles also require certain space. In buying shoes this fact should be borne in mind."—New York Herald.

Veranda Box.

This rustic veranda box needs no description, it may be easily and cheaply made, at home, of a log, by digging it out with a chisel. The length and diameter depend on the space in which one wishes to put it. The white pine log is preferable.

A RUSTIC VERANDA BOX.

Married Life.

A girl thinking seriously of her future husband does not lay great stress on good temper. A soldierly form, a pair of fine eyes, a noble mouth—any of these might easily outweigh good temper. Yet one writer assures us that "after the first year married people rarely think of each other's features, whether they be classically beautiful or otherwise, but they never fail to be cognisant of each other's temper." As to a husband's fortune, it is not so important as the qualities which lead to fortune—ambition, determination, industry, thrift and position—such a man may attain for himself. In education a man should be at least his wife's equal. Undoubtedly there is some subtle affinity between opposites. Yet there must be likeness as well as unlikeness. The latter will lend piquancy which is pleasant, but the former will give peace, which is essential. At first love itself will be all-sufficient, but a little later the individual characteristics reassert themselves, and then, in the absence of comprehension and sympathy in one's pet tastes and theories, a barrier springs up, slight, unconfessed, perhaps, but still impassable, and in one sense at least man and wife are not "one," but distinctly "two."

A Governor's Wife.

Mrs. Lon V. Stephens, wife of Missouri's Governor, is deeply interested in philanthropic work. She is interested in many charitable institutions, and concerns herself with the betterment of prison conditions at the penitentiary. She has much personal charm, and is reputed to have no little diplomatic sagacity.

MRS. STEPHENS.

To Launder Shirt Waists.

If there are any unwashable buttons or trimmings, remove them, brush the dust from the seams and throw the shirt into clear, cold water for an hour. If you are afraid of the color running, add a handful of salt. After washing in warm suds and drying it make your starch by dissolving a tablespoonful of dry starch in a quart of water. Thick cambric blouses should be starched only at the collar and cuffs and down the front hem. To the starch should be added half a teaspoonful of gum arabic dissolved in water with a little borax. Wring the shirt dry out of the rinsing water and hold it by the back of the neck. Gather up collar, cuffs and front hem and work in the starch, after which wring these parts in a towel and rub them thoroughly, roll up tightly and leave them for half an hour, at the end of which they are ready for ironing. Iron first the yoke, then the collar inside and outside, then the back, front and last of all the sleeves and cuffs. A shirt board and sleeve board are very helpful, and indeed the latter is a necessity.—Exchange.

Peculiarities of Etiquette.

Etiquette is a strange affair. It changes so indisputably that what in one century will be called polite in another will be dubbed the climax of vulgarity. Take that simple matter, for example, the drinking of tea from the saucer. When tea was first used in England, it was drunk from a dish. In old collections of china many of these quaint pieces will be found. They are shallow basins devoid of handles altogether. Then some one introduced cups with handles and saucers. Old-fashioned folk did not care for them, and as protest they poured their tea into the saucer and drank it from there, harking back as far as they could to the old beloved "dish." But as to be old-fashioned is usually an unpardonable social crime, people who were up to date determined that to drink from the saucer was a vulgar habit, just as bad as eating with a knife—a custom you will see very admirably brought up persons practice abroad, and be thought none the worse for either.

Feminine Personals.

Mrs. James A. Garfield, widow of the ex-President, spent the greater part of the winter in Southern California.

Helen Keller, the dumb and blind prodigy, recognizes persons on meeting them for the second time by their manner of shaking hands.

Lady Henry Somerset, who has some talent for sculpture, is modeling a statue of Miss Frances Willard, her former co-worker in the temperance cause.

Mrs. Choate, wife of the American ambassador in London, is in Paris, where she has bought some of the most exquisite court gowns made in that city.

President Caroline Hazard of Wellesley is a talented musician. She can play sonatas at sight and plays without notes some of the most difficult works of the great composers.

The vast estate left by Leland Stanford is managed in all its details by his widow, who has systematized every department so as to give a certain portion of each day to the work.

Mrs. William Rockefeller has received at her country residence 200 Malmaison carnations and 100 of the gold nugget variety. They came from Paris and cost $3,000, which is at the average rate of $10 apiece.

Mme. Patti, now Baroness Cederstrom, is said to have made at times as much as $350,000 a year. Melba's income, when fully engaged, is $150,000, and Sara Bernhardt has for years averaged $70,000. Rosa Bonheur sold one year's work for $190,000.

One hundred and thirty of the Mount Holyoke college girls appeared on the campus recently wearing red sunbonnets and flying kites. This was an original and rather picturesque method of working off superfluous spirits.

President Hazard of Wellesley first became interest in that college through Horace Scudder, whom she met while he, as editor of the Atlantic Monthly, was publishing some of her articles. He induced her to become a member of the institution's board of visitors.

Hissed to Sleep by a Snake.

A curious remedy for sleeplessness is used by the inhabitants of the Samoan islands. They confine a snake in a hollow bamboo, and the hissing sound emitted by the reptile is said to quickly induce slumber.

If you want to give a friend a present, don't give him a dog.

POLITICS OF THE DAY

REPUBLICAN POLICY.

President McKinley is reported to be exceedingly worried over the war in the Philippines. So far as can be learned, the President recognizes the fact that more troops are needed by General Otis, but fears to order a call for the 60,000 volunteers authorized by the army bill because of the effect it would have on the political situation. From this it must be inferred that McKinley considers his political prospects as more important than the lives of American soldiers who are fighting a savage foe in a tropical country.

It looks as though the fight in the Philippines would turn out a much more serious affair than the war with Spain. As a matter of fact, the war with Spain lasted only 114 days. The war with the Filipinos has lasted, up to date, 133 days, and almost every day has been a day of fighting. Shafter had only 17,000 men in Cuba. Since Dewey's May day victory we have sent over 40,000 men to the Philippines, and not 1,000 have returned, and, moreover, it is apparent that the American force now in the Philippines is not half as large as it should be.

There is no general enthusiasm on the part of the American people concerning the present conflict. Indeed, the Philadelphia North American, owned by John Wanamaker, says: "This war is hateful to the American people. The splendid courage of our soldiers and the gallantry and address of their commanders excite national admiration, but there is no national exultation over their victories. The stars and stripes, which appeared at every window while our army and navy were delivering the Cubans from Spanish oppression, are not hung out in response to the daily news that the Filipinos have been routed with heavy loss."

And yet the President halts between two opinions. He declines to send more troops to Otis for fear of political results and he refuses to end the war. It looks as though there would be a lively discussion of the administration's course in this matter when the Presidential campaign of 1900 opens.—Chicago Democrat.

Prices and the Trusts.

One argument in favor of the trusts which has been urged by those who wish to defend these combines has been to the effect that these organizations, by reducing the expenses of production, are enabled to make a reduction in the price of manufactured articles, and thus greatly benefit the consumer.

While there is no dispute as to the proposition that the trusts do reduce the cost of manufacture, it is denied that the consumer is given the benefit of this reduction. It is certain that the laborer and the competitor suffer greatly because of this reduction in expense. Thousands of men are thrown out of employment entirely. Other thousands are forced to accept decreased wages, and competitors are crushed for the purpose of reducing expenses of production.

But do the consumers receive any benefit from this proceeding? In answer to this question, let the testimony before the Interstate Commission of P. E. Dowe, of New York, President of the Commercial Travelers' National League, be considered. Among other things, Mr. Dowe said:

"Trusts and combines have raised the price of commodities controlled by them 5 to 10 per cent. in every instance, except coffee and sugar. In those the prices are being maintained at ruinous figures purely to kill off competition. At the same time they are throwing out of employment hundreds of thousands of men, principally those who draw good salaries."

In support of these assertions, Mr. Dowe gives figures as follows:

Percentage of increase in price of commodities by various trusts:

Iron pipe	100
Tin and enameled ware	30
Brass goods	60
Chairs and other furniture	30
Rubber and overshoes	14
Tin plate	30
News and book paper	10
Pipes, combs and brushes	12.5
Brass pins, etc	25
Ribbons	10
Clock metals	60
Common soap	10

With such facts on record, what becomes of the argument that reduced expenses result in reduced prices?

"Mother of All the Trusts."

When Havemeyer characterized the tariff bill as the mother of all the trusts he simply reaffirmed the assertion which has been made by the Democrats, but coming from the lips of a great trust magnate this characterization has been taken up by the press as something startling. There is nothing new in Havemeyer's allegation, but it is startling both as a fact and as an assertion made by a trust manager.

It is a little difficult to understand the frankness of Havemeyer. The Sugar Trust is one of the tariff's most rapacious children, although Havemeyer endeavors to obscure this fact. Nothing was made plainer in the Congressional discussion of the tariff bill than that the Sugar Trust was given by it an annual gratuity of about $20,000,000. In the protection of sugar the bonus to the refiners is at least one-half the cost of refining and with such an advantage it is not to be wondered at that the trust has grown enormously rich. That the government has shown gross favoritism to this particular trust is known to every intelligent man, and that other industries have suffered from this system cannot be gainsaid.

It is folly to talk about "protecting infant industries" when the organizations given this governmental aid are in fact giants. This sort of thing should come to an end promptly. If trusts are to be combated and the assassination of competition is to be stopped, this protection given by the tariff must be taken away. Then the people would have a fair chance and the giant combines would be shorn of much power for evil.

Silver Stronger than Ever.

As usual the Republican leaders are claiming that the silver issue has been killed. This is as manifestly absurd as any of their former claims to the same effect. Indeed, the absurdity of it is shown by the utterances of the very men who make the claim, for the burden of their song is that the "war policy of the administration has been indorsed." It is quite generally impossible to successfully combat a question of pure sentiment (even though an erroneous one) with a cold argument upon some question of economics. The silver question only figured incidentally in the campaign, and many Democrats honestly believed that it made but little difference whether they carried the House or not, some actually thinking that as the Republicans were certain to have the Senate it was better for them to have the House also, thus saddling them with the entire responsibility. It is also claimed that the Senate is securely Republican for eight years. This is upon the theory that there can be no change in the States now Republican. In this view they might as well claim the Senate forever. Of course, if no changes be made, they can remain in power as long as the republic stands. But the political pendulum can swing as easily one way as the other, and there is not a Northern State that may not be revolutionized a year hence. In some cases, as Vermont, it is not very likely. In others, as Michigan, Indiana, etc., it is even probable.—Exchange.

McKinley's Pitiable Condition.

President McKinley is the mere complaisant tool of a number of professional politicians of great ability in their particular line. No one has thought of him in any other character for a year past. No one in national politics has regarded him during that period as having any personal force whatever. Senator Platt is as omnipotent in New York as Senator Hanna is in Ohio or Senator Quay in Pennsylvania or as Secretary Alger is in the Navy Department. There is no thought of initiative in the White House in any direction.—St. Paul Globe.

The Benevolent Oil Monopoly.

It would have been as easy to dam up Niagara as to prevent the adoption of a strong anti-trust plank at the Ohio Republican convention, says Senator Hanna. He pretends a sympathy with this action of the convention, but when asked his opinion about the Standard Oil Trust he replies that it has done more for Ohio than any other corporation doing business there, and this seems to be his view of other trusts.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Prosperity Under the Trust.

The window glass trust has given orders and June 1 all but one-tenth of the mills in the combine shut down indefinitely and the balance of the mills will close down on June 30. Thus to restrict production 17,000 skilled workmen are thrown out of employment without a thought or care by the trust managers whether they starve or not.—Scranton (Pa.) Times.

Needed to Supply Dividends.

According to the sizing up of the situation by the trusts, the chief reason why the poor man and the man of moderate means were placed on earth was to produce large dividends on the watered stock of the trusts, so as to verify the statement of the Arkansas philosopher: "Them as has, gits."—St. Louis Republic.

Why?

Why did Dewey leave the commission and come home? Why is Schurman leaving and coming home? Why are news dispatches and news letters from the Philippines "censored?" Why has Mr. McKinley taken as his motto: "Distrust the people?"—New York World.

Whither Ambition Leads.

The secret of the worldly success of the American people lies in the boundless and ceaseless ambition of each individual living in this land of opportunities. The poor man is always striving to be rich; the rich man is forever striving to be great. And so on through every walk of life. The aim of the whole nation is toward higher and better things.

The merit of modesty is invariably recognized by our people, but is sometimes apparently lost sight of in the necessary struggle toward the lofty achievements that lie within the grasp of our humblest citizens.

These self-evident facts were emphatically brought out by a recent incident in a Boston hotel. A person with a conspicuous servant in attendance presented himself at the office and registered his name in large capitals running across the page:

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS AND VALET.

The next guest to arrive was a genuine American with all a true American's hopes, ambitions and possibilities. He registered:

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER AND VALISE.

Even the president of the Standard Oil Company has ideals that he is shooting at.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Alarming Conduct.

"When I kiss you, Edgar, you are not afraid I am going to ask for money, are you?"

"No, dear; but I'm afraid you have already cleaned me out while I was asleep."

Not a Matter of Size.

Mrs. Minks—Isn't it queer that such a little bit of a country as England can rule such a vast amount of territory?

Mr. Minks—Well, I don't know. You are not very big yourself, my dear.—Tid-Bits.

Badly Managed.

"How was the picnic?"

"A dismal failure. There was no one along who could photograph us."

BILIOUSNESS

Do you get up with a headache?

Is there a bad taste in your mouth?

Then you have a poor appetite and a weak digestion. You are frequently dizzy, always feel dull and drowsy. You have cold hands and feet. You get but little benefit from your food. You have no ambition to work and the sharp pains of neuralgia dart through your body.

What is the cause of all this trouble?

Constipated bowels.

Ayer's PILLS

will give you prompt relief and certain cure.

Keep Your Blood Pure.

If you have neglected your case a long time, you had better take

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

also. It will remove all impurities that have been accumulating in your blood and will greatly strengthen your nerves.

Write the Doctor.

There may be something about your case you do not quite understand. Write the doctor freely; tell him how you are suffering. You will promptly receive the best medical advice. Address,

Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

As Black as your Hat DYE Your Whiskers

A Natural Black with Buckingham's Dye.

50 cts. of druggists or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

For sale by all Druggists.—Price 50c. per bottle.

TAPE WORMS

"A tape worm eighteen feet long at least came on the scene after my taking two CASCARETS. This I am sure has caused my bad health for the past three years. I am still taking Cascarets, the only cathartic worthy of notice by sensible people."

GEO. W. BOWLES, Baird, Mass.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets TRADE MARK REGISTERED

REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c.

... CURE CONSTIPATION. ...

Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 311

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

Did you ever run across an old letter? Ink all faded out. Couldn't have been

CARTER'S INK

—IT DOESN'T FADE.

Costs you no more than poor ink. Might as well have the best.

PENSIONS Get Your Pension DOUBLE QUICK!

Write Sam'l. O'FARRELL, Pension Agent, Washington, D.C.

SORE EYES? DR. ISAAC THOMPSON'S EYE WATER

LADIES The Periodical Monthly Regulator never fails; write for free box; enclose 4c in stamps. New York Chemical Co., Box 70, Milwaukee, Wis.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D.C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in civil war. 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

TWO HANDSOME INDOOR GOWNS.

MR. KRUGER IS BRAVE.

Plucky Man Who Controls the Republic of the Boers.

"Our Paul," or, in the Boer vernacular, "Oom Paul," the President Kruger of the Transvaal, is the one man whom the British have not been able to beat down. He stands like a stone wall in the way of their aggressions. Kruger beat the British once in armed conflict, but the conditions have changed greatly since 1881. The dispute between the British and the Boers is a simple one. The Boers have a rich country; the British want it, and are trying, as they have been trying for years, to get possession of it. All the Boers ask is to be let alone in the enjoyment of their own. They make no hostile demonstrations, save when their homes and liberty and property are threatened. Efforts have been made to goad them into some overt act of hostility that would afford an excuse for crushing them, but these have been unavailing. The Boer is slow and phlegmatic, but he is no fool. He fights only when it is necessary to repel invaders, and the British have learned by sad experience that he is brave and can shoot straight.

President Kruger is the soul of the Boer republic. This remarkable man was born Oct. 10, 1825. His parents were Boer farmers, residing in Cape Colony, too poor to provide Paul with shoes. The future ruler of the South African republic had to trudge over the African veldt in his bare feet. He was christened S. J. Paul Kruger, but the two initials were soon disused, though President Kruger uses them in signing state papers.

Fear was unknown to Kruger from boyhood. When he was in his seventeenth year his father asked him to take home his span of oxen and an empty wagon. He was accompanied by his little sister.

"Paul," said his father, "take care of your sister."

"I will," he said, simply.

In those days traveling in Cape Colony was anything but a picnic. Wild animals were plentiful and many a traveler became a prey to these beasts. Everything went well until Paul was within about five miles of home. Here a large panther made his appearance. The oxen took fright and bolted. The jostling of the wagon threw the little girl to the ground, where she was at the mercy of the ferocious animal. Without a moment's hesitation young Kruger jumped from the wagon and ran to his sister's assistance. The panther stood with gleaming eyes over the prostrate child.

Kruger was unarmed, but without a moment's hesitation he engaged the panther in a hand-to-hand battle. It was a fierce battle. Time and again the angry beast clawed Kruger cruelly, but his courage and strength never failed him. Like a bulldog he held his grip upon the panther's throat until he strangled the beast to death. Kruger was badly lacerated. Blood flowed from many wounds, but, notwithstanding his injuries, he carried his fainting sister home. This exploit made him the hero of the sturdy Boers in that section. It was the first indication of the latent powers that dwelt in the coming ruler of the Transvaal.

This heroic Boer ruler is almost devoid of learning. What education he has was hard for him to secure. Yet he has baffled men of learning by his sagacity. His knowledge of human nature is wonderful. It is no wonder that the old Boers love their president. His character is pure; he is gentle as a babe, but firm as a rock, and a very lion when his country is in danger.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

YOUNG KRUGER'S STRUGGLE WITH A PANTHER.

Told by the Finger Nails.

In the days when fortune telling was more in vogue than at present, the shape and appearance of the finger nails were looked on as having reference to one's destiny. The nails were first rubbed over with a mixture of wax and soot, and, after being thus prepared, were held so that the sunlight fell fully upon them. On the horny, transparent substance were supposed to appear signs and characters from which the future could be interpreted. Persons, too, with certain descriptions of nails were supposed to possess certain characteristics. Thus, a man with red and spotted nails was of a fiery, hot-tempered disposition, while pale, lead-colored nails denoted a melancholy temperament. Ambitious and quarrelsome people were distinguished by narrow nails. Lovers of knowledge and liberal sentiment had round-shaped nails. Conceited, obstinate and narrow-minded persons were possessed of small nails; lazy, indolent individuals of fleshy nails, and those of a gentle, timid nature of broad nails.

Dressing a Salad.

The author of "Wild Flowers of California" gives an entertaining account of how the Indians prepare for food a plant that is commonly called Indian lettuce. It will be recalled that formic acid takes its name from the red ant, and that the acid was first obtained from the insect.

The Placer County Indians greedily eat the succulent leaves and stems of their "lettuce." Their way of preparing the plant for food is novel. Gathering the leaves, they lay these about the entrances to the nests of certain large red ants. The ants, swarming out, run all over the plants. After a time the Indians shake the ants off the leaves, satisfied that the lettuce now has a pleasant sour taste, equalling that which might be given it by vinegar.

London Society Startled.

London society is stirred to its very depths by the performances of a thought reader, who is the lion of the hour. There is no thought, not even a mental reservation, buried so deep in one's mental recesses, but what this wonder pounces upon it with an agility that is positively uncanny, and drags it forth into the light of publicity. The possibilities are something awful. Indeed, it is related that some of the revelations have been astounding beyond words, and one woman of extreme sensibility is said to have fainted as the workings of her mind were laid bare to herself and a half dozen intimate friends.

CAPT. NICHOLS.

The Monadnock's Commander Who Died at Manila.

Capt. Henry Erna Nichols, commander of the monitor Monadnock, who died of sunstroke at Manila, was one of the best officers in the navy. He was a native of New York and entered the naval academy in 1861. Thus, as he did not graduate until 1865, he took no part in the civil war. From 1865 to 1869 he was attached to the European station. He rose rapidly through the various grades of office in the service, becoming ensign in 1866, master in 1868, lieutenant in 1869, lieutenant commander in 1881, commander in the same year and captain but recently. From 1892 to 1896 he did service on shore, and in 1896 he was given command of the Bennington. When the Monadnock was sent to Manila Capt. Nichols went along as her commander.

CAPT. NICHOLS.

Ivy Absorbs Moisture.

There is a current opinion that ivy has a tendency to rot the thing to which it clings. This is true of a large number of other climbing plants, but not of ivy, for it renders the walls of almost every house to which it clings entirely free from damp, extracting every particle of moisture from wood, brick or stone for its own sustenance. This it does by means of its tiny roots, which can work their way even into the hardest stone. When the walls are well covered with ivy the overlapping leaves will conduct water falling upon them from point to point until the ground is reached, without allowing the walls to receive any moisture whatever from the beating rain. If there should be an exceptional case of ivy-covered walls showing signs of dampness, that will be found to arise from their having been erected on a wet and improperly drained site.

HUMOR OF THE WEEK

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Odd, Curious and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day—A Budget of Fun.

Giving Him a Pointer.

Mrs. Neurich—How's my son gettin' along with his lessons?

Private Tutor—Very nicely, madam; although it is difficult for him to catch an idea at times.

Mrs. Neurich—Well, I'd have you know he don't have to catch 'em. We can afford to buy him all the ideas he needs.

His Pedigree.

Miles—Young Trotter appears to possess a lot of good common horse sense."

Giles—Well, why shouldn't he? His father is a Trotter and his mother was a Trainor.

Sad, but Profitable.

"Some men have the best luck!"

"How so?"

"There's McIntosh, for instance; ice cream gives his girl neuralgia."

Dear at the Price.

"This is the hat Nancy Robinson wanted so much. I'm tired of it and would let her have it for a song."

"I guess you've never heard her sing."

Up to Date.

"You're way behind the times. Why don't you use the drop handlebar?"—New York Journal.

The Other Side of the Story.

Singleton—What's the trouble, old man; you look all broke up.

Wederly—You would doubtless look broke up, too, if you had a mother-in-law like mine, and she—

Singleton—Ha! The old, old story; she's coming to spend a few weeks with you, I suppose.

Wederly (sadly)—No; on the contrary, she has been with us for two months, and to-day she was compelled to return home. She nursed my wife through a bad case of fever, took care of the baby, attended to the household duties, mended my clothes and loaned me $5 on three different occasions. Oh, I tell you that woman is an earthly angel if there ever was one.

Hard to Please.

"Mrs. Perkins said if we made her president she would resign from the club."

"Well?"

"Then she resigned because she didn't get but one vote."

Wasn't in the Mood.

"I thought you intended to preach on the evils of profanity this morning," said the minister's wife after the service. "Why did you change your mind?"

"I dropped my collar button while dressing for church, my dear," replied the good man, "and I didn't feel that I could conscientiously do the subject justice."

An Emergency Well Handled.

"Susan, here's a two-column article on 'How to Make Garden.'"

"Hand it to me, Frederick. I'll sit on the porch and read it to you while you spade up the beds."—Chicago Record.

Our Amateur Training Schools.

"It is wonderful what courage and vigor our volunteer soldiers have shown in the war."

"I don't think so; you know we all get jostled and knocked around on the American trolley car."

Office Stupidity.

"Our typewriter is going to leave."

"What is the matter?"

"She says she wants a position with an employer who has sense enough to see when she's tired up to go to the matinee."

Illustrated Expression.

He couldn't stand the strain.—New York World.

Two Ways of Looking at It.

"That's a fine, solid baby of yours, Middleton," said a friend who was admiring the first baby.

"Do you think he's solid?" asked Middleton, rather disconsolately; "it seems to me as if he were all holler."—Stray Stories.

Couldn't Tell.

"How long have you been out of work?"

"Well, I don't hardly know, exactly, ma'am. You see, de record of me birth was lost."—New York Journal.

The Spring Exhibit.

"How's this? Here's a picture entered without any title."

"Yes; the young woman who painted it said she wouldn't name it until she found out what the public thought it was."

Must Be More Specific.

Stranger—Do you always have this kind of weather here in spring?

Native—Do you mean the weather we are having at this moment or the kind we had five minutes ago?—Chicago Tribune.

What She'd Call It.

He—If I stole fifty kisses from you what kind of larceny would it be?

She—I should call it grand.—Yonkers Statesman.

A Chronic Case.

Miss Knowall—They say old Mr. Hardfist has the grip.

Aunt Hannah—Well, he ain't never been known to let go anything he got hold of.—New York World.

Assurance Doubly Sure.

"You are all right," said the doctor after he had gone through with the regulation thumping and listening with his patient. "Not a trace of heart disease. Fifteen dollars, please."

The patient drew a long breath and remarked:

"I am sure now I have no heart disease; if I had I should have dropped dead when you mentioned your fee."—Boston Commercial-Bulletin.

A Friendly Tip.

Young Author—Tell me frankly what you think of the manuscript of my book. I want to get it in shape for publication, as I have several other irons in the fire.

Critical Friend—Well, that being the case I would advise you to use the manuscript for fuel. It might at least help to heat the other irons.

The Problem Solved.

Bank President—Our cashier will sever his connection with us the first of the year and I would like to give young Pennington the position, but I know absolutely nothing of his character and family connections.

Director—Well, why not persuade him to become a candidate for some political office this fall?

Well, Well.

Stubb—They say that famous marine artist was once a plain farmer's boy. I wonder where he developed his talent?

Penn—Probably drawing water down on the farm.

Not Amusing to Him.

Jones—It's very amusing to see those women across the street looking at the bonnets in that window.

Brown—Amusing? Why, that's my wife and daughter.—Harlem Life.

A New Hat?

"Here is an ugly old hat of the season before last. What shall I do with it?"

"Put a ticket on saying 'Latest Parisian Model' and hang it in the window.—Meggendorfer's Blaetter.

A Natural Deduction.

Long—You look out of sorts this morning, old man; what's wrong?

Short—Family troubles.

Long—I'm sorry to hear that. Nothing serious, I hope.

Short—I'm afraid it is. I had a misunderstanding with my rich uncle last night.

Long—Indeed! Did you lose the ticket?

Of Course He Shouldn't.

The Dear Girl—I am really astonished to hear you advance the proposition that a child should not be corrected in the presence of strangers.

The Savage Bachelor—He should not be, because he should never be in the presence of strangers; that's why.—Exchange.

First Family.

Miss Primm—Perhaps you wouldn't think that I belong to one of the first families?

Mr. Simm—Indeed I would, then. Fact is I'd take you to be the eldest daughter of Shem.

Not Up to Date.

Parson—Little boys who swear never grow up to be great men.

Kid—G'wan! I guess yer hain't read de history of de war wit' Spain.—New York Journal.

Certain Indications.

Hotel Manager—I see you have given our finest suite of rooms to a man named Bilkins. Are you sure he can pay the charges?

Clerk—Yes; he's rich enough.

Manager—How do you know?

Clerk—He is old and ugly, and his wife is young and pretty.

Monks' Feastings.

The old stories of the monks' high feasting are now said to be libels. Invoices of the stores in their storehouses exist to-day, and all the food was of the plainest kind—quantities of herring and stock fish (a sort of cod sent from Ireland), bacon, salt beef, pease meal—always coarse stuff for puddings—rye and lard.

His Duty.

Binks—New man in your office, I see. Looks like a prize fighter!

Winks—He's my sleeping partner.

Binks—Eh? Does he foot the bills?

Winks—No. He foots the collectors.—Boston Globe.

A diamond of the first water is one that has never been in "soak."

Manila Hemp Not Hemp at All.

One of the most valuable products of our new possessions, the Philippine Islands, is what is called Manila hemp, which is not hemp at all, but is obtained from a plant belonging to the plantain family. Trees of three years' growth yield only about two-thirds of a pound of fibre each; a bale of 270 pounds, therefore, represents the three years' production of about 400 trees. The Deering twine mills at Chicago consume an immense amount of this fibre, manufacturing one-third of all the binder twine used in America.

One Hundred Years Ago.

One hundred years ago, says a writer in Chambers' Journal, there were no institutions for the blind, the deaf and dumb, the paralytic and idiotic. There were few lying-in hospitals, no orphanages, no homes for fallen women, no nurses' institutes, no convalescent homes, no infirmaries for children, no special hospitals for women, for consumption and chest diseases, for fever, for nervous disorders, for epilepsy, paralysis, ophthalmic cases, and eruptions of the skin. There were no trained nurses, no corps to render "first aid." No chloroform or other anaesthetics softened the pain of the operative knife and saw. Lord Lister had not introduced antiseptics into surgery. There were no Roentgen X-rays, with their marvelous surgical, anatomical and pathological appliances that enable the surgeon to study bone disease and the detection of foreign bodies in various parts of the human frame.

Low Rates to Pacific Coast Points.

The Nickel Plate Road sells excursion tickets at special low rates to San Francisco and all Pacific Coast Points. Through Palace Sleepers and Superb Dining Car Service via the Nickel Plate Road. Ask Agents.

No Circus for Johnny.

Johnny—Can I go to the circus, pa?

Father—No, indeed. I wouldn't think of letting you see such a degrading exhibition.

Johnny—Then won't you please take me to see the menagerie? Teacher says we ought to see the animals.

Father—What! Pay full price to see only half the show? I guess not.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price 75 cents.

Not Always Truthful.

Mr. Wabash—That friend of yours is not a truthful man.

Mr. Gotham—Why not?

"He told me the other day that when he had work to do he took off his coat, rolled up his sleeves and pitched in."

"Yes."

"Well, he had duck to carve to-day and he came to the table with his coat on!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Photographers, Bring Your Cameras,

And attend the Annual Convention of the Photographers' Association at Celeron, N. Y., July 17th to 22nd. One fare for round trip via Nickel Plate Road. Your choice of a Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains Daily. Ask Agents.

Barred.

"It was a good opportunity," said the actor, "but I had to give it up."

"What kind of a character was it?"

"Villain."

"Wasn't the salary enough?"

"Very liberal and the manager was a gentleman, but when I was a boy I promised my mother that I would never smoke a cigarette."—Washington Star.

Chautauqua Lake Excursions.

The Nickel Plate Road will run excursions to Lake Chautauqua July 7th, good returning August 8th, and July 28th, good returning August 29th, at special low rates. For further particulars see Agents.

Trapped.

"What is the highest position in the army, papa?" asked Sammy Snaggs.

"Commander-in-chief," replied Mr. Snaggs.

"No."

"Then what?"

"The chief of the war-balloon corps."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is the only cough medicine used in my house.—D. C. Albright, Mifflinburg, Pa., Dec. 11, '95.

Of all virtues, magnanimity is the rarest; there are a hundred persons of merit for one who willingly acknowledges it in another.—Hazlitt.

Excursons to Chautauqua

On July 7th and 28th. The Nickel Plate Road will sell excursion ticket at special low rates to Lake Chautauqua. Tickets will be good returning August 8th and 29th respectively. Be sure and visit this beautiful summer resort on one of these occasions. Ask Agents.

If the trusts could get the earth they would probably insist on the poor man's fencin' it in for 'em.

Ladies' and Gents' Aluminum Memo Books. Your initial and floral design; hand engraved, 10c by mail. STANDARD ALUMINUM CO., (INC.) 115-121 E. 12th St., New York City.

The first indication of domestic happiness is the love of one's home.—Montaigne.

The Nickel Plate Road

Offers special low rates to Lynn, Mass., July 12th to 19th, account Annual Meeting Young People's Christian Union. Your choice of a Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains Daily. See Nickel Plate Agents.

A husband who goes to market with his wife makes a marter of himself.

"He That Stays Does the Business."

All the world admires "staying power." On this quality success depends. The blood is the best friend the heart has. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best friend the blood ever had; cleanses it of everything, gives perfect health and strength.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Never Disappoints

Niagara, Toronto and Thousand Islands Excursion.

The Nickel Plate Road will run its Seventeenth Annual Excursion to Niagara Falls, Tuesday, August 15, tickets good returning until August 29, inclusive. The usual stop-over privilege at Chautauqua Lake will be granted without extra charge. Tickets will be sold to Toronto for $1.60 and to the Thousand Islands for $6.50. Secure your sleeping car reservations early. An Unexcelled Dining Car Service. Tickets good returning on any one of our Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains. Remember the date. Enquire Agents Nickel Plate Road for further information.

Loving a Lover.

"All the world may love a lover," says Catesby, "but that doesn't always include the girl he's in love with, which is the most important."—Philadelphia North American.

Try Allen's Foot-Ease.

A powder to be shaken into the shoes. At this season your feet feel swollen, nervous and hot, and get tired easily. If you have smarting feet or tight shoes, try Allen's Foot-Ease. It cools the feet and makes walking easy. Cures ingrowing nails, swollen and sweating feet, blisters and callous spots. Relieves corns and bunions of all pain and gives rest and comfort. Try it to-day. Sold by all druggists and shoe stores for 25c. Trial package FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Information Wanted.

"Paw."

"Well?"

"Will it rain because it's so hot, or is it so hot because it's going to rain?"

Long Limit Cheap Excursion to Niagara Falls.

The Nickel Plate Road will run their usual Annual Excursion this year in August to Niagara Falls, but the return portion of the excursion ticket will be good on any one of their Trio of Fast Express Trains for fifteen days. Lookout for a rouser. The reputation earned for these Annual Niagara Falls Excursions over the Nickel Plate Road has made them very popular and for years it has been the rule for parties anticipating an outing during the summer to make it convenient to take in the Annual Niagara Falls Excursion on the Nickel Plate Road. This year the date is fixed for August 14th or 15th. Look for particulars later.

Eagle Linen Letter Paper and Envelopes are the proper thing. Tell your printer to use this brand on your next order.

Tourist Excursions.

From June 24th to July 10th, inclusive, the Nickel Plate road will sell Special Tourist Tickets to Denver, Colorado Springs, Pueblo, and Utah Points.

Through Palace Sleepers and unexcelled Dining Car Service via the Nickel Plate Road. Special low rates. Ask Agents Nickel Plate Road for particulars.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

WANTED.—Case of bad health that R-I-P-A-N-S will not benefit. Send 5 cents to Ripans Chemical Co., New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 46,970]

"I had female complaints so bad that it caused me to have hysterical fits; have had as many as nine in one day.

"Five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and it has been a year since I had an attack.

Mrs. Edna Jackson, Pearl, La.

If Mrs. Pinkham's Compound will cure such severe cases as this surely it must be a great medicine—is there any sufferer foolish enough not to give it a trial?

WABASH

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS To Western Points.

JULY 18th, 1899.

On the above date the WABASH will sell from its principal stations East of Chicago and Toledo, Ill., LOW RATE HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSION Tickets to points West, South, and Southwest, granting a liberal return limit. A postal card addressed to any Wabash Ticket Agent, or to either of the following Passenger Representatives will bring you prompt and explicit information regarding rates, routes, time of trains, through car service, condition of tickets, etc., etc.

REMEMBER

The WABASH is the only line east of Chicago and St. Louis giving its patrons seats without extra charge, in ELEGANT RECLINING CHAIR CARS running through to St. Louis and Kansas City without change.

This is your chance to go West cheap. Communicate with us.

F. E. DONBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.

R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.

A. F. WOLFSCHLAGER, P. & T. A. Detroit, Mich.

TEO. FOLLEN, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.

GEO. D. MAXFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.

C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

F. W. N. U. - - No. 27—'99.

When Writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

"Cleanliness Is Nae Pride, Dirt's Nae Honesty." Common Sense Dictates the Use of

SAPOLIO

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that I, Daniel M. Link, Commissioner appointed by the DeKalb Circuit Court to sell real estate in a certain case entitled Azam F. Foltz and Levina R. Shoup vs. William Foltz et al, will offer at private sale to the highest bidder, on at the court house door, Auburn, Indiana, the following described real estate, to-wit:

Saturday, July 22, 1899,

The west half (½) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section thirty-five (35), township thirty-three (33) north, range thirteen (13) east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana. The east and west halves of said described real estate, by order of the court, will be sold separately.

TERMS OF SALE.

One-third cash, the balance in three equal annual payments. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage on the premises sold.

D. M. LINK, Commissioner.

William's Kidney Pills

Has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your Kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your Kidneys and Bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire pass urine? William's Kidney Pills will impart new life to the diseased organs, tone up the system and make a new man of you. By mail 50 cents per box.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents Dandruff and hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

WE GIVE ANY LADY

or man, who will take orders for our Leghorn Hen Food, in their own town,

A SOLID GOLD WATCH, FREE

We make this offer for a short time, in order to get our Food into more general use. It increases yield of eggs, and keeps fowl in good health. Send us 50c. for a regular $1.00 size box, and begin to take orders at once.

Pamphlet, with more information about hens, sent on receipt of self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address Leghorn Food Co., (311-M) Boston, Mass.

A $12.00 Made To Order Man's Suit, for $6.98

BY BUYING DIRECT FROM

E. ROSENBURGER & CO.,

202-204 E. 102d St., NEW YORK CITY.

The Largest Clothing Manufacturers in America.

OUR GREAT BARGAIN OFFER!

$5 BOYS' ADONIS SUITS FOR 2.76

with Extra Pants and we Pay Expressage.

These Suits are made up of All Wool Cassimeres trimmed with fast black Sateen, the best of workmanship, cut Double Breasted, Sizes, 3 to 9 years, with Silk Embroidered Sailor Collar, 10 to 15 years, without Sailor Collar. All Pants have Patent Waist Bands. We send pieces of the cloth and extra buttons, with each suit. Kindly mention if large or small for age.

When ordering send Post Office, Express Money Order or Registered Letters, also age at last birthday, and if large or small for his age. Money cheerfully refunded if not satisfactory. Send 2c. stamps for sample, tape measure, measuring blanks, etc.

Thursday's Daily.

—Ask any druggist for a free Peruna Almanac for the year 1899.

—The funeral of George DeWald, the Fort Wayne dry goods merchant, will be held tomorrow morning.

—Prof F. M. Merica has been re-engaged as superintendent of the Lagrange schools for the ensuing year.

—It is officially announced that the receivership of the B. & O. railroad will end at midnight tomorrow night.

—The Ligonier military band, ten years ago one of the best musical organizations in the state, has been reorganized.

—Thos. Leasure and wife of Mt. Ayr, Iowa, are expected to arrive in Auburn soon for an extended visit with the former's mother.

—There are three ways for circulating news. Telephone, telegraph and tell-a-paper. The latter method is the best for home circulation.

—The creditors of the defunct Schell Loan and Investment company at Fort Wayne will receive a dividends of about five per cent of their claims.

—At the request of Mr. William J. Bryan, wine was not served at a banquet given in his honor at Lincoln, Neb., upon his return from Mexico.

—Russell & Myers, who have the contract for building the power house at the jail, have let the foundation work to Fred Funk and John Reesh.

—The music firm of Davis & Gibson has been dissolved and the business will be continued by W. R. Davis in the room now occupied by Cowan Sisters' millinery store and Davidson's jewelry store.

—St. Joe News:—G. W. Woodcox has been appointed deputy treasurer for the collection of delinquent taxes in Concord and Jackson township. He was at Auburn Tuesday and filed his bond.

—W. A. Simmermacher, formerly connected with the B. & O. dispatcher's office, and who went to Texas some time ago for health, has taken a position with the Mexican Central railroad, with headquarters at San Luis Potosi.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who are not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs are surely cured by it. Call on H. B. McCord, druggist, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1. Every bottle guaranteed or price refunded.

Was Buried in Mexico.

From letters received by Justin Girardot yesterday we learn that his son Eugene met his death June 10 while returning to the United States from a trip to Mexico. With a friend he was riding on a Mexican Central freight with the train crew; the accident, full particulars of which are not given in the letters, occurred at a small way station called Comacho, death resulting about six hours later. The remains were taken care of by the railroad officials and on the 12th instant were interred at Comacho. One of the letters received here was from Bernie Trentman to his wife, at Smithville, Texas. Mr. Trentman was then (June 18) at Comacho and wrote that owing to the stringent Mexican law governing such matters it was doubtful if the remains could be removed. He said, however, that he would have an interview with the governor of the province and hoped to get his permission to bring the body home. Mrs. Trentman had arranged, as heretofore noted, to come home last week but waited to hear from her husband, and nothing is definitely known as to the time of their arrival in Auburn.

Friday's Daily.

—The contract has been let for a fine new tabernacle at Island Park, Rome City, to cost $4,000.

—Most of our teachers have been engaged for the coming year. Mrs James Baxter has been selected as one of the number.

—Mrs. N. H. Weaver returned to her home in Attica yesterday accompanied by Mrs. Lillian Brysland of Tacoma, Wash., who will be her guest for a time. Both have thoroughly enjoyed their visit among DeKalb county friends.

—There are at present thirty-one inmates at the county asylum, of whom seven are insane and seventeen are feeble minded. The general health of those at the farm is good and everything moving along nicely under the management of Mr. and Mrs Bartels.

—Nellie Baxter returned from Bad Ax, Mich., this week, where she spent the past several months with the family of Mr. Bope. She says she was quite homesick, more especially on account of Auburn's lovely shade trees, Bad Ax being in the "burnt" district.

—The new pharmacy law goes into effect tomorrow, after which every drug store must have have a registered pharmacist on duty during business hours. The board of examiners will have its first meeting for examinations July 12. It is stated that over 3,000 pharmacists have registered.

—Atty. J. H. Rose has gone to Indianapolis today being called there as one of the attorney of the B. & O. road. There is an important meeting there, as the receivership of that road will expire at midnight tonight, and there will be new officers elected and a re-organization of the original company.

—Kendallville Sun:—J. M. Kinney of this city, has received word from the promoters of the cement industry at Helmer to look over a proposed branch of the Wabash railroad leading to their works, and has been asked to give an estimate of the cost and also a request to make a bid on the construction of the same. He will leave tomorrow morning to investigate the matter.

Saturday's Daily.

—Moses Kinsey of Auburn has been granted an increase of pension.

—To-morrow is the anniversary of the battles at San Juan and El Caney in Cuba.

—Rev. Father French, vice president of Notre Dame, was the guest of Father Dandurand today.

—The people of Lagrange have subscribed $6,000 for the electric railroad between Angola and Goshen.

—Twenty-nine years ago today the editor of this paper first took charge of it. It was then published at Waterloo and called the "Air Line."

—Mrs. Solomon Shearer of Jackson township, who has been sick for sometime, is at the home of her mother, Mrs High, on North Jackson street. Her health is improving.

—A remonstrance signed by a majority of the citizens of Concord township against the granting of a saloon license to David Dove of Spencerville has been filed with the county auditor.

—Prof. Hoke, late superintendent of the Garrett schools, gave us a pleasant call yesterday. He is preparing to return to his old home in Tiffin, Ohio, where he will resume the practice of law.

—A farmer near Muncie has a horse that sports a full fledged mustache on its upper lip. The owner takes great pride in keeping the mustache trimmed and curled and combed into proper shape.

—The Michigan sparrow killer gathered in about 500 of the little pests at Goshen yesterday by scattering poisoned wheat. They were taken to Michigan where a bounty of two cents is paid on each sparrow killed.

—Ed Webb went to Avilla yesterday where he met his two little sons on their return from Northern Michigan. The lads were glad to return to Auburn and rejoin their father, who will do all he can to give them a good home and proper care.

—According to the forthcoming report of the state geologist, we have coal enough in Indiana to last 1,600 years. The report will be exhaustive and will show the five great veins in detail. It will be the first complete coal report for three years and will be out Aug 1.

—A New York man, accompanied by his wife, started from that city today to make the trip to San Francisco in an automobile carriage. Should they follow the route selected they will pass through the northern part of this county, following as nearly as possible the line of the Lake Shore railroad.

—Butler Record:—Commissioner Gunsenhouser was a caller at this office Tuesday. He remarked that the commissioners were giving us republicans a good administration whether we want it or not. We haven't found anything to kick about yet and really think the commissioners have been giving us a pretty good administration, although they are populists and popocrats.

SCROFULA

thin blood, weak lungs and paleness. You have them in hot weather as well as in cold.

SCOTT'S EMULSION cures them in summer as in winter. It is creamy looking and pleasant tasting.

50c. and $1.00; all druggists.

Two Facts About Arbuckles' Coffee

It has set the standard of quality for all competitors for the last thirty years. The strongest claim any competitor can make is that his coffee is "just as good as Arbuckles'."

THREE CONCLUSIONS

'The best Coffee is Arbuckles'. The only Coffee to buy is Arbuckles'. The right thing is to insist on having Arbuckles'.

No. 72 A School Bag. 14 inches wide, 16 inches deep, made of handsome colored netting. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 74. Noiseless Spring Tape Measure. Sixty inches long, nickel-plated metal case, well-finished. It can be carried in the vest pocket. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2c. postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 76 Lady's Belt Buckle. Silver plated artistic design. Sent postpaid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 8 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 78 An Album of Illustrated Natural History. Fifty colored pictures of Animals selected for their beauty and rarity. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 80 A Spring Balance Scale. Will weigh from one ounce to 10 pounds. Sent by express, charges prepaid by us, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 100 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office as well as your Post Office.

No. 73. Scholars' Companion. A most useful article for school children. Highly polished wooden box with lock and key, containing leaf pencil, pen holder, rule and rubber. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 15 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 75. A Fifty Foot Measuring Tape. A very useful article in the household on the farm. Brass case, nickel-plated linen tape fifty feet long. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 18 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 77. Telescope Drinking Cup. This article is prevented from falling apart by its unique construction. Nickel-plated and highly finished. Enclosed in embossed nickel cover no larger than an ordinary watch when telescoped, when extended holds as much as a coffee cup. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 13 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 79. Pepper and Salt Holders. Made of German Silver without seam or joint except where tops screw on and off. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 12 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 81 Men's Suspenders. Elastic Web Suspenders, durable, neat, well mounted. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 16 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 82 Barber Swing Strop. A double strop, one of leather and one of canvas, bound together. Length, 22 inches, width, two inches, trimmings nickel plated. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 12 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 83 A Table Cover. Handsome cloth, variegated figured pattern with fringe, 32 inches. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 25 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

Any one Book of the following List will be sent post-paid on receipt of a 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from the wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. C4 A ONE NIGHT MYSTERY, and two other great Detective Stories, by "OLD SLEUTH."
No. C5 ADVENTURES OF A BASHFUL BACHELOR, by CLARA AUGUSTA. A mirth provoking story.
No. C6 TEMPEST AND SUNSHINE. A Novel by MRS. MARY J. HOLMES. The most popular female writer of fiction of the age.
No. C7 THE SUNNYSIDE COOK BOOK, by MRS. JENNIE HARLAN. This is one of the most comprehensive, common sense Cook Books ever published.
No. C8 OLD SECRETS AND NEW DISCOVERIES. This book takes the reader out of the beaten tracks of knowledge, and will be found both entertaining and useful.
No. C9 THREE THOUSAND THINGS WORTH KNOWING, by R. MOORE, author of "Moore's Universal Assistant." This book is an encyclopedia of highly useful information in condensed form.
No. C10 THE CITY OF DREADFUL NIGHT, and other stories—by RUDYARD KIPLING.

No. 91 The First Prayer. A beautiful imported Picture 11x14 inches in size. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 92 The First Kiss A beautiful imported picture 15x20 inches in size. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 93 Two Is Company. The original was painted by Percy Moran. This reproduction in 14 printings is a genuine work of art. Size 16½x25½ inches. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 94. A Basket of Beauties. A magnificent picture of Roses by Paul de Longpre, the great painter of flowers. We believe this to be one of the handsomest flower pictures ever offered to the public. It is 16½x25½ inches in size. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 95 Three Beautiful Flower Pictures. Each measuring 9½x17 inches. The titles are "Summer Fragrance," "A Vase of Lilies," and "Fresh and Sweet." These three pictures all go together, and will be sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 5 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 96. Noah's Ark. A menagerie, consisting of 11 pairs of Animals—Elephants, Camels, Deer, Horses, Cattle, Donkeys, Goats, Lions, Bears, Tigers, Dogs and Cats. Each pair is coupled and stands alone. They are lithographed in many colors on heavy cardboard, cut, cut and embossed. Every feature of the Animals is distinctly shown. The elephants are 7 inches high and 10 inches long, and the other Animals are proportionately large. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 15 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 97. Eighty-one Gold Eyed Needles. Put up in a pretty morocco case, assorted sizes, and made by the best English manufacturers. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 98 Hair Pin Cabinet A metal box lithographed in colors, containing One Hundred Hair Pins, assorted sizes and styles; straight, crimped and invisible. The different styles are in separate compartments. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 99 A Pocket Mirror and Comb. Set in neat leather combination case, with white metal frame. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 7 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 100 Safety Pin Book Containing twenty-four nickel-plated Safety-Pins three sizes which enter the shields from either side, requiring no guiding when being secured or removed. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 5 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

This is a picture of the Signature on Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee Wrapper, which you are to cut out and send to us as a voucher.

No other part of the Coffee Wrapper will be accepted as a voucher, nor will this Picture be accepted as such.

Arbuckle Bros.

SOME OF OUR SIGNATURES ARE PRINTED ON RED BACKGROUND.

This represents one page of a List which is found in each pound package of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee, and with each package in which the List is found the purchaser has bought a definite part of some article to be selected by him or her from the List, subject only to the condition that the signature on the package is to be cut out and returned to Arbuckle Bros. as a voucher, in accordance with the directions printed in connection with each item illustrated and described in the List. This List will be kept good only till May 31, 1900. Another page of this List will appear in this paper shortly.

Address all communications to ARBUCKLE BROS., NOTION DEPT., NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

KIDNEY TROUBLE Is a deceptive disease—thousands have it and dont know it. If you want quick results you can make no mistake by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. Sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney trouble. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared for Piles and Itching of the private parts. Every box is warranted. By druggists, by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents and $1.00. WILLIAMS MANUFACTURING CO., Props., Cleveland, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

THE FIRST BABY.

Its Coming is Looked Forward to With Both Joy and Fear and its Safe Arrival is Hailed With Pride and Delight by All.

The arrival of the first baby in the household is the happiest and most important event of married life. The young wife who is to become a mother delights to think of the happiness in store for her when the little one shall nestle upon her breast and latterly she shall hear it lisp the sweet and holy name, "mother." But her happy anticipation quickly vanishes when she realizes the terrible pain and suffering through which she must pass while bringing the little one into the world. An indescribable fear of the danger attendant upon the ordeal soon dissipates her joyfulness.

Thousands of women have learned by experience that there is absolutely no necessity for the sufferings which attend child-birth; they know that by the use of "Mother's Friend"—a scientific liniment—for a few weeks before the trying hour, expectant mothers can so prepare themselves for the final hour that the pain and suffering of the dreaded event are entirely obviated and it is safely passed through with comparatively little discomfort.

All women are interested, and especially expectant mothers who for the first time have to undergo this trial, in such a remedy; for they know the pain and suffering, to say nothing of the danger, which is in store for them. "Mother's Friend" is woman's greatest blessing, for it takes her safely through the severest ordeal of her life. Every woman should be glad to read the little book "Before Baby is Born," which contains information of great value to all. It will be sent free to any one who sends their address to The Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

DITCH.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Notice is hereby given that the Auditor of DeKalb county Indiana will, on

Friday, July 14, 1899,

at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m., in the office of the Auditor in the court house in the town of Auburn, Indiana, receive sealed proposals for the construction of the William Knight ditch No. 611, located in Concord township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and described as follows, to-wit:

Commencing 1300 feet north and 100 feet west of the southeast corner of the west half of the southeast quarter of section 6, township 33 north and range 14 east, in said DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and from thence in an easterly direction ending at station No. 222 plus 65 feet, containing 22,265 feet; said ending point being in the St. Joe river 202 feet south and 900 feet west of the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 15, township 33, range 14 east, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

LATERAL DITCH

Commencing at the junction of the Saylor & Koch ditch, said point being 40 rods north and 50 rods east of the southwest corner of the northwest quarter of section 9, township 33 north range 14 east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and from thence in a southwesterly direction ending in the main ditch 25 feet below station 8 on land of Reuben Koch; said section containing 3305 feet.

Said work will be sold in two sections as described above and to the lowest responsible bidder; but no bid will be entertained which exceeds the estimated cost of construction as set forth in the engineer's and viewers report.

All bidders must be present or represented on day of sale to make arrangements for contract and bond.

All contractors will be required to keep their sections well staked and numbered and comply with all requests made by the engineer or surveyor in charge. Also all contractors will be required to enter into contract and execute a bond in compliance with the provisions of law. (Acts of 1893, page 325.)

Specifications of said work can be seen at the County Auditor's office in Auburn.

All of said ditch must be completed by November 1, 1899.

The Auditor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

FRANK P. SEILER,
Auditor DeKalb County, Indiana.

ELOPED

Quite a sensation was started at Hamilton, by the elopement Saturday night of Delbert Ackley and Mary Houlton. Ackley is a barber whose home is at Hicksville. He was a member of Co. H, 157th. Miss Houlton is a daughter of John Houlton, a prominent farmer living about three miles south of Hamilton, a son of the first settler of DeKalb county. Mr. Houlton has followed the runaways, but is not likely to catch them.

HIGHEST 1899 GRADE

BICYCLE

GENT'S COLUMBIAN $20.50 LADIES' COLUMBIAN

BEST BICYCLE BUILT!

FACTORY TO RIDER DIRECT.

All we require is $1.00 down, balance payable after examination.
We are the only factory in the United States selling direct to rider.
We guarantee our goods for two years—most liberal guarantee ever given.
We give more options than the regular dealers. You can have your choice of color, heighth of frame or any gear desired.
Our bicycles have all the latest improvements—large tubing, flush joints, large sprockets, arched fork crown, drop hanger, etc.
WRITE FOR CATALOGUE GIVING FULL DESCRIPTION, TODAY.

Columbian Cycle Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Band Excursion.

July 12, the Auburn Band will give a big excursion to Lake Wawasee, or Cedar Beach, the round trip being $1. Patrons will be carried from up town in Auburn to the Junction, free, and on the return will be carried up town, free. This is by far the largest single lake in Indiana, as well as the most beautiful. The train stops at the big hotel at Cedar Beach, and from there the party can get to any part of the lake. All around the shores are beautiful grounds, cottages and hotels. There is good fishing, and connected with this lake is another two miles long, on the north side of the B. & O. near the town of Syracuse, also good fishing grounds. Lake Wawasee is itself nine miles long, and a ride around it on the steamer is about 20 miles in extent. There are plenty of row boats, steamboats, hotels and good grounds for picnics.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

IDEAL MUSIC,

"Sweet as the angel Israfil's,
When every leaf on Eden's tree
Was trembling to his minstrelsy."

can be produced from an EBERSOLE PIANO. The Ebersole possesses a tone that no other maker has been able to imitate—being full and deep, yet with that clear singing quality which stamps it the peer of all upright pianos for homes of culture and refinement.

Frank B. Long,

119 Wilhelm St. cor Washington, Fort Wayne, Ind.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Volume XXIX | Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, Thursday, July 13, 1899. | Number 28.

BANK First National
Auburn, Ind.
Capital Stock and Surplus
$60,000
Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest if left six months. County and Town Orders bought and sold. Money to Loan.
CHARLES McCLELLAN, President.
D. A. GARWOOD, Cashier.

Physicians T. G. Matheny, M. D. J. B. Casebeer, M. D.
Matheny & Casebeer
have again associated themselves in the practice of Medicine, Surgery & Obstetrics. Office On 9th St.
Western 'Phone:
Office..... No. 9
Matheny's residence..... " 88
Casebeer's " ..... " 175

BANK Farmers,
Auburn, Ind.
(Incorporated and Under State Control)
Capital Stock and Surplus
$50,000
Transacts a General Banking Business and Pays Interest on Time Deposits.
Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry, V-Pres.
A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Physicians D. J. Swarts, M. D. Vesta W. Swarts, M. D
and SURGEONS
Office at Auburn Sanitary Baths, corner Main and Sixth Streets.
Professional Calls Promptly Answered.
'PHONES: Western..... No. 19
Central Union..... No. 19

DENTIST F. W. HOFFMAN,
Auburn, Ind.
Office in Gandy Building, Northeast Corner of Court Square.
WESTERN 'PHONE 103.
Crown and Bridge Work a Specialty

P. V. HOFFMAN,
LAWYER,
Auburn. Indiana
OFFICE over Hebel's Grocery.

Dr. Z. H. Stamets,
Physician & Surgeon
Office on Main St., opposite Swineford Hotel.
Western 'Phone 104
Special attention given to techinal examinations and treatment of chronic and obscure cases, also special attention given to surgery and diseases of women. Calls answered at all hours. Office apart from residence.

I. O. BUCHTEL, HOMEOPATHIC Physician and Surgeon.
Special attention given to bronic and Obscure cases and catarrhal diseeses of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.
Office and residence over Madden Bros Marble Works. Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, day or night.

Sprott & Knapp,
Abstracters of Deeds & Titles,
AUBURN, IND.
Offices in Gandy Block, North of Court House.

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE—in Effect June 25 1899.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations	Mail	Exp'ss	Pre'gt
Fort Wayne	11 45 am	4 45 pm	5 55 am
New Era	12 12 pm	5 08	6 40
Auburn Junction	12 25	5 21	7 10
Auburn	12 29	5 25	7 35
Waterloo	12 41	5 36	8 15
Summit	12 51	5 46	8 35
Steubenville	12 54	5 49
Pleasant Lake	1 08	5 56	8 58
Angola	1 16	6 06	9 25
Jackson	2 25	6 25	9 40

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations	Fre'gt	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson	5 55 am	11 45 am	6 15 am
Angola	11 00	2 19 pm	8 44
Pleasant Lake	11 35	2 29	8 55
Steubenville		2 36	9 00
Summit	11 50	2 39	9 04
Waterloo	12 41 pm	2 55	9 23
Auburn	1 20	3 05	9 38
Auburn Junction	1 35	3 08	9 36
New Era	1 54	3 18	9 46
Fort Wayne	3 50	5 50	10 02

For rates on tickets or freight to all points call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent Auburn.

B. & O. R. R.

Schedule In Effect Nov. 22 '98
Leaves Auburn Junction.

WEST BOUND.

No. 2 Express, to Garrett only	5:52 p m
No. 5 Daily	4:30 a m
No. 7 Daily	4:17 p m
No. 17 Daily Except Sunday	12:25 p m
No. 47	1:55 a m

EAST BOUND.

No. 4 Express	4:30 a m
No. 6 Daily	9:05 p m
No. 8 Daily	9:35 p m
No. 14 Daily	11:17 p m
No. 16, Daily, except Sunday	11:00 a m

F. D. UNDERWOOD, General Manager.
O. R. MARTIN, Manager of Passenger Traffic.
O. H. YOUNG, Auburn Junction, Ind
THOS. H. SPROTT CHAS. H. KNAPP

COURT NEWS

Thursday's Daily.

The two "put offs" of the regular jury, G. W. Coats and O. L. Wheaton, have had to wait around today, as it was not certain at what minute the jury would close up the railroad case they were working at.

A good deal of odds and ends of other business has been called up.

A queer case is expected tomorrow. It will be remembered that about a year ago, Merritt Beard of the southeast part of the county was divorced from his wife Lydia, and she was given some alimony. A Kendallville bank took a mortgage on his farm and furnished the money to pay her alimony. He fails to pay even the interest and now the bank sues him. He says it is all wrong, for the mortgage should be on her land, not his, as she had the money and he did not. Besides, there are other debts that he owes his late wife and she is pressing for her money on them. Here again he makes a kick He says that Judge Hartman, Mr. Baxter, Mr. Emanuel and all the other attorneys who had anything to do with the original suit are the parties who ought to pay these claims, and he is going to fight it on that ground. The facts are he is a little daffy, as has been shown on several other occasions.

THE VERDICT.

The jury in the Chappell railroad case went out last evening and were out all night and all day today, as they could not agree on several questions of law. They kept working at it, however, and at 4:00 came in with a verdict of $3,000 for the plaintiff Chappell.

Friday's Daily.

There were 119 interrogatories in the Chappell case, which had to be answered to the jury and read by the Judge. It took an hour to read them. The verdict of $3000 for Chappell seems to give satisfaction as being about fair. The jury separated at the end of this case. The two men put on for the occasion Joe Johnson and Wm. Crane, were excused for the rest of the term. The regular jury all go on again, beginning this forenoon at 9 o'clock, when the trial of the man who stole meat near Waterloo began. It will be remembered that Johns and Booth plead guilty and said "Skip" Barnhart was with them in the deal. But still in spite of this, he makes a fight. Gen. Blair and P. V. Hoffman are his attorneys, while Prosecutor Rhoades and Deputy Pomeroy are for the state, and are assisted by W. H. Leas, who prosecuted the men in the justice court and got them bound over to court. The first thing done was to get a jury and this took some time, as the case was so well known. Judge Woodhull is trying the case, as the two men who plead guilty, did so before Judge Best and it was not thought best to continue trial before him.

About 11 a. m. they were ready to hear witnesses. Frank Fisk, from whom the meat was stolen was the first called. He said when he got up in the morning, he saw the door of his granary was wide open. He found five pieces of meat had been taken, three hams and two shoulders. He saw tracks leading to the Lake Shore road, and from there he went to Waterloo, two miles south, called at Mabus' cider saloon and found that one ham had been sold there, for 95 cents. Mabus said he bought it of Booth and Johns. Next day it was heard that Booth had told Dr. Showalter that two hams and two shoulders had been put into the basement under the DeKalb bank and he could have them if he would go and get them, but he would not. In this way suspicion was turned on the three men. They were arrested, tried before a justice, then brought to court, where as already said Booth and Johns plead guilty.

Saturday's Daily.

Yesterday the defense in the ham stealing case from Waterloo had on some witnesses, the most important being Wm. XX. McDonald, who testified that a little after 11 p. m. the night the hams were stolen he had found the defendant, Hiram Barnhart, on the streets of Waterloo too drunk to walk and had helped him home. This was to prove that Barnhart could not have been at the scene of the stealing, two miles north of there, at the time Booth and Johns say it was done, a little before 2 in the morning.

Two arguments were made before supper and three in the evening. The order in which the speeches were made was: First, W. H. Leas for the state; P. V. Hoffman followed for the defense, Mr. Pomeroy for the state, Gen. Blair for the defense, and then Prosecutor Rhoads closed for the state. By this time it was ten o'clock, and they adjourned. This morning the Judge made his charge and the jury retired.

BARNHART IS GUILTY.

At 2 p m. the jury brought in a verdict of guilty against Barnhart and the Judge gave him the legal sentence, two to fourteen years, as the charge against him included breaking into the granary, which is burglary.

On this jury, Isaac Barker, Lee Stamets, John Baird, and Dell Clutter of the regular jury went off and their places were taken by T. C. Ford, D. Maranville, John Williams and J. O. Davidson.

Judge Hartman, in the grand jury yesterday, heard an argument for a new trial in the case relating to Anderson's hogs that died on the Lake Shore road going to Buffalo. He has taken it under advisement.

Judge Best held court yesterday afternoon in the attorneys' room, and heard part of the case of the Noble Co. Bank vs M. M. Baird on note, and will hear the rest next week.

The regular jury is called for Monday afternoon and Judge Watkins will be here to assist in such cases as thought best.

Is Baby Thin
this summer? Then add a little
SCOTT'S EMULSION
to his milk three times a day.
It is astonishing how fast he will improve. If he nurses, let the mother take the Emulsion. 50c. and $1.00; all druggists.

OUR SEVEN DAYS

SPECIAL SALE

Is Now Going Full Blast!

This is an EXCEPTIONALLY Good Opportunity to buy Strictly First-Class Dry Goods, Clothing and Carpets at Greatly Reduced Prices. Come often

We Are Saving You Money

Schaab & Bro.,
Auburn, Ind.

He Fooled The Surgeons.

All doctors told Renic Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on Earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25 cents a box. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist.

Would Have Cost Him His Life.

I have been using Foley's Kidney Cure and take great pleasure in stating it gave me permanent cure of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life. I recommend it to anyone afflicted with kidney trouble.

OSCAR BOWMAN, Lebanon, Ky.

And He's at It Yet.

Mr. Cecil J. Rhodes is the fourth son of a rector of Bishops Stortford, and in his boyhood often scandalized the good people of the place by his tricks. If there was any "devilment" on foot, says one who knew him, it was 100 to 1 that young Rhodes was in it.

Relic of Puritan Times.

Several states in New England have statutes forbidding kissing in the streets. The law is an old one and obsolete.

SWAMP-ROOT. Is not recommended for everything; but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghampton, N. Y.

Pretty Even.

Clarence Grogg and Frank Pence, down in Butler township have had a feud for some time. A few days ago they got into a fight at a church social held at Mr. Rinehold's, and Pence had Grogg arrested and a Garrett justice fined him $1 and added $12.40 for extras. Then Grogg had Pence arrested and brought to Auburn yesterday, where 'Squire Walter made him pay $1 with $13.55 extras, or $1.15 more than Grogg had to pay.

PE-RU-NA'S VICTORY.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, O.

DEAR SIR:—I feel like a new woman since using your Pe-ru-na.

Your medicine has helped me so much that I can work and never feel tired out. When I first began to use your medicine I couldn't sweep my own room, run the sewing machine or lift anything, not even a chair. It even hurt me to ride or walk any distance. Now I can do all this, and I believe more, and never feel the effects of it. I feel so proud of the way it has brought me out that I tell it far and near. I can heartily recommend your medicine to any woman suffering from female disease. I know from experience that your medicine will do just what you say it will. I thank you, Doctor, a thousand times for your treatment. I shall recommend your medicine wherever I go. I know what it has done for me and I know it will do the same for others. I feel that there are thousands of other women who would, after using your treatment, as I did, be thankful. I am so glad I got your treatment. This month is the first time in my life that I can remember of having my menses without pain. Why, I can't do anything but recommend Pe-ru-na.—Miss Emma L. Bolden, Wilberforce, O.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail Dr. Hartman's special book for women, free on application, to women only. All druggists sell Pe-ru-na.

DR. JOHNSTON DEAD.

Dr. Johnston breathed his last Saturday morning at 5 o'clock, after a severe struggle covering a period of about two weeks. It is with a feeling of deep sadness that we again call the attention of the public to the death of a good and useful man, for like several who have preceded him he will be missed even outside the family circle. It has been seen from the first that the case was serious and physicians gave no hope. But the family and friends, knowing his great courage and endurance, kept hoping that he might finally rally. At times he seemed a little better, but was all the time growing weaker. Even last night, although reported weaker in the afternoon, when it was found that he had taken some nourishment there was a ray of hope that a change for the better might be coming; but this hope was not realized, and at about 5 o'clock this morning the end came. The funeral will be at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the home, and interment in Evergreen. The sympathy of the entire community will be with the bereaved wife, son and daughter, who have all been constantly at his bedside since his condition became serious.

Dr. Johnston was born in Wayne county, Ohio, about 63 years ago. About thirty years ago he located at Waterloo and about 15 years ago in Auburn. He was a veteran of the rebellion and rose to the rank of lieutenant. Beside his grief-stricken wife his two children, Mrs. C. A. Pearson of Chicago and Dr. M. W. Johnston of Garrett, survive him. The services will be by Rev. Henry Arlen, under the auspices of the Odd Fellows and G. A. R.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give her no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidney and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up strength. Only 50c. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist. Guaranteed.

A. Wheelock & Company.

We are in receipt of the first number of the Blade, a paper published in Burkesville, Va. It is, we believe, the first paper published in that town, although it is nearly as large as Auburn. This is the place where Alpheus Wheelock is going to locate and go into business. Readers of the COURIER will remember that a few weeks since we made a note of the fact that Mr. Wheelock had been awarded the contract for building several bridges in that section. We also saw a letter in which it was stated that arrangements were nearly perfected for a new stock company that had received encouragement from the men who were booming the town. It appears by the following item in the first issue of the Blade that the matter is settled. The Blade says:

Work has practically begun on the steel plant of A. Wheelock & Co. They will manufacture bridge material and agricultural implements, and also contract to build bridges anywhere in Virginia.

This will open up a line of business that ought to prosper in that section. Material, both coal and iron, may be had in abundance and so convenient that it will be cheap. No plant of this kind is very near, and they will have plenty of capital. But the best part of it is that there so many bridges to be constructed all over the state, for as the country is improved new roads will be made and bridges needed. The old plan of fording streams will not do for the northern people who are now going that way. In a recent talk with Mr. Wheelock he was very enthusiastic over the business outlook.

An Aerial Exhibition.

Those who were fortunate enough to be in the vicinity of Keeran sisters' residence about seven o'clock last evening, witnessed one of the finest out door entertainments of the season.

Mr. Squires, manager of the Eckhart carriage works, is an expert in flying kites. The one sent up last night, was pulling several hundred feet of cord and posing to the admiration of a crowd of spectators, when by some unusual atmospheric current it performed several feats of high diving. As the crowd applauded, it seemed to become instinct with life, and varied the performance, finally descending in a perfect succession of perpendicular circles and was only stopped by the telephone wires obstructing the way. The high school students of Professor Brown, who were in the company, regard this as the most perfect illustration possible of recent lessons on air currents and whirlwinds.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

The Dispatch Sold.

We Thursday spoke again of the presence of L. H. Higley and M. E. Smith of Butler here on business matters. We had long known that a move was on foot to sell the Dispatch to these gentlemen, but we said nothing about it, as it was a business matter. This morning's Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette contains a notice of the change, so that we presume it is now public property. M. E. Smith was for some time publisher of the Butler Record, but sold out to Mr. Higley. Now they are to be joint owners of the Dispatch. Mr. Smith, who is a single man, will stay here and have immediate charge of the business, while Mr. Higley will remain at Butler in charge of the Record. We presume both papers will be owned and managed jointly. Both proprietors have had a good deal of newspaper experience, and ought to make the paper a success. If they do they should make up their minds to hang onto it. The paper has changed hands on an average of about every two years, and that will injure any paper. We hope the new men will do better.

To Make Life Happy.

Sweet music appeals to the heart and soul and lightens many of life's burdens. If you have ever heard the sweet-toned Steger Piano you will appreciate this. To reach the highest standard of excellence has always been the aim in the manufacture of the celebrated Steger Piano. Only the best material is used, insuring great durability. Every piano fully guaranteed.

The Steger factories, thoroughly equipped with the best and most improved machinery, located at Steger, Ill., are among the largest in the West.

Intending purchasers will find it profitable to write for a full descriptive catalogue, which will be mailed free upon application. STEGER & Co., (Established 1879.) Chicago, Ill.

Moffett's Feed Barn.

R. F. Moffett has made extensive improvements at his feed barn on South Cedar street, the one formerly owned by Wm. Little. He has slicked it up, filled in gravel, and recently he had city water piped in, so as to secure the healthiest and best water for the horses of his customers. It will pay farmers to patronize him when they drive to town.

Mississippi Women.

At the convention of the Mississippi Woman Suffragists, recently held in Clarksdale, the following was adopted: Resolved, That this association extend congratulations to the women of Louisiana on their recent enfranchisement, which, while limited is, we feel assured, but an earnest of the better things they may confidently expect at the hands of their legislators.

She Would Have Known.

Mrs. Bellefield—"I was so surprised last night to see several shooting stars." Mr. Bellefield—"Didn't you know the sky was loaded?"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

ALL WOMEN AGREE.

A druggist in Macon, Ga., says: "I have sold a large quantity of Mother's Friend, and have never known an instance where it has failed to produce the good results claimed for it. All women agree that it makes labor shorter and less painful."

Mother's Friend

is not a chance remedy. Its good effects are readily experienced by all expectant mothers who use it. Years ago it passed the experimental stage. While it always shortens labor and lessens the pains of delivery, it is also of the greatest benefit during the earlier months of pregnancy. Morning sickness and nervousness are readily overcome, and the liniment relaxes the strained muscles, permitting them to expand without causing distress. Mother's Friend gives great recuperative power to the mother, and her recovery is sure and rapid. Danger from rising and swelled breasts is done away with completely.

Sold by druggists for $1 a bottle.
THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.
ATLANTA, GA.
Send for our free illustrated book for expectant mothers.

OBITUARY.

Benjamin Bower was born Feb. 24, 1812, in Strausburg, Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, and died at Fairfield Center, DeKalb county, Indiana, June 10, 1899, aged 87 years, 3 months and 16 days. In 1838 he went to Millersburg, Holmes county, Ohio, and engaged in the mercantile business, and on June 24, 1839, was married to Ellen L. V. Henry of that place. To them were born eleven children, seven sons and four daughters. In the fall of 1860 they moved to Indiana, and located on a farm just south of Fairfield Center. In the spring of 1864 they moved to Wayne township, Noble county, near Kendallville, and resided on a farm until 1895, when he returned to Fairfield Center, where he died. He had been a member of the Presbyterian church for over sixty years and left very bright evidence of a blessed immortality. In all his business transactions he was strictly honest and trustworthy. He had a peculiar family record, his grandfather had eleven children, his father had eleven children and he had eleven children, three of whom preceded him to the spirit world, one son and two daughters. He leaves a sorrowing wife, eight children, eighteen grandchildren and six great-grandchildren to mourn his departure. His funeral was held at the Fairfield Center church, conducted by Rev. Campbell and Rev. Mellinger both of Corunna, and his interment was in the beautiful cemetery near his late home.

Comes to Auburn.

The COURIER recently noted the fact that a young attorney from Wolcottville was here looking for a location. The following from the Wolcottville Herald explains it more fully:

Charles S. Smith will commence the practice of law at Auburn, and has secured a very suitable suite of office rooms in that city. Mr. Smith recently graduated from the law school at Indianapolis and launches his legal craft under favorable circumstances. He is very studious and being a young man of good habits, we bespeak for him success.

It appears that Mr. Smith secured the rooms over Nebelung's Bazar, so long occupied by Judge Hartman, and they are now being put in fine condition so that they will make him a neat and attractive office. The location is an excellent one, and we hear Mr. Smith well spoken of. Mr. Wildman, who was with him the day we met him, is his father-in-law and the proprietor of the bank at Wolcottville, known as Wildman's Exchange bank.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Big Convention Hall.

Kansas City, Mo., has just completed a hall for convention purposes at a cost of $200,000. It is strictly and solely a convention hall and is not excelled in this country for that purpose. Its acoustic properties are equal to that of the Mormon temple at Salt Lake. The dropping of a pin can be heard from one end to the other. It will comfortably seat 15,000 people, and every person in the hall can see every other person there.

OBITUARY

Delila Topper was born October 3, 1825, and departed this life July 5, 1899, aged 73 years, 9 months and 2 days. She united with the Lutheran church at the age of fifteen, but afterwards joined the Disciple church in which she remained until death. Though prevented by illness from attending church, she trusted in God that He would make all things well. She leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, one son, twelve grandchildren, thirteen great-grandchildren, two sisters, one brother and a host of other friends.

The funeral services were held at Hopewell church, Thursday, July 6, Rev. W. L. Meese preaching the sermon from Rev. 14:13, a text selected for this occasion about two years ago by Mrs. Topper. Interment at Woodlawn

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

1899. JULY. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
						1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31

N. M. 7th. F. Q. 15th. F. M. 22nd. L. Q. 29th.

EVENTS OF INTEREST

THAT OCCURRED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Tersely Told Telegraph Tales in Brief Paragraphs—Many Casualties—A Few Crimes—Some Fires—Political and Religious News.

A SPARTAN BAND.

The Heroes of the Long Defense of Baler Released.

Manila special: The Spanish commissioners who went to Tarlac for a conference with Aguinaldo regarding the surrender of the Spanish prisoners in the hands of the Filipinos, has returned here. The release of all the prisoners has been arranged for.

The commissioners, with the remnant of the Spanish garrison of Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, and a number of civilian prisoners, were escorted by Filipino soldiers from Tarlac to the American outposts at San Fernando, and came to Manila by train.

The heroes of the long defense of Baler, where the Spaniards resisted an insurgent siege for more than a year, formed a picturesque band. Lieut. Martin, the only surviving officer, marched them through the streets. There are only twenty-two and most of them are mere boys, in faded blue cotton uniforms and red shirts. They are barefooted.

They tell a remarkable story. It appears that the Captain several times proposed to surrender, but the soldiers refused. Finally some months ago he tried to raised a white flag. Thereupon Lieut. Martin killed him with his own sword.

Hundreds Are in Peril.

A special from Fort Worth, Texas, says: A telephone message from a deputy sheriff of Calvert, says that fully 200 lives have been lost by flood within a radius of thirty miles of Sealey.

Thursday night nearly 100 were drowned in the vicinity of "The Mount," a small piece of high land in old San Felipe, to which hundreds of negroes fled from the Brazos bottoms, taking their horses and cattle. The waters have gradually encroached upon them until about half an acre of space remains, and this the water probably will sweep before long. There 300 negroes are huddled, with death staring them in the face.

Turn-Down for Sampson.

The Acting Comptroller of the Treasury has rendered a decision that Rear Admiral Sampson is not entitled to the pay of that grade from August 10, 1898, when he was commissioned by the President, to March 4 last. The Comptroller holds that the advancement in numbers under section 1506 does not create a vacancy from the time when the President decides to recommend such advancement, nor is any vacancy created prior to the President's recommendation.

Cattle Killed in Hailstorm.

Ainsworth (Neb.) special: A furious hail and wind storm passed over this part of the country recently. Hailstones measuring ten inches in circumference fell, breaking every window glass and sash on the east side of the buildings. Hogs, cattle and horses have been killed and many have their eyes knocked out. All kinds of crops are beaten into the ground and were completely destroyed where the hail fell. It is feared that some lives are lost.

Eight Lives Lost.

St. Paul special: Eight lives are reported lost at Crookston, Minn., and much damage done all through the Red River valley by the storm. The only report thus far has been received from St. Cloud, having reached that point by train. The railroads have no details of the storm damage and the same is true of the telegraph companies. The storm-swept districts are thinly settled and reports are meager.

Ready for Recruits.

The President has appointed Major Edmund Rice, Third Infantry, Colonel of the first regiment to be organized under the law calling out volunteers. This regiment will be known as the Twenty-sixth Infantry, the President having authorized the recruiting of ten regiments of infantry numbering from twenty-sixth to thirty-fifth. Active recruiting will probably begin at once.

Run Down by an Engine.

Pittsburgh special: A shifting engine on the Pittsburgh Junction Railroad ran down a pleasure party of colored people in Shenley Park. James Grubb of Columbus, Ohio, aged 26 years, was killed. Lucy Brown, aged 22 years, and Mattie Meyers, aged 33 years, were fatally injured.

River Steamers Stranded.

Evansville (Ind.) special: The steamers John K. Speed and the State of Kansas and the tow boats Alice Brown and Smoky City are aground at Fort Ferry, practically obstructing the channel. Capt. Hyatt of the Smoky City, says that unless the river rises the boats may stick there all summer.

Insurrection in San Domingo.

Another revolt is reported in San Domingo. Juan Jiminez is said to be the head of the uprising, which occurred in Monte Cristo. The population are terror stricken. The San Domingo Government is preparing to suppress the revolt. Jiminez led the revolt in 1898, which failed.

Worse Than War.

Ten new cases of yellow fever and seven deaths were reported at Santiago, Thursday. All the victims of the disease were soldiers except one, an American blacksmith.

Bullet Wound Proves Fatal.

Albert Clements is dead at Williamstown, Ohio, from a bullet wound suffered in an affray at Sherman four weeks ago. Blood poisoning set in. James Tapp is held in $5,000 to answer for the shooting, which has resulted in two deaths. Clements was an innocent bystander.

Bridge Jump Ends in Death.

Otto Naegele jumped to his death from the center of the Brooklyn bridge. The jump was not made with suicidal intent, according to Gustav Myers, his friend. Naegele's object was to secure the fame, glory and wealth which are erroneously supposed to come to bridge jumpers.

OUTLOOK INSPIRES CONFIDENCE.

More Business Done Thus Far in 1899 than Ever Before.

Bradstreet's says: "Though seasonably quieter in many lines, the strength of the general business situation remains apparently unabated, and the half year closes with the commercial and financial community contemplating very satisfactory returns in the recent past and manifesting a tone of cheerful confidence regarding the outlook for the last half of 1899. The volume of business done the first half of 1899 will certainly rank higher than the best hitherto experienced, and the notable rise in prices which was such a feature of the last spring has done much to reconcile traders to the admittedly small margins of profits which modern business operations tend toward making permanent. Touching this matter it might be added that staple prices to-day are in a majority of instances well above quotations ruling for some years past, the general level, in fact, being the highest since early in 1893. Wheat, including flour, shipments for the week aggregate 3,263,998 bushels, against 3,746,718 bushels last week. Corn exports for the week aggregate 4,482,116 bushels, against 2,872,432 bushels last week."

RESCUES HIS STOLEN FAMILY.

Father Recovers His Four Children from Masked Kidnapers.

George L. Fry of Osakis, Minn., has returned from North Dakota, where he rescued four of his children who had been carried off by kidnapers. Six masked men had stolen the children and were on their way to Canada, when Mr. Fry overtook them, and presenting his revolver, demanded his children. The children, on recognizing their father, screamed for joy, and immediately ran to him for protection, and the kidnapers fled for their lives. The men are unknown, but an effort will be made to discover them and punish them as they deserve. Mr. Fry is a well-to-do business man, and a money ransom is supposed to have been the object of stealing the children, three little girls under 10 years of age and one little boy 4 years old.

RIOT AT OMAHA EXPOSITION.

Soldiers Get Into a Row and Try to Lynch a Bartender.

Fifty discharged soldiers, Nebraska volunteers, who participated in the opening exercises of the Omaha exposition, became disorderly in an exposition beer restaurant on the Midway, and when the bartender ordered a negro porter, Tennie Elliott by name, to clear the place they attacked him, one soldier hitting him in the face. Elliott retaliated by throwing beer bottles and glasses, hitting one soldier in the face and laying his cheek open. A free fight followed, during which Elliott rushed out and down the Midway with the soldiers following, shouting, "Hang him!" "Hang him!" The negro rushed to the exposition jail and begged to be locked up, which request was complied with. The soldiers tried to break into the jail, but finally went away.

BOY KIDNAPED AND MURDERED.

Pearl Evans of Kokomo Killed in the Interest of Criminals.

Pearl Evans, the 16-year-old son of William Evans, a prominent stock buyer of Kokomo, Ind., who disappeared mysteriously several days ago, was probably kidnaped and murdered. A body believed to be that of young Evans was found in the woods fifteen miles south of there. It was carried there by two men who were seen by the family of Ren Orem. A girl in a cherry tree saw the body in the bottom of the wagon bed. Young Evans had been called to appear before the grand jury. He is supposed to have been killed in the interest of persons accused of a crime.

NO LONGER A DIVORCE MECCA.

North Dakota Law Requiring a Year's Residence in Effect.

North Dakota as a divorce Mecca is a thing of the past. Beginning July 1 a year's residence is necessary in all cases. There was a grand rush there during the last days of March from all points in the East to establish residence and take advantage of the ninety-day law. All those who had been there the necessary ninety days prior to July 1 were accorded the same privileges as though there had been no change in the law.

NEGRO MINERS SHOT DOWN.

Two Killed, Twenty Wounded Trying to Reach Fredonia Mines.

A special from Carbondale, Ill., says: "Word has been received that the colored men of Pana, Ill., who went to the Williamson County coal field, received an exceedingly warm reception as they were attempting to reach the mines at Fredonia. When nearing the mines they were met with a fusillade of shots, resulting in the killing of two persons and the wounding of twenty men.

Drowned While in a Quarry.

William Paul, James Collins and Meinert Lewis, colored, with Ida Pratt, a white woman, got into a fight with Fred Lawson and his wife while the entire party was in rowboats on the Maumee river at Toledo. Lawson tipped over one of the boats and Meinert Lewis was drowned.

Fierce Flames at Memphis.

A fire broke out in the establishment of the Memphis Paper Company, Memphis, Tenn., and before it was subdued had caused the loss of one life, the fatal injury of ex-Fire Chief Cleary and the serious injury of Assistant Fire Chief James Ryan, besides a property loss of about $450,000.

Negro Miners Burn Union City, Ill.

Union City, Ill., a settlement built by the miners' union on land adjoining the Brush mines, was set on fire by the non-union negroes in retaliation for the murder of Mrs. Carr, the woman killed at Fredonia by strikers. The town is almost a total loss.

Sangerfest Leaves a Deficit.

Although the golden jubilee Sangerfest of the North American Sangerbund was a great success at Cincinnati from a musical standpoint, the local committee finds a deficit of $55,000 with the great hall still unfinished.

Duke of Albany the Heir.

It is officially announced that the Duke of Connaught and his son, Prince Arthur, have renounced their claims to the Coburg succession in favor of the Duke of Albany, son of the late Prince Leopold of England.

Former Congressman Bankrupt.

Spencer O. Fisher of Bay City, Mich., ex-Congressman, leading Democratic politician and formerly a wealthy lumberman, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court. This action is the result of a series of misfortunes.

Quebec Town Is Wiped Out.

Gautly, a lumbering village in Wolfe County, Que., was almost wiped out by fire, fifty out of the sixty houses being destroyed, as well as a large quantity of lumber.

Pittsburg Street Car Wreck.

As a result of a street car collision at Pittsburg two persons are dead, five seriously injured and ten others more or less hurt.

Big Building Company to Quit.

Edward H. Fallows and Henry Foster have been appointed receivers for property in New York of the Metropolitan Building Company of New York City on application of Henry Lembeck of Jersey City, N. J., a stockholder, for a voluntary dissolution of the corporation. The company was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey in 1895. The liabilities are $800,000 and the nominal assets $1,000,000.

SEVEN HURT IN A FIRE.

Women Leap from Windows in Escaping from Flames.

One hundred frenzied women and twenty men rushed panic-stricken from a three-story building in Chicago to escape being burned to death. Seven women were injured leaping from the windows, and many others jumped without being hurt. The building was occupied by the Western Paper Stock Company. But for the efforts of John Gregson and James Hughes, it is probable many more of the panic-stricken women would have suffered injuries. These men procured a ladder when they saw the women leaping from the third-story window to the two-story shed adjoining the building, and placing it against the shed, managed to conduct the women down to the ground with some semblance of order. The building was burned to the bare walls.

REJECTED LOVER KILLS TWO.

W. Ludwick Shoots Bertha Whiteside and Himself in Des Moines.

At Des Moines, Iowa, William Ludwick killed Bertha Whiteside and at once committed suicide. He shot Miss Whiteside three times. She was 20 years old and Ludwick 24, when he was convicted of larceny last summer and sent to the penitentiary for a year. Miss Whiteside, who then resided with her parents at Rockwell City, broke her engagement to Ludwick. She then came to Des Moines to live at her uncle's home. Ludwick's first act upon his release from prison was to hunt for Miss Whiteside. He found her in her uncle's home, pleaded with her to marry him, and upon getting a refusal used his revolver with fatal effect.

ACRES OF LUMBER DESTROYED.

Incendiaries Blamed for a Serious Fire at Washington, D. C.

Fire, which is thought to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed the large planing mill, lumber sheds and nearly all the lumber in stock of Thomas W. Smith's yard at Washington. Many thousand feet of dry and seasoned lumber were spread out over three or four acres of ground along the river front, and as the wind was blowing at a high rate these were quickly destroyed. Loss about $50,000, partially insured.

Murdered for Their Money.

Two young storekeepers, J. M. Rogers and Clinton D. Wingfield, were murdered at Camp Verde, Ariz. Two masked men rode up to the store, one remaining on guard outside while the other dismounted, entered the store and demanded that Rogers and Wingfield throw up their hands. Before an opportunity was given them to comply he opened fire, killing both storekeepers.

Murder Ends Political Feud.

A long and bitter political feud was ended at Powhatan Court House, Va., as a result of which William M. Flannagan, a member of the State Senate, commonwealth's attorney of Powhatan County for fifteen years, was shot and killed by William M. Pilkinton, a young lawyer of Powhatan and political opponent of Flannagan.

Burned by an Explosion.

The portable blast furnace used in welding rails for the Indianapolis street car company exploded. The explosion was accompanied by a destructive pyrotechnic display, followed by a hail of molten iron that covered the street walks and buildings within a large radius. Six persons were more or less seriously burned.

Drove Away Bank Robbers.

A bold attempt was made to loot the First National Bank at Wilmington, Ill. Five robbers were concerned in the raid. They had effected an entrance to the bank, when Cashier James Withen, who lives opposite, was awakened and drove them away.

Thieves Make Rich Haul.

Burglars entered the residence of Col. L. D. Richardson, superintendent of the Hot Springs Railroad, and robbed it of diamonds and silverware valued at $1,500. The burglars in their haste dropped a diamond ring valued at $400.

Vanderbilts' Latest Deal.

The directors of the New York Central Railway have voted unanimously to lease the Boston and Albany Railroad for a term of 999 years at a guaranteed rate of 8 per cent on the stock of the latter road.

Big Lamp Plant Is Burned.

The large plant of the Beacon Light Lamp Company at New Brunswick, N. J., was destroyed by fire. The loss is about $100,000 and is partially covered by insurance.

Walk Out at Homestead.

A strike has been inaugurated at the Homestead Steel Works, Pittsburg. The discharge of fifteen men at the plant is at the bottom of the trouble.

Guilty of Wife Murder.

Emil Rollinger, the Chicago wife murderer, has been found guilty.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 2, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2, 24c to 25c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 19c; eggs, fresh, 12c to 13c; potatoes, choice new, 50c to 80c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.50; hogs, choice light, $2.75 to $4.00; sheep, common to choice, $2.50 to $4.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 74c to 75c; corn, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 29c to 30c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $3.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 73c to 75c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2, 27c to 28c; rye, No. 2, 58c to 60c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 71c to 73c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 34c to 36c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 27c to 29c; rye, No. 2, 64c to 66c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2, 78c to 80c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 35c to 36c; oats, No. 2 white, 30c to 31c; rye, 58c to 60c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 74c to 76c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 35c to 36c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 25c to 26c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c; clover seed, new, $3.90 to $4.00.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 73c to 74c; corn, No. 3, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 26c to 29c; rye, No. 1, 59c to 61c; barley, No. 2, 42c to 43c; pork, mess, $8.00 to $8.50.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $4.50; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.50; lambs, common to extra, $4.50 to $7.25.

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 80c to 82c; corn, No. 2, 40c to 41c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; butter, creamery, 15c to 19c; eggs, Western, 14c to 16c.

MANY ARE STARVING.

FEARFUL CONDITIONS CAUSED BY TEXAS FLOODS.

People of the Brazos Valley Face Death by Famine and Flood—Fully Three Hundred Negroes are Known to Have Perished.

The total number of lives known to have been lost in the Brazos and Colorado river floods, that are spread over a great area of central and southern Texas, is fully 300. There are unauthenticated reports of many more cases of drowning. Nearly all of the victims were negroes, who refused to heed the warning of the impending overflow and seek higher ground.

In Burleson County a party of twenty-two water-bound negro men, women and children were rescued from tree tops, where they had been stationed for two days. They were in a famished condition. The water is subsiding along the upper source of the Brazos, but is still rising near the gulf. It is now many feet above the highest water mark ever known. In Waller County there is great destitution among the sufferers and appeals have been sent to the mayors of all the larger cities of the State for aid in the way of clothing and food. Through railroad traffic on all the principal roads of the State is still suspended. Gov. Sayers received a telegram signed by a committee of citizens of Fulshear, Fort Bend County, saying that thousands of people in that county are starving and appealing for immediate aid.

Twenty-two counties are submerged to a greater or less extent, and thousands of acres of cotton lands are under water. The loss of cotton yield is estimated at from 15,000 to 30,000 bales in each county, entailing a monetary loss of fully $8,000,000. It is estimated that the damage to other property, including loss of live stock, will approximate $7,000,000, making a total due to the floods of $15,000,000.

Terrible stories of destitution and distress, of hunger and death, to come in from the flood-swept belt. In the Brazos river bottom near Brookshire, a station on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway, thirty-eight miles from Houston, comes an appalling account. The meager dispatches received from there state that in the Brazos bottom men, women and children are lodged in trees and are dying from hunger and exhaustion. Hundreds of people, mostly negroes, are the victims. Around Brookshire people are huddled like sheep on little knolls and in other places of temporary safety.

A report received at Fort Worth by telephone from south Texas flood points gives additional appalling accounts of the disaster fraught by the unprecedented flooding of the Brazos river. Fully 200 lives have been lost near Sealey, at a point called The Mound. The spot is a small upland entirely surrounded by the raging waters, extending three or four miles in all directions. On this spot were congregated 300 negroes. The waters seemed to be closing in on them, with no avenue of escape. On another small patch of ground, out in the river, near Brookshire, was another bunch of 400 negroes, who were in danger of being swept away. The situation, the dispatches say, is frightful and people are panic-stricken and unable to lend the unfortunate ones succor of any kind. From indications the loss of life will reach 500, unless imprisoned negroes are given assistance.

Reports received from Calvert and Brookshire, 100 miles down the river from Calvert, portray a fearful state of desolation and suffering, particularly among the plantation negroes hemmed in by the raging torrents. The river is seven feet higher than ever before, and the lashing, leaping waters cover an expanse of more than five miles. Plantations along the river, near Hearne, are all under water and crops practically ruined. It has rained continuously for eight days throughout the flooded districts, the greatest rainfall since 1842, when a similar disaster befell the people along the Brazos river and hundreds were drowned.

The War Department has granted the request of the Governor of Texas for aid for flood sufferers. Such Government boats as are available will be placed at the disposition of the Governor, and the rations asked will be issued at once.

Gen. Wheeler of Alabama entered West Point from New York.

Emerson's Essays are Queen Victoria's favorite reading nowadays.

Lord Salisbury never walks, even the shortest distance, when he can avoid it.

John M. Ward, once famous as a baseball player, is winning laurels on the golf links.

For seventy years Roswell Beardsley has been postmaster at North Lansing, N. Y.

Jonas Brooks of McPherson, Kan., walked thirty-seven miles to Salina to attend a circus.

Ambassador Choate's son acts as his private secretary. He has been out of college two years.

G. L. Watson, designer of the famous English yachts, has never owned even a rowboat of his own.

Mrs. Li Hung Chang has a more extensive wardrobe than any other woman. Her dresses number 3,000.

Mrs. George Gould's children have a head nurse, two assistants, two governesses, two grooms and two footboys to minister to their wants.

Augustus J. C. Hare has a room furnished entirely with articles formerly the property of Pope Pius IX.

Three times Sarah Bernhardt has been on the verge of bankruptcy, but friends have come to her rescue.

Sir Edwin Arnold says that he can do his best work when there is plenty of noise in the room where he is writing.

When Dr. S. Weir Mitchell began to write poems his friends said it would injure his reputation as a physician.

Lord Rothschild confines his reading to the London Times. He has read only one novel, Beaconsfield's "Young Duke."

Paderewski is a farmer and knows a good deal about horticulture, but his specialty is stock, his favorites being hogs.

Secretary Hollis of the American commission to the peace conference can write equally well with either of his hands.

Canon Farrar knows the gospels by heart and can recite them from the first verse of Matthew to the last of John.

Enemies of C. D. Walker, a Kansas candidate for Congress, claim that he wears a plum-colored silk dressing gown.

Henry C. Frick, head of the new Carnegie syndicate, made his fortune by an early appreciation of the possibilities of the coke industry.

TO RAISE TEN REGIMENTS.

Enlistment of Volunteers for Service in the Philippines Is Ordered.

The order for the enlistment of ten new regiments of infantry was issued Thursday by the Secretary of War. It is the intention of the President to raise ten regiments of volunteers besides filling up all the vacancies existing in the regular army now at Manila.

Two of the volunteer regiments have already been organized at Manila, and of the remaining eight one will rendezvous and be drilled at Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y., two at Camp Meade, Pa., one at Columbus Barracks, one at Fort Thomas, Ky., one at Fort Sheridan, Ill., one at Leavenworth, Kan., one at San Antonio, Texas, and one at Vancouver Barracks.

Regular army officers who commanded volunteer regiments in the war with Spain will be assigned to command the nine volunteer regiments, and these officers will be directed to proceed immediately with their captains to the post at which their respective regiments will be recruited and drilled and take measures to enlist men in all parts of the country without reference to the regular recruiting stations. By this means the War Department expects that by August all the men necessary to form the regiments will have been obtained and that by the following month they will be in shape to sail for their destination.

The total number of volunteers who will be enlisted will be 13,781—11,781 for the nine regiments to be organized in this country and 2,000 in Manila. Each regiment will leave fifty officers, so that the regimental strength will be 1,350 men. Some slight changes have been made in the recruiting instructions, which are intended to be broad enough to cover the enlistment of both regulars and volunteers.

GREED OF CANADA.

Again Upsets Negotiations for Settlement of Boundary Dispute.

Late developments in the efforts of this Government to effect a temporary settlement of the Alaska boundary dispute have demonstrated the futility of hoping to accomplish anything by the means usually employed when diplomatic questions are concerned.

The latest evidence of the greed of the Canadians is contained in their claim to the Porcupine district, and their demand that it shall be recognized in the modus vivendi as Canadian territory. This preposterous claim affects the rights of over 2,000 American miners. It has shown the President and Secretary Hay that conciliation and concession are lost upon the Canadians; that the time has come for the American Government to stand against further greed.

The instructions to Ambassador Choate have been very positive regarding the stand he is to maintain. He has been directed to notify Great Britain that the United States cannot entertain the most recent proposition for a temporary Alaskan boundary. He has been told to say that, if the proposition is insisted upon, this Government cannot continue negotiations. The position of the United States is almost an ultimatum.

ANXIOUS TO QUIT.

Aguinaldo Realizes that His Fight Against America Is Hopeless.

A San Francisco dispatch says that in the face of all the Filipino-American "news" that is being received from Manila concerning the invincible rebel chief, Aguinaldo, there comes the information from an altogether unprejudiced source that the leader of the insurgents in the Philippines has tired of the fight, and that his army consists of a lot of bloodthirsty bandits who are in holy fear of American bullets.

A copy of the Japanese Times was secured from the steamer Nippon Maru, and in it is an account of the arrival at Yokohama of two Spanish priests who lately escaped from the insurgent camps. One of the fathers, who is described as a man of splendid education, a student of many languages and an authority on island affairs, stated that the power of Aguinaldo will be broken immediately on the arrival of American troops to garrison towns that are taken.

GOOD CORN CROP REPORTED.

Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri Send Encouraging News.

The Corn Belt in its monthly crop report says that the corn outlook is good.

"Nebraska—Sixty-seven reports out of the 323 received say the stand of corn is excellent, 214 say it is good, 18 that it is fair, 4 that it is poor. This indicates an excellent stand.

"Iowa—The present condition of the crop as it stands is by 14 reports called excellent, 50 say it is good, 14 that it is fair, 2 that it is poor.

"Missouri—Reports from 29 counties in the northern one-fourth of the State. Four reports say the stand is excellent, 40 that it is good, 18 that it is fair, 2 that it is poor."

FAMOUS CASE IS DECIDED.

Wisconsin Supreme Court Delivers an Important Decision.

An opinion that will stand as an important legal precedent in the legislation of Wisconsin was made by the Wisconsin Supreme Court in deciding the famous Plankinton Bank case in favor of the creditors.

The terms of the alternative writ of mandamus are made peremptory, and, while there are no hard words, in the Supreme Court's opinion every prayer by the creditors is granted and Judge Johnson's famous order of May 9 confirming the report of William Plankinton up to July 1, 1898, is declared to be void at law and of absolutely no effect.

WILL FIGHT THE STEEL TRUST.

Large and Strong Company Is Formed at St. Louis.

A company has been formed at St. Louis to build the largest steel plant in the West, which, it is understood, will be prepared to fight the trust. The capitalization will be $500,000, to be increased in the near future.

Sparks from the Wires.

Postoffice, Congers City, N. Y., robbed of $300.

England orders a battalion of fusileers to the cape.

Fifteen miners reported drowned, Galston, Eng.

Germany will pay $4,187,750 for the Carolines.

Silver workers, Niagara, returned to work.

Robert Love, Trimble, Ohio, killed by Hank Kelley.

Troops in Cuba and Porto Rico may be sent to Manila.

"Malt tonic" saloons in Indian Territory have been closed.

Hiram Rogers, business man, Winchester, Ky., killed by a train.

Nelson Walters, Altoona, Pa., fell into a vat of boiling liquid. Dead.

Dominick Tauro, Niles, Ohio, died from a stab received in an Italian fight.

Schooner Benson sprung a leak, Sandusky, Ohio, and went down.

Minister Bryan at Rio Janeiro cables that Brazil wants to buy thirty miles of street car rails.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Slain for Striking a Woman—Fatal Vandalia Wreck—Walk-Out of Glass Blowers—Fire at Brownsville—The Wheat Crop Is Light This Season.

John Sage, a restaurant keeper, shot and instantly killed William Garvey, a well-known character, in the rear of his restaurant in Terre Haute. The trouble arose through Garvey, who was intoxicated, striking a young woman in the mouth. The girl complained to Sage and Garvey, who had followed her to the restaurant, commenced to hurl stones upon the roof of the building. Sage procured his pistol and after warning Garvey to desist, fired, killing him instantly. Sage has not been captured.

Engineer Killed in Freight Wreck.

Engineer Frank Crookshank was killed on the Michigan division of the Vandalia as his freight train was approaching Terre Haute. The engine struck a freight car door lying on the track and was derailed. The engine after running on the ties for five rail lengths turned over and ten cars were piled up. The engineer was crushed below the waist. When found he was apparently sitting on his seat uninjured. Fireman Hollman and Brakeman De Bolt were thrown out and badly injured.

Taxdodger's Heirs to Pay.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the Marion Circuit Court decision in the Gallup tax case, and the estate must pay in taxes the sum of $46,996.69, which William P. Gallup, president of the Meridian National Bank, should have paid. It was discovered after his death that Gallup had succeeded in dodging taxes for over twelve years.

Horses Burned to Death.

The Spotwood Hotel at Brownsville, conducted by G. W. Harvey, was totally destroyed by fire. The fire extended to the residence of Charles Douthit and Henry Campbell's residence, contents, stable and three valuable horses; the large storage house of Keller & Campbell, including contents, and the C., H. & I. depot. Loss $20,000.

Bottle Blowers Walk Out.

The blowers in the non-union bottle factory at Mill Grove notified Manager W. H. Cox that unless they received the scale of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union they would walk out. The request was denied, and the men and their helpers, numbering fifty in all, quit work, and the factory was shut down.

Light Wheat Crop.

Indianapolis grain dealers have completed their estimates of the Indiana wheat crop and report that the yield will not exceed 17,000,000 bushels. In February the estimate was 55,000,000 bushels. The yield will be the lowest in twenty years.

Within Our Borders.

Frank Mugg, 15, Lafayette, drowned while bathing.

Freight wreck near Brazil tied up traffic several hours.

In Madison County, 1,100 mortgages have been released, and but 797 recorded in a year.

Chandler coal mines, Evansville, have been bought by Anderson men. They'll be reopened.

"Old Jumbo," Hartford City, once the greatest gas producer in the country, will be revived.

Miss Maud Hupp, Elwood, fatally hurt in a runaway, while out driving with three other young persons.

Miss Effie Dooley, Daleville, and P. F. Rudy, Yorktown, went to Muncie to get married, but Effie backed out.

Destitute woman abandoned her child in a farm house near Griffin, trusting to kind-hearted farmers to care for it.

B. F. Fisher, Ohio, sent a check for $500 to the United Brethren publishing house, Huntington, just to be doing.

New Yorkers bought the Matthews lamp black factory for $32,000. They will drag it into the printing ink trust.

At Diamond, the building occupied by Cummings, his stable and outbuildings, and two large buildings belonging to Mrs. William Spears burned.

C. A. Orland, Anderson dentist, will pull teeth in Havana, where dentists are scarce. His wife, who is a stenographer, accompanies him and will take a position at $50 a week.

Peter Healy went to the Logansport jail for protection from Italian quarrymen. He shot an Italian who tried to make him drive his team over an embankment and attacked him with a shovel.

The first of the new wheat from that section was marketed at Terre Haute at 65 cents. It is from a week to ten days earlier than in former years. The grain is of excellent quality, testing sixty pounds to the bushel.

Mrs. James Platt of Union Mills gave birth to four daughters. Three have since died, but the fourth will probably live. A careful investigation of medical records fails to bring to light a similar instance—the birth of four females at one time. The occurrence is made more interesting by the fact that the mother is only 18 years old and weighs 110 pounds. The father is a laborer 26 years old.

At Shelbyville, Miss Gertrude Marks late the other night knocked for admission on the door of Daniel Barngrover, and, being admitted, fell to the floor unconscious. She remained in that condition until the next day, when she related how Virgil Anderson and William Runyon, two young men, had dragged her into an alley on a back street and poured something from a vial down her throat, but on hearing a noise fled. The men are under arrest.

At La Porte, the jury in the Calloway murder trial reported a disagreement after being out forty-six hours and was dismissed by Judge Truesdell. Calloway's second trial will take place at the September term of court.

Eight hundred employes of the Jeffersonville plant of the American Car and Foundry Company refused to go to work the other day because of the refusal of the company to pay them their wages each Saturday evening. The plant is rushed with work, but the officials locked the gates, and none of the strikers were allowed to enter the yards.

William Yarling, the young married man who with his wife mysteriously disappeared, was found wandering aimlessly about twenty miles from Shelbyville. His wife was also found and returned home. She refused to talk.

Manager Thomas of the First Avenue mine at Evansville found his powder magazine broken open on going to the mine. An investigation was made, and the stolen powder was found under a bush near the engine room. Leading to it was a partly burned fuse. The supposition is that an attempt had been made to blow up the engine room and pithead, thus effectually stopping the few men at work here.

TALKS ON ADVERTISING

Failed to Advertise.

The National Advertiser tells a story of an old bachelor who bought a pair of socks and found attached to one of them a slip of paper with these words: "I am a young lady of 20 and would like to correspond with a bachelor, with a view to matrimony." Name and address was given. The bachelor wrote, and in a few days got this letter: "Mamma was married twenty years ago. The merchant you bought those socks from evidently did not advertise, or he would have sold them long ago. Mamma handed me your letter, and said possibly I might suit you. I am 18 years old."

Advertising Develops Trade.

The merchant who knows how to develop a market has before him a direct road to success. His standing and personality are, of course, factors in the building up a trade, but the controlling agency by which he may secure a paying market for his wares is newspaper publicity. With a well-conducted establishment, amply and conveniently stocked, a tradesman who shall judiciously and regularly use the columns of a fully accredited newspaper may justly hope to realize his most sanguine expectations. The business announcements in a high-grade journal go out like trusty messengers bearing needed information to the purchasing public, whose custom, once secured, the shrewd merchant will expect to retain.

The Value of Advertising.

The value of newspaper advertising has received a number of striking illustrations in New York during the past half year. An observer notes the fact that three or four dry-goods houses that went into liquidation in the winter were the only ones of the greater department stores that never advertised in the newspapers. On the other hand, the great advertisers have all enjoyed great prosperity. One of these, which it was expected would fail, came out $600,000 ahead on the year's business. Only bold advertising carried it over the rocks which threatened.

The results of wise advertising are highly satisfactory to those who spend their money in this way. One New York firm that had a new article to put on the market last winter and spent $100,000 in newspaper advertising reported later that it was compelled to refuse to take any new business. The orders fairly swamped the house, though it had character and ample capital.

These instances of business sagacity are well worth the attention of the business world. Intelligent newspaper advertising always brings better returns than any other forms of advertising. Experience has taught all of our most successful merchants that it is necessary to keep in touch with the public, and the only practicable means is the newspaper.—Press and Printer.

BIKE CYCLOMETER WATCH.

Instrument that Records the Time as Well as the Distance Covered.

Another invention for the wheelman is the combined cyclometer and watch. It is so constructed that time and distance are both indicated on the same dial. For this purpose the cyclometer is secured to the front of the watch or is made integral therewith, and the arbor of the mile-hand of the cyclometer is made hollow to receive the arbors of the hour and minute hands of the watch, which latter arbors are made sufficiently long to extend through the arbor of the mile-hand and to project from the face or dial of the cyclometer. Thus when the hour and minute hands are in position they revolve in front of the said face or dial, which, in addition to having the cyclometer indications, is marked with divisions like the dial of an ordinary watch to indicate time.

The instrument may be attached to any suitable part of the cycle, but preferably to the handlebar, so that it can be always seen clearly by the rider. The cyclometer is driven by a flexible and adjustable shaft from a starwheel near the hub of one of the bicycle wheels, which star-wheel is rotated intermittently in a well-known manner by a striking-piece on one of the spokes of the cycle wheel.

TELLS TIME AND DISTANCE.

America's First Electric Road.

The first electric railroad operated in America was constructed and first run successfully in Baltimore. This was the suburban line between the city and the village of Hampden. On Aug. 10, 1885, successful trial trips were made the cars being drawn by a Daft motor, the invention of Professor Leo Daft, of Jersey City, N. J. Three days later two Daft motors were in regular service, and with an ordinary horse car attached, filled with passengers, made a round trip of four miles in less than twenty-five minutes. A third rail was placed between the car tracks.

An Unpleasant Dream.

A New York man dreamed he was attacked by burglars and that he defended himself valiantly, but received wounds from his assailants. He awakened suddenly to discover that he had slashed himself with a knife, which he had seized while asleep to defend himself with.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

1899. JULY. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
•	•	•	•	•	•	1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31	•	•	•	•	•

N. M. 7th. F. Q. 15th. F. M. 22nd. L. Q. 29th.

EVENTS OF INTEREST

THAT OCCURRED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Tersely Told Telegraph Tales in Brief Paragraphs—Many Casualties—A Few Crimes—Some Fires—Political and Religious News.

A SPARTAN BAND.

The Heroes of the Long Defense of Baler Released.

Manila special: The Spanish commissioners who went to Tarlac for a conference with Aguinaldo regarding the surrender of the Spanish prisoners in the hands of the Filipinos, has returned here. The release of all the prisoners has been arranged for.

The commissioners, with the remnant of the Spanish garrison of Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, and a number of civilian prisoners, were escorted by Filipino soldiers from Tarlac to the American outposts at San Fernando, and came to Manila by train.

The heroes of the long defense of Baler, where the Spaniards resisted an insurgent siege for more than a year, formed a picturesque band. Lieut. Martin, the only surviving officer, marched them through the streets. There are only twenty-two and most of them are mere boys, in faded blue cotton uniforms and red shirts. They are barefooted.

They tell a remarkable story. It appears that the Captain several times proposed to surrender, but the soldiers refused. Finally some months ago he tried to raised a white flag. Thereupon Lieut. Martin killed him with his own sword.

Hundreds Are in Peril.

A special from Fort Worth, Texas, says: A telephone message from a deputy sheriff of Calvert, says that fully 200 lives have been lost by flood within a radius of thirty miles of Sealey.

Thursday night nearly 100 were drowned in the vicinity of "The Mount," a small piece of high land in old San Felipe, to which hundreds of negroes fled from the Brazos bottoms, taking their horses and cattle. The waters have gradually encroached upon them until about half an acre of space remains, and this the water probably will sweep before long. There 300 negroes are huddled, with death staring them in the face.

Turn-Down for Sampson.

The Acting Comptroller of the Treasury has rendered a decision that Rear Admiral Sampson is not entitled to the pay of that grade from August 10, 1898, when he was commissioned by the President, to March 4 last. The Comptroller holds that the advancement in numbers under section 1506 does not create a vacancy from the time when the President decides to recommend such advancement, nor is any vacancy created prior to the President's recommendation.

Cattle Killed in Hailstorm.

Ainsworth (Neb.) special: A furious hail and wind storm passed over this part of the country recently. Hailstones measuring ten inches in circumference fell, breaking every window glass and sash on the east side of the buildings. Hogs, cattle and horses have been killed and many have their eyes knocked out. All kinds of crops are beaten into the ground and were completely destroyed where the hail fell. It is feared that some lives are lost.

Eight Lives Lost.

St. Paul special: Eight lives are reported lost at Crookston, Minn., and much damage done all through the Red River valley by the storm. The only report thus far has been received from St. Cloud, having reached that point by train. The railroads have no details of the storm damage and the same is true of the telegraph companies. The storm-swept districts are thinly settled and reports are meager.

Ready for Recruits.

The President has appointed Major Edmund Rice, Third Infantry, Colonel of the first regiment to be organized under the law calling out volunteers. This regiment will be known as the Twenty-sixth Infantry, the President having authorized the recruiting of ten regiments of infantry numbering from twenty-sixth to thirty-fifth. Active recruiting will probably begin at once.

Run Down by an Engine.

Pittsburgh special: A shifting engine on the Pittsburgh Junction Railroad ran down a pleasure party of colored people in Shenley Park. James Grubb of Columbus, Ohio, aged 25 years, was killed. Lucy Brown, aged 22 years, and Mattie Meyers, aged 38 years, were fatally injured.

River Steamers Stranded.

Evansville (Ind.) special: The steamers John K. Speed and the State of Kansas and the tow boats Alice Brown and Smoky City are aground at Fort Ferry, practically obstructing the channel. Capt. Hyatt of the Smoky City, says that unless the river rises the boats may stick there all summer.

Insurrection in San Domingo.

Another revolt is reported in San Domingo. Juan Jiminez is said to be the head of the uprising, which occurred in Monte Cristo. The population are terror stricken. The San Domingo Government is preparing to suppress the revolt. Jiminez led the revolt in 1898, which failed.

Worse Than War.

Ten new cases of yellow fever and seven deaths were reported at Santiago, Thursday. All the victims of the disease were soldiers except one, an American blacksmith.

Bullet Wound Proves Fatal.

Albert Clements is dead at Williamstown, Ohio, from a bullet wound suffered in an affray at Sherman four weeks ago. Blood poisoning set in. James Tapp is held in $5,000 to answer for the shooting, which has resulted in two deaths. Clements was an innocent bystander.

Bridge Jump Ends in Death.

Otto Naegele jumped to his death from the center of the Brooklyn bridge. The jump was not made with suicidal intent, according to Gustav Myers, his friend. Naegele's object was to secure the fame, glory and wealth which are erroneously supposed to come to bridge jumpers.

OUTLOOK INSPIRES CONFIDENCE.

More Business Done This Far in 1899 than Ever Before.

Bradstreet's says: "Though seasonably quieter in many lines, the strength of the general business situation remains apparently unabated, and the half year closes with the commercial and financial community contemplating very satisfactory returns in the recent past and manifesting a tone of cheerful confidence regarding the outlook for the last half of 1899. The volume of business done the first half of 1899 will certainly rank higher than the best hitherto experienced, and the notable rise in prices which was such a feature of the last spring has done much to reconcile traders to the admittedly small margins of profits which modern business operations tend toward making permanent. Touching this matter it might be added that staple prices to-day are in a majority of instances well above quotations ruling for some years past, the general level, in fact, being the highest since early in 1893. Wheat, including flour, shipments for the week aggregate 3,263,998 bushels, against 3,746,718 bushels last week. Corn exports for the week aggregate 4,482,116 bushels, against 2,872,432 bushels last week."

RESCUES HIS STOLEN FAMILY.

Father Recovers His Four Children from Masked Kidnapers.

George L. Fry of Osakis, Minn., has returned from North Dakota, where he rescued four of his children who had been carried off by kidnapers. Six masked men had stolen the children and were on their way to Canada, when Mr. Fry overtook them, and presenting his revolver, demanded his children. The children, on recognizing their father, screamed for joy, and immediately ran to him for protection, and the kidnapers fled for their lives. The men are unknown, but an effort will be made to discover them and punish them as they deserve. Mr. Fry is a well-to-do business man, and a money ransom is supposed to have been the object of stealing the children, three little girls under 10 years of age and one little boy 4 years old.

RIOT AT OMAHA EXPOSITION.

Soldiers Get Into a Row and Try to Lynch a Bartender.

Fifty discharged soldiers, Nebraska volunteers, who participated in the opening exercises of the Omaha exposition, became disorderly in an exposition beer restaurant on the Midway, and when the bartender ordered a negro porter, Tennie Elliott by name, to clear the place they attacked him, one soldier hitting him in the face. Elliott retaliated by throwing beer bottles and glasses, hitting one soldier in the face and laying his cheek open. A free fight followed, during which Elliott rushed out and down the Midway with the soldiers following, shouting, "Hang him!" "Hang him!" The negro rushed to the exposition jail and begged to be locked up, which request was complied with. The soldiers tried to break into the jail, but finally went away.

BOY KIDNAPED AND MURDERED.

Pearl Evans of Kokomo Killed in the Interest of Criminals.

Pearl Evans, the 16-year-old son of William Evans, a prominent stock buyer of Kokomo, Ind., who disappeared mysteriously several days ago, was probably kidnaped and murdered. A body believed to be that of young Evans was found in the woods fifteen miles south of there. It was carried there by two men who were seen by the family of Ren Orem. A girl in a cherry tree saw the body in the bottom of the wagon bed. Young Evans had been called to appear before the grand jury. He is supposed to have been killed in the interest of persons accused of a crime.

NO LONGER A DIVORCE MECCA.

North Dakota Law Requiring a Year's Residence in Effect.

North Dakota as a divorce Mecca is a thing of the past. Beginning July 1 a year's residence is necessary in all cases. There was a grand rush there during the last days of March from all points in the East to establish residence and take advantage of the ninety-day law. All those who had been there the necessary ninety days prior to July 1 were accorded the same privileges as though there had been no change in the law.

NEGRO MINERS SHOT DOWN.

Two Killed, Twenty Wounded Trying to Reach Fredonia Mines.

A special from Carbondale, Ill., says: "Word has been received that the colored men of Pana, Ill., who went to the Williamson County coal field, received an exceedingly warm reception as they were attempting to reach the mines at Fredonia. When nearing the mines they were met with a fusillade of shots, resulting in the killing of two persons and the wounding of twenty men.

Drowned While in a Quarrel.

William Paul, James Collins and Meinert Lewis, colored, with Ida Pratt, a white woman, got into a fight with Fred Lawson and his wife while the entire party was in rowboats on the Maumee river at Toledo. Lawson tipped over one of the boats and Meinert Lewis was drowned.

Fierce Flames at Memphis.

A fire broke out in the establishment of the Memphis Paper Company, Memphis, Tenn., and before it was subdued had caused the loss of one life, the fatal injury of ex-Fire Chief Cleary and the serious injury of Assistant Fire Chief James Ryan, besides a property loss of about $450,000.

Negro Miners Burn Union City, Ill.

Union City, Ill., a settlement built by the miners' union on land adjoining the Brush mines, was set on fire by the non-union negroes in retaliation for the murder of Mrs. Carr, the woman killed at Fredonia by strikers. The town is almost a total loss.

Sangerfest Leaves a Deficit.

Although the golden jubilee Sangerfest of the North American Sangerbund was a great success at Cincinnati from a musical standpoint, the local committee finds a deficit of $55,000 with the great hall still unfinished.

Duke of Albany the Heir.

It is officially announced that the Duke of Connaught and his son, Prince Arthur, have renounced their claims to the Coburg succession in favor of the Duke of Albany, son of the late Prince Leopold of England.

Former Congressman Bankrupt.

Spencer O. Fisher of Bay City, Mich., ex-Congressman, leading Democratic politician and formerly a wealthy lumberman, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court. This action is the result of a series of misfortunes.

Quebec Town Is Wiped Out.

Gautly, a lumbering village in Wolfe County, Que., was almost wiped out by fire, fifty out of the sixty houses being destroyed, as well as a large quantity of lumber.

Pittsburg Street Car Wreck.

As a result of a street car collision at Pittsburg two persons are dead, five seriously injured and ten others more or less hurt.

Big Spelling Company to Quit.

Edward H. Fellows and Henry Foster have been appointed receivers for property in New York of the Metropolitan Building Company of New York City on application of Henry Lembeck of Jersey City, N. J., a stockholder, for a voluntary dissolution of the corporation. The company was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey in 1895. The liabilities are $800,000 and the nominal assets $1,000,000.

SEVEN HURT IN A FIRE.

Women Leap from Windows in Escaping from Flames.

One hundred frenzied women and twenty men rushed panic-stricken from a three-story building in Chicago to escape being burned to death. Seven women were injured leaping from the windows, and many others jumped without being hurt. The building was occupied by the Western Paper Stock Company. But for the efforts of John Gregson and James Hughes, it is probable many more of the panic-stricken women would have suffered injuries. These men procured a ladder when they saw the women leaping from the third-story window to the two-story shed adjoining the building, and placing it against the shed, managed to conduct the women down to the ground with some semblance of order. The building was burned to the bare walls.

REJECTED LOVER KILLS TWO.

W. Ludwick Shoots Bertha Whiteside and Himself in Des Moines.

At Des Moines, Iowa, William Ludwick killed Bertha Whiteside and at once committed suicide. He shot Miss Whiteside three times. She was 20 years old and Ludwick 24, when he was convicted of larceny last summer and sent to the penitentiary for a year. Miss Whiteside, who then resided with her parents at Rockwell City, broke her engagement to Ludwick. She then came to Des Moines to live at her uncle's home. Ludwick's first act upon his release from prison was to hunt for Miss Whiteside. He found her in her uncle's home, pleaded with her to marry him, and upon getting a refusal used his revolver with fatal effect.

ACRES OF LUMBER DESTROYED.

Incendiaries Blamed for a Serious Fire at Washington, D. C.

Fire, which is thought to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed the large planing mill, lumber sheds and nearly all the lumber in stock of Thomas W. Smith's yard at Washington. Many thousand feet of dry and seasoned lumber were spread out over three or four acres of ground along the river front, and as the wind was blowing at a high rate these were quickly destroyed. Loss about $500,000, partially insured.

Murdered for Their Money.

Two young storekeepers, J. M. Rogers and Clinton D. Wingfield, were murdered at Camp Verde, Ariz. Two masked men rode up to the store, one remaining on guard outside while the other dismounted, entered the store and demanded that Rogers and Wingfield throw up their hands. Before an opportunity was given them to comply he opened fire, killing both storekeepers.

Murder Ends Political Feud.

A long and bitter political feud was ended at Powhatan Court House, Va., as a result of which William M. Flannagan, a member of the State Senate, commonwealth's attorney of Powhatan County for fifteen years, was shot and killed by William M. Pilkinton, a young lawyer of Powhatan and political opponent of Flannagan.

Burned by an Explosion.

The portable blast furnace used in welding rails for the Indianapolis street car company exploded. The explosion was accompanied by a destructive pyrotechnic display, followed by a hail of molten iron that covered the street walks and buildings within a large radius. Six persons were more or less seriously burned.

Drove Away Bank Robbers.

A bold attempt was made to loot the First National Bank at Wilmington, Ill. Five robbers were concerned in the raid. They had effected an entrance to the bank, when Cashier James Withen, who lives opposite, was awakened and drove them away.

Thieves Make Rich Haul.

Burglars entered the residence of Col. L. D. Richardson, superintendent of the Hot Springs Railroad, and robbed it of diamonds and silverware valued at $1,500. The burglars in their haste dropped a diamond ring valued at $400.

Vanderbilts' Latest Deal.

The directors of the New York Central Railway have voted unanimously to lease the Boston and Albany Railroad for a term of 999 years at a guaranteed rate of 8 per cent on the stock of the latter road.

Big Lamp Plant Is Burned.

The large plant of the Beacon Light Lamp Company at New Brunswick, N. J., was destroyed by fire. The loss is about $100,000 and is partially covered by insurance.

Walk Out at Homestead.

A strike has been inaugurated at the Homestead Steel Works, Pittsburg. The discharge of fifteen men at the plant is at the bottom of the trouble.

Guilty of Wife Murder.

Emil Rollinger, the Chicago wife murderer, has been found guilty.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 2, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2, 24c to 25c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 19c; eggs, fresh, 12c to 13c; potatoes, choice new, 50c to 80c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.50; hogs, choice light, $2.75 to $4.00; sheep, common to choice, $2.50 to $4.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 74c to 75c; corn, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 29c to 30c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $3.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 73c to 75c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2, 27c to 28c; rye, No. 2, 58c to 60c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 71c to 73c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 34c to 36c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 27c to 29c; rye, No. 2, 64c to 66c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2, 78c to 80c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 35c to 36c; oats, No. 2 white, 30c to 31c; rye, 58c to 60c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 74c to 76c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 35c to 36c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 25c to 26c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c; clover seed, new, $3.90 to $4.00.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 73c to 74c; corn, No. 3, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 28c to 29c; rye, No. 1, 59c to 61c; barley, No. 2, 42c to 43c; pork, mess, $8.00 to $8.50.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $4.50; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.50; lambs, common to extra, $4.50 to $7.25.

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 80c to 82c; corn, No. 2, 40c to 41c; oats, No. 2 white, 32c to 33c; butter, creamery, 15c to 19c; eggs, Western, 14c to 16c.

MANY ARE STARVING.

FEARFUL CONDITIONS CAUSED BY TEXAS FLOODS.

People of the Brazos Valley Face Death by Famine and Flood—Fully Three Hundred Negroes are Known to Have Perished.

The total number of lives known to have been lost in the Brazos and Colorado river floods, that are spread over a great area of central and southern Texas, is fully 300. There are unauthenticated reports of many more cases of drowning. Nearly all of the victims were negroes, who refused to heed the warning of the impending overflow and seek higher ground.

In Burleson County a party of twenty-two water-bound negro men, women and children were rescued from tree tops, where they had been stationed for two days. They were in a famished condition. The water is subsiding along the upper source of the Brazos, but is still rising near the gulf. It is now many feet above the highest water mark ever known. In Waller County there is great destitution among the sufferers and appeals have been sent to the mayors of all the larger cities of the State for aid in the way of clothing and food. Through railroad traffic on all the principal roads of the State is still suspended. Gov. Sayers received a telegram signed by a committee of citizens of Fulshear, Fort Bend County, saying that thousands of people in that county are starving and appealing for immediate aid.

Twenty-two counties are submerged to a greater or less extent, and thousands of acres of cotton lands are under water. The loss of cotton yield is estimated at from 15,000 to 30,000 bales in each county, entailing a monetary loss of fully $8,000,000. It is estimated that the damage to other property, including loss of live stock, will approximate $7,000,000, making a total due to the floods of $15,000,000.

Terrible stories of destitution and distress, of hunger and death, to come in from the flood-swept belt. In the Brazos river bottom near Brookshire, a station on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway, thirty-eight miles from Houston, comes an appalling account. The meager dispatches received from there state that in the Brazos bottom men, women and children are lodged in trees and are dying from hunger and exhaustion. Hundreds of people, mostly negroes, are the victims. Around Brookshire people are huddled like sheep on little knolls and in other places of temporary safety.

A report received at Fort Worth by telephone from south Texas flood points gives additional appalling accounts of the disaster fraught by the unprecedented flooding of the Brazos river. Fully 200 lives have been lost near Sealey, at a point called The Mound. The spot is a small upland entirely surrounded by the raging waters, extending three or four miles in all directions. On this spot were congregated 300 negroes. The waters seemed to be closing in on them, with no avenue of escape. On another small patch of ground, out in the river, near Brookshire, was another bunch of 400 negroes, who were in danger of being swept away. The situation, the dispatches say, is frightful and people are panic-stricken and unable to lend the unfortunate ones succor of any kind. From indications the loss of life will reach 500, unless imprisoned negroes are given assistance.

Reports received from Calvert and Brookshire, 100 miles down the river from Calvert, portray a fearful state of desolation and suffering, particularly among the plantation negroes hemmed in by the raging torrents. The river is seven feet higher than ever before, and the lashing, leaping waters cover an expanse of more than five miles. Plantations along the river, near Hearne, are all under water and crops practically ruined. It has rained continuously for eight days throughout the flooded districts, the greatest rainfall since 1842, when a similar disaster befell the people along the Brazos river and hundreds were drowned.

The War Department has granted the request of the Governor of Texas for aid for flood sufferers. Such Government boats as are available will be placed at the disposition of the Governor, and the rations asked will be issued at once.

Gen. Wheeler of Alabama entered West Point from New York.

Emerson's Essays are Queen Victoria's favorite reading nowadays.

Lord Salisbury never walks, even the shortest distance, when he can avoid it.

John M. Ward, once famous as a baseball player, is winning laurels on the golf links.

For seventy years Roswell Beardsley has been postmaster at North Lansing, N. Y.

Jonas Brooks of McPherson, Kan., walked thirty-seven miles to Salina to attend a circus.

Ambassador Choate's son acts as his private secretary. He has been out of college two years.

G. L. Watson, designer of the famous English yachts, has never owned even a rowboat of his own.

Mrs. Li Hung Chang has a more extensive wardrobe than any other woman. Her dresses number 3,000.

Mrs. George Gould's children have a head nurse, two assistants, two governesses, two grooms and two footboys to minister to their wants.

Augustus J. C. Hare has a room furnished entirely with articles formerly the property of Pope Pius IX.

Three times Sarah Bernhardt has been on the verge of bankruptcy, but friends have come to her rescue.

Sir Edwin Arnold says that he can do his best work when there is plenty of noise in the room where he is writing.

When Dr. S. Weir Mitchell began to write poems his friends said it would injure his reputation as a physician.

Lord Rothschild confines his reading to the London Times. He has read only one novel, Beaconsfield's "Young Duke."

Paderewski is a farmer and knows a good deal about horticulture, but his specialty is stock, his favorites being hogs.

Secretary Hollis of the American commission to the peace conference can write equally well with either of his hands.

Canon Farrar knows the gospels by heart and can recite them from the first verse of Matthew to the last of John.

Enemies of C. D. Walker, a Kansas candidate for Congress, claim that he wears a plum-colored silk dressing gown.

Henry C. Frick, head of the new Carnegie syndicate, made his fortune by an early appreciation of the possibilities of the coke industry.

TO RAISE TEN REGIMENTS.

Enlistment of Volunteers for Service in the Philippines Is Ordered.

The order for the enlistment of ten new regiments of infantry was issued Thursday by the Secretary of War. It is the intention of the President to raise ten regiments of volunteers besides filling up all the vacancies existing in the regular army now at Manila.

Two of the volunteer regiments have already been organized at Manila, and of the remaining eight one will rendezvous and be drilled at Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y., two at Camp Meade, Pa., one at Columbus Barracks, one at Fort Thomas, Ky., one at Fort Sheridan, Ill., one at Leavenworth, Kan., one at San Antonio, Texas, and one at Vancouver Barracks.

Regular army officers who commanded volunteer regiments in the war with Spain will be assigned to command the nine volunteer regiments, and these officers will be directed to proceed immediately with their captains to the post at which their respective regiments will be recruited and drilled and take measures to enlist men in all parts of the country without reference to the regular recruiting stations. By this means the War Department expects that by August all the men necessary to form the regiments will have been obtained and that by the following month they will be in shape to sail for their destination.

The total number of volunteers who will be enlisted will be 13,781—11,781 for the nine regiments to be organized in this country and 2,000 in Manila. Each regiment will leave fifty officers, so that the regimental strength will be 1,350 men. Some slight changes have been made in the recruiting instructions, which are intended to be broad enough to cover the enlistment of both regulars and volunteers.

GREED OF CANADA.

Again Upsets Negotiations for Settlement of Boundary Dispute.

Late developments in the efforts of this Government to effect a temporary settlement of the Alaska boundary dispute have demonstrated the futility of hoping to accomplish anything by the means usually employed when diplomatic questions are concerned.

The latest evidence of the greed of the Canadians is contained in their claim to the Porcupine district, and their demand that it shall be recognized in the modus vivendi as Canadian territory. This preposterous claim affects the rights of over 2,000 American miners. It has shown the President and Secretary Hay that conciliation and concession are lost upon the Canadians; that the time has come for the American Government to stand against further greed.

The instructions to Ambassador Choate have been very positive regarding the stand he is to maintain. He has been directed to notify Great Britain that the United States cannot entertain the most recent proposition for a temporary Alaskan boundary. He has been told to say that, if the proposition is insisted upon, this Government cannot continue negotiations. The position of the United States is almost an ultimatum.

ANXIOUS TO QUIT.

Aguinaldo Realizes that His Fight Against America Is Hopeless.

A San Francisco dispatch says that in the face of all the Filipino-American "news" that is being received from Manila concerning the invincible rebel chief, Aguinaldo, there comes the information from an altogether unprejudiced source that the leader of the insurgents in the Philippines has tired of the fight, and that his army consists of a lot of bloodthirsty bandits who are in holy fear of American bullets.

A copy of the Japanese Times was secured from the steamer Nippon Maru, and in it is an account of the arrival at Yokohama of two Spanish priests who lately escaped from the insurgent camps. One of the fathers, who is described as a man of splendid education, a student of many languages and an authority on Island affairs, stated that the power of Aguinaldo will be broken immediately on the arrival of American troops to garrison towns that are taken.

GOOD CORN CROP REPORTED.

Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri Send Encouraging News.

The Corn Belt in its monthly crop report says that the corn outlook is good.

"Nebraska—Sixty-seven reports out of the 323 received say the stand of corn is excellent, 214 say it is good, 18 that it is fair, 4 that it is poor. This indicates an excellent stand.

"Iowa—The present condition of the crop as it stands is by 14 reports called excellent, 50 say it is good, 14 that it is fair, 2 that it is poor.

"Missouri—Reports from 29 counties in the northern one-fourth of the State. Four reports say the stand is excellent, 40 that it is good, 18 that it is fair, 2 that it is poor."

FAMOUS CASE IS DECIDED.

Wisconsin Supreme Court Delivers an Important Decision.

An opinion that will stand as an important legal precedent in the legislation of Wisconsin was made by the Wisconsin Supreme Court in deciding the famous Plankinton Bank case in favor of the creditors.

The terms of the alternative writ of mandamus are made peremptory, and, while there are no hard words, in the Supreme Court's opinion every prayer by the creditors is granted and Judge Johnson's famous order of May 9 confirming the report of William Plankinton up to July 1, 1898, is declared to be void at law and of absolutely no effect.

WILL FIGHT THE STEEL TRUST.

Large and Strong Company Is Formed at St. Louis.

A company has been formed at St. Louis to build the largest steel plant in the West, which, it is understood, will be prepared to fight the trust. The capitalization will be $500,000, to be increased in the near future.

Sparks from the Wires.

Postoffice, Congers City, N. Y., robbed of $300.

England orders a battalion of fusileers to the cape.

Fifteen miners reported drowned, Galston, Eng.

Germany will pay $4,187,750 for the Carolines.

Silver workers, Niagara, returned to work.

Robert Love, Trimble, Ohio, killed by Hank Kelley.

Troops in Cuba and Porto Rico may be sent to Manila.

"Malt tonic" saloons in Indian Territory have been closed.

Hiram Rogers, business man, Winchester, Ky., killed by a train.

Nelson Walters, Altoona, Pa., fell into a vat of boiling liquid. Dead.

Dominick Tauro, Niles, Ohio, died from a stab received in an Italian fight.

Schooner Benson sprung a leak, Sandusky, Ohio, and went down.

Minister Bryan at Rio Janeiro cables that Brazil wants to buy thirty miles of street car rails.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Slain for Striking a Woman—Fatal Vandalia Wreck—Walk-Out of Glass Blowers—Fire at Brownsville—The Wheat Crop Is Light This Season.

John Sage, a restaurant keeper, shot and instantly killed William Garvey, a well-known character, in the rear of his restaurant in Terre Haute. The trouble arose through Garvey, who was intoxicated, striking a young woman in the mouth. The girl complained to Sage and Garvey, who had followed her to the restaurant, commenced to hurl stones upon the roof of the building. Sage procured his pistol and after warning Garvey to desist, fired, killing him instantly. Sage has not been captured.

Engineer Killed in Freight Wreck.

Engineer Frank Crookshank was killed on the Michigan division of the Vandalia as his freight train was approaching Terre Haute. The engine struck a freight car door lying on the track and was derailed. The engine after running on the ties for five rail lengths turned over and ten cars were piled up. The engineer was crushed below the waist. When found he was apparently sitting on his seat uninjured. Fireman Hollman and Brakeman De Bolt were thrown out and badly injured.

Taxdodger's Heirs to Pay.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the Marion Circuit Court decision in the Gallup tax case, and the estate must pay in taxes the sum of $46,996.69, which William P. Gallup, president of the Meridian National Bank, should have paid. It was discovered after his death that Gallup had succeeded in dodging taxes for over twelve years.

Horses Burned to Death.

The Spotwood Hotel at Brownsville, conducted by G. W. Harvey, was totally destroyed by fire. The fire extended to the residence of Charles Douthit and Henry Campbell's residence, contents, stable and three valuable horses, the large storage house of Keller & Campbell, including contents, and the C., H. & I. depot. Loss $20,000.

Bottle Blowers Walk Out.

The blowers in the non-union bottle factory at Mill Grove notified Manager W. H. Cox that unless they received the scale of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union they would walk out. The request was denied, and the men and their helpers, numbering fifty in all, quit work, and the factory was shut down.

Light Wheat Crop.

Indianapolis grain dealers have completed their estimates of the Indiana wheat crop and report that the yield will not exceed 17,000,000 bushels. In February the estimate was 55,000,000 bushels. The yield will be the lowest in twenty years.

Within Our Borders.

Frank Mugg, 15, Lafayette, drowned while bathing.

Freight wreck near Brazil tied up traffic several hours.

In Madison County, 1,100 mortgages have been released, and but 797 recorded in a year.

Chandler coal mines, Evansville, have been bought by Anderson men. They'll be reopened.

"Old Jumbo," Hartford City, once the greatest gas producer in the country, will be revived.

Miss Maud Hupp, Elwood, fatally hurt in a runaway, while out driving with three other young persons.

Miss Effie Dooley, Daleville, and P. F. Rudy, Yorktown, went to Muncie to get married, but Effie backed out.

Destitute woman abandoned her child in a farm house near Griffin, trusting to kind-hearted farmers to care for it.

B. F. Fisher, Ohio, sent a check for $500 to the United Brethren publishing house, Huntington, just to be doing.

New Yorkers bought the Matthews lamp black factory for $32,000. They will drag it into the printing ink trust.

At Diamond, the building occupied by Cummings, his stable and outbuildings, and two large buildings belonging to Mrs. William Spears burned.

C. A. Orland, Anderson dentist, will pull teeth in Havana, where dentists are scarce. His wife, who is a stenographer, accompanies him and will take a position at $50 a week.

Peter Healy went to the Logansport jail for protection from Italian quarrymen. He shot an Italian who tried to make him drive his team over an embankment and attacked him with a shovel.

The first of the new wheat from that section was marketed at Terre Haute at 65 cents. It is from a week to ten days earlier than in former years. The grain is of excellent quality, testing sixty pounds to the bushel.

Mrs. James Platt of Union Mills gave birth to four daughters. Three have since died, but the fourth will probably live. A careful investigation of medical records fails to bring to light a similar instance—the birth of four females at one time. The occurrence is made more interesting by the fact that the mother is only 18 years old and weighs 110 pounds. The father is a laborer 26 years old.

At Shelbyville, Miss Gertrude Marks late the other night knocked for admission on the door of Daniel Barngrover, and, being admitted, fell to the floor unconscious. She remained in that condition until the next day, when she related how Virgil Anderson and William Runyon, two young men, had dragged her into an alley on a back street and poured something from a vial down her throat, but on hearing a noise fled. The men are under arrest.

At La Porte, the jury in the Calloway murder trial reported a disagreement after being out forty-six hours and was dismissed by Judge Truesdell. Calloway's second trial will take place at the September term of court.

Eight hundred employes of the Jeffersonville plant of the American Car and Foundry Company refused to go to work the other day because of the refusal of the company to pay them their wages each Saturday evening. The plant is rushed with work, but the officials locked the gates, and none of the strikers were allowed to enter the yards.

William Yarling, the young married man who with his wife mysteriously disappeared, was found wandering aimlessly about twenty miles from Shelbyville. His wife was also found and returned home. She refused to talk.

Manager Thomas of the First Avenue mine at Evansville found his powder magazine broken open on going to the mine. An investigation was made, and the stolen powder was found under a bush near the engine room. Leading to it was a partly burned fuse. The supposition is that an attempt had been made to blow up the engine room and pithead, thus effectually stopping the few men at work here.

TALKS ON ADVERTISING

Failed to Advertise.

The National Advertiser tells a story of an old bachelor who bought a pair of socks and found attached to one of them a slip of paper with these words: "I am a young lady of 20 and would like to correspond with a bachelor, with a view to matrimony." Name and address was given. The bachelor wrote, and in a few days got this letter: "Mamma was married twenty years ago. The merchant you bought those socks from evidently did not advertise, or he would have sold them long ago. Mamma handed me your letter, and said possibly I might suit you. I am 18 years old."

Advertising Develops Trade.

The merchant who knows how to develop a market has before him a direct road to success. His standing and personality are, of course, factors in the building up a trade, but the controlling agency by which he may secure a paying market for his wares is newspaper publicity. With a well-conducted establishment, amply and conveniently stocked, a tradesman who shall judiciously and regularly use the columns of a fully accredited newspaper may justly hope to realize his most sanguine expectations. The business announcements in a high-grade journal go out like trusty messengers bearing needed information to the purchasing public, whose custom, once secured, the shrewd merchant will expect to retain.

The Value of Advertising.

The value of newspaper advertising has received a number of striking illustrations in New York during the past half year. An observer notes the fact that three or four dry-goods houses that went into liquidation in the winter were the only ones of the greater department stores that never advertised in the newspapers. On the other hand, the great advertisers have all enjoyed great prosperity. One of these, which it was expected would fail, came out $600,000 ahead on the year's business. Only bold advertising carried it over the rocks which threatened.

The results of wise advertising are highly satisfactory to those who spend their money in this way. One New York firm that had a new article to put on the market last winter and spent $100,000 in newspaper advertising reported later that it was compelled to refuse to take any new business. The orders fairly swamped the house, though it had character and ample capital.

These instances of business sagacity are well worth the attention of the business world. Intelligent newspaper advertising always brings better returns than any other forms of advertising. Experience has taught all of our most successful merchants that it is necessary to keep in touch with the public, and the only practicable means is the newspaper.—Press and Printer.

BIKE CYCLOMETER WATCH.

Instrument that Records the Time as Well as the Distance Covered.

Another invention for the wheelman is the combined cyclometer and watch. It is so constructed that time and distance are both indicated on the same dial. For this purpose the cyclometer is secured to the front of the watch or is made integral therewith, and the arbor of the mile-hand of the cyclometer is made hollow to receive the arbors of the hour and minute hands of the watch, which latter arbors are made sufficiently long to extend through the arbor of the mile-hand and to project from the face or dial of the cyclometer. Thus when the hour and minute hands are in position they revolve in front of the said face or dial, which, in addition to having the cyclometer indications, is marked with divisions like the dial of an ordinary watch to indicate time.

The instrument may be attached to any suitable part of the cycle, but preferably to the handlebar, so that it can be always seen clearly by the rider. The cyclometer is driven by a flexible and adjustable shaft from a starwheel near the hub of one of the bicycle wheels, which star-wheel is rotated intermittently in a well-known manner by a striking-piece on one of the spokes of the cycle wheel.

TELLS TIME AND DISTANCE.

America's First Electric Road.

The first electric railroad operated in America was constructed and first run successfully in Baltimore. This was the suburban line between the city and the village of Hampden. On Aug. 10, 1885, successful trial trips were made the cars being drawn by a Daft motor, the invention of Professor Leo Daft, of Jersey City, N. J. Three days later two Daft motors were in regular service, and with an ordinary horse car attached, filled with passengers, made a round trip of four miles in less than twenty-five minutes. A third rail was placed between the car tracks.

An Unpleasant Dream.

A New York man dreamed he was attacked by burglars and that he defended himself valiantly, but received wounds from his assailants. He awakened suddenly to discover that he had slashed himself with a knife, which he had seized while asleep to defend himself with.

Over the Way.

Over the way of your dreams, my boy,
Are wondrous things for your eyes to see,
And wonderful paths to a world of joy
And the marvelous land of the Ought-to-Be.

There is gold in the dust that your feet will tread,
And diamonds gleam on the wayside grass,
And wreaths of laurel to grace your head
Hang waiting to crown you as you pass.

There are marble castles and broad estates,
And servants to every wish fulfill,
And armored hosts at the castle gates
Stand ready and eager to do your will.

There are living springs to renew your youth,
And dreamful shades for your least repose,
And breezes to fan you with love and truth,
And gardens that blossom like the rose.

There are wildwoods ringing with songs of birds;
There are sumptuous feasts where friends are men
To greet you with tender and honest words,
And never a theme that you might regret.

Ah! over the way of your dream it lies—
This land of the Ought-to-Be, so fair;
This paradise of the countless skies,
Where the Best and Right are everywhere.

Your childhood lives in this happy land,
And the loved ones lost in the years ago
In the glow of its glorious sunlight stand
And tenderly beckon you there, I know.

What care if your present path is bleak
And the shadows clutch at your garment's hem?
It's over the way that your soul must seek
For the light that will ever banish them.

Just over the way of your dreams, my boy,
Are wondrous things for your eyes to see,
And wonderful paths to a world of joy
And the marvelous land of the Ought-to-Be.

HOW NO. 99 WON THE RECORD

By George Ethelbert Walsh.

"I don't believe in record-breakin' runs with steamships or steam engines. It's dangerous work, and some day there'll be such big explosions on land or sea that'll cure people of this craze."

Dan Martin, the old engineer, rubbed the shining brass connecting rods of No. 99 vigorously, until they looked like a strong reflecting mirror.

"I've al'us refused to run my engines at a dangerous pace just to make a record for the company," he continued after a pause. "I have the name of bein' the most careful engineer in the West, an' I consider that a bigger honor than if I had the reputation of bein' the one that could drive his engine the fastest. The superintendent has hinted to me more 'n once that he'd like to see me break the record with old 99, but I al'us shrugged my shoulders, and told 'em that I war'n' goin' to risk the lives of the passengers for any foolish advertisin' of the road. No, sir, I wouldn't do it."

Another vigorous rub of the polished brass rod.

"Yes, No. 99 holds the record now," he added in reply to a query, "an' she will for some time, too, I guess. But I was speakin' of things before she made that big run from Ellinwood to Great Bend in Middle Kansas.

"Was I the engineer at that time? Of course I was, an' No. 99 never put in better work. I didn't believe in record smashin' then any more than now, but I had to break the record that time or lose my life and 99 too. It was a forced trip that I took, an' I don't want to make it ag'in. No, sir, once is enough for me.

"I was ordered to take No. 99 from McPherson to Great Bend one mornin' to meet the superintendent of the road, an' he wired me to hurry up a bit. He wanted to make a quick trip down to Dodge City, where there was some trouble with railroad robbers. After he finished the orders he added over the wires: 'You'll be alone, and will have a good chance to make 99 break the record.' I smiled at this, but didn't intend to push her beyond the safety point one bit. My life and reputation was just as important whether I was alone or with a whole train load of people behind me.

"I started out of McPherson on a gentle trot, so to speak, and when I was clear of everything I put on more speed. I love to ride rapidly across the country when there ain't no cars danglin' behind, an' I just let old 99 skip lively. I was goin' as fast as I thought she ought to go without runnin' any risk. It was midsummer then, and the day was pretty warm and sultry. We hardly made a breeze in our rapid flight. Jim Watson, my fireman, said he thought the air was feverish hot, an' that's just what it was. The sun seemed to glare at us like a ball of fire, and the heat appeared to be risin' from the landscape all around. There wasn't a cloud in the sky, an' it just hurt our eyes to look outside of the caboose. The long stretch of rails ahead glistened like silver.

"'We'll have a storm or somethin' before long,' Jim says as he looks at the sky. 'This heat won't last.'

"I thought so, too, but I didn't give words to my ideas. We were approachin' Lyons at a swingin' gait when a few clouds suddenly rose up in the east. They looked black in the centre, and seemed to increase in size as they approached. In a short time they were joined by others, and their looks were threatenin'. They were wind clouds, and probably the beginnin' of a bad wind storm. When we rushed through Lyons the flagman waved his hands at us and pointed toward the east.

"The clouds had now become more threatenin' than ever, and Jim muttered, 'A tornado, I'll bet.'

"'Shouldn't wonder,' was all the reply I made.

"We swept on a little faster. I thought we might be safer to get into port before the storm struck us. Then it occurred to me that we would be better off probably runnin' than standin' still. So I slackened speed a little an' watched the sky anxiously.

"Suddenly from the very middle of the black cloud somethin' seemed to extend way down to the earth. It looked as if the cloud had burst, an' was trailin' along the track right behind us. I knew that sight only too well. It was rushin' down upon us like a fiend. The sun was still shinin', but the fleecy clouds around it made it flood the landscape with a sickly glare.

"'Say, Jim, that fellow is after us,' I said as quietly as possible.

"'Yes, an' it's a reg'ler twister,'

"Now when a tornado is rushin' down upon you at the rate of eighty or ninety miles an hour you forget all about the danger there is in record-smashin'. At least I did. There was that big, ugly-lookin' cloud followin' us with a fearful noise. It was so close that we could hear the rush and roar of it. I gave one frightened glance at its terrible centre, an' then I opened the throttle of old 99. Jim began to pile coal on, and shake up the fires. We were directly in the road of the tornado, and unless it veered to one side or the other, or we could succeed in outrunnin' it, we were doomed.

"But 99 responded to my touch like a horse. She snorted and puffed away as if aware of the danger behind. The wheels revolved so fast that it seemed as if they could not keep on the track. In another moment we were speedin' along at a rate that would have made me sick at any other time. But we weren't goin' fast enough yet. The horrible cloud was still gainin' on us.

"'More coal, Jim, more coal!' I shouted. 'We must go faster.'

"Well, he knew the danger, too, an' he perspired like a porpoise as he tried to get up more steam. Faster an' faster we flew. The strain on the engine was severe, but I never thought of that. I just put on all the steam we could get. We were now holdin' our own with the tornado, but it was still a race for life or death. If anything should give way the storm would be down upon us in an instant. We were really balanced between two great dangers.

"'If we can reach Great Bend we'll be all right,' I said to Jim, as we both looked anxiously at the pursuin' cloud. 'There's a turn in the road, an' we'll get out of the path of the tornado.'

"'But we must cross the bridge first' Jim said in reply.

"'Yes, but we can't slacken our speed.'

"I knew what he was thinkin' of. The bridge across the large arm of the Arkansas was only a wooden structure then, and it was not over-strong. To rush across it at our tremendous speed might cause a catastrophe. But the bend in the road did not occur until after the bridge was crossed. Until we reached that point the road was as straight as a bee-line.

"Neither one spoke after that. We alternately watched the pursuin' tornado and the track ahead. We just held our own and had no time to spare. If we lost one minute the horrible fiend would be down upon us.

"'The bridge! the bridge is ahead!' suddenly shouted Jim, and I thought his face turned a shade paler.

"I could not believe it at first. I thought that the bridge was miles beyond, and it was hard work to realize the distance we had covered since the tornado first alarmed us.

"'Now for it,' I muttered to Jim. 'Here goes!'

"I opened the throttle. Then No. 99 gave a loud, prolonged, shrill screech, that might have been her death knell. The next instant she reached the wooden bridge, and thundered upon it like the rumblin' of thunder. The structure swayed and trembled under the weight. When we reached the middle it creaked and cracked, and seemed ready to give way at any moment. But we passed the middle safely, and the other shore was almost reached.

"'See! see!' Jim shouted.

"I looked behind and shuddered at the sight. The tornado had reached the other end of the bridge, and as if angered at the prospect of our escape the mighty wind was rippin' and tearin' up the wooden structure as if it was made of straw. We touched the other side none too soon, for the whole bridge began to sway, and then toppled over before the furious onslaught of the wind.

"But in another moment we reached the bend in the road, and rushed out of the path of the tornado. We slowed up a little then, and watched the baffled fiend hurry past us, carryin' death and destruction with it. We both gave a sigh of relief, and then turned to check the terrible speed of our iron horse.

"We brought her to a standstill at Great Bend station with difficulty. It seemed as if she hated to stop, and she puffed and panted like a living creature. On the platform stood the superintendent.

"'Why, hurrah, Martin, you've broken the record all to pieces,' he said, slappin' me on the shoulder. 'Since the agent reported you at Lyons, why, you have averaged eighty-two and a half miles. Great Scott! man, that's a wonderful run!'

"'Yes, it was, I said.

"'I was too tired and nervous to explain then. I was satisfied to think that we were home safe. It was the most wonderful run I ever made, and that's how old 99 holds the record."

Kentucky's Aged Terrapin.

A few days ago a tenant on Mr. Lou Barrickman's farm found a terrapin which is at least of age. On its back were cut in plain characters, "Joe T., 1871," then below that the date 1884, without any anitials. The first was cut by Mr. Joe Thomasson, who has been dead for several years, and it is not known who cut the second date, though it is remembered by neighbors that some one found the terrapin and let it go about that time. The animal is probably forty or fifty years old. The characters on the back are considerably spread, and it might have been of considerable age when the first were made.

GREAT SHIP TUNNEL.

STARTLING SCHEME FOR UNITING TWO OCEANS.

German Engineering Expert Proposes to Build a Canal Across the Isthmus Between North and South America—Hole Through a Mountain.

G. A. Karwiese, the German engineering expert, who was consulting engineer in the construction of the Suez Canal, now proposes to build a still more remarkable ship canal across the isthmus between North and South America.

His plan is to tunnel through a mountain range. By this plan full-rigged ships with masts reaching up 180 feet high could sail right through the mountain range four abreast. The object of such a tremendous and unheard-of undertaking as this is to make the shortest possible cut through the isthmus connecting North and South America. Some time ago this plan of Mr. Karwiese was submitted to Admiral Walker, of the Nicaragua Canal Commission. The proposed Nicaragua Canal which the United States Government has had repeated surveys made for will have to be 169 miles long. Engineer Karwiese's proposed canal would be but eleven miles long. Only one and two-thirds miles of this would be a tunnel through the mountain. The other nine miles would be simply the enlarging of existing waterways leading to the Atlantic and Pacific.

The interior of the ship tunnel could be lighted by electricity, and motor energy supplied by electrical power transformed from the tides by machines especially constructed for that purpose. Such a machine already exists and has been patented by William Bowman, of Norfolk, N. Y.

A single lock at each terminus of canal construction would absolutely control the water level between the two oceans. These locks would, of course, be necessary to prevent a flood tide on one side of the isthmus from rushing through the artificial opening between the continents. By this method navigation through the isthmus in still water and on ocean level would be practically possible. No other plan ever suggested provides for an ocean level canal.

Engineer Karwiese claims that such a canal could be built in two years for $48,000,000. The lowest estimate for the Nicaragua Canal is $188,000,000 and five years' time for construction. So great an undertaking as boring a hole through a mountain range big enough for ships to sail through would seem impossible, were it suggested by any lesser authority than Mr. Karwiese.

PROPOSED TUNNEL TO CONNECT THE TWO OCEANS.

Mr. Karwiese was consulting engineer in the designing and building of the canal through the Isthmus of Suez, and for a short time was engaged with De Lesseps in Panama. Almost at the start he became convinced that the Panama route would ultimately be abandoned, and says upon investigation he found that the existing isthmian surveys were inaccurate and in many instances merely a matter of guesswork.

Accordingly, in 1891 he began a systematic survey of the whole isthmus, which he has completed, and is now possessed of maps, soundings and other records, all convincing facts. He is, of course, familiar with the Nicaraguan region, and condemns the course there with objections similar to those actually encountered in Panama.

The proposed new route involves some features altogether novel in canal building, but it is claimed to be not only shorter, cheaper and far more practical than any, but cheaper and far more practical than any other course ever suggested. Mr. Karwiese's experience in canal building and fame as an expert, assure its consideration by the United States Government. It is probable that Mr. Karwiese will accompany on their surveys the Isthmian Canal Commission recently appointed by the President to investigate all routes, and will personally go over the ground of his work with the officers of the Government.

According to surveys and estimates furnished by Mr. Karwiese, a ship tunnel canal can be completed through the lower Isthmus of Panama, between the Gulf of Darien and the bed of the Santa Maria River. This region is known as the Aputi Valley, and is crossed diametrically by the Cardilliere range of mountains, which extends throughout the length of the isthmus, connecting the Andes of South America with the Rocky Mountain system of the Northern continent.

At their point of intersection with the Aputi Valley the Cardilliere are steep and high and almost solid rock. Mr. Karwiese is ready to demonstrate to the Canal Commission the practicability of cutting through this rock, not a canyon, but a tunnel, 180 feet high, with 58 feet added for depth of water.

This interoceanic ship tunnel would be 8,888 feet, or approximately, one and two-thirds miles long, and wide enough to allow four ships to pass abreast.

No such stupendous engineering feat has ever been attempted since the beginning of the world, but Mr. Karwiese is ready to undertake it; and there are many expert engineers who have long considered that the execution of such a project at a favorable point was entirely feasible and would furnish the most satisfactory solution of the whole interoceanic problem.

Lazy Gambling.

The laziest man in Atlanta has been discovered. There can be no doubt of it. He himself admits the corn. By occupation he is a clerk in a wholesale grocery store, and by natural predilection a sport.

Some days ago he invented a brand-new gambling scheme that beats anything yet. He places two tiny mounds of sugar on a box, both of the same size, then he proceeds to wager any friend who chances to drop in that the flies will eat up one mound before the other.

"No, there's not much profit in it," said he. "You can't tell which pile will be consumed first. I'm not personally acquainted with the sugar-eating propensities of the flies, and if I was I'd never know which flies were going to light on my pile. All sugar looks alike to flies. But the game is fun, and real exciting when they begin the home-stretch. And then the flies do all the work, and do it so cheerfully!"

And he yawned and sighed as a customer asked him the price of flour.—Atlanta Constitution.

MAN WHO CHASED GROVER.

"No Postoffice for Johnson, No Fish for Cleveland."

Hop Creek, in Tyringham, among the Berkshire hills, is a little trout stream that has become famous. Grover Cleveland, former President of the United States, chose to go fishing in Hop creek. Attired in brown canvas coat and trousers and an old slouch hat, the portly ex-commander of the American army attempted to capture a few speckled beauties in that part of the brook which runs through Farmer Johnson's pasture. He did so in defiance of a sign which read: "No Fishing or Trespassing on These Premises Will Be Allowed."

FRANK JOHNSON.

Now, when the farmers and villagers thereabouts meet each other; one of them is sure to remark: "I say, d'ye hear what happened to that fat feller fishin' on Frank Johnson's land?" And then they both chuckle until they have to beat each other on the back to keep from choking. For ex-President Cleveland was routed completely. He was chased out by irate Farmer Johnson.

The ex-President sat on the bank of the little creek, dangling his legs comfortably over the edge, oblivious of everything but the fact that trout were biting beautifully. His reveries were interrupted by a choleric voice, yelling: "Git out o' that—skedaddle now, you, er b'gosh I'm after ye with my hoe."

Mr. Cleveland looked up. He saw a big man with a red face bearing down upon him at a lively pace. He did not stop to parley. He wasted no time in offering his card. He retreated hurriedly down to his carriage, twenty yards away.

This is how it all happened. Through his wife Mr. Cleveland is kinsfolk with Richard Watson Gilder, the poet-editor of the Century magazine. Mr. Gilder has a modest little cottage at Tyringham. He had invited Mr. Cleveland to come up from Princeton, N. J., on a fishing trip. The region around Tyringham is famous among sportsmen for its trout streams and quail and partridge woods.

The ex-President had accepted the poet's invitation. The two lovers of angling had selected Hop creek, the best trout stream in that section. Hop creek is a free stream for the most part, but a few farmers have put up signs of "No trespassing." Among these was Farmer Johnson. Early in the morning Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Gilder drove down from the Riverside Hotel. It was agreed that the ex-President should start on Farmer Johnson's place and work down stream to meet the poet coming up. Mr. Cleveland had just landed a big trout when Johnson caught sight of him and proceeded to say things. The ex-President made no reply. He made tracks for safety.

"Did you know you were chasing Grover Cleveland?" some one asked Johnson after the incident had made him famous. "Wal," he replied, "I calc'late they ain't no need o' talkin'. Mebbe I did an' mebbe I didn't. But, anyhow, nobudy, big guns er little, gits to go poachin' in my trout stream."

Farmer Johnson, it is said, has a grievance. When Cleveland was President, Farmer Johnson wanted to be put in command of the Tyringham postoffice. He was kept in the ranks and never got over it.

ENGLISH LIGHTHOUSE WHICH IS OFTEN MOVED.

Owing to the encroachments of the sea, the beach between Yarmouth and Harwich, England, is slowly disappearing. So alarming has this encroachment grown in the neighborhood mentioned that it has been found necessary to remove bodily the Lowestoft Low lighthouse 250 feet farther inland. As illustrating the rapid inroads which the sea is making at this place, it may be mentioned that this is the third time the lighthouse has had to be removed farther back.

The former foundations, together with a number of cottages which adjoined it, are now mostly under water. As the lighthouse weighs 120 tons, the undertaking is one of considerable difficulty. The light was frequently quite surrounded by water, imprisoning the keepers within. So great had the inconvenience and, sometimes, positive danger grown that the Trinity Brethren finally decided to remove the structure en bloc.

The Low light was originally a frame of woodwork, and was shifted from the Denes to the beach in 1832, being superseded by the present more substantial structure in 1866. It stood parallel with the High Light, which is situated on the cliff above. By keeping the two lights in a direct line ships are enabled to pass in safety through the Stanford channel, which is about a quarter of a mile broad and lies between the Home and Barnard Sands.

BURNS LIKE COAL.

Kettle Point Beach One of the Most Remarkable Places in Canada.

One of the most remarkable places in Canada is Kettle point, on the southern shore of Lake Huron, about twelve miles from Forest. The beach is composed of a black, bituminous shale, level and smooth, divided into sections by cleavage, like blocks of ice sawn for storage. This shale is highly combustible and when broken up into fragments and set on fire may be kept burning for months. In places, indeed, it has been in fire for years, serving as an extraordinary natural beacon light to sailors far out on the lake. The great objects of interest at Kettle point, however, are the enormous "kettles," like immense cannon balls, some of which are five feet across. These calcareous concretions—several of which are to be seen scattered about—are imbedded in the strata, which they push aside as they increase in size. They radiate from a center and were doubtless formed by particles attached to a nucleus by magnetic force. The kettles too will burn like soft coal, and many of them have been removed to ornament the lawns of colleges and private houses.

KETTLE POINT REGION.

Private Property.

According to a decision of the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey, property owners need not permit telegraph poles, telephone poles and electric light poles to be placed on the highways in front of their property without due compensation. Corporations cannot set their poles in the night time or at any other time when they can take property owners unawares and thus secure a right of way. They must agree with the property owners as to the rate of compensation, or, if they cannot agree, they must go to court and have the issue adjudicated there.

Feeding Bottles in Greek Days.

Those who believe that feeding bottles for babies are the result of modern civilization are out of date. The Greek nurses used to carry with them a sponge full of honey in a small pot to stop the children from crying, and in the British museum are two Greek vases dating from 700 B. C. which are much like feeding bottles used by the Romans subsequently.

We have decided, after attending many amateur entertainments, that our favorite song has only one verse, and no chorus.

Bargain sales have parted many a wife and her husband's money.

OLD-TIME KLONDIKE DAYS.

Life of White Trappers Before Gold Was Discovered.

One of the pioneer gold seekers, Dr. Sweeney, was fortunate in meeting with Geo. W. Carmack, the discoverer of the Klondike, and from him he gathered much interesting information concerning the habits of the Indian tribes on the Yukon and the white men who long before the discovery of the treasure hidden beneath the frozen moss and gravel of the Klondike Valley lived with them and shared the hardships of their daily life.

"Some of the things that Carmack told me," said Dr. Sweeney, "were entirely new to me, and all very interesting. One of the things I have always been anxious to know was how the white men lived who hunted and trapped along the Yukon in the days when it was thousands of miles to the trading posts and civilization. Carmack explained to me.

"'We were compelled,' he said, 'to do just as the Indians did. In the summer time, besides game and fish, we ate berries, for Alaska is the home of all sorts of berries. And besides these we obtained other substitutes for the vegetables of civilization. The principal of these were grass roots, certain small bulbs or tubers, and the inside bark of various trees.

"'In the winter we ate fish, meat, and berries, which the squaws dried in the summer, and stored away. Then also the little bulbs I have mentioned came in very handily. I have forgotten now what they were called, but they, as all old Alaska men know, form the principal food of the timber squirrels of that country during the winter. It was by rifling the hoards of these little animals that we obtained our supply of the bulbs in the winter. Their hoards are always to be found in a solitary spruce tree in a thicket of stunted pines. That was the way in which we located them. The reason for this I never knew. As a substitute for bread—of course, the Indians then had no flour—we ate a species of pudding made of the blood of the game we killed, boiled with dried berries and sometimes with the little bulbs from the squirrel hoards.'

"I asked Carmack how the Indians in those days obtained salt for their meat. Every one knows that, to a white man at least, salt is a necessity, and not a mere flavoring matter. In answer Carmack told me something that was entirely new to me. He said that the Indians made it a practice not to throw away the water in which they boiled their meat, but allowed it to remain in the kettle. In course of a short time, he told me, the water or broth would become extremely salty and could then be maintained at whatever degree of saltiness deemed desirable by the addition of fresh water to replace some of the salt broth dipped out and thrown away."

A Woman Who Insured.

"Women are the most unreasonable creatures in the world," said the insurance man to his wife.

"Some women," she corrected him.

"Well, we won't quarrel about it, but let me tell you about that old lady in Slabtown, who had her house insured three weeks ago," he went on. "She had a $1,500 policy on it, about all it was worth really, and we were only getting $12 a half a year for carrying it. Last night it burned down to the ground to-day she was in to see me. She was fairly sopping in tears and angry besides.

"'I thought,' she sobbed, 'that if I had my house insured it wouldn't burn down. You told me that, I am sure.'

"'Oh, I beg your pardon, my dear lady, I couldn't have said that,' said I.

"'Yes, you did, or I never would have had it insured. 'I've been living in that house for fifty years, and it never was insured before, and it never burned down before. And it wouldn't have been insured now if you hadn't put me up to it.'

"'But I never told you that it wouldn't burn down if you had it insured.'

"'Yes, you did, too,' she insisted, 'for what is the good of insuring a house if it is going to burn down, I'd like to know?'

"'There's a good deal of good. For instance, you will get $1,500 from the insurance company, which you wouldn't have got, and you have only paid $12.50.'

"'When do I get it?' she sobbed, as if she wasn't going to get a cent.

"'Just as soon as we can get matters in shape and report the loss to the company.'

"'Well,' she said, sniffing as she went out, 'I suppose I will, but if I had known it would have burned down, just the same, I never would have had it insured, never.'"—Washington Star.

Primitive Chronology.

The most primitive method in cronology is that which enables man to orient himself in the world of time by associating particular lunations with vicissitudes of weather, with seasonal aspects of vegetation, and with the constantly changing sights and sounds of the animal world. In the calendar of the Crees, for example, we find such designations as "duck-mouth," "frog-moon," "leaf-moon," "berries-ripe-month," "buffalo-rutting moon," "leaves-entirely-changed," "leaves-to-the-trees," "fish-catching-moon," "moon-that-strikes-the-earth cold," "coldest-moon," "ice-thawing-moon," "eagles-seen-moon." So in the calendars of Central America and Mexico, the months are named variously after the arrival of birds, the blossoming of flowers, the blowing of winds, the return of mosquitoes, and the appearance of fishes. The Greeks constantly used the movements of birds to mark the seasons; the arrival of the swallow and kite were thus noted. Hesiod tells us how the cry of the crane signaled the departure of winter, while the setting of the Pleiades gave notice to the plowman when to begin his work. The Incas called Venus "the hairy," on account of the brightness of her rays, just as the Peruvians named her the "eight-hour torch" or "the twilight lamp," from the time of her shining.—Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

Great Age of Birds.

It is only possible at present to collect data from the duration of lives of birds in captivity; evidence otherwise must be very unreliable, and it is purely a matter of theory as to whether the natural possible life is greater than that under the unnatural condition of captivity. There are records of a nightingale having lived 26 years, a thrush 27, a blackbird that was still alive at 20½, a goldfinch 23, skylarks of 24 and 20. Ravens, owls and cockatoos are popularly supposed to live to a very great age, and the following records appear to be authentic: Raven, 69; gray parrot, 50 and 40; blue macaw, 64; eagle owls, 53, and one still alive at 68. Some aquatic birds appear to live to a ripe old age, for we hear of a heron of 60, goose 80, mute swan 70. It is doubtful whether any of the foregoing ages are any true guide as to the longevity of the actual families the birds represent, or, indeed, whether the possible age of one family exceeds that of another, but the records are interesting, and form a step in the ladder of investigation of this most difficult question. The coloring of a bird in perfect health and the texture of its feathers are exactly the same at 50 as at 5, and those signs that are popularly put down to age, such as bleached and faded plumage and misshapen claws or beaks, are attributed to unnatural conditions of some kind. The great tendency of life some birds possess when deprived of food is marvellous, and the following instances are given: Golden eagle, 21 days; an elder duck, 28; an albatross, 35, and a penguin, it is stated can live two months.

SILKWORMS IN IOWA.

The Experiment of An Italian at Des Moines Successful So Far.

Mark Chiesa, an Italian, is successfully raising silkworms at Des Moines, Iowa. The eggs were brought from Italy by a relative. Two years ago he made the experiment first, but the person who brought the eggs carried them in his pocket and they hatched on shipboard, so the worms had to be thrown into the sea. This time the person to whom the eggs were instrusted suspended them on a string so that they got cool air on the ocean and on the railway trains. Arriving at Des Moines, they were put into cold storage until the mulberry leaves were ready for them. Then, upon being put into a warm room, they hatched in one day.

Of the supposed 8,000 eggs from ten silk moths about 4,000 hatched, which result, Mr. Chiesa says, is better than the average in Italy. The greatest difficulty has been to find mulberry leaves for the worms. They eat about three wagonloads a day, and never stop eating for a minute, but eat all the time, day and night. They must be fed about fifteen times a day and several times during the night. The worms, in devouring the mulberry leaves, make a noise like rain on the roof. By lively hunting the food for the worms has been provided, and they are well developed and healthy, about three inches long, and are just beginning to weave their cocoons. There seems to be no reason why the industry should not succeed. Mr. Chiesa has brought a woman from Italy who has had thirty years' experience with silkworms and she says they are doing as well as any she ever saw.

The experiment is the first that is known to have been made in the West, and is certainly the first that has been successful. It has attracted as much attention as a circus in Des Moines, and the number of visitors is very large. The owner is a good-natured man and he cheerfully and proudly shows the industrious 4,000 to all who care to see them.

If they turn out as well as they promise to, Mr. Chiesa will buy a large farm, plant it to mulberry trees and go into the business of raising silkworms and producing silk on a large scale. From the experience he has had in America and Italy, where his father is a silk producer, he sees no reason why the industry should not be entirely successful in Iowa.

Picric Acid Found the Thief.

A rich American residing in the St. George's quarter of Paris, France, had been for some little time past the victim of systematic thefts. Banknotes and money not left under lock and key disappeared regularly. M. Cornette, the Commissary of Police, was informed of the robberies. He found it would be impossible to keep an effective watch on the bedroom where the thefts occurred, but he adopted a stratagem which turned out successfully. A small vial containing a mixture of picric acid and fuschine was placed in a metal case for holding gold, and a few Napoleons were placed on top. In order to get out the gold, the metal case had to be held upside down, and then, of course, the chemical preparation would run out and stain the thief's hands a bright and indelible yellow. As soon as some of the gold was missed M. Cornette summoned all the servants to his presence. The valet's fingers betrayed him. Realizing the usefulness of denying when caught yellow-handed, he confessed, and was duly locked up.

A Mustached Horse.

A coal yard at Thirteenth and Chestnut streets is the proud possessor of a big bay horse, whose chief claim to distinction lies in his possession of a remarkably well-trained blond mustache. After a hard day's work this hirsute appendage assumes the needle-like points of the French facial decoration, but in the morning it stands out fluffy and duffy, a good four inches on each side of his nose. "Fitler," as he is called, seems to feel that he is attracting attention, for he holds up his head with all the pride a virility of sixteen years can summon up. Fitler has easily won for himself the friendship of all his coworkers, and he is treated with many distinctions. It is said that the animal whinnies in terror at the sight of a pig, for fear it may prove a razor-back, but while Fitler remains with the coal yard people he need never fear the ignominy of a shave.—Philadelphia Times.

The Beginning of Quarantine.

In the fourteenth century one-fourth of the population of Europe are computed to have died of the bubonic plague, introduced from the East. The first measures to check its spread were adopted by the city of Venice, which appointed in 1348 three guardians of the public health. In 1403 Venice established a lazaret, or contagious disease hospital, on a small island adjoining the city. This was the beginning of quarantine. The word itself means "forty," and implies forty days, the period of detention imposed on vessels at this first Venetian quarantine.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....JULY 13, 1899.

DeKalb County Battalion.

HEADQUARTERS DEKALB COUNTY BATTALION, G. A. R.,
WATERLOO, Ind., July 10, 1899.

General Order No. 1.

In accordance with the motion unanimously adopted at the annual meeting of the DeKalb County Battalion held at Waterloo, Ind., August 18, 1898, I hereby direct the Battalion to assemble in annual reunion at Garrett on the 24th day of August, 1899, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and to transact such other business as may come before the battalion meeting.

The various G. A. R. posts forming the Battalion will take steps to attend in a body and be sure that you bring the auxiliaries (Woman's Relief Corps) with you. It is suggested that each organization bring with them their commissary department with rations for one day. The post at Garrett will prepare the camp ground and make all other necessary arrangements for the meeting, including the program for the entertainment of the Battalion. The program will be published later. By order of: COL. H. F. SEMBOWER, Commanding Battalion; F. C. WATERMAN, Battalion Adjutant.

Teachers' Examination.

On next Saturday, July 15, the teachers' Reading Circle examination will be held in the Auburn high school building.

The work of this examination will cover the courses of the past four years. Any person successfully passing the examination on the work of any four years will receive a diploma from the reading circle board, which will exempt him from examination in the science of education and literature for life and professional license. Also, an examination in the two reading circle books of the past year will exempt the applicant from examination in literature and science of education for county license for the next year.

H. E. COE, County Supt.

A LITTLE KNOWN FACT.

That most serious diseases originate in disorder of the kidneys. No hope of good health while the kidneys are wrong. Foley's Kidney Cure is guaranteed to make the kidneys right.

Magazine Club.

—In order to introduce the Club in this vicinity, the American Subscription Club, 194 Washington Street, Boston, Mass., will sell membership tickets for 25 cents. The conditions of this ticket entitle you to one year's subscription to any one of the following magazines; American Kitchen, Argosy, Cosmopolitian, Delineator, Demorest's Leslie's, Harper's Round Table, Household, Judge's Library, Ladies' Home Journal, Life's Comedy, McClure, Munsey; Overland, Puck's Library, Puritan.

Only a limited number of these tickets will be sold at this price; mention this paper and state magazine wanted when sending for membership ticket

Maccabee Excursion.

On Thursday, July 20, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway will sell excursion tickets to Baw Beese Park at $1. for the round trip. Special train will leave Auburn at 8:00 a. m. See small bills. Ask agents.

Excursion to Sandusky.

VIA THE B. & O. RAILROAD.

On Sunday, July 16, the B. & O will sell excursion tickets to Sandusky at the rate of $1 for the round trip. Train leaves Auburn Junction at 4:3 a. m.

WHEELMEN

should never be without a box of Beggs' German Salve; it gives instant relief. Heals sores, cuts, bruises and chafing. H. B. McCord's drug store.

Notice to Contractors.

Notice is hereby given that on Friday, the 4th day of August, 1899, at the hour of 3 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at my office in Smithfield township, DeKalb county, Indiana, I will let to the lowest and best bidder the contract to construct a new brick school house in district number nine in said Smithfield township.

Specifications for said work are now on file in my office subject to the examination of all intending bidders.

All bids must be in writing, and bids will be received until said hour above named when all bids will be opened and read.

I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated this 11th day of July, 1899.

N. T. JACKMAN,
Trustee of Smithfield Township, DeKalb County, Indiana. 28-29

LIVERITA
THE UP-TO-DATE
LITTLE LIVER PILL
CURES
Biliousness, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Sick-Headache and Liver Complaint.
SUGAR COATED.
100 PILLS 25 CTS.
Sold by all druggists or sent by mail.
Laverita Medical Co., Chicago
Davenport, The Druggist.

COURT NEWS

Monday's Daily.

Attorney Ellison of Fort Wayne was doing business in court this afternoon, as was Gen. Blair of Waterloo.

The jury was called to try the case against Deveny for violation of the liquor law. It took some time to get a jury. Pomeroy is for the state and Moody for the defense.

At the close of this case the jury will be discharged for the term.

Tuesday's Daily.

As noted yesterday the case against Deveny for violation of the liquor law, was going on in the afternoon. It appears that the charge against him was for selling liquor after the hour for closing. We heard a part of the evidence and give a small part of it.

Deveny denied the whole thing. Ed. Webb could not remember whether anybody paid for the drinks or whether they were donated by Deveny. Tom Patterson swore to seeing Watt and Stern come into the room, and saw glasses with something in them carried to them, but he could not say whether it was beer or ginger ale. The only witness who seemed to know what he saw or heard there at that time was Watt. We give the substance of his testimony.

Wm. Watt sworn. On March 11 I went into Deveny's place, going in through the alley and around the south end and then through a door into the west room, the card and pool room. Sterns went in with me. It was 11:10. Front door was closed. There is a door from this room into the saloon. Question—What did Deveny say to you? Answer—He did not say anything. Q.—Was anyone else in that room? Ans.—Ed. Webb, Tom Patterson and Frank Beuret were there. They were playing cards and drinking beer. I think Webb ordered their beer and Deveny brought it to them. Stern ordered two glasses for us and Deveny went into the saloon and got it. Stern drank one and I the other. Stern paid for it. Stern ordered two more glasses. He drank one and I the other. We had nothing to do with the cards. One of the men said, "Don't give us away." We made no reply. I do not know where Stern is now. Think he went to Chicago. It was 10 minutes after 11 o'clock. We staid there about fifteen minutes and then went out the same way we came in. The others remained there. He was cross-examined by Moody, and asked if he had not told a different story to him, Moody, when the latter talked to him about it. Witness said he "did not remember." He denied telling Moody he had not ordered beer. Did not tell Moody that all the beer I saw there was what was brought to Webb and the others.

The arguments were made and the jury retired last evening, and at 4 this morning had agreed on a verdict acquitting Deveny. They are now discharged for the term.

Judge Watkins came up last evening and is holding court to day.

A STRANGE CASE.

It is the fortune of Judge Watkins to try a case, the like of which has never been tried in the United States before and probably will never be again. We refer to the case brought by James F. Moughler to recover the balance of purchase money on his sale of the "Peat Moss" land south of Garrett. The COURIER has alluded to this moss bed before, as being the only one in the United States, and to the fact that the writer examined it and found its nature, to a certain extent, ten or fifteen years before anyone attempted to use it. We also referred to the visit here about a year ago of Messrs. Hatcher and Yager, of Tiffin, Ohio. It now appears that these Tiffin parties, including Frank Copper, at one time B. & O. agent at the Junction, bought this peat moss property over a year ago of the Moughler Bros., who then owned it. James F. Moughler now sues for the purchase money, the case being against Copper, Hatcher and Yager. P. V. Hoffman, D. D. Moody and Judge Roby are for the plaintiff and J. E. and J. H. Rose for defendant.

Wednesday's Daily.

The defense began calling witnesses last evening in the peat moss case. Mr. Yeager and Mr. Hatcher both testified, and this morning they called up Mr. Stansbury the man who made all the tests to see how deep the moss is.

He said that the first tests he made were in March when the Moughlers wanted to get some blue clay that lies below the moss. They wished to have it analyzed to see if it would not be valuable for some purpose. The testing was done by putting down a three-quarter inch pipe. Were not looking to see how deep the moss is. The deepest places was 45 or 50 feet when they struck solid ground. After going through the moss, they came into a lot of rotten stuff which he thinks was not moss. About an inch of white sand lay on the blue clay. About a month later, they were selling to the Tiffin parties, Copper, Hatcher and Yeager who came to Garrett to see them. About a week later the Moughlers went by appointment to Tiffin and a bargain was made.

They told the Tiffin parties that the moss would average about thirty-five feet deep and they were to get $1,600 for the ten acres. A few days later the Tiffin men came to examine the land again and close the deal, They got Stansberry to go out and make tests in different parts of the moss. He used a pipe one and one-half inches in diameter and filed to a sharp edge at the lower end. It would be put down and then withdrawn, bringing up a core of moss. They found the moss was about sixteen feet deep and below that the rotten stuff till the solid ground was reached. The Tiffin parties finding the moss not as thick as represented, refused to take the land at $1,600, but it was finally fixed at $1,200. They paid $800 and were to assume a mortgage of about $400. They came to Auburn next day and had Judge Hartman, then a practicing attorney, examine the records. Then, finding all was straight, the matter was closed. It appears now that the Moughler brothers are suing to get the original amount agreed on at the time when they thought the moss was thirty-five feet deep, which was $1,600.

It also appeared that in the absence of William F. Moughler, his wife delivered the deed and received the payment of $800.

This afternoon, the peat moss case was stopped a short time to accommodate parties from a distance who wanted to try a case involving the Garrett waterworks and light plant.

Township Advisory Board.

Judge Hartman has completed the list of appointments for the Advisory Board of the several townships and the following is the full list, and in each case we have added the trustee's name at the close:

BUTLER TOWNSHIP.
Phillip Noel.
William M. Shilling.
Amos Fitch.
Albert Thrush, Trustee.

CONCORD TOWNSHIP.
Daniel W. Baker.
Walter M. Abel.
John Moody.
John Henderson, Trustee.

FAIRFIELD TOWNSHIP.
George Buchanan.
John H. Elson.
Solomon Reincehl.
Jos. Huett, Trustee.

FRANKLIN TOWNSHIP.
Jonathan Haverstock.
Ezra H. Lautzenheiser.
John Wagner.
John W. Brown, Trustee.

GRANT TOWNSHIP.
Sheldon H. Hine.
Giles F. Abbey.
Simon Dilgard.
Geo. W. Crooks, Trustee.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP.
Alexander Provines.
Thomas Phillips.
Samuel H. High.
Wilson S. Dancer, Trustee.

KEYSER TOWNSHIP.
Henry E. Gettell.
George Rakestraw.
James A. McClure.
Edward Kelham, Trustee.

NEWVILLE TOWNSHIP.
Samuel Davis.
Wallace E. Jackson.
William Seely.
A. S. Chapman, Trustee.

RICHLAND TOWNSHIP.
Melvin E. Reynolds.
John Sheffer.
Levi Hewitt.
James M. Finch, Trustee.

SMITHFIELD TOWNSHIP.
Edward Campbell.
Samuel Bonebrake.
Frank Fisk.
N. F. Jackman, Trustee.

STAFFORD TOWNSHIP.
Isaac M. Diehl.
Robert Arford.
Jacob Christoffel.
H. D. Webster, Trustee.

TROY TOWNSHIP.
Talma Rummel.
Jesse Mountz.
Jacob Brunner.
Willard Eddy, Trustee.

UNION TOWNSHIP.
Isaac Hague.
Joseph Springer.
Daniel D. Metcalf.
A. W. Madden, Trustee.

WILMINGTON TOWNSHIP.
George Pugsley.
James D. Wood.
J. J. Oberlin.
John J. Eakright, Trustee.

In each township, the first and second named are republicans, and the third is a democrat. Then follows the trustee.

The list has been evidently selected with much care, and knowing as we do personally, nearly every one of them we feel free to say are good men, and their selection reflects credit on Mr. Hartman's judgment. If the new law will not work with such advisors it may as well be repealed.

The law provides that the members appointed by the Circuit Judge shall take an oath of office and file the same with the township trustee.

Each Board is to meet on the first Tuesday of next September to examine reports and estimates of the trustee and to fix township tax levy.

SOLDIERS' WIDOWS' HOME.

Wilmington, Ill., Sept. 13, 1897.

Syrup Pepsin Co., Gents: Your Syrup Pepsin has been used in our Home with great success. The ladies under my charge have grown so attached to it as a corrector of the many ailments of the stomach and bowels, that too great praise cannot be given it. In the relief of indigestion and sick headache it works to perfection.

MARGARET R. WICKINS, Matron.

DEAR SIRS: I take great pleasure in adding my testimony as to the efficiency of Syrup Pepsin as used in our Home. We use it in all cases of constipation and indigestion. Respectfully,

EVA J. SWEET, Nurse.

Excursion to Detroit.

The Wabash will run a cheap excursion to Detroit, leaving Auburn at 7:30 a. m. on July 16. Returning, leave Detroit at 10:15 in the evening. Fare for round trip $1.25 for all points in DeKalb county. Bicycles carried free, so the beautiful streets of Detroit can be seen easily.

OBITUARY

Silas B. Johnston was born in Wayne county, Ohio, Sept. 13, 1836 and died at his home in Auburn, Ind., July 8, 1899, his age being 62 years, 9 months and 25 days.

March 25, 1858, he was united in marriage to Catherine Shull, who died in Auburn, Aug. 19, 1892. Two children were born to this union, Dr. M. W. Johnston of Garrett, and Mrs. C. A. Pearson of Chicago. Oct. 31, 1894, he was united in marriage to Mrs. Mary E Rummel, with whom he lived happily till his death, and she with the son and daughter named, and two brothers and two sisters survive him.

After some years service as a teacher, he enlisted in the war of the rebellion Aug. 1, 1862, as a private in the 102nd regiment Ohio volunteer infantry.

By the close of the war he had risen to the rank of first lieutenant, and as an officer had been several times in charge of important detachments on special service. He was Judge Advocate of an important court-martial, at Nashville: he was on several important positions in the commissary department, and had charge of moving the largest herd of cattle ever moved in one body in this country, 1000 head taken from Chattanooga to Resaca for the use of Sherman's army, the service requiring 2000 men to guard them. He took part in several important battles and the pursuit of Bragg through Kentucky; he was mustered out July 4, 1865, at the close of the war. One brother, Andrew, late of Pierceton this state, now at Canton, Ohio, was in the same regiment. Of the other two brothers, one, Wm. M. the brother here at the funeral, was in the 104th Ohio, and the other brother was in Sec. Alger's old regiment, the 2nd Michigan cavalry.

The high esteem in which his men held him, was attested by the gift of a fine sword, which was always an object of a just pride by him and treasured in memory of the givers, many of whom have also passed away. On his return from the service he rejoined his wife at Wilmot, Ohio, and soon after located at Napoleon.

In 1867, he came to Waterloo to reside and practice his profession of dentistry, which he adopted on returning from the war, though he had originally studied medicine. In Waterloo he helped to organize the G. A. R. post and became its first cammander. In 1881, he moved to Auburn and into the home where he lived till his death.

He has always been prominent in society and church circles, being a member of the G. A. R., Odfellows, Knights of Honor, and a prominent member of the Presbyterian church in which at the time of his death, he was one of the elders, chairman of the church society and also treasurer, and several times superintendent of Sunday school. About a month before his death he had been appointed a member of the Auburn school board.

At his funeral large bodies of the orders named were present, from Garrett, Waterloo and Auburn, and united in the last solemn rites at his funeral and his grave. The services were at the home, the sermon by his pastor, Rev. Henry Arlen, being one of unusual feeling and eloquence. He was laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery. The pall bearers were Oddfellows, and were M. Kiplinger, Phil Plum, Robert Patterson, Henry Baker, John Rudolph and S. U. Tarney. The honorary pall bearers were officers of the Presbyterian church, Judge E. D. Hartman, T. J. Saxton, G. H. Forkner, Edward Baker, John Otto and J. E. Rose.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

is easily cured by the use of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam; it is safe and sure. H. B. McCord's drug store.

OBITUARY.

Henry Frick was born Nov. 23, 1815, died July 4, 1899. Aged 83 years, 7 months and 11 days.

He was born in South Huntington township, Westmoreland Co., Pa. In 1825 he removed with his father, Henry Frick, to Stark county, O., where he was reared and educated. All of his father's family have gone to the grave, except a brother and sister, who reside in Michigan. He was united in marriage to Miss Christiana Smith in 1838, who was a native of Bedford county, Pa. To them have been born ten children, one of whom died in infancy. Mrs. Levina McEnterfer, Mrs. Mary Ruble, Henry, Mrs. Elizabeth Bachtel, Daniel, John, George, Abraham and Mrs. Sarah Wareham, and his aged companion still survive him to cherish the memory of a kind father, a faithful, frugal and industrious husband and a good citizen. There are twenty grandchildren and fifteen great grandchildren.

Father and Mother Frick came to DeKalb Co., Ind., in 1854, and settled in Smithfield Twp. They have faithfully discharged the duties of parents together, and he comes to his grave full of years, having led an honest life and accumulated his estate by industry and economy. He never profited nor sought to prosper upon the misfortunes or extremities of his fellow man. His last years of life have been tedious and uneventful, having been the victim of that dread malady paralysis. In 1861 he became a member of Salem Reform Church, in which faith and membership he died.

His funeral was conducted by Rev. W. O. Butler, assisted by Rev. S. H. Yager, and was largely attended at the old homestead, and the body was laid away in the Waterloo cemetery.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Public Sale of horses.

King Bros. of Kansas will sell to the highest bidders, at Trout's livery barn in Auburn, on Thursday, July 20, one car load of select geldings and mares, weighing from 1,000 to 1,300 pounds, ages from one to six years, reared on the Kentucky stock farm, Meade county, Kansas. While these horses were reared in the west, they are not of pony blood, but are a cross between Kentucky mares and French Canadian stallions; also Tennessee stallions for saddlers and drivers. Some of the stock is thoroughly broken for both double and single harness, some double only, while others are merely halter broken.

This will be a rare chance for speculators or anyone needing a driver saddler, delivery or general purpose horse.

During the intermissions, Antonio Gonterres, champion of the world, will give free exhibitions of trick riding and lasso throwing, dressed in full cowboy costume. Sale commences promptly at 1 o'clock, regardless of weather.

Terms.—Six months, with bankable paper, 7 per cent interest from date, 1 percent off for cash. KING BROS.

Superior French Method.

From the Builder: We recommend those who are interested in public art in this country to look at the account given of the decorative work carried out at the new Paris Opera Comique. The exterior sculpture is by the greatest French sculptors of the day; for the decorative paintings in the auditorium, the staircases and the foyers, a galaxy of the most gifted French painters has been employed; and all this paid for by the government, for the public good and for the encouragement of national art. When shall we see such a thing in England? It is as if we had a London theater decorated with sculpture by Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Onslow Ford, and the halls and staircases painted by Mr. Watts, Mr. Tadema and Sir E. Poynter. Instead of that, we have theaters with sculpture done by stone carvers and paintings by decorating "firms."

Fine Harness.

—A COURIER reporter dropped into Sheffer & Co.'s harness store today where he was shown a splendid set of coach harness just completed and ready for shipment to R. A. Fisher, a South Whitley undertaker. The harness are hand-made, of the very best material and handsomely embellished with solid nickel trimmings, and cost $125. The work was all done in the Sheffer shop and certainly reflects much credit upon the men who had it in charge. Mr. Fisher can be assured that he has as nice a set of harness as was ever turned out in this part of the state.

Chinese Money.

Of all the strange Chinese customs in the matter of currency that reported by the American consul at Hong Kong of employing blocks of silver is most unique. The silver is cast in the form of the "sycee," or shoe, and on it is marked the quality. There is no free silver coinage there, nor gold either. In making purchases a piece is cut off and sold to the local bank for its equivalent in copper "cash." Of this cash it takes 1,800 to equal a dollar, and as almost all transactions are expressed in cash, you can get an idea of the scale of Chinese expenditures.—Baltimore Sun.

More Than All Others.

ROME CITY, Ind.

Dr. C. D. Warner, Coldwater, Mich.

Dear Sir:—It gives me great pleasure in recommending your White Wine of Tar Syrup to the public as an excellent cough cure. I have sold over a gross within a short time and I always warrant a cure and have never had a bottle returned. I sell more of your White Wine of Tar Syrup than all other cough remedies I keep in stock. I sold one dozen bottles to one of my customers.

Respectfully yours,
J. P. CHAPMAN.

Davenport, the druggist.

King's Charity.

Any poor child who likes to present himself or herself at the gate of the Royal Palace at Madrid at 6 o'clock in the evening can have a bowl of porridge. This custom originated through the young king having been detained in a remote district, owing to a breakdown of the engine. He became hungry, but no food was obtainable; his mother improved the occasion by telling him that many a poor child had to go to bed hungry, which so impressed the youngster that he urged his mother to institute this charity.

Quite Unsensational.

A Montreal paper, which has known success for twenty years, bars all sporting, dramatic and tobacco news, as well as the advertisements for the same, and will mention no sensational cases in the courts.

GET YOUR EYES OPEN.

You may, for years, have been troubled with your stomach. Many articles of food eaten by you may cause distress for hours after eating, a fullness, etc. This is suggestive of dyspepsia and sooner or later, unless you do something to correct the evil, you will find yourself a confirmed dyspeptic. A SMALL DOSE OF DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN taken after each meal will give you greater relief than anything you can get.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Dr. Johnston and the members of the family wish to tender their earnest thanks to all the friends and neighbors, as well as the orders for unremitting assistance and sympathy during their recent bereavement, the sickness and death of husband and father. Their kindness will be ever cherished in grateful remembrance.

What Can We ..Offer.. You

In the way of.....

HARDWARE and FARM MACHINERY

that will attract your attention?

We have the most complete stock ever seen in our city, and you know that, as usual, our prices are right

Do you need anything for spring that we carry

?

Do you know that we have built up a wonderful trade by right prices and right goods.

?

Do you know that we have the most complete stock of

Hardware,
Farm Machinery
Wagons and Buggins

in DeKalb County

?

If you will drop in and see us we will be able to convince you at once that we have the goods that you want, and the prices alone will tell the story.

Don't fail to see our Carriage Repository, it is the finest in Northern Indiana,

Culbertson & Boland,
Auburn, Ind.

CEDAR.

R. G. Strause is on the sick list.

Lee Hunt, of Reed & Hunt, Garrett, was here on business Monday.

Perry Rhinehold and family of Hurtertown Sundayed with friends here.

Mrs. O C. Himes' brother and sister of Kalamazoo, visited her during the 4th.

John F. Holman, of Churubusco, shook hands with friends here last week.

J. A. Zern and lady visited friends near Spencerville last Saturday and Sunday.

R. D. Knott and Cal. Holman, in breaking a colt the other day, broke their buggy.

H. A. Lung and Miss Groves were united in the holy bonds of matrimony on Sunday July 9.

Aaron Smith took a nine mile walk on Sunday last all on account of a punctured tire on his wheel.

The Fourth of July celebration in this place was rather a tame affair, although fire crackers and ice cream were in abundance.

Wheat cutting in this part of the country is rather a short job. One farmer that sowed about 60 acres last fall claims to have cut all that was worth cutting in less than a half day.

HUMBUGS

are they who tell you other cough syrups are just as good as Beggs' Cherry Cough Syrup. If you can not get it from your druggist notify us at once and on receipt of 25 cents we will send you a bottle. Guaranteed. McCord's.

About Lady Curzon.

Lady Curzon, the wife of the Viceroy of India, is receiving many compliments from the natives with respect to the beauty of her face and figure. One journal, after calling her exceedingly lovely and comparing her with the goddess Saraswati, says that her voice is as sweet as that of the cuckoo, and her back as graceful as the neck of a swan. Lady Curzon was informed by her interpreter that other portions of her anatomy had come in for approval. She did not care to pursue the theme.

Give it a Trial.

It will surprise you. It will restore the life and beauty to your hair, stops dandruff and the hair from falling out. Beggs' Hair renewer. H. B. McCord's.

Mott's Nerverine Pills

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. $1.00 per box by mail; 6 boxes for $5.00.

MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Prop's, Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Junk Wanted

Please save your money. Don't forget to bring all your junk to H. Greenberg, three blocks north of M. E. church in Auburn, who pays for rags, rubber, copper, brass, zinc, lead, scrap iron and all kinds of hides and furs.

Best Cash Prices

FARMERS' WIVES

or any other ladies who wish to work

Can Earn Lots of Money

working for us in spare time at home on our cloths. We offer you a good chance to make plenty of spending money easily, leisure hours. Send 12c. for cloth and full directions for work, and commence at once. Cloth sent anywhere. Address WINOOSKET CO. (311-M) Boston Mass Mfg. Dept.

WANTED!

We will pay $2.00 per cord CASH for all the good live elm bolts, 10 inches and over in diameter, 32 inches long, delivered on our yard in Auburn.

Greenler Co.

Plumbing

Having secured the services of a first class plumber I am now prepared to do plumbing in a first-class manner. Also of all kinds a specially. Large stock of Tanks made of galvanized steel. Prices and work guaranteed.

Roofing, Spouting and Galvanized Iron Work.....

F. M. RUSH.

The Meese Reunion.

Rev. W. L. Meese will hold his matrimonial reunion in Auburn this year August 15 and 16 in the same grove as last year. It is to be hoped he will have better weather than last year, and that every one who is a member of the association and all the friends will come out and make it a splendid meeting. It is the only association of the kind in the world and should be kept alive.

Bargains

IN

REMNANTS

Left From the Big Clearance Sale At

Lackey's

Big Dry Goods Store

Monday's Daily.

—Ladies' $4.00 tan shoes for $2 00 this week at Shull's shoe store. tf.

—Hon. F. M. Powers of Angola was here today on legal business.

—W. R. Davis visited his parents in Jackson township yesterday.

—H. W. Mountz and N. W. Jones were over from Garrett today on business.

—Dr. Nusbaum returned Saturday from his business trip to points in the west.

—Ralph Shull of Waterloo was visiting the family of A. B. Walsworth last week.

—Henry Schuster and wife of Sedan were guests of George Kruse and wife yesterday.

—J. L. Marvin is at Hudson this week getting out his monthly paper, the Clarion.

—Pension Agent Leighty was in town a few hours Saturday evening on his way to St. Joe.

—Mrs. Chas. Pommert and Mrs. Mary McEntaffer are visiting relatives in Grant township.

—The smallpox quarantine at Shipshewana has been raised, all the patients having recovered.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Funk and children of Auburn spent Sunday with relatives at Helmer, Ind.

—Owing to the absence of the pastor there will be no preaching at the Lutheran church next Sunday.

—Will Richmond of Berrien Springs, Mich., was the guest over Sunday of his cousin, Mrs. Simps. Johnson.

—George Hamilton of Jackson township, who was stricken with paralysis some time ago, is reported improving.

—Wm. M Johnston of Wilmot, Ohio is here. He is the oldest of Dr. Johnston's brothers, and was called by the funeral.

—Mesdames Jno. and S. R. Rickel and Miss Nettie Rickel drove over from Waterloo this afternoon on a shopping tour.

—Misses Pearl and Anna Squires returned today from Churubusco after several days visit with their uncle, James Squires.

—Dr. Ford is out again after a week's illness, the result of a severe congestive chill. He is gaining rapidly though still quite weak.

—The many friends of Miss Lessie Peace, who has been sick for so long a time, will be glad to learn that she is greatly improved.

—Rev. and Mrs. Brosy left today for Williams county, Ohio, for a visit with Mr. Brosy's parents. They will be absent until the 20th.

—Frank VanAuken has secured the job of time-keeper and clerk for Contractor Bodette. There were several applications for the place.

—Jim Decker and "Skip" Barnhart will be taken away some time this week, the former to Jeffersonville and the latter to Michigan City.

—James McDowell and family have returned from their visit with the family of F. M. Boyer and other friends at Muncie. They had a nice visit.

—Joe Pommert spent Sunday with his family at Bryan. They will take up their residence in Auburn as soon as they can secure a suitable house.

—August 14 and 15 are temperance days at Island Park assembly. A fine program has been announced and several DeKalb county organizations will attend.

—The Central Union company is building a telephone line to connect Maysville, Leo and Cedarville with the line between this city and Fort Wayne.

—Mrs. O. B. Young and children of Newark, Ohio, are expected here this evening, and will be guests of the Keeran sisters and the other relatives for a time.

—A. A. Davis, a well-known resident of south Jackson township who has long been a sufferer from cancer, is reported to be failing rapidly and there seems to be no hope for his recovery.

—Frank Boyle who for a time has been employed at the Body factory, had the bad luck to get his left thumb too close to a buzz saw, and the end was nipped off. It is proving a pretty sore affair.

—Some fine fish have been caught by local sportsmen in Cedar creek during the past few days. One man captured a carp weighing ten pounds, one of the largest ever taken from the creek in this vicinity.

—Dr. Baxter's wife and little daughter Margery, and Mrs. Baxter's mother Mrs. Lopp, start today for the old home, near Corydon in Harrison Co., this state, where they will make an extended visit.

—Capt. Lahnum has mailed vouchers for clothing to several members of company K now in the regular service in Cuba and when these are properly signed and returned will be able to complete the payrolls.

—The barbers have discontinued the practice of working on Sunday, as several fellows found out yesterday morning. The knights of the razor have concluded that they are entitled to rest as well as other people.

—Recruiting for men to join the Thirty-first regiment of volunteers began at Indianapolis today, and later on enlistments can be made at Ft. Wayne. As soon as completed the regiment will be sent to the Philippines.

—Bernie Trentman will go to Texas next week to settle up his affairs as well as those of Eugene Girardot, after which he expects to return to Indiana to remain permanently, a fact which his many friends will be glad to learn.

—Henry A. Lung and Miss Laura M. E. Grove, both of Butler township, were married last evening by Rev. Moose at his home on West Ninth street. Both are excellent people and the COURIER joins in wishing them happiness.

—Few larger processions have been seen in Auburn than that of yesterday for Dr. Johnston. When the head of the procession was just turning east from Main street toward the cemetery the last carriage was just leaving the house. It was a worthy tribute to a worthy man.

—Kendallville Sun:—J. M. Kinney, the contractor of this city, has been awarded the contract for grading for the new buildings for the cement works at Turkey Creek. He will begin the work the first of the coming week and will give employment to several teams and shovelers.

—Columbia City Post:—Mrs. C. B. Mattoon is greatly lamenting the loss of eight nice spring chickens, just large enough to cook. One evening this week a ferret or weasel got into the hen house, and after taking the life's blood from their necks, piled them nicely into one bunch, leaving them for the owners' inspection, and one can judge the rest.

—S. H. Hood, an engineer on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, accompanied Bernie Trentman to Mexico after the body of Eugene Girardot and came to this city to attend the funeral as a representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which Mr. Girardot was a member. Mr. Hood spent yesterday at Garrett, and started on his return trip to Texas last evening.

—During the past few days Jim Decker, awaiting transportation to Jeffersonville for larceny, has been acting rather queerly and all day Saturday gave a good imitation of a man suffering from fits. He was examined by several physicians, none of whom could find anything wrong with him, and it is probable that his attempts to work the sympathy racket will prove a dismal failure.

Tuesday's Daily.

—For watch, clock and jewelry repairing call on W A. Davidson, the jeweler.

—Miss C. M. Stoll of Edon, Ohio, is the guest of Curt Armstrong and his mother, Mrs. McClellan.

—Steele & Son are putting the finishing touches on John Lochner's houses on Jackson street.

—Mrs. Lawyer, who was the guest of her cousins, the Keeran sisters, went to Albion today to visit friends.

—John Groscop commenced burning his second kiln of brick today, and the third kiln will soon be under way.

—Sheriff Hathaway today took Jim Decker to the reformatory at Jeffersonville where he will serve his term for larceny.

—Mrs. George Chapman will go to Toledo for a brief visit, and on returning will be accompanied by Pearl Sprott to Warsaw.

—No humbug. Shull's sale of women's fine shoes, $3.00 and $4 00 shoes for $2 00 at Shull's this week. No old styles, all new and up-to-date. tf.

—Joseph Pommert tells us that his brother Sam is now keeping a hotel at Delta, Ohio, and doing well which his many friends here will be glad to learn.

—George Quince is painting the outside wood work on the M. E. church. That means a big job but George is a man who always hangs onto his work till it is done.

—Mrs. Don Garwood and durghters, Aileen and Helen, went to Cassopolis, Michigan, today to remain a week or two, visiting Mr. Garwood's relatives at that place.

—The telephone line between Auburn and St. Joe was completed today and it is expected that all connections will be made so that the line can be used this evening.

—Ward Baughman, who has been office boy for the Doctors Swarts, is having a vacation to try his new wheel. Fred Krontz of east Auburn takes his place for the present.

—Rev. W. L. Meese has sold a great many copies of Shepp's Giant History, a work of rare merit, and the list shows the names of the prominent people of Auburn and vicinity.

—The Wabash will run a cheap excursion to Detroit next Sunday. The train will leave Auburn at 7:30 a. m. Fare for the round trip $1.75, tickets good returning Monday, July 17.

—The Columbia City Post says a reward of $1,000 has been offered for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Adam Hoffman, who was murdered in Noble county about two years ago.

—Manager Henry has already booked a number of fine attractions for next season and will give our people some of the best shows ever seen in the opera house. The season will open Saturday evening, August 19.

—A. J. Carpenter of Hamilton called yesterday and secured copies of the COURIER, daily and weekly that contain full accounts of the Chappell trial, as he knew this could not be obtained anywhere else.

—Miss Maggie Snyder of New Era came home this forenoon and was met at the train by her sister. She says they all had a grand time at the Detroit C. E. meeting and she thinks the town and the people are very nice.

—P. J. Lockwood came up from Washington yesterday and after transacting some business here will go west to the Pacific coast. There he may be joined by his wife, or she may, instead, go to the Atlantic coast to spend the summer.

—FOR SALE:—A good young black horse with white strip in face; 16½ hands high, weight 1200; will work single or double; will make a good family horse. A rare opportunity. Call quick at my residence south of the school building.—W. H. ZIGLER, Auburn, Ind.

Mrs. Davenport took her first outing yesterday in several months. She was still quite weak but Mr. Davenport, by driving slowly and carefully, managed to give her a bit of fresh air and a little rest and change. It was no doubt a great comfort to her although she was somewhat tired on her return.

—Capt. Charles E. Reese, formerly chief officer of company B, 157th Indiana regiment, has been appointed a captain in the regular army. He is the son of Captain Reese, a veteran of the civil war, and has many friends among the boys of company K who will be glad to hear of his success.

—In some localities eggs are bought and sold by the pound and we understand that a well-known attorney is the first to make an effort to establish the rule in Auburn. He made an order for groceries by telephone a few days ago and among the items included one for "two pounds of eggs." He got the eggs all right, but they came in dozens instead of pounds.

—New Orleans has lately given its ten thousand tax-paying women the privilege of voting upon all questions of interest to taxpayers. The women are permitted to vote in person or by proxy. Come to think of it, why wouldn't it be a good thing for Indiana cities and towns? There are whole blocks in Auburn, owned almost entirely by women, in fact a very large percentage of taxes are paid by them. There would seem to be some justice in giving these women as good an opportunity to speak on municipal affairs, as the men who are supported in part by public charity.

Wednesday's Daily.

—For sale or rent, good residence. Inquire. F. E. ECKHART.

—Quite a number are going to Detroit on the excursion next Sunday.

—Remember King Bros. sale of horses at Trout's livery barn, Auburn, Thursday, July 20.

—Mrs. T. C. Ford and son Walter went to St. Marys, O., today to visit her daughter, Mrs. J. P. Collett.

—LOST:—Between Auburn and Coleman's corners, a bunch of keys. Suitable reward if returned to this office.

—Miss Myrtle Boots drove over from Spencerville today to visit in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Thomas Hallam.

—Gen. Blair was down today to argue a motion for the appeal of "Skip" Barnhart's case to the supreme court.

—Fred Miller leaves this evening for Paxton, Ill., where he will take a position in I. N. Cool's carriage factory.

—If you want a pair of fine shoes for a little money, call at Shull's shoe store. $3.50 and $4.00 shoes for $2.00.

—David Martz reports all the wheat cut up in Fairfield and they are now hauling it in. They will have about half a crop.

—"Doc" McDowell came down from Chicago yesterday for a short visit with his mother and other relatives and friends.

—Trustee Jackman will let the contract August 4 for a new brick school house in district number nine, Smithfield township.

—Call on W. A. Davidson, the jeweler, for solid gold, gold filled and gold plated bracelets. Engraving done while you wait.

—The Wabash will run its Niagara Falls excursion August 24. The fare will be $6.25 for the round trip. Further particulars later on.

—Builders should read the notice to contractors for the erection of a new school house in Smithfield township, published in today's COURIER.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Baker expect to leave for a trip through Illinois where he goes in the employ of the Milwaukee Harvester company.

—The Battle Ground campmeeting near Lafayette, begins Aug. 3, and closes Aug. 14. It is followed by an "Itinerant School" that closes Aug. 17.

—Rev. G. M. Hirsh of Marion, Ind., will preach at the German Reformed church in Auburn next Sunday forenoon, and in the afternoon and evening at Garrett.

—Caleb Neal who owns the property on North VanBuren street, lately vacated by Charlie Kinsey, will return to Auburn this fall and again occupy the house.

—The framework is up for A. W. Madden's new residence on the east side and it is expected that the stone work will be commenced within the next few days.

—Miss Flora Hoffman is giving instructions to a class in music, but may decide to accept a position elsewhere. Her arrangement with the class is on this condition.

—The nickel social of the Lutheran church will meet with Mrs. Will Thomas on North Jackson street next Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. A good attendance is desired.

—Dr. Buchtel will be at home on Wednesday, July 12, and thereafter to attend his patients. It is thought his health is so far recovered that he will be able to resume his practice fully.

—Nellie Baxter has been spending a week with her father's relatives near Hamilton. It is not decided yet whether she will make her home in Auburn again, or return to Michigan.

—Harry Draggoo and his cook drove up to Lake James yesterday, to get a cottage ready for occupation and Mrs. Draggoo went up there today noon. They expect to remain there several weeks.

—Alpheus Wheelock's goods are packed, ready for shipment to Burkeville, Va., as soon as he can secure a house at that place. His daughter, Miss Mary Wheelock, will also go to Burkeville.

—Milford Mail:—Farmers are being arrested in this and other counties for permitting Canada thistles to grow upon their farms. As yet we have heard of none about Milford who have felt the strong arm of the law.

—It would be a favor to us if you would let your neighbors read the court items in the COURIER. No other paper has published them to amount to anything, and some very remarkable trials have come up lately.

—A citizen of the neighboring county of Whitley who owns a fine farm through which flows a fine fishing brook, has put a sign bearing this legend: "Fish and be darned; big fat worms behind the barn."

—While the sheriff of St. Joseph county was taking three boys to the reform school the other day one of the lads picked the officer's pockets while talking to him. The articles taken were found in the boy's pocket.

—The Knights and Ladies of the Maccabees will have a big picnic at Bawbeese lake July 20. A special train will leave Auburn at 9 a. m., and it is possible that a large number of Auburn members of the order will attend.

—For Sale:—A good second-hand phaeton, in first-class condition, at very reasonable terms. Also a large iron kettle at a low price.

MRS. JACOB WALBORN,
Auburn, Ind.

—In some manner the report gained circulation yesterday that John Ketel, the popular iceman, had suffered a stroke of paralysis, but we are glad to note that it was nothing more than a joke perpetrated upon him by some of his waggish friends.

—Among the list of patents granted yesterday were two to Willis H. Brown of this city for a shifting device for selfbinding machines. Mr. Brown is thoroughly posted in this class of machinery and we hope he will reap rich financial returns from his invention.

—Curtis Armstrong of Auburn and Christie M. Stoll of Edon, Ohio, were united in marriage at the office of and by Esquire Walter yesterday forenoon and took the noon train for a wedding trip to Michigan. The COURIER hopes their married life may be happy and prosperous.

—The family of young gophers in Al. Zirwes' window furnished no little amusement today by fighting over several grasshoppers, an insect of which the little animals are very fond. The hoppers were greedily devoured, but not until there were numerous rough-and-tumble fights.

—Capt. Lahnum requests that all ex-members of Company K who are entitled to the clothing allowance come and sign the vouchers and roll as soon as possible, in order that they may be forwarded to Indianapolis at an early date. Don't neglect this matter, but assist in getting the matter closed up.

—Thomas Sommers was much gratified this week on receiving a letter from his aged mother who resides at Percy, Ontario, Canada. Though nearly 98 years of age she is in full possession of all her faculties and is as hale and hearty as most women of sixty, and bids fair to pass the century mark.

—Last Saturday night a bridle and rein were stolen from J. C. Weeks' barn, but Mr. Weeks was rather warm on the trail of the thief and on Sunday night the articles were returned. Mr. Weeks thinks the fellow who did the job should be given credit for his prompt reformation and return of the property.

—A township trustee who has given the subject some investigation, states that the new poor law passed by the last legislature, will make a saving of at least 50 per cent to the township in the poor expenses. Taking the law over the entire state, this will mean a big saving in the expenses for the year for maintaining the poor.

—David Martz of Fairfield was a caller today. He is somewhat improved in health, and his wife fairly recovering from a recent sickness. His mother was here with him, being here for a few weeks stay. She makes her home a greater part of the time with her daughter in Fort Wayne.

—Kendallville Sun:—Rev. F. E. Dickinson of this city, who is interested in the brick industry at Wolcottville and other places, has received an order for one and one-half million bricks, for the new cement works at Helmer It will take 150 cars to transport the brick. It is the largest single order for brick ever taken in this locality.

—M. B. Masters was one of a party that went out for huckleberries yesterday. They went beyond Garrett and in their trip saw the bog mine where the parties in the present lawsuit get their moss. They did not get many berries but Mr. Masters consoles himself with the belief that what he got did not cost over twenty-five cents a quart.

—Miss Anna M. Philley of Fort Wayne whose readings in this place have delighted her audiences, has been secured for the evening of July 31. She will be accompanied by the child elocutionist, Florence McMillan. This entertainment will take the place of the Mother Wallace anniversary, usually observed by the W. C. T. U. at the M. E. church.

—The band excursion to Wawasee this morning was a disappointment so far as patronage is concerned, but seventy tickets being sold from Auburn, while the attendance from Hicksville and St. Joe was correspondingly low The fact that nearly everybody is busy just now made it almost impossible to draw a good crowd, but it is nevertheless to be regretted that the band was not more liberally patronized.

Good July Values

Quite a little better than the ordinary, but its the time of year that you may expect such surprises. Little margins, but plenty of trade is the July watchword. Here just a hint of the kind of values are possible in your July buying.

Here They Are

Scotch Lawns, pretty, bright goods, per yard.....5c
Swiss Lawns, new things in colors, per yard..8 and 10c
Percales in stripes and plaids, regular 8c and 10c goods; go at per yard.....6c
Ye olden time Ginghams at per yard.....5½c
Turkey Red Table Cloth per yard.....23 to 39c
Table Linen, 56 in wide, unbleached, a good value at 40c, this week per yard.....25c
Table Linen, 60 in. wide, three-quarter bleached, a value at 60c, this week per yard.....45c
Table Linen, 60 in. wide, bleached, a good value at 65c, this week per yard.....48c
Table Linen, 64 in. wide, bleached, a good value at 75c, this week per yard.....60c
All Linen Napkins, per dozen....98c, $1.24 and $1.48
Ladies' Black Ribbed Hose, regular 15c goods, pair.10c
Misses' and Children's Black Ribbed Hose, regular 15c goods, at per pair.....10c
Boys' Striped Coats, each.....48c
Men's Fancy Hose, black and colors, pair....10 to 24c
White Lawn Ties at per doz.....20c
Chiffon for Ties per yd.....45c
Bobenet for Ties per yd.....15c
A big assortment of Baby Bonnets and hats at 10c to 48c
Tooth Brushes.....5 to 10c
Ladies' and Misses' Belts, in white and colors 10 to 24c
Hair Pins per bunch.....3c
Hair Brushes.....10 to 22c
Ladies' Purses.....5 to 24c

We still have a few Parasols which we will sell at special low prices.

Bazar Store

Auburn, Ind.

July Economy!

This For Your Considerat'n Ladies!

Ladies' Fine Chocolate Shoes, vesting inlaid stay, plain toe, no tip, hand turned most stylish & latest tan dress shoe in the citys, sold at $4, to close at.....$2.98

Ladies' Fine Tan Shoes, outside leather scroll, lace stay, silver eyelets, sold at $3.50 to close at.....$2.47

Ladies' Fine Tan Shoes, fancy scroll vesting lace stay and collar, sold at $3.50 to close at.....$2.47

Ladies' Fine Tan Shoes, all kid, a very pretty serviceable shoe, sold at $2.75, to close at.....$1.98

Ladies' Fine Tan Shoes, silk vesting top, a handsome, neat shoe, sold at $2.75, to close at.....$1.98

New Stylish Goods. No Old Cheap Trash. See our window.

Gentlemen! Your Attention!

Gents' Fine Vici Kid and Russia Calf Shoes, vesting tops sold at $4.00, to close at.....$1.98

Gents' Vici Kid and Russia Calf Shoes, light and dark shade, sold at $2.50, to close at.....$1.98

Gents' Fine Genuine Kangroo, Shoes in all kangroo and vesting top, sold at $2.75 and $3.00, to close at.....$1.98

Thirteen Styles at Same Price. See our Window.

BISHOP & BEIDLER,
Your Shoemakers, Auburn, Ind.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

To Make Life Happy.

Sweet music appeals to the heart and soul and lightens many of life's burdens. If you have ever heard the sweet-toned Steger Piano you will appreciate this. To reach the highest standard of excellence has always been the aim in the manufacture of the celebrated Steger Piano. Only the best material is used, insuring great durability. Every piano fully guaranteed.

The Steger factories, thoroughly equipped with the best and most improved machinery, located at Steger, Ill., are among the largest in the West.

Intending purchasers will find it profitable to write for a full descriptive catalogue, which will be mailed free upon application. STEGER & CO., (Established 1879) Chicago, Ill.

$50 for One Bottle of Medicine.

This is to certify that my wife was for years afflicted with asthma, and was so far gone that several physicians decided that her case must terminate in consumption. I was induced to try a bottle of Dr. Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup. To our great satisfaction it gave almost immediate relief, and two bottles completely cured her. She is now well and healthy, but I would not be without the medicine if it cost $50 a bottle.

WM. H FARRIS,
Chairman Board Township of Wilton, Monroe Co., Wis.

Davenport, the druggist.

The British Farmer.

A retired farmer, after returning from a continental tour—on which he had long set his heart—was narrating one evening to his friend, the doctor, how he had visited "the majestic lake of Geneva, and trodden the banks of Blue Leman." "Excuse me," interrupted the doctor, "Lake Geneva and Lake Leman are synonymous." "That, my dear sir," replied the farmer, "I know very well; but are you aware that Lake Leman is the more synonymous of the two?"—Pearson's Weekly.

Reverses of Life.

"Less than a year ago," she mused, "he said he would lay down his life for me, and now he won't put up the window screens."—Indianapolis Journal.

HUMPHREYS'

WITCH HAZEL

OIL

CURES

Piles or Hemorrhoids
Fissures & Fistulas.
Burns & Scalds.
Wounds & Bruises.
Cuts & Sores.
Boils & Tumors.
Eczema & Eruptions.
Salt Rheum & Tetters.
Chapped Hands.
Fever Blisters.
Sore Lips & Nostrils.
Corns & Bunions.
Stings & Bites of Insects.

Three Sizes, 25c, 50c, and $1.00.

Sold by druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price.

HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

FARMER OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

He Pursues His Calling in a Scientific Way These Days and Does Not Leave Everything to Providence and the Weather.

IT used to be the rule that when a man wasn't fit for anything else he was considered good enough to be a farmer; that if he hadn't brains enough to master military tactics or the intricacies of the law or medicine or of theology, and was utterly lacking in creative ability, then his proper sphere of usefulness was the farm. And in those days even the "gentleman" farmer was a person of inferior standing, and he was made to feel his insignificance whenever he came in contact with the superior persons who ruled the State and made or expounded its laws. Society spoke of him as a "gawk," and his sons and daughters were "country bumpkins." But all this has changed and is destined to still further change. Science, which has done so much for the world at large, has taken the farmer in hand and is investing the man and his works with the dignity and standing that are theirs of right. The masses are being made to realize what they have known dimly all along, but never fully appreciated—that it is the farmer who feeds them, and that he is more necessary to them than they are to him; that without him works great and small would come to a stop and the peoples of all the earth be reduced to a state of savagery and cannibalism.

IOWA STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

Farmer Knows Why.

Science is bringing not only the pub-

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, ALABAMA INSTITUTE.

lic to a realization of the importance of the farmer, but the farmer himself to an appreciation of the importance of his work and of the necessity of fitting himself for it by studying nature and inducing her by scientific means rather than by haphazard to yield her store. Formerly the farmer could tell you "when" without knowing "why." Experiment showed him that rotation in crops made his land produce better and last longer, but he couldn't tell nature's reason for it, nor explain the thousand other seeming mysteries of the soil. Science has done and is doing that for him. It is experimenting for him day in and day out the year round, and teaching him the why and the wherefore. Uncle Sam is backing science in this matter, and the farmer is getting the benefit without cost. The farmer learns from the bulletins that are sent out by the Department of Agriculture, and all over the land the farmers' sons and daughters are taking courses in agriculture and horticulture, farm gardening and dairying, and stock breeding and stock raising, in colleges supported jointly by the State and Federal governments.

LESSON IN IRRIGATION—UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN.

Their instruction is practical, too, for the colleges have farms under cultivation and herds and droves of cattle and swine, and dairies and truck farms and orchards. The instructors are men who are entitled to write "Bachelors of Science" after their names. They know all about the soils and the seasons, and what crops are adaptable and what are not, and their science goes so far as to include conditions in foreign countries and to be able to judge from them whether corn, or wheat, or barley, or whatever product of the farm will be most in demand for export, and so command the readiest market and the best price. They have reduced farming to a science, and are teaching it as a science. The course in agriculture includes history and government, French and German, English, and the higher mathematics and music, so that our farmers of the next generation will not only know how to get the best and the most out of the ground, but will be able to hold their own for general information and polite accomplishments with the elect of any land.

Where They Are Taught.

Colleges of agriculture are maintained in universities, with the aid of national funds, in Arizona, Arkansas, California, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Maine, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, Ohio, Tennessee, Vermont, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming. In Massachusetts Harvard University has a school of Agriculture known as Bussey Institution. Besides these, agricultural and mechanical colleges have been organized in Alabama, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Virginia, and Washington. Separate institutions of this sort are maintained for colored students in Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia. Massachusetts has the only college whose curriculum is wholly devoted to agriculture.

In the universities in which courses in agriculture are maintained the general tendency is to make this course correspond in scope and thoroughness with those given in the other departments, to divide the instruction in agriculture among an increasing number of specialists, and to provide buildings and apparatus and illustrative material on a scale in keeping with those in other branches. At the same time efforts are making to bring the university in close touch with the masses of farmers through special schools, farmers' institutes, nature teachings, and other forms of university extension work. Along with this is the deepening and strengthening of the scientific and practical researches, carried on with a view of widening the world's knowledge of the facts, laws, and processes required for the improvement of agriculture.

Thirty Thousand Farmer Students.

The classes in agriculture in these schools range in enrollment from 200 to 900 students. The total enrollment is 30,000. The full course in agriculture covers four years, and practical farmers who know enough of other matters to make them intelligent and desirable citizens are being sent out from these colleges at the rate of 8,000 a year, or 80,000 in a decade. That they will assist wonderfully in the development of the country need not be doubted. Their knowledge and training will enable them to get more out of the earth and themselves than the tens of thousands of other earnest and honest men who have taken up homesteads and gone to farming without any knowledge of or preparation for the cultivation of the soil.

In an article in the Year Book of the Department of Agriculture on "Some Types of American Agricultural Colleges," A. C. True, Ph. D., director of the Government's experiment stations, describes the essential features of some of these institutions of learning. Of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, which is near Amherst, on a farm of 400 acres, situated in a most beautiful part of the Connecticut river valley, he says:

"In 1897 the college had permanent endowment funds aggregating $360,000, and its buildings, farms and equipment were valued at about $315,000. The college buildings include combined dormitory and class room building, chapel and library, laboratory for chemistry and physics, entomological laboratory with insectary, botanic laboratory and museum, drill hall, dormitory, president's house, several residences for professors, farm houses, boarding house, horticultural plant houses, and barn, including creamery and dairy laboratory. The experiment station also has a chemical laboratory, botanical laboratory with plant house, and barns.

Excellent Equipment.

"On the farm 150 acres are under cultivation with a variety of field crops, and the extensive college barn is stocked with 100 head of cattle and equipped with the most improved agricultural implements and machinery. The horticultural grounds cover 100 acres, with orchards, vineyards, small fruit and vegetable plantations, and groves of forest trees. Much attention is given to floriculture and landscape gardening, and the ample plant houses are well stocked with numerous varieties of exotics. Some eighty acres are devoted to the work of the experiment station, including numerous plat experiments with varieties of field and horticultural plants, fertilizers, methods of culture, etc., feeding experiments with animals, soil investigations, etc.

"The laboratories of the different scientific departments are well equipped with apparatus for experimentation and demonstration and with illustrative material, such as specimens of plants, insects, animals and machines, particularly those of importance in their relation to agriculture. The library of 18,000 volumes has been carefully collected with reference to the needs of an agricultural college, and is thoroughly catalogued and managed with a view to providing the students every facility for obtaining the information they desire to gather from books. It is one of the most extensive and valuable collections of books on the science and practice of agriculture to be found in this country.

"The instruction is given by a corps of eighteen professors and assistants. The chairs include botany, chemistry, agriculture, horticulture, zoology, veterinary science, mental and political science, English and Latin, modern language, mathematics and civil engineering, and military science and tactics. There is also a lecturer on farm law. The student is required to follow a definitely prescribed curriculum during three years, and in the last year of the course he is allowed wide latitude of choice among numerous specialties, English and military science being the only required studies."

For a time the college was open to men only, but women may now attend special elective courses in such branches as botany, entomology, floriculture, fruit culture, market gardening and dairying. Candidates for admission must be at least 16 years old and are required to pass examinations in English grammar, geography, United States history, physiology, physical geography, arithmetic, the metric system, algebra (through quadratics), geometry and civil government. The students as a rule room in the college dormitories and are boarded in clubs or private families. The expenses for room rent, board, fuel, washing and military suit for the college year are estimated to range from $150 to $300. Students performing labor at the college are paid by the State, and there are small endowment funds for the assistance of needy students. The students have their athletic associations and glee clubs and social amusements the same as at Harvard and Yale, and they are required to attend prayers and worship in the college chapel.

The Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts is a flourishing and well attended institution. It has afteen buildings, erected by the State at a cost of $500,000, and these include a hall for women. There are besides dwelling houses for professors and other employes, a creamery, barns, stables, seed houses and forcing houses. The college lands, of which 120 acres have been parked as college grounds, are 900 acres in extent. "The farm," Mr. True says, "consists of rolling prairie, bottom and woodland, and is stocked with good representatives of five breeds of horses, six breeds of cattle, seven breeds of sheep, and six breeds of hogs. These animals are used in class illustrations and for the various experiments in breeding and feeding for milk, meat, wool, growth, and maintenance, conducted by the experiment station as a department of the college. All the crops of the farm are grown for some educational purpose; all the animals are fed by rule and system, and the results of their management reported upon and used in glass work. Labor is not compulsory, but students in the agricultural courses are given work that is parallel with their studies. Some students pay for their board by work in the mornings and evenings. There is a practical working creamery and cheese factory in operation throughout the year. During the summer season from 15,000 to 25,000 pounds of milk are taken in daily and manufactured into butter and cheese. The number of students in 1897 was 573, including women."

MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGE BARN.

New York Method.

In New York State the Agricultural College is an annex of Cornell University, and in 1897 there were 127 students taking the farming course. The tuition in agriculture at Cornell is free, and the yearly expense of the student ranges from $300 to $500. The four

CLASS SCORING PIGS—IOWA STATE COLLEGE.

The Michigan State Agricultural College is the oldest in the country. It was established by an act of the Michigan Legislature in 1855, and for thirty years, like the Massachusetts College, had only an agricultural course. In 1890, under a materially increased income, a mechanical course was added, and later a woman's course. The laws of the State prescribe that it shall be a "high seminary of learning, in which the graduate of the common school can commence, pursue, and finish a course of study terminating in thorough theoretic and practical instruction in those sciences and arts which bear directly upon agriculture and kindred industrial pursuits."

The college land, comprising 676 acres, is divided into the farm of 230 acres, devoted to field crops grown under a system of rotation, forty-five acres of woodland pasture, 114 acres of lawns, gardens and orchards, 240 acres of forest, and 47 acres of experimental fields and plats. The farm is equipped with cattle, sheep and swine of the principal breeds. There are an arboretum of 150 species of trees, a botanic garden containing 1,200 species of native and foreign hardy herbaceous plants, with some shrubs, a grass garden of 200 species of grasses and clovers, and a weed garden of 100 species of the most troublesome weeds. The students in agriculture are required to work two and one-half hours a day on the farm or garden. The annual average expenses of students for board, room rent, heat, light, books, laboratory and other fees are estimated at $125. These expenses are often reduced by receipts for labor performed on the farm or elsewhere about the college. There are thirty or more professors and assistants in the faculty, and in addition to the chairs provided by the Massachusetts College there are professors of mechanical engineering, domestic economy, and household science.

Negroes Not Received.

The Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College is conducted on the same general plan, except that women and negroes are not received as students. Out of a total of 368 students entered last year 316 elected to take the agricultural course. By farm labor the students may reduce their expenses there to $100 a year.

Over 800 students took the farming course last year in the Kansas State Agricultural College, in Manhattan. The college farm comprises over 300 acres, and is well equipped with live stock. The State has supplemented the United States grants by the erection of a number of substantial buildings, which are valued at $350,000. Students of both sexes are admitted at 14 years of age, after passing an examination in reading, spelling, writing, arithmetic, geography, English grammar and United States history. Connected with the course of study here is industrial training in several of the arts, to which each student is required to devote at least one hour a day throughout almost the entire course. Young men may have farming gardening, fruit growing, woodwork, ironwork, or printing. Young women may take cooking, sewing, printing, floriculture, or music. Tuition is free, and the annual expenses of the student range from $100 to $200. Students are paid at the rate of 10 cents an hour for work.

years' course in agriculture is designed to afford an education as broad and liberal as that given by other departments of the university, and leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture. The college farm occupies 125 acres of land, and it is well stocked with dairy cows, sheep, horses, hogs, and poultry. The dairy building is equipped with modern appliances and machinery for making butter and cheese. Ten acres are devoted to the gardens, orchards, and nurseries of the horticultural department, which also has eight forcing houses. Candidates for admission to the Cornell agricultural course must be at least 16 years old and pass examination in English, geography, physiology and hygiene, history of the United States and England, Greece or Rome, plane geometry, elementary algebra and either Greek or Latin, and French or German, or advanced mathematics.

It is pretty much the same with all the other agricultural colleges. The student gets practical instruction and assists in practical work, obtaining at the same time the benefit of experiments made for the purpose of improvement in cultivation and in the quantity and quality of farm products. There is the same enthusiasm and, in some respects, extravagant devotion to athletics that obtains in other colleges, and there are musical, literary and social societies with more or less clannishness and secrecy. There are college papers and annuals, in which some serious journalistic work and not a little lampooning is done. The students are leading earnest and useful and happy lives, and they are judged by the same moral standards as are men and women throughout the country. They do much severe mental work, and enjoy the sports and social recreations of college life to the full.

With an institution of this sort in almost every State in the Union, the American farmer of the near future ought to be at the head of the procession of those who feed the world.

Frog Skin Leather.

A little while ago an ingenious tanner produced some pretty leather made of fish skin. In some instances, as in the mackerel and the bonito and the Red sea perch, he managed to retain very nearly the natural colors. But frog skin is the latest introduction, and while it is the thinnest of all known leathers it is at the same time the toughest.

Deep Down in the Earth.

The deepest hole in the earth is at Schladebach, near Ketschau, Germany. It is 5,735 feet in depth and is for geologic research only. The drilling was begun in 1880 and stopped six years later because the engineers were unable with their instruments to go deeper.

Cake at English Weddings.

The cake at English weddings is always a star feature. Usually at a fashionable affair it is fully six feet high and is a marvelous architectural structure of icing adorned with flowers and figures.

Some folks are so industrious that when they haven't anything else to do they worry.

AN OLD FAMILIAR FRIEND.

New Endings Suggested for a Well-Known Tale.

The character of the old joke has become a decidedly stormy one.

A few evenings ago at a little downtown gathering one of the girls said she had heard such a good story.

"It happened out in the East End only last week," she said. "A young woman whose home is on one of the prominent cross streets was receiving a call from a young man, and it came on to rain dreadfully. You must remember the night. Several times the young man offered to go, but each time it rained harder than ever. He lived about half a mile away, but, of course, it meant a thorough drenching to venture out. Finally the girl said, 'Well, it would be simply uncivilized to turn you out such a night as this. Brother Robert is away from home, and you can have his room just as well as not.' The young man demurred a little, but finally appeared to appreciate the force of the argument. 'Now, excuse me a moment or two,' said the young woman, 'and I will see that the apartment is made ready for you.' So she went upstairs and told her mother, and then stepped into the brother's room to see that it was in order. She wasn't gone more than five minutes, but when she went downstairs the young man had completely disappeared."

Everybody breathed hard when she reached this dramatic climax.

"The young woman looked around the room in a bewildered manner. Then she looked on the hat table in the hall. His hat wasn't there. She was quite dazed. She waited about in an aimless manner, vainly striving to solve the mystery. Suddenly she heard rapidly approaching footsteps. A second later there came a soft rap on the door. The young woman threw it open and there stood the youth! He was evidently soaked through and through. 'Why, where on earth have you been?' she cried."

At this point the narrator was abruptly interrupted.

"Pardon me," said one of the listeners, "but if I remember it aright, the young man said that he went home to secure his nightshirt."

"Excuse me," said another listener, "but the way I heard it he went home to ask his father if he wouldn't split the morning's supply of kindling wood for the kitchen stove."

"I hate to be contradictory," said the third interrupter, "but I'm sure I was told that he went home for his mamma's good night kiss!"

And the story wasn't finished.

The Deadly Upas Tree.

In thrilling stories of adventure many poor characters have met an untimely end beneath the leaves of the "deadly upas tree." Any one in fiction whoever came within the radius of its poisonous shade was then and there stricken to sudden death.

Up in the gardens of Peridenija, in the interior of Ceylon, there is a wonderful collection of tropical trees. There are nutmeg, cinnamon, cacao, rubber, clove, mango, bamboo, ebony, ironwood, guava, pepper, palm, cocaine, and nearly every other kind of a tree that grows in warm climates. Among them is a deadly upas tree.

On the afternoon of a certain day in 1898—to begin this story in the manner of the story books—two travel-stained wayfarers, weary and tired, repaired to the shady depths of the garden and sought shelter and repose from the blazing sun beneath a beautiful tree. Little did they suspect that the malignant influence of poisonous vapors were upon them, and so they rested on, smoking and talking peacefully. After an hour or so one of them discovered a little card pinned to the tree, and on close inspection discovered that it bore the name of the tree. It was the "Deadly Upas Tree!"

Whereupon the travellers posed and had a snap-shot made of themselves by a friendly native, who pressed the button. And then they went on their way rejoicing.

Why She Blushed.

Of course she was indignant when it dawned upon her that some one was trying to flirt with her. Yet there was no denying the fact that the man behind her had kept steadily after her ever since she had left the street car.

"And he's old enough to be in better business," she said to herself, indignantly. "I'll cross the street just to make sure whether he is really following."

She crossed the street and so did he. Then she turned on him.

"Sir," she said, "why do you persist in following me?"

He started, as if disturbed in the midst of some abstruse mental calculation, and for a minute seemed bewildered. Then he bowed courteously and said:—

"Madam, why do you persist in preceding me?"

Two doors further on he turned in, producing a latchkey as he did so, and showing in other ways that he had reached his destination. She turned back and went round the block rather than pass that house and her face was still red when she reached home. —Chicago Post.

The Terrors of the Red Ant.

The red ant is a bore fighter, and is one of the most annoying pests of the Indian jungle. Not only is its bite extremely painful, but its tenacity is such that, having once driven its mandibles into your flesh, it will allow itself to be pulled to pieces sooner than quit its hold. I was on one occasion (a traveller relates) witness of an encounter with these ants that, although serious enough for those directly concerned, had its amusing side. While out with a forest shooting party I observed the elephant in front of the one I was riding bear down a long overhanging creeper that depended from the boughs overhead. Almost immediately a colony of red ants descended in a shower on the heads of the unfortunate occupants of the guddee, or cushioned seat, on the elephant's pad. The scene that followed was a lively and exciting one. The victims, who were all natives, made frantic efforts to escape, for the insects, angry at having been thus rudely disturbed, attacked them furiously. One native man, yelling with pain, made a most undignified retreat by way of a back somersault over the elephant's tail, while the mahout driver leaped from his perch into a mass of undergrowth, where he made frantic attempts to free himself of his venomous attackers. The two or three remaining natives, after dancing wildly on the pad, pawing the air, thrashing themselves, and making other efforts to dislodge the intruders, finally slid down the side and howled for assistance. As for the elephant, which, by virtue of its tough hide, was antproof, it stood complacently looking on, and doubtless wondering what could have occasioned the strange antics of its riders. It took us a long time to clear the pad of the red invaders, which literally covered it; while as for the bitten natives, they had lost all further appetite for hunting that day.

THE FIRST SUSPENSION BRIDGE

Dire Necessity Was Its Mother in Korea in 1592.

The first suspension-bridge that can be dignified by that name was thrown across the Im-jin River in Korea in 1592. Here again dire necessity dictated the terms. The Japanese in P'yeng-yang, learning of the defeat of the army of reinforcement, determined to withdraw. China had begun to bestir herself in favor of Korea, and the Japanese, driven from P'yeng-yang by the combined Chinese and Korean armies, hastened southward toward Seoul. When the pursuers arrived at the Im-jin River, the Chinese general refused to cross and continue the pursuit unless the Koreans would build a bridge sufficiently large and strong to insure the passage of his 120,000 men in safety. The Koreans were famishing for revenge upon the Japanese, and would be stopped by no obstacle that human ingenuity could surmount. Sending parties of men in all directions, they collected enormous quantities of chik, a tough, fibrous vine that often attains a length of 100 yards. From this eight huge hawsers were woven. Attaching them to trees or heavy timbers let into the ground, the bridge-builders carried the other ends across the stream by boats, and anchored them there in the same way. Of course the hawsers dragged in the water in mid stream, but the Koreans were equal to the occasion. Stout oaken bars were inserted between the strands in mid-stream, and then the hawsers were twisted until the torsion brought them a good ten feet above the surface. Brushwood was then piled on the eight parallel hawsers, and upon the brushwood clay and gravel were laid. When the road-bed had been packed down firmly and the bridge had been tested, the Chinese could no longer refuse to advance; and so upon this first suspension bridge, 150 yards long, that army of 120,000 Chinamen, with all their Korean allies, camp equipage, and impedimenta crossed in safety. This bridge, like the tortoise-boat, having served its purpose, was left to fall of its own weight.—Harper's Magazine.

You Walk Very Fast.

Have you ever thought of the distance you travel while you are out for an hour's stroll?

Possibly you walk three miles in an hour, but that does not represent the distance you travel. The earth turns on its axes every twenty-four hours. In round figures call the earth's circumference 24,000 miles, and you must have travelled during your hour's stroll a thousand miles in the axial turn of the earth.

But this is not all. The earth makes a journey round the sun every year. Put the distance of our planet from the sun at 92,000,000 miles. The diameter is therefore 184,000,000 miles, and circumference described by the earth 578,000,000 miles. In other words, the earth travels around the sun each day 1,584,000 miles, and every hour—for instance, the hour during which you took your walk—the earth moved through 66,000 miles.

So, adding your three miles of leg travel to the hour's axial movement of the earth, this to the earth's orbital journal and that again to the earth's excursion with the sun, and you will find you have travelled within the hour 85,930 miles.

Girls Bring About a Dress Reform.

The girls working in the tin-plate mills at Bridgeport, Ohio, and in Martin's Ferry have won a great victory over the men, and full dress during working hours is required. It has been customary for many years for men working around the furnaces to remove their shirts during the hot summer weather. Now, however, the girls in tin houses have to work in the same inclosure, and they made indignant protests without avail. The girls finally got together on the subject, and at a secret meeting decided that the men must wear shirts or they would quit in a body. This ultimatum was sent to the office by a committee, and the result was that orders were posted forbidding men to remove their shirts in the rooms were the girls work. The young women are highly elated over their victory and propose to have other dress reforms before long.

The Cattle Queen of Sonora.

A woman known as the cattle queen of Samora is now in Tuscan, Arizona, completing a deal for the sale of 5,000 head of the fine stock cattle to a local broker for shipment to Kansas. The deal will bring her $75,000, but is only one of the many she will make this season. She is Senora R. M. Serano, a handsome and talented widow, with a fluent knowledge of French, as well as of her native Spanish. She has a home ranch in Senora forty miles square, stocked with a myriad of cattle and horses. She does her own selling as shrewdly as any stock yard professional, and states she only asks ten days' notice at any time to deliver 5,000 head of cattle at the border. She owns the largest mercantile house in Altar, Sonora, doing an immense jobbing business.

The Mistake of His Life.

"I shall not marry," he declared, "because if I were to be shipwrecked a wife would be right in the way!"

But he never was shipwrecked. Instead, he was pursued by wolves in Russia.

Now at once he became aware of the unwisdom of his choice.

"Alas!" he cried. "If I had a wife I might throw her out to the wolves and make my escape while they were devouring her!"

It is very difficult to anticipate exigencies.—Detroit Journal.

FARM BUILDINGS.

Here's a Farm or Village Dwelling Costing $1,800.

A most desirable house is here described. It is cheap, considering its many advantages and its extreme beauty as an adornment of a rural landscape. It is quite large enough for a family of eight without crowding, and on a pinch considerable room may be found in the attic, if it is enclosed and laid out as it may be. But in our study of this plan we have designed that all of the children shall have the whole of the attic for their part of the dwelling, for study or play, and there the toys will be kept and a baby house put together for them, and the little library of lesson and reading books will there be kept. This will be found one of the most valuable means of education for the children, and the mother or the big sister may go up and there make school and amusement for the little ones, where they will be safe, and as happy as the days are long.

FRONT VIEW.

The ground plan is 32x29 feet inside, not including the verandah. The sizes of the rooms are given on the floor plan, the verandah not being included. The cellar is 6 feet 6 inches in height, the first story is 9 feet and the second 8 feet 3 inches. The materials are: Cellar, stone below ground, brick or shaped stone above; first story, clapboards; second, square shingles; the hexagonal bottom of the shingle may be preferred by some, but it is really a useless expense. A large pantry is placed between the kitchen and dining-room, and saves many steps, as a slide door in the dining-room side opens into the dining-room. A large working table and sink are on the outside wall of the kitchen. Doors and a passage way lead from the kitchen to every part of the house, and by a wide, low tread stairway to the upper floor. The plan of the upper floor is not given, but it has four good-sized bedrooms, one at each corner of the house, all well lighted and aired, and provided with closets, and between the two on the kitchen side of the house there are a bathroom, water closet, and washstand. The bath is directly over the kitchen range, by which hot water from the cistern over the back porch may be lifted into the bath tub. Every bedroom has its own closet, and a large store-room may be made under the attic stairs which go up from the vestibule of the bathroom. So much in so little can only be crowded together, as in this case, with entire convenience and cheapness, by the most careful thought, great mechanical skill and a thorough architectural ability.

REAR VIEW.

PLAN OF MAIN FLOOR.

The pipes in the house are all collected together near the kitchen chimney, and freezing is thus avoided. A heater in the kitchen range will supply the heat for the bath room, and a cheap one in the parlor or dining-room, or both, if any Klondike family want to keep a nice warm climate in the house. Any carpenter will be able to make a bill of materials, such as will suit the farmer, who has but six hundred dollars to spend, but in time hopes to be able to finish his house as he may wish. The price mentioned includes everything for a complete house, except the heating apparatus mentioned, which itself will cost about two hundred dollars, in addition to the $1,800 estimated.

Fig. 1 shows the front and side of the house. Fig. 2 shows the rear view of it, with that part of it on the right hand side of the kitchen. The large window is that in the kitchen. The smaller ones are those shown in the floor plan, at the top and foot of the stairway, which is thus well lighted. The stairs have low easy treads and are amply wide.

New Code of Laws for Japan.

The Japanese have adopted a new code of laws which is said to be formed so much in accordance with Western ideas that Europeans and Americans have no reasonable excuses for refusing to submit to Japanese courts. French and German law has been chiefly been copied. The objection to the English and American system was that, as it is not codified, uniformity in the administration of justice is impossible; hence, the skill of the lawyer and the caprice of a judge have often more to do with shaping the verdict than the terms of the law.

Havana Clerks' Pay.

Clerks in Havana receive from $35 to $65 per month, according to their value, those speaking English commanding the best wages. A suit of clothes costs from $25 to $50, a dress suit anywhere from $60 to $100.

Only Thirty and Gray

How is this?

Perhaps sleepless nights caused it, or grief, or sickness, or perhaps it was care.

No matter what the cause, you cannot wish to look old at thirty.

Gray hair is starved hair.

The hair bulbs have been deprived of proper food or proper nerve force.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

increases the circulation in the scalp, gives more power to the nerves, supplies missing elements to the hair bulbs.

Used according to directions, gray hair begins to show color in a few days. Soon it has all the softness and richness of youth and the color of early life returns.

Would you like our book on the Hair? We will gladly send it to you.

Write us!

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the Vigor, write the doctor about it. He may be able to suggest something of value to you. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Photographers, Bring Your Cameras, And attend the Annual Convention of the Photographers' Association at Celeron, N. Y., July 17th to 22nd. One fare for round trip via Nickel Plate Road. Your choice of a Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains Daily. Ask Agents.

Strategy.

"Gracious, what is Percy Perkins wearing long hair at golf for?"

"It gives him a chance to say that foot-ball is really his game."

Binder Twine History.

The single strand binder twine, in general use to-day, was the original conception of Mr. William Deering, of the Deering Harvester Co., Chicago. The value of the idea is apparent, since without it the modern twine binder would be impossible. The Deering Harvester Company is the largest manufacture of binder twine in the world.

Nails Grow on Amputated Fingers.

It has been observed in the hospitals that nails on amputated fingers continue to grow.

Niagara Falls Annual Excursion.

On Tuesday, August 15th, the Nickel Plate Road will run its Seventeenth Annual Excursion to Niagara Falls. Tickets are good returning for fifteen days. Tickets to Toronto will be sold in connection with this excursion at $1.00 extra and to the Thousand Islands at $6.50 extra. The usual privilege of stop-over at Chautauqua Lake will be granted without extra charge. Secure your Sleeping Car reservations early. Tickets good returning on any one of our Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains. Remember the date. For further particulars inquire of Agents Nickel Plate Road.

Eagle Linen Letter Paper and Envelopes are the proper thing. Tell your printer to use this brand on your next order.

Low Rates to Pacific Coast Points.

The Nickel Plate Road sells exersion tickets at special low rates to San Francisco and all Pacific Coast Points. Through Palace Sleepers and Superb Dining Car Service via the Nickel Plate Road. Ask Agents.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

WANTED.—Cases of bad health that R·T·P·A·N·S will not benefit. Send 5 cents to Ripans Chemical Co., New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials.

Half the ships of the world are British. The best of them can be converted into ship of war in forty-eight hours.

A Happy Mother's Gratitude

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 26,783]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have many, many thanks to give you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. After first confinement I was sick for nine years with prolapsus of the womb, had pain in left side, in small of back, a great deal of headache, palpitation of heart and leucorrhœa. I felt so weak and tired that I could not do my work. I became pregnant again and took your Compound all through, and now have a sweet baby girl. I never before had such an easy time during labor, and I feel it was due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now able to do my work and feel better than I have for years. I cannot thank you enough."—MRS. ED. ENLINGER, DEVINE, TEX.

Wonderfully Strengthened.

"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills and feel wonderfully strengthened. Before using your remedies I was in a terrible state; felt like fainting every little while. I thought I must surely die. But now, thanks to your remedies, those feelings are all gone."—MRS. EMILIE SCHNEIDER, 1244 HELEN AVE., DETROIT, MICH.

FINCH'S CURE FOR CURES WHICH ALL ELSE FAILS. Black Cough Syrup. Throat Cough. One in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

SOME OTHER DAY.

There are wonderful things we are going to do,
Some other day;
And harbors we hope to drift into
Some other day.
With folded hands the oars that trail,
We watch and wait for a favoring gale
To fill the folds of an idle sail
Some other day.

We know we must toil if ever we win
Some other day,
But we say to ourselves there's time to begin
Some other day;
And so, deferring, we loiter on,
Until at last we find withdrawn
The strength of the hope we leaned upon
Some other day.

And when we are old and our race is run,
Some other day,
We fret for the things that might have been done
Some other day.
We trace the path that leads us where
The beckoning hand of grim despair
Leads us yonder out of the here,
Some other day.

Two Points of View.

STIFF and cold to the bones after his long ride on the outside of a 'bus from Fleet street to Chelsea, Sydney Egerton took out his keys with feelings of satisfaction and anticipation. Another ten seconds and he would be standing in the grateful glow of his own fireside, with a couple of loving arms flung round his neck, and the dearest little wifie in the world would brush away all the day's worries with an affectionate kiss.

"Most haste, less speed," he told himself, as he fumbled with his latchkey in the lock. At length he opened the door and was surprised to find the place in darkness.

"Monica," he called. "Monica."

There was no reply.

It was certainly very unusual for his wife to be out at that hour, and he hastily lit the gas to see if there was anything to explain her absence. Yes, there on his writing table lay a letter addressed, rather curiously, he thought, to himself as Sydney Egerton, Esq. Without pausing to consider the unnecessary formality of the suffix, he tore open the envelope and glanced through the letter.

"What's this?" he gasped.

His face was pale as death and he clutched the table for support, while the letter fluttered unheeded to the floor. After the first shock he grew a little calmer, and picking up the letter he read it through again, more carefully than before. He stood thinking for a minute or two, then thrusting the letter into his pocket he laughed uneasily.

"How absurd!" he muttered. "What a jealous little woman she is, to be sure. What's to be done? I'm sure I don't know. I'll go round and see Blair."

He rushed round to the next street, and by good luck found his friend at home, luxuriously stretched in front of a good fire with a pipe and a novel.

"Hallo, old man! What's up?" cried Blair. "You look scared."

"Scared, indeed! Read this."

Blair took up the letter, which ran as follows:

"To My Husband: I call you husband, but you are now my husband only in name. You have basely and cruelly deceived me, and I hope never to set eyes on you again, or to hold any communication with you. If your conscience does not tell you, you will find the cause of my flight in the bundle of letters lying in your desk. I saw them when I came to dust this morning. My eyes are opened now, and I feel that all your love has been but a sham and a mockery. Farewell! Your miserable and broken-hearted wife.

"MONICA EGERTON."

"H'm! Very awkward. Very awkward, indeed," said Blair, glancing over the top of the letter at his friend and stroking his chin meditatively.

"Awkward! Deuce take you! What do you mean?" cried Egerton, angrily.

"Don't get excited," replied Blair, calmly, as he laid down his pipe and put his back to the fire. "The letters, of course——"

"You don't mean to say—— Man alive, you know me better than that, I hope. You know that my wife is dearer to me than anything else in the world."

"Yes; but the letters?"

"Easily explained. They belong to a friend of mine whose Christian name is also Sydney, and they tell the story of an episode in his search for an ideal. With a cynical lack of feeling in the matter he offered them to me with the remark that as I was a bit of a writing man I might be interested in them as a 'human document.'"

"But didn't your wife know this?"

"No; unfortunately."

"Well, the only thing to do is to let her know."

"But how?"

Blair answered with a shrug.

"Look here, Egerton, don't worry yourself. Why, you're all of a tremble."

"Yes, my wife is such a sensitive, highly strung little creature that I feel afraid something may happen to her."

"Nonsense, old man, nonsense. In a day or two you will both be laughing over this little comedy of errors."

But, unfortunately, Blair's prophecy did not come true.

Egerton went home, but he did not sleep a wink all night, and early next morning he commenced making inquiries in all directions, but not the slightest straw of information could he find. He consulted the police. He put notices in the "agony columns" of the newspapers. Blair and he did everything in their power to find the missing one, but at length they came to the conclusion that she was in hiding somewhere in the vast wilderness of London, and reluctantly the sorrowing husband gave up the search, trusting that she would one day return to him, or that chance would give him a clew as to her whereabouts. But for Blair's optimistic assurances that all would come right in the end he would have given way utterly to despondency.

Week succeeded week, and month succeeded month, and still Egerton heard no news of his wife. His health and his work both suffered, and at Blair's suggestion he gave up his flat, warehoused the furniture, and went to live with his bachelor friend, whose naturally buoyant spirits and cheering sympathy helped somewhat to enliven his dark days of despair.

Blair was "in Somerset house," a phrase which described his occupation as definitely as was ever found necessary, and his salary was comfortably beyond the point at which the government performs a little sum in substraction—income minus income-tax—before handing its servants their checks. He possessed some talent, a lack of ambition, and a cultivated gift of taking things easy. But when he saw the pale face and the anxious expression of his friend he forgot his natural disinclination to take trouble, and he spared no effort in his endeavors to help Egerton discover the whereabouts of his wife. His theory was that as it was certain she was not staying with friends, she must be earning her own living, and he believed she was doing this by journalism.

"What is more likely, now, Egerton?" he asked. "Thrown on her own resources, she would naturally turn to an occupation of which she knew something. With her gifts and the knowledge of the inner working of the newspaper world which she must have picked up from you, she would have no great difficulty in finding employment."

This was only a theory, however, and difficult to put to any practical test.

One afternoon as Egerton sat at his desk busy with the proofs of an article he had written for the Strand Gazette, the door was suddenly flung open and Blair rushed in, exclaiming, "What is your wife's maiden name?"

"Carter. But——" replied Egerton, springing to his feet in astonishment.

"Carter! Ha! ha! Found at last!" cried Blair, triumphantly, as he danced about the room waving a copy of the Free Lance in his hand. "Read this."

He thrust the paper into his friend's hands and pointed to the prize short story. It was entitled, "The Living Past," and the name of the author was given as Miss Mary Carewright, with an address in Islington.

EDGERTON WAS UTTERLY DEJECTED.

Egerton gazed blankly at the paper and then at his friend.

"Don't you see, man?" cried Blair, excitedly. "Mary Cartwright—Monica Carter—same initials. But read the story."

Egerton took up the paper and raced through the story with feverish eagerness. It was his story—their story—there could be no doubt about it. It was from the woman's point of view, an utterly mistaken one, but one which nevertheless explained a great deal to him in what he had been tempted to look upon as an act of mad and unreasoning jealousy. He saw and for the first time realized the struggle in her mind between love and injured pride—the pride of a highly sensitive soul which will brook no compromise, whatever suffering may ensue. Reading between the lines, he could feel something of the agonies she had endured, of the struggle with herself. It was a cry from the heart and it went to his heart like a knife. At length he put down the paper with a deep sigh.

"Poor little woman!" he murmured. "What hideous suffering to lay her soul bare for the world's pleasure."

Blair stood by the fire in silence for some time. Finally he turned to Egerton, who was sitting at his desk with his head buried in his hands.

"Come," he said, laying his hand gently on the other's shoulder. "Put on your coat and follow me."

He obeyed mechanically and without question. Outside Blair called a cab and Egerton got in as though in a dream. As they sped along King's road he suddenly asked:

"Where are we going, Blair?"

"To Islington, of course."

After what seemed to the impatient Egerton an interminable drive, the cab drew up at the corner of a shabby little street. The two men sprang out, telling the cabman to wait. Surely they had made a mistake. No; it was the address given in the Free Lance. They stared in surprise. It was one of those miscellaneous little shops where confectionery, mineral waters, and newspapers are sold. They went inside, Blair taking the lead.

"Does Miss Cartwright live here?" he asked the old woman who was serving behind the counter.

"No, sir! but she has her letters addressed here."

"Of course you have her real address then?"

The old woman looked at him and then at Egerton somewhat suspiciously. She shook her head slowly.

"No, sir; she calls for her letters or else sends some one."

Blair put down a half-crown on the counter, and bending over confidentially he said:

"Come, now. You can tell us her address if you like, I'm sure."

The woman's eyes glistened, but she still shook her head.

"When was she here last?" asked Egerton.

"Let me see," she replied. "Was it yesterday or the day before? Oh, yes, it was yesterday."

Blair turned to his friend.

"Well, we can't do anything more to-night. You might write a note and leave it."

Egerton wrote a hasty letter to his wife and promised the shopkeeper a half sovereign if she telegraphed to him immediately Miss Cartwright called for her letters.

He passed a fearfully anxious week, but no telegram came. He went over again to Islington, but his letter was still waiting in the shop, and he returned to Chelsea in despair. He was utterly dejected, but Blair did his best to cheer him and help him to keep up his courage.

"There's no need to be so down in the mouth," he argued. "At any rate, you know that your wife is living, and you may hear from her at any moment."

They discussed the matter from all points of view, and Blair made numerous suggestions. All at once a brilliant idea struck him, and Egerton seized on it at once. He suggested that Egerton should write a tale for the Free Lance, telling the same story that his wife had done, but from the man's point of view. They spent the rest of the evening in talking over the story and making notes. Egerton devoted the whole of the next day to it, and in the evening, after Blair had given his approval, he posted it to the Free Lance.

Egerton had hidden his own story under the veil of fiction, but he was sure that if his wife read it she would realize the truth. As he felt he wrote, and all he asked was that she should read what he had written.

The days of waiting which followed were maddening in the way they dragged their slow length along, and Egerton felt that he would give anything to know the fate of his story. Publishing day arrived at last. He was overjoyed to find that he had been successful, but it was not for the sake of seeing himself in print, for that is a joy which soon palls. Now he hoped that his wife would at last learn the truth.

He was too excited to work and he felt almost afraid to go home by himself. He called on Blair and they went home together. Blair made a hearty dinner, but Egerton was in too nervous a state to eat a mouthful, and kept rushing to the window at every footstep. The suspense began to tell on him, and he grew almost hysterical.

"Ah, there's a telegraph boy," he cried, pulling the curtains aside. "By Jove, he's coming here!"

A heavy knock sounded at the front door. He rushed out and met the servant coming upstairs.

"A telegram for you, Mr. Egerton."

He tore open the envelope with trembling fingers. The message was brevity itself, but it spoke volumes to the happy man.

It said: "Can you forgive me? Monica."—Lloyd's Weekly.

HARD-WON BET.

The Trick Wasn't Nearly So Easy as It Looked.

"The hardest-won bet I ever made," remarked the traveling man, as he shook the ashes off his cigar, "was to carry four bricks half a mile. That sounds like a simple thing to do, doesn't it? Well, you try it and you will find out whether it is or not. Of course, the manner of carrying the bricks is important. A man bet me that I couldn't carry two bricks in each hand from where we were back to the hotel and put them up on the bar. The bricks were to be put side by side and grasped, two in each hand, between the thumb and fingers, the fingers pointing down. It was not allowable to stop and rest, nor to put the bricks down. Well, thought I, that's $2 easily earned, so I took the bet and started. For a quarter of the distance it was easy, and I already felt those two silver dollars in my pocket. But then my fingers began to grow tired. The muscles between my forefingers and thumbs were soon aching terribly. My arms began to pain me and to throb like mad. I found myself setting my teeth together and the cords in my neck were in a high state of tension. When I came within a hundred yards of the hotel there was scarcely an inch in my whole body that was not aching as if I had been stuck full of pins. I don't know how I managed to go that last little distance. I could no longer stand erect, and I was trembling like a leaf, and yet the other fellow was alongside, laughing as if to split his sides. And when I got into the bar-room it was all I could do to raise first one hand and then the other, and put the bricks on the counter. I know that I couldn't have gone fifty feet further. I got the $2, but the next day I could scarcely move, and I didn't get over the soreness for a week. It looks easy, but just you try it."

TOM EDISON'S FIRST CHECK.

Didn't Know It Had to Be Indorsed, and Money Was Refused Him.

It is not everyone that understands the ordinary system of banking and the proper thing to do with a bank check. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe was sorely puzzled over the huge check her publishers paid her for her royalties in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and her husband could not tell her how to get money on it. So, also, was it with Tom Edison when he got his first check. When he completed his model of the now famous "ticker" he submitted it to the president of a telegraph company, who asked him to leave it for examination. Edison was out of money and his landlady had warned him for the last time. He had decided to ask $5,000 for his invention, but when the president at the next interview asked his price his courage oozed away, and he faltered out that he would like the company to make an offer.

"How would $40,000 suit you?" said the president.

"What!" exclaimed the young wizard, "all in money?"

"Certainly; you can have it now."

"All right."

A check was drawn and handed over to Edison with these words: "That is a check for $40,000. Go to the bank around the corner and they will give you the money."

At the bank he got into the long line and worked up to the paying teller's window. Then he pushed the check over the sill. The teller saw that it was not indorsed and pushed it back with fitting remarks, which Edison did not understand, he being even then slightly deaf. He retired crestfallen and the thought dawned upon him that he had been swindled. He had another scene with his landlady that night and visited the telegraph president the next morning in sheer desperation. He told of his experience at the bank and begged for his money or his model. He was properly identified at the bank, indorsed the check and got his money in big bills.—New York Press.

SHEAR NONSENSE

"Does the course of their true love run smooth?" Yes, indeed; there are banks on both sides."—Broklyn Life.

"How do people begin divorce proceedings, anyway?" "By getting married, I believe."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A young historian: "Now, David, how did Washington's army cross the Delaware?" "Please, sir, with hardships."—Bazar.

Sea Captain—"There is no hope! The ship is doomed! In an hour we will all be dead!" Seasick Passenger—"Thank heaven!"—New York Weekly.

"It isn't injurious to eat a clove once in a while, is it, doctor?" "Well, that depends a great deal on the spirit with which you do it." — Chicago Tribune.

Bridget—"If yez don't pay me the wages yez owe me, Oi'll kape dunning yez till yez do." Deacon Hardduppe—"Well, dun, good and faithful servant."—Life.

Ethel—"The man I marry must be a hero—one who can beard the lion in his den!" Percy—"I see; kind of a combination circus-man and barber!"—Puck.

Jones—"When she married him she started in to make his home a paradise on earth." Johnson—"Did she?" Jones—"Yes, she' salways harping."—Kansas City Independent.

Mrs. Skimpen—"I think Mr. Smith must have liked the beefsteak pie. He had two helpings of it." The tactless boarder—"Perhaps he did it on a wager."—Boston Transcript.

"I'd like to look over some of your collars," said the young man, in the haberdasher's. "Oh, then you want to see some of the low styles?" replied the dealer.—Yonkers Statesman.

"Yes," said the A. D. T. manager, pointing at one of his employes, "that boy has grown old in the service." "And," said the visitor, "while delivering rush messages, I suppose."—Chicago Daily News.

Tonsorial Artist—"I am using a new kind of shaving soap. Most of the gentlemen that get shaved here say it's the best I've ever had." Customer—"Well, that's merely a matter of taste."—Chicago Tribune.

Casey—"Dooley offered to prove to me in black an' white that Oi war a fool." Clancy—"Phwat happened thin?" Casey—"Oi proved to him in black an' blue thot he war a liar."—New York Journal.

"Yes, that's the bride." "Very young, isn't she?" "Nineteen, I believe." "Who are those middle-aged women with her?" "Those are her unmarried sisters. She's chaperoning them."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mrs. Honkley (severely)—"It's not necessary for me to ask where you were and what you were doing last night." Mr. Honkley (brightening)—"I'm glad of that, for I couldn't do it to save myself."—Chicago News.

Crags—"Did you tell Simpers you thought I was a man without any balance?" Butts—"Well, I naturally inferred that if you had a balance you would draw on it for the amount you owe me."—Philadelphia North American.

Fuddy—"Heckle complains that after all his labor in behalf of the public he gets nothing for it." Duddy—"And that's more than he deserves. Nothing is too good for him. I have heard him say so himself."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Greene—"Funny how mothers will believe that their own children are so much better than anybody else's children." Mrs. Gray—"I know it. If all people, now, were like my little Georgie, it would not be so strange."—Boston Transcript.

Widow Jones—"How would my little Johnny like a new papa?" Johnny (aged 5)—"Oh, you needn't shove the responsibility onto me, ma. It isn't a new papa for me, but a new husband for yourself that you are thinking of."—Boston Transcript.

"What do you think of my son's prospects in life?" inquired the young man's father. "Well," answered the professor, "he may be a great and financially successful politician one of these days. He says 'I don't remember' to almost every question I ask him."—Washington Star.

First Chicago Matron—"I pity that poor Mr. Porkington. His wife is such an arbitrary, self-willed creature that I believe she is making life a nightmare for him." Second Chicago Matron—"Yes, the conceited creature! She treats him as if she never had a husband before."—Judge.

One of the Natives—"Talk about healthy locations! Why, when I came to this town I only weighed about sixty pounds. Now look at me. I don't weigh an ounce less than two hundred!" Guest—"Been here long?" Native—"Not very long. Let's see. I'm thirty-eight now. It was about twenty-nine years ago."—Boston Transcript.

"Mammy," said Pickaninny Jim, "I's gwinter be one er dese hypnotizers." "Whut's dem?" "Yoh look somebody in de eye, an' he des nach'ly goes ter sleep." "Well, don't you go was'in yoh time. Dah's sleepfulness 'nuff in dishere worl' an'—" she paused suddenly, and after a moment of thought added—"Jimmy, does you 'magine you could do dat to a chicken?"—Washington Star.

At a Sewing School.

Little Rosie was at sewing school last Thursday. She had never tried to sew, as she is only 3½ years old. After looking on a while she says:

"Teacher, please harness a needle for me, and I'll try to make something."

Bullet of Great Force.

A rifle of very small bore, invented by Capt. Daudeteau of the French army, fires a bullet with such force that it will penetrate a horse, from head to tail, at a distance of a mile and a quarter.

Electric Signaling on Railways.

Quite a series of remarkable inventions have recently been announced from Austria, but the latest is one of the most practically useful of all of them. A young man has invented an electrical signaling apparatus for railways. It is acknowledged by specialists to be a very important improvement. The invention causes the ringing of an automatic electric bell attached to the engine when danger is threatened by an approaching or a proceeding train. The discovery renders certain signal stations unnecessary, and notifies danger to the engine-driver without obliging him to attend to signals while driving.

Curious Custom.

In China guests at dinners run around between the courses. This is supposed to keep the digestion in good condition, but the hustling American needs something else, and there is nothing better than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. If a man or woman is suffering with constipation, indigestion or any stomach trouble, it's their fault if they don't get well.

A Lucky Deprivation.

A schoolmaster in a village school had been in the habit of purchasing pork from parents of his pupils on the occasion of the killing of the pig. One day a small boy marched up to the master's desk and inquired "if he would like a bit of pork, as they were going to kill their pig." The schoolmaster replied in the affirmative. Several days having elapsed and hearing nothing of the pork, the master called the boy up to him and inquired the reason he had not brought it. "Oh, please, sir," the boy replied, "the pig got better."

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Cures swollen feet, blisters and callous spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for in-growing nails, sweating, hot, aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Chicago vs. St. Louis.

Della—Taking much outdoor exercise now, Sadie?

Sadie—Yes, I covered five miles last Sunday.

Della—With your bike?

Sadie—No; with my feet.

Della—Look here, Sadie, how many hides does it take to make you a pair of shoes, anyhow?

We will forfeit $1,000 if any of our published testimonials are proven to be not genuine. THE PISO CO., Warren, Pa.

She Hadn't Heard of It.

Mr. Wabash—Do you think the north pole will ever be found, Miss Olive?

Miss Olive (of St. Louis)—Why, I didn't know it was lost.

Ladies' and Gents' Aluminum Memo Books. Your initial and floral design; hand engraved, 10c by mail STANDARD ALUMINUM CO., (INC.) 115-121 E 13th St. New York City.

Alexander Stewart was worth $30,000,000 at the time of his death.

Chautauqua Lake Excursion

Via the Nickel Plate Road. Tickets will be available July 28th, good returning until August 29th, at special low rates. Do not miss this opportunity of visiting this beautiful resort. A Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains Daily. Palace Sleeping Cars. Superb Dining Car Service. Elegant Equipment. Ask Agents.

Peter Cooper was worth $6,000,000 at the time of his death.

"Do Not Grasp at the Shadow and Lose the Substance."

Many people are but shadows of their former selves, due to neglect of health. Look out for the blood, the fountain of life, the actual substance; keep that pure by regular use of Hood's Sarsaparilla and robust health will be the result. Be sure to get only Hood's, because

Hood's Sarsaparilla Never Disappoints

O K FODDER TIE. Perfect knot. No slip. Sure. Easily tied and untied. Furnished with string or without. Will last a lifetime. More than pays for itself in saving of string. Good agent wanted in every township. Send 2-cent stamp for sample. O. K. Mfg. Co., Delaware, Ohio.

PORTO RICO! Are you interested in the development of this fertile island? Do you seek information concerning its rare possibilities? Our corps of able and experienced men is at your service. Write us for information in any line of business, employment or pleasure seeking. Inclose postal order for $3.00 to cover expenses. Porto Rico Bureau of Information, San Juan, P. R.

Hall's Catarrh Cure Is a constitutional cure. Price 75 cents.

If our neighbors would do things as we think they should it would be much easier to love them.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

CRITICAL PERIODS

In Woman's Life Are Made Dangerous by Pelvic Catarrh.

MRS. MATHILDE RICHTER.

Mrs. Mathilde Richter, Doniphan, Neb., says:

"I suffered from catarrh for many years, but since I have been taking Pe-ru-na I feel strong and well. I would advise all people to try Pe-ru-na. As I used Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin while I was passing through the change of life, I am positively convinced your beneficial remedies have relieved me from all my ills."

Pe-ru-na has raised more women from beds of sickness and set them to work again than any other remedy. Pelvic catarrh is the bane of womankind. Pe-ru-na is the bane of catarrh in all forms and stages. Mrs. Col. Hamilton, Columbus, O., says: "I recommend Pe-ru-na to women, believing it to be especially beneficial to them."

Send for a free book written by Dr. Hartman, entitled "Health and Beauty." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhœa and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhœa, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

WABASH

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS To Western Points,

July 18, August 1 and 15, Sept. 5 and 19, Oct. 3 and 17, 1899.

On the above dates the WABASH will sell from its principal stations East of Chicago and Toledo, Ill., LOW RATE HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSION Tickets to points West, South, and Southwest, granting a liberal return limit. A postal card addressed to any Wabash Ticket Agent, or to either of the following Passenger Representatives will bring you prompt and explicit information regarding rates, routes, time of trains, through car service, condition of tickets, etc., etc.

REMEMBER

The WABASH is the only line east of Chicago and St. Louis giving its patrons seats without extra charge, in ELEGANT RECLINING CHAIR CARS running through to St. Louis and Kansas City without change.

This is your chance to go West cheap. Communicate with us.

F. E. DOMBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
A. F. WOLFSCHLAGER, P. & T. A. Detroit, Mich.
TEO'S FOLLEN, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
GEO. D. MAXFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. B. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

OUR BUSINESS.

LOANS: If you desire to loan money in the West, write us.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES: If you want to move West, write us.

MINING: If you want to make money in mining, write us.

THE INTERNATIONAL INVESTMENT CO., Suite 610 People's Bank Block, DENVER.

Ample references furnished, if desired.

LADIES The Portuline! Monthly Regulator never fails; write for free box; inclose 6c in stamps. New York Chemical Co., Box 70, Milwaukee, Wis.

P. W. N. U. - - No. 28—'99.

When Writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

THE DEERING IDEAL MOWER

Cuts Repair Expenses In Two.

REPAIR EXPENSE ACCOUNT

There are many reasons why the Ideal is the most economical mower on the market:

The IDEAL saves time by cutting more in a day than any other.

The IDEAL saves power by transmitting it direct from wheels to knives through simple gears.

The IDEAL saves horse flesh by virtue of genuine bicycle bearings, which lessen the draft to a minimum.

The IDEAL saves hay by giving the ground a clean, close shave.

Time, power, horse flesh and hay represent money. The IDEAL saves all. The repair bill for the DEERING IDEAL MOWER is a revelation to those who have worried through past harvests with the wrongly-constructed, breaking-down kind. The IDEAL cuts repair expenses in two.

Deering

DEERING HARVESTER CO., Chicago.

"IF AT FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED, TRY SAPOLIO"

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

WABASH

GOING EAST.

No. 2	6:25 am—Daily
No. 8	8:34 am—Daily
No. 4	4:59 pm—Daily
No. 70 (local freight)	2:05 pm—ex Su
No. 96	11:35 am—ex Su
No. 98	8:30 pm—ex Su

GOING WEST.

No. 1	10:21 am—Daily
No. 9	5:30 am—Daily
No. 3	7:48 am—Daily
No. 71 (local freight)	9:15 am—ex Su
No. 95	6:02 pm—ex Su
No. 97	7:52 am—ex Su

All these trains stop for passengers.
For rates, tickets, time tables, etc. apply to
I. M. ZENT, Agent, Auburn, Ind
Chas. M. Hays, V. Pres. and Gen't Manager.
G. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

Notice is hereby given that I, Daniel M. Link, Commissioner appointed by the DeKalb Circuit Court to sell real estate in a certain case entitled Aram P. Foltz and Levina R. Shoup vs. William Foltz et al, will offer at private sale to the highest bidder, on Saturday, July 22, 1899,

at the court house door, Auburn, Indiana, the following described real estate, to-wit:

The west half (½) of the southeast quarter (¼) of section thirty-five (35), township thirty-three (33) north, range thirteen (13) east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana. The east and west halves of said described real estate, by order of the court, will be sold separately.

TERMS OF SALE.

One-third cash, the balance in three equal annual payments. Deferred payments to be evidenced by interest-bearing notes waiving relief and secured by mortgage on the premises sold.

D. M. LINK, Commissioner.

DITCH.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Notice is hereby given that the Auditor of DeKalb county Indiana will, on

Friday, July 14, 1899,

at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m., in the office of the Auditor in the court house in the town of Auburn, Indiana, receive sealed proposals for the construction of the William Knight ditch No. 641, located in Concord township, DeKalb county, Indiana, and described as follows, to-wit:

Commencing 1300 feet north and 100 feet west of the southeast corner of the west half of the southeast quarter of section 8, township 33 north and range 14 east, in said DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and from thence in an easterly direction ending at station No. 222 plus 65 feet, containing 22,365 feet; said ending point being in the St. Joe river 200 feet south and 900 feet west of the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 15, township 33, range 14 east, in DeKalb county, Indiana.

LATERAL DITCH

Commencing at the junction of the Saylor & Koch ditch, said point being 40 rods north and 50 rods east of the southwest corner of the northwest quarter of section 9, township 33 north range 14 east, in DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and from thence in a southwesterly direction ending in the main ditch 25 feet below station 3 on land of Reuben Koch; said section containing 3305 feet.

Said work will be sold in two sections as described above and to the lowest responsible bidder; but no bid will be entertained which exceeds the estimated cost of construction as set forth in the engineer's and viewers' report.

All bidders must be present or represented on day of sale to make arrangements for contract and bond.

All contractors will be required to keep their sections well staked and numbered and comply with all requests made by the engineer or surveyor in charge. Also all contractors will be required to enter into contract and execute a bond in compliance with the provisions of law. (Acts of 1893, page 339.)

Specifications of said work can be seen at the County Auditor's office in Auburn.

All of said ditch must be completed by November 1, 1899.

The Auditor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

FRANK P. SEILER,
Auditor DeKalb County, Indiana.

GAVE UP ALL HOPE.

Louis Pricket, 509 Bryan Ave., Danville, Ill., writes: I had suffered several years with asthma and after trying a great many remedies I had given up all hope. I was advised to try Foley's Honey and Tar. It immediately stops the coughing spells and I get my breath more freely. It is the only medicine that ever gave me relief.

The Mammoth C. E. Convention.

E. M. Bishop returned last night from Detroit, and reports the international meeting of Endeavorers as inspiring and enthusiastic beyond description. Fifteen thousand voices united in singing,

"Our fathers' God, to Thee,
Author of liberty,
To Thee we sing."

Not only "Tent Endeavor," but churches, factories, wharves and public squares were utilized as meeting places for the vast throngs. Ten minutes of silent prayer, when several thousand waited in fulfillment of the text: "The Lord is in His holy temple; let all the earth keep silence before Him," was an experience never to be forgotten. Meetings were also held with the inmates of the house of correction and other institutions.

The Appetite of a Goat

Is envied by all poor dyspeptics whose Stomach and Liver are out of order. All such should know that Dr. King's New Life Pills, the wonderful Stomach and Liver Remedy, gives a splendid appetite, sound digestion and a regular bodily habit that insures perfect health and great energy. Only 25 cents at any drugstore.

William's Kidney Pills

Has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your Kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your Kidneys and Bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire pass urine? William's Kidney Pills will impart new life to the diseased organs, tone up the system and make a new man of you. By mail 50 cents per box.
WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

MICA AXLE GREASE lightens the load—shortens the road.
helps the team. Saves wear and expense. Sold everywhere.
MADE BY STANDARD OIL CO.

BINDER TWINE Our famous BLUE LABEL BRAND. It's the best in the world. Prices will surprise you. We deliver from Chicago, Omaha or St. Paul, as desired. Write for prices and samples.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared for Piles and Itching of the private parts. Every box is warranted. By druggists, by mail on receipt of price. 50 cents and $1.00. WILLIAMS MANUFACTURING CO., Props., Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Thursday's Daily.

—Carey Boyer is able to resume work again at the Eckhart factory.

—W. R. Davis went to St. Joe this afternoon to deliver a piano to a customer.

—If you have good live elm bolts for sale it will pay you to read the advertisement of the Greenler Co. 25-30.

—Mr. and Mrs. Brown Clark of St. Joseph, Mo., arrived yesterday and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Snyder.

—Hon. F. H. VanAuken remembered the printer's subscription books this week, and has thanks for the same.

—The man who will engage in or encourage any form of political dishonor is by so much a traitor to his country.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—Miss Maggie Snyder went to Detroit last evening to attend the national Christian Endeavor convention. She will return about Saturday.

—T. C. Ford came home last evening from St. Marys, O. He brings word that Dr. and Mrs. Collett are well and expect to come up here on a visit in a short time.

—John G. Ashley and wife of New Haven spent the Fourth with the family of Engelbert Ashley at this place They found many other warm friends to welcome them.

—Old Mrs. Topper whose home was in the south side of the county, died yesterday and was buried today, the funeral being at Hopewell church south of Jackson Center and interment in Woodlawn.

—Bernie Trentman is expected to reach Auburn over the Wabash tomorrow evening with the remains of Eugene Girardot and the latter will probably be taken direct from the train to the Catholic cemetery for interment.

—A. G. Vance, the well-known Anderson horse buyer who has visited Auburn several times during the last year, lost six horses last week by catarrhal trouble. Among the lot was a pair of animals he had sold for $425.

—Marion William, son of William and Annie line, was born January 11, 1899, died July 2, 1899, aged 5 months and 21 days. The funeral was held Tuesday, July 5, Rev. W. L. Meese officiating. Interment at Woodlawn cemetery.

—Rev. Johnson pastor of the M. P. church at St. Joe, Mrs. Sheffer, Misses Bessie Patterson and Addie Widney, called on Auburn friends yesterday and took the afternoon train for Detroit to attend the Christian Endeavor convention.

—The men who served in the south with the 157th regiment will have a chance to serve in the Philippines, and several company K boys are seriously considering the matter of enlisting. Other companies will be represented among the new recruits.

—Mrs. Geo. Chapman of Warsaw and and her children are guests of the Editor's family today. Harold and Berenice have both grown very much, both are in school and doing nicely. Mr Chapman is working at his trade. Mr. Calkin has rented the Lakeside Park and has his hands full with that and teaching the band and giving lessons in music at Pierceton and other towns.

—This man knows what he is talking about, and is evidently not a tenderfoot in the newspaper business. "Send in your items of news when they are fresh. We don't like to publish a child's birth after it's weaned, marriages after the honeymoon is over, a death after the widow is married again, nor the notice of an entertainment when the job work is done elsewhere and the editor is charged for admission.

—The South Bend Times says that "the Lake Shore is preparing to build the six or seven miles of track in Noble county that remain to be constructed to make it a double tracked road all the way between Chicago and Toledo. It is said that the reason the stretch of track has not before been built is that the company argued that it was a single track system and paid taxes only on one main track, while the other main track, where built, was rated as a siding; and it is further explained that the pressure has become so strong from tax appraisors and the officials of other roads that it was determined to abandon the subterfuge and build the remaining few miles."

There is No ? About it.

No question indeed with those who have used it, but that Foley's Kidney Cure is absolutely reliable for all kidney and bladder diseases.

Home at Last.

Eugene Girardot's remains reached here this morning on the 6:25 train over the Wabash. Quite a crowd had gathered there, besides the relatives for the unfortunate young man had many friends, and his tragic death had arrested the attention of our people. The train came in a trifle late and the reception by the relatives was an extremely sad one. Of course the coffin was a sealed one. Bernie Trentman was in charge and had been met at Peru by his brother Harry. Bernie has had a long and weary quest to recover the remains of his wife's brother and satisfy the red tape of the Mexican authorities. When at last he had secured his permits, he started northward. His wife had come north when he left Smithville for Mexico, and they met again at the station this morning. Services were held at the Catholic church at 8 a. m. and the interment was in the Catholic cemetery just north of town.

Friday's Daily.

—The Greenler Co., wants your live elm bolts. See their advertisement elsewhere.

—Mrs. Anna Dawson is visiting in the home of her father Mr. Isaac Ditmars, South of Auburn.

—Mrs. George Chapman and children went to Waterloo today to visit Dr. Carpenter and other friends.

For sores, ulcers, burns, salt, piles, nothing so good as Banner Salve, the most healing medicine in the world. 25c.

—The Holcomb woodenware and bed spring factory at Ashley has been incorporated with a capital stock of $3,000.

—The storks were about yesterday afternoon; Dr. Baxter reports a baby boy born to Mr. and Mrs. George Hensinger.

—Miss Maggie Siebert went over to Spencerville today to visit for a time with the many relatives and friends she has there.

—Dr. Stamets says that Tom Doty, who blew off a part of one finger with a big fire cracker on the Fourth, is getting along nicely.

—Henry Frick, one of the pioneer farmers of the county, died at his home North of Waterloo Tuesday night aged about eighty years.

"I have received more benefit from one bottle of Foley's Kidney Cure than from months of treatment by physicians" writes V. B. Conklin of Bowerstville, O

—Remember, that when in need of a vehicle of any kind you can always find what you want at D. N. Myer's sales room, in Auburn. Surreys, Bug-Phaetons, etc.

—Ashley will have a carnival this year, commencing August 29 and closing September 1. Officers have been elected and the arrangements will soon be under way.

—The Maccabees of Ashley will have a big meeting July 27, when the leading great camp officers are expected to be present. A number of new members will be initiated.

—Frank Link of Bensonia, Mich., is here for a visit with relatives. He is a son of John Link, a former resident of DeKalb county and well known to many of our readers.

—Walter Hartman was up from Roann today. He reports all well, and the factory busy night and day. They now employ 125 men, and sell their product as fast as it can be made.

—W. H. Keckler of the south end lumber yards, was a caller last evening. He has built up an excellent trade in lumber, shingles, lath, lime and all kinds of builders' supplies. He is a wideawake business man who is a master in his line of trade.

—Mr. Frank Dawson of Delphi, this state, is at present at the home of his mother, the widow of the late Hezekiah Dawson. Her serious and protracted illness demands the attention of friends. Mrs. Dawson is one of the best and highly respected of Richland's citizens.

—Capt. Lahnum was chosen a member of the executive committee of the permanent organization of the 157th Indiana regiment formed at Plymouth Tuesday. The organization is to be known as "Studebaker's Tigers—One-hundred and Fifty-Seventh Indiana Volunteer Infantry Association."

—There was a case for the surgeons, here day before yesterday. A young man had a serious time with internal hemorrahage at Dr. Stamets' office. Dr. Stamets and Dr. Swarts worked with him more or less that afternoon and night, and Dr. Casebeer was there a part of the time. But we understand he may yet recover.

—Miles Baxter and C. E. Baxter have returned from their fishing trip in Lagrange county. They brought back a good string of fish, and let another string get away. Ed hadn't learned to tie a true lover's fish knot and the fish got loose from the boat, and in reaching the whole length of his arm out into the "vasty deep" to recover the string, he nearly upset the boat.

—Ashley Times:—Last Sunday morning at 4 o'clock a ten pound girl baby was born in the ladies' waiting room of the Wabash Depot here. The mother, a Mrs. Hughes, was on her way from Detroit to join her husband in Chicago. Dr. Kaadt, the Wabash surgeon, was in attendance. The mother and baby were brought up town as soon as possible and are now in the care of Mrs. Goumond and both are doing finely.

—Harry Shull, struck his first "out from the shoulder" a week or so ago, with the result that the outside bone of his left hand was broken near where it joins the little finger by the last joint. Not knowing it was broken, he let it go. Finally seeing something was wrong, he called last evening on Dr. Swarts, who found what the trouble was and bound it up with the necessary supports, and it will soon be all right.

—We today received a letter from F. K. Blake of Chicago on the printed heading of which is, "Alderman Twenty-sixth Ward," and this again reminds us of the graceful way the DeKalb boy has of getting into high places. But there is one thing usually attributed to aldermen, and that is fatness, which we believe F. K. can never attain. And yet, who knows but prosperity and good living may some day swell him out to "aldermanic proportions.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Saturday's Daily.

—Levi Jackson and wife were in town Saturday.

—Rum is first a besotting and then an upsetting sin.

—Ask any druggist for a free Peruna Almanac for the year 1899.

—H. C. Swank of Paulding, O., was in town today on a business mission.

—Wm. Armstrong put the COURIER under obligations for subscription today.

—Right never compromises nor apologizes. God is always on the side of right.

—There seems to be an upward tendency in prices in everything except newspapers.

—At the meeting of the state bar association at Indianapolis this week Jas. E. and James H. Rose were admitted to membership.

—Mr. and Mrs. Florence Buchanan of Concord were in town today visiting the latter's mother, Mrs. W. E. Rush, who is in poor health.

—Frank Hilkey is the latest new subscriber to the old reliable COURIER. That is the proper way for a young man to start out in life.

—The Greenler Co., Auburn, will pay $2.00 per cord, cash, for good live elm bolts ten inches and over in diameter and 32 inches long, delivered at factory in Auburn. 25-30.

—Mel Bishop of St. Joe had the misfortune to injure one of his eyes while in the woods some time since. It is giving him considerable trouble but he is hopeful of entire recovery.

—Matt Zirwes' have taken into their family a bright little girl of ten years. This will be a happy change from the Allen county children's refuge to the comfortable home of Mr. and Mrs. Zirwes.

—Butler Herald:—D. W. Steward was in Auburn Monday and turned over $40.75 to the school fund. The amount was collected in the shape of fines in various cases held before him recently.

—Mrs. John Smith, who has been sick for the past ten days, was taken worse last evening and now requires constant attention. She is a most estimable woman and all hope she may soon fully recover.

—It is now "'Squire Treesh," John Treesh having been appointed justice of the peace by the commissioners in place of the late Jacob Walborn. The selection is a good one and will, we believe, be satisfactory.

—Agent Zent informs us that the business during the past six months at the Auburn station has been the largest ever handled. The receipts for the month of June were over $1,100 larger than for the corresponding month last year.

—Rev. George Englemann and family are packing their household goods preparatory to moving to the vicinity of Cincinnati, O. Mr. Engelmann will go first to Detroit to attend the meeting of the mission board of the German Reformed church.

—Charles Eckhart writes from Mountain Lake Park, Md., that they are having splendid meetings at the camp-meeting there. The camp is 2,800 feet above sea level and the weather pleasant. From there they go to Philadelphia and Doylestown, passing a week or so at the latter place.

—Adam Conrad meets many old-time friends here. He was many years ago in business at Corunna and for two or three terms was township trustee of Richland. He was a Stark county boy and lived in Canton when McKinley came there to practice law. He went to school with Miss Ida Saxton, now Mrs. McKinley, and remembers her well.

—Jesse Covington, thought to be the same individual who at one time resided in Auburn, was arrested night before last while trying to break into the Elkhart county poor house. He was intoxicated at the time and claimed he was only trying to find a place to stay all night. Covington was married to a girl in Goshen after leaving Auburn.

—A Cincinnati man advertised his desire to sell a valuable secret for fifty cents. He stated that he would tell how he was cured of drinking, smoking, swearing, staying out at night, going to the races, gambling, and how he gained twenty pounds in two years. Several persons sent him fifty cents each, and here is the secret they received:—"Just cured of all the bad habits named by an enforced residence for two years in the Ohio state prison."

—Two well known gentlemen concluded to make some calls the other evening, and borrowing a horse and buggy of a friend started out in high spirits. When their last call was ended, however, there was weeping and wailing, so to speak, as some unprincipled cuss had got away with their rig and the gentlemen were compelled to "hoof it" back to town. It's a long road that has no turn and the fellows who perpetrated the joke will have reasons to remember it some day, as these gentlemen are jokers themselves—occasionally.

—An autopsy upon Dr. Johnson was held this afternoon, at which Dr. Hines and several other Auburn physicians were present, as well as Drs. Thompson and Stewart of Garrett. The conclusion reached was that death was caused directly by bowel trouble, coupled with an abcess in the left kidney, bearing out the diagnosis of the attending and consulting physicians. It was the opinion of all that had an operation been performed it would only have hastened the death of the patient. The Auburn doctors present, beside Dr. Hines, were, Drs. D. J. and Vesta M. Swarts, Dr. Yarian, Dr. Casebeer and Dr. Baxter.

PETER KUNTZ, President. Chicago, Ill. W. H. KECKLER, Treasurer Auburn, Ind.

THE Auburn Lumber Co.

CENTRAL 'PHONE 12.

We sell all kinds of Lumber for Building Purposes, Make Door and Window Frames to Order. We can Sell you Doors and Windows at Money Saving Prices.

Headquarters For

Lime, Bulk Lime

Wood Burnt Bulk Lime

The Genuine Article.

We can save you money in Price, Quality and Weight Come and see us and examine our LIME, and you will be convinced. We also carry Cement, Plastering Hair, Plaster Paris, etc.

Yours Truly,
AUBURN LUMBER CO.
Near Wabash Depot, Auburn, Ind.

HIGHEST 1899 GRADE
BICYCLE
GENT'S COLUMBIAN $20.50 LADIES' COLUMBIAN

BEST BICYCLE BUILT!
FATORY TO RIDER DIRECT.

All we require is $1.00 down, balance payable after examination.
We are the only factory in the United States selling direct to rider.
We guarantee our goods for two years—most liberal guarantee ever given.
We give more options than the regular dealers. You can have your choice of color, heighth of frame, or any gear desired
Our bicycles have all the latest improvements—large tubing, flush joints, large sprockets, arched fork crown, drop hanger, etc.
WRITE FOR CATALOGUE GIVING FULL DESCRIPTION, TODAY.

Columbian Cycle Co.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Lake Erie & Western R.R.
ANNUAL
Niagara Falls Excursion

WAIT FOR THE OLD RELIABLE
Lake Erie & Western PERSONALLY CONDUCTED
Niagara Falls Excursion
LEAVE
FORT WAYNE, 7:10 A. M.
Thursday, August 3, 1899.
Rate: 6.50 For Round Trip,
ALSO
SANDUSKY, PUT-IN-BAY CLEVELAND AND BUFFALO.
—WITH SIDE TRIPS TO—
LEWISTON, TORONTO and THOUSAND ISLANDS.

For tickets, rate, time and pamphlet containing general information, call on any ticket agent of the above route, or address

C. F. DALY,
General Passenger Agent,
INDIANAPOLIS, IND

WE GIVE ANY LADY
or man, who will take orders for our Leghorn Hen Food, in their own town,
A SOLID GOLD WATCH, FREE
We make this offer for a short time, in order to get our Food into more general use. It increases yield of eggs, and keeps fowl in good health. Send us 50c. for a regular $1.00 size box, and begin to take orders at once.
Pamphlet, with more information about hens, sent on receipt of self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address
Leghorn Food Co. (311-M) Boston, Mass.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents Dandruff and hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

They overcome Weakness, Irregularity and Obstructions, increase vigor and banish "pains of menstruation." They are "Life Savers" to girls approaching womanhood, sallow complexion, or signs of decline. No known remedy for women equals these. Cannot do harm—give no trouble or inconvenience. $1 per box by mail. Sold by druggists. MOTT CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

IDEAL MUSIC,
"Sweet as the angel Israfil's,
When every leaf on Eden's tree
Was trembling to his minstrelsy."
can be produced from an EBERSOLE PIANO. The Ebersole possesses a tone that no other maker has been able to imitate—being full and deep, yet with that clear singing quality which stamps it the peer of all upright pianos for homes of culture and refinement.

Frank B. Long,
119 Calhoun St. cor Washington,
Fort Wayne, Ind.

A $12.00 Made To Order Man's Suit, for $6.98
BY BUYING DIRECT FROM
E. ROSENBURGER & CO.,
202-204 E. 102d St., NEW YORK CITY.
The Largest Clothing Manufacturers in America.

OUR GREAT BARGAIN OFFER!
$5 BOYS' ADONIS SUITS FOR 2.76
with Extra Pants and we Pay Expressage.
These Suits are made up of All Wool Cassimere trimmed with best black Sateen, the best of workmanship, cut Double Breasted, Sizes, 3 to 9 years, with Silk Embroidered Sailor Collar, or to 15 years, without Sailor Collar. All Pants have Patent Waist Bands. We send pieces of the cloth and extra buttons, with each suit. Kindly mention if large or small for age.

When ordering send Post Office, Express Money Order or Registered Letter, also age at last birthday, and if large or small for his age. Money cheerfully refunded if not satisfactory. Send 2c. stamps for samples, tape measure, interesting books, etc.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Volume XXIX | Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, Thursday, July 20, 1899. | Number 29.

BANK First National
Auburn, Ind.
Capital Stock and Surplus
$60,000
Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest if left six months. County and Town Orders bought and sold. Money to Loan.
CHARLES McCLELLAN, President.
D. A. GARWOOD, Cashier.

Physicians T.G.Matheny,M D J.B.Casebeer, M.D
Matheny & Casebeer
have again associated themselves in the practice of Medicine, Surgery & Obstetrics. Office On 9th St.
Western 'Phone:
Office..... No. 9
Matheny's residence..... " 88
Casebeer's " ..... " 175

BANK Farmers,
Auburn, Ind.
(Incorporated and Under State Control)
Capital Stock and Surplus
$50,000
Transacts a General Banking Business and Pays Interest on Time Deposits.
Albert Robbins, Pres J. C. Henry, V-Pres.
A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Physicians D. J. Swarts, M. D Vesta W. Swarts, M D
and SURGEONS
Office at Auburn Sanitary Baths, corner Main and Sixth Streets,
Professional Calls Promptly Answered.
'PHONES: Western..... No. 19 Central Union..... No. 19

DENTIST F. W. HOFFMAN,
Auburn, Ind.
Office in Gandy Building, Northeast Corner of Court Square.
WESTERN 'PHONE 103.
Crown and Bridge Work a Sprcialty

P. V. HOFFMAN,
LAWYER,
Auburn. Indiana
OFFICE over Hebel's Grocery.

Dr. Z. H. Stamets,
Physician & Surgeon
Office on Main St., opposite Swineford Hotel.
Western 'Phone 104
Special attention given to techinal examinations and treatment of chronic and obscure cases, also special attention given to surgery and diseases of women. Calls answered at all hours. Office apart from residence.

I. O. BUCHTEL, HOMEOPATHIC Physician and Surgeon.
Special attention given to hronic and Obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.
Office and residence over Madden Bros Marble Works. Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, day or night.

Sprott & Knapp,
Abstracters of Deeds & Titles,
AUBURN, IND.
☞Office in Gandy Block, North of Court House.

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE—in Effect June 25 1899.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations	Mail	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne.....	11 45 am	4 40 pm	5 55 am
New Era	12 12 pm	5 08	6 40
Auburn Junction.	12 25	5 21	7 10
Auburn	12 29	5 25	7 35
Waterloo	12 41	5 36	8 15
Summit.....	12 51	5 46	8 35
Steubenville.....	12 54	5 49
Pleasant Lake. ...	1 03	5 58	8 56
Angola	1 13	6 06	9 35
Jackson	3 25	8 25	2 40

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations	Fre'gt	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson .....dp	5 55 am	11 45 am	6 15 am
Angola	11 00	2 19 pm	8 44
Pleasant Lake.....	11 35	2 29	8 55
Steubenville.....	.....	2 36	9 10
Summit.....	11 50	2 39	9 04
Waterloo.....	12 41 pm	2 58	9 23
Auburn.....	1 20	3 05	9 33
Auburn Junction.	1 35	3 08	9 36
New Era	1 54	3 18	9 46
Fort Wayne.....	2 50	3 50	10 02

For rates on tickets or freight to all points call on or address E. T. DELAPP, Agent Auburn.

BINDER TWINE Our famous BLUE LABEL BRAND. It's the best in the world. Prices will surprise you. We deliver from Chicago, Omaha or St. Paul, as desired. Write for prices and samples.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO

A LITTLE KNOWN FACT.

That most serious diseases originate in disorder of the kidneys. No hope of good health while the kidneys are wrong. Foley's Kidney Cure is guaranteed to make the kidneys right.

COURT NEWS

Thursday's Daily.

The case that was put on yesterday in place of the peat moss case was that of James B. Clough vs the City of Garrett. It was a merchants lien to collect pay for iron pipes furnished for their waterworks. It appears that many of the pipes burst and the city did not want to pay for them.

Mr. Clough, one of the firm, testified that he went to Garrett in response to a telegram complaining that the pipes were bursting. He came to Garrett and found they were putting on a pressure of 100 lbs, when the pipe was good for only 60. He said that was the trouble. So it was Garrett's fault if the pipes burst.

A man named Zimmerman testified to hauling a lot of the broken pipe to Hovey Hanna, at the Junction, so here they were sold for old iron.

J. J. VanAuken sworn. Am city engineer of Auburn. Our pipes are "standard" pipes and will stand a pressure of 150 lbs. Our fire pressure is 75 lbs, and domestic pressure 40 lbs. A pipe that would bear only 60 lbs, would not be enough for a town of 5,000 people.

Mr. Schrock of Garrett sworn. Am a railroad engineer. Was a member of the council for a time. But he said he knew but little of the matter.

Mr. Clough was put on again. He said his company had allowed the Garrett folks for all the good pipe they returned, and had at last given them credit for 4 200 lbs of broken iron. They had settled as to all iron, but Garrett wants them to pay for all labor, lead, etc., used in making the repairs when pipes broke, the amount being $1100.

Mountz represented the city of Garrett, while C. E. Emanuel and W. S. Alden of Chicago represented the interests of Clough & Co. This case ended at about 2 p. m. today, Judge Watkins taking it under advisement

The next case called was that of Brandon vs. Snyder, to quiet title. C. M. Brown and J. H. Rose represent Brandon and Moody and Hoffman are for Snyder. It appears that Isaac B. Brandon and Ora Brandon deeded to Henry C. Snyder and Sarah Snyder, his wife, lot number six in Kuhlman's addition to the town of Auburn, "except 342 feet off the east side." It now appears that the figures "342" were wrong and should have read "408;" that is the Brandons intended to reserve more land for themselves, and so ask to have the deed amended so as to give them back the difference of 66 feet, which is about the size of a town lot. They say the mistake was made by the man who drew up the deed.

Tuesday, Judge Woodhull closed up the case of White vs the Garrett Boiler & Machine Works. White, who was once connected with the making of the gas engine over there, and was the inventor of the machines, had sued for royalty on the machines. The Judge decided that the company did not owe White. Baxter & Brown were for the plaintiff and Roby & Mountz for defendant.

Friday's Daily.

The case between Snyder and Brandon, went on all yesterday afternoon, and witnesses testified on both sides, Isaac B. Brandon, Ora Brandon, H. J. Luce, J. J. VanAuken, Martin Snyder, Mrs. Snyder, Wm. Elson and Henry C. Snyder. The substance is that the Brandons say they intended to reserve three lots for themselves and let Snyder have the rest. Snyder claims he thought he was getting all the land except two lots He has built a house on his land and now wants to know just how big a chunk of ground he owns. It appears that 'Squire Walborn drew up the papers, according to what he understood to be their instructions Unfortunately, his death prevents his giving testimony that might be valuable in the case. In fact it might possibly have prevented the lawsuit. The case closed this afternoon in favor of Brandon, who gets back his lot.

Judge Watkins having done the work he had ready, went home this afternoon. There will be court tomorrow by Judge Best, and it is expected there will be a session on Monday, and that will probably close the term.

Saturday's Daily.

Booth and Johns, the two men who stole the meat of Frank Fisk, north of Waterloo, were brought into court this forenoon and given a jail sentence of sixty days each and to be disfranchised for four years. This sentence will be harder on Booth than on Johns, for the disfranchisement will run through two elections, and who is going to buy up a voter who cannot vote?

The case of Chappell against the Wabash road was up again today. The jury gave Chappell $3,000, but Judge Hammond today argued a motion for a new trial, and this is going on as we closed.

Mrs. A. B. Park Dead.

T. C. Ford this afternoon received a telegram from Mrs. Lottie Cochran at Kendallville that Mrs. Anna Park dropped dead today noon at her home there. She was the youngest of the Cooke sisters, among whom was Mrs. Dr. Ford.

Our Special Seven Day Sale closed Saturday evening. In glancing through our stock we find

Three Lines

WHICH WE THINK SHOULD BE REDUCED STILL LOWER. NAMELY:

Shirt Waists, Wash Dress Goods and Spring Clothing.

We have decided to put the knife into these lines good and deep.

Shirt waists will be worn until cold weather sets in, which means, possibly, three months yet. We have placed in our window all of our $1 waists. You may have your choice from the lot for 57c.

Our $1.25 Colored Waists we offer at 75c

Our $1 50 Colored Waists we offer at 88c

All Wash Dress Goods will go while they last at

1-4th Less than regular price. Our sale in clothing will remain as it was last week. We sold an immense lot of clothing during the past two weeks and we still have a fine line from which you may choose. This is the chance of the season. We invite you to come often.

We Are Saving You Money.

Schaab & Bro.,
Auburn, Ind.

P. S.—Gentlemen:—We are showing a magnificent stock of New Fall Hats and Neckwear which we ask you to call and inspect. Schaab & Bro.

MEN AND WOMEN Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. For pleasing results use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists. Sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghampton, N. Y.

Suit on Town Orders.

Suit has been filed against the town of Waterloo by the Sisson & Lilly Lumber Co., of Grand Rapids, Mich., to force the collection of five town orders of $100 each, issued in payment for the building of the town hall and opera house. These orders were given to Sol. Shearer in payment for the construction of the building and later on were turned over to the Michigan firm. A number of orders of the same issue have been paid, while the bulk of the others are held by the Fisks at Waterloo, but the question of their validity has been raised and the outcome of this suit will be watched with considerable interest. The Press says the orders are being paid in rotation as fast as funds will accumulate to do so and that all will be redeemed if sufficient time will be given, which will be about four years. F. L. Welsheimer of this city is attorney for the Grand Rapids firm and the town's interests will be looked after by Attorney Phillips.

Would Have Cost Him His Life.

I have been using Foley's Kidney Cure and take great pleasure in stating it gave me permanent cure of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life. I recommend it to anyone afflicted with kidney trouble.

OSCAR BOWMAN, Lebanon, Ky.

Woman's Mission.

Successful competition in any field depends on physical health.

FAMILIAR questions about woman's future are constantly asked.

Shall women vote? Shall they practice law? Shall they compete with men in every field? Whatever woman's mission may finally be declared to be, it is certain that something must be done for her physical health.

Ignorance, superstition and mystery surround woman's delicate organism. Heroic efforts to endure pain is part of woman's creed. Many women's lives are a constant struggle with lassitude; many are violently ill without apparent cause, and few indeed are in normal health.

This is all wrong and might be different if women would follow Dr. Hartman's advice. Perhaps the most practical printed talk to women to be found anywhere is in Dr. Hartman's book called "Health and Beauty," which the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail free to women only. It is certain that Dr. Hartman's Pe-ru-na has proved a perfect boon for women's diseases of the pelvic organs. It treats them scientifically and cures them permanently. All druggists sell it.

"I received your book and commenced the use of your medicine at once," writes Mrs. H. D. Amoss of Greensboro, Ga., to Dr. Hartman. "I took five bottles of Pe-ru-na and two of Man-a-lin. I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking Pe-ru-na I could hardly walk across my room; now I am doing my own work and can walk to church. I shall never cease to thank you for prescribing for me. I had been under the treatment of two doctors but never received any benefit until I commenced taking your medicine. I wish every woman who was suffering as I was would send for one of your books. May God bless you and spare you many years to relieve women who are suffering as I was."

Fifty thousand women will be counselled and prescribed for this year free of charge by Dr. Hartman, president of the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, O. All women suffering from any disease of the mucous membrane, or any of the peculiar ills of women, may write to him and the letters will receive his personal attention. Write for special question blank for women.

HEALTH IN INDIANA.

As Shown by Reports During the Month of June 1898.

Reports to the State Board of Health show that compared with May, there was a decrease in area of prevalence of the following diseases: diphtheria, croup, influenza, pneumonia, measles, bronchitis and tonsilitis. These are called "house diseases" because they are principally induced by bad ventilation. When warm weather comes, such diseases decrease, because people seek the open air.

The diseases which increased in area of prevalence were: Diarrhœa, typhoid fever, cholera morbus, dysentery and cholera infantum. These last are diseases which are simply plain poisoning. When summer comes, moulds, ferments and putrefactive organisms find their way into our food, grow and flourish and produce poisons, which poisons cause cholera infantum, disentery, diarrhœa, cholera morbus, etc.

A proper care and preparation of food would eliminate 90 per cent of these diseases. It is not difficult to prevent cholera infantum which will kill hundreds of infants this summer. A circular telling how this may be done will be mailed free to all applicants by the State Board of Health.

Under the Wabash.

If anyone thinks it a small job to put the big sewer across and under the Wabash track and sidetracks at the foot of Jackson street, he should go down and see the big force of men doing it. They started in this morning, having reached the track yesterday as we noted. At this point the trench must be dug a little over sixteen feet deep, which of course will take some time and require a wide excavation. The earth will have to be propped at the sides, the large pile of loose dirt must be kept out of the way and the brick sewer laid and then covered and everything put back in shape. In the meantime trains must be run over the line regularly and safely. The bridge superintendent of the road and Mike Lumm the trackmaster have the matter in hand and a section boss is also interested in the job. But the digging part is done by the contractor. Under the ties of each railway track they are putting a heavy timber thirty feet long, one under each rail. This will secure support for the tracks while the sewer is open and will probably remain after the sewer is completed. Engineer VanAuken is on the ground most of the time and with him and the foreman in sight, the work of the big gang goes on with the regularity of a clock.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Sewers.

Many of our people have not seen the men at work making the big sewers. They begun at the creek, just south of the waterworks wells and work this way, reaching the Wabash tracks yesterday. They are making the pipes of brick two layers deep, laid on edge, so that the brick work is 8 inches thick laid in cement. Two men lay the bricks for the lower half of the tube and two others follow with the upper half. The upper half is laid on a circular frame of boards, and when completed one length, the frame is loosened, and then pulled ahead one length, and the brick again laid over it. The sides of the trench have already begun to cave in, and have to be supported by boards propped against each side. And even then, there is no little danger. One can already see that the work of putting in a sewer is vastly greater than putting in water pipes.

A Frightful Blunder

Will often cause a horrible Burn, Scald, Cut or Bruise; but Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, will kill the pain and promptly heal it. Cures Old Sores, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Corns, all Skin Erup'ions. Best Pile Cure on earth. Only 25 cts. a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by H. B. McCord, the Druggist.

A Bold Tramp.

In the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Thomas, a tramp entered the house and finding only the children at home, ordered them to get him something to eat. On opening the cupboard he found various articles of food, and demanded that all be placed on the table. After satisfying himself with a hearty meal, he began to swear at the children about some trivial circumstances, and then started out into the back yard. This gave the frightened children, including May Shilling who was present, an opportunity to run for help, which they quickly did. But by the time Mrs. Shilling and others reached the house the tramp had disappeared.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Value of the Moss.

As the peat moss case went on, it was developed that one of the offers the Tiffin parties made to the Moughlers, was to take the peat bog and work it giving the Moughlers a royalty of 50 cents a ton, at least till the business was developed so as to be better understood. This was not accepted, and then the sale was effected.

It seems that eastern cities like Boston, New York and Philadelphia use a good deal of this peat moss. It all comes from Germany and the north of Europe. It is not known that another bed of "live" peat or "moss" is found in the United States. It is used for bedding horses and for deadening the floors in hospitals, as well as to pad hospital cushions and similar uses. No flies will stay on it, it is said, and that makes it good for all these uses. At the Garrett marsh it is cut up and carried out where it can be spread and dried a few days. Then it is baled, but it will not burn after being dried a couple of weeks. It is supposed it contains salt, and the water, which is abundant in it, is said to be salty. It is claimed this water has a medicinal value, and its application to any affected surface, as in the itching of the scalp, will give relief at once.

Several car loads of the dried and baled moss have been sold in Chicago. It is worth about $7 a ton. Those in Garrett who have tested it say one layer on a stable floor will last a month or two. When Paul's barn burned a week or two ago, the moss bedding did not burn.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts., guaranteed, at H B. McCord's Drugstore.

Killed by a Train

There was a fatal accident at Butler last evening. Just as the Wabash train was whirling in, the one that reaches Auburn at 6:07, a man named Thomas Hotchins was walking north on the east side of Main-st, and when he was stepping across the Wabash tracks he was struck by the train and thrown to the west, nearly across the wagon road. He was picked up and carried to an undertaker's, where he died in a short time, when he was taken to his home. It is said the train whistled to warn him, but for some cause not known, he did not seem to hear it. He is an old man, and recently married the widow Frick who lived east of Waterloo, and when struck, was on his way to get a dray to help him move. The accident was seen by Mr. Schmadel of this place, who was there to take that train home. But as he had to come away, he did not know when he reached here, how it would terminate. But Rev. W. L. Meese, who also saw the accident, staid there till this morning, and from these two gentlemen we learn our particulars.

Match Factory

Since our last report, the following marriage licenses have been issued at the clerk's office.

Jay Kepler and Ida A. Rohm, John B. Brown and Bertha Draggoo, Milton C. Shull and Emma F. Glawe, John Arens and Alice Purdy, Albert J. Miller and Stella Martin, Wm. H. Wilkins and Blanche Fisher, George Brown and Harriet Smith, Wm. E. Lannum and Mary S. Havens, Curtis B. Armstrong and Christie M. Stoll, Claude Kreger and Caddie Collier, Frank Steffin and Ella Friend, Wm. H. Pugsley and Ida Baily.

Don't Stop
taking Scott's Emulsion because it's warm weather. Keep taking it until you are cured.
It will heal your lungs and give you rich blood in summer as in winter. It's cod liver oil made easy.
50c. and $1. All druggists.

Will Have a Race Track.

As noted briefly in yesterday's COURIER a deal has been made by which Harry Draggoo becomes owner of the fair grounds, or at least the twenty-one acres now owned by H. R. Culbertson and C. C. Shaffer, including all the race track, and we are informed that the work of regrading and improving the track has been let to C. E. VanAuken who expects to begin work next Monday putting it in shape. In addition to this a number of new stalls and other necessary buildings will be built and everything arranged for the convenience of horsemen and the comfort of their animals. While it will in a sense be a private track, arrangements will be made to accomomdate horse men from surrounding towns who may wish to use it for training and working out their animals. Several Auburn gentlemen who own speedy animals have manifested commendable interest in the project, while there are others from Garrett, Butler and other nearby towns who have expressed a desire to make use of the accommodations offered. The work of improving the race course is in excellent hands and Mr. Draggoo's enterprise and liberality will doubtless result in Auburn having one of the best half-mile race tracks in Northern Indiana, and at the same time give to the sport an impetus that would not have been accomplished in any other manner.

Double Celebration.

Both Canadians and Americans celebrated the Fourth at Rochester, N. Y. Forgetting or not caring, that this day is held sacred because we whipped their head government years ago, the Canadian Military got permission from our government to come over with their arms and also as to take part in the parade. So five thousand British-Canadian troops, infantry, cavalry and artillery marched with at least as many New York state troops. They carried their own flag and cheered Uncle Sam while our men cheered the Queen. We sang their national hymns and they sang ours and the bands of the two nations played each other's national airs. It was a real brotherly affair and will be the means of much good. As far as we recall, it is the first time the soldiers of either nation were permitted to go armed into the country of the other.

Indiana School Books

In pursuance of the law, Governor Mount has issued his proclamation, setting forth the text books that have been adopted for use in the schools of Indiana for the coming five years. The following is a list of the books and the prices:

Frye's introductory geography, 30 cents; Frye's advanced geography, 75 cents; Cook-Cropsey elementary arithmetic, 35 cents; Cook-Cropsey new advanced arithmetic, 45 cents; the New Era Slant system of writing books, Nos. 1 to 6, inclusive, 5 cents each; the New Era system of vertical writing books, Nos. 1 to 6, inclusive, 5 cents each. Indiana educational series: First reader, 10 cents; second reader, 15 cents; revised third reader, 25 cents: revised fourth reader, 30 cents; revised fifth reader, 40 cents.

Mrs. Parks

Miss Mary Osgood returned this forenoon from Kendallville and gives furthur particulars about the death of Mrs. Parks. She had been about the house as usual, and doing such work as she chose, and then came out and sat on the porch with the rest of the family. She picked up a paper and was reading it when suddenly Mrs. Lottie Cochran noticed she had stopped reading and her eyes seemed fixed. She called attention to this and they caught her, as she appeared ready to fall, laid her down where she could get a draft of air, and called for help. But she died at once and without a struggle. The funeral will be held there at 2 p. m. Sunday.

Knight Ditch Letting.

The contract to dig the night drain was let today. The successful bidder on the main ditch was Evo Olivet of South Bend, his bid being $1,875. The other bidders were Joseph Hartman of Concord, G. W. Woodcox of St. Joe, Ben Ellis of Angola and a Mr. Flack whose first name and location we did not learn.

The lateral to the big ditch was awarded to John Baker and Myrtle Johnson of Concord at $175. The same parties who bid on the main ditch bid on the lateral, Mr. Woodcox having the same bid as Baker & Johnson. So the big, long-fought-over ditch will be made at last.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

1899. JULY. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
•	•	•	•	•	•	1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31	•	•	•	•	•

N. M. 7th. F. Q. 15th. F. M 22nd. L. Q. 29th.

HISTORY OF A WEEK.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS OF THE WORLD.

News of Crimes and Criminals, Accidents, Fires, Etc., from North, South, East and West, Sandwiched with Minor Affairs.

The Boundary Dispute.

A dispatch from Seattle, Wash., says: Congressman Dalzell, who has just returned from Alaska, says: "Whatever else we learned in Alaska, we did learn it is sheer impudence upon the part of Canadians in demanding a new boundary line. I think I voice the sentiments of every Congressman who went with me when I say we are not in favor of the United States giving up one quarter of an inch of the territory guaranteed us by treaty. England, in my opinion, will never back the Canadians."

Congressman Heatwool spoke similarly.

Oregon Troops Home.

San Francisco special: The United States transports Newport and Ohio, bearing the Oregon volunteer regiment from Manila, has arrived here. The vessels were sighted and soon the shrieking of steam whistles, the clanging of bells and the firing of cannon announced that the first batch of returning soldiers from the Philippines was nearing the shores of California.

Soldiers gathered on deck and climbed into the rigging and cheered like mad. Reception committee is here to receive them, but they cannot land until medical officers inspect them.

The Ohio Centennial.

Toledo, Ohio, citizens, at a mass meeting held recently, subscribed $75,000 for stock in the Ohio Centennial Company, which has in hand the work of arranging the Ohio Centennial Exposition in 1892. The meeting was the first of a series to raise $500,000 required to secure the government appropriation of $500,000 Mayor Jones put his name down for $5,000 and five other subscribers a like amount. It is now thought that the remainder will be quickly raised.

Kentucky Republicans.

Attorney General W. S. Taylor was nominated for Governor by acclamation by the Kentucky Republican State Convention.

Immediately after the adoption of the State platform Capt. S. H. Stone and Judge Clifton J. Pratt, Taylor's chief rivals for the nomination, made their way to the speaker's stand and in stirring speeches withdrew from the race in favor of the Attorney General.

Coughlan Skipped His Bail.

When the case of Dan Coughlan, widely known on account of his arrest and conviction for participation in the murder of Dr. Cronin, was called in court at Chicago he failed to appear. He, with his bartender, William Armstrong, are accused of bribery and conspiracy to bride in a damage suit against the Illinois Central Railroad. Armstrong was also absent and his bonds, with Coughlan's, amounting to $20,000, were declared forfeited.

Steamer Lost with All on Board.

A dispatch from Freemartle, West Australia, says: The British steamer Carlisle Castle is lost off Rockingham and all on board are lost. It is feared there will be other great loss of life in the same storm. The storm has prevailed for several days, and many small craft are wrecked. The British ship City of York was wrecked and twelve were drowned, including the captain.

Tramps Are Slaughtered.

Three tramps were killed and five others were seriously injured by the wrecking of a freight train on the C. & A. Road near Glendale, Mo. The body of another man is believed to be at the bottom of the wreckage, which consists of ten car loads of merchandise, hogs and cattle. Among those in the car was a woman in male attire. She escaped uninjured.

The Paris at Falmouth.

Falmouth (England) special: The American line steamship Paris was towed by five tugs safely into the harbor. Preparations are being made to beach her in the tide harbor.

Camphor Steamer on Fire.

London special: The Japanese camphor steamer Kawache Harne took fire in the Thames. The fourth officer and a seaman were killed by suffocation and ten are seriously injured.

Monster Fly Wheel Bursts.

A monster fly-wheel in the Elkhart National Paper Works, Mishawaka, Ind., burst, killing Engineer Dunbar and injuring three others. The engine room was demolished.

Tenement House Fire.

Fire in a crowded five-story tenement house in Monroe street, New York, resulted in fatal injuries to five persons and the overcoming by smoke of eight others.

Lightning Causes a Fire.

The No. 12 coal breaker at Plymouth, Pa., owned by Haddock & Shonk, was destroyed by fire. The loss is $90,000. It is supposed it was struck by lightning. About 450 men and boys are thrown out of work until the breaker is rebuilt.

Indian Executed.

A special from Goodlands, I. T., says William Goings, "Walla Tonka," the Choctaw Indian, was shot at Alikichi, I. T., under sentence of the Choctaw court for murder, and in spite of a stay from the federal court.

Train Kills Six in a Family.

All but one of the seven members of the family of William Reinhard of Columbus, Ohio, were killed and the remaining one was badly injured by a Big Four passenger train. Reinhard and his family were driving in a surrey. The vehicle was knocked into splinters.

Rich Strike of Copper Ore.

It is announced that copper ore of almost incredible extent and richness has been found in the Parry sound district within about seven hours' railway distance of Toronto. The discovery was due practically to an American mining expert of the name of Forbes.

BIG DECREASE IN FAILURES.

Some Interesting Comparisons with Those of Previous Years.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Failures of the first half of 1899, with banking and financial included, as in all other accounts published, were 4,884, with liabilities $49,664,061. Commercial failures were 4,858, with liabilities of $42,062,933, of which $16,723,353 were manufacturing and $23,011,364 were trading. In the second quarter failures were the smallest ever reported in that quarter of twenty-five years for which quarterly reports have been made by this agency. The average per failure—$7,165—is the smallest ever known in any quarter; the average per firm in business—$12.20—and the ratio of defaulted liabilities to solvent exchanges—62 cents per $1,000—are both the smallest ever known in any quarter. In ten out of fourteen branches of manufacturing failures were smaller than in the same quarter of four of the previous five years and in thirteen out of fourteen branches. The larger failures for $100,000 or more were only two in trading for $224,088, less than a tenth of the smallest previous year, and only fifteen in all for $2,417,180, from a fifth to a tenth of previous years. The decrease in small failures is worth especial study."

SENSATIONAL JAIL DELIVERY.

Escaping Prisoners Fire Into Crowd, Two Persons Being Wounded.

Three prisoners escaped from the county jail at La Junta, Colo. They were Frank Bohanon, who is charged with the murder of his father, and William Moran, charged with burglary, and Emerson Hunt, charged with forgery. Jailer Lewis was letting them out of the steel cage, one at a time, in order that they might shave themselves in the corridor, when one of them jumped on him and took his revolver. The other prisoners were then released. Mrs. Smith, the cook, gave the alarm. When Sheriff Barr stepped inside the jail door he was covered and disarmed, and he and his wife and the jailer were locked in the jail. The citizens began to gather with guns, and when the prisoners appeared at the door several shots were exchanged. The prisoners then escaped over the back fence, but were captured before they had run a block and placed behind the bars again.

ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP A TRAIN.

Effort Made to Rob the Fast Mail Near Eau Claire, Wis.

A desperate attempt was made to hold up the limited passenger train on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway between Duluth and Chicago. The affair happened near the village of Chetek, Wis. The train was fired into three times. The bullets went through the windows of one of the coaches and lodged in the roof of the car. Two women passengers were struck in the face by broken glass and one woman, Mrs. J. W. Spohn, a resident of Cadott, Wis., had one eye cut in a terrible manner. Another bullet fired by a third member of the hold-up gang went through the cab and barely missed striking the engineer, such being undoubtedly the intention of the robbers. The engineer opened the throttle wide, and although several more shots were fired at the train none took effect.

SUBMARINE BOAT IS LAUNCHED.

The Argonaut Expected to Roll on the Ocean's Bottom After Treasure.

Simon Lake's submarine boat, the Argonaut, was launched at Robbins' yard, Erie basin, Brooklyn. It did not glide from the ways, but was lifted up and lowered into the water by the floating derrick Monarch. The Argonaut is owned by the Submarine Boat Company, and will be used in the work of examining and recovering valuables from sunken vessels. She is sixty feet long, and is fitted with three rollers, one on the starboard side, another on the port side and another beneath the screw. It is expected that with the aid of these rollers the boat will be able to move on the ocean's bottom. Capt. Lake will have a crew of eight men.

MAY SETTLE A LAND DISPUTE.

The Federal Courts to Decide Minnesota Claim to a Town Site.

A speedy and somewhat startling settlement of the Cass Lake, Minn., land trouble is among the possibilities. The State claims one-half of the town site of Cass Lake for a school section. For eight years it has been contesting the decision of the land office to the effect that the State had no claim to school sections on ceded Indian lands. The Interior Department has sustained the land department within the last month. The State now proposes to carry the matter into the higher courts. It has been decided to appeal to the courts at once and endeavor to secure an early decision.

CRAZED BY HEAT OF DESERT.

Iowan Jumps from Train and Tries to Commit Suicide.

A. Kramer of Dayton, Iowa, jumped from a Southern Pacific train near Burbank, Cal., and, taking a penknife from his pocket, proceeded to gash at his throat. The train was stopped and the man put on board. His only injury is loss of blood. It is thought that Kramer became temporarily insane from the heat of the Mojave desert. He had considerable money with him, as well as a return ticket to Dayton.

Fire in a Hotel at Midnight.

Fire was discovered shortly after midnight in the Lindell Hotel at Lincoln, Neb. Smoke filled the corridors and a panic among the guests was narrowly averted. All the inmates escaped, without their belongings, and in some cases without personal attire. The building, a four-story brick structure, was completely destroyed.

Tornado Sweeps Union, Wis.

A tornado passed over the town of Union, Wis. The storm struck the township at the western boundary and plowed a furrow across it six miles long and fifteen to forty rods wide. Practically everything in its path was destroyed. Estimates place the loss at $50,000 to $75,000 There was no loss of life.

Horse Causes Railroad Wreck.

A freight train carrying six cars of horses was wrecked at Moors, Nev. Four of the cars containing the horses left the track and nearly all the animals were killed. The accident was caused by one of the horses kicking open a front car door and falling on the track.

Big Railways Are United.

The New York Central and the Pennsylvania railroads have entered into a compact unprecedented in railway history. Under its provisions the two great properties become for practical purposes one system.

Surrenders to Gov. Atkinson.

Elias Hatfield, the noted desperado and son of "Devil Anse" Hatfield, leader of the Hatfield-McCoy feud that cost 141 lives, surrendered to Gov. Atkinson of West Virginia in person at Gray.

Alger Said to Have Resigned.

It is announced from Washington that Secretary Russell A. Alger's resignation of the war portfolio is now in the hands of President McKinley.

Kansas Mob Hangs a Negro.

Dick Williams, a negro charged with the murder of two white men, was lynched at Alma, Kan., by a mob of white men. The mob left the negro hanging to a telegraph pole. Six minutes later he was cut down by the town marshal and taken back to the county jail, where he recovered consciousness. Williams cannot live.

FIVE FATALLY INJURED.

Disastrous Fire in a Crowded New York Tenement House.

Fire in a crowded five-story tenement in Monroe street, New York, resulted in fatal injuries to five persons and the overcoming by smoke of eight others. The fire started in the apartments of Max Press, a coat operator, who lived with his family and a boarder named Jacob Koplan on the fourth floor. All of this household escaped. There were sixteen families in the house. It could not be determined just how the fire started. Press admitted that he went to bed leaving the lamp burning, and that he and his boarder, Koplan, were smoking cigarettes, and the firemen believe that the men must have gone to sleep with lighted cigarettes in their mouths and that the bedding caught fire. Press' hair was singed by the flames. The damage is slight.

FATAL GASOLINE EXPLOSION.

Wife of Capt. Dickins of the U. S. Navy Burned to Death.

Fire and explosion in the residence of Capt. Dickins of the United States navy at Washington resulted in the shocking death of Mrs. Dickins, who was fearfully burned and died before medical assistance could reach her. Other persons about the house were severely, but not dangerously, wounded. The first intimation of the fire was a low rumble, followed by several violent shocks, which blew out the entire third story front of the residence. The firemen made their way to the third story and among the debris littering the front room found the blackened corpse of Mrs. Dickins. The explosion resulted from the ignition of gasoline from a firepot being used by a plumber.

SHOT TO DEATH IN CHURCH.

Prof. Libscom Slain by a Cousin of Ex-Secretary Carlisle.

At Dallas, Tex., Prof. William Libscom was shot and mortally wounded by John T. Carlisle during worship in the First Christian Church. Libscom occupied the front pew. Carlisle stopped in front of the pulpit, drew his revolver and fired. Friends of Libscom seized Carlisle and held him till the police came. The wounded man was carried to the altar, where he died. Libscom was principal of the Central high school. Carlisle was recently removed from the school as head janitor, and this is thought to have actuated the shooting. Carlisle is a cousin of the ex-Secretary of the Treasury.

PINGREE CAR LINE PLAN WINS.

Detroit Grants a Franchise for Municipal Street Railway Operations.

After a prolonged and hard struggle the City Council at Detroit, by a vote of 19 to 14, passed an ordinance giving to the Municipal Street Railway Commission Company, consisting of Gov. Pingree, Carl Schmidt and Elliott G. Stevenson, a thirty-year franchise, 5-cent fares or six for a quarter as security enabling the commission as a company to purchase the roads of the present owners and operate them as a company, thus getting around the decision of the Supreme Court, to the effect that the city cannot own its own roads.

BIG SALE OF TIMBER LANDS.

Minnesota and Michigan Lumbermen Buy 50,000 Acres.

Over 50,000 acres of the best timber land in Skagit and Snohomish counties, Washington, have passed into the hands of Michigan and Minnesota lumbermen for about $500,000 cash. The principal purchasers are David Tozier of Stillwater, Minn.; James Dempsey of Manistee, Mich., and D. P. Simons, representing a syndicate of capitalists resident in the States named. On an average they gave $12 per acre for the land.

Big Ocean Steamer Wrecked.

The Red Cross steamer Portia, from New York bound to Halifax, with seventy-five passengers on board, was wrecked on Flinn island, off Sambro light, a point fifteen miles to the eastward of Halifax. The disaster occurred during a thick fog. All on board the steamer—117 all told—were landed on the island in safety.

Canadian Senator Drowned.

Senator W. E. Sanford, millionaire clothing manufacturer of Hamilton, Ont., was drowned by the upsetting of a boat from which he was fishing in Muskoka lake. A lady who was visiting Muskoka was in the boat with the Senator. Two girls heard their calls for help and managed to rescue the lady.

Work for Many Idle Men.

Orders have been issued for the resumption of all idle coke ovens in the country, and all ovens heretofore on five days a week will be put on full time. This means the resumption of thousands of ovens that have been idle for years. Many more men will be given employment.

Anti-Slavery Leader Gone.

George W. Julian died at his home in Irvington, Ind., at the age of 82 years. He was a prominent politician and well-known anti-slavery leader.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $4.25; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 71c to 73c; corn, No. 2, 32c to 33c; oats, No. 2, 23c to 24c; rye, No. 2, 58c to 60c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 18c; eggs, fresh, 12c to 14c; potatoes, choice new, 58c to 65c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.50; hogs, choice light, $2.75 to $4.00; sheep, common to choice, $2.50 to $4.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 74c to 75c; corn, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 29c to 30c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.25; sheep, $3.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 74c to 76c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 34c to 36c; oats, No. 2, 26c to 27c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 71c to 73c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 35c to 37c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 28c to 29c; rye, No. 2, 64c to 66c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.25; sheep, $2.50 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2, 75c to 76c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 35c to 37c; oats, No. 2 white, 29c to 31c; rye, 59c to 60c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 73c to 74c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 34c to 36c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 24c to 25c; rye, No. 2, 57c to 59c; clover seed, new, $3.95 to $4.00.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 3, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 25c to 28c; rye, No. 1, 59c to 60c; barley, No. 2, 41c to 43c; pork, mess, $8.00 to $8.50.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $4.25; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.25; lambs, common to extra, $4.60 to $6.75

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 79c to 80c; corn, No. 2, 39c to 40c; oats, No. 2 white, 31c to 32c; butter, creamery, 15c to 19c; eggs, Western, 14c to 16c.

AFRAID OF THE BOERS

WITH ALL HER STRENGTH, ENGLAND SHRINKS FROM WAR.

Well She May, for the South Africans Are Magnificent Fighters—In the Event of War, the Boers Will Be Led by an American.

Should the difficulties between the Transvaal republic, South Africa, and Great Britain lead to war, the conflict will be exceedingly bitter and sanguinary. In the end, by exercising her supreme strength, Great Britain will conquer; but the effort will cost her heavily in life and money. English officers are well aware of this and have no hesitancy in so expressing themselves. One of them, Lord Cecil Douglass Compton, now in this country, and who has seen service in South Africa and knows the Boers well, thus discusses the situation:

"The Boers of the Transvaal," he says, "are magnificent guerrilla soldiers. Their history has proved it, and they are fully up to their standard to-day. They are expert marksmen, born rough riders, such as your own cowboys, and their courage and tenacity is undeniable. Individually they are as good military stuff as the world possesses. They also are thoroughly convinced of the justice of their cause and would die to a man at the word of Oom Paul.

GEN. JOUBERT.

"But aside from their morale and their fitness, the Transvaal country is one admirably adapted for the purposes of defense. It is inland, with large uninhabited spaces. An army invading it must have a distant base, and its supplies must be brought up through a semi-tropical country under the most disadvantageous conditions. Cape Town is a thousand miles from the Vaal river, and if an attack were to be made from Natal there would be mountains to work through and much tropical growth.

"The question of transportation would be serious. We would need thousands of mules, which must be brought from South America. The ocean distance and the adverse climate would kill the animals off by the hundreds, and the actual work would entail even greater losses.

Will Need 60,000 Men.

"There is a question of strategy as well. The Boers would be difficult to hit in a mass. Indeed, they might not be mobilized in a European sense at all. In an arid, rocky country, filled with splendid shots, with no real objective point to capture, with a disaffected or actively hostile population on your flank or rear, the conquest of the Transvaal would be one of the most arduous undertakings we ever entered upon. In my opinion no less than 60,000 men would be required. Your own Philippine war is not so difficult. Indeed, it is folly to underestimate the military strength of the Transvaal, which proceeds not alone from the material character of the population but also from the nature of the country itself.

"And the Boers are armed to the teeth. The money raised by taxation of the Uitlanders has been spent in arms and artillery, so that the republic repeats on a small scale the military camp which the continental powers exhibit on a great scale."

How excellent a marksman the Boer is may be inferred from England's past experience with him. In one engagement in the '80's out of a total English force of between 600 and 700 the loss in a few hours was 283 killed and wounded—nearly half the force. It is a literal fact that the great majority of the dead soldiers were found to have been shot through the head, a hole in the helmet of each of the fallen showing the mark at which the farmer rifleman had aimed.

The commander of the Boers in the event of hostilities will be Gen. P. J. Joubert, who has successfully measured swords before with the English. Gen. Joubert is an American, having been born in Uniontown, Pa., in 1841.

SAD END TO FISHING PARTY.

Mrs. M. S. Ten Eyck of Chicago Dies in Lake Superior.

Details of a fatal accident in Lake Superior, in which one Chicagoan lost her life and two others narrowly escaped watery graves, have reached Chicago. By the overturning of a skiff near the shore of Isle Royale, in which were M. S. Ten Eyck and wife and Mrs. E. W. Andrews, Mrs. Ten Eyck met death, while her husband, after two attempts to save her, was towed ashore completely exhausted, with one arm encircling his wife's dead body. Mrs. Andrews was kept afloat by a tightly buttoned mackintosh, which spread out like a parachute, and her presence of mind in clinging to the bottom of the capsized boat.

PLANS FOR DEWEY'S WELCOME.

Committee at New York Outlines Program for a Celebration.

Plans for the Dewey celebration at New York were outlined at a meeting of the committee on plan and scope Monday. It has been decided practically that there shall be a two-day celebration with both a land and naval parade. Admiral Dewey will pass under a large triumphal arch to be constructed either in City Hall park or Madison Square park at a cost of $10,000. It was decided also to have two large civic floats in the naval parade.

SEEKS BAN ON CANAL.

City of St. Louis Will Ask Issue of an Injunction.

Proceedings will be instituted soon in the Federal Court at Chicago to prevent the operation of the Chicago drainage canal. The city of St. Louis will be the plaintiff, represented by City Counselor Schnurmacher. This was decided at the meeting of the joint committee of the St. Louis City Council and house of delegates which was appointed several weeks ago to investigate the drainage canal enterprise and recommend steps to protect the city's interest.

Various plans were discussed for preventing the pollution of the city's water supply, proceedings by injunction being regarded as the most feasible. Afterward the committee asked Mr. Schnurmacher for a written opinion as to the standing the city would have in the courts. The committee met to consider Mr. Schnurmacher's advice. This was to the effect that the city or any resident of St. Louis could enjoin the operation of the canal if it could be shown that any interest would be threatened by the pollution of the water. Resort should be had to the United States Court at Chicago, in Mr. Schnurmacher's opinion. The committee discussed the matter for an hour and a half, and then drafted a joint resolution directing the city counselor to institute such legal proceedings as might be necessary. The action of the committee following directly on the visit to St. Louis of the State inspectors from Chicago is considered significant.

RURAL DELIVERY IS GROWING.

Western Headquarters Fixed at Indianapolis.

The Western headquarters of the rural free delivery of mail has been established at Indianapolis, and the following special agents met with Frank M. Dice, general superintendent: Henry Casten, Madison, Wis.; Charles Lynn, Chicago; W. F. Conger and George Olsen, Wisconsin; Thomas Howard, St. Paul; W. V. Annin, Phoenix, Ariz.; S. B. Rathbone, Wheeling, W. Va.; E. H. Hathaway, Indiana. The agents made reports concerning the growth of the movement. They said that while the undertaking was largely in its preliminary stages, it was growing rapidly and was the "coming" department of the United States postoffice business. A new year began July 1, and there is now $300,000 available for the service this year. Indiana heads the list of States in the demand for the service and Iowa is second.

TEACHERS DIE IN A WRECK.

Excursion Train Crashes Into Freight Near Newman, Cal.

A special train of nine coaches, in charge of S. R. Drury of the Burlington road, on the way from St. Louis to Los Angeles, and loaded with teachers bound for the national educational convention, ran into a freight train near the depot at Newman, Cal., early Monday morning, with the result that three ladies were killed and eleven other passengers were injured, one most severely.

The special was going at a speed of forty miles an hour and was supposed to have a clear track, when, in the early morning, it crashed into a feed train which was taking water on the main track with no light out. The tender of the locomotive was forced into the end of the forward sleeper, there being no baggage to block it. The freight cars took fire, but the Newman volunteer fire department turned out and saved the passenger train from the flames and also most of the freight train. A special was made up and the injured passengers were sent to San Francisco. The other passengers proceeded on their way to Los Angeles.

THE RETURN OF CAPTAIN DREYFUS.

BEFORE HIS CONVICTION. WHEN RELEASED FROM PRISON.

INGALLS RE-ENTERS POLITICS.

Endeavors to Bring About a New Deal in the Republican Ranks.

Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls in an authorized interview announces that he proposes to re-enter Kansas politics, and that he will endeavor to bring about a new deal in Republican politics.

JOHN J. INGALLS

He intimated that he would not be a candidate for either the United States Senate or for Congress. He declared that McKinley will be renominated, and the issue of the next campaign will be imperialism and military domination, with the silver question on the side.

The practical solution of the question of trusts, he said, rests with the State Legislatures. The solution is taxation, just as the Government destroyed the State banks by imposing the 10 per cent tax. The law at present existing is practically sufficient in his opinion.

News of Minor Note.

Next saengerfest will be held in Buffalo in 1901.

Knights of St. John will meet in Philadelphia next year.

Ex-Mayor Collier, Petersburg, Va., committed suicide.

Engineer Callaghan was killed in a wreck, Mattewan, N. Y.

Fred W. Schachtle, New York, killed by an explosion in a brewery.

Ny Yon Sheong, San Francisco, was shot while in bed by a highbinder.

Memorial tablets in honor of Col. Harry Egbert were unveiled at Cincinnati.

K. L. Smith, Washington, Ga., was perforated with bullets shot by C. L. Groves. Family racket.

Clarence Williams, Paris, Ky., for killing Martha Tillman will quit the world on a scaffold.

Emanuel Souders knifed Frank Reed, Pittsburg, Ky., because he wouldn't pay $2. Reed will die.

Because she was jilted, Estella Cork, 16, Asbury Park, N. J., committed suicide. Carbolic acid.

William Brunt, Rahway, N. J., it is believed, was killed by tramps and his body placed on the railroad.

Francis J. Nulty, New York, who murdered his sweetheart, Mamie Remley, last Christmas day, has been sentenced to prison for life.

MEETING OF TEACHERS.

National Association Convention at Los Angeles, Cal.

The thirty-eighth annual convention of the National Educational Association was formally opened at Los Angeles Tuesday. The address of welcome on behalf of the State was delivered by Gov. Gage, Mayor Eaton tendered the hospitality and freedom of the municipality and superintendent of instruction and spoke on behalf of the educational interests. The Newman disaster cast a gloom over the delegates and much sympathy was expressed for the injured and the families of the dead. All during the night and early morning hours section after section rolled into the city until the attendance was estimated at 10,000.

The opening session was called to order by F. Q. Storey of the local executive committee. The pavilion was crowded in every part and a large number of the visitors failed to gain admittance. After an invocation by Rev. C. Clark Pierce the Woman's orchestra rendered the National Educational Association march, a rather unique piece of music composed for the occasion. Gov. Henry T. Gage was presented and bade the delegates a hearty welcome in behalf of the State.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Kirk in behalf of the educational interests of the State followed. He told of the growth of secondary and higher education in California. Including professional colleges located in San Francisco, the State university has now a total enrollment of 2,438. In 1889 there were but sixty-two high schools in the State, but to-day there are 125 and with increase of numbers the standard of work has been raised.

Dr. Elmer E. Brown of the University of California on behalf of the management also welcomed the visiting educators, and then Mayor Eaton, on behalf of the municipality, told the visitors they had the freedom of the city during their stay. On behalf of the city schools Superintendent Forshay outlined the educational system there and paid tribute to the educators in charge of the 28,000 children.

Responses to the welcoming addresses were made by N. C. Dougherty, superintendent of schools of Peoria, Ill.; Dr. Emerson E. White of Columbus, Ohio, and J. H. Phillips, superintendent of schools of Birmingham, Ala. After the orchestra had played Mozart's overture to "Don Juan" President Eliphalet Cram Lyle of Millersville, Pa., delivered his address.

The evening's session was as largely attended as had been the one in the afternoon. In addition to the Woman's orchestra, the Eolian Club, under the direction of Mrs. G. B. Parsons, superintendent of music in the public schools, ended the proceedings by rendering several selections. Dr. W. T. Harris, United States commissioner of education, delivered a decidedly interesting address on "An Educational Policy for Our New Possessions." Henry S. Townsend, inspector general of schools of Hawaii, made a thoughtfully conceived address on the subject, "The Educational Problem in Hawaii."

At the closing session of the national council of education Prof. Louis Soldan of St. Louis was elected president for the following year; Prof. Elmer Brown of California, vice-president, and Miss Belle A. Dutton of Cleveland, Ohio, re-elected secretary.

At the annual meeting of the board of directors of the National Educational Association the treasurer's report showed a total amount during the year of $28,561.10, including a cash balance of $2,201. The expenditures amounted to $26,010.20, including $10,000 transferred to the permanent fund. The available cash on hand is $2,556.10. Treasurer McNeill also reported that between $8,000 and $10,000 in addition was available this year for transfer to the permanent fund.

RUMOR OF ALGER'S RETIRING.

Secretary of War Said to Have Decided to Quit the Cabinet.

Washington dispatches on Wednesday asserted that the resignation of Secretary of War Russell A. Alger was in the hands of President McKinley, but that the fact would not be made public for some weeks. Several different reasons are surmised for this move of Secretary Alger, the principal one remarked by politicians being the combined action brought to bear upon President McKinley by leading Republicans to ask for the resignation of Secretary of War Alger ever since the formal announcement of the Alger-Pingree alliance and the latter's denunciation of President McKinley.

Secretary Alger denied the report that he is to resign. When told of the rumor that he had tendered his resignation he said: "I have received no direct or indirect intimation from the President that he desires me to leave the cabinet. I have noticed no treatment that makes my position personally or officially uncomfortable. I have caused no third party to learn for me if it would be acceptable that I retire later on, and, furthermore, there is nothing to warrant the assertion that I am to retire."

One reason given by friends of Secretary Alger for dating his resignation so far ahead is that he is anxious to sign the full report of the war in Congress in December. It is said that in the event the President is willing to retain him until that time, Secretary Alger will go on a long vacation and the President will conduct the affairs of the office himself.

FRANCE IS HORRIFIED.

Reports of Dreyfus' Tortures Arouses Intense Indignation.

A special cable to the Chicago Tribune says: The abominations practiced against Capt. Dreyfus continue to horrify all France. After Col. Piquart had warned Gen. Billot that Dreyfus was innocent, the prisoner was kept in fenced quarters less than twenty inches. The fence was so high that a view was imposible and it was barely light inside. Here the miserable man passed many days and was often seized with violent attacks of suffocation. Each time this occurred his guardians would say that this time they hoped he was dead. Finally the attacks continued so frequently that the military doctor ordered air to be admitted. To avoid giving Dreyfus pleasure by lowering the height of the fence his jailers raised it a foot from the ground, saying the air would cool his feet.

Dreyfus still carefully avoids talking of his children. The prison guardians find that Dreyfus eats little, as his stomach revolts at food. He has been so injured by abuse and quinine in the tropics that orders have been given that he have invalid's fare.

Notes of Current Events.

Charles Harvey, 38, North Lewisburg, Ohio, drowned.

Jos. Bach, out with a picnic party, drowned, Dayton, Ohio.

Sam Cruese, colored, Princeton, N. J., killed by John Larkin.

Breech-pin flew out of a gun and killed Charles Banks, 27, Cincinnati.

Louis Cohen, 30, found murdered, near Charleston, W. Va. Mystery.

Little Adelaide Bischoff, New York, was fatally burned by her dress catching fire.

Nickolo Kirkie, Cleveland, Ohio, placed a cap on a street car track. Car killed him.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Fine Prospect for Crops—Prohibitionists Fear for the Nicholson Law—Birth of Curious Twins—Sisters Reunited After Forty-seven Years.

Reports received from all sections of the corn districts in the State indicate that the outlook for a record-breaking crop this year eclipses anything of the last few years. The recent rains have done wonders. Reports from the Benton, Tippecanoe and White County district indicate that never in the history of Indiana has such a yield marked any one season. It is claimed by reliable persons that there are fields in Benton County that will run eighty bushels to the acre. It is now thought that the corn and the oats production, together with the marvelous berry crops just harvested and the wonderful watermelon crop just coming on, will more than make up for the shortage in wheat and will keep the total valuation of Indiana's crops up to last year's top notch—$300,000,000.

Nicholson Law Ineffectual.

The commissioners at the present term of court at Windfall held that the voters could not delegate to one attorney power to sign remonstrances against the granting of liquor licenses, and granted licenses to three applicants, and Windfall now has three licensed saloons. The temperance people will appeal all three cases, and carry them to the Supreme Court, if necessary, to win their cases. This decision in the power of attorney question, which is being raised in different localities of the State, if upheld, will make the Nicholson law ineffectual, as the temperance workers cannot afford to canvass the township for signatures every month.

Twins Born as One.

Mrs. James Huffman, residing near Jeffersonville, gave birth to twins that far excel in curiosity the famous Siamese twins that caused such a furor through the country many years ago. The offspring are girls and are joined together by a link of flesh eight inches long and between three and four inches in diameter. The babes are face to face, and, with one or two exceptions, all the organs of their respective bodies are perfect.

Long-Lost Sister Is Found.

Forty-seven years ago Mrs. George Hadley of Brazil and her sister, Mrs. Barton of Chattanooga, Tenn., were left orphans in Hamilton County, Ohio, and each was adopted by a different family and separated. Mrs. Hadley heard nothing further from her sister until the other day, when she received a letter from Mrs. Barton, giving information to prove that they were sisters.

Steamer Strikes the Rocks.

The steamer Fowler, which plies between Evansville and Paducah, Ky., ran into Highland rocks and forty timbers were broken. The boat began to sink rapidly and it was with difficulty that she reached the shore. George Mariable, a deck hand, was scalded from head to foot and will die.

Within Our Borders.

Town of Oolitic will incorporate.

Goshen is investigating oiled streets.

Mrs. Henry Barnard, 23, Martinsville, is dead.

Terre Haute is running under her new charter.

South Bend militia company has been mustered in.

Tramps are said to be causing trouble in Shelby County.

Orson L. Woodruff, 60, ex-legislator, Noble County, dead.

New telephone company has connected Greenfield with Indianapolis.

Anderson bolt works is an enterprise that has been killed by the trust.

In Vanderburg County, 1,344 pieces of property changed hands last year.

Mrs. Malinda Myers, Oakland City, had family troubles and took arsenic.

Louisville and St. Louis air-line will put up a $3,500 freight depot in New Albany.

Charles Sybel, Porter County, dropped a match in a can of powder. Both eyes gone.

Brakeman James Merrit, Erie road, fell from an engine under the train at the Spencerville water tank and was killed.

The colony of Klondikers that went from Anderson has given up the hunt for gold as a bad job, and will return home.

Postmaster Burton Conoway, Morristown, was found $600 short by Inspector Fletcher. His bondsmen made good the deficit.

Large quantity of stolen goods was found at the home of Henry Johnson, colored, Jeffersonville. Johnson was arrested.

William Benedict, Wabash, says he was blacklisted by the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad and wants $10,000 damages.

Four of the Mercer family who live in Seymour are of the set that claims it was defrauded out of a $200,000 estate in New York.

Ira Sanders, 22, Loogootee, was struck by a B. & O. S. W. fast train and instantly killed. Nearly every bone in his body was broken.

At Shoals, in a row between Raymond Salmon, runner for the Commercial House, and Harry Love, operator for the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad, Love was stabbed five times and seriously injured.

William L. Moyer, assistant cashier of the American Trust and Savings Company, Chicago, formerly of Logansport, will go to Montana to take charge of the property of Marcus Daly, the copper king, at $12,000 a year.

Postmaster Joseph D. Johnston, who had served under thirteen Presidents, died at Terre Haute, aged 85.

The Pearl Evans mystery at Kokomo is still unsolved. The alleged dead body seen in a wagon by Miss Orem proved to have been that of a fisherman.

Frank Connors went to the house of Michael McDonald at Marion and called McDonald out and asked if it was him, and opened fire with a revolver. McDonald fell to the ground at the first report with a bullet in his groin. Connors escaped. The men were good friends and mystery surrounds the shooting.

Naphtha launch in the river at Fort Wayne burst, and the seven passengers that preferred water to fire were picked up by boats. Engineer Thomas O. Conner was badly injured by inhaling gasoline.

James Ralya, who went insane recently because of the loss of a $200,000 lawsuit, which he carried to the Supreme Court, escaped from the State asylum at Anderson and demonstrated his business tact by selling the ball and chains fastened to him for safe-keeping. He disposed of them to a junk dealer, realizing enough to get a meal. He then walked overland to his old home and was near it when captured.

Saint Leger (August, 1777.)

By Clinton Scollard.

From out of the north-land his leaguer he led,
Saint Leger, Saint Leger;
And the war-lust was strong in his heart as he sped;
"Their courage," he cried, "it shall die i' the throat,
When they mark the proud standards that over us float—
See rover and ranger, redskin and redcoat!"
Saint Leger, Saint Leger.

He hurried by water, he scurried by land,
Saint Leger, Saint Leger,
Till closely he cordoned the patriot band:
"Surrender," he bade, "or I tighten the net!"
"Surrender?" they mocked him, "we laugh at your threat!"
"By Heaven!" he thundered, "you'll live to regret
Saint Leger, Saint Leger!"

He mounted his mortars, he smote with his shell,
Saint Leger, Saint Leger;
Then he fumed in a fury that futile they fell;
But he counseled with rum till he chuckled, elate,
As he sat in his tent-door, "Egad, we can wait,
For famine is famous to open a gate!"—
Saint Leger, Saint Leger.

But lo! as he waited, was borne to his ear—
Saint Leger, Saint Leger—
A whisper of dread and a murmur of fear!
"They come, and as leaves are their numbers enrolled!
They come, and their onset may not be controlled,
For 'tis Arnold who heads them, 'tis Arnold the bold—
Saint Leger, Saint Leger!"

"Retreat!" Was the word e'er more bitterly said,
Saint Leger, Saint Leger,
Than when to the north-land your leaguer you led?
Alas, for Burgoyne in his peril and pain—
Who lists in the night for the tramp of that train!
And, alas! for the boasting, the pompous, the vain
Saint Leger!

—Saturday Evening Post.

MR. HUNT, DETECTIVE.

BY JEANNETTE SWING.

"Wonder who it can be," remarked Nell to Martha. It was just about dusk, and a tall man in a mackintosk stood ringing their door bell.

"I cannot imagine," said Martha, peeping over her sister's shoulder.

The door was opened by the maid, and the visitor shown into the parlor. Then the maid hurried up stairs, and said to the waiting sisters: "He didn't give no name, Miss Martha, but asked if he might see Miss Harper."

Martha took off her white apron, and smoothed back her hair in a very important manner, as she started down stairs.

"I wonder what he wants," muttered Nell enviously.

To have tall, well-dressed gentlemen asking for Miss Harper was not an every day occurrence. Nell began to surmise. It might be an agent for either books, life insurance, or foreign missions, or it might be one of the many lovers Miss Harper had had in her youth, who had at last come back to claim her. Nell had known a great deal about those lovers by hearsay. Miss Harper was fond of dwelling upon them, and so many times had she spun out her stories, that she had almost persuaded herself to believe in them. Nell's incredulity had long since vanished, and now she began to contemplate her sister reclaimed, and married and carried off a bride in blushing and happy triumph while she herself was left an old maid, and an object of pity.

The thought was sickening. She stood in the hall by the ballusters, with her eye fixed on the parlor door, wishing her sister's visitor would depart. Suddenly the door opened, Martha came out, and motioned for her to come down.

"I thought it better to consult with you, Nellie, in regard to this gentleman's proposal," said Martha.

"A proposal already," gasped Nell following her sister into the room.

She was soon undeceived, however, and quite forgot her miserable anticipations in listening to the visitor.

He was a fine looking man, with a smoothly shaven face, and close cropped hair. His manners were perfect, and his voice low and refined.

"I shall explain to you as I did to Miss Harper," he said to Nell, placing a chair for her gallantly: "What I tell you is strictly confidential. In case you do not care to favor me as I wish, I trust to your honor to keep this visit a secret. You know that there have been several burglaries committed in this town lately."

"Yes," said Nell, "we have been frightened to death several times nearly. Sister is so nervous, the slightest noise at night——"

"Exactly," he said, as she paused, "there have been some heavy losses, and it is thought that the gang of thieves contemplate more depredations, and it is certain that they are located in this vicinity."

The two ladies looked with awe-striken faces at their visitor as he went on.

"I do not wish to alarm you, for the thieves are to be brought to justice. To do this this requires a detective. Now ladies, I do not believe in the old adage, that none of your sex can keep a secret. I know better. I have had many chances to try the ladies, and many a time I have placed my life itself in the hands of a woman, and did not regret it. God bless them."

Miss Harper's eyes glistened with this praise, while her sister leaned forward and listened with rapt attention.

"So, I am going to trust you with my secret. I am Mr. Hunt," and he drew out a card case, and presented each with a piece of paste board, bearing the simple words, "Mr. Hunt, Detective."

"I have been sent here to work up this robbery business. I have come to you, knowing that you are sensible, trustworthy ladies, and I hope that you can give me lodgings for a few days, or weeks, as the work requires."

Then he went on to explain how impossible it would be for him to stop at a hotel, or ordinary boarding house, because no one was to know of his presence in the town, not even the town officers who had hired him. His success depended upon the secrecy maintained, and who was better at being discreet than these ladies whom he had chosen? He wanted the privilege of coming in and going out at all hours of the day and night; he wanted keys to both the front and back entrances in case of emergency or pursuit. For all this he was willing to pay handsomely.

The ladies considered the matter, and finally agreed to accommodate him. They had occasionally taken boarders, their income being none too lavish. And besides being both handsome and fascinating, Mr. Hunt paid a week's board in advance. An hour later he returned with a large trunk, which was brought in the back way, and no one the wiser.

He took the ladies into his entire confidence at once, and having sworn the maidens to secrecy also, he made himself very much at home.

The evening passed delightfully, spent in the sitting room, with the blinds closely drawn. Mr. Hunt was very entertaining, and had many exciting incidents to relate about himself. When they were about to retire, he remarked:

"You must not let my coming in or going out disturb you in any way. I shall have to prowl around at all sorts of unearthly hours, you know."

"Oh, we understand," said Miss Harper, as though she had been raised in detective headquarters.

"You are often in great danger?" asked Nell tremulously.

"Yes, often," he answered, "and if at any time I do not return say for four or five days, or even a week, and you hear nothing of me, you can break open my trunk and find full details there, as to whom to notify. But don't be in a hurry to give me up. I'm lucky, and generally come out all right."

"Oh, do be careful of yourself?" said Nell impulsively, and she would have said more, but she saw her sister frowning.

But, when a little later, that same night, as Nell came down to be sure the front door was latched, and met Mr. Hunt in the hall, dressed in a great coat and slouch hat, the idea of his danger, made an anxious look come into her eyes.

"I will be careful to-night," he said, offering her his hand; "I will think of your uneasiness, and not be rash."

Nell did not tell this to Martha. It was her first secret from her sister.

Ten days, full of a new interest to the Harper sisters, passed.

Two more robberies had been committed, and the whole town was excited. The papers announced that detectives were on the trace of the thieves. Mr. Hunt smiled as he read this aloud to the sisters.

"Yes," he said, "I think I will have them located by to-morrow night. I'm on the scent. But this stuff in the paper is all surmise. I have not given them a single clew yet. They have to say something. It would ruin my success if I told anything to anybody outside."

When the matter was discussed at the Missionary tea that afternoon, the task of keeping silent was almost too much for the Miss Harpers, and they only restrained themselves by thinking of their triumph when the affair was over, and they could tell their share in it. They would pose as celebrities in connection with the famous Mr. Hunt, detective.

Nell had quite given her heart to this interesting man, and some rather tender passages had taken place between them, so it was with a pitifully sad face, she heard him say one morning:

"If all goes as I expect, I shall leave to-morrow morning."

Then he glanced at Nell, and sighed, and Nell began to wish that the thieves might not be found for some months, at least, or never at all.

That evening Mr. Hunt went out completely disguised in a red wig and whiskers, and walked with a decided limp, so that Nell and Martha laughed heartily at him, as he went down the steps. He laughed back at them and waved his hand.

He did not return at all that night, nor the next day, and their anxiety was intense. On the next morning there came a letter for Nell, and fortunately Miss Harper had gone to market, so Nell read it unhindered. It was from Mr. Hunt. He stated that he had been hastily obliged to leave, that his life had depended upon it, and that he wanted her to have his trunk shipped immediately, and secretly to an address enclosed. He gave her a few directions as to how to get his trunk to the station, and closed his letter with some words that made her face flush as it never had before: "For your sake I have been careful of my life. I have you to live for now. You will see me again before many weeks. Let no one know where I am. My life depends upon it. And I—trust you."

Nell felt that she could die for him then and there. She hid the letter in her bosom, and went up stairs to his room, to look at the important trunk and to wonder if she could get it away as secretly as he wished. Her planning was interrupted by the sound of voice below, and on the stairs.

Then Martha burst suddenly into the room, her face red and angry, her eyes wide open with fright. Behind her came the town constable, two police officers, and some strange men.

"And you have no idea where he is?" asked the constable.

"No," gasped Martha, "He left Sunday night."

They unceremoniously broke open the trunk, and revealed a shocking sight. A lot of silverware, jewelry, in fact all the stolen goods were there, except the haul of diamonds taken from the jewelry store, and these Mr. Hunt had evidently carried with him.

"He was as shrewd a thief as ever I traced," said one of the strange men, "and you ladies were nicely imposed upon. The law won't do anything with you for receiving stolen goods, since you've surrendered them all, but you'd better be careful after this about taking in strangers without references. I'd give I don't know what to know where he is. He did not leave any address where to send his trunk, did he?"

"No, he didn't, gasped Martha on the verge of hysterics, when she thought of the Missionary society; and Nell said never a word, but went out in fear and trembling, and burnt up the letter just received.

Verily can a handsome man say: "Women are to be trusted."—The Pathfinder.

SUPERSTITIONS OF CHINAMEN.

Discovery of a Devil in a Garden Hose and Its Serious Results.

On a farm in the Southern part of California a young Chinaman was employed to do odd jobs. His one great delight was to sprinkle the lawn with the hose. One afternoon when he was at his favorite occupation a visitor thought it would be a good joke to cut the water off by turning a faucet at one end of the piazza. Now the Chinaman had sprinkled the lawn hundreds of times, but had not the remotest idea where the water came from, taking it for granted that it was the most natural thing in the world for the water to flow from the hose. Therefore when the visitor carried out his idea and the water stopped running, the Chinaman was sorely perplexed to know what had happened. First he threw the hose on the ground, stamped upon it and shook it, and then as this vigorous treatment produced no beneficial results he blew down the hose. Just then the owner of the house stepped up to see the fun. The visitor, seeing him coming, said in a low voice:

"Just see the fun. The next time he blows down the hose I will turn it on full force."

Sure enough, in a few minutes the Chinaman started to blow down the hose, and as he did so the visitor turned the water on full.

"Did you ever seen such an astonished Chinaman?" remarked the visitor gleefully.

The Chinaman certainly was astonished. He threw the hose on the ground and made one beeline for his room, which was next to the tank in one of the outbuildings. In a few minutes he returned with a small bundle under his arm, and going up to his employer said:

"Give me my money. Me no stayee. Debbil in hosee. Debbil in hosee."

The joke had turned out to be of a more serious nature than had been expected. The Chinaman walked off in spite of all remonstrances. The owner of the farm laughed, and said he would go to the Chinese agent and get another boy. Bright and early the next morning a new Chinese boy arrived, and as everything seemed satisfactory he went with his small paper bundle to his room, the same one occupied by his predecessor. He had been in the room only a few minutes when he ran out, and going up to his employer said:

"Me no likee. Me no likee. Me no stayee."

Upon being questioned he would give no answer except that he didn't like it and wouldn't stay. Recourse was again had to the Chinese agent, and the next morning another Chinese boy arrived with his invariable little bundle under his arm. Going to his room, he returned almost as instantly and, with a mystified way, said like the former one:

"Me no stayee. Me no stayee."

Things were beginning to look serious, and the visitor wished he hadn't played that pratical joke. For the third time the Chinese agent was called upon. This time the agent made some inquiries and promised to call the next morning and try to find out the trouble. The next morning he arrived, and, after looking around the place, went to the Chinaman's former room. There he discovered, written on one side of the wall, in Chinese characters, the information that the place was haunted and was inhabited with strange spirits or devils, and that Chinamen had better keep clear of it. This explained it all, and after removing the writing no trouble was had in procuring a new Chinese boy.—New York Sun.

Struck the Right Portland for Him.

The other day Colonel Bleckley, the Missouri Pacific agent at Wichita, received a letter from a gentleman at Portland, Ore., thanking him for a favor performed by Colonel Bleckley over ten years ago. The man's name is withheld. He had played the Wichita boom. He had won. But it fascinated him and he knew he must get away with his money or he would not get away at all. So, under inspiration, he rushed into Colonel Bleckley's office one morning and said sharply:

"Give me a ticket to Portland."

Colonel Bleckley looked at him coolly and asked:

"Maine or Oregon?"

"I don't give a blame which."

Colonel Bleckley reflected. His commission on a ticket to Portland, Ore., was $2.50 more than his commission on a ticket to Portland, Me. He said to the man.

"I get more for a ticket to Portland, Ore., and I'll send you to Oergon."

"Go ahead," said the man.

So that man went away from the boom and went to Portland, Ore. Out there he went into business and now owns one of the big establishments of that city. He ascribes his lucky strike to Colonel Bleckley, and his recent letter was one of gratitude that he had not sent him to Portland, Me.—Wichita Eagle.

Why We Value Our Liberties.

The late Roswell P. Flower once remarked: "People wonder why our liberties had to be bought with blood. I'll tell you why. The more a thing costs you the more you value it; the more it's worth; and while George Wshington and the Continental Army were freezing to death at Valley Forge, God Almighty was teaching them that lesson. Look at France. They don't value civil liberty over there because they didn't have to work for it. If those Frenchmen had to sweat and starve and freeze like our Revolutionary fathers they would estimate their blessings a good deal higher than they do now."

Tarts Gave the Thief Away.

A rag gatherer was committed for trial at Scarborough, England, on a charge of housebreaking. The prisoner had been arrested on another charge when the detectives found four tarts in his pocket. The following day it was reported that a house in Trafalgar square had been broken into and a quantity of jewelry and four jam tarts had been stolen.

FOOD OF A LIFETIME.

EDIBLES REQUIRED BY A MAN MAKE GREAT BULK.

In Seventy Years of Life He Eats a Herd of Cattle, and Drinks More than Would Fill the Heidelberg Tun—Interesting Comparisons.

A prominent scientist of a mathematical turn, having a little spare time on his hands, devoted some of it recently to computing the bulk of food he has consumed in the seventy years of his life. The resulting figures are surprising, and in the comparative details of his report the average man who eats and drinks will find much to interest him. The scientist says, in summing up, that if all the bread he has eaten could be duplicated and gathered together it would weigh fourteen tons. He has feasted on a good-sized herd of oxen, sheep and pigs, which, if represented in one animal of each of the kinds mentioned, would make the prehistoric mammoths look like babies in comparison. "If all the milk, tea, coffee, beer, wine, liquor and and water I have used or wasted in those years," he continues, "had been stored in a vessel of sufficient capacity its size would make the famous Heidelberg tun look like 30 cents. Being an ordinary man, without special likes and dislikes in the matter of food, bread was the staff of life with me, as it is with most men and women."

What a Giant Potato!

He reckons that he daily ate one and one-half pounds of bread, biscuit, cakes and crackers during sixty out of his seventy years of life, adding that as a boy under 10 years he probably consumed about half that quantity. This makes in seventy years 280,000 to 300,000 pounds of bread, etc., a quantity equal to 441 cubic yards. "A man eats on the average three potatoes a day, weighing in the neighborhood of one-quarter of a pound," continues this authority. "That isn't much per week and per year, perhaps, but amounts up in sixty or seventy years. Imagine twenty-one potatoes piled up week after week for seventy years, making due alowance for a lesser consumption during the first ten years. The giant potato evolved would fill two flat railway cars of the longest kind, and 100 men would be unable to move it. Carrots and turnips, though healthful vegetables, are not eaten in great quantities, yet if those consumed by the 70-year-old man in life were formed into one a big donkey would look insignificant beside it. The rest of the vegetables he consumed would fill twelve farmers' big wagons."

The Baby and the Ox.

One of the illustrations printed herewith, showing an ox and a baby, gives the comparative size of the ox needed to supply all the beef he got away with in sixty years. The proportions are drawn accurately; the baby weighs twenty pounds, the ox 360,000 pounds. Most people eat fish of various kinds, besides meat and vegetables. Figuring one-half pound of fish as the average daily consumption, the total amount consumed by a man, if he lives to a ripe old age like our friend, the mathematician, is 10,900 pounds. The calculator asserts that he has eaten 10,000 eggs. Americans are great sugar eaters. The statistician quoted confesses to having eaten 6,0000 pounds of sugar since his birth. To offset the sugar, a person eats twenty-five pounds of salt per year, or about 1,600 pounds in a lifetime of seventy years. Assuming that the average weight of a man is 160 pounds, ten men's forms could be made out of the salt the septuagenarian has consumed so far. Of butter he consumes a ton, adding 250 to 300 pounds of cheese to aid digestion. The average man, he says, will eat apples in quantities to aggregate in size one big apple measuring fifteen to sixteen feet in circumference; the giant orange made up of the oranges he eats in a lifetime would measure at least ten feet in circumeference, the pear five feet.

As to Consumption of Tobacco.

Man consumes five and a half pounds of solids a day, namely: One and a half pounds of breadstuffs, one pound of meat, half a pound of fish, two pounds of vegetables and fruit and half a pound of various other foods. That means nearly a ton a year, or fifty-four tons in sixty years. A man drinks at least a half pint of tea or coffee for breakfast, lunch, dinner or supper, and between times he has a full pint of something weak or strong, or both. This makes 550 pints, or sixty-nine gallons, per annum, equal to 4,380 gallons in seventy years. All in all, a man consumes 193,000 pounds of food and drink in seventy years, if his appetite is good. That equals 1,280 times his own weight, assuming that he weighs not less than 150 pounds.

Man must have his cigar, his pipe, his cigarette, or all three of them. Our mathematician says he began smoking in his twentieth year, and that he averaged one dozen of cigarettes a day. Up to the present time he has smoked 219,000 cigaretes, which in the aggregate would fill a wrapper sixteen feet long and eighteen inches thick. He smoked also six cigars a day, which, made up in one wrapper, would weigh about two tons and measure sixteen feet three inches, and two feet thick. "I never used to smoke more than an ounce of tobacco a day," he adds. A little figuring will show that the insignificant ounce a day means 1,150 pounds of tobacco in fifty years.

TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

A Parisian Doctor Who Claims a Mastery Over the Dread Disease.

It will be an incalculable boon to consumptives if the claims of Dr. Francisque Crotte, an eminent chemist of Paris, who is now in this country, become realized in the measure he predicts for them. He claims to have discovered a cure for consumption, and further points to an experience with the disease in Paris, where he is said to have permanently cured 3,000 cases within five years. Dr. Crotte's treatment consists in inhalation of antiseptics, which are forced through the tissues by an especially designed machine to the seat of the disease, and which successfully kill the microbe of tuberculosis. Dr. Crotte proposes to establish clinics in this country and take up the work actively, engaging to cure 100 per cent. of the patients in the first stage of the disease, 75 per cent. of those in the second stage, and 30 per cent. of the cases which are called as hopeless, in the third stage. All he asks is for the patient to have enough pulmonary substance to live and breathe. The period of treatment for children in the first stage is from fifteen to thirty days, of adults in the same stage from thirty to ninety days. The period in the second stage is from sixty to ninety days, and for children and adults in the last stage a much longer time is required.

DR. FRANCISQUE CROTTE.

Speaking of tuberculosis, Dr. Crotte says that 50 per cent. of the people of the United States are afflicted in some form. Seventy-five per cent. of the people of England are similarly affected, and from 30 to 40 per cent. of the people of all Europe. Poorly cooked meat and milk are prolific sources of contagion. Horses are the most dangerous of all animals as a source of contagion, and their flesh, the doctor says, should not be eaten at all.

Censorship in Turkey.

Turkish papers were not allowed to print the news of the assassination of the Austrian Empress. They simply announced that she had died.

There are numerous cures for rheumatism, and it usually lingers long enough to give the victim a chance to try them all.

All men are born equal, but it doesn't take some men long to outgrow it.

COLLAPSIBLE TUBE FOR PAINTS.

May Be Refilled When Emptied Instead of Being Thrown Away.

The collapsible tube has been found to be an exceedingly convenient way of handling paints, cements, pastes and other similar commodities, but the one objection made to this form of envelope is the waste that follows their use. Unless exceeding care is exercised, the tin foil used finds its way into all sorts of irregular shapes, and it is then impossible to force the entire contents from it. Andrew H. Gerdon, of Albany, N. Y., has invented a tube with a key attachment, and of such shape that it is readily possible to force out every particle of its contents. One of the sides is corrugated for the entire length, while the other side is plain, and the key furnished with each tube is adapted to fit on the end, and, as it is wound, the sides of the tube are brought into close contact from the rear end. The tube may be absolutely emptied in this manner.

NON-WASTING COLLAPSIBLE TUBE.

REFUSED A PRINCE,

An American Girl and an Heiress Who Showed Common Sense.

One American heiress is not exchanging her wealth for a foreign title. Her name is Miss Della Rogers, of Denver. She emphatically showed Prince Ghika, of Roumania, to the door. Miss Rogers might have accepted his titled name, his bad debts, his scapegrace ways and have been a princess. She could not see it that way. She is an American girl of spirit. Her grandfather, George Tritch, of Denver, is a multimillionaire, and she is to inherit many of his dollars. Her mother took her to Rome some years ago to study music. Her voice was more than ordinary, and she made her debut in grand opera at Milan. Her company subsequently visited all the musical centers of Europe. The voice of Miss Rogers not only attracted attention, but also the stories of her wealth, and the novelty of an heiress preferring the operatic stage to a life of ease. Prince Ghika met her and pretended to be fascinated. Perhaps he was—by her gold. He belongs to an old but wealthy family of Roumania which has cut him to the last penny, owing to his fast living. He made violent love to Miss Della, spoke often of his ancestral castles, the glory of his name, and his great desire to make a suitable alliance. Apparently he had the field to himself until Miss Rogers discovered that he had made similar love to the former Princess Chimay. Then Ghika received a message from Miss Rogers forbidding him to even speak to her again. The door was barred to him, and he will not revel in the proceeds from Denver dirt and Colorado mines. He may return to his late occupation of manager of a circus, something which is a drawing card on the other side.

MISS D. ROGERS.

LAKES OF KILLARNEY.

Some Scenes in the Most Lovely Spot of Beautiful Ireland.

Beautiful and world-famous, the lakes of Killarney, with their surrounding woods, meadows, hills and valleys, are for sale, and in peril of becoming private property. This fact has sent a thrill of fear to the heart of every loyal Irishman, especially those who have visited the historic chain of waters, and who have lived in the hope that beautiful and romantic Killarney would ever be a spot free to all who cared to go and see.

KATE KEARNEY.S COTTAGE.

Practically the whole of the Killarney district, which is owned by the Earl of Kenmare and Mr. Herbert, of Muckross, has been placed in the hands of their Dublin solicitors for sale, and already private capital has been interested in its purchase. In a few weeks the mansion house and demesne will be offered for sale to the highest bidder.

Irishmen living on the North American continent have been awakened to the meaning of a private sale of Killarney, and it has been suggested that Irishmen by popular subscription purchase that most valuable asset of the kingdom of Ireland—Killarney—maintain it as a national park for the people of Ireland, and thereby perpetuate the world-wide interest that has centered about Muckross Abbey, Dinish Island, the Torc waterfall and the Gap.

ROSS CASTLE.

The idea has taken a firm hold in New York, where Irishmen constitute a considerable portion of the population, and several wealthy men have promised to contribute from $1,000 to $5,000 apiece.

Telephone for the Deaf.

A miniature telephone to take the place of the ear trumpet for deaf people has just made its appearance. A tiny receiver is placed in the passage of the ear and connected by fine wires with a transmitter worn on the breast and a battery carried in the pocket or other convenient part of the dress.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

Jesus' Philosophy.—Jesus' philosophy was to let the body alone and to attend to the elevation of our thoughts.—Rev. F. E. Mason, Christian Scientist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Desire for Immortality.—There is in the nature of man a desire for immortality. It is impossible for a natural desire to be in vain.—Archbishop Williams, R. C., Boston, Mass.

A Joyful Religion.—If there is one thing that I rejoice in it is that Christianity is a joyful religion. It is the most harmonious religion in existence. —Rev. W. H. Carwardine, Methodist, Chicago, Ill.

Christ's Divinity. — Strongly and magnificently as the church must affirm Christ's manhood, strenuously must it contend for his divinity as well. —Dr. G. H. Combs, Independent, Kansas City, Mo.

Blasphemous Doctrine.—A doctrine that holds that certain human beings are to be eternally blest and other eternally lost is diabolical and blasphemous.—Rev. I. P. Coddington, Universalist, Rochester, N. Y.

An Organic People.—Formed from all the peoples of the world, we have become an organic people, fixed to the soil and politically independent, and, therefore, a sovereign people, with sovereign interests.—Rev. Dr. Conaty, R. C., Washington, D. C.

The Materialist.—The materialist assures us that the animating principle of man's being, his so-called spirit or soul, is merely a product of matter, or a refinement of it. It has and can have no separate existence without the body. —Rev. C. W. Wendte, Unitarian, Los Angeles, Cal.

Despotism of the Dead.—In religion nine-tenths of the race are under the despotism of the dead. Not one out of a hundred devotees of any religion can give any reason for his opinions and practice beyond this: "Dead men did it."—Rev. B. Fay Mills, Evangelist, Boston, Mass.

Thinkers and Scholars.—It is unworthy of any age to depreciate the worth of its thinkers, its scholars, its priests and its prophets, for it is around these that all men and all institutions revolve. And yet we need men of action as well as men of reflection.—Dr. Joseph Stolz, Hebrew, Chicago, Ill.

Personal Existence After Death.—Death does not end all. After death there is personal, conscious existence. Personal identity does not reside in the body, but in the soul, and the death of the body is not the destruction of the personal, conscious self.—Rev. J. F. Carson, Presbyterian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Duty of the State.—Does the individual exist for the state or the state for the individual? If the latter, then the function of the state is to be strong and to look for open doors and new spheres of influence to conquer by force or influence to benefit the individual.—Rev. Dr. Patton, Presbyterian, Princeton, N. J.

The Power that Governs the Universe.—We know that not one mistake ever has been or ever can be made by the power that governs all this marvelous universe. Such laws as come within our comprehension seem to be beneficent. We feel the hope that all this knowledge brings.—Rev. G. W. Stone, Unitarian, Kansas City, Mo.

Christ as a Lover of Nature.—Christ was a lover of nature; it was natural for him to grow up and see the beauties of nature. He had a profound love for the beauty and sublimity of nature, and recognized the voice of God speaking to men in the flowers and in the whole universe.—Rev. Dr. Behrends, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Rise and Progress of Humanity. —Facts beyond question justify us in saying that man's belief in man's immortality and his capacity for improvement and power of achievement under the government and guidance of God are the bottom causes of the rise and progress of humanity.—Rev. Mr. Webber, Universalist, Rumford Falls, Vt.

The Saloon.—I deny that the saloon is an essential element of civilization as a place of rendezvous for the working classes. Fully 700 saloons in the City of Detroit are almost entirely patronized by the working people. Those where the wealthier classes gather are nearly all bunched downtown.—Rev. D. D. MacLaurin, Baptist, Detroit, Mich.

Struggle.—Struggle is the law of life; nature's methods of preventing decay. It was the condition of life, for where the mind was placid it had passed the dead line; where the soul was at rest it was lost. The gospel recognized this. Its promises were to those who overcame; its crowns for the cross-bearers. —Rev. Dr. Taylor, Congregationalist, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Value of Pain.—St. Paul's imprisonment had been a grievance to him and seemed likely to hinder his work, but he had discovered it had been an advantage to the cause. He had been developed and ennobled, and given an opportunity so to exemplify the spirit of the gospel as to impress every one and to embolden his fellow-workers; his sufferings are therefore an honor because they have been for the sake of the truth. Herein is the supreme value of pain.—Rev. W. L. Phillips, Episcopalian, New Haven, Conn.

Hope.—It is a question whether we ever lose hope. There is only one hope worth the name, and that is built on the righteousness of Jesus. This precious Christian hope is beyond all price, and is worth ten thousand worlds like this full of gold. In this world there is everything for the body, but nothing for the soul. Nothing satisfies the soul. Make a man Governor of New York and he wants to be President of the United States. Then he is not satisfied with one term. He wants another term, and then if he can get a third he wants that. If a man has one thousand dollars he wants ten, if he has ten he wants a hundred, and so on, until he wants the earth.—Rev. Dr. Wharton, Evangelist, Baltimore, Md.

A fast man is generally slow pay.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....JULY 20, 1899.

Saw A Wild Animal.

A few evenings since a well known purveyor of a product which has a wide sale in Auburn during the summer season met with an experience he will not forget for some time to come, while calling on one of his customers near the business part of town. It seems that he was unusually late in making his deliveries and did not reach the house in question until after nightfall. As usual he stepped upon the back porch, where a sight met his gaze that nearly paralyzed him, for there stood a ferocious looking animal, as he described it, "about four feet high, nine feet long and with a monstrous tail." The animal's teeth showed with startling clearness in the dim twilight and altogether it was a sight to frighten the stoutest heart. It was too much for an ordinary man to stand and he made a wild dash for his wagon, declaring that he would make no more visits at that domicile until the awful beast was safely caged. His fears were allayed the next day, however, when he learned the object of his fright was only a half-grown Great Dane dog, and now all is again serene.

A Close Call.

What came very near proving a fatal accident occured about four o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rohm, on the Husselman dairy farm. The little year-old son of Mr. Rohm was crawling about the house in the absence of his mother, who had gone to the barn to look after another child, and the little fellow managed to get into the cistern which had been left uncovered. When Mrs. Rohm returned to the house a few moments later she missed the child, and in her search noticed a small whip he had been playing with lying at the cistern. Realizing what had happened she started for help, and luckily a Mr. Rodenbaugh of Waterloo happened to be passing on his wheel. Just as he reached the cistern, which was full of water, the child came up, feet first. Life seemed to be extinct, but by hard work the little fellow was resuscitated, though it was not until six hours later that he became conscious. It was certainly a close call and the feelings of the parents when the little fellow was again restored can be easier imagined than described.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard-st., Philadelphia. Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"it soon removed the pain in my chest and I can sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's drugstore, every bottle guaranteed.

They're All Boys.

Yesterday was a happy one for several families. Dr. Vesta Swarts reports a boy at Will Schaab's, and we are of the opinion there is no happier couple in Auburn. Mrs. Swarts also reports a boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Morr east of town born also yesterday morning. Dr. D. J. Swarts likewise reports a fine boy, born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Morr, at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Olinger west of town. This was the way things were going just before the Spanish war. It is plain that our people are in favor of raising an army big enough to whip the Fillipinos as soon as the rainy season is over. We say, Amen. Let the good work go on.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHRISTIAN UNION

Of the United Presbyterian Church, Annual Convention Pittsburg, Pa., August 2 to 7, 1899.

On August 1 to 5 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Pittsburg, Pa., at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Pittsburg to and including August 15, 1899.

Extension of Return Limit: Tickets may be extended to leave Pittsburg not later than August 31, by deposit of ticket with Joint Agent, and on payment of a fee of 50 cents per ticket at time of deposit.

For further information, call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 29-30

NERVITA PILLS Restore VITALITY, LOST VIGOR AND MANHOOD

Cure Impotency, Night Emissions and wasting diseases, all effects of self-abuse, or excess and indiscretion. A nerve tonic and blood builder. Brings the pink glow to pale cheeks and restores the fire of youth. By mail 50c per box, 6 boxes for $2.50; with a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Send for circular. Address,

NERVITA MEDICAL CO.
Clinton & Jackson Sts., CHICAGO, ILL.

Davenport, The Druggist.

COURT NEWS

Monday's Daily.

Among the odds and ends of court work that we had overlooked while the big trials were going on, were the following:

Mrs. Herman Tomlinson was divorced from her husband and given $600 alimony.

Clint North, brought up from Butler on a charge of intoxication, goes over to next term on a $200 bond.

Gen. Blair, attorney for Skip Barnhart files a motion for appeal to supreme court. Court reporter is ordered to prepare a long hand report of the evidence to use in supreme court.

Wm. Wingent and wife were given a legal separation.

Judge Watkins begins holding a long special session at Logansport this week, on a famous case. It is in settling a big estate, partly in Ohio, in which are a good many city lots. When the trouble first began, these lots were worth $30,000. Now, contrary to the general conditions in lawsuits the lots are worth more, being valued at $300,000. The case has been tried five times, twice in the supreme court, and is back now for a final pull. It is expected to take sixteen weeks.

Court will probably come to an end today or tomorrow.

Tuesday's Daily.

The hog case from Angola came up again yesterday. This was the one in regard to a car of hogs, a large number of which were killed by heat while going to Buffalo in October '97. A motion for a new trial had been made and Judge Hartman took it under advisement. Yesterday, he decided against a new trial.

The suit of Aaron Ash against the Joseph Gardner estate resulted in a judgment of $161.21 for Ash. This is the property against which Geo. H. Dunn secured a judgment last term of court, and as there is a school mortgage of $407 and another in favor of the Showers estate of $1265, it looks as if Mr. Dunn would have a poor show for his money.

GET YOUR EYES OPEN.

You may, for years, have been troubled with your stomach. Many articles of food eaten by you may cause distress for hours after eating, a fullness, etc. This is suggestive of dyspepsia and sooner or later, unless you do something to correct the evil, you will find yourself a confirmed dyspeptic. A SMALL DOSE OF DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN taken after each meal will give you greater relief than anything you can get.

Came Overland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hartman reached Auburn last evening, overland, at about five o'clock. They had started from Roann at about five the evening before. They took supper at North Manchester and staid over night at South Whitley. Yesterday morning they got an early start, and reached Columbia City too early for breakfast. Got a lunch at the only restaurant open, and then came on to Churubusco reaching there a little after nine. Here they gave the horse a three-hour rest, and got their dinner, then finished the trip at the hour above stated. The distance is about 75 miles, although by rail it is but fifty-six. The trip was a pleasant one. The roads were in fine condition until about Churubusco and this side of there a part of the way. The country roads have been worked so well, that a hard rain in summer does not affect them in many places.

NOTICE.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on two 25 cent bottles or boxes of Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, if it fails to cure constipation, billiousness, sick-headache, jaundice, loss of appetite, sour stomach, dyspepsia, liver complaint, or any of the diseases for which it is recommended. It is highly recommended as a spring tonic and blood purifier. Sold liquid in bottles, and tablets in boxes. Price 25 cents for either. One package of either guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. E. M. FISCHLER, F. E. DAVENPORT, HOWARD MCCORD.

$50 for One Bottle of Medicine.

This is to certify that my wife was for years afflicted with asthma, and was so far gone that several physicians decided that her case must terminate in consumption. I was induced to try a bottle of Dr. Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup. To our great satisfaction it gave almost immediate relief, and two bottles completely cured her. She is now well and healthy, but I would not be without the medicine if it cost $50 a bottle.

WM. H FARRIS,

Chairman Board Township of Wilton, Monroe Co., Wis.

Davenport, the druggist.

Notice to Contractors.

Notice is hereby given that on Friday, the 4th day of August, 1899, at the hour of 3 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at my office in Smithfield township, DeKalb county, Indiana, I will let to the lowest and best bidder the contract to construct a new brick school house in district number nine in said Smithfield township.

Specifications for said work are now on file in my office subject to the examination of all intending bidders.

All bids must be in writing, and bids will be received until said hour above named when all bids will be opened and read.

I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated this 11th day of July, 1899.

N. T. JACKMAN,
Trustee of Smithfield Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, 28-29

WHEELMEN

should never be without a box of Beggs' German Salve; it gives instant relief. Heals sores, cuts, bruises and chafing. H. B. McCord's drug store.

West to the Rockies

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL., July 13, 1899.

In going west of Chicago we boarded a chair car on the Chicago & North Western to Council Bluffs, where we crossed the Missouri river having crossed the Mississippi at Clinton, Ill. From Omaha we were transfered to the Union Pacific. The transfer being at a point where the Missouri river and bottom are about three miles wide. Leaving Omaha we commenced the journey from the Missouri river to the Rockies, over "The Great Plains," a wonderful geological formation which to be appreciated must be seen. We learn from the study of geology that at one time, ages back, that there was the bed of a pre-historic ocean, (Agassiz) called it "New West." From Omaha to Denver, a distance of about 569 miles, the road bed being over one of the grandest plains in the world. Starting at Omaha, the first place out we find is the "Magic City," of South Omaha with a population of over 14,000, then several smaller places are passed and we find ourselves at the city of Fremont 46 miles out on the line with a population of 10,000, in the midst of the richest and most productive portion of the Platte Valley. While little can be seen at the rate of speed we traveled, yet the eye of the traveler or tourist is constantly on the alert and viewing new scenes and passing other towns, we find ourselves at the city of Columbus, 45 miles farther on the way and said by Mr. George Francis Train, to be "The geographical center of the United States," and who is claimed advised the removal of the national capitol to that place. From thence to Central City the road is nearly a straight line, the distance being about forty miles. Then passing on we soon found ourselves at the city of Grand Island, where, it is reported, once existed large herds of buffalos, which have ceased to passover that part of the state since 1873. Passing along we soon find ourselves at Kearney, a city of near 8,000 and where is located one of the State Reform Institutions which cost the state $100,000. Passing many places of interest we arrived at North Platte nearly half way to Denver, where is said to be the central place or headquarters for live stock investments in the state of Nebraska. Westward we moved over lands which appeared to us but thinly settled, yet passing many places until we beheld the Rockies with their snowy ranges, and reached Denver. At that place we changed cars to another line, Kansas-Colorado Southern, where we beheld the Rockies along the line until we reached Colorado Springs which appeared to us when approaching, but a small place, only to find on our arrival one of the most beautiful cities of this country. This was our stopping place, we being in sight of Pike's Peak and Mt. Washington. From

WM. H. LEAS.

More Than All Others.

ROME CITY, Ind.

Dr. C. D. Warner, Coldwater, Mich.

Dear Sir:—It gives me great pleasure in recommending your White Wine of Tar Syrup to the public as an excellent cough cure. I have sold over a gross within a short time and I always warrant a cure and have never had a bottle returned. I sell more of your White Wine of Tar Syrup than all other cough remedies I keep in stock. I sold one dozen bottles to one of my customers.

Respectfully yours,
J. P. CHAPMAN.

Davenport, the druggist.

RESOLUTIONS.

Brother Silas B. Johnston, a member of Crescent Lodge No. 254, was born September 13, 1836, and died July 8, 1899. We speak of him as one in whom we have had the greatest confidence and respect; one whom we loved because of his great worth and work; one whose life shone out in all the beautiful virtues and characteristics of a christian life. He will be missed from the home circle, from the church, from the lodge and by all who knew him. His life was exemplary. He has left many who will mourn the loss of a noble man. We therefore offer the following resolutions:

RESOLVED. That in the demise of Brother Johnston, we have lost one whose memory will remain sacred. His name will not be forgotton, but will be a synonym of the emblems of the Order — "Friendship, Love and Truth."

He has belonged to the Rebekah lodgh for many years. He was a worthy member and a respected citizen. The sympathy of the members of the lodge is extended to the stricken wife in the loss of her beloved husband and companion.

By order of the committee.

MRS. W. L. PENFIELD,
MRS. A. B. RICHARDS,
MRS. P. L. BISHOP.

West to the Rockies.

It gives us pleasure to lay before our readers, some letters from Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Leas now in the far west, in fact they are sunning themselves in the valleys of the Rocky mountains. His first letter, a short one is dated at Colorado Springs, July 14, and reads:

I write you a brief sketch of our trip. We left Waterloo, July 19, at 4:23 and arrived in Chicago, at 9:30, and thence over the Chicago and Northwestern to Omaha, where we changed to the Union Pacific without changing our car, and arrived in due time at Denver. There we spent an hour, then started for this place where we arrived about noon. In the evening went to Cripple Creek and visited the gold camps at that place and vicinity. At one place, we went down into a shaft 600 feet. There was grand scenery all around us. In haste. More tomorrow. W. H. LEAS.

BUTLER.

NETH ENGLISH, IOWA, July 10, '99.

The readers of the COURIER may be interested in a brief description of this part of the country, the way to it, and its people, their avocation, prospects and condition.

Accompanied by my wife, I left Butler on July 7, over the Lake Shore and reached Chicago at 2:30 without incident. I made a few business calls, then took the elevated road at Lake Shore depot to Jackson Park, then surface car to South Chicago, where we remained until 2 p. m. Saturday. I devoted the interval in arranging business matters, viewing a few of the thousand and one, and some more of the city's attractions, leaving nine hundred and nine for a future examination. Among the few things seen was the nude nymphs on the lake front, so much talked about by the Chicago professors. They are rude indeed to an unartistic eye and hardly worth the talk indulged in about them. The weather was delightful, and almost too cold for comfort, on Saturday. A stiff northeast wind blew and Lake Michigan showed its teeth by a foamy surface, and great waves that dashed him along its sandy beach. No boat seemed willing to brave its threatening waters, so the coast was clear.

The Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul extended substantial favors to me in the way of transportation, a 2120 mile ticket with which I left the city at 2 p. m. Saturday. At first I thought I had a fast train, but after running about sixty miles, it stopped at all stations. The country across Illinois seemed very wet corn looked vigorous, but was not as large as with us. Grass seemed good but little of it cut yet. Oats seemed good also, but did not see a wheat field from Chicago to my present stopping place. We crossed the Mississippi at about 6 p. m. between Savannah, Ill., and Sabula, Iowa. The road runs down the river for quite a distance on each side. The waters were much higher than I expected to find them and much of the bottom lands were overflowed. Night overtook us soon after crossing the river, so the balance of the way was hidden by darkness. We reached North English at midnight, where our cousins met us. Thirty-one years had elapsed since seeing them before, so changes were seen on every hand. Death had removed many, age had overtaken others, and young manhood and womanhood had come in between, so only images of the past were realized. A warmer greeting could not have been hoped for. Sleep soon claimed our consciousness. Sunday morning broke clear and cool. I was out on the street and around the little town long before breakfast, looking vainly for some familiar sight that had escaped the ravages of thirty-one years. None were to be found. The hazel-nut thicket had turned into a well kept lawn; the long vista of tangled grass furrowed and scored by wagon trains, had turned to neatly kept farms, or dotted over with nice white village dwellings. Puffing engines with long trains of cars had displaced the "prairie schooners," that then broke the monotony on every hill and plain. Breakfast over, church bells ringing, nice looking, well dressed people passing, betokened Sabbath. I attend services in a very tasty little church and received many kindly greetings from its strange worshippers. Sunday school was also well attended. The town is new, and has a large trade mostly in live stock. The surrounding country is very hilly, but also very productive. We were awakened Monday morning by long trains of wagons bringing hogs to market.

A later visit to the stock yards assured me that the country around was highly productive in hogs at least. On Monday I visited my cousin's farm. I found great difficulty in recognizing the place. When I visited it in 1868, it was among the few improved farms in that part of the country. The eighteen miles between it and Marengo were almost an unbroken prairie, traversed by trails over whose uncertain way I traveled on foot, now the whole distance is enclosed in with cultivated farms. The great change in the general contour, was the many high hills, which at that time we avoided by going around them. Now the roads are on section lines, hence they are unavoidable. We left North English on the evening of the 10th at midnight. Daylight found us crossing northern Missouri. The whole section has suffered terribly with wet weather, and corn ranges in heighth from a few inches to that which is fully tasseled. A large part of it has not been cultivated at all and weeds and corn strive for mastery. The hay crop seems good, but very little or no wheat at all is to be seen. The outlook for a corn crop could scarcely be proven. We reached Kansas City at 9 a. m., and changing to the Missouri Pacific, were soon making our way along the highly flooded waters of the right bank of the muddy Missouri. The swollen current extending in many places for a mile or two across, came within two or three feet on the rails bearing our train. The danger seemed immense. The present height has only been equaled once since 1880. We reached Atchison without incident and a further description will have to follow later on.

J. A. C.

GAVE UP ALL HOPE.

Louis Pricket, 509 Bryan Ave., Danville, Ill., writes: I had suffered several years with asthma and after trying a great many remedies I had given up all hope. I was advised to try Foley's Honey and Tar. It immediately stops the coughing spells and I get my breath more freely. It is the only medicine that ever gave me relief.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

Wednesday's Daily.

—King Bros.' sale of horses will be held at Trout's livery barn tomorrow, beginning at 1 o'clock p. m.

—An entertainment and social will be held at Grove Bethel next Saturday evening, July 22, and all who attend are promised a good time.

—FOR SALE:—Two good farm and roadster horses, and one two-seated carriage in good condition. For information call at this office.

—C. M. Brown and family left last evening for Hamilton where they will spend a week visiting relatives and enjoying an outing at the lake.

—A number of Auburn Knights and Ladies of the Maccabees will attend the big meeting of the order at Baw Beese Park, near Hillsdale, tomorrow.

—Mrs. Lottie Cochran and daughter Mary returned from Kendallville yesterday where they spent several days with relatives. The pleasure of their trip was greatly marred by the death of the former's aunt, Mrs. A. B. Park.

—Funk & Reesh today received a car load of stone for the foundation of the power house on the public square. The arrival of the stone, which is from the quarries at Whitehouse, Ohio, was delayed several days by an error in shipment.

—The cellar or basement to be used as an engine room in the new power house, is nine feet deep. It is down four or five feet in the center now. Already the ground is somewhat damp in the deepest points. But work goes on without ceasing.

—The St. Joe News complained a few days ago because they did not get the daily COURIER. The reason was we ran short of papers off and on for a week or two, and had to furnish subscribers whether exchanges were omitted or not. As soon as we could increase our order all were properly served. This week we have to increase the order again, and then once more our exchanges will be served properly. Till the change is made we ask their patience.

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Give It a Trial.

It will surprise you. It will restore the life and beauty to your hair, stops dandruff and the hair from falling out. Beggs' Hair renewer. H. B. McCord's.

Fifty Million Coffee Drinkers In America

WHY THE FAMOUS FIRM OF ARBUCKLE BROS CONTROL THE BULK OF THE COFFEE TRADE.

It is estimated that there are fifty million coffee drinkers in America. We have long since passed the mark of being the largest coffee consumers in the world, one-third of the entire coffee grown being used in America. This proportion has been steadily growing since 1861 when the total amount of coffee imported was only 79,000 tons.

From Brazil, Peru, Java, and Sumatra Ceylon, India, Africa, the Phillipines, and the islands of the tropical seas, bags, bales and barrels pour into New York city every year by the hundreds of thousands. From New York they are distributed to all parts of the country.

But the greater portion of the coffee imported is retained in New York by the famous firm of Arbuckle Bros. the largest coffee dealers in the world. They buy more than all other dealers combined, and the name of Arbuckle has became synonymous for immense dealings in the favorite breakfast beverage. This has given them great prestige among coffee growers in every part of the world, and as large buying always makes for good buying, it is not surprising that Arbuckle's has become famous as the standard of coffee values, a standard no other house has been able to reach.

Millions of homes to-day in every section of the country use nothing but Arbuckles' coffee. The test of experience has taught the careful housewife that her faith not only means money saved, but that she is supplying the best coffee that money can procure for the coffee drinkers of her household.

One immense advantage possessed by Arbuckle Bros. is that of being able to deliver the coffee berry to the consumer with all its delightful aroma and flavor intact. This they do by a process, the patents of which they exclusively hold, covering the many little pores of the berry thereby holding in its goodness. The ingredients used in the process are entirely wholesome and nothing deleterious is used to mar the delicacy of flavor or taste.

Part of the success of Arbuckles' coffee has been due to the generous and unique method used to popularize it. In each package of the coffee there is a list of articles. With each package in which the list is found the purchaser buys a definite part of some article to be selected by him or her from the list, subject only to the condition that the signature on the package is to be cut out and returned to Arbuckle Bros. Every body should see this list.

LOW RATE EXCURSION

To Chicago via Baltimore & Ohio Ry.

On Saturday, Suly 28, the B. & O. will sell excursion tickets to Chicago, Ill, at rate of $1 for the round trip, account of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen excursion.

Special train leaves Auburn Junction at 5:25 a. m.

Tickets good returning on special trains leaving Chicago at 8:10 p. m. July 29 and 8:10 p. m. July 30.

What Can We ..Offer.. You

In the way of.....

HARDWARE and FARM MACHINERY

that will attract your attention?

We have the most complete stock ever seen in our city, and you know that, as usual, our prices are right

Do you need anything for spring that we carry

?

Do you know that we have built up a wonderful trade by right prices and right goods.

?

Do you know that we have the most complete stock of

Hardware, Farm Machinery Wagons and Buggins

in DeKalb County

?

If you will drop in and see us we will be able to convince you at once that we have the goods that you want, and the prices alone will tell the story.

Don't fail to see our Carriage Repository, it is the finest in Northern Indiana,

Culbertson & Boland,
Auburn, Ind.

CEDAR.

J. M. Smith is treating his buggy to a new coat of paint.

George Weygandt is numbered with the sick this week.

Miles Embrey and family Sundayed with friends here.

The farmers report plenty of rain now for growing crops.

W. W. Jackson expects to start his threshing machine soon.

H. A. Lung and wife have already commenced housekeeping.

Perry Beard and family expect to move to Grand Rapids soon.

Several of our citizens visited Detroit on the excursion last Sunday.

Farmers report considerable damage to the oats crop, caused by recent rains.

Wm. Zern and Jno. E. Lung made a business trip to Fort Wayne the first of the week.

The many friends and associates of Miss Lena Knott attempted to give her a surprise one evening of last week, it being her 18th birthday. The surprise as far as Lena was concerned was a failure, but aside from this all present report a good time and all join in wishing her many happy birthdays.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

is easily cured by the use of Beggs' Diarrhœa Balsam; it is safe and sure. H. B. McCord's drug store.

Sheriff'S Sale.

By virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, in a cause wherein William McCullough, Theodore Gary, partners doing business under the firm name of Ashley Banking Company are plaintiffs, and Emma C. Yackee, Chris G. Yackee are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Seven Hundred and Nine Dollars and Twenty-seven Cents ($709.27), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at PUBLIC SALE, to the highest bidder on

Saturday, August 12, 1899

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the court house in Auburn DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate towit:

Lot sixteen (16), block twenty-eight (28) in the town of Ashley, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs. Said sale will, be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN H. HATHAWAY,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana,

Auburn Indiana, July 19, 1899.

Mott's Nerverine Pills

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. $1.00 per box by mail; 6 boxes for $5.00.

MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Prop's, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Junk Wanted

Please save your money. Don't forget to bring all your junk to H. Greenberg, three blocks north of M. E. church in Auburn, who pays for rags, rubber, copper, brass, zinc, lead, scrap iron and all kinds of hides and furs.

Best Cash Prices

WANTED!

We will pay $2.00 per cord CASH for all the good live elm bolts, 10 inches and over in diameter, 32 inches long, delivered on our yard in Auburn.

Greenler Co.

LOW RATE EXCURSION

To Atlantic City, N. J., and other Seaside Resorts, via B. & O. Railroad.

In order to give its patrons an opportunity to visit the seashore at a nominal cost, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell low rate excursion tickets to Atlantic City, Cape May and Sea Isle City, N. J., and Ocean City, Md., on Thursday, August 3, 1899.

Atlantic City has acquired such fame as a summer resort that a description of its varied attractions is superfluous. Thousands are annually attracted to this delightful resort for the enjoyment of magnificent surf bathing, and to avail themselves of the unequalled opportunities for sailing, fishing, etc.

Tickets will be available for all regular trains, and will be good for return fifteen days, including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing. Stop over not to exceed ten days within limit of ticket will be allowed at Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Md., and Philadelphia, Pa., in either or both directions.

To secure the stop-over privileges conductor should be notified prior to reaching stop-over point and tickets should be deposited with depot ticket agent immediately upon arrival.

Further information will be given upon application to nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent, Chicago. 29 30

CHAUTAUQUA MEETING

Mountain Lake Park, Md., Aug. 2-30, '99 Half Fare via B. & O. Railroad.

August 1 to 30 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Mountain Lake Park at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Mountain Lake Park August 31.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or. B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill.

General Belief and Private Opinion.

It isn't always that you will find everybody agreeing upon any subject. Every pro has its con, and all medals have a reverse side. On the question as to the best place to buy Dry Goods, however, there is no room for a division. Everybody who knows enough to go in out of the wet, knows that we are far and away the leaders, For fear that some somebody (but lately landed) may not know it, we append.....

Some Very Convincing Arguments

PARASOLS.

To bid the balance of the parasols a hurried good-by we put our hands in our pockets, close our eyes and sacrifice the profits and a goodly sized slice of the cost.

Children's Parasols that were 50c and $1.00. Go now at..... 38 and 49c

Ladies' Parasols they were $1.00. Now..... 58c

$1.50 ones for 98c; $2 00 ones $1.23, and so on through the entire lot.

WASH GOODS.

A few pieces of Scotch Lawns left from our big sale will go at sale price, viz. per yard..... 3c

Organdies that ought to be sold for 10c per yard at least. Will go now at..... 5c

SHIRT WAISTS.

Choice out of a lot of 50c colored waists, most all sizes. At..... 23c

All $1.00 colored waists. Will go now for..... 69c

$1.50 white waists, cool, comfortable garments, trimmed with insertion, while they last..... 75c

White Pique Waists the 75c kind. Now..... 55c

BELTS and BUCKLES.

The stylish fanciful kind are here in considerable numbers. New additions made to this line most every day, you cannot fail being suited, and the prices—they're sure to please.

WRAPPERS.

Stylish comfortable garments in Percale and Lawn. We have them at from ..... 49c up

You can depend on getting the right things at the right prices at this store.

G. W. Lackey,

Auburn, Ind.

Excitement!!

Yes, there will be when you see our Ladies' Window.

60 PAIR LADIES' FINE DRESS SHOES, Genuine Silk Vesting Top Patent Leather Tip (The Very Latest is Patent Tip) bought from a manufacturer who needed money more than shoes. We bought them for SPOT CASH, so you know we bought them cheap or we would not have bought them to sell in July.

They are worth $2 50 Anywhere. Our Special July Price $1.69

You will be the loser if you don't get a pair,

SEE OUR WINDOW ANY PAIR FOR $1.69

BISHOP & BEIDLER,

YOUR SHOEMAKERS.

PETER KUNTZ, President. Chicago, Ill. W. H. KECKLER, Treasurer Auburn, Ind.

...THE... Auburn Lumber Co.

CENTRAL 'PHONE 12.

We sell all kinds of Lumber for Building Purposes, Make Door and Window Frames to Order. We can Sell you Doors and Windows at Money Saving Prices.

Headquarters For

Lime, Bulk Lime

Wood Burnt Bulk Lime

The Genuine Article.

We can save you money in Price, Quality and Weight Come and see us and examine our LIME, and you will be convinced. We also carry Cement, Plastering Hair, Plaster Paris, etc. Yours Truly,

AUBURN LUMBER CO.

Near Wabash Depot, Auburn, Ind.

Monday's Daily.

—For sale or rent, good residence. Inquire. F. E. Eckhart.

—Remember low rate excursion to Niagaga Falls and Alexandria Bay over Lake Shore Ry., July 27.

—Prof. H. G. Brown and family will go to Steuben county Friday to remain until the opening of the school here in September.

—The people of Maysville, Allen county, by a remonstrance prevented the granting of license to sell liquor in that place.

—Frank Thomas and family went to Hamilton Saturday to spend a couple of weeks visiting relatives and enjoy an outing at the lake.

—About seventy men are now employed on the sewer and the force will be increased as fast as the circumstances will permit.

—Goshen druggists now have on sale a preparation which enables persons to vaccinate themselves. The affair consists of a delicate syringe.

—Illinois has established juvenile courts by which children improperly brought up can be adopted by the state and sent to suitable homes.

—No humbug. Shull's sale of women's fine shoes, $3.00 and $4 00 shoes for $2.00 at Shull's this week. No old styles, all new and up-to-date. tf.

—To all points in competition where the fare is $2 or more we have free bus and free baggage to the Junction. tf Sprott & Knapp, Agency B. & O. Ry.

—Miss Ellen Keeran and cousin, Mrs. Young and children, drove to Jackson township yesterday to spend a day or two with Miss Keeran's sister, Mrs. Nelson.

—The right of way for the electric road has been secured between Angola and Goshen and the promoters announce that the work of construction will begin this fall.

—Mrs. Will Keeran, and daughter Bessie, who have been visiting the relatives here, went to Hicksville today to visit her people. She is a daughter of A. C. Comparet.

—Auburn now has fourteen attorneys and legal business ought to be well looked after by that number of legal lights. There are nearly as many physicians as lawyers.

If you expect to take a days' outing remember the excursion to Island Park Aug. 15. The trip, admission to the grounds, good program and good dinner for less than one dollar.

—The late Dr. T. J. Dills, formerly of Fort Wayne but who died in California a short time ago, carried life insurance policies aggregating $17,000 which will go to his widow.

—Counterfeit half dollars are in circulation in Northern Indiana. They are dated 1893, made to look old and under the word "Liberty" is the letter o which on the genuine coins of the same date is s.

—Chas. Rugman put a force of men and teams at work this morning making the excavation for the new building east of the jail. The surface dirt was used to fill up the lawn between the jail and court house.

—McNabb's big ivy at the yellow front meat market, is still spreading out, having now reached to the refrigerator at the back end of the main room. Some enterprising artist can get a beautiful picture there.

—Hicksville had a sensation last week. A farmer's wife in that county was arrested on a charge of getting the lads who lived with them, to steal chickens from the neighbors. We have not learned the result of the trial.

—The Garrett lodge of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen will run their annual excursion to Chicago on Saturday, July 29, The fare for the round trip will be $1 and tickets will be good returning the following evening.

—Attorney Smith, who lately located here, has his office in the Zigler building nicely fittted up and is ready to look after the wants of his patrons. He is a pleasant gentleman and will doubtless get his share of legal business.

—The man who advertises stands before the public in the full legitimate and dignified prominence of one who is proud of his business, has a right to be, and wants to do more of it. He is the kind of a man that everybody wants to do business with.

—The election of senators by popular vote has received a great impetus from the failure of four states, after endless deadlocks and numerous bribes and scandals to elect their second senators. Pennsylvania has appointed a commission on the subject.

—Frank Reynolds of Butler and Charles Reynolds of Toledo, a distant relative, spent Sunday in Auburn, the guests of Mrs. Barclay and Mr. and Mrs. Miles Baxter, who are relatives. Charles Reynolds is a conductor on the Lake Shore road.

—There is to be a big excursion from Findlay, Ohio, to Rome City, July 29. It will be run by the Adams Bros., Foundry and Machine Works, and goes via Fort Wayne, LaOtto and Kendallville. All invited to join them says a letter from F. C. Calkins, —The lady's bicycle left standing in front of Shaffer's furniture store Thursday afternoon is still in posession of Mr. Shaffer, no person having claimed it. There is but little doubt that the wheel was stolen somewhere, brought here and left by the thief.

—Married:—On July 16, 1899, at his home on West Ninth street, Auburn, by Rev. W. L. Meese, Mr. H. Pugsley, and Miss Ida Bailey. This is the fifth member of 'Squire Pugsley's family that Mr. Meese has married. The family will probably be well represented at the reunion here August 15 and 16

—Quietly but steadily the curfew movement grows, many towns getting it with such unanimity of sentiment that the civic victory is not counted as news worth telling. Natick, Mass., Le Roy, N. Y., Uniontown, Pr., are recent additions to this honor roll, in which the west has so far taken the lead.

□—Mr. Arlet preached two fine sermons yesterday to fair sized audiences. The subject in the evening was a new one, "Christ as a Financier," and he showed that though the Saviour had but little money to handle, he had excellent judgment and ability in that direction. It opened many new thoughts.

—In the wrestling match at Columbia City Saturday night Al Treesh was the winner, taking the first fall in one minute and a half, the fourth in one minute and the fifth in thirty seconds. Foltz won the second fall in nine and the third in eleven minutes. A good crowd witnessed the contest which was one of the best ever seen there.

—Little George McDowell's familiar face beamed brightly on the many old friends at the Home restaurant yesterday. His mother had stopped at Waterloo for a visit while going to Cleveland where they expect to locate, and Frank McDowell had gone up there and brought the lad down, so he could have a short visit. The boy seemed delighted to meet old friends again.

—It is rumored at Fort Wayne that the Pabst brewing company of Milwaukee will make an effort to purchase Robison park when it is sold with the other property of the consolidated street railway company at receiver's sale. It is hardly possible that the brewing company will be able to carry out its plan as there will be numerous other bidders for the park when the sale is made.

—The postoffice department has republished the orders relating to the forwarding and rturning of undelivered second, third and fourth class mail matter, for the benefit of postmasters who fail to comprehend or regard them. Conforming to this law, postmasters are directed not to return mail of this descripton even though it may contain a return request, until the postage for returning has been fully paid.

—The grand jury of Crawford county, Pa., has just presented a report in which it gives an account of its examination of the poor farm of that county and the paupers there supported at public expense. It says: "It may be of interest to the state that, from a careful estimate made by the superintendent, at least 70 percent of these unfortunate people became wards of the county directly or indirectly through the effects of intoxicating liquors.

SOLDIERS' WIDOWS' HOME.

Wilmington, Ill., Sept. 13, 1897.

Syrup Pepsin Co., Gents: Your Syrup Pepsin has been used in our Home with great success. The ladies under my charge have grown so attached to it as a corrector of the many ailments of the stomach and bowels, that too great praise cannot be given it. In the relief of indigestion and sick headache it works to perfection.

Margaret R. Wickins, Matron.

Dear Sirs: I take great pleasure in adding my testimony as to the efficiency of Syrup Pepsin as used in our Home. We use it in all cases of constipation and indigestion. Respectfully,

Eva J. Sweet, Nurse.

Maccabee Excursion.

On Thursday, July 20, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway will sell excursion tickets to Baw Beese Park at $1. for the round trip. Special train will leave Auburn at 8:00 a. m. See small bills. Ask agents.

HUMBUGS

are they who tell you other cough syrups are just as good as Beggs' Cherry Cough Syrup. If you can not get it from your druggist notify us at once and on receipt of 25 cents we will send you a bottle. Guaranteed. McCord's.

A Word to Doctors

We have the highest regard for the medical profession. Our preparations are not sold for the purpose of antagonizing them, but rather as an aid. We lay it down as an established truth that internal remedies are positively injurious to expectant mothers. The distress and discomforts experienced during the months preceding childbirth can be alleviated only by external treatment—by applying a liniment that softens and relaxes the over-strained muscles. We make and sell such a liniment, combining the ingredients in a manner hitherto unknown, and call it

Mother's Friend

We know that in thousands of cases it has proved more than a blessing to expectant mothers. It overcomes morning sickness. It relieves the sense of tightness. Headaches cease, and danger from Swollen, Hard and Rising Breasts is avoided. Labor itself is shortened and shorn of most of the pain.

We know that many doctors recommend it, and we know that multitudes of women go to the drug stores and buy it because they are sure their physicians have no objections. We ask a trial—just a fair test. There is no possible chance of injury being the result, because Mother's Friend is scientifically compounded. It is sold at $1 a bottle, and should be used during most of the period of gestation, although great relief is experienced if used only a short time before childbirth. Send for our illustrated book about Mother's Friend.

THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.
ATLANTA, GA.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Remember the Meese Matrimonial Reunion at Auburn, Aug. 15. tf.

—Ladies' $4.00 tan shoes for $2 00 this week at Shull's shoe store. tf.

—For Sale:—Good second-hand organ; will be sold cheap. Inquire at this office.

—If you want a pair of fine shoes for a little money, call at Shull's shoe store. $3 50 and $4.00 shoes for $2.00.

—Mrs. T. C. Ford and little Walter are expected home this evening, after a week's visit with her daughter at St. Marys, O.

—The two sections of the Wabash excursion Sunday carried 1,018 passengers to Detroit.

—For Sale:—A good second-hand phaeton, in first-class condition, at very reasonable terms.—Mrs. Jacob Walborn, Auburn, Ind.

—Cheap excursion to Niagara Falls and Alexandria Bay July 27 over Lake Shore Ry. Particulars in another column or consult ticket agents.

—Prof. C. S. Plumb, who has so long been in charge of the agricultural experiment station at Purdue, is here a guest in the family of Cal Husselman.

—The Nineteenth United States infantry, of which Fred Niles is a member, passed through Fort Wayne early this morning en-route to the Philippines.

—Mr. Meese has a letter from Judge C. A. Bowersox that he will be here at the Matrimonial reunion, Aug. 16, and deliver the address. He is well known here as a fine speaker.

—The Roann factory is now runping night and day. They use up twenty thousand feet of timber a day. They employ 64 teams taking timber from seven different towns.

—The Peabody Brothers of Columbia City have purchased the interest of their Boston partners in the big tract of timber in Wabash county, recently bought from Straus Bros. & Co. of Ligonier for $55,000.

—The Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette reports that Archie Sergeant, who was seriously injured on the B. & O. some time ago, is improving and that amputation of his limb will not be necessary as at first supposed.

—Several men connected with the Church of God, made a bee today, and set hitching posts on the south side of the church. This will accommodate the large number of attendants who drive in from the country.

—Dr. Hurty, secretary of state board of health, has today sent Dr. W. H Nusbaum a large tube of vaccine virus and he is prepared to vaccitate any person wishing it. Smallpox is getting near us in all directions.

—Prof. W. A. Beane, principal of the Columbia City high school, was in town a few hours today on his way to Angola where he will spend several days in the interest of the Eastern publishing house of Dodd, Mead & Co.

—A movement will probably be inaugurated among the Odd Fellows of Indiana to present a fitting testimonial to General Lawton, who has been a member of Harmony Lodge of Fort Wayne since 1864 and is now the oldest member of that lodge.

—L. J. Danis, the representative of the well known proprietary medicine house of Henry, Johnson & Lord, was here this morning on one of his annual visits. He has represented them many years and now controls the four states, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois.

—J. N. Myers and family returned from their trip to Maysville, and has now gone for a two weeks stay in the vicinity of Columbia City. It is thought now that Mr. Myers' hand will entirely recover, sustaining only the loss of a part of the index finger.

—Unclaimed letters remaining in the postoffice, week ending July 18, '99. Miss Bird Smith, Henry Low, Claud Brown, Newton Brown, C. Barger, Geo. W. Fowler, G. W. Cornell and Sol. A. Wood. Claimants will please call for letters in advertised list.

G. H. Forkner, Postmaster.

—Dr. Skilling of Garrett and young Driver both of whom are now confined in jail on account of insanity have been a source of considerable trouble during the past few days, the former being especially violent in his conduct. They will be taken to Longcliff as soon as necessary arrangements can be made.

—Bert Lane, who has but recently received his discharge from the United States hospital service in Cuba, is here for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Sim Duck. He is enjoying good health and is of course glad to get back home, even though his stay will be short, as he expects to return to New York soon to take service on one of the transports between New York and Cuba.

—The Chicago Chronicle of last Sunday had an article concerning the new skunk trust recently formed by a number of Northern Indiana gentlemen. We acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the prospectus of the trust, the board of directors of which includes such well-known Auburn citizens as John Robbins, Morris Eckhart and S. C. Snyder. There's millions in it if properly worked.

—DeKalb county will be well represented among the members of the new Thirty-first regiment of United States volunteers. In addition to Arthur Towne the following men from Butler enlisted at Fort Wayne yesterday: Max Strauss, Ollie Hall, Orion Hook, Russell Henning, Todd Warner, Roy Warner, Max Baruth and Fred Stewart. It is probable that a number of others from this county will enlist for service in this or other volunteer regiments.

Good July Values

Quite a little better than the ordinary, but its the time of year that you may expect such surprises. Little margins, but plenty of trade is the July watchword. Here just a hint of the kind of values are possible in your July buying.

Here They Are

Scotch Lawns, pretty, bright goods, per yard.....5c
Swiss Lawns, new things in colors, per yard..8 and 10c
Percales in stripes and plaids, regular 8c and 10c goods; go at per yard..... 6c
Ye olden time Ginghams at per yard.....5½c
Turkey Red Table Cloth per yard.....23 to 39c
Table Linen, 56 in wide, unbleached, a good value at 40c, this week per yard.....25c
Table Linen. 60 in. wide, three-quarter bleached, a value at 60c, this week per yard.....45c
Table Linen, 60 in. wide, bleached, a good value at 65c, this week per yard.....48c
Table Linen, 64 in. wide, bleached, a good value at 75c, this week per yard.....60c
All Linen Napkins, per dozen....98c, $1.24 and $1.48
Ladies' Black Ribbed Hose, regular 15c goods, pair. 10c
Misses' and Children's Black Ribbed Hose, regular 15c goods, at per pair.....10c
Boys' Striped Coats, each.....48c
Men's Fancy Hose, black and colors, pair....10 to 24c
White Lawn Ties at per doz.....20c
Chiffon for Ties per yd.....45c
Bobenet for Ties per yd.....15c
A big assortment of Baby Bonnets and hats at 10c to 48c
Tooth Brushes.....5 to 10c
Ladies' and Misses' Belts, in white and colors 10 to 24c
Hair Pins per bunch.....3c
Hair Brushes.....10 to 22c
Ladies' Purses.....5 to 24c

We still have a few Parasols which we will sell at special low prices.

Bazar Store

Auburn, Ind.

HIGHEST 1899 GRADE

BICYCLE

GENT'S COLUMBIAN $20.50 LADIES' COLUMBIAN

BEST BICYCLE BUILT!

FACTORY TO RIDER DIRECT.

All we require is $1.00 down, balance payable after examination.

We are the only factory in the United States selling direct to rider.

We guarantee our goods for two years—most liberal guarantee ever given.

We give more options than the regular dealers. You can have your choice of color, heighth of frame, or any gear desired

Our bicycles have all the latest improvements—large tubing, flush joints, large sprockets, arched fork crown, drop hanger, etc.

Write for Catalogue giving full description, today.

Columbian Cycle Co.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

To Make Life Happy.

Sweet music appeals to the heart and soul and lightens many of life's burdens. If you have ever heard the sweet-toned Steger Piano you will appreciate this. To reach the highest standard of excellence has always been the aim in the manufacture of the celebrated Steger Piano. Only the best material is used, insuring great durability. Every piano fully guaranteed.

The Steger Factories, thoroughly equipped with the best and most improved machinery, located at Steger, Ill., are among the largest in the West.

Intending purchasers will find it profitable to write for a full descriptive catalogue, which will be mailed free upon application. Steger & Co., (Established 1879) Chisago, Ill.

There is No ? About It.

No question indeed with those who have used it, but that Foley's Kidney Cure is absolutely reliable for all kidney and bladder diseases.

BAPTIST ASSEMBLY OF OHIO.

Mt Vernon, O., (Lake Hiawatha Park) July 18-28, 1899, Inclusive.—Half Rates via Baltimore & Ohio R. R.

On July 18 to 28, inclusive, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Mount Vernon, Ohio, (Hiawatha Park) at one fare for the round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Mount Vernon to and including July 29, 1899.

For further information, call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 29

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

IDEAL MUSIC,

"Sweet as the angel Israfil's,
When every leaf on Eden's tree
Was trembling to his minstrelsy."

can be produced from an EBERSOLE PIANO. The Ebersole possesses a tone that no other maker has been able to imitate—being full and deep, yet with that clear singing quality which stamps it the peer of all upright pianos for homes of culture and refinement.

Frank B. Long,

119 Calhoun-St. cor Washington,
Fort Wayne, Ind.

August Flower.

"It is a surprising fact," says Prof. Houton, "that in my travels in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's August Flower than any other remedy, for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feelings from irregular habits exist, that Green's August Flower is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion." Sample bottles free at O. P. Raber, Corunna. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. 1

HOW SCHLEY FLAYED CERVERA

WHEN the sun sank his red and perspiring face under the cooling waters of the Caribbean on the night of July 2, 1898, the blockading fleet off Santiago drew silently inshore to take up another night of vigil lest Cervera should slip by under cover of darkness and undo the work of the past forty days. Scarcely had the hiss which marked the extinction of the orb of day smitten on the ears of the men of the fleet when the searchlights took up the labor where the sun had left off and sent long tongues of flame into the crooked mouth of the harbor, sweeping to right and left, west and east over the grim fortresses which masked the entrance, peering in to where the Reina Mercedes was floating a watchdog against any attempt to break inside.

When the same sun after one more course from east to west again took his mighty bath over toward Panama, the blockading fleet was somewhat scattered although within signal call. Part of the vessels were along the coast line picking up the sailors of Spain and helping to save the survivors of the wrecks made such by themselves. The long vigil was over, nothing remained of sufficient importance to worry gallant "Dick" Wainwright with his little converted yacht. The fleet of the gray-haired admiral was in smoldering ruins along that coast line, while he himself a prisoner was sitting in the cabin of the flagship dressed in garments lent to him by her officers.

Independence Day, 1898, had received new significance, for it had become the day of one more stupendous naval accomplishment under the flag of the Union. Not even the brilliant battle of Admiral Dewey in the harbor of Manila exceeded the wonderful fight made by Schley on that Sunday morning. Spain's sea power was a mere reminiscence when the sun rose over Morro and Socapa on July 4. But one American had lost his life in the fierce fight extending from early in the morning until an hour and a half after the time for midday mess call. Hundreds of Spaniards had made their last fight on earth, four magnificent cruisers, excelling in power—on paper—the one armored cruiser which did such fearful execution, were blackened hulks lying ashore on the coast, two torpedo destroyers were under the sea, sent there by a fierce little yacht inferior in armament to them, and the survivors of all their crews were prisoners aboard the vessels of their conquerors.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY.

ADMIRAL SAMPSON.

A Severe Vigil.

For forty days Schley had kept guard there. For thirty days the blockade had been maintained under the one general order issued by Sampson to all the fleet on June 2. For thirty days the same six-mile circle had bound in the entrance to Santiago and made it impossible for anything, even a whaleboat, to emerge night or day without a challenge to be turned into destruction unless the challenge were heeded. It had been a nerve-racking, soul-wearying strain on officers and men, by day standing off under steam in a wide circle of six miles from the prows of the big battleships in the center to the same distance off the harbor entrance, but close inshore, where the little gunboats picketed, by night closing in to half distance with formation unbroken excepting that a battleship should close in on the entrance and blaze it with its searchlights until relieved, while another huge hulk attended to open fire on anything emerging, such had been the monotonous order of the watch.

Patiently and faithfully, punctual to the second on changing station, the watch had been kept. Time after time the veteran of Castile had sought for a break in that deadly guard and had retired into the inner fastnesses of the crooked harbor in despair. "If the enemy attempts to escape close in on him, engage and endeavor to destroy him or drive him ashore." So read the general order issued by Sampson on June 2, which was never changed until it had been carried into full effect. So with the fall of night just a month later the big ships moved slowly and sullenly nearer the point of possible attack.

When the first gray streak of dawn revealed the point where water and shore separate the Massachusetts, then on guard with her searchlight attended by the Indiana, turned her prow to the east and steamed away to Guantanamo. She left her station to coal, for her bunkers were getting too low in supplies to permit her to follow out orders if the emergency arose. Taylor, with the Indiana, relieved her, for no second ship was needed then. Back into the circle, with the Gloucester hovering on her port bow, the big battleship moved. With the increase of light once more the long semi-circle was taken up and the grim watch went on.

But the uneasy sea kept the big ships drifting to the east as they rose and fell. Over nearest the shore in the port division the little Vixen held her place. Next should have been the Marblehead, but she was detached that day. Then came the Brooklyn, flagship of the second squadron; the Texas, the Iowa, the Oregon, the New York, flagship of the chief in command; the Gloucester close inshore and east of her the Indiana. The position at daybreak was such that the port side was somewhat uncovered. It is believed that this unusual condition was noticed by the Spanish commander and that herein he saw his only chance of escaping with one or more of his vessels.

Morning mess was called and disposed of, men lounged about seeking some cool spot, officers walked nervously about, but nothing indicated that a change to the monotony of the vigil was imminent. Over on the Oregon the jackies assembled in general quarters for Sunday morning inspection. On the other ships in rapid succession the same preparations for the same ceremony were noticeable—excepting the New York. Day station had been taken, the commander had made his observations and was about to leave his post for a time.

While the men were still on deck undergoing a rigid inspection by their officers the signal bridge of the fleet flagship broke out in many-colored bunting. On each signal bridge of each vessel in the mighty armament the officer on duty bent his glasses to read the signal. It was nearly 9 o'clock, stifling hot and eyes were straining across the brazen water in idle wonder when the stern guard would be broken. "Disregard the motions of the commander in chief" read the signal displayed by the big flagship. Then the beautiful cruiser steamed away toward Siboney.

On the deck of the Brooklyn, shaded by a big awning, sat Commodore Schley. Near by him was Captain Cook. The inspection was over, the men had been released and all was as monotonous as it had been for forty days. Just at this juncture the navigating officer on the forward bridge bent his glasses on the harbor entrance. His attention had been attracted to smoke which was coming therefrom. He quietly turned to Mr. Hodgson, executive officer, and said: "That smoke is moving, sir."

"Give me the glasses," said Mr. Hodgson, and he trained them on the object now increasing in size. "The enemy is escaping, sir," he bawled out to the squadron chief, dropping the glasses in his excitement.

"Signal the fleet to clear ship," said the commander.

"We have done so, sir."

From the signal bridges of half the vessels in the fleet came the signal that at last Cervera had dared the wrath of the blockaders. In swift reply came the order from the Brooklyn to close in and engage, but by the time the bunting flapped from the ropes the entire fleet had broken ground and was following out the general order to fight on sight. As they swung to port to meet the enemy the forward turrets of the Teresa blazed with a noisy defiance and the shot were turned loose among the vessels bearing down swiftly upon them.

Then the most remarkable naval battle of all time was under way. The big Brooklyn, the largest ship in the fleet, swooped down under half steam, belching flame and smoke from all her port battery. Then, with a mighty sweep of her bows, she sheered up to starboard and, swinging around in a circle, passed close by the Texas, reopening with her starboard battery. Swiftly she flew, gaining speed and power with each revolution of her screws. Classed as inferior to any one of the four gigantic cruisers opposed to her, she successively engaged them all.

The Texas, the Oregon, the Indiana, all swooped down, turning to meet the westward course of Cervera's ships. Their heavy guns threw tons of hard metal against the sides of the doomed ships, but only one had the steam and speed to follow the escaping leaders. With an experience gained in a race of 12,000 miles, the stokers and engineers of the mighty Oregon had learned a lesson which stood them in good stead. With a speed greater even than that of the Brooklyn, this leviathan passed to starboard of the Iowa and Texas and hung on the trail of the speedy Brooklyn, gaining rapidly on the flagship, hurling heavy shot and shell upon the enemy.

From out the entrance of the harbor, last of all, lying flat in the water with a limited exposure to hostile fire, came the most dreaded of all the ships which floated the flag of Castile that morning. With double the speed of the Americans, with deadly torpedoes aboard and with instructions to send in their deadly missiles on any ship daring enough to await their attack, slipped out the Furor and Pluton. During all the long watch off that harbor these two had caused the blockaders the greatest anxiety. Yet the result tends to show how useless in hot battle they and their class can be.

When the action began the Gloucester lay farthest inshore in the starboard division. She lapped over the huge Indiana and her gallant commander sent her forward and then swept in a wide circle, clearing the way for Taylor. She blazed away with her guns—mere toys compared to those of her big consort—but at too long range for effective service. Then Captain Wainwright, knowing the speed of his ship, held her back to gain steam. He was still waiting when the torpedo boats made the outer entrance. Then came his opportunity.

Opposing two vessels regarded as the most dangerous in the fleet of the enemy by this time was but one daring Yankee seaman with a crew of daring Yankees aboard a fragile yacht built for pleasure and not stern war. It was a contest none need have felt shame in avoiding, but Wainwright had seen the Maine sink below the waters of Havana harbor, had seen his men in mangled heaps crushed out of life, and he knew no hesitation. Like a greyhound his little vessel shot forward. Down under the fire of the battleships which had turned their fire upon them the yacht bore in between the deadly torpedo boats. Often in that brilliant action they tried to torpedo the Gloucester, but the skill of the commander and the skill of the men behind the guns smothered both vessels with a damaging fire.

In and out like a snake of flame and smoke raced the Gloucester. Back toward the harbor entrance the worried torpedo ships turned in a vain effort to escape, but escape was not to be. Smothered at their guns by a boat with fewer weapons and lighter projectiles, but with deadly aim, they blew up into fragments. One went ashore and the other dropped beneath the waves, while the victor humanely devoted his time to the rescue of the few men who had survived his awful fire. Less than one hour had passed, less than sixty minutes had been necessary to show the limited value of such vessels against the deadly accuracy and rapidity of the Americans.

Cervera Opens Fire.

As the Teresa opened fire she received the return fire of all the ships of the American fleet. Sheering to starboard she made a futile effort to escape to the west. Closely following in her tracks came the Oquendo, the Vizcaya and the Cristobal Colon, all superior in armament to the Brokolyn and but little inferior to the bulldogs of the American navy. The Spaniards made a gallant and desperate fight, but the constant rattle of the rapid-fire guns in main and secondary battery aboard the enemy, combined with an accuracy at long and short range little short of marvelous, made the Castilian gunners flee from their guns.

The Iowa and the Indiana being short on steam were operating at long range until well after the action commenced. But they closed in and by the lapse of half an hour were dealing deadly blows at all but the swift Colon, which seemed in a fair way to glide out to the sea to the west and make good her escape. The Oregon, with a burst of speed which has caused naval authorities and writers to gasp and continue gasping, set sail for the flying flagship, and before the Colon gave up the fight was well up with the chase. In to the shore turned the flagship of the enemy, but as she turned Captain Clark's gallant vessel flew by, raking her as she faltered. Then she flew the white flag and dashed a wreck on the beach.

On flew the Oregon, followed by the Texas, Indiana and Iowa, all delivering hot volleys from large and small guns. The Brooklyn, ahead of her enemy, was sending back her compliments from the after turret, while her forward pieces bore on the Colon, which passed inshore of the Oquendo, just as the Oregon raked the flagship. As the Oquendo veered inshore the Oregon passed astern and sent a compliment or two as she headed for the Vizcaya, now hotly engaged with the Brooklyn and Texas. The Iowa and Indiana, coming up slower, also beat the ship into a shapeless mass of twisted iron and steel. Less than a full hour of fighting and two of the escaping fleet ashore, abandoned and with colors trailing their decks.

Nine and eleven miles from the harbor entrance lay two of the best of Spain's warships—one the flagship—battered out of all semblance to vessels of their former power and speed. Just ahead, but under a fire which nothing afloat could sustain and remain afloat, the proud Vizcaya, commanded by the officer who had showed her off in New York harbor about the time of the Maine disaster, was reeling along hopeless but still defiant. Her consort, the Colon, was gaining rapidly and seemed to be about to escape. The Vizcaya suddenly turned inshore, ran up the white flag and her susviving sailors leaped into the hostile sea to avoid the rain of iron which was slaughtering them in winrows.

Seventeen miles of travel and less than two hours of fighting and three of the mighty cruisers were gone. On swept the Brooklyn and Oregon, the big battleship now close on the quarter of the flagship, hanging grimly to the chase. Up lumbered the Indiana and Iowa and, no longer able to maintain the chase, turned to the rescue of the unfortunates. A flag broke out on the New York, now rushing by, and Captain Taylor, on the Indiana, saw his ship's number called. Then he received a signal order to return to his station off the blockade and guard the harbor entrance. So slowly and reluctantly he came about and dropped out of the fight.

"Fighting Bob" Evans, with the Iowa, having done as much damage as possible while the enemy's fleet existed, now turned his attention to caring for the survivors. Even while at this work the New York, under full steam and with screws revolving under forced draught, plunged by on her way to get into the fight. On the bridge was the commander-in-chief, whose orders were being so gallantly and thoroughly carried out by the ships of the two squadrons in his absence. He sent Taylor back, flagged Evans to care for the wounded and surviving and then raced ahead to where in the distance he was able to see puffs of white smoke mantling the Oregon, and then later on see a geyser of water beyond the fleeing Colon as a thirteen-inch shell exploded on the inshore side.

Orders Were Obeyed.

But it was too late. Even as the fleet flagship drew near to the chase the Colon turned inshore and the last of the enemy signaled submission and defeat. Then up went the signal of Schley that the battle was over and the victory won. All that remained was to see to the rescue and comfort of the survivors. Three of the American ships had made fights without parallel in naval history. Seven had concentrated their fire at once on the extended line of the enemy. One cruiser had engaged at close quarters four armed with heavier ordnance and reputed to be more powerful, swifter and better able to withstand a hard contest.

One huge battleship, with a speed greatly inferior to any of the enemy, had outsailed them all, overhauling her own flagship, with a registered nominal speed of five knots better. A mere toy boat had engaged in deadly embrace two torpedo boats with heavier ordnance, better protection and as high speed, if not much higher. Like a wasp she had fluttered about them and with sharp drives had stung them to death. A grim, white-faced man in an undress naval uniform stood on her bridge and directed her movements like a personification of fate. An hour afterward, tender as a woman, he was helping the poor defeated wretches to the decks of his little vessel.

No commanding officer ever issued a general order which was so literally obeyed. Few and simple as the words were, each syllable counted in the result. "If the enemy attempts to escape close in, engage and endeavor to destroy him or drive him ashore." These were the words Sampson wrote on June 2. On the morning of July 3 these words were just as important as on June 2. No revocation, no change, no addition had been made to them; they stood for the order of battle should one come. Then on July 3 he sailed away to meet Shafter. While he was gone and despite his utmost efforts to catch up with the running fight his orders were carried out to the last word of the full sentence. "Destroy or drive ashore," he said. In order that there might in the future be no reason to say that part had been done and part omitted the gallant sailors destroyed the enemy and also drove his entire fleet ashore.

But one of the vessels engaged that morning evaded the latter portion of that stern order. But for the pernicious activity of "Dick" Wainwright the Pluton doubtless would have completed the duty thus assigned to her. But the Gloucester was so active that this dreaded ship blew up and sank when not far from the shore, so that if any question should arise it must be answered by the captain of the converted yacht. It is not generally believed he will be asked to explain, as the blowing up and sinking will be held to be practical execution of orders.

Doors of Bank of England.

The public entrance doors of the great building of the Bank of England are so finely balanced that a clerk, by pressing a knob under his desk, can close them instantly.

Some people can't even tell the truth without exaggerating.

BRYAN'S VIEWS ON THE ISSUES OF THE DAY

William J. Bryan recently wrote an article in which he treated various questions of the day—trusts, annexation of the Philippines, the income tax, the currency, etc. In this article he says:

"Standard Oil and the water of life do not mix.

"'If a man says love God and hateth his brother he is a liar, for he that loveth not his brother, who me hath seen, how can he love God, whom he hath not seen.'

"Thus does John in his first epistle denounce those who pretend to love the Heavenly Father while they hate the earthly brother.

"Christ condensed the ten commandments into two when he said:

"'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind.' This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'

"The first defines man's duty toward the Almighty; the second his duty toward his fellow men. The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man are parts of the same gospel and cannot be separated.

"There is a wide zone between the affirmative benevolence which religion commands and the rectitude which Government compels.

The Subject of Taxation.

"The object of this article, however, is not to point out ways in which the Christian may aid his brother, but rather to indicate a few of the ways in which he may be doing injustice to him. The subject of taxation is an ever-present one. It is an admitted proposition that each citizen should contribute to the support of his Government in proportion to the protection enjoyed by him and the benefits received.

"If, because a bad system of taxation or because of faulty administration of a good system, taxes are collected in such a way that some pay more than their share and others less, injustice is done to those overburdened and partiality shown to those too lightly taxed.

"If the unjust law is the handiwork of those who profit by it and is enacted because of the advantage which it brings to its authors, how shall we describe the moral character of the act? The wrong consists in the fact that money is taken from one person without an equivalent being returned by the Government and given to another without a consideration being demanded, the method being immaterial.

"The person who robs by force or fraud is no more guilty from a moral standpoint than the man who purposely secures legislation which transfers to the shoulders of others the public burden which he himself ought to bear.

"The advocates of an income tax believe that taxation involves a moral as well as a political question, and, believing in equality before the law, they favor an amendment to the Constitution specifically authorizing an income tax. Can the opponents of such an amendment place their opposition upon moral grounds?

"Honest differences of opinion as to the merits of any proposed financial policy are to be expected, but there ought to be no differences of opinion as to the ideal policy, toward the securing of which every effort should be directed.

"The questions, What money is sound? and What dollar makes the nearest approach to honesty? may afford ground for dispute, but there should be no dissent from the proposition that the best dollar, no matter what system secures it, is the dollar which is most stable in its purchasing power. Absolute stability, if attainable, would give us an absolutely honest dollar, but such a dollar has never yet been devised.

"In money, as in other matters, we strive for perfection, knowing that it cannot be fully attained. Every fluctuation in the purchasing power of the dollar injures someone. If a dollar rises in purchasing power it benefits those who own money and those who hold contracts payable in dollars, but it injures those who owe money and those who produce wealth.

"A dollar which falls in purchasing power produces the opposite effect. To increase the number of dollars called for in a contract would not be tolerated for a moment; to increase the purchasing power of the dollar, however, has exactly the same effect. The purchasing power of a dollar may be changed by legislation. For instance, other things being equal, legislation which lessens the volume of standard money increases the value of each dollar.

President McKinley Quoted.

"This idea was forcibly set forth by Mr. McKinley in a speech made in Toledo, Ohio, in 1891. Speaking of Mr. Cleveland's hostility to silver he said: 'He was determined to contract the circulating medium and demonetize one of the coins of commerce, limit the volume of money among the people, make money scarce, and, therefore, dear. He would have increased the value of money and diminished the value of everything else, money the master, everything else the servant.'

"If legislation intended to make money scarce and therefore dear makes money the master, and everything else the servant, can Christians ignore the moral question involved?

"What is the attitude of the Christian toward the trust?

"Can he be a monopolist? Can he run a corner in loaves and fishes without breaking the golden rule?

"Will Standard Oil and the water of life mix? If a trust magnate can purchase religious respectability by liberal contributions to church expenditures, what proportion of his ill-gotten gains should be surrendered in order to atone for the violation of laws, human and divine? No church would extend the hand of fellowship to a physical giant who occupied a mountain pass and enforced tribute from all who fell into his hands.

"A monopoly does not differ greatly from the giant in method and may be infinitely more potent for evil. Monopoly is bondage; it unbridles greed and furnishes to avarice a destructive weapon. Human nature has not changed much since the days of Pharaoh; the industrial monarch is as tyrannical as the political monarch. Can the spirit of the meek and lowly Nazarene be discerned in those who water stock, issue bonds in excess of the value of the plant, drive rivals into bankruptcy by trust methods and then prey upon society at large?

"Conditions have become so alarming that church organizations are beginning to sound a note of warning.

"The forcible annexation of the Philippine Islands is defended by some on the ground that our nation is performing a religious duty. Without stopping to elaborate the fact that a large number of the Filipinos are already members of one branch of the Christian church, it is worth while to inquire whether wars of conquest are in line with Christian precepts.

"Rev. James L. Barton, Secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, denies that an American protectorate over non-Christian countries will aid our missionaries.

"There are some who think that destiny leads us away from the declaration of independence, away from the Constitution and away from the traditions of the past. There are some who even think that our nation is commanded to go forth with the Bible in one hand and the musket in the other, prepared to read the former to those who escape the latter.

"When we are told that religious duty requires us to deprive remote races of the opportunity for self-government we have a right to inquire whether our instructors have been careful to observe their religious duties at home.

"We cannot expect philanthropy and benevolence to inspire imperialists in their foreign policy if wrong, injustice and special privileges have been the fruits of their domestic policies.

"If they have sacrificed others for their own benefit here, are they likely to make sacrifices for the benefit of others abroad?

"Lincoln was once asked whether he thought the Lord was on his side, and he replied that he was anxious to be on the Lord's side. We cannot change eternal principles to suit our own convenience or to advance our own plans, but we can strive with singleness of purpose to know the truth, and when we find that which we believe to be the truth we can adhere to it.

"Let us not mistake temptation for opportunity. The sight of new territory may be alluring, the glory of an empire may be dazzling, but the price demanded is too great.

"W. J. BRYAN."

"In for It."

It is estimated that the war tax will yield for the year about $100,000,000. That much more was taken from the pockets of the people during the year than would have been taken but for war. And although that much more was taken, and although the receipts under the Dingley law were much greater than they were the year before, the expenditures were $100,000,000 more than the total receipts. And there is every prospect that we shall run still further behind next year. We seem to be "in for it." The administration has got the country into a war with 8,000,000 people in a tropical country, where the cost of carrying on war in both blood and treasure is enormous. It has got the country into a war that could have been avoided as well as not—nay, far better than not.—Chicago Chronicle.

Legislation by Pawnbrokers.

When the love of liberty is eradicated from the human heart and parents no longer are solicitous for the welfare of their offspring, then, and not till then, will an intelligent people consent that all legislation upon the money question shall be dictated by the pawnbrokers and usurers.—National Watchman.

A RATHER CRUDE GAME.

"The overthrow of the present administration is hoped for by the insurgent leaders."—Gen. Otis' dispatch.
—Denver News.

REDEEMING HIMSELF.

Brave Engineer Who Atoned for His Error by a Fiery Death.

Men who are ignorant of fear are rare. The bravest are those who, knowing the danger, do not flinch when duty calls. The following act of heroism in the case of a railroad engineer is told in the Century Magazine. August Sieg, the engineer in question, employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, met death by fire to save the passengers behind him.

The train, composed of ten crowded passenger coaches, had just left Jersey City and was passing through the "Bergen Cut," when smoke suddenly blew in through the open door of the smoking-car, and a moment afterward the engineer and fireman scrambled in over the tender.

The smoke cleared for an instant, and showed a roaring fire in the open furnace and flames streaming back from the cab. A sudden burst of flame from the furnace had set the cab on fire and forced the engineer and the fireman to beat a retreat.

But in deserting the cab without first doing something to check the speed of the train, they had imperiled the lives of all the passengers; for the flames were spreading back so fiercely that it was only a question of time when the whole train would be on fire. To leap from it would mean death or maiming, for it was rushing along at full speed!

People had crowded into the smoker. Doubtless Sieg heard their mutterings. It required only a few minutes for him to realize the situation. He sprang through the smoking-car door, and a moment later had disappeared amid the flames beyond.

Presently it was felt that the train's speed was slacking, and soon, with a lurch and a bump, it came to a full stop near the bridge over the Hackensack.

The passengers rushed out. With the sudden stoppage of the draft caused by the rush of the train, the flames from the cab rose straight into the air. The head and shoulders of a man were seen protruding from the water-tank on the tender. It was Sieg, his face disfigured, his hands burned, his body blistered. He was taken to a hospital, but his burns proved fatal.

In retreating before that first fierce burst of flame Sieg had been guilty of a grave error; but who will say that he failed to retrieve it like a hero?

TORTURE CHARGED.

Spanish Officials Accused of Applying Thumbscrews.

The inquisition exists in Spain today. Here is a picture of an up-to-date thumb-screw taken from some Spanish officials who are now on trial, accused of torturing prisoners in this way. A gendarme, Corporal Botas, and a sergeant were arrested at Barcelona for this offense. Witnesses accused them of squeezing the fingers of anarchists with a thumbscrew. One of the victims is among the accusers. The Governor of Barcelona, who is a general in the army, is taking an active part in the proceedings. A railway porter of San Martin, who had this instrument applied to him, has lost the use of his hands and arms.

SPANISH THUMBSCREWS.

DARING CYCLING FEAT.

A. H. Miuting, of London, ascends and descends a spiral on the front wheel of a bicycle.

A Rare Find.

A rare find in the shape of a moa's egg has been made in a mining district in Central Otago. There was a fall of earth in a dredging claim, and presently the huge egg was seen floating uninjured in the water. The discovery is the more interesting from the fact that this is the second perfect moa's egg that has ever been found. The only other perfect specimen was unearthed by a man while digging in the alluvial soil at the Kaikoura Mountains in the early '60s. This egg, which was nine inches in length and seven inches in breadth, was taken to England and sold for 100 guineas. Some idea of the size of these eggs may be gleaned from the fact that a man's hat makes an excellent egg-cup for them.

Don't get discouraged because you can't embroider. There is always a much greater demand for plain sewing.

The man who stakes his happiness on a maid always makes a miss-take.

Are You Ever Depressed?

And is it not due to nervous exhaustion? Things always look so much brighter when we are in good health. How can you have courage when suffering with headache, nervous prostration and great physical weakness?

Would you not like to be rid of this depression of spirits?

How? By removing the cause. By taking

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

It gives activity to all parts that carry away useless and poisonous materials from your body. It removes the cause of your suffering, because it removes all impurities from your blood. Send for our book on Nervousness.

To keep in good health you must have perfect action of the bowels. Ayer's Pills cure constipation and biliousness.

Write to our Doctors.

Perhaps you would like to consult some eminent physicians about your condition. Then write us freely all the particulars in your case. You will receive a prompt reply, without cost. Address: DR. J. C. AYER. Lowell, Mass.

WHISKERS DYED
A Natural Black by Buckingham's Dye.

Price 50 cents of all druggists or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

SYRUP OF FIGS

NEVER IMITATED BY QUALITY.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS

is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

WABASH

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS
To Western Points.
August 1 and 15, Sept. 5 and 19, Oct. 3 and 17, 1899.

On the above dates the WABASH will sell from its principal stations East of Chicago and Toledo, Ill., LOW RATE HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSION Tickets to points West, South, and Southwest, granting a liberal return limit. A postal card addressed to any Wabash Ticket Agent, or to either of the following Passenger Representatives will bring you prompt and explicit information regarding rates, routes, time of trains, through car service, condition of tickets, etc., etc.

REMEMBER

The WABASH is the only line east of Chicago and St. Louis giving its patrons seats, without extra charge, in ELEGANT RECLINING CHAIR CARS running through to St. Louis and Kansas City without change.

This is your chance to go West cheap. Communicate with us.

P. E. DOMBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
C. F. WOLFSCHLAGER, P. & T. A., Detroit, Mich.
TEO'S FOLLEN, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
GEO. D. MAXFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

THE JUDGES OF
CARTER'S INK
are the users. More users of it than any other. Why? THE BEST! Costs YOU no more than the poorest!

PENSIONS Get Your Pension DOUBLE QUICK! White Cast. O'FARRELL, Pension Agent, Washington, D.C.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D.C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in civil war. 15 adjudicating claims, atty since WOMEN OF THE PHILIPPINES.

Their Redeeming Feature Is a Sense of Absolute Personal Cleanliness.

"The aristocratic Philippine matron and her daughters indulge in no greater bodily exercise, if they can help it, than that required for driving or shopping," says Charles Bryant Howard, in the Woman's Home Companion. "But the peasant woman shares her husband's work, whatever it may be, laboring at the plow behind an ungainly carabao (water-buffalo) in the paddy-field, or helping to pole a huge lorcha, or cocoanut raft, up or down the river, besides attending to her domestic cares. And I take pleasure in saying that, whatever its proprietor's rank or station, the native Philippine nipa hut is invariably a marvel of neatness and cleanliness as to its interior; far superior in this respect to the average Spanish dwelling-house, be it that of a merchant's clerk or that of the governor general. So far as the latter are concerned, a decent servant-girl, such as are employed in America and England, would not be content to remain in one two days.

"Hundreds of girls are employed in the great cigar factories; and others in the convents labor to weave the far-famed pina lace of the Philippines, several at a time squatting on the floor around a single frame, picking and manipulating with deft fingers the infinitesimally delicate fibers. Sometimes they work for months to complete a single mantilla or handkerchief. These native women are rarely employed by the European residents as domestic servants, except in the capacity of lady's maid or children's nurse, and even these positions are often occupied by boys. They are very unreliable, and the utter absence of the sense of gratitude, so characteristic of the entire Philippine race, renders it an almost hopeless and very exasperating task to attempt to train them as servants. Their only redeeming feature is their sense of absolute personal cleanliness, but in spite of this many European women prefer to go to the expense and trouble of importing a Chinese ama from Hong-Kong or Canton, rather than to intrust her children to the care of a native girl, although when in her own capacity as a mother the Filipina, so far as observation goes, leaves nothing to be desired."

Declined with Thanks.

A Chinese editor returned a contribution on the ground that if he printed it the Emperor of China would insist on everything in the paper being maintained at the same high standard. That is a more soothing reply to the contributor than "declined with thanks." Why not put the case thus: "Sir, your article (or story) is so magnificent that if it were to appear in our pages our readers would clamor against the rest of the contents. We are compelled to employ other writers, who, if you were a competitor, would have to retire to the workhouse. In the cause of charity, therefore, we beg to express the hope that you will give up literature and apply your genius to the manufacture of marking ink."—London Sketch.

Beautiful Women

Should have beauty and vigor of health. A strong stomach is the first essential to beauty. Nine-tenths of the sickness comes from weak digestion. Thousands of people have tried Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and regained their health. There is nothing like it. See that a private revenue stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Kept His Promise.

Some minstrels recently started on a tour, and advertised in a town to give a performance for the "benefit of the poor. Tickets reduced to 25 cents." The hall was crowded, and the next morning a committee for the poor called upon the treasurer of the concern for the amount the said benefit had netted. The treasurer expressed astonishment at the demand.

"I thought," said the chairman of the committee, "you advertised this concert for the benefit of the poor!"

"Well," replied the treasurer, "didn't we reduce the tickets to twenty-five cents so that the poor could all come?"

Chautauqua Lake Excursion

Via the Nickel Plate Road. Tickets will be available July 28th, good returning until August 29th, at special low rates. Do not miss this opportunity of visiting this beautiful resort. A Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains Daily. Palace Sleeping Cars. Superb Dining Car Service. Elegant Equipment. Ask Agents.

Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of.—Franklin.

"Uneasy Lies the Head That Wears a Crown."

But such are not the only uneasy heads. Overworked, harrassed, anxious people of all ages and both sexes are uneasy with aches, pains, impure blood, disordered stomachs, deranged kidneys and liver. For all such, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the effective and faultless cure. It infuses fresh life through purified blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

PIMPLES

"My wife had pimples on her face, but she has been taking CASCARETS and they have all disappeared. I had been troubled with constipation for some time, but after taking the first Cascaret I have had no trouble with this ailment. We cannot speak too highly of Cascarets." FRED WARTMAN, 5708 Germantown Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c
... CURE CONSTIPATION. ...
Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 314

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

PORTO RICO!

Are you interested in the development of this fertile island? Do you seek information concerning its rare possibilities? Our corps of able and experienced men is at your service. Write us for information in any line of business, employment or pleasure seeking. Inclose postal order for $3.00 to cover expenses. Porto Rico Bureau of Information, San Juan, P. R.

SOPE EYES Dr ISAAC THOMPSON'S EYE WATER

SUPPOSE WE SMILE.

HUMOROUS PARAGRAPHS FROM THE COMIC PAPERS.

Pleasant Incidents Occurring the World Over—Sayings that Are Cheerful to Old or Young—Funny Selections that Everybody Will Enjoy.

Thoughtful Man.

"Mr. Bloomfield is a most considerate husband," said Mr. Gaswell to Mr. Dukane.

"Is he?"

"Yes; the family moved on the 1st of April to a house with a lawn in front of it, and when Mrs. Bloomfield's birthday came along toward the end of April her husband gave her for a birthday present a nice light-running lawn-mower."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Woman's Rights.

"Jack," said his old college chum, "your wife seems to be one of those women who are bound to have the last word."

"I wouldn't mind that so much, for it seems due the weaker sex, but what rolls me is that she's equally bound to have 95 per cent. of the conversation that precedes."—Detroit Free Press.

His Choice.

"That's the 'Bonnie Brier Bush' for me!"

"What is?"

"The raspberry bush."

"She Was Not a Golfer."

Husband—What on earth has happened to my driver?

Wife—O, I couldn't find the hammer, so I used that thing. It wasn't much use, though.—Punch.

In the Old Rut.

For many years he had been a police magistrate, but finally, having been brought to see the error of his ways, he resigned and became a minister of the gospel.

The first time he was called upon to officiate at a wedding he went through the ceremony without a break until he reached the all-important part and asked the bride:

"Do you take this man to be your lawfully wedded husband?"

"I do," responded the fair one.

"What are the mitigating circumstances, if any?" he absently inquired.

Cautious.

"Why don't you begin?" inquired the excited prize-fight patron.

"The police!" said the manager hoarsely.

"I don't see any here. You're not afraid of them, are you?"

"Not afraid! Why, they'd never forgive me if I started this show up before they got here. They want to see the whole business."—Washington Star.

The Ruling Passion.

He—It would be better for us if we were divorced!

She—So that you can do afterward just as you please? No, sir!—Unsere Gesellschaft.

The Woes of Golf.

"Did you see any golf players around here, boy?"

"I seen one cad, mister."

"You mean a caddy?"

"No. I don't mean de kid dat carries de sticks; I mean de guy dat uses 'em."

His Soft Spot.

Edna—Did the sentimental singer impress you, Reggy?

Reggy—Yeas; she touched a soft spot, doncherknow.

Edna—You must have been sitting quite near the stage.

A Certain Way.

"I am just thinking how I can encourage my boy to cut out a name for himself."

"Give him a sharp knife and a school desk."

Cheapening His Value.

Mrs. Youngwife—You are awful dear to me, Harry.

Harry—Yes, but your habit of telling others about it makes me feel very cheap.—Richmond Dispatch.

A Baseball Bulletin.

"Mr. Higgs, can I get off this afternoon? My grandmother's dead."

"Yes, you may go; but tell your grandmother that she will imperil your financial welfare if she dies any more this summer."

Not Qualified to Judge.

Benedict—I have about decided to go to Mexico for the summer.

Bachelor—Why, that's the hottest place on the face of the earth.

Benedict—Excuse me, but you're not married.—Richmond Dispatch.

Happy Thought!

First Promoter—Looks to me as if our Dewey fund were not getting along as it ought to.

Second Promoter—That's so. Suppose we change it into a subscription for Jeffries.—Indianapolis Journal.

May Have Been Him.

Judge (severely)—Seems to me I've seen your face many times before.

Prisoner—That may be true, yer Honor. I used to tend bar down at Casey's.—New York World.

Must Be Either One or the Other.

"Henry, the Badgers have a new baby."

"Is it a Helen Gould or a Dewey?"

Aggravated Misery.

"John, stop fussing about the heat; think of those poor fellows in the Philippines."

"That's just like you—wanting me to think of something that will make me ten times hotter than I am."

A Rational Argument.

"You once said you would die for me, Jonas, and now you refuse to cut the grass."

"That's perfectly logical, Minerva. If I died for you I'd be done with it, but if I mow the grass once you'll make me do it every two weeks."

Easily Remedied.

Quinn—The doctor advised Busyman to take more exercise; to go around more.

DeFone—How does he manage it without losing valuable time at his desk?

Quinn—He purchased one of those revolving office chairs and now he goes around all day.

Modern.

Lady (to servant whom she is about to engage)—And do you understand how to take care of a bicycle and keep it clean?

Servant—No, ma'am, but I can give you the address of the place where I get mine cleaned!—Unsere Gesellschaft.

Previously Acquainted.

"Our old bookkeeper says he is making two hundred a month at his new place."

"Yes—two hundred mistakes."

Her Idea.

He—I see the doctors have decided that Slasheni, who killed his wife and six children, is not insane.

She—Well, I don't see why a man in his right mind who would do a think like that isn't crazy.—Cleveland Leader.

Sweet Dreams of Youth.

One of the toasts at the class supper of the Mount Holyoke College seniors was "The Recognition of the Divine in Man." That comes easier to a girl graduate than it does after she has had a few years' experience with a hard, cold world.—Boston Transcript.

New Way to Pay It.

"I hear that Mr. Whiffletree has secured a divorce from his wife," said Mr. Birmingham.

"He has been mustered out of the matrimonial army," replied Mr. Manchester.—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Took His Advice.

Edna—Why do you wear gloves while learning to play poker?

Edith—Because Jack told me never to show my hand.

Balked.

Quinn—As long as pencils and jokes are used woman can never hope to equal man.

De Fonte—Are those the greatest obstacles?

Quinn—Yes, they can't put a point to either one."

History in Knotted Cords.

Tying knots in the handkerchief to jog one's memory had its origin in China thousands of years ago. Before writing was invented in that country, which did not happen until 3000 B. C., memorable and important events were recorded by long knotted cords. The most ancient history of China is still preserved as told by these knots. When Emperor Tschang Ki invented writing, the entire system of knotting was abandoned. And to-day the memory knots made by us in handkerchiefs are the only surviving descendants of that ancient and curious custom.

A Keen Retort.

Cardinal Manning's keen wit was often used to drive home a moral warning.

"What are you going to do in life?" he asked a flippant undergraduate at Oxford.

"Oh, I'm going to take Holy Orders," was the airy reply.

"Take care you get them, my son."

Diamonds won't save some women.

How Indians Swear Piously.

It is said that a certain tribe of Indians have a useful divinity which they call a swearing god. It is very small, equally ugly and even more convenient. It generally stands on a pedestal, or is nailed to the wall of the living room, and the use of the picturesque language in its presence is accounted not a sin, but a pious duty.

Thus if an Indian bruises his finger, or his cayuse steps into a prairie dog's hole and wickedly breaks his leg, he confines himself to general remarks on the weather until he reaches home and sees again the comforting face of the grinning devil. Then he becomes suddenly possessed of the eloquence of a mule driver, and the things that he says would make any ordinary effigy shrivel up with horror, but the swearing god is used to it.

After all, so-called civilized beings are not so far beyond the Indian. When we get angry at a man we burn him in effigy, or hang up a doll whose distorted features convey our impressions of his unworth, and throw stones at it.

A Curious Swiss Custom.

The tenacity with which Europeans cling to ancient ways is seen in a curious custom which prevails at the present day in Basel, a Swiss city of nearly 100,000 inhabitants. Horses being very expensive in Switzerland, the middle classes cannot afford the luxury, and when a young man becomes engaged to be married he levies on one of his rich neighbors for a loan. Though he may not know the rich man even by sight, he notifies him that he wishes his carriage and footman to call at his home at a specified time. He then uses the conveyance to call with his fiancee upon everybody of their acquaintance. At the marraige the same thing takes place again. It is expected that the groom will give a tip of from $2 to $4 to each coachman so employed.

The Grand Canon of Arizona.

To fitly describe the Grand Canon of Arizona is a task in which pen and camera must join, with space for adequate expression. In the columns of a newspaper but little can be said, except that this is the most stupendous, most magnificent, and most inspiring scenic spectacle of the great land in which we live.

If you cannot spare the time or money to see it, the next best thing is to read up on the subject by writing to Mr. F. T. Hendry, General Agent A. T. & S. F. Ry., 63 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich., inquiring for free copy of an illustrated Grand Canon book.

It is not enough to have seen Niagara, Yosemite and the Yellowstone. The Grand Canon of Arizona,—this unique chasm over more than a mile deep, 12 miles wide and hundreds of miles long—dwarfs everything else with its Titanic rock masses, abysmal depths and brilliant coloring.

In Self-Defense.

"Are you willing to work for your dinner?" asked the woman.

"Dat depends on wat you wants done," replied the tramp.

"I want you to beat that carpet hanging on the line over there," she said.

"Lady," answered the wanderer, "I'm poor an' I'm hungry, but I'm honest, an' I'm not goin' to begin beatin' me way t'rough de world at dis late day—see?"

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is taken internally. Price 75 cents.

Usually Quite Numerous.

"Extraordinary," murmured the man who was trying to help form a French cabinet. "Very extraordinary!"

"What is the difficulty?"

"Here I am trying to find people who are willing to give advice on how to run the government, and nobody is willing to say a word."—Washington Star.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Cures swollen feet, blisters and callous spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for ingrowing nails, sweating, hot, aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

India Rubber.

The government of the Congo Free State, with the object of preventing the threatened destruction of the India-rubber trees in that country, has promulgated a decree by which it is provided that for every ton of rubber yielded annually there shall be planted, not less than 150 trees.

Niagara Falls Annual Excursion.

On Tuesday, August 15th, the Nickel Plate Road will run its Seventeenth Annual Excursion to Niagara Falls. Tickets are good returning for fifteen days. Tickets to Toronto will be sold in connection with this excursion at $1.00 extra and to the Thousand Islands at $2.50 extra. The usual privilege of stop-over at Chautauqua Lake will be granted without extra charge. Secure your Sleeping Car reservations early. Tickets good returning on any one of our Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains. Remember the date. For further particulars inquire of Agents Nickel Plate Road.

Which Is the Better Half?

In Norway married couples are allowed to travel for the price of a fare and a half.

My doctor said I would die, but Piso's Cure for Consumption cured me.—Amos Kelner, Cherry Valley, Ill., Nov. 23, '95.

Life is too short for mean anxieties.—Kingsley.

Ladies' and Gents' Aluminum Memo Books. Your initial and floral design; hand engraved, 10c by mail STANDARD ALUMINUM CO., (INC.) 113-121 E. 13th St., New York City.

Johns Hopkins, who died in Baltimore in 1873, was worth $100,000,000.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, LTD., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

$2.00 Fort Wayne to Chicago and return every Sunday via. the Nickel Plate Road.

Eagle Linen Letter Paper and Envelopes are the proper thing. Tell your printer to use this in and on your next order.

Low Rates to Pacific Coast Points.

The Nickel Plate Road sells excursion tickets at special low rates to San Francisco and all Pacific Coast Points. Through Palace Sleepers and Superb Dining Car Service via the Nickel Plate Road. Ask Agents.

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

WANTED.—Case of bad health that R·T·P·A·N·S will not benefit. Send 5 cents to Ripans Chemical Co., New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials.

Woman's Dread

"The terror of many women's lives is menstruation.

Such women wear themselves out with suffering and seem to think there is no relief from the monthly pains.

Miss Emily F. Hass, of 148 Freeman Street, Greenpoint, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I wish to state that I used your Vegetable Compound with the greatest success. I was very sick for nearly a year with hysteria, was downhearted and nervous; also suffered with painful menstruation and pain in back and limbs. I often wished for death, thinking nothing would cure me. I had doctors, but their medicines did me no good. At last, by the advice of a friend, I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with very little hope of its doing me any good, but I am happy to say I am entirey cured. Thanking you for the good your medicine has done me, I am sending you my testimonial, hoping it will help others."

Special advice for every suffering woman can be secured free of cost by writing to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for it

Mrs. C. D. Smith, 221 Eleventh St., Racine, Wis., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I gladly give you my testimonial in favor of your remedies. When I first commenced your treatment I had been suffering from female troubles and weakness for some time. Menses were irregular, coming too often, and were very painful. I could not walk a great distance, had those terrible bearing-down feeling in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in left ovary. I used five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and my menses have become regular, and am cured of that bearing-down feeling after walking. I consider your Compound one of the best medicines there is for those complaints peculiar to women. I thank you for the good advice you gave me. I will gladly recommend your medicine, and hope that every one who suffers as I did will give it a trial."

To sacrifice beauty, disposition and health to a false idea is folly. Generations of ignorance have handed down belief in the necessity of monthly suffering. A healthy woman should experience but little pain and only a moderate amount of inconvenience.

Mrs. Van Cleft Advises Women.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For several years my health was miserable. I suffered the most dreadful pains, and was almost on the verge of insanity. I consulted one of the best physicians in New York, and he pronounced my disease a fibroid tumor, advising an operation without delay, saying that it was my only chance for life. Other doctors prescribed strong and violent medicine, and one said I was incurable, another told me my only salvation was galvanic batteries, which I tried, but nothing relieved me. One day a friend called and begged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began its use and took several bottles. From the very first bottle there was a wonderful change for the better. The tumor has disappeared entirely and my old spirits have returned. I heartily recommend your medicine to all suffering women."—Mrs. Van Cleft, 416 Saunders Ave., Jersey City Heights, N. J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—A Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

"Brevity Is the Soul of Wit."
Good Wife, You Need
SAPOLIO

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

LADIES The Periodical Monthly Regulator never fails; write for free box; enclose 4c in stamps. New York Chemical Co., Box 70, Milwaukee, Wis.

When Writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER

Pumpkin Seed -
Alx. Senna -
Rochelle Salts -
Anise Seed -
Peppermint -
Bi Carbonate Soda -
Worm Seed -
Clarified Sugar -
Wintergreen Flavor.

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.

At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

WABASH

GOING EAST.

No. 2	6:25 am—Daily
No. 8	8:34 am—Daily
No. 4	4:59 pm—Daily
No. 70 (local freight)	2:05 pm—ex Su
No. 96	11:35 am—ex Su
No. 98	8:30 pm—ex Su

GOING WEST.

No. 1	10:21 am—Daily
No. 9	5:30 am—Daily
No. 3	7:48 am—Daily
No. 71 (local freight)	9:15 am—ex Su
No. 95	6:02 pm—ex Su
No. 97	7:52 am—ex Su

All these trains stop for passengers.
For rates, tickets, time tables, etc. apply to
I. M. ZENT, Agent, Auburn, Ind
Chas. M. Hays, V. Pres. and Gen't Manager.
C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent

B. & O. R. R.

Schedule In Effect Nov. 22 '98

Leaves Auburn Junction.

WEST BOUND.

No. 3 Express, to Garrett only	8:52 p m
No. 5 Daily	4:30 a m
No. 7 Daily	4:17 p m
No. 17 Daily Except Suday	12:25 p m
No. 47	1:58 a m

EAST BOUND.

No. 4 Express	4:30 a m
No. 6 Daily	8:05 p m
No. 8 Daily	2:35 p m
No 14 Daily	11:17 p m
No 16, Daily, except Sunday	11:08 a m

F. D. UNDERWOOD, General Manager,
D. B. MARTIN, Manager of Passenger Traffic.
G. H. YOUNG, Auburn Junction, Ind
THOS. H. SPROTT CHAS. H. KNAPP

William's Kidney Pills

Has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your Kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your Kidneys and Bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire pass urine? William's Kidney Pills will impart new life to the diseased organs, tone up the system and make a new man of you. By mail 50 cents per box.
WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

FLASH LIGHT SCARF PIN
Most Marvelous Novelty Ever Produced.
$5 Outfit $11 Limited Time Only.
A beautiful gold plated Horseshoe Pin operated with a small vest-pocket dry battery concealed in the scarf. Flashes red by night, exceptional advertising novelty. Introduce in town. AGENTS WANTED. Illustrated catalogue free. ADDRESS NOVELTY ELECTRICAL ROYALTY MFG. CO. Newark, N. J., U.S.A.

Preserves

—fruits, jellies, pickles or catsup are more easily, more quickly, more healthfully sealed with Refined Paraffine Wax than by any other method. Dozens of other uses will be found for in every household. It is clean, tasteless and odorless—air, water and acid proof. Get a pound cake of it with a list of its many uses from your druggist or grocer.

Refined Paraffine Wax

Sold everywhere. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared for Piles and Itching of the private parts. Every box is warranted. By druggists, by mail on receipt of price. 50 cents and $1.00. WILLIAMS MANUFACTURING CO., Props., Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents Dandruff and hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists.

Friday's Daily.

—Ask any druggist for a free Peruna Almanac for the year 1899.

—Fred Sodtman and wife were the guests of Wm. Bailey and family yesterday.

—Geo. E. Masters of Noble county is here visiting his brother M. B. Masters for a time.

—The Greenler Co., wants your live elm bolts. See their advertisement elsewhere.

—The little daughter of Mrs. Thompson, of Ohio, is visiting her aunt, Mrs, George Braun.

—Mrs. Will Keeran and daughter Edith of Fort Wayne are visiting relatives in Auburn.

—Mrs. S. S. Potter has so far recovered that she can take quite long rides into the country.

—Frank Farley of Hamilton is here for a visit of a few days with his daughter, Mrs Frank Thomas.

—The surveying corps is at work on the proposed electric railway line from Logansport to Kendallville.

—Mrs. Nathan Johnson is suffering with a badly swollen arm, the result of a bite from some kind of an insect.

—Dr. Buchtel came home on the afternoon train today, and will be able to attend his patients from this time on.

For sores, ulcers, burns, galls, piles nothing so good as Banner Salve, the most healing medicine in the world. 25c.

—A big party of glass-blowers from Anderson are camping at Hamilton lake and enjoying their annual outing.

—Mrs. J. H. Hathaway and son Ralph returned today from a visit with Mrs Hathaway's parents and sister at Garrett.

—D. S. Ober is gradually gaining, though still troubled some with rheumatism. He is able to be about all the time.

—Contractor Kinney is advertising for men and teams to work on the construction of the new cement works at Helmer.

—F. K. Blake of Chicago, expects to make a visit among the friends in DeKalb some time this summer, unless he gets too busy.

—When completed the tabernacle on Island Park Assembly grounds will be a first-class opera house with a seating capacity of 1,500 people.

—Trustee Eakright of Wilmington was here today, to consult with Trustee Madden of this township on some ditch matters that concern both.

—Mrs. P. D. West and children returned last evening from a two week's visit with friends at Cleveland and other points in the Buckeye state.

—It is stated that less than fifty fairs will be held in Indiana this year. Ten years age there were over a hundred fairs in the state, all of which were fairly successful.

—The Greenler Co., Auburn, will pay $2.00 per cord, cash, for good live elm bolts ten inches and over in diameter and 32 inches long, delivered at factory in Auburn. 25-30.

—Mrs. J. A. Barns went to Roann this morning, and will return this evening or tomorrow morning, with little Stanley Hartman. Mr. and Mrs. Hartman expect to drive through starting Saturday morning and reaching here Sunday afternoon.

—A writing paper trust has been formed and an exchange remarks that people may yet have to return to the primitive method of writing on birch bark. But here another difficulty presents itself, as birch bark is rather scarce in this neck o' woods.

—Mrs. Roby and daughter Myrtle and the little girl will go to Winona tomorrow to remain about a month. They have a lovely suite of rooms at the Inn, the great summer hotel on the grounds, and having already made many acquaintances there will pass a pleasant season, especially as many noted persons will be there at times.

—John Rickel of Waterloo was here today to get the papers arranged for paying the death loss of the late Dr. Johnston in the Knights of Honor, of which he was an original member and has always kept up his membership. The amount is $2,000, which will be divided equally between the the two children and Mrs. Johnston. It will be promptly paid.

—MR. EDITOR:—My crop of Fultzo-Mediterranean Wheat yielded 3,309 bushels on 80 acres. Average over 41 bus. Part of it was on corn ground which cut the average down considerable. I raised it for J. A. Everitt, Seedsman, of this place, of whom your readers can get free samples if they mention this paper. It is the greatest wheat I ever saw. 29
D. C. CHENOWETCH, Indianapolis, Ind.

—There will be a new dentist in town next week, Dr. J. E. Graham now located at Waterloo. Dr. Graham has a good reputation as a dentist and a large circle of friends and acquaintances, as he is a stepson of the late Jere Lewis of Butler. He is a pleasant and agreeable gentleman, and we look to see him get his share of the business. His office will be over Davenport's drugstore, an excellent location.

—Waterloo Press:—The death of S. B. Johnston removes from this county one of its best citizens, and a man of integrity. For many years the doctor lived in this place and had many friends here who regret his departure from this earthly home to that of his future abiding place. Dr. Johnston was identified with various orders and institutions that made many friends for himself. He was a Christian gentleman, and was earnest in his convictions.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Thursday's Daily.

—Miss Carrie VanAuken has been visiting relatives and friends at Pleasant Lake this week.

—If you have good live elm bolts for sale it will pay you to read the advertisement of the Greenler Co. 25-30.

—The fire department of Ashley, Angola, Butler and Waterloo will hold a joint picnic at Hamilton July 27.

—A. C. King, the horseman, went to Angola last evening to advertise a sale of horses to be held there July 22.

—LOST:—Between Auburn and Coleman's corners, a bunch of keys. Suitable reward if returned to this office.

—The new telephone exchange at Waterloo will be placed in operation about August 1, with fifty subscribers.

—Democratic day at the Island Park assembly will be Saturday, July 29. The afternoon address will be by Hon. W. J. Bryan.

—Frank Greist of the Lackey store will have a vacation of six weeks and with his family will spend a good part of the time visiting.

—FOR SALE:—Short horn bulls, calves and yearlings, pure bloods and high grades. Call on A. B. Walsworth at his farm east of Auburn. 25-30.

—Major Kuhlman and wife went to Battle Creek, Michigan, today. He will probably return tomorrow. Mrs. Kuhlman will remain longer.

—Remember, that when in need of a vehicle of any kind you can always find what you want at D. N. Myer's sales room, in Auburn. Surreys, Bug-Phaetons, etc.

—Herb. Ettinger of Waterloo is said to be the youngest licensed embalmer in the state and probably in the country. He is but eighteen years of age and assists his father in the undertaking business.

—The latest in railway equipment is an aluminum hand car, so light that two men can readily lift it from the rails, and so durable that it will do the work of the ordinary hand car weighing twenty times as much.

—William Shoe of Angola, formerly a member of Company I, 157th Indiana volunteers, is now a corporal in the regular army. He is now with his regiment at San Francisco, but will leave in a few days for the Philippines.

—Mel. Bishop of St. Joe was in town yesterday making arrangements for a delegation from Auburn to go to Island Park on temperance day, August 15th. The fare for the round trip inclusive admission to the grounds will be only 70 cents.

—Helmer now has a newspaper, the Weekly News. The field for a newspaper there is not very large, but should the big cement works become a reality the town may take on a boom. In that event the new journalistic venture may prove a success.

—A. S. Smith, proprietor of the South End mills, today purchased from Thomas Cool of Jackson township the first load of new wheat for which he paid seventy cents per bushel. Though Mr. Cool reports a small yield compared with former years, the grain is of excellent quality.

—There is considerable food for reflection in the experience of two southern Michigan farmers, one of whom has twenty-two acres planted in sugar beets from which he expects to clear $100 per acre, while his neighbor has sold his wheat crop at the rate of $7 per acre and out of this has to pay for the labor on the crop.

—While engaged in painting his house north of town yesterday, John Pepple fell from a scaffold, fracturing his right arm and sustaining severe bruises. Dr. Nusbaum was called and to reports his patient, who is about seventy-five years of age, doing as well as could be expected. It is indeed fortunate that the results were not more serious.

Arbuckles' Coffee

Is the Standard of Coffee Excellence by which all Coffee Quality is Compared.

No. 51 Dining Room Table Cloth.
Table Cloth, white with red bars. Size 50 x 68 inches. Sent postpaid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 60 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 53. A Dress Pattern.
12 yards Printed Organdie, 36 inches wide, 5 colors to select from, Pink, Blue, Black, Pearl and Nile Green. Sent postpaid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 100 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.
When ordering, be sure to state the color desired. No samples will be given out.

No. 56 Six Handkerchiefs.
Six Ladies' Pocket Handkerchiefs, hemstitched, colored borders, size 13 x 13 inches. Sent postpaid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 55 Four Handkerchiefs.
Four Gentlemen's Handkerchiefs, hemstitched, colored borders, size 18½ x 18½ inches. Sent postpaid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 52. Lady's Apron.
Fine quality white lawn, wide strings and fancy lace insertion, size 32 x 40 inches. Sent postpaid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 25 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 54. A Pair of Window Curtains.
Each Curtain a yard wide two and three-quarter yards long. Sent postpaid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 65 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 58. A Pair of Shears.
Of the best American make, 8 inches long. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 15 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 59. Razor made by J. R. Torrey.
The J. R. Torrey Razor is known as the best made in the United States. The printed guarantee of the manufacturer goes with each razor. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 28 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 57. A Pair of Scissors.
Made by the best American manufacturers and well finished, 5½ inches long. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 15 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 60. Lady's Belt.

Latest style, grain leather tan color 1½ in. wide, nickel plated buckle. Belts are following sizes only, give size in inches when ordering, from 22 to 26 in.; from 27 to 32 in.; from 33 to 36 in. Sent postpaid on receipt of a 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from the wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 61. Man's Belt.

Grain leather, tan color, nickel-plated buckle and rings. When ordering give size of waist in inches. Belts run from 34 to 42 inches in length. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 62. A Carving Knife and Fork.

A first-class set, mounted with genuine buck-horn handles. Knife blade 8 inches long. Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 90 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office as well as your Post Office.

No. 63. A Butcher's Knife.

Six inch blade, hard wood handle, good materials and well finished. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 64. A Kitchen Knife.

Will cut bread, slice ham and saw the bone. Serviceable, and should be in every kitchen. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 14 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 65 A Lady's Pen Knife.

Has two finely finished blades. Handle beautifully variegated in imitation of onyx. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 30 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 67. Picture Frame.

Cabinet size, brass, silverplated. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 12 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 68. A Gentleman's Pocket Knife.

Two-bladed knife made of best materials and finished in workmanlike manner. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 40 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 69. A Gentleman's Watch.
The "New Haven" is a watch of the ordinary size. Stem wind and stem set, dust proof, nickel-plated case, solid back. Quick beat movement, highly polished steel pinions. Modeled after a standard watch, reliable time-keeper. The printed guarantee of the maker accompanies each watch. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 90 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 71. Enameled Alarm Clock.

Highest standard of Alarm Clock. Seamless frame, ornamental hands, French pattern and second hand. Will run thirty hours with one winding. Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 80 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office and your Post Office as well.

No. 68. An X-L Revolver.

Highest grade material and workmanship, 32 caliber, centre-fire double action. Sent by express, charges prepaid by us, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 150 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office as well as your Post Office.

No. 70 A Porcelain Clock.
Imported porcelain frame, beautifully decorated. Movement made by New Haven Clock Co., guaranteed by them a good time-keeper, 8 inches high, same width. Sent by express, charges prepaid by us, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 115 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office as well as your Post Office.

This is a picture of the signature on Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee Wrapper, which you are to cut out and send to us as a voucher.

No other part of the Coffee Wrapper will be accepted as a voucher, nor will this Picture be accepted as such.

Arbuckle Bros.

SOME OF OUR SIGNATURES ARE PRINTED ON RED BACKGROUND.

This represents one page of a List which is found in each pound package of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee, and with each package in which the List is found the purchaser has bought a definite part of some article to be selected by him or her from the List, subject only to the condition that the signature on the package is to be cut out and returned to Arbuckle Bros. as a voucher, in accordance with the directions printed in connection with each item illustrated and described in the List. This List will be kept good only till May 31, 1900. Another page of this List will appear in this paper shortly.

Address all communications to ARBUCKLE BROS., NOTION DEPT., NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

Saturday's Daily.

—The Grogg Bros have purchased John Groscop's brick yard.

—Isaac Speer of Waterloo was an attend at court this morning.

—Jesse Mountz of Artic was here today on some business in court.

Mrs. S. S. Norris of the Junction is visiting her parents at Albion this week

—Jack Dorland the well-known printer, is here for a visit with Mart Sheets and wife.

—Yields of thirty and forty bushels an acre are common in Rush county wheat fields.

—A number of Democrats will go to Rome City on the 29th to hear Hon. W. J. Bryan.

—The graduating class of the Tri State college at Angola this year numbers seventeen members.

—A widow at Hamilton advertises in the Hustler for a husband. Here is a chance for some Auburn widower.

—Goshen has a case of smallpox, the victim being a grocer named Foulks. There is considerable excitement and a spread of the disease is feared.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Baxter came home from Lake James where they had been a few days with the party that includes Judge and Mrs. McBride.

"I have received more benefit from one bottle of Foley's Kidney Cure than from months of treatment by physicians" writes V. B. Conklin of Bowersville, O

—President McKinley and ex-President Cleveland will be at Winona assembly Sunday, August 20. An immense crowd will be there on that day.

—Booth and Johns, the Waterloo ham fanciers were in the court room this morning. They came to see how many years the Judge would make it.

—Will Campbell, who is employed as a trimmer for the Peabody factory at Fostoria, wants to read all the home news, so he has the daily COURIER sent to him.

—The first volunteer regiment sent back from Manila has reached San Francisco. It is the Oregon regiment who bring back about 1,100 men out of 1350.

—Jerry Carmer is baling hay at the Lake Shore depot where his hay barn is. He has his machine there and people can bring the hay on an ordinary hayrack.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—Mrs. George Chapman and the children went to Toledo today where they will visit a week or two with the family of Frank Myers, the ladies being sisters.

—The recruiting office has been opened at Fort Wayne in charge of Sergeant Stewart. Men will be enlisted as regulars for three years and volunteers for two years.

—Mrs. Barns came home from Roann today bringing her grandson with her. Mr. and Mrs. Hartman have given up driving through and expect to come on the evening train.

—Mrs. D. D. Metcalf and her daughter-in-law Mrs. Cecil Metcalf were callers at this office yesterday. They were getting ready for the big Sunday school gathering at St. Joe, Aug. 15.

—Rev. W. F. Dingel of Waterloo was in town yesterday making arrangements for a meeting at that place on the evening of July 23d in which some of Auburn's citizens will participate.

—Harry Trentman and Miss Louise Long returned this morning from their outing at Clear lake. The other members of the party—Jack Bland and Jessie Prickett, Will Raut and Anna Trentman came home this afternoon.

—FOR SALE:—A good young black horse with white strip in face; 16½ hands high, weight 1200; will work single or double; will make a good family horse. A rare opportunity. Call quick at my residence south of the school building.—W. H. ZIGLER, Auburn, Ind.

—France is just now busy telling Uncle Sam what he should do and what kind of troops he needs, to conquer the Fillipinos. This is pretty cheeky on the part of a nation, that only a few years ago allowed the Germans to run right over them and in thirty days captured their Emperor and their capital city.

—Joe Hartman reports that he and Charlie Rugman have got the job of digging the Vangorder joint ditch on the Noble county line about half done. They have been working at it about a month. They took the job for $1080, and think they will get out all right. They each have a team and do nearly all the work themselves.

—Garrett Herald:—We had a pleasant visit with A. W. Madden while on our trip to Fort Wayne, Tuesday. He is erecting one of the finest residnces in this county on his farm just east from Auburn. He is one of the best and most substantial business men at Auburn, and his firm supply nearly all the monuments for this city and county.

—Marshal Hilkey last evening picked up a stranger who was comfortably snoozing at the rear end of Mrs. Hebel's lot at Fifth and Main streets and with assistance lodged him in the cooler. The fellow had been in an engagement with John Barleycorn and was free to confess this morning that it was a clear knockout so far as he could recollect. He was allowed to go this morning upon a promise to leave town.

—James Hartford, who has been deputy sheriff since Sheriff Hathaway began, has decided to move to Chicago. He expected to go today. We have not learned what his business will be after he gets there. We are sorry to see him leave for he has been a most gentlemanly and efficient officer. We have not learned who will take his place, but suppose there is so little to do now for three months that a deputy may not be chosen at once.

—The queerest egg we have yet seen was one brought to this office Thursday by John Pyle living east of town a few miles. It was laid the week before Easter, and is rather a large egg, but one end seems about as large as the other. The queer part of it is at one end where the lime of the shell is deposited in such a way as to look like a partly coiled serpent, somewhat like the trademark of Ripans Tabules. It stands up in a bunch on top of the point of the egg and is quite a curiosity.

—Angola Magnet:—Members of the town council waited on Judge Powers and requested him to take down the notice of the Old Settlers' meeting which had been posted on the telephone poles about town the day before. The Judge told them there was no constitutional law that would compel him to take down a notice of the Old Settlers' meeting, but after the marshal was sent for, he did not care to resist the officer, and the marshal took the notices down. However the president says the reunion will take place just the same on Aug: 17, bigger and better than ever.

To Build a New Track.

It is said that B. & O. surveyors are now running a line from about Altona, a mile west of Garrett, that will strike the G. R. & I. road south of Avilla at a point where it can pass under the latter road, intersecting the main line of the B. & O. at Ripley, just east of Albion. This will be done to avoid the up hill grade on the main line west of Garrett, and all heavy freight trains will use the new track. Passenger trains will continue to use the main line. When the B. & O. is double-tracked this new line will be a link in the second track.

That Throbbing Headache

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and strong nerves and build up your health. Easy to take Try them. Only 25 cents. Money back if not cured. Sold by H. B. McCord the druggist.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 20 28, 1899.—Half Rates via B. & O. Railroad,

On July 10, 20 and 21 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Indianapolis, Ind, at one fare for the round trip,

Return Limit: Leaving Indianapolis to and including July 24, 1899 (except as provided in following paragraph:)

Extension of Return Limit- By deposit of ticket with joint agent at Indianapolis not later than July 4, and on payment of a fee of 50 cents at time of deposit, an extension of return limit may be obtained to leave Indianapolis to and including August 20, 1899.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill.

MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

They overcome Weakness, Irregularity and obstinate Cases, Increase vigor and banish "pains of menstruation." They are "Life Savers" to girls at womanhood, aiding development of organs and body. No known remedy for women equals them. Cannot do harm—life becomes a pleasure. $1 per box by mail. Sold by druggists. MOTT CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Volume XXIX | Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, Thursday, July 27, 1899. | Number 30.

BANK First National
Auburn, Ind.
Capital Stock and Surplus
$60,000
Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest if left six months. County and Town Orders bought and sold. Money to Loan.
CHARLES McCLELLAN, President.
D. A. GARWOOD, Cashier.

Physicians T.G.Matheny,M D J.B.Casebeer, M.D
Matheny & Casebeer
have again associated them selves in the practice of Medicine, Surgery & Obstetrics. Office On 9th St.
Western 'Phone:
Office..... No. 9
Matheny,s residence..... " 88
Casebeer's " ..... " 175

BANK Farmers,
Auburn, Ind.
(Incorporated and Under State Control)
Capital Stock and Surplus
$50,000
Transacts a General Banking Business and Pays Interest on Time Deposits.
Albert Robbins, Pres J. C. Henry, V-Pres.
A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Physicians O. J. Swarts, M. D Vesta W. Swarts, M D
and SURGEONS
Office at Auburn Sanitary Baths, corner Main and Sixth Streets,
Professional Calls Promptly Answered.
'PHONES: Western..... No. 19 Central Union..... No. 19

DENTIST F. W. HOFFMAN,
Auburn, Ind.
Office in Gandy Building, Northeast Corner of Court Square.
WESTERN 'PHONE 103.
Crown and Bridge Work a Sprcialty

Sprott & Knapp,
Abstracters of Titles to Land and Lots,
AUBURN, IND.
☞Office in Gandy Block, North of Court House.

P. V. HOFFMAN,
LAWYER,
Auburn. Indiana
OFFICE over Hebel's Grocery.

Dr. Z. H. Stamets,
Physician & Surgeon
Office on Main St., opposite Swineford Hotel.
Western 'Phone 104
Special attention given to techinal examinations and treatment of chronic and obscure cases, also special attention given to surgery and diseases of women. Calls answered at all hours. Office apart from residence.

I. O. BUCHTEL, HOMEOPATHIC
Physician and Surgeon.
Special attention given to bronic and Obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.
Office and residence over Madden Bros Marble Works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, day or night.

Plumbing
Having secured the services of a first class plumber I am now prepared to do plumbing in a first-class manner. Also Roofing, Spouting and Galvanized Iron Work..... of all kinds a specially. Large stock of Tanks made of galvanized steel. Prices and work guaranteed.
F. M. RUSH.

August Flower.

"It is a surprising fact," says Prof. Houton, "that in my travels in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's August Flower than any other remedy, for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feelings from irregular habits exist, that Green's August Flower is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion." Sample bottles free at O. P. Raber's, Corunna. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. 1

THE FIRST SEWER ACCIDENT.

Freeman Hensinger Buried Under Planks and Earth.

The COURIER reporter saw the first serious accident in the sewer at 10:40 this forenoon when a lot of planks and wet earth fell on Freeman Hensinger. The tile had been covered about two feet and he was removing the plank supports next above this point, when the earth, loosened by the heavy shower and soaked from the old sewer at that point, began to slip inward. He ran to escape but was caught by the falling planks and earth; his legs twisted as he fell partly doubled up on his face. The planks probably saved his life by sustaining a part of the earth, but he suffered a good deal. His head was covered out of sight for about five minutes, though his groans and stifled cries could be plainty heard. As quick as he fell strong men sprang to his aid and in the narrow space worked desperately to get the dirt away. Soon his head was uncovered and he could talk and give directions. At one time they tried to pull him out, but it hurt him so that at his request they went again to digging. Now and then a plank was released, while others had to remain to help keep off the heavy earth. At the end of fifteen minutes the exhausted man was pulled out, limp and faint. It hurt him to be changed in position and he remained on his face; he was placed on a plank, and with ropes at each end in another five minutes he was on the surface. Then he was carried to his home, the house next south of D. Z. Hoffman's, where Dr. Baxter of this city and Dr. Sheffer of St. Joe, who were present, attended him. It was found that no bones were broken, but they could not tell how much he was hurt internally.

No blame is attached to anyone. The planking was all right and but for the sliding of the earth there would have been no trouble.

Story of a Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord the Druggist.

That Land Turtle.

We were mistaken as to the man who found it. It was Jerry Rastler, who while cutting hay on G. I. Patterson's land, just north of the Lintz lake, found this turtle. It was not a large one, but old On his breast plate or bottom shell were found the words "John Whitmer, 1875" made by a jackknife, apparently, and as fresh and bright as if made yesterday. The size of the plate or shell, was about 3 inches wide by 5 long and the words ran across. The first line had only "Whit," the second line had "More" and the third "1875." The animal was taken to the house, put into a washtub, and yesterday, Mr. Patterson had set for the day to bring him to Auburn as a curiosity. The turtle was all right before breakfast, when Mr. Patterson was getting a box to bring him to town in, but while at the table they heard a good deal of fuss among the chickens. After breakfast it was found the turtle had escaped. So he could not bring him in, but has given the above facts. Possibly years hence, he may be found again.

Niagara Falls

And Alexandria Bay Excursion: July 27 the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. will run a popular low rate excursion to above points. Rate Niagara Falls and return, $6.25; Alexandria Bay $6.50 higher. Tickets to former point good fifteen days, to latter fourteen days. Passengers from points on Fort Wayne branch will use regular train No. 459, leaving Auburn at 5:25 p. m., and connecting at Waterloo with fast special train leaving at 8:51 p. m., running to Falls.

W. C. T. U. Day.

There will be a grand excursion over the B. & O. to Rome City Aug. 1, in the interest of the W. C. T. U. at a very low rate, going by way of Avilla. The W. C. T. U. days there are Aug. 14 and 15, the latter being the big day. Good speakers and good music are assured, including Auburn's famous "Hoosier Quartet." M. T. Bishop of St. Joe is chairman for this Congressional district and will do all possible to make it a success.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Here's a few items which may interest you. May seem a little early, but if you expect to buy later why not buy now and get first pick? We are showing an exceptionally pretty line of the nicest assortment we've had in several years.

New Fall Prints

A complete stock of

New Fall Hats

In this line you will find all the new shapes and colorings and at the prices you wish to pay.

A magnificent lot of

New Fall Neckwear

Clubs, Tecks, Flowing Ends, Band Bows and Puffs, made right in every respect and color which you cannot help admiring. Call in and look them over whether you wish to purchase or not.

A fine assortment of NEW SUSPENDERS. More styles and prettier designs than ever.

OVER TWENTY PATTERNS NEW FALL CARPETS. Those who have had a peek at them say they are the prettiest they have ever seen.

A big stock of BOYS' CLOTHING, beyond doubt the most desirable we have yet shown.

We are offering Shirt Waists, Wash Dress Goods and Summer Clothing at unheard of prices.

Come often.

We Are Saving You Money,

Schaab & Bro.,
Auburn, Ind.

MEN AND WOMEN Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. For pleasing results use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists. Sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghampton, N. Y.

Broke Quarantine.

It is not necessary for our people to be alarmed, for we do not think there is any danger of smallpox. But it is wise to be on our guard. A man who has been exposed to the disease is believed to have visited our county and may still be there.

Monday, Dr. Sebring, who is the county health officer, received the following telegram:

SAFFORDVILLE, Kan., July 17, '99.
HEALTH OFFICER, Auburn, Ind.
Nate Kirk broke smallpox quarantine. Supposed to be at Altona. Arrest and wire.—C. L. CONAWAY, Health Officer.

Dr. Sebring at once started for Altona, and there picked up Constable Ross and began to look for the man. They went several miles into the country, where Kirk's mother now lives, being married again. But nowhere could he be found. It was plain he had not yet reached here. Tuesday, another trip was made, with the same result. Yesterday word was received that the man had been seen, and again the Doctor went over. But though several had seen him, he could not be found, even at his mother's. When last seen, he was going in at the door of a slaughter enclosure, near Garrett. It is believed he stays in the woods and is anxious to avoid arrest. He was seen to wear several different hats when seen at several different times and places. If caught he will be put in strict quarantine, and kept confined untill it is seen whether he has the disease or not. There is a chance, too, that he will hear they are after him, and leave the county. As we said at first, there is no cause for alarm.

Bismark's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills. They develop every power of brain and body. Only 25 cents at H. B. McCord's Drugstore.

HUMBUGS

are they who tell you other cough syrups are just as good as Beggs' Cherry Cough Syrup. If you can not get it from your druggist notify us at once and on receipt of 25 cents we will send you a bottle. Guaranteed. McCord's.

FIRE AT AVILLA

About 2 o'clock Friday morning fire broke out in a row of frame buildings on Main street at Avilla and before aid could be secured from Kendallville considerable damage had been done. The fire started in a livery stable which was destroyed with most of its contents. The other buildings burned included a store, bakery and restaurant. The fire raged for about two hours and at one time the destruction of the entire business portion of town seemed imminent. So far we have been unable to learn the amount of the loss or insurance.

HAND HURT

Will Hull had a bad hurt at the Lockwood sawmill north of town, Friday fternoon. He was loading a log onto the carriage, when his finger was caught between the rope and pulley. The finger hurt the worst was the third on the left hand which had about all the flesh torn off near the end. Dr. Baxter dressed it, and though it is very painfull, he will soon be all right.

A Wife Says:

"We have four children. With the first three I suffered almost unbearable pains from 12 to 14 hours, and had to be placed under the influence of chloroform. I used three bottles of Mother's Friend before our last child came, which is a strong, fat and healthy boy, doing my housework up to within two hours of birth, and suffered but a few hard pains. This liniment is the grandest remedy ever made."

Mother's Friend

will do for every woman what it did for the Minnesota mother who writes the above letter. Not to use it during pregnancy is a mistake to be paid for in pain and suffering. Mother's Friend equips the patient with a strong body and clear intellect, which in turn are imparted to the child. It relaxes the muscles and allows them to expand. It relieves morning sickness and nervousness. It puts all the organs concerned in perfect condition for the final hour, so that the actual labor is short and practically painless. Danger of rising or hard breasts is altogether avoided, and recovery is merely a matter of a few days.

Druggists sell Mother's Friend for $1 a bottle. The Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga. Send for our free illustrated book.

COURT NEWS

Thursday's Daily.

Though a little delayed we proceed now to pick up the items heretofore omitted, on account of the great time and space we gave to the hotly contested cases at the time they came up, and when court adjourned last Monday evening we were then unable to get at the matter. The following cases were all done by Judge Hartman on the last day, giving an idea of the rapid and business-like way he has been hustling his work.

In the case of M. E. Griswold vs. C. Curie to set aside deed and quiet title Mr. Griswold retired from the case as guardian of Harry Draggoo, as the latter is now of age and therefore becomes sole plaintiff.

Case of John K. Cowen, late receiver of the B. & O., vs. Fred Schulthess. Transcript of evidence and exceptions for appeal to appellate court signed and filed. This was in regard to the horses killed in a wreck at Garrett.

A motion for a new trial in the Anderson case about the hogs that died of heat while going to Buffalo was made and overruled.

The case of P. J. Lockwood vs S. D. Hanna was to foreclose a mortgage on the Heberling property on south Jackson street. He got judgment for $1,123.95 as a first lien. It appears, also, that James Peltier has a judgment of $131.50, C M. Brown one of $110, and A. H. Bittenger one of $2,000 against the property. Decree for plaintiff and quieting title to property, allowing sixty days for the other three to pay Lockwood the amount due him.

W. J. Frederick vs. Hyman Marvin, on account. Judgment for plaintiff for $254.20 but no execution for six months.

The case of Minnie Jervis vs. W. H. Wolf, bastardy, was submitted to the court without a jury. Judgment that Wolf pay her $200 and pay the costs, payments to be made quarterly; and if defendant pays or replevins with surety $150 of the $200, the plaintiff is to release him as to the balance.

The case against Jacob Helms, who is charged with rape, also came up on the last day. His attorney asked for a change of venue to Allen county on account of the feeling against him in DeKalb. This was granted and the case sent to Allen county where it will be tried at the September term.

Final report was made by the administrator of the Mary Willard estate. The estate was declared settled, but the administrator was ordered to hold the remaing funds as trustee until the other heirs come of age.

Frank A. Wilhelm resigned as administrator of the estate of Christof Walz and John J. Stoehr was appointed in his place.

In the Lucinda K. Armstrong will Albert Robbins resigned as executor and Price D. West was appointed to succeed him.

Friday's Daily.

The following were the cases disposed of by Judge Hartman in addition to those given yesterday:

Guardianship of the Mary Bomer heirs came up and final report was made by the guardian, Owen Hensinger as to his ward, Albert E. Bowen. This was approved, and he was discharged as to him, but continued as to the other wards.

In the guardianship of Mabel and Vesta Calkins, John M. Stonebraker made report as to Mabel, she being of age, and was discharged as to her, and continued as to Vesta.

Final report was made by Isaac Dirrim, guardian of James Dirrim, of unsound mind. Report showed death of the ward, and settlement with his heirs and guardian was discharged.

The amount of work done since Judge Hartman came on the bench is very gratifying, and will especially please the taxpayers. Expenses have been cut down as far as possible, and entirely saved at times, as when he got along without calling a grand jury at the recent term.

While a number of cases had to be tried before a special judge, this could not be avoided as Judge Hartman had been in active practice as an attorney, and as such or in some other way, had been connected with the case or interested, and could not act. This is always the case the first year after a lawyer has become a judge.

There were four difficult fought cases brought here on change of venue. Two were from Allen, the cases of Reitdorf and Clem against the city railway. Two were from Steuben, the case of the loss of Anderson's hogs on a Lake Shose train, and the case of the Life Insurance Co., against Gilbert's estate.

But in these cases of change of venue the county from which the case is sent pays all the expenses, even for the jury, the clerk, sheriff, bailiff, etc., and of course the Judge gets no extra pay for this extra work.

All through any term much of this work on estates, guardianships, hearing motions argued, etc., etc., is done by a judge, making fully as much hard work done, as is done in those hard fought trials that are got into the papers, but the character of much of this "side line" work is such that there is but little to report.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Quite A Collection.

Bert Lane has a rare collection of snapshot photos taken in his travels in the south and in Cuba and Porto Rico. He has many of them marked with names and notes so the details will always be fresh. Then, too, he has many curious articles from those lands, including a machete, lovely shells and articles made from them. Native cigars and cigarettes in the queer cases made by the people there, canes made of their strange wood, etc. A very interesting thing is a suit of clothes made of cloth woven from cocoanut fiber, that is, the fiber or bark that forms a covering for the nut itself. It is not bad looking cloth and appears very durable and cool. He has also many relics from southern battle fields and curious articles picked up in various places.

When the boat on which he returned left Cuba, they brought the body of Lee Linn of Wabash, Ind. It will be remembered he died of yellow fever, or at least it was so supposed. Now Lane says that those in charge of him at the time of his death, say it was caused by an overdose of morphine. This is quite possible as it is understood that he drank heavily and he may have tried in this way to kill the effects of the liquor.

DeKalb's Students

We are in receipt of the catalogue of Indiana University for the year just closed. The institution has had a remarkable growth in recent years. The attendance for 1898-99 was one thousand and fifty. Every county in Indiana was represented. Students from seventeen states and foreign countries were enrolled. Of this number seventy-seven were graduate students who are working for advanced degrees. Catalogues and announcements will be sent on application to the registrar, Bloomington, Indiana.

The following were in attendance from this county:

From Auburn: Charles R. Clark, Joseph B. Tarney. From Butler: Achsa Beechler, Claude Belts, Maude Belts. From Waterloo; Myrtle K. Blossom, Omer H. Blossom, Verna B. Darby, Clara V. Snyder. From Spencerville: Franklin M. Kimes, George G. Smith. From Ashley, John Mc Gloin.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

BIG OUTPUT

About every freight train on all three of our roads, takes on good quantities of the output of Auburn's factories. It makes the trainmen work, but brings good cash to the road.

We asked Ed. Rommes of the Lake Shore force about this matter, and his report will astonish many. He says their books show, that at the Lake Shore station during the month of June just past, there were shipped by actual count 683 buggies, surreys and road wagons. This would be an average of 26¼ a day, or about 2¾ buggies an hour, or, one buggy every 23 minutes of the 10 hours of the workingday. And this does not include a number of carload lots sent the same month and which were not counted. It is believed the total would have been nearly or quite 1,000. Auburn will soon be the champion buggy center of the country.

To Make Life Happy.

Sweet music appeals to the heart and soul and lightens many of life's burdens. If you have ever heard the sweet-toned Steger Piano you will appreciate this. To reach the highest standard of excellence has always been the aim in the manufacture of the celebrated Steger Piano. Only the best material is used, insuring great durability. Every piano fully guaranteed.

The Steger factories, thoroughly equipped with the best and most improved machinery, located at Steger, Ill., are among the largest in the West.

Intending purchasers will find it profitable to write for a full descriptive catalogue, which will be mailed free upon application. STEGER & CO., (Established 1879) Chisago, Ill.

To Hear Bryan.

Excursion on the Lake Shore leaves Montgomery on the north, at 6:35 a. m. Summit at 7:30; Waterloo at 8.00. Train from the south leaves Auburn at 8.15; Corunna at 8.40. The fare for round trip from Summit, is $1.00; from Waterloo and Auburn 75 cents; from Corunna, 50 cents. There is a baggage car, so you can carry your lunches. Remember the day is July 29, and Bryan speaks at 1:30 p. m.

FROM PORTO RICO

As noted briefly yesterday, Bert Lane is back from Porto Rico, after an extended absence and varied service in the Spanish-American War.

He has been away from Auburn for about three years, and those who see him now in the neat uniform of the hospital service, grown considerably and changed greatly, will find it a little difficult to remember him as he was when we last saw him.

He enlisted in the 160th last year at Tipton, Ind., this being Col. Gunder's regiment. At Macon, Georgia, he went into the hospital service, from there he went to the general hospital at Ft. McPherson, at Atlanta, and from there, later on, to the general hospital on Govenor's Island, New York Harbor. From there he was sent to Santiago, Cuba, and when he was changed again, it was to go to San Juan, the chief city in Porto Rico. At this place he was discharged June 30th, and from there came here after a short delay, to see and learn more of our brethren in that island. His experiences have been varied and valuable, and his account of them quite interesting.

Before he left San Juan, he witnessed the novel sight of a grand Fourth of July celebration in our new territory. No American celebration was ever more universally observed or showed greater enthusiasm. The first thing he noticed was that he and his party were not able to get lodgings at hotels or private houses, and he found the cause to be, that the people from the surrounding towns and country had engaged every room, as they came the day before, staid all night, spent the Fourth there and the next night, and made a grand holiday of it. Of course the Americans there did their part, but his study was of the natives. There were boat races, tub races, tug of war, and similar holiday games and they seemed to think as much of our flag as if they had shared its glories all their lives. Bands played in the open air and the plaza was full of happy people of all ages and degrees, who promenaded gaily while the band played, then rested and chatted till the music began again. He says he will never forget this Fourth in a strange land, now our land, celebrated by a people enjoying for the first time their suddenly acquired freedom from a hateful bondage. They all seemed glad to be yankees. And they are a study. They are, however, beginning to improve already. They are even making an effort to clothe their children, who have always heretofore gone naked. Schools have been started in which the children are taught, and though if necessary the language used is Spanish the English language will gradually take its places. Their ways are still different from ours. They follow cockfighting in some places, and in others, they practice fighting with kites. Two men will each send up a kite, armed with sharp blades. When the kites approach, each man tries to make his kite disable the other. If his kite can cut the string of the other, or can pull the other to the ground, he is the winner. There is a good deal of betting on these contests. The Porto Ricans, many families in town, at least, do no cooking except coffee. Other food is brought to them by street vendors, ready for the table.

Volcanic Eruptions

Are grand, but Skin eruptions rob life of joy. Bucklen's Arnica Salve cures them, also Old, running and Fever Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Corns, Warts, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Chapped Hands Chilblains. Best Pile cure on earth. Drives out Pains and Aches. Only 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by H. B. McCord the Druggist.

No Light Drinker.

Mudge—Yes, I do take a few drinks of an evening, but none during the day. I am no daylight drinker. Yabsley—No one ever accused you of being any kind of a light drinker.—The Rival.

So She Thought.

He—Chappie is in love, but doesn't know it. She—Lucky girl!—Puck.

CONSUMPTION
never stops because the weather is warm.
Then why stop taking
SCOTT'S EMULSION
simply because it's summer? Keep taking it. It will heal your lungs, and make them strong for another winter.
50c. and $1.00; all druggists.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

1899. JULY. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
•	•	•	•	•	•	1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31	•	•	•	•	•

N. M. 7th. F. Q. 15th. F. M 22nd. L. Q. 29th.

EVENTS OF INTEREST

THAT OCCURRED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Tersely Told Telegraph Tales in Brief Paragraphs—Many Casualties—A Few Crimes—Some Fires—Political and Religious News.

Executioners Under Arrest.

Independence (Kan.) special: All the Choctaw authorities who participated in the execution of Walla Tonaka last week have been arrested for refusing to obey the order of Judge Thomas of the Federal Court, who ordered a stay of execution. They are charged with murder, and there is at present a crash between the Federal authorities and the Indian courts which may cause serious trouble. For years the Choctaws have shot members of their tribe, even for stealing, when convicted the third time. But the Curtis law deprived the Indian courts of their jurisdiction, hence this clash of authorities.

Admiral Dewey at Trieste.

The United States cruiser Olympia, with Admiral Dewey on board, has arrived at Trieste, Austria. The principal paper, Il Picolo, has a flattering article welcoming the Admiral to Austria. Admiral Dewey's secretary said to the American Press correspondent that the passage of the Olympia from Port Said was a pleasant one. The Olympia will remain about two weeks. Admiral Dewey's health is perfect. He has not decided whether he will go to Carlsbad, as has been announced, but it is probable that he will do so. The Admiral intends to visit Vienna.

Americans Victorious.

Manila special: News has been received here from Gen. Smith at Iloilo, Island of Panay, of a severe fight at Bobong, between Capt. Byrne of the Sixteenth Infantry, with seventy men and a force of 450 Babaylones, who surprised the American troops.

One hundred and fifteen of the enemy were killed, as is shown by actual count, many were wounded and one taken prisoner.

The American loss was one man killed and one man wounded.

The fighting was mostly at close quarters, with bayonets and clubbed guns.

Firemen Injured.

Fire destroyed the Grace Hotel, a four-story brick structure at the corner of Park and Reed streets, Milwaukee, Wis. About twenty-five firemen were injured, of whom five may die. It was the most serious fire of the kind since the Davidson Theater was destroyed, at which time a dozen firemen lost their lives. Most of the injured were taken to the Emergency Hospital. The pecuniary loss will be small

The Kentucky Feud Growing.

The Clay County, Kentucky, feud is growing to gigantic proportions. The Monday battle, in which three persons were killed outright and several mortally wounded, is believed to be the beginning of a series of battles. Armed Philpots have gathered from all sections 100 strong. The opposing clans of Morris Griffin and the Chadwell families are said to be only two miles away, fifty strong.

Terrible Engines of Death.

The Navy Department has received the first half of an order for 100 new machine guns of a new type, the most powerful in the possession of any government. They are one-pounders, carrying an explosive shell, and can fire 250 shots a minute. They are cooled by a water jacket, and it is said they can put fifty shots into the head of a barrel at half a mile in a quarter of a minute.

Ten Drowned.

Word has reached Tekamah, Neb., of the drowning in Northwestern Iowa of A. W. Blades, his wife and eight children, while en route to Minnesota in an emigrant wagon. The family was encamped for the night on a creek when a cloudburst raised the creek twelve or fifteen feet and the family, team and wagon were swept away.

Rain Fall Heavy at Manila.

Gen. Otis cables that the storm is still prevailing at Manila, but that better weather is indicated. The rainfall has been extremely heavy, and the country is flooded. The troops on the outposts have suffered, and some lines of communication are cut. There is no material increase in sickness reported.

Newsboys Boycott New York Papers.

The newsboys are boycotting the New York World and Journal because they can not get them two for a cent. The other morning they attacked a man selling Worlds and scattered his papers in the street.

A Town Destroyed by Fire.

Berlin special: The town of Dobejhi, in the government of Volhynia, Russia, has been destroyed by fire. Seven persons lost their lives and the surviving inhabitants have been rendered destitute.

National Christian Party.

A call has been issued by W. R. Benkert of Davenport, Iowa, for a national convention of the United Christian party, to be held at Chicago December 24, 1899, and to remain in session a week. On January 1, 1900, it is proposed to nominate a national ticket, for which all "God fearing men and women" can vote.

Big Fire at Quebec.

Fire destroyed eighty houses in the Strochs suburb of Quebec. The loss is $150,000. Children playing with matches was the cause.

Boys Confessed Firebugs.

David Coop and George Black, boys 16 years of age, were arrested at Lawrence, Kan., on a charge of having set fire to a barn, and have made confessions that they have started eight fires in various parts of the town within the past two years.

Coffee Duty to Be Reduced.

While the returned Jamaica delegates to Washington maintain reserve regarding the terms of the reciprocity treaty, during an interview one of them inadvertently intimated that coffee would experience a material reduction, if not obtain a preferential duty over Brazilian coffee.

GRAND ROUND-UP OF OUTLAWS.

Oklahoma and Indian Territory Officials Arrest Many Thieves.

For a year horse and cattle thieves and whisky peddlers have run riot along the eastern Oklahoma border of the Osage reservation and just over the line in the Cherokee nation. They terrorized the whole country and when officers appeared from either territory they crossed the line and defied them. A few days ago a posse of ten deputy marshals commissioned from each territory with a special United States commissioner accompanying them, started out to clean up the country. They arrested every suspicious character, gave him an immediate hearing before the commissioner, who held court right on the spot, and if any evidence was found they bound him over either to the court at Guthrie, Ok., or Muskogee, I. T., according to which side of the line his crime had been committed on. A large number of stolen horses have been recovered. The posse will keep up the work until the entire section is rid of desperadoes.

FEUD ENDS IN DEADLY BATTLE.

One Killed, Six Wounded, Two Fatally, in a Texas Brawl.

At New Boston, Texas, there occurred one of the wildest and most desperate street battles that has been recorded in the fighting history of that town. The trouble emanated from a quarrel over a wire fence which separated the farms of Ira Smith and W. D. Hays. The two men met at a prayer meeting about five miles from New Boston a few days ago, when the matter was first discussed, resulting in a fight in which Hays was bested. The men were arrested. At their trial in the magistrate's court at New Boston and during a recess the quarrel was renewed. W. D. Hays was mortally wounded. S. J. Hays received a crushed skull and will also die. Hall Hays was shot in the arm. J. B. Manning, ex-county attorney, and not a participant, was shot twice, one bullet passing through his body. Two other bystanders were also wounded.

TO ESTABLISH NEGRO COLONY.

Oak Grove, N. J., Selected as the Site for the Enterprise.

A scheme to establish a negro colony at Oak Grove, near Flemington, N. J., is assuming form. Maps have been prepared on a large scale by competent engineers providing for every need of a thoroughly up-to-date town. These plans contemplate a big shoe factory on the co-operative plan and the running of a branch of the Lehigh Valley Railroad into the town. Part of a large grove has been set aside as a camping ground. A large number of the best-known colored people of the State, including many preachers and a colored bishop, have indorsed the project and given substantial aid. A tract has been given, it is said, to Henry C. Smith of the Christian National Industrial and Mutual Order of New York for an industrial school, and steps are to be taken at once for the erection of a building.

DROWNS WHILE OUT SAILING.

Panhandle Railroad Official in Fatal Accident at Indiana Resort.

William C. Penmock, master mechanic of the Panhandle railroad shops at Logansport, was drowned at Hudson Lake, a summer resort near New Carlisle, Ind. Mr. Penmock, in company with two boys, was out sailing, when the boat lurched water and the lads leaped overboard. Penmock jumped after them and, although a good swimmer, he was seized with cramps and went down before assistance arrived. His companions were rescued by men in boats. Penmock is considered wealthy. He was about 35 years old. The body has not been recovered.

THIEF KILLED IN A SALOON.

Farmer Diggs of Oklahoma Identifies Highwayman, and Sheriff Shoots.

While Farmer George Diggs was returning home from disposing of a load of wheat at Perry, Ok., he was held up and robbed of his money, coat and vest, and one horse. He went to Perry, and with Sheriff Carter found the highwayman in Jones' saloon. The robber resisted arrest and dre whis revolver, but the sheriff was too quick for him and shot him dead. Letters on him identified him as Mose Wilson, whose family lives near Crystal, Ok. He was about 22 years old and a well-known Oklahoma desperado.

RICH IRON ORE DISCOVERY.

Made Known by Diamond Drill Near Stambaugh, Mich.

Pickands, Mather & Co., the Cleveland iron men, have discovered a large body of high-grade iron ore in the grinder property, two miles southeast of Stambough, Mich. The ore was discovered with a diamond drill at a depth of about 200 feet. The deposit is sixty feet wide, all clean ore, running 6 per cent. In metallic iron it is a non-bessemer, but of a very desirable grade.

TEN MINERS ARE CONVICTED.

Found Guilty of Intimidating Imported Negroes at Fort Smith, Ark.

At Fort Smith, Ark., ten of the striking miners were convicted of entering into a conspiracy for the purpose of intimidating and terrorizing the imported negro miners in the employ of the Kansas and Texas Coal Company, in violation of the injunction issued by Federal Judge Rogers, restraining the strikers from interfering with the company's employes.

Cubans Become Dissatisfied.

There is a considerable element at Havana endeavoring to sow dissensions among the Cubans and to array them against the Americans. Recently 2,000 leaflets were issued in the city of Matanzas in the form of an address to the people, signed by "Betancourt." It charges the Americans with deception and calls on the Cubans to devastate the island until their flag is recognized.

Accounts Are $62,000 Short.

William A. S. Graham, for five years business agent and secretary of the Chicago Board of Education, is a self-confessed embezzler and a fugitive from justice. Mr. Graham is believed to have gone to some point in Central or South America. The amount of his defalcation is believed to be at least $62,000.

Bank-Wrecker Pleads Guilty.

George M. Valentine, who wrecked the Middlesex County Bank at Perth Amboy, N. J., has given himself up. Valentine said that he would plead guilty and take the consequences of his crime.

Collapse of a Burning Building.

In the burning of the Grace Hotel, a four-story brick structure at Milwaukee, the roof caved in and twenty firemen fell to the basement, one being killed and several fatally injured.

Cincinnati Casting Plant Burns.

The casting plant of the Addyston Pipe and Steel Foundry at Cincinnati was gutted by fire, causing a loss of $400,000.

Death of Horatio Alger.

Horatio Alger, the writer of boys' stories, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Amos Cheney, at Natick, Mass.

Kansas Wheat Under Water.

The farmers of the Arkansas valley are unable to harvest thousands of acres of wheat because of rains which have flooded the country. George W. Watson, at Topeka, says weeds have grown so thick in the fields that the farmers will be unable to harvest the grain. The condition prevails for 100 miles along the Arkansas river.

THREE DIE IN A WRECK.

Trains Collide at Haverhill, Ohio, but Passengers Escape Injury.

Engineer George Sloan of Coal Grove, engineer of No. 89, through freight; Geo. Egbert of Portsmouth, fireman of passenger train No. 3, and Flagman Perfinger of Kenova were killed at Haverhill, Ohio, in a head-on collision on the Norfolk and Western Railroad. The injured are: Thomas Gimbey, engineer of No. 3, resident Columbus, leg and arm broken; —— Tipton, fireman on the freight, badly hurt about the head, and an unknown colored tramp. The passengers were badly shaken up, but none are seriously hurt. The wreck occurred in a heavy fog on a short curve west of Haverhill. The trains were running at a high rate of speed and the two engines, twenty freight cars and baggage and express cars became a pile of wreckage. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

KILLS MOTHER AND HERSELF.

Illinois Woman Commits Double Crime After Shooting Her Husband.

Mrs. George Krueger, who killed her mother and herself after attempting to murder her husband at their home near Long Grove, Ill., has been declared insane by the coroner's jury. The husband escaped with a slight wound in the arm. The deed was the outcome of years of family quarreling. The aged mother, Mrs. Margaret Voss, owned the farm, and with her daughter domineered over the husband in a way that caused constant trouble. Krueger's wife ordered him to leave the house, but he did not do so. The quarrel continued the next day, and in the afternoon Krueger left. When he returned about 5 o'clock his wife met him at the door with a revolver and fired at him. The bullet directed at his heart struck his suspender buckle and glanced off into the left arm. Thoroughly frightened the man turned and fled to a neighbor's house. When the farmers later visited the house they found the women both dead, shot through the head.

TRAIN WRECKED BY ROBBERS.

Freight Jumps the Track from Switch that Was Turned.

At Wybark, I. T., on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad, a freight train in charge of Engineer McCune of Parsons, Kan., was wrecked and McCune killed. The switch lock had been battered to pieces, the switch turned and the light taken up the track a short distance, signaling a clear track. It was doubtless the work of men who had intended to derail and rob the Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger, which preceded the freight.

CLOUDBURST DROWNS A FAMILY.

Creek Rises So Rapidly Campers Have No Time to Move.

A. W. Blades, his wife and eight children were drowned in northwestern Iowa while en route to Minnesota in an emigrant wagon. The family was encamped on a creek when a cloudburst raised the creek twelve or fifteen feet, and all were swept away. No trace of them has been found. Mr. Blades had resided near Tekamah for twenty years.

Crushed to Death by Mowing Machine.

Mrs. Marion Moore, residing west of Brazil, Ind., met a tragic death in attempting to save her son from harm. While her son Edward was mowing grass in a field near the house his horses ran away. Mrs. Moore ran out to catch the horses, when she was knocked under the machine, which crushed and cut her body, causing almost instant death.

Street Railway Men Refuse to Work.

The conductors and motormen of the Big Consolidated Street Railway system at Cleveland, who were on a strike last month, have gone out again. Eight hundred men are affected. They claim the company has not lived up to the agreement made which ended the former strike.

Brooklyn Street Railway Strike.

A large proportion of the 7,000 men employed on the lines of the Brooklyn, N. Y., Rapid Transit Company have gone out on strike. Scenes of lawlessness and riot attended the opening of the strike, and several persons were injured by thrown missiles.

Great Smelting Plant in Flames.

At 3 o'clock the other morning the great smelting plant of the Consolidated Kansas City Smelting and Refining Company, three miles from El Paso, Texas, was discovered to be on fire. The stamping works were totally destroyed.

Ephraim McKinley is Dead.

Ephraim McKinley, an uncle of the President of the United States, died at Ogden, Ill., at the age of 85.

St. Paul Bank Closed.

The Germania Bank at St. Paul, capitalized at $200,000, was closed by State Examiner Pope.

Shot by Sheriff at Alikchi.

William Goings was shot at Alikchi, I. T., under sentence of the Choctaw court, for murder.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 70c to 71c; corn, No. 2, 33c to 34c; oats, No. 2, 24c to 25c; rye, No. 2, 54c to 56c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 19c; eggs, fresh, 12c to 13c; potatoes, choice new, 38c to 45c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, choice light, $2.75 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 70c to 72c; corn, No. 2 white, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 29c to 30c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, $3.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 74c to 76c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 34c to 36c; oats, No. 2, 25c to 27c; rye, No. 2, 62c to 64c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 70c to 72c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 36c to 37c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 26c to 28c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 70c to 72c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 35c to 37c; oats, No. 2 white, 28c to 30c; rye, 59c to 60c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 71c to 72c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 35c to 36c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 24c to 26c; rye, No. 2, 56c to 58c; clover seed, new, $3.95 to $4.05.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 3, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 25c to 28c; rye, No. 1, 54c to 55c; barley, No. 2, 41c to 43c; pork, mess, $9.00 to $9.50.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $4.75; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.25; lambs, common to extra, $4.50 to $7.00.

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 77c to 78c; corn, No. 2, 39c to 41c; oats, No. 2 white, 30c to 32c; butter, creamery, 15c to 19c; eggs, Western, 14c to 16c.

MR. ALGER RESIGNS.

THE SECRETARY OF WAR QUITS M'KINLEY'S CABINET.

Vice President Hobart the One to Convey the Request of the President—His Retirement Is Asked to Put an End to Friction.

Washington special:

Gen. Russell A. Alger Wednesday morning called upon President McKinley and handed him his resignation as Secretary of War, to take effect at the pleasure of the President. There was no comment except that the President asked if he wished to go at once, and the reply of the Secretary that he would remain until the assistant secretary returned, if his successor should not be chosen at once.

The story of the resignation is closely guarded in administration circles, but it is said that the President indirectly requested the resignation, and as soon as the Secretary was informed that the President wished him to retire he returned from Long Branch to Washington and placed his resignation in the hands of Mr. McKinley.

The politicians have for some weeks been anxious to get Alger out of the cabinet. The Pingree alliance was the excuse. They feared it, and they feared the hostility of Senators McMillan and Burrows if Alger remained in the cabinet. They urged the President to get rid of Alger, but McKinley said he could not ask for Mr. Alger's resignation with such an excuse. President Lincoln had refused to accept Secretary Chase's resignation from the cabinet, even after he knew that Chase was scheming to be a presidential candidate against him.

GENERAL R. A. ALGER.

President McKinley said he could not ask Mr. Alger to leave the cabinet because he had announced his candidacy for United States Senator from Michigan. The members of the cabinet were more open to the argument of the men who wanted Alger out of the way of the success of the administration. They agreed that the Secretary of War must be sacrificed, and they expressed their views to the President.

At this stage in the developments, Attorney General Griggs was sent as a messenger to Vice-President Hobart, to ask the Vice-President to advise Alger to resign. Mr. Hobart agreed to undertake the delicate mission of saying to Gen. Alger what the President and other members of the cabinet would not say to him. He telegraphed Secretary Alger, inviting him to spend a few days with him at his Long Branch cottage. When the Secretary arrived and the two men had an opportunity to talk freely, Mr. Hobart advised Alger to resign, saying that the country was against him and that he might as well recognize that he must be sacrificed.

Gen. Alger asked if the Vice-President spoke only for himself or at the suggestion of others. Mr. Hobart had to tell him the whole story, that the President wanted his resignation, but did not wish to ask for it; that Attorney General Griggs had been the messenger of the President and the cabinet to him, and that he (Hobart) was merely the agent of the administration in advising Alger to retire.

Gen. Alger remarked that he would hand the President his resignation as soon as he returned to Washington. He said he had supposed that he and the President were on terms of friendship justifying frankness regarding this situation, but all he desired was to know the President's pleasure. He returned to Washington and handed his resignation to President McKinley.

ALASKAN DISPUTE HOPELESS.

Indefinite Postponement of High Joint Commission Likely.

A Washington dispatch asserts that the administration has practically abandoned hope of a settlement of the Alaskan boundary question, and the indications are that the meeting of the joint high commission will be indefinitely postponed. Definite action on this point, however, will not be taken until after the arrival of Senator Fairbanks. A conference will then be held by Senator Fairbanks, Secretary Hay, John Foster and John A. Kasson, and the boundary question discussed at length.

The best the authorities hope for now is that there will be no clash in the remaining few weeks of the mining season. The situation is grave, with the American miners on one side in a state of irritation and the Canadian constabulary on the other in a very aggressive mood. Should the clash come it will not be through the fault of this Government. Everything has been done to prevent action which will cause bloodshed.

News of Minor Note.

Texas floods damaged railroads $2,000,000.

Essex Hotel, Bloomfield, N. J., was destroyed by fire. Loss $100,000.

Nonantum block, Newton, Mass, destroyed by fire. Loss $20,000.

Bainard Oliver, 22, Newark, N. J., killed his wife by shooting, then escaped.

Chas. Jones, New York porter, fell down an air shaft and was killed.

Dan L. Davis, Wayland, Ohio, while intoxicated, fell under a train and was killed.

Harry Rader, Nazareth, Pa., attempted to drown his dog and was himself drowned.

Dr. Lincoln, Hyde Park, Mass, is suffering from a disease supposed to be leprosy.

Stephen W. Paine, commercial traveler, Wilkesbarre, Pa., committed suicide by shooting.

Four thousand Tampa, Fla., cigarmakers are out at work over a disagreement with employers.

Boston has $3,800 from the Johnstown flood fund which will be sent to the Texas sufferers.

CHICAGOAN A FUGITIVE.

School Board Secretary Graham Is About $34,000 Short.

After five years of service as clerk, secretary and school agent for the Chicago Board of Education, W. A. S. Graham has proved faithless to his trust and fled the city, a confessed defaulter. His shortage is believed to amount to $34,500, although in a statement left behind he estimates it at $23,000. In his flight he left behind to suffer for his misdeeds his wife and three little children.

To cover his shortage he left a schedule of his real property in Chicago and Evanston, estimated by himself to be worth $25,000, and which he wished turned over to the School Board or the surety company which was on his bond. With the schedule was a confession of his guilt.

The last trace of Graham was his appearance in New Orleans less than a week ago, accompanied by his wife and three children. This was the initial step in his flight, the family having hurried to the Southern city while Graham's friends thought he was touring westward in search of rest and quiet. It was his intention to keep his family together, but the illness of Mrs. Graham and her baby precluded this and the family returned to Chicago after Graham had written a complete confession, turning over all his property for the benefit of the school fund that had suffered from his peculation and had worded a faltering declaration that he hoped to live to undo the wrong he had accomplished. This done, the defaulter departed. Where he went or what his intentions for the future are no one knows, but the surety companies that are upon his bond and will have to make good the shortage are hot on his trail.

Graham, whose meteoric career has led him from the humble position of a sailor before the mast to become one of the best-posted political writers of the West and later the secretary of the Mayor of Chicago, from which he became general factotum of the School Board, has the same old story to tell in extenuation of his fall. It was dabbling in speculation on the stock market that brought about his ruin, which was hastened by two circumstances—the financial depression that followed the death of Roswell Flower and the election of a successor to fill the place from which he was finally crowded after five years' incumbency.

BIG STRIKE SPREADS.

New York Traction Employes Quit Work in Sympathy.

Wednesday brought two startling sensations into the great New York traction strike. Brooklyn strikers or their sympathizers destroyed a part of the Fifth avenue elevated road with dynamite, and about half the men on the Second avenue line of the Metropolitan system in New York City struck in sympathy with the Brooklyn strikers.

The strike on the Metropolitan system was not authorized by the leaders. Some of the more enthusiastic men who attended the Cooper Union meeting got together and decided that the only thing to do was to strike. They formed themselves into a committee and went to the Second avenue car stables early in the morning and asked the men to come out. Every car was stopped as it reached the stables, and each man on the car was asked to quit work. The strike spread to the Sixth avenue line of the Metropolitan company, where a number of motormen quit work. The conductors refused to strike.

General Master Workman John M. Parsons of the Knights of Labor, who presided at the meeting in Cooper Union, did not want the men to strike. There were disturbances at several places and four men were arrested. It was said that those who were trying to get the men out were discharged employes. During a conference the men told Mr. Parsons that this was only the start of a general strike of all employes of the Metropolitan Railway system.

At Cleveland, Ohio, the most serious violence since the street railroad strike was renewed was the blowing up of a switch with dynamite and the burning of a small office and waiting room at Murray Hill Tuesday evening. No one was injured. No clew to the dynamiters could be found.

RECRUITING IS UNEQUAL.

It Need Not Be Confined, However, Within State Limits.

The fact that some regiments are being recruited so much more rapidly than others—the Thirty-first, Fort Thomas, for instance, had nearly 600 men, while the Thirty-fifth, Vancouver Barracks, had but about twenty-five—has been the cause of many inquiries directed to the Adjutant General.

The people want to know whether the regiment must be recruited within the State limits originally set forth, or whether the recruiting in the more populous districts will be kept up with a view of furnishing recruits for regiments which have not been so successful, even after the quota for the regiment shall have been obtained.

The Adjutant General says that the latter will be the case, and that recruiting will continue everywhere until the total number requisite for the ten new regiments has been raised.

CHINAMEN ARE CANNIBALS.

So Say Laborers at Work on Mexican Central Railway, Near Tampico.

San Antonio, Texas, advices state that great excitement prevails in the seaport of Tampico, Mexico, over a brutal act of cannibalism which was committed by some of the laborers on the Mexican Central Railroad near Tampico Saturday last.

The Chinamen who were recently imported to work on the railroad are charged with having murdered a female Mexican child and are said to have eaten its flesh.

The child was the daughter of a Mexican section foreman. The affair has incensed the Mexicans against the Chinese, and the celestials are flocking into the city for protection. It is reported that the Mexican rurales have arrested the criminals.

HOSPITAL STORES FOUND.

Boxes Intended for Porto Rico Turn Up at Manila.

On Sept. 5 last the ladies of the Army and Navy League of Portsmouth, Ohio, sent to Company H of the Fourth Ohio, then in Porto Rico, two large boxes of hospital stores and other supplies. In the boxes were also some private packages. The boxes never reached the Portsmouth company.

A letter from the physician in charge of the hospital ship Relief, now at Manila, says the boxes were found and all except the private packages will be used.

'MID FLAMES AND DEBRIS.

Burning Hotel Collapses, Hurling Firemen Into the Ruins.

While Milwaukee firemen were swarming up the walls and over the roof of the burning Hotel Grace, the structure suddenly collapsed and twenty firemen were precipitated into the ruins. Of this number one is dead, eleven are in hospitals and several are so badly injured there is little chance for their recovery. About twenty other firemen narrowly escaped being carried down, but saved themselves by jumping from the south wall to an adjoining building.

TRUTH KEPT SECRET.

GEN. OTIS IS ACCUSED OF HIDING FACTS.

Newspaper Men at Manila File a Formal Protest Against Distortion of Their Press Telegrams—Dispatch Via Hong Kong Startles Washington

Washington special:

The protest received at Washington by cable via Hong Kong, from newspaper correspondents in Manila against the censorship established by Gen. Otis has caused a profound sensation in Government circles.

The protest sets forth that news has been suppressed and that the newspaper men have been compelled "to participate in misrepresentation" by the action of the censor in "excising or altering uncontroverted statements of fact." The protest is signed by John P. Dunning, Robert M. Collins and L. Jones of the Associated Press; E. S. Keene of the Scripps-McRae Association, Oscar K. Davis and P. G. McDonnell of the New York Sun, John F. Bass and Will Dinwiddie of the New York Herald, John T. McCutcheon and Harry Armstrong of the Chicago Record, and Richard H. Little of the Chicago Tribune.

That the telegraphic reports of Gen. Otis were censored at the War Department was well known, but the impression has been that newspaper correspondents were permitted to send about what they wanted to, provided they avoided mentioning future military movements.

The disclosures of the extent to which Gen. Otis has deprived the country of proper information have confirmed a quiet belief that the general in command was afraid to have the truth known, and it is believed his official dispatches have been distorted to conceal his mistakes in the belief that the censorship would prevent the press correspondents from sending the facts.

It has been a general maxim among army men that newspaper correspondents are privileged to give actual results of battles in their own language, the censorship being restricted to the prevention of the news of future military movements from reaching the enemy.

Otis Shapes the News.

Gen. Otis has apparently proceeded far beyond this, and has assumed to dictate what shall be sent and how the story shall be told. It seems to be well understood about the department that Gen. Otis has made a serious blunder in attempting to deceive the people of the United States as to the situation in the Philippines, for now even his truthful reports will not be believed, and the people will naturally think the conditions on the island much worse than they really are.

It has been painfully felt at the War Department that Gen. Otis made a mistake in not getting out to the firing line now and then, but as the insurgents were north, south and east of Manila it was supposed that he felt he could best direct operations from the city. The failure of one strategical movement after another was plainly evident, and yet the general continued to send in the most optimistic reports.

The result of the formal protest by the correspondents has been to cast suspicion on the official reports of Gen. Otis as to the situation, and it is admitted that now the only course will be for the President to interfere and modify the censorship at Manila, so that the correspondents may be permitted to describe the situation as it is, which will be a salutary check on the commanding general.

It would not be at all surprising if the explosion should result in the recall of Gen. Otis before the rainy season ends. It is recognized that his usefulness will be destroyed as soon as the people learn that he has systematically deceived them as to the situation in Luzon.

Army men say the published protest will do a vast amount of harm, and they think the correspondents should have cabled the President direct, and thus have avoided scandal.

Ignore Round Robin.

At the regular semi-weekly cabinet meeting Tuesday an extraordinary problem of the Philippine war presented itself. The newspaper correspondents' "round robin" was by far the most perplexing question the President and his cabinet had met in many days. The cabinet was divided as to the manner of dealing with it. The members condemned it to a man in private conversation. Two members expressed opinions in favor of deporting the correspondents. But in all these expressions there was a sober admission that public opinion as to the rights and limitations of the press in war have greatly changed since Gen. "Tecumseh" Sherman disciplined Whitelaw Reid and Gen. Jeff C. Davis sent the late "Joe" McCullagh out of camp in a raging snowstorm one night.

It was stated at the War Department Tuesday that no attention whatever would be paid to the "round robin" of the Manila correspondents. The protest was not sent to Gen. Otis, and it is said will not be, and Gen. Otis will not be called upon for an explanation. In addition to this it was intimated that very encouraging news had been received from the Philippines.

ACCUSES SECRETARY GAGE.

Worthington C. Ford of Boston Tells Tales Out of School.

Secretary Lyman J. Gage is accused of misstatements by Worthington C. Ford of Boston, former chief of the bureau of statistics. Mr. Ford declares that he was requested to resign his office in the bureau of statistics without any excuse being assigned, but that the position was desired for another man.

Ford says that his place was taken by O. P. Austin, a Washington journalist, who was not required to pass any examination. Austin has been given, Mr. Ford declares, five "emergency" appointments, thus keeping him in office ever since.

OUTLAWS KILL A SHERIFF.

Posse Searching for Train Robbers Falls Into Ambush.

Sheriff E. J. Farr and a posse of five men searching for the outlaws who held up a train at Folsom came upon them unexpectedly near Cimarron, N. M., Sunday and a desperate battle ensued. Sheriff Farr was killed, two of his posse, Deputies Love and Smith of Springer, N. M., were seriously wounded, and the others, including W. H. Reno, chief of the secret service department of the Colorado and Southern Railway, were badly wounded.

Telegraphic Brevities.

Gallagher's Hotel, Laporte, Pa., burned. Loss about $50,000.

Electric train at Norfolk, Va., fatally injured Edward Holmes.

Miss Helen Gould sent $250 to the New Richmond, Wis., tornado sufferers.

United States Worsted Company, Louisville, Ky., will go into the trust.

Charles Swartzfager is wanted at Erie, Pa., for killing Clarence E. Shattuck.

Pennsylvania coal operators may introduce American anthracite in Europe.

Samuel Schwartz, New York, was killed while trying to jump from an elevator.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Attempts to Kill His Family—Young Woman Drinks Phosphorus Solution—Fort Wayne Street Railway to Be Sold—Epworth League Lecture Trust.

James B. Crosby, a wealthy manufacturer of Marion, attempted to shoot his wife and family. Mr. and Mrs. Crosby had domestic trouble and separated last January. Previous to the separation Crosby had transferred to his wife stock in the Crosby paper mills and the Marion strawboard mills, which are both owned by him, that he might better fight the American Strawboard trust. After defeating the trust he demanded the return of his stock, but his wife refused to surrender it. He visited his wife's home while she and her six children were eating their dinner and again demanded the stock. She refused, and he pointed a revolver at her and pulled the trigger. The cartridge failed to explode and he tried the second. Mrs. Crosby ran from the house. A son about 18 years old attempted to strike his father with a chair, and the father attempted to shoot him, but the revolver was a center fire and the cartridges were rim fire, preventing a tragedy.

Wish for Death Gratified.

Miss Emma McCarty, the Rushville young woman who a few days ago took a dose of water in which match heads had been soaked for two weeks, for the purpose of killing herself, had her wish gratified. She died of phosphorus poisoning after suffering terrible agonies. Miss McCarty opposed the marriage of her father, John McCarty, to his niece, Miss Katie Cohee, who is thirty years his junior. The girl decided on self-destruction.

Street Railway to Be Sold.

A decree was handed down in the Circuit Court of Allen County for the sale of the Fort Wayne Consolidated Street Railway and its holdings to satisfy a mortgage to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York for $724,829 and a mortgage to the Guardian Trust Company of Cleveland for $2,085,321. Other claims and attorneys' fees aggregate $100,000.

Lecturers' Trust Is Victor.

The Indiana lecture field has been cornered as by a trust by the Epworth League, which has tied up the entire eastern section by entering all cities of importance into an agreement against the lecture bureaus. While the league will not book all of its own attractions, it demands a 25 to 50 per cent reduction on last year's prices from the bureaus.

Engineer Mysteriously Killed.

W. W. Howard, a Lake Shore engineer, left his train at Pine Station and, failing to return, the fireman went in search and found him dead beside the track with a deep gash in his head, supposed to have been caused by a coupling pin. The murder is as yet a mystery.

Within Our Borders.

Evansville has registered a kick against seiners.

Indiana Adventists meet near Elwood, Aug. 10-25.

Mrs. Della Holler, Saltillo, tired of living, took strychnine.

J. E. Hall, Anderson, sneezed his right shoulder out of place.

J. L. Aroson passed a forged check for $72.70 on a Valparaiso bank.

Sylvester Freeze can't run a saloon at Centerville, the people declare.

William Bridgett's baby was smacked by a kissing bug at Hagerstown.

John Brown, 28, Paoli, killed while lying in a drunken sleep on the railroad.

Girl baby born to Ed Davis and wife, Travisville, weighs a pound and a half.

Not a "drap" of firewater is sold in Cloverdale, not even for medical purposes.

B. & O. S. W. railroad tracks in Ripley County torn up by a baby cyclone and cloud burst.

Brazil miners want their pay every week, and are going to make the operators crack down.

It is estimated that Wabash County farmers will make from $75 to $110 an acre on tomatoes.

Opening of DePauw University will be postponed until Sept. 27 on account of the Methodist conference.

Goods that were swiped from a car in Muncie during the Elks' carnival were found under a culvert.

A demented Shelbyville boy has been firing buildings and turning in alarms just to see the department run.

Body of Breidenstein, Fort Wayne, who disappeared a few days ago, was found in the canal. Supposed suicide.

Christian Church of Indiana has bought assembly grounds at Maxinkuckee, and will later establish a theological seminary.

William Wilsey, Fort Wayne, sues for divorce because his wife smashed him with kitchen utensils and doused him with a bucket of slop.

Hugh McMahan, a Vincennes street car motorman, was shot and fatally wounded by Peter Saeger, who mistook him for a burglar trying to break into the house of Albert Wheeler, a mail carrier, who lives next door.

Miss Anna Mack, aged 17, daughter of the proprietor of the St. James' Hotel at Pana, Ill., who eloped with Wilbur E. Peck, a traveling salesman, caused his arrest in Anderson for the theft of a bicycle from a Muncie dealer.

Frank Leech of Arlington had his hand cut by the fins of a black bass he was handling. Blood poisoning developed and the arm was amputated in the hope of saving his life. The effort was vain, however, and Leech died in great agony.

An old Quaker church that stands near Fairmount and has been used for divine services for fifty-six years, is to be converted into a stable.

Mrs. Dora Greinger, Evansville, answered a matrimonial advertisement and has packed her duds and gone to Maine to meet her man.

The first person in Muncie to become a victim of the kissing bug was Oran Green, aged 18. He was stung and has been in a precarious condition ever since. The sting was upon the upper lip and the young man's face became terribly swollen.

Christian Hoose, a wealthy stockman of Mishawaka, was instantly killed by a Lake Shore train. Hoose was 40 years old and was in charge of a large drove of cattle when killed.

Elizabeth Gibson, the 17-year-old daughter of Robert Gibson of Rutherford township, committed suicide by shooting herself through the head with a rifle. No cause for the deed is known.

John Parker, while on the river in a boat at Martinsville, was fatally injured by a dynamite explosion, which destroyed both his eyes and blew off both his hands. It is thought that Luke Northern was killed and blown into the river by the same charge.

Two Singers.

Two singers there were and one was like
To a queen in her royal gown—
With a stately step, and pride agleam
In the deep of her eyes of brown;
And one's was a face with a gentler grace,
And eyes that a heart shone through—
Eyes that borrowed the schoolday tint
Of a little sunbonnet of blue.

One was a singer of great renown,
Now stirring the blood with a note,
Now charming the ear with the cultured tones
That came from her shapely throat;
And one was a singer of songs of love,
And she knew not the ways of art;
But she sang right on past the ear and poured
Rich melodies 'round the heart.

Two tributes of song—and one was lost
In the deafening volley of cheers;
And one throbbed on when the singer was gone,
And the answer was silence and tears.
Ah, many the day that has passed since then,
And the singers that sang are not;
But memory holds to a little song,
And the other—forgot! forgot!

HIS FIRST NIGHT IN MANILA.

A VOLUNTEER'S ADVENTURE.

An injury, received at Cavite, a few days after our troops entered Manila, incapacitated me for further service. I was furloughed and might have come home on the transport to San Francisco, but I wanted to see a little more of life in the Philippines.

Two American friends of mine, with an eye to future business, had bought a number of houses of departing Spanish residents on a street leading off the Escolta, and at their request, I hired a native servant and went to live in one of these houses, to look after the property and "hold down the claim" for them, as they say in Nebraska, till they could take possession themselves. The casa, or house, where I became thus domiciled was a typical Spanish structure of Manila, built around an enclosed open patio, or inner courtyard, with strong walls and grated windows. The roof over the wider front portion of it was of corrugated iron, as is common here on account of earthquakes; but the lower portions at the wings and rear were provided with roofs of red earthen tiles.

Having the whole house to choose from, I selected two rooms on the second floor, fronting the street. The Spanish family who had lived here had left much of the old furniture, curtains, bamboo chairs, bedsteads, colchons and other articles not worth moving away. Even the braziers for cooking still stood on the gallery outside the door. I had but to fetch in my personal belongings and begin my bachelor housekeeping.

You get a mozo, or native male servant, for four dollars a month here, and this "boy" does everything for you, even to laying out your clothes and fetching in your meals. For an indolent life at moderate cost, Manila is the ideal city, in time of peace. The mozo does all the small buying, and it is often necessary to trust him with several of the big silver dollars which constitute the medium of exchange here.

Although I found the old casa shut up, it was far from being wholly unoccupied and empty. A Chinese "chow" dog, with a black tongue, curly hair, and a tail that was still trying hard to keep in its peculiar curl, was in the patio when I unlocked the outer door and entered. The forlorn creature seemed uncertain whether to bark at me for an intruder or whine for food, and she watched my face with sad, longing eyes, perhaps pleading for her three little puppies.

A dirty, lean, white cat, with a broken tail was also peering out from under a rank banana stalk. The whole patio was now overrun with neglected flower plants, shrubs, pepper-vines and a "fire-tree."

Mosquitoes had bred in the little, half dry pool of the fountain, and a lizard three or four feet long was squatting on the rim of it. There were five more of these long lizards about the court and late that afternoon they began to "sing." I thought that half a dozen locksmiths had entered and were filing keys below, till my new mozo told me the noises were made by the lizards.

The first night after taking possession I spent down at Cavite with some friends; but the mozo remained and availed himself of my absence to smuggle into the patio two tough-looking game cocks of his own; for all these native "boys" are incorrigible cock fighters.

He also kept a yeeping turkey there, for what purpose I never knew, and raised "hongos"—mushrooms—in a dark back room of the ground floor. Still, he was a very good mozo, as Manila mozos go, and was usually on hand when he was wanted.

The old house had still other denizens which I did not learn about till the second night, which was the first that I actually passed there. Any one living in Manila—even a newcomer of a few weeks' experience of the city and its inhabitants—would have understood matters better than I did. At Cavite I had lived either in barracks or at a hospital.

A very diminutive kerosene lamp furnished what light I was to have in the old casa. After a stroll up and down the street outside, I went in, locked the great door, ascended to my new quarters, and sat down to read an old copy of Waverly which had found its way to the Philippines on a war-ship.

Something about the queer, musty old place gave me a singular sensation—lonesomeness, perhaps. I forgot it in the narrative of "Callum Beg," for a time. Then I heard Florencio, my mozo, coming up the stairs from the patio. He brought in drinking water, opened my bed, and laid a pair of slippers beside it. As yet the mozo and I had much difficulty in understanding each other. He spoke Tagalog and a little Spanish; I still less Spanish and no Tagalog. I thought that he appeared uneasy, and scarcely wondered at it, the house was so silent and deserted. I asked him if he were afraid.

"Ah, nao, senor," he replied, with a doubtful look around, but added something about picaros, and then explained, in many long sentences, none of which I more than comprehended, that native black burglars often crept in, naked, having their bodies smeared with fat so that they could not be seized or held.

I had a Krag-Jorgensen carbine; but Florencio brought in two old rusted lances which he had found below, such as had sometimes been used by Spanish cavalry. He stood up one of these doughty weapons beside my bed, with an odd smile, intimating that he should keep the other near his own colchon in the back room which he occupied on the ground floor. I laughed at him; yet in the disturbed condition of the city at that time precautions were not entirely out of place.

After he had said buenas noches, and I had listened to his shuffling feet descending the stairs, I read again for a while, and then went to a window to look down into the street, which was very quiet and dimly lighted. Presently I heard the tramp of a patrol squad, and a sergeant with five soldiers passed. From the window I could see three natives peeping after them from the entrance of an alley. "Such is Manila in 1899," I thought, and went to bed.

The night was not uncomfortably hot. I blew out the feeble lamp and fell asleep at once.

A scraping sound soon waked me; a rat was dragging one of my shoes across the tiled floor. When I struck a match, the big gray fellow dropped the shoe and scurried into a corner, where I could see his small eyes reflecting the light.

I put my shoes and socks on my bed, and again fell asleep; but not for long. Frightful squealings broke out. A battalion of charging Filipinos could hardly have made a sharper uproar—and it was overhead! "Something larger than rats this time," I thought, starting up, and once more lighted my lamp.

The ceilings of these old Spanish houses usually show the beams and boards. A heavy object was rolling and tumbling in the loft above the ceiling of my room, and I could hear an occasional clang against the iron roof above it. Then a strange, grating, sliding noise succeeded, followed immediately by another frightful outburst of screams; then bump-thump-plump all over the loft!

Considerably excited, I jumped up, and seizing the old lance, struck and prodded the ceiling-boards vigorously. These proved not to be nailed or fastened in any way; they turned over easily. Dirt, dust and a shower of rubbish fell. But my demonstration had the effect of quieting the noise for the time being.

From the sounds I was sure that a man or some large animal, as well as rats, must be in the loft—a greased picaro, perhaps. Mounting a chair, with the lance in one hand, I held up the lamp. As I raised the light there was a sudden commotion above, a clatter of the overturned boards, and there slid down, not a yard from my face, fully a fathom's length of the ugliest scaly serpent that I ever set my eyes on.

I yelled outright, purely from terror, and jumped down from the chair. The monster appeared to be coming down tail first. The lamp chimney fell to the floor and broke, by no means improving the feeble light. The snake—more of it—was still sliding down. Apparently there were yards of it behind.

Its tail now nearly touched the floor. Putting down the flaring lamp, I snatched my carbine and literally blew a hole through the reptile's body. It fell, bleeding and thrashing, on the tiles.

But the noise in the loft had increased. Glancing up, I saw the tail of another python whipping down as he ran over the beams. A second shot sent it executing even wilder gyrations.

At length, catching sight of its body gliding across one of the wide cracks I had made by overturning the boards, I fired and brought it down through the hole.

Both snakes, the smaller of which was not less than nine feet long, were now tumbling spasmodically about the room, and I leaped upon the bed, for my feet were bare, and I was otherwise in scanty raiment.

At that moment there came a hasty knocking at the door, with Florencio crying in alarmed accents, "Senor! Senor! Que hay?"

He had naturally concluded that a battle with robbers was raging. It is good evidence of his fidelity that he had seized his lance and come to my assistance.

With an eye to the writhing serpents, I got down, threw the door open and jumped hastily back on the bed. Florencio, weapon in hand, peered in. He was ashen with terror. But as his eyes took in the situation, the dying serpents and the damaged ceiling, his face regained its wonted expression. Nay, he even smiled!

Then, marking my excitement, he began a reassuring discourse, of which I understood scarcely a word. Quite fearlessly, as it seemed to me, he seized the snakes by the tail, and hauling them out on the gallery, threw them down into the patio. Then he began to tidy up the room, all the while repeating something about culebras de casa (house snakes), and that el senor (myself) no conoce (did not know).

It was not until the next day that I came fairly to understand that I had foolishly killed two harmless boas which had filled the necessary office of rat-catchers in the old house for years, and whose place would have to be filled by others of their species if we expected to live there.

I then learned that most old houses and bungalows at Manila have their majas, or house serpents,—a species of boa, from eight to twelve feet long,—which live in the lofts and attics above the ceilings, rarely or never giving the people any trouble. These snakes, in fact, are sold by native peddlers on the street.

Not many days later, itinerant venders, acting from some hint of Florencio's probably, came to the house door, each bearing a bamboo pole over his shoulder, with a boa coiled around it. The reptile's neck was tied fast to the pole aloft, to prevent them from escaping. It cost me two of the cart wheel dollars of the country to make good the witless slaughter which my inexperience had occasioned.—Youth's Companion.

AUTOMOBILE TIRES.

An Important Question That Has Not Yet Been Settled.

The tire question is one for which the manufacturers of automobiles have not yet found a satisfactory answer. The most vulnerable part of the vehicle is the rim of the wheels, and in order to insure comfort, safety and beauty experiments have been made by nearly all manufacturers which involved much more expense than is known to the people outside of the business. The monster pneumatic tires are unsightly, and give the vehicles a ponderous and unwieldy appearance, besides being expensive. In order to overcome these objections tires of various sizes, shapes and designs have been made and are being used for the purpose of determining which is the most practicable.

Among the recent patterns isa square tire with corrugated surface, which is a great improvement on the old balloon in looks, although its manufacturers have not tested it sufficiently to give an opinion on its lasting properties. Some of the newest pleasure vehicles have a narrow wheel and a tire correspondingly small, and the life of these tires is also being watched closely.

"Only careful investigation," said a manufacturer, "will solve the problem. We have nothing except the bicycle tire to go by, and must get our knowledge through expensive experiments."

The cost of rubber tires justifies a large outlay for the purpose of discovering which is the most durable pattern and design. Tires cost from $25 to $50 each, and some of the special patterns are still more expensive. The experiments with the various tires are being watched with much attention by the people who are interested in the horseless trucks, because the heavy vehicles will require tires of great strength. The solid rubber tire has been used with some success in heavy vehicles, and is having its share of attention in the tests which are now being made.—New York Tribune.

The French Intelligence Department.

When the Englishman drops a confidential communication into the letter box he has no misgivings that his missive will be opened and its contents read and copied before it comes into the hands of the person to whom it is addressed. In reality, though we hardly realize it, the inviolability of our correspondence is one of the many precious privileges we enjoy as a matter of course, the mass of which make up what we understand by "liberty." To find a different state of things prevailing we need make no more hazardous journey than the short sea passage that separates Dover from Calais.

During the crisis in the throes of which France is still writhing the French Radicals have not been backward in insisting on the burlesque character of the scenes of which the War Office is the theatre. Surely a Gilbert, even in his best moments of inspiration, never imagined anything more ludicrous and topsy-turvy than a score of stalwart, fiercely-mustached professional fighting men, accoutred in all the glittering panoply of war who pass their days from morning to night laboriously piecing together filthy little scraps of paper supposed to have been grubbed out of some dustbin or waste paper basket in one of the foreign embassies. The branch of the War Office where this sort of thing goes on is known as the Intelligence Department.—Chamber's Journal.

Georgia Pine Days Are Limited.

At a recent meeting of the prominent sawmill men of Georgia, a compilation of statistics was made, showing the aggregate amount of standing timber in Georgia, with the following results:

One million five hundred thousand acres, averaging 3,800 feet of merchantable timber to the acre.

Total in feet, 4,500,000,000.

Daily cut of mills, 2,600,000.

At this rate, six years will completely exhaust all the timber in Georgia.

With this condition confronting the lumbermen of Georgia, we submit that the situation requires most careful and considerate treatment.

Nothing which will put off the evil day should be neglected.

Furthermore, where this timber is gone, it is gone. It cannot be reproduced during the life of any one operating in Georgia to-day. Therefore, if it has got to go, make those who take it pay for it. Every mill man in the State of Georgia, and in other yellow pine States as well, should combine or do something to advance the price of yellow pine, so as they get the full benefits of the only crop they will ever harvest.—Lumber Trade Journal.

Children Should Use the Left Hand.

Mrs. Jennie Connell, of New York City has a large clientele among babies. Mrs. Connell is a physical culture teacher, and she instructs the little ones in the proper way to breathe, to stand upon their feet, and the right poise of the body. In order to build up the little ones she gives them a course in calisthenics, being careful to observe that their strength is not overtaxed. As they grow older she instructs them in fencing and the like, and she teaches them to use the left hand as much as the right, for, she argues, because this is not more generally used there is an unequal development of the body.

The original draft of the Confederate constitution is in the possession of Longstreet Hull, of Athens, Ga. Mr. Hull is a grandson of Thomas R. R. Cobb, chairman of the committee who drew the document.

In China there is one ordained minister to every 1,000,000.

THE VENEZUELAN BOUNDARY DISPUTE AT A GLANCE.

The controversy over the boundary between Venezuela and British Guiana has been waged for years. It brought the United States and Great Britain to the verge of war in 1895, when President Cleveland sent his famous message to Congress declaring that this country would not permit Great Britain to determine the boundary line by using violence against Venezuela.

Venezuela never recognized the different boundary lines proposed by Great Britain, even as demarcations of disputed territory.

A brief description of the most important of the boundary lines follows. The map shows all the several boundaries and is an invaluable guide to the proceedings of the tribunal:

1814—The British acquired 20,000 square miles in Guiana from the Dutch.

1836—The British resident minister in Caracas notified the Venezuelan Government of the urgency of erecting lighthouses and placing buoys in Barima Point and Boca Grande of the Orinoco, showing these places were acknowledged to be in Venezuelan territory. In 1890 Barima Point was claimed by the British.

1840—A man accused of murder was taken to trial in Demerara. The lawyer in charge of the defense proved that the crime had been committed in Cano Moruco, and the accused was acquitted by the court under the plea that the murder had been perpetrated in Venezuelan territory. In 1896 Great Britain claimed Cano Moruco.

1840—On account of the boundary posts planted by Mr. Schomburgk and which bore the British flag, the Venezuelan Government sent instructions to Mr. Fortique, its plenipotentiary minister in Europe, to demand from the British Government the recognition of the integrity of the territory of Venezuela.

1881—Lord Granville proposed a limit line to Dr. Rojas, minister of Venezuela at London.

1884—Mr. Fortique proposed to Lord Aberdeen a line to be accepted by both governments as a final settlement of the dispute. Other lines were proposed subsequently by the Venezuelan Government through Dr. Julian Viso and Dr. Jose Maria Rojas.

1886—Lord Rosebery proposed a new boundary to the Venezuelan minister, Guzman Blanco.

1890—Lord Salisbury proposed a boundary which has been called a "capricious line for arbitration."

1895—The Royal Geographical Society of London issued a map in which the position of Schomburgk's line was changed from its position on the maps of 1840 and later dates.

The extreme of the claim of the British is defined in a memorandum sent by Lord Salisbury in 1890 to Minister Urbaneja.—New York Journal.

the United States and the commercial world operates on that plan. The time of the seventy-fifth meridian is called eastern time, that of the ninetieth called central and that of the one hundred and fifth mountain and the one hundred and twentieth Pacific. The adoption of standard time made New York's time four minutes slower than previously. At the conference of the International Geodetic association held in Rome in 1883 the question of cosmopolitan time was first discussed.

PORTRAITS AT HOME.

Suggestions for Handling the Light—Two Simple Screens.

Although all kinds of interior work are much more difficult than outdoor work for amateur photographers, owing to the difficulty of managing the light, nearly every one who has a camera tries the former sooner or later. It is not at all uncommon to begin on portraits, which require a good deal of experience and technical knowledge. In the gallery of an artist one usually finds that the studio is provided with a skylight. The amateur is rarely able to command one. However, in a recent issue "The Mechanic Arts Magazine" made some excellent suggestions on this point.

PORTRAIT PHOTOGRAPHY.

It was recommended that an ordinary side window be shaded up to a height of about five feet from the floor by means of bookbinders' board. This can be cut to fit the window casing. In front of the binders' board should be hung cambric, of whatever hue, gray or black is preferred for a background. Some subjects require a light one and some a dark one. Hence the material should be hung in such a way that it can be changed readily. In order to get a good supply of light from above a reflecting screen is provided. It should consist of white cloth—a sheet, for instance. Beginning at a distance of eighteen inches from the side wall, one edge of the sheet should be fastened to the ceiling. The lower edge of the cloth should be stiffened with a strip of wood, like a sail. Then the screen ought to be inclined away from the window at an angle of about 45 degrees. Another screen, hung from the ceiling or mounted on feet at one side of the sitter, out of range of the camera, will assist in lighting one side of the face more than the other in a full face picture and in illuminating the face for a profile view. The magazine here referred to goes on to say:

"Where the photograph is to be a full-length figure or a three-quarter full length, care must be exercised that the upper part of the subject is not more strongly lighted than the draperies nearer the floor. It is well, on this account, to spread on the floor a white sheet or a number of newspapers, so that the light may be reflected upward against the lower part of the figure.

"Where a person has light curly or fluffy hair it is best to illuminate the hair brilliantly by setting the top screen about as shown in the illustration and then arrange the side screen to reflect light on the face in an upward direction, so that as far as possible its stronger shadows may be softened and too much contrast prevented."

A woman always likes the hat that some other woman wears better than she likes her own, and blames the milliner for it.

Many a man who claims to be discreet is but a coward.

THE "KISSING BUG" UNDER THE MICROSCOPE.

If you meet a dark-eyed stranger whose features resemble a pair of bicycle lamps on an ice pick, feeling his solitary way by means of a fishpole covered with dog's hair, you will be safe in assuming that he is melanolestes picipes, alias kissing bug. In order to recognize him after this fashion, however, it will be necessary to use a microscope. The illustration was obtained by this means at the Smithsonian Institution.

This hideous insect is called melanolestes picipes by the scientific men and is a predatory insect. Until recently it was never known to feed on man. Its favorite pasture has been the cubicular bug that inhabits bedding, and its most acceptable feeding time just after that bug has had a meal of blood from a human being. In this way melano, etc., gets a taste of human blood. It has now gone into the business for itself, and taps its food supply without the aid of a vicarious distributer.

The kissing bug is black, has a fat body, and does all its hunting by night like the wolves in "The Jungle Book." It is about an inch long, has a narrow, pointed head, and a beak as sharp as that of a mosquito. When it sucks its victim, who is always asleep, feels no pain, but the stung parts swell to ten times normal size in from two to four days. Collodion is used in the treatment. The probable cause of the prevalence of the melanolestes this year is the great abundance of insect life to be found everywhere. Nature has provided this species to prey upon caterpillars and other insect pests, and with the disappearance of these the melanolestes will disappear also. Again, nature has provided millions of parasites which in turn feed upon this insect and destroy its eggs.

As a rule the melanolestes picipes makes his home under the bark of rotten trees. The insect runs with great swiftness and is hard to catch on that account. It flies mostly at night. In the larvæ state these creatures resemble somewhat the common bedbug. In fact, in the States of California and Texas and in all the Southwestern country where considerable annoyance and suffering are caused by its depredations, it is commonly known as the "Great Big Bedbug."

VENGEANCE OF A BRIDE.

She Put a Bullet Into the Heart of a Deceitful Husband.

Not long ago there was a murder on the main street in Tahlequah, I. T., and although the killing was done in plain sight there was no demand of arrest or a trial for the slayer. It was the beautiful wife of Cherokee Jim, the Indian gentleman, who put a bullet into his heart, her object being to avenge her father's death and also to repay the deceitful Indian for his attempt upon her own life. The story is one of the most remarkable in the history of the romantic West.

Allie Madaris was the only daughter of a wealthy stock raiser at Checatah, in the Indian Territory. She was beautiful and accomplished, amiable in disposition and fascinating in manner. Tenderfoot and cowboy wooed her in vain. Her flashing black eyes sent a shaft of passionate love into many a heart, but no returning arrow found lodgment in her affectionate nature until she saw Jim McDonald, "Cherokee

ALLIE M'DONALD.

Jim," a quarter Indian. He had been educated in the East and came back to the Territory with all the refinement and polish of a metropolitan gentleman. He decided to win her and the task proved an easy one. The gentle Desdemona listened not more greedily to the burning words of the dusky Moor than did Allie Madaris to the eloquent heart pleadings of the handsome Cherokee. They were engaged—married—and settled down in the lap of luxury. Her cup of happiness was overflowing, but it was soon to be changed to one of bitterness.

One day her father was found dead—shot by an unknown hand. He was rich and she his only heir. Men suspected Cherokee Jim, but there was no evidence. She never dreamed that the man with whom she had embarked her whole soul in the traffic of affection was the man who had murdered her father. But he was. He had set his heart upon the old man's money, and he was determined to have it. But he found after the murder that Madaris had left a will, bequeathing all his estate to his daughter and her children, and McDonald was to get it only in case she should die childless.

The murderer had failed to achieve his wealth by his first crime, and it soon became apparent that his wife had a wil of her own and that he would fail to achieve it while she lived. To commit a second murder while the blood of the first was still fresh was too hazardous. Something, he thought, must be done, and done quickly. To wait was intolerable. There must be an entanglement at once of a kind that would render his wife friendless in her grief and unsought in her apparent worthlessness.

Jim McDonald had the craft to conceive a plot that would serve his ends and the "nerve" to carry it into execution. A New York artist had called upon Allie McDonald when she was Allie Madaris. He was still in the neighborhood. Here was Jim's chance. He accused his wife of infidelity and stormed at the innocent artist who for a time bore the upbraiding and threatenings and then, fearing to lose his life, ran away. At the same time Mrs. McDonald disappeared. Jim said they had eloped. He was wild with excitement. He advertised far and wide for her, offered rewards and went to New York in search of her. But he did not go near the New York police.

Apparently heartbroken, he returned to the territory. But he was being shadowed. Among other long country tours he made one to the hut of "Six Killer," a noted Indian outlaw. When he had left the hut "Six Killer" was placed under arrest. He was scared into telling the purpose of McDonald's visit.

Allie McDonald was there, a prisoner under a hut in a cave, and "Six Killer" was being paid $500 a year to keep her there till death. She had lost all reckoning of time and had abandoned hope of ever being rescued. To her the months of her imprisonment had seemed years. Her health had suffered as much through her hopelessness and despair as through confinement, unwholesome food, bad treatment and her damp prison. It was with the utmost difficulty that she was able to make her way back to Tahlequah with the detective, but freedom gave her renewed courage and nerved her for the effort.

After she reached Tahlequah, Mrs. McDonald was kept in her room for several days, so that she might be able to recuperate and recover her strength of body and mind. One day she escaped. She had not gone far when she met her husband on the street, and, without a moment's hesitation, shot him dead. It was the vengeance of the bride of the Cherokee.

A ROLLER BOAT.

Strange Craft Which the Inventor Expects May Revolutionize Shipping.

The picture shows F. A. Knapp's roller boat, which the inventor expects will revolutionize shipping. It was photographed by W. S. McKowan, as she lay off Marsi's point, two miles west of Bowmanville, Ont.

KNAPP'S ROLLER BOAT.

The Fijis.

Fifty years ago there was not a Christian on the Fiji Islands; now there is not a heathen.

It's a good thing for humanity that we are not compelled to follow the advice given us.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

Secular.—Let us not forget, friends, that all departments of human activity are sacred. Let us drop that word secular in this consideration.—Rev. George W. Stone, Unitarian, Kansas City, Mo.

Immorality.—Belief in immorality is the instinct of the human race. It is demanded alike by the analogies of nature and the logic of all true philosophy.—Bishop Doane, Episcopalian, Albany, N. Y.

Life.—Life is still real and earnest. New responsibilities announce themselves. Beyond the material and visible this mortal puts on immortality.—Rev. H. M. Booth, Presbyterian, Auburn, N. Y.

Man.—Man does not grow old; it is the body which grows old. First it was the man's instrument of development, then of usefulness; finally it becomes a hindrance.—Rev. Lyman Abbott, Evolutionist, New York.

Ethical Causes.—I make the sweeping assertion that it is the motive, the incentive—which is desire—back of the thought or the act that creates ethical causes.—T. B. Wilson, Theosophite, Kansas City, Mo.

Scientific Discoveries.—All scientific discoveries are based, first, on faith in the verdict of the bodily senses; secondly, faith in the intellectual integrity of the human mind.—Rev. S. R. Calthrop, Syracuse, New York.

Revelation of God.—The revelation of God as we have it in the Bible should help us to see God everywhere—in the world of nature and in the world of human life.—Rev. W. A. Wasson, Episcopalian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Life and Literature.—The life and literature of the people are dominated more and more by the teachings of popular books of the year.—Rev. J. H. O. Jesus, as demonstrated by the most Smith, Christian Church, Chicago, Ill.

The Average Alderman.—We foolishly elect our aldermen on a platform of great national issues, silver or gold, imperialism or colonial expansion. And yet what does the average alderman know of these things?—Rev. Dr. Hirsch, Hebrew, Chicago, Ill.

The Spirit of God.—The spirit is in you for life; the spirit is upon you for service. It is not enough to have the spirit of God in us for life—you must have the spirit of God upon you for service.—Rev. John E. Carson, Presbyterian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Human Existence. — Human existence has a purpose. A mighty purpose is being fulfilled thereby. God is to be made manifest. This is the aim and end of human existence, the destiny of the human soul.—Mrs. Gestefeld, Christian Scientist, Chicago, Ill.

The Betterment of the Race.—I might go through every phase of society and business life and it would show that Christian men have got to put their heads together for the betterment of the race.—Rev. William S. Rainsford, Episcopalian, New York City.

Brute Force and Spirit Power.—If Jesus had gone armed it would have been a confession on his part that the brute force of the visible world is more than a match for the spirit power of the invisible world.—Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, Presbyterian, New York City.

Abundant Life. — Christ not only comes that men may have life, but that they may have it more abundantly; he makes their life so large and full that they know it does not end with the physical accident of death.—Rev. Edwin E. Hale, Unitarian, Boston, Mass.

A Personal Question.—The greater men's trust in God, the greater their trust in their fellow-men, and the more trustworthy will all men become. Thus the national question is essentially a personal question. — Rev. T. Jefferson Danner, Episcopalian, Pittsburg, Pa.

The Proven Fact.—With the proven fact of the great demonstration—the resurrection of our Lord from the dead—comes an assurance of immortality which enables us to declare: "We know that we have a building of God."—Rev. Edwin L. Powell, First Christian Church, Louisville, Ky.

Many Men.—Many men acquit themselves splendidly on public occasions, rise to great heights of eloquence and power when in view of other men, who are mean and petulant and critical and overbearing and difficult to live with in private life—Rev. George L. Perrin, Universalist, Boston, Mass.

Immortality.—The sense of immortality is as innate as is the sense of cause and effect out of which science rises to higher and higher peaks of knowledge; innate as is the consciousness of the existence of a supreme being, bare of which no tribe has yet been met with.—Rev. M. Jastrow, Hebrew, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Law of Progress. — More and more settled is the belief that the law of progress is the rule of life beyond; that in a closer fellowship with God our being will expand like buds in the sunshine; that exalted searchings shall be stimulated in order to be satisfied.—Professor George W. Gilmore, Unitarian, Bangor, Me.

The Way of Duty.—This is the way of duty and of opportunity and the true road to strength. Service for others makes a life divine, a strong Christ-like example we may always cultivate and reflect, showing forth the image and praise of him who hath called us out of darkness into his marvelous light.—Rev. Benjamin F. Fritz, United Brethren, Columbus, O.

Strange Tribes in Asia.

There are strange people who inhabit the valley of the Branmaptura, the largest tea-producing tract in India. This territory is bounded on the north by a range upon range of mountains, starting with hills, which rise to a few hundred feet above the level of the plains, and culminating in the snowy peaks of the Himalayas. In these hills, between Thibet and British territory, live a number of independent tribes of Mongolian origin, who, secure in their rocky fastnesses, owe no allegiance to any civilized power.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....JULY 27, 1899.

Meese Matrimonial Reunion.

In this age of conventions and reunions, no organization can boast of one so unique, novel and popular throughout our broad domain as the Meese Matrimonial Association meeting, by which its originator, Rev. W. L. Meese, has become famous throughout the nation. The past three reunions have been heralded by hundreds of publications from sea to sea and from our northern lakes to the gulf on the south. Every Metropolitan paper throughout the land has devoted columns to editorials and descriptions thereof; while the portrait of Rev. Meese is familiar in every hamlet.

Since three years ago, when Mr. Meese first suggested the idea of the reunion, he has been simply snowed under with enthusiastic replies "from hearts which he has made happy" and was wonderfully surprised to find to what ends of the earth his reputation as "the marrying parson" has extended Wherever his name has gone forth, coupled therewith have been the names of Auburn and DeKalb county; so that the success of the meetings is no longer confined to the organization of those couples whose hearts were made to beat in unison as they were started down one common pathway through life with the benediction of their now famous parson, but every citizen of DeKalb county and of Auburn especially should feel a deep responsibility in keeping up the organization and making its meetings a success.

This year there will be no Auburn carnival, and neighboring towns have taken special care that no counter attractions shall mar the success of the now famous association as they meet in their fourth annual reunion in the beautiful grove just east of Auburn. Stands, seats and tables will be arranged for the thousands who will attend, and a flowing well in the grove will refresh both man and beast. The reunion will last two days, August 15 and 16.

The committee has arranged for a number of prominent speakers for both days, and especially for the evening of the 15th, which will be interspersed with music, both vocal and instrumental. Prominent daily papers in all the large cities are arranging to have their special correspondents present. Every citizen of DeKalb county should feel a deep interest in the coming reunion and should make such preparations as will render the event worthy of special note, as the reporters who will be here will do us good by their reference to our county and town. All are invited, and every person who can should be present at least one if not both days of the original and only matrimonial reunion of the world.

$50 for One Bottle of Medicine.

This is to certify that my wife was for years afflicted with asthma, and was so far gone that several physicians decided that her case must terminate in consumption. I was induced to try a bottle of Dr. Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup. To our great satisfaction it gave almost immediate relief, and two bottles completely cured her. She is now well and healthy, but I would not be without the medicine if it cost $50 a bottle.

WM. H FARRIS,
Chairman Board Township of Wilton, Monroe Co., Wis.
Davenport, the druggist.

SEDAN.

—William Casselman and wife made a trip to Kendallville yesterday. They took the morning train for that place.

Mr. W. H. McGiffin and family and Mr. R. H. Sherlock and family were in this place today the guests of S. W. Guthrie and wife.

Mr. Ott Wise of Corunna and Miss Tillie Freeborn of this place were united in the holy bonds of wedlock today. We wish them success and happiness in their voyage on the sea of matrimony.

O. L. Wheaton and wife attended the wedding today of Mr. Wise and Miss Freeborn. Also Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Hine.

—Mr. J. W. Bateman and wife will visit friends in New York state for a couple of weeks.

The Richland township Sunday school picnic will be held in the beautiful grove of Mr. Jacob Gravins, Aug. 19.

Quite a number of farmers of this vicinity took advantage of the late rains and did their plowing for wheat.

Henry Schuster has his barn very nicely painted. Ed. Whirley did the job. Ed. is a first-class painter.

Hoddy Hine starts for Oregon this week.

Miss Edna Reynolds spent last week visiting friends in Kendallville.

The following is taken from the Pike's Peak Daily News of July 25: "The following hardy mountain climbers arrived on the summit of Pike's Peak today, a feat that not everyone can accomplish: M. P. Snyder and M. G. Brown of Denver, Colorado, and Edward J. Dellenbach of Logan, Kansas." Mr. Dellenbach is a brother of Mrs. S. W. Guthrie of this place, and a DeKalb county boy. The DeKalb county boy is bound to get at the top if he does have to go eighteen miles around to get 14,147 feet high.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

is easily cured by the use of Beggs' Diarrhœa Balsam; it is safe and sure. H. B. McCord's drug store.

At the Court House

You who remember the clean new carpets so lately furnished, and the well cared-for furniture and belongings of court room, should see it now. In fact the whole temple of justice is a sight to behold and it is fortunate that "Justice is blind." Dirt and rubbish everywhere. New paint on the woodwork. Old paper and broken plaster strewed everywhere. In the court room big trestles reach nearly to the high ceiling, and fill all the room. Half the "bar" or railing that separates the attorneys from the audience is taken out of the way. Big sheets of old wall paper cover and in part, protect, the clerk's desk, and everywhere there is more noise and confusion than forty bailiffs could control. In the outer hall, around the tower stairway column, are other big trestles, ready for the plasterers to replace the ceiling they have finished tearing off. Oh, yes! Our court room is a sight and the entire building is not as inviting as it will be a couple of weeks hence. It will be all right for next term of court.

G. A. R. at Waterloo

Last evening, nine comrades of the Auburn G. A. R. post filled Johnston's three seated surry drawn by John Olinger's big team, and visited the post at Waterloo. They were received with ceremony and hospitably entertained. Singing and speaking closely occupied the time and sentiments based on common experiences were feelingly expressed and given hearty assent.

At close of the post, the visitors were escorted to a parlor where lemonade unlimited and delicious ice cream were provided by the generous comrades of Waterloo, and a most pleasant occasion happily terminated.

Those from Auburn were comrades Davidson, Hallam, Olinger, Wolf, Walter, Green, McIntosh, Rainier and Wilson.

Occasions like these go far to revive the old-time war association, and there is no order which has such stirring memories, and no society where fraternal feelings are more spontaneous and deep-seated.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Disrovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from the first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at H. B. McCord's Drug Store. Only 50 cents and $1.00, every bottle guaranteed

CONCORD.

Mr. Tom Stoy and Mr. and Mrs. David Cruse spent Sunday with Ira Bone and wife.

Will Farmer and wife spent Sunday with her father' family, Mr. and Mrs. Layman.

Farmers are getting along with their work in spite of the hot weather.

Martha George was at Auburn Tuesday on business.

Sam. Stafford and wife spent Saturday eve at her brother's, Cal Saylor's, in Allen county.

Pretty small people who can't go to a picnic without stealing the baby clothes from a neighbor.

GET YOUR EYES OPEN.

You may, for years, have been troubled with your stomach. Many articles of food eaten by you may cause distress for hours after eating, a fullness, etc. This is suggestive of dyspepsia and sooner or later, unless you do something to correct the evil, you will find yourself a confirmed dyspeptic. A SMALL DOSE OF DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN taken after each meal will give you greater relief than anything you can get.

Dental Diplomas.

The Belgian government recognizes diplomas for the dental departments of Harvard University, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Michigan and Vanderbilt University.

Liquor License.

Notice is hereby given to the citizens of the town of Ashley and Smithfield township, DeKalb county, Indiana, that the undersigned, a male inhabitant of said town and township over the age of twenty-one years, will make application to the board of commissioners of said county at their next regular session in September, 1899, for a license to sell spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in quantities less than a quart at a time with privilege of allowing the same to be drank on the premises where sold, the same to be sold in the front room on the ground floor of a two-story frame building, situated on lot numbered three (3) in block numbered twenty-one (21) in the originrl plat of the town of Ashley, in said DeKalb county, Indiana, said room being twenty (20) feet wide and thirty-four (34) feet long, and fronting on State street.

I also desire to sell cigars in the same room.

SHERMAN KNISELY.

MICA AXLE GREASE

It's easy to haul a big load up a big hill if you grease the wagon wheels with

MICA Axle Grease

Get a box and learn why it's the best grease ever put on an axle. Sold everywhere. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

Trip to Kansas.

OXFORD, KAN., July 21, 1899.

We left North English, Iowa, on the night of the tenth of July and reached Kansas City at 9 a. m. on the eleventh. The route across southern Iowa and Missouri, betokens the extreme wet weather that had preceded. The wheat that could be seen, was short, very weedy and much of it had not been harvested. The corn varied in height from a few inches to that of full growth but vast areas on low lands had been drowned out. We left Kansas City for Atchison at 10 a. m., over the Missouri-Pacific. The road follows the south bank of the Missouri river, and runs very close to its muddy current. The river was very high, and in many places but a very few feet, intervened between the rails and the water. We reached Atchison without incident, and were soon enjoying a visit with our friends. Atchison covers a very hilly body of land on the branch of the Missouri, and seems to have passed its best period. The streets are sadly neglected and in many places overgrown with weeds. The sidewalks are horrible, worse than Butler's by-streets. Long strands of wire are stretched along the walk at either side and fastened to the boards with staples to prevent them from slipping endwise, and in many places great sections are missing, and the footman has to resort to the street. The place has some good buildings. The Soldiers Orphan's Home is very fine; some good churches and a good postoffice building and good school houses. Negroes are in evidence every where.

Wednesday we drove southwest of the city about fifteen miles to the little town of Effingham. The roads were very bad from recent rains and some places even dangerous. The outlook for corn seemed fairly good, but wheat seemed poor. This town has the county high school buildings which are creditable indeed. Failing to find the friends we sought, we returned to the city. Friday we left for the south, reaching Topeka at 10:30. The effects of wet weather were still apparent in uncultivated corn and general neglect of farm work. We left Topeka for the south at 12:05, rain falling during the greater part of the afternoon, water covering corn fields generally. The corn varying in height from a foot to seven or eight feet. An occasional wheat field was to be seen, some places in shock, others partly cut, and others wholly choked out by sundowers and weeds. We reached Newton about 5 p. m. This place showed marked signs of improvements, many new structures being erected. We reached Wichita at about 6 p. m. Some improvements were in progress here. A vast change since '74, when prairie dogs could be seen from the depot. From Wichita south the effects of the wet weather was even more apparent Large areas of wheat were unharvested, and the immense growth of sunflowers were several feet higher than the wheat. Other fields had been cut, and the shocks stood rotting in the tall weeds. We reached Winfield about 8 p. m. This town is situated on the Walnut river, and is considerable of a railroad center, and was largely under water a short time ago. From this place we took a freight train to the end of our journey, Oxford, crossing the state from Atchison in daylight for the first time. Oxford is situated on the Arkansas river, which has been very high all spring, and has destroyed nearly all crops on its bottoms. The people here are generally land poor, and waste enough to make others comfortable. Every thing is done in a sort of wholesale manner. They plow the ground and plant the corn at the same time, cut and bind it in small sheaves with a machine. Husk by hand and shell with a machine, 1,200 to 2,000 bushels of corn a day. Wheat is cut with a header, that is propelled with six horses, with three extra teams to haul and stack the grain cutting forty acres a day. Threshing is done with a 9,500 separator, propelled with a twenty-five horse power traction engine, which with seven teams of horses and seventeen men thresh and weigh out from 1,500 to 2,000 bushels wheat a day, at from seven to nine cents per bushel, the thresher furnishing all help and teams except those used in hauling grain from the machine boarding themselves in a boarding car car that they carry from place to place. No grain is sacked, but hauled in wagon beds like corn in the ear. The wheat this year is yielding from five to twenty bushels per acre. The quality is very poor, will test about 50 pounds to the bushel. The most of the farmers have from fifty to three hundred acres of wheat, but it will not much more than pay for cutting and threshing. Apples are rather plenty, but no peaches. There is not much small fruit cultivated. There is a wild fruit known as "sand plum," that grows in great abundance on small bushes but a few feet high on the poorest, sandiest land. Many of the people are gathering these, and selling them in the towns. They are very good when taken ripe from the bushes, but extremely sour when cooked. Weeds grow luxuriously everywhere, and choke out everything else. The weeds when neglected grow up to a height of eight or ten feet in the public roads and render travel difficult. The tops of the tall sunflowers meeting over the top of the buggy and the stubble of the center cracking under the buggy as we pass along.

The corn on the high land is excellent, and grass seems to be a good crop. We left Oxford, homeward bound on the 21st, over the Missouri-Pacific and ran eastward, over 200 miles to Navada, Mo. This section is almost mountainous. Very high hills are seen on every hand, and no end to stone cropping out of every hillside, with but little improvement in growing crops. A heavy rainfall all afternoon, and in many places water covered the ground for long distances. We reached Kansas City on the morning of the 22nd, and North English, Iowa, on the same day, and enjoyed a much needed rest over Sunday. J. A. C.

THE A. O. U. W.

AUBURN, July 25, 1899.

A very pleasant and impressive instalation ceremony was held at Lodge No. 12, Ancient Order of United Workmen last Wednesday evening, July 19, when the following officers were duly installed for the present term by Grand Overseer R. C. Baxter:

E. T. Cochran, Master Workman
A. J. Harris, Foreman
F. D. Smith, Overseer
T. C. Ford, Financier
Charles Raut, Receiver
Wm. Heyler, Recorder
T. E. Carper, Guide
C. O. Tenney, Inside Watchman
Harpster Walter, Outside Watchman

At the close of the installation ceremonies, a pleasant surprise was perpetrated on the brethren by Bros. A. B. Walsworth, S. M. Brandon and others bringing in a tub of nice ice cream and some large home-made cakes, which the brothers proceeded to put out of sight in short order, looking so pleasant that it was evident they were glad to be present. This was followed by remarks from several of the brothers for the good of the order, and a unanimous vote of thanks to those who furnished these refreshments. Lodge No. 12 was in May, 1887, with twenty charter members, of whom but four retain their membership at this time. During these years many changes have occurred, and like all orders, many have become members only to be careless and indifferent and be suspended for non-payment of dues in a short time, thus receiving no benefits. There have been six losses by death and the beneficiaries were all paid promptly and in full of what their certificates called for, and in every case it proved one of the greatest blessings that could have fallen to the bereft families, placing them above want and in some cases saving the home.

With these facts before us it would seem the duty of every man to thus provide for his loved ones against every emergency, for we do not know the day nor the hour that we may be cut down.

Some of the losses referred to above have been very sudden and unexpected and the only safe way is to prepare at once while you are in good health. Someone says, "I cannot afford it!" But think a moment, it costs but a small amount each month, you do not have to pay a year at a time, and if you should live and pay for thirty years after joining, you would only pay in a little more than half what your beneficiaries would draw at your death.

I do not seek to belittle any other Beneficiary Association or order, but the point I wish to make, is that it is the duty of every man to provide as best he can for his loved ones in case he was taken from them, and I am very sure that one of the cheapest and safest ways to do this is to secure a certificate in The Ancient Order of United Workmen, and keep it in force.

M. B. WILLIS, P. M. W.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Her Silence Explained

A young lady from the country was suing her ex-sweetheart for breach of promise and the lawyers were, as usual, making all sorts of inquisitive inquiries

"You say," remarked one, "that the defendant frequently sat very near to you?"

"Yes sir," was the reply with a hectic flush.

"Close enough so one cheer was all the settin' room we needed."

"And you say he put his arm around you?"

'No I didn't."

"What did you say, then?"

"I said he put both arms around me."

"Then what?"

"He hugged me."

"Hugged you?"

"Yes, he did; so hard that I come purty near hollering out."

"Why didn't you holler?"

"Cause."

"That's no reason. Be explicit, please. Because why?"

"'Cause I was afeered he'd stop."—Ex

—Best of accommodations on the Lake Shore excursion to Rome City Saturday. Two coaches are to be left at Auburn, Friday, and when the train from the north reaches Waterloo, its engine will come down to Auburn and take them up to Waterloo. On the return, the two coaches will be cut off at Waterloo and brought to Auburn. So there will be no delay. Put a card on your lunch basket or bicycle and we will take them free.

House and Lot for Sale.

One lot on south side of east Seventh street with small building on premises, formerly used for paint shop. Inquire of George Braun at Hebel's meat market, Auburn, Ind.

LIVERITA

THE UP-TO-DATE LITTLE LIVER PILL

CURES Biliousness, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Sick-Headache and Liver Complaint.

SUGAR COATED.

40 PILLS LIVERITA 10 CENTS

100 PILLS 25 CTS.

Sold by all druggists or sent by mail. Nervita Medical Co., Chicago

Davenport, The Druggist,

COUNTY AUDITOR'S REPORT.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA.

GENTLEMEN:—

The undersigned, Auditor of DeKalb County, presents the following statement of Receipts and Expenditures for the year ending June, 1899.

Balance June 1898	Rec'd From June 1898 to June 1899	Total Received June 1899	FUNDS.	Disbursed To June 1899	Balance June 1899	Overdrawn
	13171 70	13171 70	State Taxes	13171 70
	10426 02	10426 02	State Tuition	10426 02
8977 51	71733 40	80710 91	County Revenue	54454 73	26256 18
1040 91	1397 00	2437 91	Congressional School Fund Principal	1140 00	1297 91
1164 89	6600 50	7764 89	Common School Fund Principal	6195 00	1569 89
9163 15	26117 09	35280 24	School Revenue	26012 49	9267 75
173 11	2311 34	2484 45	Congressional School Fund Interest	1061 04	1423 41
2338 97	6190 33	8529 30	Common School Fund Interest	5483 29	3046 01
	19689 97	19689 97	Tuition Fund	19689 97
	20829 78	20829 78	Special School Fund	20829 78
	6435 79	6435 79	Township Fund	6435 79
	23955 56	23955 56	Road Fund	23955 56
	234 05	234 05	Dog Fund	234 05
30 00	5 00	35 00	Agricultural Fund		35 00
8 00	194 00	202 00	C.C. Docket Fees	196 00	6 00
28 51	1001 41	1029 92	Redemption of Land	1006 94	22 98
2200 00	3100 00	5300 00	Liquor License	3953 70	1346 30
	1907 12	1907 12	Bond Sinking Fund	1907 12
	435 11	435 11	Gravel Road Fund	102 21	332 90
246 05	200 72	446 77	Permanent Endowment Fund Principal	240 00	206 77
	14 40	14 40	Permanent Endowment Fund Interest	20 78		6 38
	2988 16	2988 16	Special Road	2988 16
	10686 61	10686 61	Water Works and Electric Lights	10686 61
	201 32	201 32	Special Dog	201 32
843 38	1671 73	2515 11	Ditch	1471 68	1043 43
416 61	3686 29	4102 90	Clerk's Fund	3000 00	1102 90
	1612 93	1612 93	Sheriff's Fund—H. P. Stroh	1428 22	184 71
	1007 65	1007 65	Sheriff's Fund—J. H. Hathaway	933 92	73 73
480 25	2343 70	2823 95	Recorder's Fund	1875 00	948 95
263 80	283 00	546 80	Auditor's Fund		546 80
	1632 90	1632 90	County Dog Fund	1632 90
	3407 37	3407 37	Poor Fund	3407 37
	8164 78	8164 78	Corporation Fund	8164 78
27374 64	253636 73	281011 37	TOTAL	232306 13	48711 62 Balance in Treasury.	6 38

Respectfully Submitted,
FRANK P. SEILER, AUDITOR.

Examined and approved this 6th day of July, 1899.

E. R. SHOEMAKER,
ISAAC GUNSENHOUSER,
ALLEN SHULTZ,
} Board of Commissioners of DeKalb county.

The Beatinest Swindle

(Indianapolis Sun)

The "beatenist" swindle of all of 'em is now being worked in the northern part of the state. A man in the garb of a minister calls at the home of a well-to-do farmer, wins the hearts of the family, and reluctantly accepts a hard-pressed invitation to remain over night. In the evening, just as the preacher is finishing prayer, a knock is heard at the door, and a young man, with an apparently blushing bride on his arm, asks if Brother So-and so is there. The couple is then ushered in, and through the hospitality of the farmer. the knot is tied at once. The farmer is then asked to sign the marriage certificate, simply as a witness Later the farmer discovers that he has signed a note.

More Than All Others.

ROME CITY, Ind.

Dr. C. D. Warner, Coldwater, Mich.

Dear Sir:—It gives me great pleasure in recommending your White Wine of Tar Syrup to the public as an excellent cough cure. I have sold over a gross within a short time and I always warrant a cure and have never had a bottle returned. I sell more of your White Wine of Tar Syrup than all other cough remedies I keep in stock. I sold one dozen bottles to one of my customers.

Respectfully yours,
J. P. CHAPMAN.
Davenport, the druggist.

CEDAR.

Fred Davis of Tipton, Ind., is visiting friends here.

W. H. Holeman, formerly of this place, but now at Corunna, is critically ill with dropsy we understand.

Messrs. Haag and Smith made a business trip to Fort Wayne last Saturday.

John Stonestreet sold his mule team last week and will hereafter drive a horse team.

Nicholas Lung and family Sundayed with W. H. Holeman's folks near Corunna.

Billy Zern rides one of the latest styles in bicycles.

Fred Smith and wife rejoice at the arrival of another grandson.

Several Bryan advocates at this place expect to go to Rome City on Saturday of this week.

The thermometer registered 100 in the shade here on Monday of this week

Postmaster Slentz made a business trip to Auburn last Saturday.

NOTICE.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on two 25 cent bottles or boxes of Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, if it fails to cure constipation, billiousness, sick-headache, jaundice, loss of appetite, sour stomach, dyspepsia, liver complaint, or any of the diseases for which it is recommended. It is highly recommended as a spring tonic and blood purifier. Sold liquid in bottles, and tablets in boxes. Price 25 cents for either. One package of either guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. E. M. FISCHLER, F. E. DAVENPORT, HOWARD MCCORD.

Cider Mill

We will start up our cider mill in Stametstown, Auburn, August 9 and run on Wedneeday and Thursday of each week till further notice.

RUHL & BAKER.

Give It a Trial.

It will surprise you. It will restore the life and beauty to your hair, stops dandruff and the hair from falling out. Beggs' Hair renewer. H. B. McCord's.

D. A. Hodge,

..The..

Jeweler

Everything in his line and at the lowest, living prices.

Get your watches, clocks and jewelry repaired and regulated by a skilled man.

Hodge,

THE JEWELER

Junk Wanted

Please save your money. Don't forget to bring all your junk to H. Greenberg, three blocks north of M. E. church in Auburn, who pays for rags, rubber, copper, brass, zinc, lead, scrap iron and all kinds of hides and furs. Also buys and sells second-hand material, stoves and furnaces, etc. Persons having second-hand material to buy or sell, it will be to their interest to see H. Greenberg.

Best Cash Prices

WANTED!

We will pay $2.00 per cord CASH for all the good live elm bolts, 10 inches and over in diameter, 32 inches long, delivered on our yard in Auburn.

Greenler Co.

He Knew Not The Word

"Did your father bring you?" asked a teacher in a West Virginia mountain Sunday-school of a small new pupil."

"Me what?"
"Your father."
"Nome."
"Did you come alone?"
"Nome"
"Who came with you?"
"Me pap"—Harpers Bazar.

MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

They overcome Weakness, Irregularity and omissions, increase vigor and banish "pains of menstruation." They are "Life Savers" to girls at womanhood, aiding development of organs and body. No known remedy for women equals them. Cannot do harm—life becomes a pleasure. $1 per box by mail. Sold by druggists. MOTT CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

BINDER TWINE

Our famous BLUE LABEL BRAND. It's the best in the world. Prices will surprise you. We deliver from Chicago, Omaha or St. Paul, as desired. Write for prices and samples.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO

IDEAL MUSIC,

"Sweet as the angel Israfil's,
When every leaf on Eden's tree
Was trembling to his minstrelsy."

can be produced from an EBERSOLE PIANO. The Ebersole possesses a tone that no other maker has been able to imitate—being full and deep, yet with that clear singing quality which stamps it the peer of all upright pianos for homes of culture and refinement.

Frank B. Long,

119 Calhoun-St. cor Washington,

Fort Wayne, Ind.

Mott's Nerverine Pills

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. $1.00 per box by mail; 6 boxes for $5.00. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Prop's, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Would You Enjoy a Day's Outing at an Ideal Pleasure Resort? - - - - ? ?

....Attend The....

ODD FELLOWS' PIC-NIC

—AT—

Baw Beese Park,

Near Hillsdale, Mich., on

Thurs. Aug. 3rd

A Carnival of Fun.

A complete and varied program, consisting in part of Daylight fireworks. balloon ascention and parachute drop; Cakewalk; dancing in spacious pavilion; music by bands; 35-minute address by the eloquent speaker, Col O A James, of Mich; spicy selections by that prince of rostrum entertainers, B B Schermerhorn; exhibition drill by Lady Colfax Lodge D. of R., of Hudson; male quartets; mixed quartets; solos, vocal and instrumental; impersonations, etc, etc.

Fill Your Baskets. Take Your Wife or Best Girl. Invite Your Friends and go for a Good Time and the Picnic Association will do the rest.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents Dandruff and hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

General Belief and Private Opinion.

It isn't always that you will find e erybody agreeing upon any subject. Every pro has its con, and all medals have a reverse side. On the question as to the best place to buy Dry Goods, however, there is no room for a division. Everybody who knows enough to go in out of the wet, knows that we are far and away the leaders, For fear that some somebody (but lately landed) may not know it, we append.....

Some Very Convincing Arguments

PARASOLS.

To bid the balance of the parasols a hurried good-by we put our hands in our pockets, close our eyes and sacrifice the profits and a goodly sized slice of the cost.

Children's Parasols that were 50c and $1.00. Go now at..... 38 and 49c

Ladies' Parasols they were $1.00. Now..... 58c

$1.50 ones for 98c; $2 00 ones $1.23, and so on through the entire lot.

WASH GOODS.

A few pieces of Scotch Lawns left from our big sale will go at sale price, viz. per yard..... 3c

Organdies that ought to be sold for 10c per yard at least. Will go now at..... 5c

SHIRT WAISTS.

Choice out of a lot of 50c colored waists, most all sizes. At..... 23c

All $1.00 colored waists. Will go now for..... 69c

$1.50 white waists, cool, comfortable garments, trimmed with insertion, while they last..... 75c

White Pique Waists the 75c kind. Now..... 55c

BELTS and BUCKLES.

The stylish fanciful kind are here in considerable numbers. New additions made to this line most every day, you cannot fail being suited, and the prices—they're sure to please.

WRAPPERS.

Stylish comfortable garments in Percale and Lawn. We have them at from ..... 49c up

You can depend on getting the right things at the right prices at this store.

G. W. Lackey,

Auburn, Ind.

PETER KUNTZ, President. Chicago, Ill. W. H. KECKLER, Treasurer Auburn, Ind.

...THE...

Auburn Lumber Co.

CENTRAL 'PHONE 12.

We sell all kinds of Lumber for Building Purposes, Make Door and Window Frames to Order. We can Sell you Doors and Windows at Money Saving Prices.

Headquarters For

Lime, Bulk Lime

Wood Burnt bulk Lime

The Genuine Article.

We can save you money in Price, Quality and Weight Come and see us and examine our LIME, and you will be convinced. We also carry Cement, Plastering Hair, Plaster Paris, etc. Yours Truly,

AUBURN LUMBER CO.

Near Wabash Depot, Auburn, Ind.

It Pays to Paint.

There is nothing that adds to the selling value or the renting value of a house like good paint—there is nothing that makes home more home-like than good paint.

It pays to paint. The better the paint, the better it pays.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT

pays in the beginning because it goes so far—pays in the end because it lasts so long, and looks so well, as long as it lasts. There is no paint like it for beauty and durability, for economy and satisfaction.

For Sale By

CULBERTSON & BOLAND.

Monday's Daily.

—Will Wolf is free. He got out this afternoon on bail.

—Ladies' $4 00 tan shoes for $2 00 this week at Shull's shoe store. tf.

—Mr. Marvin south of town has a relative from Muncie visiting them.

—Don't forget the date Aug. 3d of Oddfellows picnic at Baw Beese Park.

—Charley Foltz won in the wrestling match at Columbia City, Friday evening.

—Miss Mary Ashley and Miss Carrie Beuret spent Sunday with friends at Avilla.

—Mrs. Barton of Coesse was in town yesterday, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ida Eberly.

—We publish the auditor's annual report in this issue. It will be found interesting.

—NOW READY FOR RENT:—New seven room residence, one square from court house. J. C. LOCHNER.

—Drilling for oil near Osgood, Ind., the drill cut through sound timber at a depth of over fifty feet.

—The report is that apples will be very abundant this year in many orchards, and of fair quality.

—Checks are being sent out to the various captains to pay the boys of the 157th for the clothing they paid for.

—Almost every Sunday some of the excursionists from Chicago to St. Joe, Michigan, get married at the latter place.

—Elihu Root an attorney of New York City, has been made secretary of war in place of Alger, who has re signed.

—The old M E. college at the west side of Fort Wayne is to be torn down this week. It was organized as a school as early as 1846.

—No humbug. Shull's sale of women's fine shoes, $3.00 and $4 00 shoes for $2.00 at Shull's this week. No old styles, all new and up-to-date. tf.

—The North Indiana Conference Singers were at the big meeting at Indianapolis last week, and did some of their finest singing in the big tent.

—A carpenter shop belonging to the Wabash railroad started in life at Peru and, after being moved to Ft. Wayne, Lafayette and Andrews, now returns to its starting point.

—Chicago people often see Michigan City forty miles away when the conditions of the air are right for it. It is a mirage and one lasted two hours on Friday of last week.

—It will pay Auburn and the cause of decency and humanity to give such fellows as the one who abused his horse Saturday, a good dose of punishment. Mild measures have not amounted to much.

—A man was drowned in Lake Wawawsee Saturday forenoon. He was swimming in the lake about a mile east of Vawter Park when he was seized with a cramp and sank. His home was in Chicago.

—Auditor Sel'er reached home Saturday from his trip to Indianapolis. He not only met with the State Board of Review, but with the big Epworth League Convention. The convention was an immense affair.

—Study the good points in the advertisement of J. L. Davis of the Pioneer Hardware store. He has not had space in the Old Reliable COURIER for some time. But he is after big business now and can see how to get it.

—The two bunco men who have been doing priests for small sums of money in the northern part of the state, run up against a reverend in Lafayette who was loaded for them, and the two are now where the scripture is seldom read.

—A crowd of boys in Lafayette have kept up a continuous celebration since July 4. Where the fireworks came from was a mystery until a druggist who had stored away a heavy stock of left over goods, looked into his wareroom.

—Miss Minnie Murray, the "Lady in White," who made such a dramatic spectacle, cheering for Gov. Boies at the last national democratic convention has sold her newspaper, the Reporter, at Nashua, Iowa, and married a man named Sternberger.

—There was a large attendance at the Anti Saloon League meeting at Waterloo last night. Isaac Speer is the president of the organization. Rev's Dingel, Smith and Klotz, assisted in the services. The address of the evening was by Mrs. Ehlers.

—That 50-foot vein of rock salt struck while boring for oil near Terre Haute is not as soft a snap as it might be. It is over 1000 feet from the surface. When they bored the well on the public square in Fort Wayne, they found a nice stratum of marble over 2,000 feet down.

—Uncle John Pepple was in town this forenoon. He is still nursing a pretty sore arm the result of that fall while painting on his house, a week or so ago. One of the bones of the left forearm was broken near the wrist and the other bone put out of joint. But he is getting along very well.

—J. B. Forner, who was an officer from Fort Wayne, in the 157th in the Spanish war has received a commission of first lieutenant in one of the new volunteer regiments now being raised for service in the Philippines. He was here recently as reporter in the cases against the Fort Wayne City railway company.

—Wm. S. Hammond, at English Ind, has a contraction of the throat so he can take no food and may die. He ought to go to the Emergency hospital at Detroit, where we once saw a man similarly afflicted, for whom they had prepared a tube, inserted it in his stomach and fed him through it. It was much better than starving.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Chris Ashelman went to Toledo today to visit his daughter.

—Day light fireworks at Oddfellows picnic at Baw Beese Park Aug. 3d.

—Wm. H. Peak the original Swiss Bell Ringer died last week at his home in Illinois.

—Harry Trentman received a big lot of Ladies Home Journals of the August issue today.

—Geo. T. Weeks of the Edon Independent was here today, briefly, on some business matters.

—A railroad tunnel is to be constructed through Lookout Mountain, at a cost of $1,000,000, it is said.

—The Lake Shore road is said to be handling more freight between Chicago and Buffalo than at any time in many years.

—Another Spanish-American war cannon has been set apart for Indiana and will be given to the soldiers' home at Lafayette.

—FOR SALE:—A thorough bred short horn bull calf, four months old. Enquire of A. M. St. Clair, 2½ miles northeast of Auburn. 32

—Major E. H. Fitzgerald of the 157th Indiana volunteers was yesterday appointed to service in the Philippines, with the rank of captain.

—W. H. Pepple from the east part of the township was here today, arranging for a Sunday school picnic to be held at Union Chapel Aug. 12.

—Elkhart people prefer "loud" feet, it seems, for they lately arrested a young man, who was washing his feet on the back porch of a neighbor.

—Excursions will be run from all directions to Rome City next Saturday and a big crowd is expected there on that day to hear Hon. W. J. Bryan.

—To all points in competition where the fare is $2 or more we have free bus and free baggage to the Junction. tf SPROTT & KNAPP, Agency B. & O. Ry.

—Two South Benders indulged in a banana eating contest and the winner devoured thirty-four. He then ate half a musk melon and drank a glass of soda water.

—Charlie Foltz was the winner of the wrestling match at Columbia City Monday night after a hard-fought contest. His opponent secured the first and third falls.

—Attorney James H. Rose went to St Louis today, as he has a case in court there to dispose of. He is having an extensive practice for an attorney of his age and a very successful one.

—A lad in Indianapolis thought it would be fun to set fire to the hair on his woolly dog. So he went among some sheds in the back lot. The sheds all burned easier than the dog's hair.

—The Dawn:—The Francis plum orchard is loaded with fruit this year, and a kind of fruit that every one will want. The fruit is not yet ripe but there will be enough to supply the local market.

—The Thirtieth Indiana regiment will hold its annual reunion at Millersburg about the middle of September, and an effort is being made to have the Thirty-fifth and Seventy-fourth come together at the same time.

—For the Odd Fellows picnic to be held at Baw Beese Park, Aug. 3, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry., will sell excursion tickets at very low rates. Special train will leave Auburn at 7:30 a. m. See small bills. Ask ticket agents.

—Foltz of Garrett and Velliquette of Michigan had another wrestling match at Columbia City last night, but so far we have not learned the result. The wrestling craze seems to have struck Columbia City pretty hard, judging from the frequency of the contests.

—Portland had a street fair which is pronounced a great success. Twenty-two fakirs worked the visitors for all they were worth and at the close of the fair the confidence men were all arrested and had the fruits of their labor taken away by the local officers.

—A pleasant party was held at the home of Dr. Ford on North Main street last evening in honor of the birthday of the doctor's grandaughter, Miss Mary Cochran. A number of young people were present and the affair was one of great pleasure for all concerned.

—In reply to questions sent by the W. R. C. of Auburn, the superintendent of the Home of soldier's widows, writes, that any widow of an honorably discharged soldier, is eligible, if she is unable to support herself, and has resided in the state one year. The Home is at Lafayette.

—One branch of the gypsy tribes, known as the "Harrison Gypsies" are gathering for the first time in over twenty years. The queen is 95 years old and has called them to choose her successor. The woman selected will not become queen till the old one dies. Who knows but Gypsy Campbell of Stafford, could get the job for his enterprising wife.

—Mrs. Dr. Collett of St Mary's will be made happy by the ownership of a nice rig, including the fine little roan horse, with buggy and harness, presented her by her father. Hayden Wheelock started to drive through with the rig this afternoon, going via Fort Wayne and Decatur, and will probably reach St. Mary's some time Thursday, the distance being about ninety miles.

—Friends and relatives of the COURIER family will be pained to learn the death of little Richard Lamson, son of Mrs. Barns' brother, R. D. Lamson. He was visiting at the home of an uncle and was taken with pneumonia and died there. He was an unusually bright and lovable boy, and his loss following the death of his mother a few months ago, is a sad blow to the father. Their home is at Hastings, Neb.

Wednesday's Daily.

—For sale or rent, good residence. Inquire. F. E. ECKHART.

—The Lake Shore train takes you to hear Bryan Saturday July 29.

—Wayne Zonker of Corunna has been granted a patent on a feed trough.

—Jerry Carmer is parking in front of his residence on west Seventh street.

—Ten events in field sports at Oddfellows picnic, Baw Beese Park Aug. 3d.

—A huge knife left by Morgan's raiders was plowed up near Lawrenceburg recently.

—Noah R. Freeman of Winamac was elected 'squire in 1840 and has held the office ever since.

—Do you take in the Oddfellows picnic and Festival at Baw Beese Park—near Hillsdale—Aug. 3d?

—Mrs. Leedy of Fort Wayne is a guest today of Mrs. Dr. Buchtel and will visit her people here.

—There will be a picnic in Hoodlemyer's grove at Union Chapel, August 12. Everybody is invited.

—The excursion train goes north on the Lake Shore at 8:15 a m. Saturday, which is Bryan day at Rome City.

—D. D. Snyder is here from Danville, Ill., looking after business matters and shaking hands with old friends.

—If you want a pair of fine shoes for a little money, call at Shull's shoe store. $3 50 and $4.00 shoes for $2.00.

—Mrs. Jacob Schell, who is a guest in the family of T. C. Ford, is Mrs. Ford's aunt. Her home is at Fort Wayne.

—Dr. J. W. Squires and son H. H. Squires of Churubusco were guests of Wash Askew a few hours yesterday afternoon.

—Kendallville Sun:—Mrs. Brayton Myers and children of Huntington, Ind., are visiting W. P. Myers and family on State street.

—For Sale:—A good second-hand phaeton, in first-class condition, at very reasonable terms.—MRS. JACOB WALBORN, Auburn, Ind.

—FOR SALE:—Two good farm and roadster horses, and one two seated carriage in good condition. For information call at this office.

—Kendallville Sun:—Dr. N. J. Shook has purchased the Will Glatte residence on Mitchell street and will take possession early this fall.

—Delia Richards and Bessie Zimmerman came home last evening after a most enjoyable visit with Mr. Wooton's family at North Manchester.

—Miss Eleanor Hescock of Philadelphia is here a guest in the family of Frank Zimmerman. She will also visit Garrett before she returns home.

—Nate Kirk, the smallpox suspect, is quarantined at the home of his mother near Corunna. He will be released Monday, as it has been a month since he was exposed.

—We are greatly gratified at the many compliments the COURIER is receiving. We expect always to keep it up to a high standard, and hope to improve it day by day.

—The glass factory at Greentown, Ind., has not been shut down for ten years till now that it has been bought up by a trust. This throws out of work three hundred employes.

—Two coaches will be left at the Lake Shore yards here Friday evening for the use of those who want to go to Rome City Saturday morning. Returning Saturday evening Auburn passengers will be brought here from Waterloo without delay.

—Father Juraschek, now of Chesterton, Ind., formerly of Summit, and Father O'Reilly of the Cathedral at Fort Wayne, were guests yesterday of Father Dandurand. The latter returned yesterday and Father Dandurand took the former to Waterloo today on his way home.

—John Scholes of South Dakota and his two sisters, Mrs. Abel and Mrs. Tustison of St. Joe, are here today. They were guests of Joseph Rainier at dinner, and this afternoon were guests of Mrs. Beaber, who is a relative. Mr. Scholes was called to St. Joe by the serious illness of his father, Nelson Scholes.

—George Booth is putting in a part of his time at work, as we would be pleased to see all do who have the misfortune to get a term in jail. He is helping to clear up and level off the dirt on the public square where they are building the new power house. We hope George will keep up good his resolutions so well, that hereafter he will not get into trouble.

—Mr. John M. Buck of Bluffton has bought the property that was the Ober & Broderick stave factory and will at once proceed to erect there a handle factory for making ash handles. It will employ in the beginning from ten to twenty men, and they intend to have it running in sixty days. It will be under the superintendency of John M. Cherry, who will move from Bluffton to Auburn for that purpose. This enterprise will furnish a ready market for grey and white ash timber and those having such to sell will find it to their interest to see Mr. Cherry.

—Warsaw Times:—"E. L. Watson left for Auburn today to confer with the premier aerialist, I. M. Zent, relative to the latter making an ascension in Warsaw with his trained dog some time during the week of the street fair. Watson is an old friend of Balloonist Zent, and if the latter has an open date at that time, Watson may be able to secure him which he does entirely at his own expense." In addition to the above flattering offers have been received by Mr. Zent from Marion and Indianapolis, but his services are in such great demand (at home) that he may not be able to fill the dates.

THE

Right Prices AT THE Right Time

To hold your interest through the mid-summer months, a store must offer you inducements; must pass along to you the fullest values, keeping the fact in view we've centered every effort on the goods adapted to the season; we've turned the current on the items that groove in with your July needs. Making the right prices on the right goods in their season when you need them is one among the inducements we offer that should influence your buying here.

White Bed Spreads, good pattern at 75c. This week..... 55c

White Bed Spreads, good pattern at $1.25. This week..... 85c

White Bed Spreads, the best of goods, were $1.48. This week..... 98c

Simpson Percales in blue stripes and plaids, 8c goods. This week to close at..... 5c

Dimities in stripes, Swiss effect. 15c goods. This week to close at..... 10c

Lawns, Swiss effect in linen and dots, a 15c goods. To close at..... 8 & 9c

Summer Corsets, the best of goods at 75c. To close at..... 48c

Summer Corsets, all sizes. At..... 25c

Ladies's Grey Hose at.... 5c
Ladies' white feet hose at 10c
GRAIN SACKS
Stark "A" sacks at a doz. $2.10
Amoskeag sacks per doz. $1.85

Lion, XXXX, Key coffee at 9c
Arbuckle's coffee at..... 10c
Golden Rio and Arabian high grade coffee at..... 11c
J. T. tobacco per pound.... 35c

WHIPS—a good buggy whip for little money. We have them at 5, 10. 15, 19 and 24c. A good whale bone whip for..... 75c

HAMMOCKS—full length with head rest and spreader at..... 98c

GINGHAMS—our entire stock of ginghams sold at reduced prices.

WASH BOILERS—metalic bottom, better than copper, at..... 85c

One pound canister coffee grinder. As long as they last at..... 39c

Six quart granite tea kettle, regular price 85c. This week at..... 48c

Tin fruit cans at 33c per dozen.

Bazar Store,

Auburn, Indiana.

Shoes to Fit All Needs

All Tastes All Pocketbooks

Even if your purse is a double "A" we can find good shoes, and good-looking and stylish ones to fit you.

We make a specialty of getting the very best shoes it is possible to get, and then making the price.

Quality always comes first here; but the prices are moderate for all that.

BISHOP & BEIDLER,

YOUR SHOEMAKERS.

Summer Comforts!

There is no time in the year that the COMFORTS of the KITCHEN are more highly appreciated than during the months of July and August. We suggest as one of these special comforts,

GASOLINE STOVES

We have a nice line of them which we are offering at special inducements

We have as good a line of REFRIGERATORS as there is made—some people say they are the best. We recommend them as ice savers, easy to keep clean and pure, as well as ornamental. The....

REFRIGERATOR

is another of our special summer comforts which we place within your reach.

While Gasoline Stoves and refrigerators are important factors in summer comforts, yet

Screen Doors and Windows are as important as the others. Don't think it is too late to buy them. It is just the time you need them most. We have a large line of paints, varnishes and painters supplies.

Headquarters for Plumbing Goods,

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court as administratrix of the estate of SILAS B. JOHNSTON, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MARY E. JOHNSTON, Administratrix.

July 25, 1899.

Rose & Rose, Attorneys for Estate.

S. C. SMITH,

Auburn, Ind.

Attorney-at-Law

AND NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office over Bazar Store, formerly occupied by Judge Hartman.

LAND OF GREAT PROMISE.

Wonderful Resources of the Western Canada Country Being Recognized and Rapidly Developed.

IN these days, when the poor man finds it a matter of difficulty to make a living, and when the man of moderate means is hardly able to retain what he may have made, then the poor man, or the small capitalist, or the man out of employment is anxious to know where there is yet a chance not only to make a good living for himself and family, but to secure a competency for declining years. The conditions most favorable to the accumulation of wealth are to be found in the Dominion of Canada, and especially in the western part in that vast stretch of country familiarly known a quarter of a century ago as the territory of the Hudson Bay Company.

This vast stretch of the best land on the continent is an unknown land to a great many who have not had their attention directed to it. In fact, not long since a prominent American writer, in an article on the supply of wheat in Europe and America, stated that to the north of the international boundary there is but a fringe of land capable of producing wheat. Since the accession to power in Canada of an energetically colonizing government a great deal has been done to dissipate these errors, and to place this future great country in its proper light before the rest of the world. As a matter of fact, wheat can be successfully grown as far north of the international boundary as Fort Simpson, at the junction of the Liard and Mackenzie rivers. Now this point, let it be noted, is as far northwest of Winnipeg as Winnipeg is northwest of New York City. The great American writer, though skillful with his pen, was not quite up to date with his facts.

FARM IN WESTERN CANADA.

An Enormous Area.

Leaving out of consideration 400,000 square miles of Keewatin, lying between Ontario and Manitoba, the 382,000 square miles of British Columbia with its untold yet prodigious wealth of forests, fisheries and mines, and omitting Athabaska with its area of 122,000 square miles, which is north of the great grazing country of Alberta, we have Manitoba, Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan left. These give us in one solid block a territory unexcelled for farming purposes extending 400 miles north and south and 900 miles east and west. The area embraced herein is—mark it well—359,000 square miles. This is almost entirely virgin territory. Hundreds of millions of acres are here ready for the plow. It has been prospected and tested sufficiently at different points to prove that it is all fit for settlement. To appreciate its extent, let us draw a line through Harper's Ferry, from the northern boundary of Pennsylvania to the southern line of Virginia, taking all west of that line to the Missouri river, including West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa. We shall then have in the United States a territory no greater in extent and not one whit superior in agricultural resources to the territory in Western Canada just mentioned. This great agricultural and pastoral country is, as a recent writer said, as large as the whole of Europe.

In Canada there is no state church and each denomination is left free to worship the Creator in the way that pleases it.

The Government of Canada is federal, as in the United States. The duration of the Dominion Parliament, corresponding to the United States House of Representatives, is five years, that of the Provincial Legislatures, corresponding to the Legislatures in each State of the American Union, is four years. The franchise both in the Dominion and Provincial affairs, is so broad that practically nearly every male resident of 21 years of age is entitled to a vote. The municipal system in all the provinces of Canada is nearly perfect. The utmost possible freedom has been given municipalities to manage their own affairs.

AN ALBERTA STOCK FARM.

No country has a superior educational system. In the western part of Canada, where homes are to be found for the millions, the schools are about three miles apart in settled districts, and they are free. All the expenses, including teachers' salaries, are paid by a Government grant and a general taxation on the land, whether occupied or not, within the district. The teachers are all properly certificated. One-eighteenth part of the whole of the "Fertile Belt" from Pembina to the Saskatchewan and beyond, is set apart for the maintenance of schools—certainly a very liberal and wise provision. As showing the growth of the country, it may be stated that the school population of Manitoba in 1871 was about 800. At the present writing it exceeds 50,000. There were 246 teachers in the province in 1873. There are now 1,200. The average salary paid teachers in rural districts is $368 per year. The schools are thoroughly inspected at intervals to see that they are kept up to the mark.

Mr. J. A. Smart, deputy minister of the interior at Ottawa, Canada, has a large immigration staff, at the head of which is Mr. F. Pedley, the superintendent. The latter gentleman delights to talk of Canada's resources, and in the course of a conversation with the writer said that Government experimental farms, in connection with the educational department of the country, have been established at various points. The different kinds of grain, seeds, roots, vegetables, grasses, small fruits, trees and shrubs that it is sought to grow in the country are sown on all the varied soils to be found in these farms. A faithful record of results is kept and published for the benefit of the farmers in the newspapers throughout the country. This is found to be a great advantage to the agricultural community.

The towns and villages, in addition to this, are visited frequently by a traveling school of dairy instructors, whose duty it is to give lectures, accompanied by practical operations, on the art of cattle raising, butter and cheese making, etc. In this way the best methods known to the country are learned by the settlers without the loss of time or money that would be necessary were they left to their own resources in these matters. In Manitoba a system of farmers' institutes is in operation. Practical men make known their most successful methods of farming, and an interchange of experiences is made at these meetings. In short, nothing in reason is left undone by the Government to enable the settler in Western Canada to achieve success.

Climatic Conditions.

Climatic conditions is one of the chief considerations of the intending emigrant to a new country. In times gone by, when interested parties sought to exclude immigration from this great country, for the reason that they feared the great fur industry of the region would be destroyed, as it has really been, by agriculture, the impression was sent abroad that the country was a wilderness, in which only buffaloes and foxes could live. The falsity of these allegations has now been completely demonstrated. The climate, as described by those who have lived there for years, is very agreeable, and is preferred by them to the East. Disease is little known, epidemics are unheard of there. Spring begins about the 1st of April. In some seasons, seeding actually commences in March. Spring is soon followed by summer, when the growth of all vegetables is almost phenomenal. It is certainly greater than anything known in more southerly latitudes. The soft maple tree will grow five feet in a single season. The autumn season is as delightful as can be imagined. It extends into November, snow sometimes not falling until late in December. This gives the farmer sufficient time to finish his threshing, market his thousands of bushels of the best wheat grown in the world, and to put his land in condition for the crop of the following year.

A MANITOBA WHEAT FIELD.

The winters are by no means discomforting. The air is crisp and dry, and a temperature of 40 degrees below zero is less uncomfortable in that atmosphere than 10 degrees above in the moisture-laden atmosphere of the Atlantic coast. This is the testimony of all who have lived in both climates. The weather during each season is steady, not changeable as in the East.

The wheat of Western Canada is well known to be extremely hard, and the yield from 30 to 50 per cent more than in the States south of boundary line. Here is an easily explained reason for this: In winter the frost penetrates the ground to a considerable depth; the sub-soil throughout the intense heat of the summer is kept moist by the slow melting of these deep frosts. The moisture, ascending towards the surface, nourishes the roots of the grain, stimulating growth and producing the bountiful crops for which this region is now so justly famed. Again, the sunshine is a little longer just when needed, when the heads are ripening, there being nearly two hours more daylight daily from the middle of June to the first of July than in our State of Ohio.

The average yield varies with varying conditions. The average some years has been over thirty bushels per acre, while in other years it has fallen to eighteen bushels. With reasonable prices even the lowest average will yield very large profits. The cost of raising an acre is from $5 to $7. It is easy to see what a wheat field of 100 acres will do. As to the heaviness of the crops, an American consul has written that in the harvest time the entire labor to be found was wholly inadequate to the task of harvesting. The wheat was so tall and stout, and so heavily laden with grain that the work of reaping and stocking was extremely exhausting. The weight of the grain was so great that the reaping machines were frequently broken.

Great Grain Country.

Not only wheat, but oats, barley and peas grow prodigiously. Oats yield from sixty to ninety bushels per acre, sometimes over 100. The barley is of such a superior quality that it is sought after by brewers everywhere, and readily sells for several cents per bushel more than barley of any other country. Peas, which are entirely free from grubs and bugs, yield splendidly and are as hog fodder in every way superior to corn. To their use experts attribute the absence of hog cholera in this country. Yet corn is grown sometimes for fodder and ensilage, and some of it grows as high as ten or twelve feet.

In oats, the experimental farms show a great record for three successive years. Taking twelve varieties, the Manitoba experimental farm shows an average yield of 75 bushels 20 pounds to the acre. The farm for the Northwest territories for the same period shows, in twelve different varieties, an average yield of 86 bushels and 23 pounds per acre. In two-rowed barley, with six varieties, the Manitoba farm shows an average yield of 42 bushels 31 pounds per acre; that of the Northwest Territory, 56 bushels 26 pounds per acre. In six-rowed barley, six varieties, the Manitoba farm shows an average of 51 bushels one pound per acre; the Northwest Territories' farm 60 bushels 16 pounds per acre. In spring wheat, with twelve varieties, the average at the Manitoba farm for three years was 35 bushels 28 pounds per acre; at the Northwest Territories' farm 41 bushels 11 pounds per acre. In potatoes, the average crop with twelve varieties for three years at the Manitoba farm 343 bushels 50 pounds per acre; at the Northwest Territories' farm 300 bushels 15 pounds per acre. It is safe to say that no other country in the world can show averages approaching this yield of wheat, oats, barley and potatoes.

Wild fruits, especially of the smaller kinds, as strawberries, cherries, grapes, plums, etc., grow in great abundance and are in flavor superior to those grown in the East. Dairying has already made rapid strides. The butter of Western Canada finds its way to the Eastern and English markets, and is highly appreciated. Horses and cattle thrive well on these prairie farms, and the average of first-class stock there is probably higher than in any other part of the continent. Sheep, hogs and poultry are all profitable branches of farming in Western Canada, and the value of the exports is increasing every year.

In Western Canada is to be found the only remaining territory on this continent in which the man of small means can go into ranching on a large scale and watch his wealth increase with the development of his herds of cattle and horses on the boundless plains. The district of Alberta, immediately to the east of British Columbia, is pre-eminently adapted to the occupation of the rancher. It contains an area of 100,000 square miles in round numbers, and is from north to south 430 miles, and from east to west 250 miles. Southern Alberta is essentially a ranching and dairying country. The opportunities offered here in this respect are unparalleled by any other country in the world. It is an open rolling country, and well watered. The valley and bench lands produce luxuriantly a most nutritious growth of native grasses. Cattle, horses and sheep graze outside the whole year. Profits are large, $35 to $45 per head being paid on the ranges for steers which cost their owners only the interest on their orignal investment on the land and stocking the ranch, and their share of the annual round-up. The climate is one of the attractive features of the district. Winters are very mild with a very slight snow fall. The prevailing winds blow from the west, coming from the balmy Pacific ocean through the low mountain passes. These dissipate any snow that falls, and thus enable cattle to find their own fodder during the entire year. The summers are hot and dry.

Northern Alberta is a great fertile valley stretching northward over 200 miles, and is well wooded as well as well watered. The town of Edmonton, on the C. P. R. R., is about the center of the district. This town, it might be stated here, though one of the most northerly in Canada, is 455 miles further south than St. Petersburg, the capital of Russia, further south than any portion of Scotland, Denmark, Norway or Sweden, and as far south as Dublin in Ireland, Liverpool in England and Hamburg in Germany, so that we see how unjust it is to picture Canada as the frozen region of the north.

Railways traverse all the settled parts of the country. Fuel is convenient and cheap everywhere. The laws are as good as in any other country in the world. Mob-law is altogether unknown from one end of the Dominion to the other. The laws are enforced with the most scrupulous impartiality and with a promptness and vigor that inspire the confidence of the peace lover and fill the breast of the would-be law breaker with the dread of their vengeance.

Not only in agriculture and stock raising are there unequalled opportunities in the young Dominion of Canada. The fisheries of the country are inexhaustible. Ocean, lake and river teem with the finny tribe. Its salmon and its cod are famous throughout the world.

Several of the provinces, notably British Columbia, have enormous forests of timber, all convenient to market. British Columbia is one of the best fruit growing districts in the world, while in its valleys there are large areas of agricultural lands open to settlement. In minerals Canada appears likely in time to lead the world. That entire region from the boundary line north to the Arctic circle appears to be one vast deposit of gold, silver, copper, lead and iron. British Columbia is surprising the world by the enormous output of her gold, silver and copper mines, while the Klondike, almost wholly in Canada, is known to-day in every extremity of the earth. Her output this year is estimated to be about $20,000,000 in gold, and competent authorities say it will double yearly for a long time to come.

WIDOWS OF BRIGHAM YOUNG.

Six of His Twenty-six Wives Hold Celebration to His Honor.

Six of the twenty-six wives of Brigham Young recently held a reunion in Salt Lake City in honor of the ninety-eighth anniversary of the prophet's birth. Four or more of his wives were prevented from attending owing to sickness. A feature of the reunion was a great banquet at which there were present 300 descendants of the Mormon leader. As many more are actively engaged in missionary work in other parts of the world.

The widows of the prophet range in age from 60 to 80 years, and all occupy exalted positions in Mormonism to-day. Zina H. Young is the most conspicuous of these. She was converted to Mormonism in her fifteenth year and became the wife of Joseph Smith. After the death of Smith she became the wife of Young and crossed the plains in his calacade, driving oxen, cooking, washing and enduring many hardships.

SIX OF BRIGHAM YOUNG'S WIDOWS.

Harriet Barney Young. Emily Partridge Young. Harriet Folsom Young.
Lucy Bigelow Young. Zina Huntington Young. Naamah Carter Young.

Emily D. Partridge Young is a second "time" wife. She and her sister were made wives of Prophet Smith at Nauvoo, Ill. After Smith died the sister, Emily, became one of Brigham Young's wives.

A third widow, Naamah Kendel Jenkins Carter Twiss Young, expects to be claimed at the last day by John S. Twiss, to whom she was married first by Brigham Young himself.

Brigham Young's favorite wife is Harriet Amelia Folsom Young, said to be a relative of Mrs. Grover Cleveland. She had a great influence over the Mormon leader, and her word was law in the household.

Others of the widows whose faces appear in the accompanying illustration are Harriet Barney Young and Lucy Bigelow Young.

The celebration shows how strong a hold the dead leader has on the Mormon Church to-day. Mormons still hail him as an infallible leader and look back with regret to the days when he ruled like a king in mountain fastnesses.

DREYFUS' FAITHFUL WIFE.

The Experience Through Which She Passed During Five Years.

Mme. Lucie Dreyfus, the devoted wife of the former prisoner of Devil's Island, five years ago was the handsome, honored companion of an officer to whom the most brilliant prospects were conceded. Nothing was lacking to their happiness. They had all the money they cared for, the welcome and friendship of the best society, a beautiful home and lovely children. Then, like a thunderbolt from a blue sky, came the disgrace. His wife, and his wife alone, believed in his piteous wail, "I am innocent." Twelve of his brother officers had examined Dreyfus and pronounced him a traitor. But she knew him and loved him; and when he appealed to her not to believe the verdict, she knew in her heart that her husband was doomed unjustly.

MME. DREYFUS.

Later, when her efforts had succeeded in arousing a new interest in his cause, six ministers of war affirmed and affirmed again: "Dreyfus is a traitor. Rest in peace, good people, he suffers justly."

But her love proved better than these great men's judgments. She protested bravely, "He is not a traitor!"

And in her modest retreat she repeated daily to the children of the prisoner: "Papa has not betrayed France. Pray that papa may come back to us!"

And she was not allowed even to write of what was being done to secure him a new trial. She longed to be near him. She was not allowed to go. Little wonder she was at times nearly beside herself with impotent rage. Her friends have told of those dark moments when she paced the floor mutely, tearing her hair and denouncing humanity to the vengeance of God.

THE ILLINOIS A GOLD MINE.

Over 3,000 Men Engaged in the Fish Industry of That Stream.

Over 3,000 men are employed in the fish industry of the Illinois river. Each year this industry expands and extends, and it is but a question of time when that river will be accepted by Illinois as one of the principal sources of food supply in the State. The big fishing point of the river, where the business is handled in a wholesale way, are Henry, Lacon, Chillicothe, Peoria, Pekin, Havana, Bath, Browning, Beardstown, Meredosia, Kampsville, and Gafton. The fishing season—that is, the commercial season, when the law permits the use of seines in the river—opens July 1 and closes April 15. During that time the fishing companies with their tug boats and smaller steam craft harvest the fishing crop, using seines which vary in length from 500 to 1,500 yards. In Lake Peoria alone there are nine seines, each 1,000 yards long, and last year in one haul over 6,500 pounds of German carp were taken. As the fisherman received 3 cents a pound for his fish "on the ground," that single haul was worth $1,950. Near Beardstown a single haul of the seine brought 150,000 pounds of fish.

The fish are packed in boxes in 150-pound lots, stowed away in refrigerator cars, and most of the carp and buffalo are shipped to New York. Chicago takes about 40,000 pounds of carp a week from Peoria in the season. Then there is a system of live storage, by which the captured fish are kept alive until winter, when a better price can be obtained for them. The fish are loosed into pens, which are made by driving stakes close together into the bottom of a bayou or shallow bay near the point of shipment. Here the captives thrive and fatten until they are netted again and placed on ice for shipment.—La Salle Tribune.

Widow's Sweet Revenge.

A story that people are laughing about concerns a young state department man. He is a self-made man, and there is nothing about him to disturb in the slightest degree one's conviction that gentlemen are born, not made. Of late he has been markedly attentive to a lovely young widow. The widow's well-bred discouragement of his addresses has been wholly lost on him, and recently hearing from an acquaintance that she was to celebrate her birthday at such a time, he had the impertinence to send her an expensive present of an exceedingly impertinent kind. It, or rather they, were in a satin box and their buckles gleamed with gems. The widow wrote a note of thanks, and before she sent it she showed it to somebody who told the story. This is what she said:

"My Dear Mr. Brash: Thank you ever so much for remembering Fido's birthday. He needed a new collar, and the one you sent looks so well on him. It was so thoughtful of you to send two, for Fido is so bad about losing things."

And then that vindictive woman signed herself "Yours, sincerely."—Washington Post.

It Was Lucky.

The little boy's mother awoke the other night and remembered that something had been left unlocked in the lower part of the house. So she quietly stole down the stairs and attended to the errand. She was on her way upstairs again when a hoarse little whisper assailed her ears:

"Who's that?"

She looked up quickly, and there on the top step, outlined against the gloom, stood the tiny white figure. And the figure's arm was outstretched, and in the small hand was a gleaming toy pistol.

Of course he knew as soon as she spoke, and was presently back in bed again, with his precious shooting iron beneath his head.

At the table next morning he gravely remarked:

"It was a mighty lucky thing for you mamma, that you spoke when you did."

Regarding Red-Headed People.

Red-headed people, as is well-known are less subject to baldness than others. A London doctor explains the matter thus: The hair of the red-headed is relatively thick, one red hair being almost as thick as five fair or three brown hairs. With 30,000 red hairs the scalp is well thatched, whereas with the same number of fair hairs one is comparatively bald. It takes 160,000 fair and 105,000 brown hairs to cover adequately an ordinary head.

Hawaiians Eat Devilfish.

The mere thought of eating an octopus is enough to make the everyday civilized being shudder, yet in the Hawaiian islands these devilfish, as they are comonly called, are a much-prized delicacy among the natives, while the imported Chinese and Japs have also acquired the taste.

Any boy who will voluntarily hire himself out to a farmer during his summer vacation is bound to amount to something. There are so few of them that people will have no difficulty keeping their future careers in mind.

The penalty fame brings to a man is that every girl he ever treated to ice cream claims to have once jilted him.

It must be a great satisfaction to a woman to get on a dress that is not a shirt waist, and have no fears of a parting in the back.

First impressions are never correct—so the proofreader tells us.

A circus crowd is always more fun than the circus itself.

OUR EXTRAVAGANT DIET.

Prof. Atwater Says Americans Are Not Economical in Buying Food.

The investigation in the foods of this country now being conducted by Professor Atwater as President of the United States Food Commission, has gone far enough to show that as a rule, our diet is not economical. How important this matter is may be judged from the fact that the family of the average American laboring man has less than $500 per year to live on, and that fully half of this is spent for food. Where the income is less than this amount a greater proportion goes for food. When the income rises the amount expended for food advances proportionately.

It may be seen, therefore, that a mistake in the matter of selecting and using economical food is the gravest error of domestic management that the ordinary family can make. It is among the poorer families, too, that these errors are most frequent. It is a fact that articles of food are served every day on the tables of the wealthy and the well-to-do which are rejected by their poorer neighbors who have a false pride in buying "the best that the market affords" for their families. They seldom do get the best, even when they pay a high price for it, and it is frequently true that for the price they do pay they could get twice the amount of actual nutriment in some cheaper and equally desirable form.

The actual value of food for nourishment is not always to be determined by the market price. The cheapest food is that which supplies the most nutriment for the least money. The most economical is that which is the cheapest and at the same time best adapted to the wants of the eater. The food that is the finest in appearance and flavor, and the highest in price, is seldom the most economical according to this definition. Figures show that a quarter of a dollar invested in the sirloin of beef pays for a meat which yields three-eighths of a pound of actually nutritive material. This would contain one-sixth of a pound of protein and one-fifth of a pound of fat, and supply 1,120 calories of energy. The same amount of money paid for oysters bring two ounces of actual nutriments, an ounce of protein, and 230 calories of energy. But in buying wheat flour the twenty-five cents pays for six and a quarter pounds of nutriments, with eight-tenths of a pound of protein and 71,755 calories of energy. This does not indicate that beefsteak should be discarded in favor of wheat flour, but it does show that oysters, eggs and other foods of a like nature are ordinarily most expensive kinds of food for the poor man.—E. W. Mayo, in Ainslee's.

The Literary Value of a Name.

"The magazine editors are very fond of telling the public that they never pay the slightest attention to names of authors in the selection of manuscripts, but are guided solely by the merit of the contributions," said a bright Detroit woman who has had a good deal to do with them; "but I doubt if any one of them really means what he says. I know of one particular case where the great man—don't they all consider themselves great?—wofully failed to live up to his professions. The contributor in this instance was a clever little New York woman, wife of a struggling author, who got into her pretty head the notion that she would help her husband by earning enough money to buy her own spring bonnet, so she wrote a 'piece' and sent it to a leading magazine, affixing to it the modest price of $15. Did she get her bonnet? Not a bit of it. That manuscript came back to her with the customary printed 'regrets,' and the production was carefully stowed away in her little desk so that it would not be a visible reminder of her disappointment.

"Time passed and her husband, who is really a genius, at last wrote a book that made a tremendous hit, and very soon there came frantic appeals from magazine editors for work from his pen. Then that clever little woman, who is not altogether devoid of cunning, recollected her own fruitless effort, so she drew from the inner recesses of her desk that once despised and rejected manuscript, and sent it again to the same editor who had once treated it so disdainfully and who had been most persistent in his demands upon her husband. By the very first return mail came a falsome letter of acceptance, accompanied by a check for $80, and the promise that the story would appear in his next number.

"So you see that in spite of their declarations, the magazine editors do give attention to a name, even if it be only that of the wife of a successful author."—Detroit Free Press.

A Cat Whips An Eagle.

Two New York fishermen, rowing along the Susquehanna River, near Red Hook, were attracted by a noise proceeding from what seemed to be a battle on the brow of a steep hill near the shore.

For some minutes the fishermen failed to notice the character of the combatants, but in a moment the well-known squealing of a cat struck their ears. A prowling cat had been pounced upon by an eagle. Up the combatants soared, while the feathers that flew from the eagle and spread in all directions convinced the fishermen that the battle was in the clouds. They watched the strange combat until cat and eagle seemed a mere black speck in the sky.

Suddenly the speck resolved itself into two, and the cat came down through the air with frightful velocity, sometimes as round as a ball and again stretching out full length. It soon struck the ground. The fishermen went down the river, but next day, when returning, the cat's carcass could not be found.

Near the spot, however, a dying eagle was seen with the flesh torn off its body to such an extent that the bones were exposed to view. The cat was evidently too much for the eagle, but how she escaped being dashed to pieces when she struck the ground, still remains a mystery.—New York Press.

The Requisites of a Scout.

The scout must have a quick comprehension and a good memory for details of a country. He must know what to do at a moment when one's heart is in his throat if not in his mouth. He must be wary of ambushes, and must instinctively see his way out when he and his followers have been so trapped. Scouts Winchel and Finigan, who led a troop of cavalry into an Apache ambush among the Dragoon mountains in southern Arizona in 1879, and who instantly ordered the soldiers to whirl and seek safety behind the lava boulders, while they (the two scouts) dashed into the open and received the deadly charge intended for the troops, showed as much courage and quickness of comprehension as legendary heroes ever did. Out on the baren, sunbaked and windswept plains the scout must know where water is to be had, even though he might not have been that way in several years. He must be a judge of the country and know from a thousand and one circumstances in nature, unseen by others, where water should be, where game is apt to congregate, and where fuel for fire is to be obtained. General Custer said that the four scouts who led his troops in the Indian campaign of the latter sixties could smell water forty miles away, even when the sun was witheringly hot and the soldiers and horses were almost overcome. Even in sparsely settled regions where there are few roads, an occasional habitation and only a tree or a shrub or hill to serve as a landmark, a scout would have no difficulty at all in locating himself and guiding his party to safety.—Chicago Record.

Tactful Messenger Boy.

"One of the beautiful traits in the makeup of Washington messenger boys," said a railroad man who lives in Washington, "is their tactfulness. I think otherwise. They are chock full of and loaded down with tact—with the copper on. To illustrate:

"My wife went over to New York a few weeks ago to attend the bedside of a seriously ill relative, who was not expected to live. This morning I was sitting in my office, wondering why I didn't get a letter from her by the first mail, when a tousel-headed messenger boy joggled open the door.

"'Where'll I find de office o' Mr. —?' he asked mentioning my name.

"'Right here, son,' said I. 'You're talking to him.'

"'Well,' said the kid, measuring me up, with the probably expectation that I'd do a stage back fall, 'I've got a death message for you, an' they tole me at th' office that it was important.'

"Nice, mild, tactful way of putting it, wasn't it? He just left it up to me to wonder, while I was ripping the envelope open, whether announced the death of our aged relative or the decease of my wife. It happened to be the former, but I am inclined to believe that that boy would have been just a bit better pleased had it been the latter."

Golf in the Cabinet.

All the members of the Cabinet excepting Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Secretary of Navy Long, and Post-master General Smith, play golf. Secretary Long has heard so much about it that he admits he has begun to play it in imagination, and will some day hire the implements and a caddie and go out to the Chevy Chase Club to walk over the links.

Attorney General Griggs is the star player of the Cabinet team, and is said to play with the eagerness of a boy. The Chevy Chase links are but a short ride from the city on a trolley line, and to chase the ball over the ground between eighteen holes is considered pretty good work for a morning. When the Cabinet drops into a talk about the morning game at Chevy Chase the President's interest is slightly stimulated, and he has sometimes been inclined to try the exercise himself. When he has inquired about the "lingo" of the game he has been discouraged. "The game requires study," he is quoted as saying, "and I have too many other subjects to study. I think I will leave the matter to Gage and the rest, for they like study so well." Secretary Gage has moved out to Chevy Chase, and the links are almost in sight of his summer home.—New Haven Palladium.

The New Evolution.

"Have you noticed that the pretty girls are the ones who get seats in the cars, and that the unhandsome ones generally have to stand up?" asked the man who doesn't know whether he had rather be Schopenhauer or Mark Twain.

"Yes, but what of it. I don't quite understand what you are driving at."

"Well, you may not know it, but that condition is going to bring about the salvation of the race."

"Oh, I know. The women are beginning to take a decided stand on matters and a more elevated point of view."

"Don't be an idiot. I'm in earnest. You know the law about the survival of the fittest and the process of evolution. Well, it is evident that the only way in which an unhandsome lady can get a seat will be to grow handsome. Now this will have its effect on the third and fourth generations, and finally all our women will be beauties and able to get two seats on the cars if they want them. They simply have to get a chance to sit down."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Father of Thirty-six Children.

The smallness of the birth rate has given the people of Ontario some worry of late, but those of Quebec have nothing to fret over on this score. In 1890, under the premiership of the late Honore Mercier, a law was passed which encouraged fecundity by granting a fee simple for 100 acres of bush land to each father of twelve or more children. A return just prepared shows that 3,500 persons have claimed this reward of fruitfulness, and the applicants now number nearly 200 per annum. One individual proved that he was the father of thirty-six living children, and as a consequence conceived the idea that he was entitled to three free grants of land, while several cases of families of from twenty to thirty have been noted. The average size of the families of the applicants is fifteen.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Clever Animals These.

A friend of mine kept three dogs, and one night, on returning home, found them all asleep on his sofa.

They were whipped and expelled.

Next night he found them before the fire, but, feeling the sofa and finding it warm, he punished them again.

The third night he returned earlier than usual, and found them sitting in front of t[illegible] blowing it to cool it.—Windsor [illegible]

Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snowstorm.

No need of this snowstorm.

As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

The Poet Did Not Contribute.

"I am quite willing to contribute to the—er—amusement of the evening," interposed the amateur poet, who was bursting to read his latest, and couldn't get anybody to take the hints he threw out.

There was a sound like a groan from a corner of the room, and a guest went out. The others prepared for the worst, except one elderly man, who pulled down his waistcoat with an unnecessary show of determination.

"The title of this little effort," the poet went on, drawing a roll from an unsuspected pocket, is 'The Raindrops on the Roof.'"

"Well, of course it does," exclaimed the elderly man. "Where would you expect it to drop? When the rain drops on any well-regulated house, it naturally chooses the roof. Perhaps you expect people to take the roof off when it rains? Or you think that we imagine that it drops on the foundation, or in the umbrella-stand? Everybody else knows that rain drops on the roof young man, and they don't want you to write a poem to tell 'em. If you can write one that will explain why it rains when a man goes out in a new hat and without an umbrella, we're open to hear it."

The poet did not contribute any further to the amusement of the evening

Care of Currant Bushes.

A sharp lookout should be kept for the currant worm, which where the bushes are grown in clumps generally appears first on the inside stalks, and often matures and goes into the ground for a second brood before any damage is discovered. This explains the nonsuccess of some in using white hellebore on the bushes. It is very difficult to spray or dust the whole plant with the hellebore, and it is the inside bushes that mainly escape the poison. For this reason growing currants in tree form would be the best method were it not for the currant stalk borer, which often destroys a hill where only one stalk is left. By growing two or three stems and cutting out all others, both these enemies can be made harmless.

In China there are large cities that have no municipal organizations and spend nothing on public improvements or for official expenses.

A Story of Sterility, SUFFERING AND RELIEF.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 69,185]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Two years ago I began having such dull, heavy dragging pains in my back, menses were profuse and painful, and was troubled was leucorrhœa. I took patent medicines and consulted a physician, but received no benefit and could not become pregnant. Seeing one of your books, I wrote to you telling you my troubles and asking for advice. You answered my letter promptly and I followed the directions faithfully, and derived so much benefit that I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. I now find myself pregnant and have begun its use again. I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. CORA GILSON, YATES, MANISTEE, MICH.

"Your Medicine Worked Wonders."

"I had been sick ever since my marriage, seven years ago; have given birth to four children, and had two miscarriages. I had falling of womb, leucorrhœa, pains in back and legs; dyspepsia and a nervous trembling of the stomach. Now I have none of these troubles and can enjoy my life. Your medicine has worked wonders for me."—MRS. S. BARNHART, NEW CASTLE, PA.

THE EVENING STAR.

When sunset light
Gives place to night
On mountain tops afar,
With light more soft,
In heaven aloft
Appears the evening star.

Its beauty seems,
As high it gleams,
To lull the heart to rest.
We mourn the day,
But gladly say
We love the starlight best.

When grieved in heart,
Though 'tis our part
To know more night than day,
The star of hope
Forbids us mope,
And cheers with soothing ray.
—Waverley Magazine.

Almost a Burglary.

MRS. DRISCOLL had a mind of her own.

Some uncharitable people went so far as to say that if she had not had so much mind her husband might have been living to-day. Be that as it may, he died and left her sole mistress of a handsome property, with no one to oppose her will.

She adopted one of his nieces, and loved her as well as she could love any one but herself.

The niece grew up a winsome lassie, and had lovers, as maidens will.

Luckily her choice was her aunt's as well, and the day was set for her marriage with Harry Winship without opposition, the only condition being that they should return to Mrs. Driscoll's home after a brief wedding tour.

"Well, Kate," said the stately lady, the day before the wedding, "everything is ready, and I must say that I never saw preparations more complete—not even for your uncle's funeral, poor man! I always meant to give you a handsome marriage portion, so get your hat—we'll go to the bank."

What girl would delay under similar circumstances?

The carriage was speedily ordered, and soon stopped before the bank.

Except the bank officials, there was in the building only George Travis, one of Kate's discarded suitors, who was getting an insignificant check cashed.

Mrs. Driscoll was not slow to see an opportunity to flutter her sails, as her worthy husband had been accustomed to say.

Drawing her check book she smilingly wrote a check for £2,000 and presented it to the cashier.

"Payable to Miss Kate—a marriage portion, I presume. Ah, very generous of you! Miss Kate, I congratulate you," said the cashier. "Shall I make the new book in your own name?"

"She wants no book—at least not yet," retorted Mrs. Driscoll, sharply. "When I give a thing, I give it. I want good, solid money for that check—bright, yellow gold."

"But—why—you live fully a mile from a neighbor. Have you—do you think of the temptation?" he said, hesitatingly.

"Did I ask your advice?" snapped Mrs. Driscoll. "I am able to take care of my own property, and, if it will not break the bank, I want it in gold."

"Certainly, madam. My conscience is clear if you wake up to find yourself murdered to-morrow morning. This bank can pay ten times that sum at sight, madam," was the dignified reply, to which Mrs. Driscoll listened in curt silence.

The cashier went into the vault, closing the door behind him.

George Travis, having counted the money received on his check, went out without a glance at the two ladies.

"There! Now I reckon Travis begins to realize what he has lost," nodded Mrs. Driscoll.

Kate blushed slightly.

"But, aunt," she said, uneasily, "wouldn't it be better for me to take a book with the money left to my credit? Harry will not be here until to-morrow, and—and think of the risk! It is unsafe."

"How long is it since I came to be told my duty by a miss of 18?" breathed Mrs. Driscoll, scornfully. "What a coward you are! If you don't want the money, say so, and I'll let it remain where it is. If you do want it, hold your tongue, and help me take care of it until I can give you both into Harry Winship's keeping."

Further conversation was prevented by the cashier's return.

He carried a strong iron box.

"Count it!" commanded Mrs. Driscoll.

One by one the golden coins were counted under her admiring eyes.

"There, that is money! That is like a wedding gift!" she ejaculated, in a satisfied tone.

"Better let me give you a receipt for it and put it into the safe to-night," suggested the cashier.

"Put it into my carriage!" was the sharp order to the bank porter.

The man obeyed and watched with a puzzled face the carriage out of sight.

"She beats all I ever saw," he said. "I don't wonder her husband died."

Meanwhile Mrs. Driscoll returned home well satisfied with the world and herself in particular.

She had had her own way.

"I shall not put this under my pillow as I generally do," she said to Kate. "This box is harder than feathers. I shall put it under the corner of your bed."

"Thanks, aunt! Iron is as soft as feathers for me to lie on," laughed Kate.

"You needn't lie upon that side of the bed at all," was the cool reply.

"There's a man in the kitchen as says he's had not a mouthful to eat for ten days," said Norah, the servant, appearing at the door.

"The farm is only a mile further on. Send him about his business," answered her mistress.

Norah went out.

Soon a figure clothed in rags went by the open window.

The man turned and shook his clinched fist at the astonished lady.

"Of all things! The impudent thing," she gasped.

"Oh, but, aunt, I'm sure he has heard all that we said about that horrid money!" faltered Kate.

Mrs. Driscoll's face told the concern which she felt, but she turned her back upon her niece and took up a book.

Darkness came.

The lights in the house were extinguished at the usual time.

Kate could not sleep. In vain she counted slowly from one hundred to one, and said the letters of the alphabet backward.

She heard the village clock slowly strike the hour of midnight, then one, two, and three.

Kate's apartment was dark, but the moon shone dimly into her aunt's room just across the hall.

Suddenly a form stood in the doorway, then vanished within.

Was it the tramp? Was that something in his hand a knife?

Kate stole softly through the doorway, listening breathlessly. Then she darted into a small room, near Mrs. Driscoll's door.

Suddenly the door was noiselessly closed, and a man stood so near her hiding-place that she could hear his hurried breathing.

The faint odor of chloroform told why the door was closed.

What if he gave an overdose?

Kate loved the stern woman, and notwithstanding her timidity, that thought nerved her to action.

She sprang from the room with a shrill cry, clinching both hands in the hair of the intruder. It is needless to say that he was startled out of what little common sense he possessed.

He threw her violently aside with a muttered oath and fled. But he left a generous lock of hair in her hands.

Her head struck a corner of the door in falling, and it was dawn when she awoke to full consciousness of what had happened.

Womanlike, she rushed to see if the iron box was still safe. It had not been disturbed. Then she threw open the door of Mrs. Driscoll's room. That lady was unconscious, but breathing evenly. Kate's courage returned.

Silently she opened the window, letting the fresh morning air draw freely through the room. Then she crept into her own bed to await developments.

Before sunrise Mrs. Driscoll awoke.

"Mercy on us!" she screamed. "Norah did not shut the window last night. I shall get my death of cold. Kate!"

But Kate did not stir until her name had been called several times; then she answered drowsily.

"Get up, child! It's your wedding day, too, and I in danger of pneumonia," called her aunt.

Kate shut the window, and helped the irate lady to dress, touching her hair with dainty, soothing fingers as she arranged it.

The household arose and went about its tasks. Visitors came and went. Kate kept her secret well. The ceremony was over which made her a wife. The bridal dress was exchanged for a traveling costume.

"I shall take the iron box to the bank as we go to the train, auntie," Kate said as she bade her good-by.

"As you please. I've had my say about it, and no harm came of it, either," was the tart reply.

No one knew of the tragedy which did not take place in the silent watches of the night.

No one knew until Kate, nestling in her husband's clasp as the train sped onward, told him the story in her own way and time.

"But the hair—did you save it? It is a clew," he said quickly.

"I burned it," was the calm reply. "I did not need to save it, for I knew whose it was. I always thought he liked aunt's money better than me. Now I know that he coveted the dowry more than the bride. But the money is safe in the bank, and wasn't it strange that he should be there to see it deposited?"

"Not George Travis?" ejaculated Harry.

"Yes. Let him go," she whispered softly, nestling closer. "Think what he lost—what you gained, Harry, dear. Let his own conscience punish him—if he has any. We'll never let aunt know. We will keep our first secret forever."

Harry Winship was a man. He could not refuse his wife's first request, and Mrs. Driscoll does not know to this day what danger menaced her.—Chicago Times-Herald.

The True Gentleman.

A writer in the North American Review recalls Ward McAllister's definition of a gentleman. "My understanding of a gentleman," said Mr. McAllister, "has always been that he is a person free from arrogance and anything like self-assertion; he has consideration for the feelings of others; is so satisfied in his own position that he is always unpretentious, feeling he could not do an ungentlemanly act; as courteous and kind in manner to his inferiors as to his equals."

"Beside this definition," continues the writer, "it is well to place that given by Emerson: 'The gentleman is a man of truth, lord of his own actions, and expressing that lordship in his behavior, not in any manner dependent and servile, either on person or opinions or possessions. Beyond this fact, of truth and real force, the word denotes good nature or benevolence, manhood first, and then gentleness.'"

Ten Thousand Feet Limit of Depth.

Mining engineers agree that the limit to which shafts may be sunk into the earth with the present machinery and equipments is 10,000 feet. The deepest shaft ever dug is the one now in existence in one of the copper mines on Lake Superior. It has a sheer depth of 5,000 feet. Dr. A. C. Lane, the assistant geologist for Michigan, in an article in Mineral Industry on "How Deep Can We Mine?" places the probable limit at 10,000 feet. He sees, however, that enormously rich deposits might lead man to dig to 15,000 feet with profit. The element of danger is not considered in these calculations. In conclusion he says. "The present knowledge cannot foresee reaching a depth of 20,000 feet."

More Foreigners than Natives.

Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and California were the four states which by the federal census of 1890 had a larger foreign-born than native-born male population of voting age.

Spain's National Flower.

The mignonette is the national flower of Spain.

BOY WITH X RAY EYES.

Strange Faculty Possessed by Alfred Brett Puzzles the Scientists.

Scientists are puzzled to account for the strange faculty possessed by Alfred Lionel Brett, the 11-year-old son of Dr. Frank Brett of South Braintree, Mass. When in a hypnotic condition, induced by his father, the boy is able to see through solids. He can see the bones of a living man, and his power has often been used by his father in cases of fracture which he has been called upon to treat. Conclusive proof that there is no sham about the boy's wonderful faculty has been furnished by Prof. Leslie J. Meacham, who is connected with the Medical College of Cornell University. One of Prof. Meacham's arms was broken some time ago, and in healing the bones did not knit perfectly. Last December an X ray photograph was taken of the arm showing the imperfect joint at the elbow. Recently Prof. Meacham went to the boy's home at South Braintree, and introduced himself to the family. At his request young Alfred was thrown into the hypnotic condition by his father, and asked to describe Prof. Meacham's elbow. He did so, and his description is fully confirmed by what is shown by the X ray photograph. Neither the boy nor his father attempts any explanation of the boy's strange faculty.

ALFRED BRETT.

UTAH'S SALT PALACE.

It Is to Be the Main Building in a Permanent Intermountain Exposition.

In Salt Lake City, seventeen miles from Great Salt Lake, and on the edge of the Alkaline plains, the State of Utah has decided to erect a palace of salt. It is to be modeled after the design of the World's Fair buildings in Chicago, which were of wooden frame work covered with "staff," or stucco. The salt palace is to be the main building of a permanent intermountain exposition to be held in Salt Lake City. Utah, Nevada, Arizona, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico will be invited to place their products on exhibition.

UTAH'S SALT PALACE.

The salt palace will cover three-fourths of the ten acres allotted for the exposition. The salt will be applied to the wooden structure by a spray. The water of Great Salt Lake, which is 25 per cent. salt, will be used, with the addition of a secret chemical that will render the quickly solidifying salt impervious to water. Experiments have been secretly made by Utah chemists that demonstrated beyond a doubt the practicability of the plan.

BLACKING IN BRUSH HANDLE.

No More We'll Hear the Cry, "Where's That Polish Box?"

A magazine blacking brush, the invention of John J. Howe, of Wilmington, Del., is a thing which will appeal to every man who even occasionally blackens his own shoes. The affair is much the same in appearance as the ordinary brush, which combines dauber and polisher, except that the handle is somewhat larger. This serves as a receptacle for liquid blacking, which flows into the daubing brush by gravity as the brush is applied to the shoe. This method has the advantage of cleanliness over the old way of using the boxed blacking, and the latter is always the right consistency for use.

BLACKING IN THE BRUSH HANDLE.

Love in a cottage is all right, only it's hard on the cottage.

The woman and the dog who are properly boxed are happiest.

A girl can never understand how a man likes to be in a hammock alone.

A bad man can be just as foolish over a good woman as a good woman over a bad man.

Men wouldn't be so conceited about the way their wives love them if they knew the things they had loved before they married them.

A woman's idea of having a good time is being invited to so many things that she hasn't a different gown to wear to all of them.

To the day of her death a woman is never satisfied with any photograph of her that does not look like the one taken in her graduating gown.

Right after a girl has been disappointed in a man she takes desperately to music, church work, mental science or something that doesn't agree with her.

As soon as a man gets a little money saved up, some of his folks have trouble, and he has to spend it on a relief expedition to save them.

AFRICAN'S TRUE PREDICTION.

Wizard Tells of Events Happening Hundreds of Miles Away.

Here is a yarn that has been picked up by the Society for Psychical Research. Dr. R. W. Felkin, who had accompanied Emin Pasha on a tour through Uganda and adjacent territory is responsible for it. He says that some time last year his party had got back to Lado, about 1,000 miles south of Khartoum, and that he had been without letters from Europe for a year. Naturally he was impatient for tidings. In that part of Africa he had often come across wizards who pretended to transform themselves into lions or other animals at night and to travel immense distances in this guise. They also assert that they acquire information at such times about stolen cattle and other lost property. Dr. Felkin says that, although he has no explanation to offer in regard to these alleged feats, he had a chance to verify one of their stories.

One morning after his arrival at Lado a man came to his tent, evidently in great excitement, and said that the local wizard, or "m'logo," had been roaming about the country the night before in the form of a jackal. During his rambles the "m'logo" had visited Meschera-el-Rek, fully 500 miles away, between Lado and Khartoum. The wizard declared that two steamers had just arrived at this point and had brought mails. He also described minutely the appearance of an English officer accompanying the boats.

Dr. Felkin ridiculed the story. But Emin Pasha took the thing more seriously. He directed that the wizard be brought before him, and questioned the fellow.

"Where did you go last night?"

"I was at Meschera-el-Rek."

"What were you doing there?"

"I went to see some friends."

"What did you see?"

"I saw two steamers arriving from Khartoum."

"Oh, this is nonsense! You could not possibly have been at Meschera-el-Rek."

"I was there," the wizard replied emphatically. "And with the steamers was an Englishman, a short man with a big beard."

"Well, what was his mission?"

"He says that the great pasha at Khartoum had sent him and he has some papers for you. He is starting overland to-morrow, bringing the papers with him, and he will be here about thirty days from now."

Dr. Felkin says that thirty-two days later the Englishman did arrive at Lado, and that he brought letters for the party. The new-comer was Lupton Bey. Of the wizard Dr. Felkin says that he is satisfied that the man was never outside his native village in his life.—New York Tribune.

"On the Road" in Russia.

Life "on the road" in England is not everything that could be desired, but what would "commercials" over here think of certain regulations now in force in Russia? According to "Sell's Commercial Intelligence," by a law recently enacted in St. Petersburg commercial travelers, both native and foreign, are required to provide themselves with a license at the cost of 50 rubles (about £5 5s. 6d.), and to obtain at a further cost of 500 rubles (£53 4s.) a trading license for the firm or company which they represent.

To enable British commercial travelers to take out this latter license they must produce a power of attorney or letter of authority from their employers, and must also possess a "certificate of license to trade," issued by a British chamber of commerce.

These licenses, which are issued for a period of one year from Jan 1, and are renewable during November and December, are to be procured on entering Russia from the nearest local treasury, town council, muncipal body or collector of taxes, and commercial travelers found pursuing their vocation without having provided themselves with the requisite licenses will be liable to a fine of treble the amount payable thereon, or 1,650 rubles (about £175).

Commercial travelers of the Jewish persuasion can only obtain these licenses and engage in business in Russia by special sanction of the ministers of the interior, finance and foreign affairs.—London Star.

She'll Say the Rest.

"It's awfully late," I remarked to my friend, after a long whist bout at the club. "What will you say to your wife?"

"Oh, I sha'n't say much, you know," was the reply. "'Good-morning, dear,' or something of that sort. She'll say the rest."—Roxbury Gazette.

Striking.

"Oi sae," said the janitor philosopher, "that there's a new business woman's club in th' city. Here's luck to it, and if it's inyt'ing lolke th' business club me ould woman houlds whin Oi'm searchin' fer th' kaehole it's bound to make a viry dape impression."

His Necessity.

Hassit—It's strange you're so hard up, old man. I thought you owned half of Swamphurst, and had lots to sell?

Haddit—I have, but what I want is lots to eat.—Brooklyn Life.

"A Good Name At Home

Is a Tower of Strength Abroad." In Lowell, Mass., where Hood's Sarsaparilla is made, it still has a larger sale than all other blood purifiers. Its fame and cures and sales have spread abroad, and it is universally recognized as the best blood medicine money can buy. Remember

Hood's Sarsaparilla Never Disappoints

Came Back.

"Look here! Are you the man I gave a square meal one cold, bleak February morning?"

"I'm the man, mum."

"Well, do you remember you promised to shovel all the snow out of my backyard and then sneaked off without doing it?"

"Yes, mum, an' me conscience smote me. Dat's de reason I tramped all de way here through de blazing sun to do de job."

Hair for Violin Bows.

Horse hair used in making violin and other similar bows is imported from Germany; a considerable part of the hair thus imported, however, coming originally from Russia. Horse hair for these purposes is white and black; the black is the heavier and stronger, and this is used in making bows for bass viols, because it bites the big strings better. In preparing the strings for use in bowmaking the white hair, used for violin bows, is bleached to bring it to its final whiteness.

The standard violin bow is twenty-nine inches in length; longer bows are made to order. Shorter bows are used by young persons; but the bow commonly seen in the hands of a violin player is twenty-nine inches long. Horse hair for violin bows is imported in various lengths, but mostly in lengths of thirty-six inches. Hair sufficient for one bow is put together in what is called a hank; the hanks are tied up in bundles of a dozen hanks; these are bundled in grosses and the gross bundles are put together in great grosses, in which shape the hair is imported. There are grades and qualities of the horse hair, but the best is not very costly. A hank of the best white hair can be bought for twenty cents; it might cost thirty cents more to have it put into the bow. To repair a bass viol bow costs more, the bulk of hair required being greater.—New York Sun.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has just unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a quantity of bogus bills, which are very cleverly executed. Things of great value are always selected for imitation, notably Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for disorders like indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation.

Pie Has the Place of Honor.

The people of Bulgaria are cordial to strangers. In visiting a Bulgarian home you are expected to take off your shoes and put on your hat. At the dining table the entire family sits cross-legged upon the ground around a table not more than a foot in height. Meats, vegetables and other edibles are cooked together and so served. There are no potatoes in Bulgaria. Pie is given the greatest distinction at the dining table and it is considered ill-mannered for one to accept a cut when it is offered the first time. After two or three entreaties you may then accept a portion.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is a Constitutional cure. Price 75 cents.

Costly Fish.

The most beautiful and costly fishes in the world come from China, and the rarest and most expensive of all is the brush-tail gold fish. Specimens of these have been sold as high as $700 each, and in Europe the prices range from $250 to $500. The brush-tail gold-fish is so small that a five-shilling piece will cover it, and probably there is no living thing of its size and weight that is worth so much money.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Cures swollen feet, blisters and callous spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for ingrowing nails, sweating, hot, aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Ten Spots, Etc.

"Doctor, my husband says black and red spots appear before his eyes every night. What do you advise?"

"I advise that he stop playing poker."

Chautauqua Lake Excursion

Via the Nickel Plate Road. Tickets will be available July 28th, good returning until August 29th, at special low rates. Do not miss this opportunity of visiting this beautiful resort. A Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains Daily. Palace Sleeping Cars. Superb Dining Car Service. Elegant Equipment. Ask Agents.

The flights of the human mind are not from enjoyment to enjoyment, but from hope to hope.—Johnson.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is our only medicine for coughs and colds.—Mrs. C. Beltz, 439 8th ave., Denver, Col., Nov. 8, 1895.

The ancient Danes ate wild bull, seal, beaver, periwinkle and birds.

Eagle Linen Letter Paper and Envelopes are the proper thing. Tell your printer to use this in and on your next order.

$2.00 Fort Wayne to Chicago and return every Sunday via. the Nickel Plate Road.

FREE FOR 10 DAYS.

5 DROPS [TRADE MARK] By sending 4 cents in postage we will, by return mail, send you a Sample Bottle of our famous Remedy, "5 Drops," for the positive cure of the following diseases: RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Toothache, Nervousness, Neuralgic Headache, Heart Weakness, Earache, Malaria, Dropsy, Creeping Numbness, BRONCHITIS and LA GRIPPE. Don't fail to avail yourself of this great opportunity, and REMEMBER it is only for 10 days from issue of this paper. Large Bottles (300 doses) $1.00. SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO., 160-164 E. Lake street, Chicago, Ill.

PORTO RICO!

Are you interested in the development of this fertile island? Do you seek information concerning its rare possibilities? Our corps of able and experienced men is at your service. Write us for information in any line of business, employment or pleasure seeking. Inclose postal order for $3.00 to cover expenses. Porto Rico Bureau of Information, San Juan, P. R.

FRANKLIN COLLEGE New Athens, O. 75th Yr. Sent out U. S. senators, governors, 350 Ministers. Total cost, $136 year. 8 courses; books free; no saloons; catalog free, with plan to earn funds. W. A. WILLIAMS, D. D., Pres.

LADIES: The Periodical Monthly Regulator never fails; convince yourself; write for free box. NEW YORK CHEMICAL CO., Box 78, Milwaukee, Wis.

F. W. N. U. - - No. 30—'99.

When Writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

A Year of Important Events.

"In looking over the events that have happened during the years of my life," said an old resident to a Star reporter, "I think the year of 1851 produced the greatest number and the happenings were of a greater diversity of interest. Jenny Lind came to this country that year under the $50,000 contract with Barnum, and sang her songs with wonderful sweetness and equally wonderful profits to Mr. Barnum. The sloop America won the cup for the fastest sailing, defeated the world, and the old ship still exists and can hold her own even against the modern boats with their extensive keels. Louis Kossuth visited America in 1851 and gave a great impetus to national and international politics. The first world's fair, the Crystal Palace at London, was held in 1851, and though it was a long time ago it is not forgotten and has not been surpassed by the world's fairs which have followed.—Washington Star.

Niagara Falls Annual Excursion.

On Tuesday, August 15th, the Nickel Plate Road will run its Seventeenth Annual Excursion to Niagara Falls. Tickets are good returning for fifteen days. Tickets to Toronto will be sold in connection with this excursion at $1.00 extra and to the Thousand Islands at $6.50 extra. The usual privilege of stop-over at Chautauqua Lake will be granted without extra charge. Secure your Sleeping Car reservations early. Tickets good returning on any one of our Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains. Remember the date. For further particulars inquire of Agents Nickel Plate Road.

A Horse on Somebody.

First American—Bicycles and automobiles. What show has the horse in Paris? You seldom even see him on the boulevards.

Second American (who has just dined)—No, he's in the soup.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething: softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

WANTED—Case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. Send 5 cents to Ripans Chemical Co., New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials.

Cuba was settled more than fifty years before the first settlements in the United States, yet there are miles and miles of rich country land which has never been touched in the island.

REGISTER OF TREASURY.

Hon. Judson W. Lyons, Register of the United States Treasury, in a letter from Washington, D. C., says:

HON. JUDSON W. LYONS, REGISTER OF THE TREASURY.

April 23, 1899.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—I find Pe-ru-na to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Pe-ru-na.

JUDSON W. LYONS.

No man is better known in the financial world than Judson W. Lyons. His name on every piece of money of recent date, makes his signature one of the most familiar ones in the United States. Hon. Lyons' address is Augusta, Ga. He is a member of the National Republican Committee, and is a prominent and influential politician. He is a particular friend of President McKinley.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhœa and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhœa, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

WABASH

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS To Western Points,

August 1 and 15, Sept. 5 and 19, Oct. 3 and 17, 1899.

On the above dates the WABASH will sell from its principal stations East of Chicago and Toledo, Ill., LOW RATE HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSION Tickets to points West, South, and Southwest, granting a liberal return limit. A postal card addressed to any Wabash Ticket Agent, or to either of the following Passenger Representatives will bring you prompt and explicit information regarding rates, routes, time of trains, through car service, condition of tickets, etc., etc.

REMEMBER

The WABASH is the only line east of Chicago and St. Louis giving its patrons seats, without extra charge, in ELEGANT RECLINING CHAIR CARS running through to St. Louis and Kansas City without change.

This is your chance to go West cheap. Communicate with us.

F. E. DOMBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
C. F. WOLFSCHLAGER, P. & T. A. Detroit, Mich.
TEO'S FOLLEN, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
GEO. D. MAXFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

"A Fair Face Cannot Atone for An Untidy House." Use SAPOLIO

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

LOW RATE EXCURSION

To Atlantic City, N. J., and other Seaside Resorts, via B. & O. Railroad.

In order to give its patrons an opportunity to visit the seashore at a nominal cost, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell low rate excursion tickets to Atlantic City, Cape May and Sea Isle City, N. J., and Ocean City, Md., on Thursday, August 3, 1899.

Atlantic City has acquired such fame as a summer resort that a description of its varied attractions is superfluous Thousands are annually attracted to this delightful resort for the enjoyment of magnificent surf bathing, and to avail themselves of the unequalled opportunities for sailing, fishing, etc.

Tickets will be available for all regular trains, and will be good for return fifteen days, including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing. Stop over not to exceed ten days within limit of ticket will be allowed at Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Md., and Philadelphia, Pa., in either or both directions.

To secure the stop-over privileges conductor should be notified prior to reaching stop-over point and tickets should be deposited with depot ticket agent immediately upon arrival.

Further information will be given upon application to nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent, Chicago. 29-30

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CHRISTIAN UIONN

Of the United Presbyterian Church, Annual Convention Pittsburq, Pa., August 2 to 7, 1899.

On August 1 to 5 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Pittsburg, Pa., at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Pittsburg to and including August 15, 1899.

Extension of Return Limit: Tickets may be extended to leave Pittsburg not later than August 31, by deposit of ticket with Joint Agent, and on payment of a fee of 50 cents per ticket at time of deposit.

For further information, call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 29-30

LOW RATE EXCURSION

To Chicago via Baltimore & Ohio Ry.

On Saturday, July 29, the B. & O. will sell excursion tickets to Chicago, Ill., at rate of $1 for the round trip, account of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen excursion.

Special train leaves Auburn Junction at 5:25 a. m.

Tickets good returning on special trains leaving Chicago at 8:10 p. m. July 29 and 8:10 p. m. July 30.

CHAUTAUQUA MEETING

Mountain Lake Park, Md., Aug. 2-30, '99 Half Fare via B. & O. Railroad.

August 1 to 30 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Mountain Lake Park at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Mountain Lake Park August 31.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or. B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 34

Excursion to Sandusky

VIA B. & O. R. R.

On Sunday July 30, the B. &. O. will sell excursion tickets to Sandusky, Ohio, at rate of $1.00 for the round trip.

Train leaves Auburn Junction at 4:30 a. m. Returning train leaves Sandusky at 6 p. m.

WHEELMEN

should never be without a box of Beggs' German Salve; it gives instant relief. Heals sores, cuts, bruises and chafing. H. B. McCord's drug store.

Sherift'S Sale.

By virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, in a cause wherein William McCullough, Theodore Gary, partners doing business under the firm name of Ashley Banking Company are plaintiffs, and Emma C. Yackee, Chris G. Yackee are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Seven Hundred and Nine Dollars and Twenty-seven Cents ($709.27), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at PUBLIC SALE, to the highest bidder on

Saturday, August 12, 1899

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day, at the door of the court house in Auburn DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate towit:

Lot sixteen (16), block twenty-eight (28) in the town of Ashley, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs. Said sale will, be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN H. HATHAWAY,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana,

Auburn Indiana, July 19, 1899.

—There is a prevailing belief that any person has a right to borrow a seine and use it without violating the new fish law, and that the required license is for the purpose of buying or owning a seine, says the Valparaiso Messenger. Such is positively not the case. No one is privileged to use a seine without he is individually licensed to do so, even though he may be in company with a person who has a license.

GAVE UP ALL HOPE.

Louis Pricket, 509 Bryan Ave., Danville, Ill., writes: I had suffered several years with asthma and after trying a great many remedies I had given up all hope. I was advised to try Foley's Honey and Tar. It immediately stops the coughing spells and I get my breath more freely. It is the only medicine that ever gave me relief.

—An Illinois farmer fondly thinks he has discovered a new potato bug. They are merely black, lively fellows that were seen now and then about the time the Colorado bug came. They would go to the hill in a body and strip it clean. Then on to another, and so on. But you could scare them away with a bunch of bushes.

Would Have Cost Him His Life.

I have been using Foley's Kidney Cure and take great pleasure in stating it gave me permanent cure of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life. I recommend it to anyone afflicted with kidney trouble.

OSCAR BOWMAN, Lebanon, Ky.

—A newly married editor gets off the following: "What is the difference between a honeycomb, a honeymoon and a pretty girl? A honeycomb is a small cell, a honeymoon is a big sell and a pretty girl a damsel."

There Is No ? About It.

No question indeed with those who have used it, but that Foley's Kidney Cure is absolutely reliable for all kidney and bladder diseases.

—Oiled streets are now in use at a number of places and the new plan is said to be very successful. Crude oil is used and it is claimed that the cost of the work, including grading, is less than $300 per mile.

A LITTLE KNOWN FACT.

That most serious diseases originate in disorder of the kidneys. No hope of good health while the kidneys are wrong. Foley's Kidney Cure is guaranteed to make the kidneys right.

—Cholera infantum is said to be raging in many parts of the state. The state board of health suggests as a remedy proper feeding and proper care; above all cleanliness is essential.

Wednesday's Daily.

—Ask any druggist for a free Pe-ru-na Almanac for the year 1899.

—Miss Maud Elson of Fairfield is visiting her cousin Olive Elson.

—Mrs. Anna Silver went to Butler today and will remain until Friday.

—D. M. Link went to Chicago this morning where he has an important case in court.

—T. H. Leasure and wife of Mount Ayr, Iowa, are here for an extended visit with relatives and friends.

—Mr. and Mrs. Simps. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Evan Kutzner and niece go to Hamilton lake tomorrow to spend the day.

—Wm. Derthick found a big turtle on G, I. Paterson's land Sunday. It had on its lower shell a name and the date 1875.

—Rev. T. M. Guild has purchased a cottage on Mullett Lake in the Petoskey country and will soon go up there for a vacation.

—Marion Cramer is still walking with a "game" foot the result of one of his horses stepping on that member a week or two ago.

—Miss May Adams returned to her home at Kankakee Ill., today after a visit in the family of her grandfather, Doctor James Adams.

—C. M. Brown and family left last evening for Hamilton where they will spend a week visiting relatives and enjoying an outing at the lake.

—Pauline Rose came home Monday afternoon, accompanied by little Dorothy Torrance, a grand daughter of Warren Webster, and will be here for some time.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Baker went to Chicago yesterday, and from that point he goes out into Illinois wherever his house, the Milwaukee Harvester Co., sends him.

—Prof. Harrison will go to Lorain county, Ohio, and accompany his mother to her early home at Hartford, Conn. Mr. Harrison will also spend a few days at Oberlin, Ohio.

—Mrs. Minnie Hildebrand of Andrews, Mrs. Jane Case of Fairfield Center, Mrs. Jno. Knoder and Mrs. Sarah Cass were entertained by Mrs. Matt Case on Ensley avenue yesterday.

—Sherm J. Peterson formerly telegraph operator at the Lake Shore depot has retired from the business and is now acting as Secty. of "The Peterson Land, Stock and Investment Co." at Rocky Ford, Colo.

—Business seems to be booming at the Standard Manufacturing Co's plant and all hands are kept busy turning out their electric cigar lighters, which have a well-earned reputation of being the best on the market.

—Dr. Baxter is making a desperate effort to avoid war, and as far as possible he arranges for the report to show one of a kind. At Fred Mohr's in the north end it is a girl, and at Wm. Balentine's near New Era it is a boy, both born yesterday.

—A Churubusco lady, Mrs. Esther Duglay, is collecting old magazines and other literature for the use of the men in the state prisons. She is deeply interested in her work and has sent several barrels of good reading matter to the prison chaplains.

—The Kendallville Sun says a new town has been laid out at the new cement works near Helmer and named Haywood City in honor of Wm. Haywood, its promoter. A number of men are already on the ground and will take advantage of the opening to start different enterprises.

—The Modern Woodmen have placed an order for a full set of costumes for their degree team, to cost about $250. This order is having a rapid growth in Auburn. When the boys once get their new lodge room in shape and all the paraphernalia they will be prepared to give new members a warm reception.

—While carrying mortar to the bricklayers on the sewer last evening Lou Renn attempted to cross a plank laid across the trench when the board broke letting him fall to the bottom, a distance of about fourteen feet. Renn was pretty badly shaken up and bruised and Dr. Nusbaum was called to attend him. No bones were broken and the young man was able to resume work today.

—According to the new law, township trustees must publish their proposed tax levies in each of the two leading county papers representing the two great political parties, one time the first week in August. The advisory board and tax-payers have a right to object to the proposed levies at the regular annual meeting of the board the first Tuesday in September, at which time the levies will be fixed.

—Garrett Clipper:—The report circulated to the effect that Dr. M. W. Johnson was going to move to Auburn is unfounded. The report grew out of the recent death of his father who was also a dentist, and left a good practice at Auburn to which it was thought Dr. Johnson would succeed. He has built up a reputation here, however, as a dentist that barred serious contemplation of such a step and his many clients and friends will be pleased to know that he will remain in Garrett.

—"J. A. Barns has been editor of the Auburn COURIER for the past twenty-nine years."—Waterloo Press. About eleven years too strong, Bro. Willis.—Angola Republican. Both the brethren read our item a little carelessly. We said we "bought this office 29 years ago," which was correct. The "Air Line" office was the same, as was later called the COURIER, some of the material being still in use, such as stones and cases. When we sold the office, we were out of it ten years to a week, not eleven.

Thursday's Daily.

—G. I. Patterson was in town on a business visit today.

—The Greenler Co., wants your live elm bolts. See their advertisement elsewhere.

—The Hoosier quartet is on the program for music two days at the Island Park assembly.

—Dr. J. E. Graham, the dentist, will visit Waterloo each week to look after his work there.

—The Gonser family will hold a reunion Aug. 19 at the home of Ellis Gonser, north of Ashley.

—Christ Ashelman and daughter Pearl, returned today from a visit with relatives at Turkey Creek.

—E. Zimmerman, wife and daughter Bessie, drove to St. Joe today to attend the Sunday school meeting there.

For sores, ulcers, burns, galls, piles nothing so good as Banner Salve, the most healing medicine in the world. 25c.

—The annual meeting and banquet of the alumni of the Tri-State Normal college at Angola will be held August 3.

—Mrs. Eli Kandel, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Dr. Johnston returned today to her home near Fort Wayne.

—Ex-Treasurer Hine lost six acres of hay by fire on his farm one day last week; caused by sparks from a locomotive on the Lake Shore road.

—G. A. Smith of Chicago, arrived yesterday and will be the guest of the families of his brothers-in-law, Isaac Hague and Chas. Raut, and other relatives.

—The Greenler Co., Auburn, will pay $2.00 per cord, cash, for good live elm bolts ten inches and over in diameter and 32 inches long, delivered at factory in Auburn. 25-30.

—Charlie Moses, the veteran B. & O. engineer, has temporarily retired from service and during his absence engineer Trainer will have the runs on trains No. 14 and 47.

—If you should happen to have a gasoline fire throw flour on it, or meal or sand, but never water. Flour, meal or sand will put the fire right out while water only spreads it.

—The editor of the Sullivan Times recently returned from his honeymoon, and that week one of the most prominent headlines of an article in his paper was, "marriage is not a failure."

—The town is jam full of people now, as so many improvements call for more men. We are told that the Tom Tomlinson residence on West Ninth street accommodates over twenty of the sewer men.

—Picker Bros. have secured the contract for the building of Frank Kircher's new residence at Garrett and will begin work next week. They are now at work tuck-pointing the exterior of the jail residence.

—MARRIED:—At the residence of Marshal E. M Hilkey in Auburn at 2 p m. today by Rev. W. L. Meese, John R. Ranor of Maysville, Ind., and Nettie Schindler of LaGrange county. They will reside at Maysville.

—Simon Haines, who has the flower garden, or park at Sedan, was a caller yesterday. He says his earlier flowers are mostly gone now, but in a month or so, the later ones will be in bloom, and then the garden will be opened to the public again.

—John Keeran and family, and the Misses Ellen and Laura Keeran together with their cousins, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Lawyer and Miss Ashton, drove to Robison Park this morning. The trip includes a call at the old farm, which was the Keeran homestead in earlier days.

—Roy Kroom, the lad who was sent to the state reform school at Plainfield nearly a year ago, shows a great deal of improvement in the letters written home. He has enough hard work to develop muscle, and habits of industry, but says the boys have pleasant recreations.

—At the meeting of the city council at Garrett Tuesday night a franchise for an electric line from that place to Auburn was asked for by Louis M. Latta of Goshen. The petition was laid on the table, and if such a franchise is granted it will probably be given to some one nearer home, as the Clipper expresses it.

—The tickets to the Annie Philley company entertainment at the Methodist church on the evening of the 31st of July, are placed at a figure to simply cover expenses. Single ticket ten cents, two tickets fifteen cents. The entertainment will be fully equal to those for which a larger fee is usually charged.

—Mrs. Charles Schaab entertained a few lady friends to dinner today. They were the "widows of fishermen" now absent at Burt lake, viz, Mrs. A. C. Robbins, Mrs. Morris Eckhart, Mrs. S. C. Snyder and Mrs. W. C. Hartman. As the husband of the last named is not at Burt lake, we suppose she came in as an honorary member.

—Freeman Hensinger, who was hurt by a cave-in at the sewer yesterday, is considered out of danger. It took him all afternoon to get the right use of himself, and to breathe right, as his lungs had been pressed in. His legs required some time to get right. But if nothing is injured more than is now known, he will soon be about.

—The Angola Republican says some farmers are obeying the law in regard to cutting down obnoxious weeds and grasses, while others ignore the law by laying down the scythe and going fishing. Some people in Auburn must have the fishing fever, judging from the fact that the weeds about their premises are allowed to grow in profusion.

Friday's Daily.

—Remember the Meese Matrimonial Reunion at Auburn, Aug. 15. tf.

—Father Young of Garrett was in town today calling on friends.

—Mrs. Michael Lumm of Columbia City is visiting friends in Auburn.

—Auditor Seiler went to Indianapolis today. Mrs. Seiler and children have gone to Newville to remain over Sunday.

—W. R. Davis the piano man has sold a piano to our former friend Moletus High, for the use of Mr. High's daughter.

—Chas. S. Olds of Minneapolis, Minn., a grandson of the late S. N. Olds of St. Joe, is visiting relatives in that part of the county.

—Masters George and Cassius Coats from near Newville, drove to Auburn yesterday and made several pleasant calls on friends.

—Gen. Lawson is the oldest member of Harmony Oddfellows' lodge, Fort Wayne, and the lodge will present him with a veteran's jewel.

"I have received more benefit from one bottle of Foley's Kidney Cure than from months of treatment by physicians" writes V. B. Conklin of Bowersville, O.

—Z. T. Sweeny, Columbus, and his brother, John Sweeny, Kentucky, are both at the head of the Christian church in their respective states and both have entered politics.

—Miss Della Maginnis, who is engaged as teacher for the third grade in the Auburn schools next year, was in town today conferring with the other teachers in regard to the work.

—If you wish to see substantial improvments stop a minute in front of John Lochner's new houses on South Jackson, and, as the motto of Michigan has it, "Circumspice;" that is, look about you.

—M. B. Masters brought us in some of the biggest and best potatoes we have seen this year. He has good ground, and then made it rich, and then cultivated it nicely, and now he is rewarded for it, by a lovely crop.

—S. E. Long of Richmond, Va., has sent copies of the Richmond Dispatch to his Bapist friends in Auburn, containing reports of the B. Y. P. U. A. meeting in that city. Mr. Long is the only brother of Mrs. Judge McClellan.

—Dr. Vesta Swarts has a specimen insect that the party sending it thinks may be a "kissing bug." It is not recognized by anyone as a familiar insect, and yet it may be only such. It is about an inch long, and of a brownish color, —This week's Warsaw Indianian contains a scathing write up of a dead beat subscriber in Arkansas who took the paper for over eleven years without paying for it and then put it back in the postoffice marked "refused." The fellow got just what he deserved.

—Hard work steady hanging on and a determination to make the point, generally win. M. B. Masters has been in debt to the Loan Association some years, but can now see daylight. The next payment clears the books and he will be out of debt, and have a comfortable property and home. We are glad to hear this.

—Albert Roe, the one-armed wheelman, will start from New York Sunday to ride a bicycle across the continent. He will follow the route taken by the relay riders several years ago and will pass through Waterloo. He rides without handle bars, the machine being steered by a crotch protruding from the steering head.

—FARMERS:—Send me your name and address together with the name of the wheat you grew this year, and how many acres you will sow this fall, and I will send you some samples of new wheat and a proposition to supply your seed. Don't neglect this. Mention this paper. J. A. EVERITT, Seedsman, Indianapolis, Ind. 30

—Spencerville will have a big celebration on Friday, August 4. The sports will include a ball game between Antwerp and Spencerville clubs, bicycle and foot races, fireworks, etc., balloon ascension and a fine concert. The people of Spencerville are preparing to give everybody a good time and should the weather be pleasant they will doubtless have a big crowd.

—M. B. Masters came near being seriously hurt yesterday. He had called at the Kiblinger factory on some business and in going through a part of the big rooms that get but little light, his foot struck the elevator, that had been lowered to that floor, and he fell violently. His head, face and hands were considerably bruised, but he was not seriously injured. But it might have been serious.

—The horse sale at the stock yards yesterday was a success from a financial point of view, the entire lot of animals being disposed of at prices ranging from $18 to $50 The most of the horses were purchased by Auburn parties, though buyers were present from Albion, Garrett, Waterloo and other points. The spectators had lots of fun watching the purchasers removing the animals from the enclosure as nearly if not all were unbroken and as wild as deers. When once broken, however, they will make serviceable horses.

—John Pixter and John Mason, of Russiaville, Howard County, Ind. recently applied for a saloon license. Two hundred persons signed a remonstrance and thus defeated the applicants. By way of retaliation they had the remonstrators subpoenaed to appear before the commissioners to answer such questions as might be propounded to them. They answered the summons in a body, headed by a brass band. After being examined they put in their claim for witness fees. The commissioners refused to grant the license.

Saturday's Daily.

—Len Shipe of Fairfield was in town today on business matters.

—Mr. Deems of near Butler, has got his original pension at last.

—Miss Lydia Teeters is engaged in the schools at Plymouth, Ind., next year.

—The loss by the fire at Avilla yesterday morning will aggregate about $5,000.

—FOR SALE:—Good second-hand organ; will be sold cheap. Inquire at this office.

—Nineteen new recruits for service in the Philippines were enlisted at Ft. Wayne yesterday.

—Chas. Foltz of Garrett and S. K. Velliquette of Michigan wrestled at Columbia City last night.

—If you have good live elm bolts for sale it will pay you to read the advertisement of the Greenler Co. 25-30.

—Michigan reports only one-fourth of a peach crop, though other fruits will make a pretty good showing.

—The only places in the country that report a full peach crop, are Vineland, N. J., and the various fruit regions of California.

—Democratic day at the Island Park assembly will be Saturday, July 29. The afternoon address will be by Hon. W J. Bryan.

—John Lochner, sr., uncle of John C. Lochner of this place, died at Leo Thursday evening. The funeral will be on Sunday.

—Mrs. George Post of Fennville, Mich., is expected to arrive from La-Otto this evening, for a brief visit with the Misses Keeran.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—FOR SALE:—Short horn bulls, calves and yearlings, pure bloods and high grades. Call on A. B. Walsworth at his farm east of Auburn. 25-30.

—Remember, that when in need of a vehicle of any kind you can always find what you want at D. N. Myer's sales room, in Auburn. Surreys, Bug-Phaetons, etc.

—The COURIER office has been rushed with job work this week, and had to have a good deal of extra help. One job press alone made nearly 30,000 impressions in the six days.

—John Spooner, son of Dr. Spooner of Peru, is here to spend Sunday with his grandfather, Dr. Ford. He came over from Warsaw where he is attending the Winona summer school.

—Rev. Richard Locke, a former Waterloo boy went south on the forenoon train to visit his brother Dell, at Bluffton. He has been at Waterloo several days visiting the relatives and old-time neighbors

—A young man at Rushville wanted to join the army, but at the examination, lacked four pounds of the required weight. He studied the case. Went to dinner, ate and drank all he hold, came back and passed all right.

—Lorren Means and family went to their former home in DeKalb county Saturday to visit relatives and friends. Since arriving there Mr. Means' father has become seriously sick and he is not expected to live. Lagrange Democrat.

—Deputy Revenue Collector McGoogan of Fort Wayne says the year allowed for stamping deeds made without the revenue stamp has expired, and the proper stamp must be placed on all papers, or there will be prosecutions.

—John A. Sawyer of this place, quit work on the sewer a few days ago, and went over to his old home in Wilmington township where his parents had a lot of work for him. In three days he had re-cleaned 1800 feet of ditch for them.

—The largest and finest crop of corn we have seen is the big field east of town on Dr. Ford's farm. It is the full height of a big crop, and Bert Mochamer who raised it is proud of it, as he has a right to be. His oats crop in the same field is about as good.

—Remember the Lake Shore excursion to Niagara Falls July 27th. Train goes north through Auburn at 5:25 p. m. and connects at Waterloo with the east bound train at 8:51. The fare for the round trip is $6.25 from Auburn, and $5 85 from Waterloo and Butler.

—An exchange says: "A pretty woman's hat can be made for 50c." That may be. A pretty woman can dress very plain and yet be handsome. But the question of the greatest importance, outside of Auburn, is, "What is the average cost of a homely woman's hat?"

—Mr. W. Ijams, who has been recently been re-elected treasurer of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, has been in the employ of the company for forty-six years and has been treasurer since May 1866. When a small boy in Baltimore, he saw the great parade that Baltimoreans arranged to celebrate the laying of the corner stone of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad on July 4th, 1832.

—About 200 people of all ages and religious opinions went over to Madden's field yesterday afternoon to see Arizona Pete perform with a horse and a rifle. After a long harangue to the sun-burning victims he mounted a very sedate and thin horse, which seemed so well pleased at the honor that it refused to budge an inch. Then he got off; another bronco buster got on. The result was the same. The horse was evidently in a serene frame of mind and accustomed to the ordeal. Then a few shots were fired, say, a dozen, quite skillfully done, and after a few 15-cent books of the daring bronco buster's adventures had been sold, Madden's field contained only grass.

WABASH

GOING EAST.

No. 2	6:25 am	Daily
No 8	8:34 am	Daily
No. 4	4:59 pm	Daily
No. 70 (local freight)	2:05 pm	ex Su
No. 96	11:35 am	ex Su
No. 98	8:30 pm	ex Su

GOING WEST.

No. 1	10:21 am	Daily
No 9	5:30 am	Daily
No. 3	7:48 am	Daily
No. 71 (local freight)	9:15 am	ex Su
No. 95	6:02 pm	ex Su
No. 97	7:52 am	ex Su

All these trains stop for passengers.
For rates, tickets, time tables, etc. apply to
I. M. ZENT, Agent, Auburn, Ind
Chas. M. Hays, V. Pres. and Gen'l Manager.
O. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent

B. & O. R. R.

Schedule In Effect Nov. 22 '98

Leaves Auburn Junction.

WEST BOUND.

No. 3 Express, to Garrett only	5:25 p m
No. 5 Daily	4:30 a m
No. 7 Daily	4:17 p m
No. 17 Daily Except Sunday	12:25 p m
No 47	1:58 a m

EAST BOUND.

No. 4 Express	4:30 a m
No. 6 Daily	8:05 p m
No. 8 Daily	2:35 p m
No 14 Daily	11:17 p m
No 16, Daily, except Sunday	11:08 a m

F. D. UNDERWOOD, General Manager,
D. B. MARTIN, Manager of Passenger Traffic.
G. H. YOUNG, Auburn Junction, Ind
THOS. H. SPROTT CHAS. H. KNAPP

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE—in Effect June 25 1899.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations	Mail	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne	11 45 am	4 40 pm	5 55 am
New Era	12 12 pm	5 08	6 40
Auburn Junction	12 25	5 21	7 10
Auburn	12 29	5 25	7 35
Waterloo	12 41	5 36	8 15
Summit	12 51	5 46	8 35
Steubenville	12 54	5 49
Pleasant Lake	1 03	5 56	8 58
Angola	1 13	6 06	9 35
Jackson	3 25	8 25	9 40

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations	Fre'gt	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson dp	5 55 am	11 45 am	6 15 am
Angola	11 00	2 19 pm	8 44
Pleasant Lake	11 35	2 29	8 55
Steubenville		2 36	9 10
Summit	11 50	2 39	9 04
Waterloo	12 41 pm	2 55	9 23
Auburn	1 20	3 05	9 33
Auburn Junction	1 35	3 09	9 36
New Era	1 54	3 18	9 46
Fort Wayne	2 50	3 50	10 02

For rates on tickets or freight to all points call on or address E. T. DELAPP, Agent Auburn.

Fort Wayne BUSINESS COLLEGE,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Latest and Best Methods.
The Best Equiped.
Superior Courses in all Branches.
Book-keeping, Shorthand, Penmanship, Typewriting, Banking Telegraphy and English.

You Want Success, Write Us for Full Particulars and Circulars.

E. D. DOUGLASS, Pres.

William's Kidney Pills

Has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your Kidneys? Have you ove worked your nervous system and caused trouble with your Kidneys and Bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire pass urine? William's Kidney Pills will impart new life to the diseased organs, tone up the system and make a new man of you. By mail 50 cents per box.
WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Free of Charge.

Any adult suffering from a cold settled on the breast, bronchitis, throat or lung troubles of any nature, who will call on O. P. Raber, Corunna, will be presented with a sample bottle of Boschee's German Syrup, free of charge. Only just one bottle given to one person, and none to children without order from parents.

No throat or lung remedy ever had such a sale as Boschee's German Syrup in all parts of the civilized world. Twenty years ago millions of bottles were given away, and your druggists will tell you its success was marvelous. It is really the only Throat and Lung Remedy generally endorsed by physicians. One 75 cent bottle will cure or prove its value. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. 2

SOLDIERS' WIDOWS' HOME.

Wilmington, Ill., Sept. 13, 1897.

Syrup Pepsin Co., Gents: Your Syrup Pepsin has been used in our Home with great success. The ladies under my charge have grown so attached to it as a corrector of the many ailments of the stomach and bowels, that too great praise cannot be given it. In the relief of indigestion and sick headache it works to perfection.

MARGARET R. WICKINS, Matron.

DEAR SIRS: I take great pleasure in adding my testimony as to the efficiency of Syrup Pepsin as used in our Home. We use it in all cases of constipation and indigestion. Respectfully,

EVA J. SWEET, Nurse.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared for Piles and Itching of the private parts. Every box is warranted. By druggists, by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents and $1.00. WILLIAMS MANUFACTURING CO., Props., Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Volume XXIX | Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, Thursday, August 3, 1899 | Number 31.

J.E. Graham, D.D.S.
DENTIST
Over Davenport's Drugstore, Auburn, Ind.
CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK A SPECIALTY.
All Work Guaranteed } Gas Administered.
CENTRAL 'PHONE 513.
Will be at Waterloo each Thursday in Dr. Darby's Office.

C. S. SMITH,
Auburn, Ind.
Attorney-at-Law
AND NOTARY PUBLIC.
Office over Bazar Store, formerly occupied by Judge Hartman.

BANK First National
Auburn, Ind.
Capital Stock and Surplus
$60,000
Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest if left six months. County and Town Orders bought and sold. Money to Loan.
CHARLES McCLELLAN, President.
D. A. GARWOOD, Cashier.

Physicians T.G.Matheny,M.D J.B.Casebeer,M.D
Matheny & Casebeer
have again associated them selves in the practice of Medicine, Surgery & Obstetrics. Office On 9th St.
Western 'Phone:
Office..... No. 9
Matheny,s residence..... " 88
Casebeer's " ..... " 175

BANK Farmers,
Auburn, Ind.
(Incorporated and Under State Control)
Capital Stock and Surplus
$50,000
Transacts a General Banking Business and Pays Interest on Time Deposits.
Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry, V-Pres.
A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Physicians O. J. Swarts, M. D Vesta W. Swarts, M D
and SURGEONS
Office at Auburn Sanitary Baths, corner Main and Sixth Streets,
Professional Calls Promptly Answered.
'PHONES: Western..... No. 19 Central Union..... No. 19

DENTIST F. W. HOFFMAN,
Auburn, Ind.
Office in Gandy Building. Northeast Corner of Court Square.
WESTERN 'PHONE 103.
Crown and Bridge Work a Specialty

Sprott & Knapp,
Abstracters of Titles to Land and Lots,
AUBURN, IND.
Office in Gandy Block, North of Court House.

P. V. HOFFMAN,
LAWYER,
Auburn. Indiana
OFFICE over Hebel's Grocery.

Dr. Z. H. Stamets,
Physician & Surgeon
Office on Main St., opposite Swineford Hotel.
Western 'Phone 104
Special attention given to technical examinations and treatment of chronic and obscure cases, also special attention given to surgery and diseases of women. Calls answered at all hours. Office apart from residence.

I. O. BUCHTEL, HOMEOPATHIC
Physician and Surgeon.
Special attention given to chronic and Obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.
Office and residence over Madden Bros Marble Works. Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, day or night.

Eureka Harness Oil is the best preservative of new leather and the best renovator of old leather. It oils, softens, blackens and protects. Use
Eureka Harness Oil
on your best harness, your old harness, and your carriage top, and they will not only look better but wear longer. Sold everywhere in cans—all sizes from half pints to five gallons.
Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

Harness On the Other Horse.

Esquire Walter had a case last night that for a time promised to be one that would require more than the usual amount of legal acumen to unravel, but this the witnesses managed to accomplish themselves. Several weeks ago Amos VanAuken, of Pleasant Lake, in company with two young fellows named Harpham and Adams, drove to Ashley, and on the way the latter two, who are minors, contributed to a fund to be used in buying beer. The beer was secured and the drunk which followed led to the the arrest of VanAuken on a charge of buying liquor for minors. When the case was called Harpham testified that the beer was bought (as he supposed) by VanAuken, but a new phase was put on the matter when Adams swore that VanAuken declined to make the purchase at the last moment and that he (Adams) had secured the liquor through another party whose name he did not know, and afterwards placed it in Harpham's buggy. VanAuken was acquitted, but Adams' testimony turned the tables upon himself and he was promptly convicted on the charge of furnishing liquor to a minor (Harpham) and given the lowest fine under the law, $20 and costs, amounting in all to nearly $30. Adams failed to produce the necessary amount of coin, but after a little hustling found a friend who "stayed" the docket.

Winona Lake.

Dr. Henry Johnson reports the most successful season at Winona that they have ever had, not excepting the two seasons when the National Presbyterian Assembly was held there. In fact, he thinks they have been fortunate in not having the assembly as it gives a better chance for the various summer schools and similar work. This season, no less than eleven leading colleges and universities are represented there by summer classes and work. Among the other items of interest, should be named the school of Biology, an institute representing our own State University at Bloomington. This had been located at Wawasee for several years, but is now at the south end of Winona Park, a location they think is much better. Then there are teachers of specialties, such as music, drawing, etc, etc., many of them being of the highest character. One teacher has been for some time a leading member of Theodore Thomas' famous orchestra. And so one might go on and name scores. The big day for this year, is when McKinley and Cleveland will be there.

A Stingy Man.

The stingiest man has been found once more. He lives in Lake county, near Deep River. Several Hobart boys made a run to Crown Point and return last Sunday, and when in the locality above mentioned stopped for a short rest, under the shadow of a fine shade tree. One of the party was pumping wind into his tire when the owner of the premises spied the boys and came toward them, with a shot gun in his hand, and yelling at the top of his voice, "Here! What are you fellers doin' there? I don't want you usin' up all the air around here. Why don't you bring your wind with you? Git out o' here now." And the boys "got." They came home another road.

New Form of Money Order

Beginning September 15, a new form of postoffice money order will be brought into use, and will be a great improvement on the one now given by the postoffice. The greatest change in the system will be in the giving a receipt with each order. The receipt will be an exact fac simile of the original order when it is filled out. This method of making the fac simile will prevent any mistake, and at the same time will be conclusive proof that such an order was issued. If the order is lost in transmission this receipt will be redeemed by the office after a reasonable time has elapsed for search to be made for the missing order. The price for the orders will remain unchanged.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia, of Barcelona, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head. On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest Blood and Nerve remedy, all pains soon left him. He says this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. If weak, tired or ailing you need it. Every bottle guaranteed, only 50 cents. Sold by H. B. McCord the Druggist.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court as administratrix of the estate of SILAS B. JOHNSTON, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MARY E. JOHNSTON, Administratrix.

July 25, 1899.

Ross & Ross, Attorneys for Estate.

Here's a few items which may interest you. May seem a little early, but if you expect to buy later why not buy now and get first pick? We are showing an exceptionally pretty line of the nicest assortment we've had in several years.

New Fall Prints

A complete stock of

New Fall Hats

In this line you will find all the new shapes and colorings and at the prices you wish to pay.

A magnificent lot of

New Fall Neckwear

Clubs, Tecks, Flowing Ends, Band Bows and Puffs, made right in every respect and color which you cannot help admiring. Call in and look them over whether you wish to purchase or not.

A fine assortment of NEW SUSPENDERS. More styles and prettier designs than ever.

OVER TWENTY PATTERNS NEW FALL CARPETS. Those who have had a peek at them say they are the prettiest they have ever seen.

A big stock of BOYS' CLOTHING, beyond doubt the most desirable we have yet shown.

We are offering Shirt Waists, Wash Dress Goods and Summer Clothing at unheard of prices.

Come often.

We Are Saving You Money.

Schaab & Bro., Auburn, Ind.

Heard at the Band Stand

"A Chiel's amang ye, takin' notes, An' faith he'll print it."—ROBERT BURNS.

CHAPTER I.

These warm days, the lovely band stand on the public square is a place of ease and comfort that makes it an inviting resort to many Auburn people who have the leisure to enjoy it. Here in the shade, they sit and visit for hours and sometimes for half a day, or even all day, after taking out an hour for the noontide meal. Here are called upold memories and newer happenings, one starting the program with an incident that some remark has called to mind. His story reminds some one of another, and that reminds a third, and so on for hours. There is nothing vicious about these band stand talks and tales. They are entertaining and gossipy, and mostly reminiscent.

Some of the habitues are better story tellers than others, either owing to longer practice or a higher order of talent. So they naturally take the lead and receive the most marked attention. We shall in these articles, introduce a few, as occasion calls.

Two of the most constant frequenters of the band stand's attractive precincts are two veterans of the rebellion. These are "Veteran No. 1," and "Veteran No. 2." They are brimful of "moving incidents by flood and field" that they have treasured up among their memories and experiences of that great struggle. And these constitute largely, their share of the common stock in the program.

Then there is the "citizen," a man who has laid by the cares of active life, and has a fund of recollections drawn from the misty past. He has a few hours daily, that he can devote to the little colony at the band stand.

The "Idler" is also there. He could work if he chose. He ought to work in order to be self-sustaining. But he don't want to work, and having some hard working person at his back, he gets along easily and is a marked figure in the band stand.

The "Pioneer" is also in evidence, every few days, and does his share of the entertainment. He could tell more original things than he does, but the others keep the time too well filled for him.

There are many other interesting characters, that will no doubt be called up before this series is concluded.

And at last but not least, is the COURIER reporter, who in these chapters will try to offend none and amuse many.

The first meeting the COURIER reporter attended, they were discussing Agent Zent of the Wabash, who is always figuring in some practical joke. It was on all hands, agreed, that never but once, as far as the memory of the "Pioneer" ran back, did the crowd ever turn the tables on Zent. Here the Pioneer refreshed their memories on this bit of history.

Several years ago, a man named Long, in the employ of the Band Mill, had a tame bear, which he kept fastened up near the barn where the teams were lodged. Seeing no better way to get even with Zent, the gang waited one evening till he was engrossed in his accounts at the ticket office. Then they untied the bear and led him to the office. Zent was just adding a column of figures, that proved that the Old Reliable Wabash could outdo any other line in the extent of its business. The light was rather low and all was solemn and still, when a slight creak of the door hinges caused him to turn his head. The sight nearly paralyzed him. A big nose, then the shaggy body of a live bear pushed its way into the little room. There was one wild scream and Zent was trying to climb up the sloping sides of the big ticket case. But his feet refused to clear the floor, and he dashed across to the ticket window and jumped through, leaving a pair of long legs inside, and still exposed to the bear. But the sight that met his eyes relieved him. It was his tormentors, who hilariously hinted "Now, we're even."

Queer as it may seem, this reminded the "Idler" of a story or rather an incident. He was coming to the rendezvous at the band stand one morning, in early summer, when he saw a letter on the grass. It was not sealed and he opened it. He fished the letter from the depths of a big pocket. Here it is:

AUBURN, IND., March 12, 1899.

MISS NELLIE O'BRIEN,
PERU, INDIANA.

DEAR NELLIE:—Received your letter all O. K. Well, I will say I was very anxious about the answer.

Well, say, by the way, don't——cher——know, that we have been corresponding three years this summer, and havn't seen each other at all. I am sure I wont know you when I come down next summer, if I do.

The last line of the letter was missing.

"Now, who's Nellie O'Brien," queried half a dozen male gossips in chorus. But just then, Hollister's dinner bell rang, and broke up the meeting.

(To be continued.)

That Throbbing Headache

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and strong nerves and build up your health. Easy to take. Try them. Only 25 cents. Money back if not cured. Sold by H. B. McCord the druggist.

Kicked by a Horse.

Little Gladys Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Riley, the former being one of the foremen on the sewer work, was kicked this forenoon on the side of the neck and head by one of Mr. Abel's horses. He had driven up in front of Mrs. Richards', where the Rileys board, and was waiting to deliver some vegetables. He noticed the little girl standing across the street at H. E. Trout's having in her arms a large green frog made of paper. He had hardly turned his head before he heard a scream as she was knocked over. He thinks the horse was kicking flies, as it is gentle and used to children. But it probably kicked, as Edith Trout says she saw the little one close to the horse and she seemed to touch the horse with the paper frog. She called to her, telling her to come away as the horse would kick her, and at that moment the horse did kick. The child was thrown back and fell unconscious. She was carried into the house and soon revived, but seemed in great pain or fright, screaming and crying. Her father was sent for, and also Dr, Buchtel who gave the little one all possible relief, and eventually she got easy and went to sleep. It is hoped she is not seriously hurt.

August Flower.

"It is a surprising fact," says Prof. Houton, "that in my travels in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's August Flower than any other remedy, for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feelings from irregular habits exist, that Green's August Flower is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion." Sample bottles free at O. P. Raber's, Corunna. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. 1

The Pathfinders.

The Pathfinder Lodge will meet on Tuesday evening, August 1, to institute and elect officers. The charter will close on the above date and all desiring to take advantage of the cheap rates should apply at once. The order promises to be one of the leaders. It starts out with a fine charter list in this city. This order has some very desirable features not had in any of the other orders.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Sheriff'S Sale.

By virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, in a cause wherein William McCullough, Theodore Gary, partners doing business under the firm name of Ashley Banking Company are plaintiffs, and Emma C. Yackee, Chris G. Yackee are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Seven Hundred and Nine Dollars and Twenty-seven Cents ($709.27), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at PUBLIC SALE, to the highest bidder on

Saturday, August 12, 1899

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day, at the door of the court house in Auburn DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate lowit:

Lot sixteen (16), block twenty-eight (28) in the town of Ashley, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN H. HATHAWAY,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana.
Auburn Indiana, July 19, 1899.

WILLING TO HELP

Securing freedom from the grip of catarrh makes loyal friends for the liberator.

Pe-ru-na has been making friends of this kind for many years. It cures catarrh wherever located.

Mrs. R. Eades, of 35 Twenty-eighth St., Detroit, Mich., is one of the many thousand of Pe-ru-na's friends. This is what she says to Dr. Hartman:

"We have used your Pe-ru-na with the most remarkable results and would not be without it. We have always recommended it to our friends. A few years ago I purchased a bottle of your Pe-ru-na and after seeing its results, recommended it to my grocer who was troubled with dyspepsia, the curing of which induced her to sell it in her store. She has sold large amounts of it. My daughter has just been cured of jaundice with Pe-ru-na. My pen would grow weary were I to begin to tell you of the numerous cures Pe-ru-na has effected in our immediate vicinity within the last couple of years."

Dr. Hartman, President of the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, Ohio, will counsel and prescribe for fifty thousand women this year free of charge. Every suffering woman should write for special question blank for women, and have Dr. Hartman's book, "Health and Beauty." All druggists sell Pe-ru-na.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

West to the Rockies.

THIRD LETTER.

Sight seeing: While spending a few days among the "Rockies." We were very busy viewing the magnificent scenery near our stopping place. At Victor we saw mines in operation, some operated by the latest improved machinery, while others used the drills, hammers and picks common to miners of earlier days. At one of those mines we climed down the ladders to where men were drilling the rocks, and witnessed the shooting of several drilled holes. Three men were working at that mine and while the ore was considered good, yet none had been sent away. One of the men was John Shimp, a former DeKalb county, Ind., boy. We then visited Broadmoor, that is a summer resort at the foot of the mountains and near Colorado Springs. At that place we learned something of the vast extent of territory required for games and English sports. One game golf I believe, I was informed, required over a section of land. We passed from Broadmoor, up among the mountains along what is called North Canyon, for several miles, when our party rested and spread out the cloth and ate our luncheon. While the others of the party selected a shady nook for a place to sleep a few minutes, two children and I undertook the task of going to the top of one of the many high peaks. We started and were soon called by the mother of the children, but we climbed higher and higher until we reached the summit, when we looked over the rocks to the place where our friends were located, they looking like very small people. And then we retreated back over the top for a distance and were soon out of their view. We were viewing Pike's Peak, hunting flowers, etc. Soon one of the children called and said, "I see fresh tracks like the bare foot of a baby." I examined them and followed for a distance when I concluded they were tracks of a bear, and coming near a cave I changed the course of the adventure and we returned to find our party had broken camp and moved down the canyon, owing to a fall of rain and we followed after, in the rain.

W. H. LEAS.

Almost a Centenarian.

(Corydon, Ind., Republican.)

"Uncle" Jefferson Stepro is an old and highly esteemed citizen, residing with his daughter, Mrs. Neafus, in Boone township, this county. "Uncle" Jeff. was born on Christmas day, and if he lives until next Chrismas he will be ninety-nine years old. He was born in Lebanon, Kentucky, and came to Heth township in 1806. His memory, hearing and eyesight are good, and has hoed corn every day this season when the ground was suitable. He is a remarkably well-preserved and vigorous gentleman for one of his age. No one would suppose him to be so old at least by a score of years. He attributes his excellent physical and mental condition to a life of abstemious habits. May he live many years longer.

The Republican this week adds "Uncle Jeff" says he will attend the county fair next month." Dr. J. C. Baxter, then practicing in Harrison county, was called to treat the old gentleman for a case of grip. He was then 92, and that was the only sickness he has ever had, the Doctor being the only physician he ever had.

Public Printing.

The unwisdom of having to let the country printing in the way it is now let is shown just now. The bid was made and accepted with the thought that about all the work to be done was fully known and the bid made accordingly. But since then, the new laws have added many expensive books and much blank work, and yet we suppose it will all have to be done under the original contract. So instead of the successful bidder making a reasonable profit for his work, he will suffer a heavy loss. This work should be left entirely to the offices and they should proceed to get what they need, and make their orders as their needs become known and place them as far as possible with home officers. Then no one would be the loser, and the county simply pay for what it gets. Now it is going to get a large amount of stationery, etc, without really paying a cent for it, which we submit is not right.

Meese Matrimonial Meeting.

Remember the date and place of the annual meeting of the Meese Matrimonial Reunion. It is at Auburn on the fair ground east of town, August 15. All come with baskets and the whole family, and have the best meeting we have had.

Has Lumber Piles.

Everybody was wrought up last evening by a report that A. Lewis was sick, then that he had died suddenly at Lakeside. No one seems to know where or by whom it was started. But it finally took the form of one of those unaccountable little hoaxes that are sprung now and then. It was told, and many believed it, that while Mr. Lewis was not dead, he had a bad case. Then the lister would ask, "A bad case of what?" The answer would be, "Lumber Piles." One or two doctors replied, that there was no such a thing. But the scheme was fully exposed when one enthusiastic joker had it "Lumbago Piles." Then everybody scratched his head, and by suggesting "lumber piles," the "incident" was over. But whether a joke like this is legitimate or not, we are not able to decide. There is no question but Mr. Lewis has lumber piles, and piles of lumber.

"After Your Boy."

One of the delegates to a state convention of Christian Endeavors, a young business man came suddenly upon a red-faced citizen who had evidently been patronizing the hotel bar. Buttonholing the delegate a trifle unceremoniously, the latter said: "What are you fellows trying to do down at the meetings? You are hot temperance, I see by the papers. Do you think you could make a temperance man out of me?"

"No," replied the delegate, looking him over from head to foot with a keen glance, "we evidently couldn't do much for you, but we are after your boy."

At this unexpected retort the man dropped his jocular tone, and said, seriously: "Well, I gues you have got the right of it there. If somebody had been after me when I was a boy I should be a better man today."

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and I thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's Drug Store. Regular size 50 and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

Editors at Tacoma

The Kendallville Sun, July 25, has a letter from its representative on the excursion party of the National Editorial association, who writes home very interesting items. The letter has one of especial interest here, when it says: The editorial party reached Tacoma yesterday morning in time for breakfast. The delegation from northern Indiana, E. O. Rose, Miss Mabel Rose of Angola, F. W. Willis of Waterloo, the writer and sister, were handsomely entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blattner, former residents of Waterloo, Ind., at their beautiful home in Tacoma, during the forenoon. Mr. Blattner, who is well known to many of the northern Indiana people, is a prominent lawyer in this great western city.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

A Fatal Fall.

Friday's Daily.

There was a fatal fall at Waterloo about noon. Samuel Lesher was at work on a scaffold when it gave way and he fell to the ground and was instantly killed. His home was at Pleasant Lake. He was father-in-law to Andrew Coy who is employed by Mr. Gabriel in this place. Will Leas telephoned to him from Waterloo and he has gone up there.

Summer Colds
are noted for hanging on. They weaken your throat and lungs, and lead to serious trouble.
Don't trifle with them. Take Scott's Emulsion at once. It soothes, heals, and cures.
50c. and $1. All druggists.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNS, - - PUBLISHER.

1899. AUGUST. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
•	•	1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30	31	•	•
•	•	•	•	•	•	•

N. M. 6th. F. Q. 14th. F. M. 20th. L. Q. 27th.

CIRCLING THE GLOBE

CONCISE HISTORY OF SEVEN DAYS' DOINGS.

Intelligence by Electric Wire from Every Quarter of the Civilized World, Embracing Foreign Affairs and Home Happenings.

SENATOR BEVERIDGE.

The State Department to Inquire About His Whereabouts.

The Secretary of State has been asked to cable Consul Harris at Nagasaki, Japan, for information about Senator Albert J. Beveridge, and the request will be complied with. The last heard from Senator Beveridge was through a letter to Indianapolis, dated June 30. He was on a plague ship off Nagasaki, and the letter was evidently smuggled ashore and forwarded to its destination. The Consul at that port is an Indiana man, but he may have been in entire ignorance of the fact that Beveridge was on a plague ship only a few miles distant, the quarantine regulations being strictly enforced against ships found to be infected with the deadly bubonic scourge. A cablegram from the State Department may be the first intimation to Consul Harris that the Senator has been or is in danger.

Calamba Captured.

Manila special; Gen. Hall captured Calamba, on the south shore of Laguna de Bay, after some sharp fighting. The American loss was four killed and eleven wounded. Calamba was the center of the insurgent telegraph system of Southern Luzon, and the headquarters of Gen. Malbar. The expedition was covered by the army gunboats. Regulars led the way, wading ashore in water neck deep.

Calamba is a town on Laguna de Bay, about thirty miles southeast of Manila. It is much farther south than the United States troops have yet penetrated on land. It is in the Province of Laguna. It has a population of 11,476 and is twenty-seven miles from Santa Cruz, on the eastern shore of the bay. Its capture is not considered of any strategetical importance, except as a part of the plan to harass and worry the insurgents.

Drifted for Eleven Days.

Halifax (N. S.) special: The steamer Daniel entered the harbor the other day towing the steamer Alnmere, which is disabled. The Alnmere hails from Newcastle, England. She had lost her tailshaft and propeller. She was picked up on Friday last by the Daniel, which is bound to New York, after having been adrift for eleven days, in a helpless condition. Her shaft snapped in a gale July 10 and in the rolling sea the propeller was carried away. The steamer was driven about until the Daniel picked her up. The distance towed was 400 miles.

Prison Demons.

The prison demons, Hurley, Marlatt, Atkinson and O'Neil, have been placed in a special steel cell in the Columbus penitentiary. Marlatt tried to assault the guards while they were transferring him. It took six guards to overpower him. All of these are desperate men. Atkinson and O'Neil killed a guard recently. Hurley stabbed Miss Sprague, the prison bookkeeper, and Marlatt crippled several guards.

Twenty Injured in a Riot.

Twenty persons were injured, two perhaps fatally, in a riot at Coney Island, New York, between picnickers and Brighton Beach race track men. Two men were jostled, and immediately fifty men were fighting fiercely. When the police arrived twenty lay on the ground, three unconscious and others were groaning with broken limbs or cut faces. Several were taken to the hospital.

Japanese-Chinese Alliance.

A Shanghai telegram says: The reports regarding a Japanese-Chinese alliance, which have been persistently denied for some time, have now assumed definite form and are causing great excitement in Russian circles.

Ingersoll Cremated.

Cremation of the remains of Col. Robert Ingersoll occurred in New York Thursday. After the incineration at Freshpond, the ashes were taken to the family home.

An Aeronaut Drowned.

Bert Kimball of North Adams, Mich., an aeronaut, was drowned at Baw Bees Park, near Hillsdale, Mich. His parachute dropped in the middle of the lake.

A Gift from Carnegie.

Andrew Carnegie has offered to give $50,000 for a public library in San Diego, Cal., if a similar sum be donated and the library maintained as at present.

Oom Paul Kruger Resigns.

Cape Town special: Advices have been received here confirming the report that President Kruger of the South African Republic, has resigned.

Arrive at Lake Champlain.

Plattsburg (N. Y.) special: President and Mrs. McKinley and party arrived at the Hotel Champlain Thursday morning. Mrs. McKinley was pale and tired but stood the journey well. The President's flag was raised and the band played "Hail to the Chief."

Volunteering Brisk at Manila.

Gen. Otis cables the War Department that applications for enlistment are coming in rapidly from the veteran volunteers, and says he might raise an additional regiment exclusively of volunteers.

Destructive Fire at Fayette, Wis.

The entire business portion of Fayette, Wis., was destroyed by fire. Andrews & Richards' general store, E. L. Worrell's general store and postoffice, Mrs. C. Abraham's drug store and hotel, Dr. T. J. Buckley's office and several dwellings were among the buildings burned.

Not to Pardon Mrs. Maybrick.

In the English House of Commons, Sir Matthew White Ridley, the home secretary, said that he was unable to hold out hope of exceptional treatment of Mrs. Maybrick, and added that he was not aware of the existence of any reason for royal clemency.

BUILDING MOVED BY RAIL.

Nebraska County Courthouse Moved in a Novel Manner.

The Boxbutte County (Nebraska) court house was hauled twenty miles by rail a few days ago. A contract was let for the removal of the building from Hemingford to Alliance, and the placing of it upon a stone foundation. The structure weighed 100 tons. Its dimensions are 40 by 50, two full stories in height, with heavy truss roof. Last year the county seat was removed to Alliance and a few months ago the county officials removed all the records. It was then found desirable to move the court house. J. R. Phelan, superintendent of the Wyoming division of the Burlington Railroad, proposed to move the building by rail. General Manager Holdredge authorized him to proceed. Superintendent Phelan tells how it was done, as follows: "The building was raised on timbers high enough to clear the banks, and when ready to start it was fifty feet from the railroad track to the top of the deck of the building. The weight of the building is estimated at 100 tons. It was hauled on four trucks. The building was brought down a distance of nineteen and one-tenth miles, traveling at the rate of six miles an hour. Six hours after leaving Hemingford the building was clear of the track in Alliance."

CORN PRICES ARE DEPRESSED.

Decline Caused by Probability of a Record-Breaking Crop.

The following is from Bradstreet's commercial report: "Possibilities that the present corn crop will equal, if not exceed, the largest on record have depressed prices of this cereal to an extent equal to the decline in wheat. The corn yield in Kansas particularly promises to be enormous, always providing that hot winds do not affect the crop. Wheat (including flour) shipments for the week aggregate 3,408,073 bushels, against 3,263,815 bushels last week, 2,303,469 bushels in the corresponding week of 1898, 1,978,828 bushels in 1897, 3,073,730 bushels in 1896 and 1,263,096 bushels in 1895. Since July 1 this season the exports of wheat aggregate 10,430,860 bushels, against 7,948,938 bushels last year and 6,003,526 bushels in 1897-8. Corn exports for the week aggregate 3,666,294 bushels, against 4,553,739 last week, 2,822,128 in this week a year ago, 2,298,379 in 1897, 1,283,438 in 1896 and 770,094 bushels in 1895. Since July this season corn exports aggregate 12,317,177 bushels, against 8,055,048 bushels during the same period a year ago and 7,754,626 in 1897-8."

BOY DIES FOR ANOTHER.

Risks His Life to Save a Companion in Lake Michigan.

Raymond Corcoran, 14 years old, risked his life before a crowd to save Oscar Anderson, 18 years old, from drowning—and lost. The boys perished together before a throng of pleasure seekers standing on the beach at Lincoln Park, Chicago. Anderson, who was just learning to swim, had ventured out too far, when he sank. As he arose to the surface he cried for help, Corcoran, who was a good swimmer, was far inshore, and, shouting encouragement to the struggling boy in the water, hurried to his assistance. As he rose again Corcoran grabbed him around the neck. He had made but a few strokes when he threw up his hands with a cry and both sank from sight. He had been seized with cramps. Park Policeman Henry C. Steger, who had heard the cries of the people on shore, hurried to the scene in a rowboat. He was too late. The two swimmers came up for the third time locked in each other's arms, but sank again for the last time.

SOUGHT TO SAVE HIS SISTER.

Kansas Convict Claims He Assumed Responsibility for a Murder.

George Stevens, serving a life sentence in the Kansas penitentiary for the murder of Milton Cannon, just east of Independence, on July 4, 1893, has applied to Gov. Stanley for a pardon. He alleged that certain persons had determined to swear that Stevens' sister committed the murder, and to shield her he swore that he had done it himself. His attorneys say they have affidavits from expert physicians that Cannon died of apoplexy. The sister has since died.

BURIED UNDER TONS OF CLAY.

Four Ohio Men Killed by a Caving Bank Near Akron.

Four men were buried under 400 tons of clay in a bank at the Buckeye Sewer Pipe Company, east of Akron, Ohio. The dead are: Daniel Callahan, Andrew Ploasky, unknown onlooker, unknown German. The fall was so sudden that the men had no chance to escape. The clay fell forty feet. There is no reason assigned for the accident, as there had been no blasting, and an examination made the day before showed everything safe.

Railroads Giving Liberally.

The largest individual subscriptions received for the St. Louis world's fair fund to date was announced by the Missouri Pacific Railroad, which gives $85,000 to the $5,000,000 being raised. The Burlington system announces a subscription of $55,000. The subscriptions from the railroads terminating in St. Louis will probably exceed $600,000.

British Cruiser Floated.

At the office of the British admiralty it is stated that the British cruiser Buenaventura, reported ashore in a bad position at Cornilov, has been floated and is now en route to Nagasaki. From that place the Buenaventura will proceed to Hong Kong for repairs. It is assumed that the cruiser suffered no serious damage by grounding.

Mob Lynches Five Italians.

Five Italians, said to have been implicated in a plot to kill Dr. J. Ford Hodges, a prominent physician, who was wounded by one of the victims, were lynched in the jail yard at Tallulah, La. The victims are James, Frank and Charles De Fatta, brothers; S. Feducio and John Cerano, all natives of Cefala, Italy.

Nearly 106 Years Old.

Lacking but a few days of 106 years, Mrs. Catherine Dillon, the oldest woman in Bucks County, is dead at Bristol She was born in Ireland July 27, 1793, and came to this country early in life.

Blow Up a Street Car.

An open summer car on the Euclid avenue line in Cleveland was blown to pieces by an explosion of nitroglycerin or gun cotton, and six passengers injured one of them fatally.

Drowned on Omaha Exposition Grounds.

Jessie Hoover, 14 years old, was drowned at the exposition grounds at Omaha. She was wading in the pool where the spectacular battle of Manila is produced, when she got beyond her depth.

Named as Secretary of War.

Formal announcement of Elihu Root's appointment as Secretary of War has been made at Washington. He has notified the President of his acceptance.

Reciprocity with France.

A reciprocity treaty with France has been signed at Washington after a long period of dispute and negotiation.

Train Goes Through a Trestle.

A combination freight and passenger train on the Chesapeake and Nashville road went through a trestle near Westmoreland, Tenn., and was consumed by fire. A man named Simmons, advance agent for Cooper & Co.'s circus, was burned to death. Among the injured are John E. Dalton, Mrs. Thomas Epperson and son, Prof. Buck, John Rogan and all of the trainmen. The accident was due to a washout.

NERVY MAN COMMANDS PEACE.

Two Americans Disperse an Excited Mob at Seoul, Korea.

E. H. Rittenhouse of Colorado Springs, speaking of the recent attack by the natives at Seoul, Corea, upon the electric car line there, said: "The most interesting incident connected with the disturbance was the coolness and bravery of H. H. Bostwick of San Francisco, manager of the road, and H. Raymond Krumm of Columbus, Ohio, chief of the imperial engineering department, by which they dispersed a mob of 3,000, and saved their own lives and the property of the company. They were unarmed, but Bostwick held up his hand and commanded the mob to disperse by order of the United States of America. He hoped this would quell them, but it did more. The natives dropped their clubs and stones and stampeded."

NEGRO LYNCHED IN TEXAS.

Had Burned a Church and Shot Two White Men—Brother Confessed.

A church at Fuqua Prairie, Texas, was burned by an incendiary and suspicion fell on John and Randall Hamilton, negroes. The latter was first found. With a rope around his neck, he confessed that John burned the church. John was found at his home and his answer to a demand for surrender was a volley of buckshot, Van Wright being fatally wounded and Tuck Moody slightly injured. The negro escaped badly wounded, but was recaptured and lynched.

THREE DROWN AT WAUWATOSA.

Bodies of Brothers Are Found in a Quarry Pool.

Max, Robert and Henry Freis, aged respectively 13, 11 and 9 years, were drowned while bathing in a pool of water in an old stone quarry at Wauwatosa, Wis. They were brothers, and sons of George Freis of Milwaukee. They were missed from their home, and after an all-night search the body of one of them was found floating in the pool. It is supposed the two older boys were drowned while trying to rescue their younger brother, who had slipped off the ledge of the pool.

LIGHTNING KILLS TWO PEOPLE.

Engaged Couple at St. Cloud, Minn., Meet Death by Electrical Bolt.

James Harren of Freeport and Miss Agnes Herzog of Millwood were instantly killed by lightning at the home of Miss Herzog at St. Cloud, Minn. The Herzog family and Harren were sitting on the porch when lightning struck the corner of the house, killing Harren and Miss Herzog. The rest of the people were uninjured. Harren and Miss Herzog were engaged to be married.

Mrs. Rich is Taken to Mexico.

Mrs. John R. Rich, charged with the murder of her husband in Juarez, Mex., was delivered to the Mexican authorities at El Paso, Tex., by United States Marshal Siebricht from San Antonio and receipted for by the Mexican consul at El Paso, Francisco Mallen. Before leaving her cell she wound an American flag around herself.

Killed in His Office.

Dr. M. Lafater was shot and killed in his dental office in Manchester, Tenn., by Campbell Green. Three shots were fired by Green, two of which took effect in Dr. Lafater's body, one in the mouth and the other in his heart. The difficulty arose over a trade for some mules which the two men were negotiating.

Commits Suicide in Wales.

The body of a man was found upon the steps of Trinity Church, Llandudno, Wales. Death had been caused by a shot from a revolver. In one of the dead man's pockets was found an envelope indicating that his name was Alfred Poole and that he came from Coal Glen, Pa.

Three Children Burned to Death.

Three negro children were burned to death near Anderson, S. C. The wife of Henry Thompson left the children alone while she went to visit a neighbor's house. It is supposed that the house was set on fire by the children.

Cyclone Hits La Porte, Ind.

A cyclone struck the eastern portion of La Porte, Ind., and wrecked the boot and shoe store owned by Butterworth & Co. Several other buildings were also leveled to the ground.

Strike of Cincinnati Messengers.

Cincinnati messenger boys are on strike for a raise of compensation. The matter became serious the other night when two boys were stabbed, several hit by missiles and many slugged with clubs.

Kills Sweetheart and Self.

At Athens, Mo., B. L. Hull fatally shot his sweetheart, Miss Florence Gordon, and then committed suicide, blowing his head almost off.

Noted Agnostic Passes Away.

Robert G. Ingersoll died of apoplexy at his home, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, shipping grades $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 69c to 71c; corn, No. 2, 32c to 33c; oats, No. 2, 24c to 25c; rye, No. 2, 52c to 53c; butter, choice creamery, 16c to 18c; eggs, fresh, 11c to 13c; potatoes, choice new, 25c to 30c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, choice light, $2.75 to $4.75; sheep, common to prime, $3.25 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 67c to 68c; corn, No. 2 white, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 28c to 29c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, $3.00 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 71c to 73c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 31c to 33c; oats, No. 2, 23c to 25c; rye, No. 2, 53c to 55c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 69c to 70c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 35c to 37c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 26c to 28c; rye, No. 2, 59c to 61c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 71c to 73c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 34c to 36c; oats, No. 2 white, 29c to 31c; rye, 59c to 60c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 70c to 72c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 34c to 35c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 24c to 26c; rye, No. 2, 56c to 57c; clover seed, new, $3.95 to $4.05.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 71c to 72c; corn, No. 3, 32c to 34c; oats, No. 2 white, 24c to 27c; rye, No. 1, 52c to 54c; barley, No. 2, 40c to 41c; pork, mess, $9.00 to $9.50.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $5.00; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.25; lambs, common to extra, $4.50 to $6.75.

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $5.25; sheep, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 76c to 77c; corn, No. 2, 38c to 39c; oats, No. 2 white, 30c to 31c; butter, creamery, 15c to 19c; eggs, western, 14c to 16c.

THE CART BEFORE THE HORSE.

—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

DEATH OF LUETGERT.

Notorious Sausage-Maker Suddenly Expires in His Prison Cell.

Adolph Luetgert, who was serving a life sentence in the Illinois State penitentiary at Joliet for the murder of his wife, Louisa, died suddenly at a few minutes before 7 o'clock Thursday morning. The probable cause of his death was heart disease.

It was thought at first that he might have killed himself, but the prison physician, after examining the body, concluded that death resulted from natural causes. There were no indications of poisoning, nor were there any marks on the body. To all appearances Luetgert had been in the best of health, although he had been suffering from rheumatism.

The chaplain of the prison said that in the several talks he had with the prisoner he had always declared his innocence of any crime. He was confident he would be vindicated in time and that the Supreme Court would grant him a rehearing. He frequently spoke about his case and all his thoughts seemed to be upon it. The warden and his deputies all pronounce Luetgert to have been a well-behaved prisoner. The only trouble which they ever had with him was a little argument he got into with a representative of a large packing house over the meat furnished. He had to be placed in solitary confinement as a punishment for his conduct.

ADOLPH L. LUETGERT.

Luetgert's passing away marks the closing chapter of one of the most grewsome murder mysteries in the annals of criminology—his debt to the law which was fixed by a jury at life imprisonment has been wiped out.

EVANSVILLE MINERS RIOT.

Non-Unionists Attacked—The Mayor Forbids Parade.

Rioting and disorder prevailed at two of the Evansville coal mines Wednesday. As the colored non-union miners came from the First avenue mines they were met by a crowd of boys who carried tin cans. Several stones were hurled at them. When a block away from the mine the miners pulled their revolvers and opened fire on the crowd. No one was hurt.

Several hundred people gathered and the police dispersed the crowd and escorted the miners home. Nearly 1,000 striking miners, their families and sympathizers were at the John Ingle mine when the colored miners quit work. Both the strikers and non-union men were armed. Mayor Akin issued a proclamation forbidding the miners to parade.

TO REMOVE THE DAMS.

Illinois Valley's Demand on Chicago Drainage District.

Dredging of the Illinois river and the removing of all dams therein is demanded by the Illinois River Valley Association before the water of the Chicago drainage canal is turned into it. If this is done the association, by implication, promises to withdraw opposition to the plans of the Chicago drainage district.

This was the net result of the meeting of the association at Whitehall, Ill. Five thousand persons were present and the result of their deliberations was incorporated in a set of resolutions which will be presented to Gov. Tanner and President McKinley.

INDEMNITY FOR LYNCHING.

Relatives of Italians Slain at Tallulah Will Be Recompensed.

Italy will be paid an indemnity for the lynching of three of the five Italians at Tallulah, La., and the State Department will lay down the principle, once for all, that an alien does not become a full-fledged citizen of the United States until naturalization papers have been formally issued to him.

Of course the State Department will pursue the regular legal course for ascertaining the facts in connection with the lynching.

ARE LOSING THEIR HAIR.

Young People in Indiana Belt Becoming Bald.

An Anderson, Ind., dispatch says that men and women living in the Indiana gas belt are losing their hair. Physicians have found that a new form of hair disease is sweeping the entire section. It was at first thought to be some scalp disease which had become epidemic, but investigation during the past two weeks has developed the conclusion that the universal loss of hair is due to action of natural gas vapor, which permeates the region and which is undergoing some noticeable evolution.

OTIS PROCLAIMS NEW CONTROL

He Establishes Provisional Rule for the Island of Negros.

Gen. Otis has proclaimed a provisional government for the Island of Negros The island will be under a military governor, and a civil governor and advisory council will be elected later. This Government is established pending the action of Congress on the constitution for the Island of Negros. Bacolor will be the capital. A cabinet consisting of secretaries of treasury, agriculture and interior will be appointed by the military governor. These, together with an attorney general, will exercise the executive power.

All male inhabitants of 21 years of age, who can read and write Spanish, English or Visayan, and who possess $500 in realty, and who have been residents for one year are eligible to the franchise. The military governor will prescribe the time and place of elections He will also appoint three judges to sit at times and places designated. A free school system will be established and the teaching of English will be required.

The advisory council to be presided over by the civil governor will devise a system of uniform taxation. The military governor will collect the customs and control the postal service. The secretaries will draw $3,000 a year. The civil governor will receive $6,000 a year. The military governor will have the power of veto in all legislative action, subject to the approval of Gen. Otis.

A Washington dispatch says that the President has no intention of relieving Gen. Otis from the military command in the Philippines.

BODY IS CREMATED.

Remains of Col. Ingersoll Incinerated at Fresh Pond, L. I.

The body of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll was cremated Thursday at Fresh Pond, L. I. The coffin was plain and covered with black cloth, having neither handles nor plate. It was only used to convey the remains from the house at Dobbs Ferry to the crematory. A special train was in readiness at the Dobbs Ferry station, and there was a special train also on the Long Island Railroad. The mourners remained at Fresh Pond until the cremation was completed, when the widow carried the ashes back to the home in the cineratry urn selected for her by George Gray Barnard, the sculptor, who took the cast of Col. Ingersoll's head after death.

FRESH POND CREMATORY.

HALL ROUTES REBELS.

Insurgent Town of Calamba Captured by American Troops.

A Manila dispatch says that Brig. Gen. R. H. Hall, with 1,000 men, has captured Calamba, on Laguna de Bay. The loss to the United States forces was four killed and twelve wounded. Calamba is a town on Laguna de Bay, about thirty miles southeast of Manila. It is much farther south than the United States troops have yet penetrated on land. It is in the province of Laguna. It has a population of 11,476 and is twenty-seven miles from Santa Cruz on the eastern shore of the bay. Its capture is not considered of any strategical importance, except as a part of the plan to harass and worry the insurgents.

GEN. HALL.

Sparks from the Wires.

Pat Malone killed by the cars, Akron, Ohio.

Falling telegraph pole, Pittsburg, killed Frank Scope.

J. C. Saylor, school teacher, shot dead from ambush on Pickett's creek, Kentucky.

Prospectors are leaving Dawson City by the hundred for Nome, the new gold field.

A $9,000,000 fertilizer trust is proposed.

Ex-Commissary General Engan has returned from Hawaii.

Herman Klein dead in Cincinnati of lockjaw. Accidentally shot July 5.

John Coughlin and sister, 14, drowned at Fort Worth, Texas, while boating.

P. H. Brady bounced from treasurership of Grinal County, Arizona. Short $7,000.

Joe Foerder, Jr., 12, Ripley, Ohio, accidentally killed with a Robert rifle by his brother.

About 1,000 miners at Nelsonville, O., went out against scales that do not register accurately.

Some 150 telephone linemen in Cleveland struck because of sympathy for the street railway strikers.

SAN DOMINGO RULER SLAIN.

President Heureaux Finally Falls a Victim to Assassin.

Gen. Ulises Heureaux, president of the Dominican republic, was assassinated at Moca, Santo Domingo, Wednesday afternoon. Several attempts formerly have been made to kill him. The murderer, Ramon Ceceros, made his escape. The death of Gen. Ulises Heureaux has cast a gloom over the entire Dominican Government.

GEN. HEUREAUX.

Immediately upon the announcement of the president's death Vice-President Gen. Wenceslao Figuereom assumed control of the government of the Dominion.

Several attempts have been made before to take the life of President Heureaux, but they were frustrated. On one occasion while passing through the arched entrance to the palace between lines of guards his quick eye caught one of the soldiers, who appeared to lower his rifle in his direction. Quickly pulling a revolver he shot the man dead in his tracks, passed on to his private office, where he gave orders to remove a dead man lying at the main entrance.

Gen. Heureaux was born in Porto Plata in 1846 and served in the war against Spain from 1868 to 1874. Later he was put at the head of the advanced Dominicans, who sought to improve their country by inducing foreign capital to locate on the island. As he advanced all the wealthy inhabitants joined his forces and when he arrived at the gates of the historic city of Santo Domingo he was chosen president of the republic and served his term of four years. At the expiration of every four years an electoral college assembles in the city to vote for a president for the following term, but owing to Gen. Heureaux's popularity and ability he has always been unanimously re-elected and was serving his fifth term.

ALASKAN MATTER BRIGHTENS.

Temporary Settlement May Soon Be Reached with England.

Secretary Hay and Reginald Tower, the British charge d'affaires, expect soon to have the Alaskan boundary line practically settled on a temporary basis. With Canada eliminated from the controversy it is thought that the American and British Governments will have no difficulty in reaching an agreement.

The map, made from Dawson's Canadian map of 1887 and United States coast survey of Alaska, shows the boundary contended for by Canada, a dotted line near the coast, placing Dyea, Skaguay and Pyramid harbor in British territory; the line claimed by the United States north and west of the Lynn canal, and a conventional line proposed by Dawson which strikes through Pyramid harbor. The latest proposition by the American Government is to give Canada a free harbor at the head of Lynn canal.

DISPUTED ALASKAN TERRITORY.

MOB LAW IS INVOKED.

Georgia and Alabama in a Fury Over Deeds of Blood.

A perfect carnival of violence and bloodshed is raging in Georgia and Alabama. Murders, assaults on women and shooting affairs are reported from all directions, and at various places troops are under arms to protect prisoners from the fury of mobs. Prominent physicians blame much of the violence on the prolonged heat. The trouble in Georgia began with the assault on Mrs. Ogletree at Saffold and it continued with unabated fury for six days, during which four negroes have been lynched, four persons killed, one woman assaulted and numerous attempts made to lynch alleged criminals.

Only the action of leading citizens of Bainbridge prevented the lynching of John Williams, a negro accused of assault. Three hundred men, armed with dynamite and carrying telegraph poles for battering rams, were marching to the jail when Judge Bower and two other men stopped them and pleaded that the law be allowed to take its course. Thereupon the mob disbanded, only to gather again at daybreak. The mob was preparing to attack the prison when the Valdosta and Thomasville militia companies, which had been ordered to the scene by Gov. Candler, arrived and dispersed the mob.

MRS. STYLES IS NOT GUILTY.

Chicago Woman Freed from Charge of Murdering Her Mother.

Amid the hysterical weepings of Mrs. Augusta Styles, Judge Waterman in a Chicago court room, read the verdict of not guilty, which freed Mrs. Styles of the charge of murdering her mother, Mrs. Catherine Schultz, on May 4. The jury was out but one hour and fifty minutes, only three being for conviction and a short sentence at any time.

Mrs. Schultz was deliberately killed by Mrs. Styles May 4 after she had waited for her for some hours for that purpose. The cause of the trouble was Mrs. Schultz revealing the story of the birth of Mrs. Styles' daughter Belle.

First Chinese Pensioner.

Ah Yuh of Shanghai, China, a lanteman who enlisted in the navy in 1884 and was formerly attached to Dewey's flagship Olympia, Wednesday was granted a pension of $30 a month for lung trouble. He has the distinction of being the first Chinese pensioner.

Inhaling Poison Killed Him.

Philip Heger, aged 63, a prosperous farmer living a few miles west of Union, Mo., scattered poison over his potato vines to kill bugs. He inhaled so much of the poison that in spite of the best medical skill obtainable he died.

Telegraphic Brevities.

Price of iron pumps will go up.

Matches have advanced a cent a box.

Assassins perforated Bush Isaacs, Drop Rock, Ky.

Lightning destroyed the Park House, Nantasket.

Strike of the district messenger boys in Cleveland settled.

"Black Jack" robber band reorganized in Presidio County, Texas.

Lumber has advanced $7.50 per 1,000 since Jan. 1, and it'll go higher.

About 1,000 miners are stranded in the Kotzebue district and need help.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Struck by a Lightning Bolt—Rural Mail Delivery System to Be Extended—Caught by an Undercurrent—New Trial for Flory—Foretold His Death.

During a heavy thunderstorm Earl D. Simpson met death in a tragic manner. He, in company with Edward Jones, was living from the Chester River Steamboat Company's wharf at Chestertown. The swimmer had mounted a pile twelve feet high for the purpose of making a dive, and as he stood poised for the plunge the fatal flash came from a comparatively clear sky and the young man fell to the wharf dead. His companion and a teamster and four horses that stood scarcely twenty feet away, were shocked, but in no degree stunned by the current.

Rural Delivery in Indiana.

Rural free mail delivery, which has been in successful operation at several points in the State for some months past, may be greatly extended within the next year. E. H. Hathaway, special agent for the work in Indiana, has begun reorganizing old routes and establishing new ones. Many places have applied for the delivery of mail in the country districts, but Mr. Hathaway does not think all can get their petitions granted, although most of them have the indorsement of Congressmen. He thinks that perhaps twenty new routes will be established within the next year.

Boys Drowned in the Wabash.

Five boys were in bathing in the Wabash at Lafayette, and three of them—Charles Zink, Walter Vellinger and Paul Held—were drowned. Two boys named Snyder were heroically rescued by another boy named George Miller. The boys were drowned by the under current at the mouth of Durgee run, the most treacherous place in the Wabash. None were over 12 years old.

Flory Given a New Trial

John Flory, whom the jury at Paoli sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of Jessie Burton at Mitchell last November, was granted a new trial by the court on account of errors made in instructing the jury. Flory was taken to the reformatory at Jeffersonville for safe keeping, owing to some fear of mob violence.

Preacher Foretells His Death.

Rev. Quiller Partee died at Martinsville, aged 50 years. He preached at a basket meeting a few days ago, and remarked that he would make no further appointments, as he did not expect to live long. The next day he was seized with brain fever and his premonition was verified.

Within Our Borders.

Diphtheria is raging in Patricksburg.

Martinsville will have a street fair in August.

Barr flour bill, Princeton, damaged $10,000 by fire.

George Gentry, 17, Boonville, drowned while swimming.

Huston Hood, 22, drowned while seining in Haw creek, near Columbus.

C. T. Godford, farmer near Brazil, was drowned while fishing in Eel river.

North Vernon has seven churches and eleven saloons, the crap shooter's limit.

James Cook, Carbon, says robbers chloroformed his family and stole $160.

Harrison Kurz was seriously stabbed near the heart by Albert Blake near Pilot Knob.

Alpha McDowell, 3, Kokomo, set fire to her clothing while playing with a box of matches and is dead.

Ten cattle belonging to O. M. Tustison, Putnam County, licked white lead from a paint keg and died.

James T. Reid, an influential citizen of Sullivan, is dead in Denver, whither he had gone for the benefit of his health.

The Peerless flour mill at Mount Vernon, the property of Kauffman Brothers of St. Louis, was destroyed by fire. Loss $110,000, insurance $75,000.

Mrs. William A. Cullop of Vincennes has been appointed by Gov. Mount an honorary commissioner to the Paris exposition to represent the women of Indiana.

Jacob Ellis of Anderson, aged 85 years, has become father of his sixteenth child. The mother is but 45 years old. The youngster is sturdy and has good lungs. It weighs ten pounds.

Elmo Interreiden, late of the 159th Indiana volunteers, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head while standing in front of his father's place of business at Vincennes.

G. T. McKim of Thorntown has received a letter from Stephen Fell, formerly of that place, dated from South America, which says that for twelve years he has been a slave in a tribe on the upper Amazon.

The Fairmount zinc spelter works at Fairmount were destroyed by fire. The fire was caused by an explosion of gas. About 100 men were employed in the plant. There was no insurance. The plant will be rebuilt at once.

Huntsville, the town built on alleged magnetic iron ore, has been torn to pieces again by an electrical storm and one death—that of Mrs. James Rodgers—resulted. The town has been the mark of lightning each year. Every great storm is certain to center its worst bolts at that point.

Joseph Mosely, colored, a carpenter, was the victim of a peculiar accident at Evansville, and his death will be the result. While engaged in repairing the roof of a house he started to saw a board for a scaffold. He carelessly sat on the outer edge, though, and sawed between himself and the fastened end. As a consequence when the board broke he plunged down head foremost a distance of eighteen feet between two houses.

Martin Crapp was bitten on one thigh in three places, the hamstring being totally severed, during a fight at a picnic near Sodom. Death from gangrene is anticipated.

Ralph Schelley, 8 years old, died at Montpelier as the result of a vicious attack on him by four of his playmates. The boys were all playing together when some difficulty arose over a trifling matter and the four combined to thrash him. Two of them held Ralph Schelley while the others kicked him and pounded him on the neck, head and back with stones. Lockjaw followed, and then death.

Wife of Rev. J. F. McDonald, Crawfordsville, found dead in bed.

Daniel Whitehead and wife, Peru, were poisoned by eating dried beef.

Small freight wreck and four hours' delay on the Big Four at Yorktown.

D. A. Jennings, Campbellsburg, fined $5 and $44.60 in costs for not paying his dog tax.

President McKinley has accepted an invitation to be at Elwood labor day, it is said.

Gordon will, involving $7,000, taken on change of venue from Franklin County to Liberty, is busted, and all the kinfolks get a grab.

A SONG OF THE ROAD.

O I will walk with you, my lad, whichever way you fare,
You'll have me, too, the side of you, with heart as light as air;
No care for where the road you take's a-leading—anywhere,—
It can but be a joyful jaunt the whilst you journey there.
The road you take's the path of love, an' that's the bridth of two—
And I will walk with you, my lad,—O, I will walk with you.

Ho! I will walk with you, my lad,
Be weather black or blue,
Or roadsides frost or dew, my lad—
O I will walk with you.

Aye, glad, my lad, I walk with you, whatever winds may blow,
Or summer blossoms stay our steps, or blinding drifts of snow,
The way that you set face and foot's the way that I will go,
And brave I'll be, abreast of you, the Saints and Angels know.
With loyal hand in loyal hand, and one heart made of two,
Through summer's gold, or winter's cold, it's I will walk with you.

Sure, I will walk with you, my lad,
As love ordains me to,—
To Heaven's door, and through, my lad,
O I will walk with you.
—James Whitcomb Riley, in Lippincott's.

THE MANIAC GUIDE OF MOUNT VESUVIUS.

I have in my possession an old copper coin, all fused and twisted out of shape, and every time I look at it it causes a shiver to run through me, as if suddenly plunging into a sea of ice.

Now it is not the manner in which I came by the coin that occasions this unpleasant feeling, but the way in which it became fused and—

But here is the tale, and after perusing it you can see if I am justified in the disagreeable feelings caused by the remembrance of the scene I am about to describe.

It was a beautiful, calm morning in August, 1860.

We—that is to say, myself, three other gentlemen and two guides, six in all, were slowly clambering up the rough, uneven sides of Mount Vesuvius on our way to explore its crater.

No one but those who have been in a volcanic ravaged region can form the slightest idea of its desolate, dreary appearance.

Not a shrub or blade of grass relieves the monotonous extent of black, broken scoria, which lies in all positions, resembling somewhat the broken surface of a storm-lashed sea.

Half way up the view was sublime, and again and again we would stop and allow our eyes to wander out over one of the most beautiful prospects that I have ever had the pleasure to behold.

The bay of Naples gently rippled and kissed the shore at our feet, the islands of Capri and Ischilla dotting its placid bosom, like twin emeralds in a casket of silver, while further westward stretched the blue waters of the Mediterranean until the mild horizon and its glasy surface were softly shaded into one by the master hand of nature; nearer reposes the city, with its matchless palaces, its turreted towers. While farther inland the eye could roam for miles and miles over the fairy-like panorama of vineyards, villages, fields and villas, until even it would be dazed by the brilliant hues and relieved when again turned upon the arid waste through which we were toiling.

At last we reached the verge of the crater and looked over.

The sights we saw and the sounds we heard will never be erased from my memory.

Looking down into the immense basin, we could see the smoking, fiery cone situated in the center, sending up momentarily discharges of seething red hot matter.

Our guides informed us that there was no danger, but it seemed almost like courting death to venture into the yawning abyss, which appeared like the entrance to Dante's Inferno itself.

But at last, after some hesitation, we determined to "do the mountain" properly or die in the attempt.

So we commenced the descent. And it was a descent with a vengeance; hands and feet were at a premium, and I'm not positive to this day whether I did not use my teeth.

Crawling here, hanging there, where a misstep would send you a thousand feet down a shapeless mass, holding by projecting rocks so hot as to cause pain, sulphurous smoke and jets of flame burst out here and there into your very face, making breathing almost an impossibility.

Well, at last we reached the bottom.

The scene was terrifying.

The ground we stood on trembled above the awe-like motion of the boiling, hissing mass beneath.

Upon getting more accustomed to the fearful surroundings, we could distinguish that everything in this great laboratory of nature worked with clock-like precision.

The deep, heavy, piston-like thud of the immense internal engine could be heard at regular intervals, and then from the valve, or more properly speaking, from the mouth of the cone, would dart chunks of fiery scoria, and rise fifty or sixty feet and then descend, requiring in some cases the greatest agility in avoiding being crushed to death beneath them.

It seemed as if this was the breathing spot of all the dragons and monsters chronicled in fabulous history.

I noticed that from the moment we started one of the guides took more than ordinary trouble in pointing out and explaining different things to me, and I mentally determined to double his fee for his attention, but if I had known his object I would in all probability have shot him on the spot.

Well, at last we had seen all we wished and prepared to ascend.

The rest of the party were already some distance up, and I was preparing to follow, when my guide said:

"Sir, you have taken nothing as a memento of your visit to our mountain."

He was right.

So I walked back toward the center of the basin to procure something to carry away which would in after years remind me of my visit.

"Have you any copper coins with you?" he asked.

I felt in my pockets.

Yes, I had one, just one, an old, well-worn United States coin. This I handed to him. He waited another discharge of scoria, and when it fell he ran up and dropped the cent into a small piece of the hot compound.

We had now to wait until it cooled, and when it did, I picked it up and placed it in my pocket.

The same instant the guide gave a wild yell and came rushing toward me, his face distorted, his mouth open and his eyes flaming, and of that disagreeable greenish color.

I stood looking at him, not knowing the cause of his strange actions.

Was the volcano about to commence another eruption and crisp us to a cinder, or had some freak of nature changed the volcanic surroundings so as to render our exit impassable and entomb us alive.

These were the thoughts which rushed through my brain.

By this time he had reached my side and before I knew it he had grasped me by the throat and bore me down.

"Another sacrifice to offer to my charming Queen," he cried, as he commenced dragging me toward the steep, smoking cone.

It was some time before I recovered from the surprise which this unexpected maneuver occasioned.

But at last I did and struggled to my feet.

"Come," I said, "you have carried this joke far enough."

"Ha, ha, ha!" he laughed, fighting desperately to force me up to the cone.

"My pet thinks it is a capital joke; don't you hear them growling for food; come, it is your flesh, and it alone, that will appease their hunger."

His fiendish eyes glared into mine, flakes of foam dropping from his livid lips.

I saw it in an instant.

I was in the hands of a raving maniac.

To plead or argue would amount to naught; nothing but strength and agility could save me from a most horrible death; for it was his intention to throw me into the mouth of the cone, there falling into the seething, boiling ocean of fire and flame beneath, I should be burnt to a crisp in a second of time.

I struggled desperately, shouting the while in hope of calling back my friends to my aid.

But all my shouting was useless—lost in the mighty surroundings and the ever-shifting clouds of smoke and mist, rendered their seeing me an impossibility.

My only hope was to overpower my assailant.

We were now within a few yards of the base of the cone, and the heat was almost insufferable.

Clouds of smoke and flame, followed by huge pieces of blood-red scoria, were vomited from the black funnel-like peak

I was gradually forced nearer and nearer.

The perspiration started from every pore, and I became conscious that I was growing weaker, and would soon have to succumb; my physical strength being no match for his—urged on by a fiendish purpose, the product of a diseased intellect.

The earth was quaking beneath our feet, the air was stifling and impregnated with the fumes of gas.

My face and hands had already commenced to blister under the intense heat.

And while I was slowly losing my strength he appeared to have his augmented at every step.

I could not fight much longer.

Death, in one of its most horrible forms, would in a few minutes be my fate.

My sight grew dim; my brain seemed to be pierced by hot irons; my limbs refused to move.

"God help me!" I murmured.

The prayer had hardly left my lips when I felt a sudden flash of intense heat, and the same instant the hold of the maniac guide was loosened.

I opened my eyes; a mass of red hot scoria had in its descent crushed him (a charred, shapeless heap) to the earth.

By a great effort of will I regained sufficient strength to stagger off and reach the precipitous side of the basin, when all became a black, impenetrable void.

When again I opened my eyes I found myself lying in bed, with my friends bending anxiously over me.

They informed me that they did not miss me until they had reached the top of the crater and there my non-appearance was attributed to my exploring propensities, and, as I had (as they supposed) an excellent guide, they felt no fear as to my arrival in due season to accompany them back to the city.

But as hour after hour rolled by, and he still absent, an undefined, vague feeling for my safety ran through them and they determined to once more descend the ugly pit in quest of me.

Which they did, at the risk of their lives, for it was late in the afternoon, when they started.

Upon reaching the bottom they, after a long search, found me lying in a deathlike swoon near one side and my guide crushed to a jelly beneath the mass of scoria at the base of the cone.

They let him lie where he was, and after the greatest difficulty and danger conveyed me up and brought me to the city.

I was some weeks before I was able to leave my room, but, thanks to a good constitution and the indefatigable attention of my kind friends, I did at last.

And now, kind reader, can you wonder that even here, thousands of miles distant from the scene of my trying ordeal, that a blood-chilling thrill runs through me when I look at the old coin imbedded in its covering of scoria.

PICTURE OF INGALLS.

THE BRILLIANT KANSAN MAY RETURN TO CONGRESS.

Pen Picture of the Man Who Leaped from Obscurity to Be the Peer of Conkling and Blaine — Some Interesting Incidents.

The announcement that John J. Ingalls is to re-enter public life and that the halls of Congress may again ring with his eloquence is hailed with pleasure by those who love the brilliant and picturesque in statesmanship. Ingalls supplies both these qualities and should he successfully run for Congress, he would be even a more commanding figure in the lower house than he was in the Senate before William A. Peffer drove him out.

Ingalls' career can be briefly sketched, but the man himself is worthy of extended notice. He was born in Middleton, Mass., in 1833, graduated from Williams College and, after being admitted to the bar, removed to Atchison, Kan. There he at once became a political leader and within three years after locating in the State was a member of the Kansas Senate. Then he took up newspaper work as an editor, ran unsuccessfully for Lieutenant Governor on two occasions and in 1873 was elected to the United States Senate, where he remained eighteen years.

Before his selection for the Senate Ingalls was not known outside his State, but a sensational incident connected with his election gave him national notoriety. Senator Pomeroy was a candidate for re-election. He had several opponents, among whom Ingalls was probably the most inconspicuous. Pomeroy paid a member of the Legislature $7,000 to vote for him and the next day this member, Senator York, brought the money into the Senate, laid it on the president's desk and said it represented Pomeroy's attempt at bribery. The incident created no end of excitement and Ingalls was elected as a compromise.

JOHN J. INGALLS.

Once at Washington Ingalls' natural ability asserted itself and he was soon known as one of the foremost debaters and most brilliant speakers in public life. The brain has been described as "a dynamo of intellectual activity." He became the peer of Conkling and Blaine and through nine Congresses sat as a shining light. He was looked up on as a fixture in the Senate, when the Populistic movement swept him out in 1891 and Peffer took his seat. Ingalls, with a comfortable fortune, retired to private life, which he has since enjoyed. His object in life is to get through it with as little personal discomfort as possible, and he is doing that very thing, regardless of criticism, public or individual. He works, travels, lectures, writes, reads, rides or walks as the fancy strikes him. Money's only value is the good or comfort that it may buy for himself or his family, and as the supply seems to be abundant, he spends without stint, buying a horse or letting a contract for a business block with equal indifference. His home in Atchison is a model of elegance, comfort and convenience, and perfect in all its appointments. He lives like a prince, and his family set the pace of the local four hundred.

Dazzling Brilliance.

Ingalls has more ideas to the square inch than many of his fellow-politicians have to the square mile, and his vocabulary is equal to Worcester and Webster boiled down and filtered through Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus." He is a succession of surprises. He has as many colors as a chameleon, and he puts on a new one every hour. His private conversation is full of meat, and when he talks every sentence makes you think, and every word weighs a pound. He is a man of broad reading, and he draws his illustrations from the antediluvian periods of geology in one sentence, takes a metaphor from a famous English novelist for a second, and in the third, like as not, gives you a bit of the latest slang from the slums.

At first you are dazzled by this flow of words and ideas. You are blinded by his pyrotechnic phrases, and you give him no credit for his genius other than that to the God who made him. As you go on, however, you find that he is one of the hardest workers in public life, and that the vast mental capital which he has to-day has been largely made up by the saving of the intellectual pennies. For the past twenty years he has been making speeches and witty remarks in his study in order that he may deliver them in private conversation or on the stump. Every bright thought and every expression that he has come in contact with has been reground and repolished between the millstones of his brain until it has left its original shape and become a new creature—that of Ingalls alone. He has a peculiar memory in that when he once writes a thing he pens it, as it were, on the tablets of his mind, to be left there until occasion shall call it forth. The books he reads are always interlined and filled with marginal notes, and these notes are often finished sentences which he makes thus and lays away for future use. He is a great student of the dictionary. He likes odd words and is always looking for them, and in the making of his speeches, some of his sentences, ordinary at the start, are changed and rechanged until they become oratorical surprises which go ringing around the world.

Ingalls is not all brains; he has nerve also. When he was a young man and new in Kansas, he was billed to make a speech in Atchison, where he now lives. A party of border ruffians called upon him, and warned him not to speak. They had pistols in their belts, and a rope in their hands, and they swore they would hang him if he said anything against them. Ingalls looked them in the eye and told them to hang. He said that he was billed for a speech, and he was going to make it. He did make it, and that in no measured terms.

At another time Ingalls was sitting one day, eating his dinner at a hotel in Atchison. It was the days of early Kansas, when everyone carried revolvers. A drunken ruffian entered the room. He saw Ingalls, and, pointing a revolver at him, said:

"See here, my boy, they say you are the best speaker in all Kansas. These gentlemen here are my friends, and we want a speech. Now, you get up on that chair and give us a speech, or I'll shoot sheol out of you."

The future Senator looked the man straight in the eye, and coolly replied that he did not intend to make a speech for any drunkard. He continued to look as the man flourished the pistol and jumped up and down, threatening to kill him. He may have been pale, and his heart must have jumped to his throat, but he did not move. Finally, the man happened to hit the pistol against his boot as he jumped up and down in his rage. It went off, and the ball struck his leg, filling the boot with blood. This sobered him somewhat, and he left the dining-room. Ingalls then went upstairs, brought down his pistol, and laying it beside his plate, went on with his eating. The drunken man was killed that afternoon in an affray which he had on the street.

JAPANESE GIRL AN AUTHOR.

Miss Onoto Watanna and Her Work in the Pulpit.

Miss Onoto Watanna, the young Japanese writer and author of "Miss Nume of Japan," now a resident of Chicago, is as picturesque a character as any in her stories. Small and dark, with the bright black almond-shaped eyes of the Japanese and a mass of willful black hair, she is a study for a painter. In the firm-looking mouth and straight nose a physiognomist might read the resolution which has, at the age of 21, brought her so favorably before the public.

ONOTO WATANNA.

Miss Watanna, after leaving Japan with her English father when a little girl, lived in Toronto, Canada, for a number of years. There the little savage, as she was often called, amused the school children and shocked the teachers with stories largely embellished with a boundless imagination, of the land of her birth. At the age of 17 she went to Jamaica, where she was assistant editor of the News Letter, published in Kingston. Under the pseudonyms of "Busybody" and "Man on the Street" her work attracted much attention in Jamaica. She became a great favorite with the Governor and his wife, Sir Henry and Lady Blake.

For a while after leaving Jamaica Miss Watanna lived with her father's relations in the South, but she grew restive and studied shorthand that she might go out into the world. Chicago was the goal of her ambitions, and soon believing herself an expert stenographer, she sold her bicycle, and with the proceeds arrived at the Polk street depot. She secured a position through a Sunday advertisement for an experienced typewriter and stenographer. The first morning she was installed before the typewriter the girl realized her utter ignorance of the machine. It was all easy enough but making the capital letters, that puzzled her, but the letters were calmly written without a sign of capitalization, and on the manager's astonished inquiry she told him regretfully that the capital was broken. Of course a man was sent for to mend the machine, and from him Miss Watanna received her first lesson in typewriting, paying him from her slender purse and swearing him to everlasting secrecy.

Miss Watanna's first Japanese story appeared in the Cincinnati Tribune. It was entitled "A Japanese Girl." Since then many of the leading periodicals have requested stories from her pen. Her work is particularly wholesome and abounds in delightful descriptions of the tropical East.

THE BIGGEST GUN IN THE WORLD.

The United States War Department has definitely decided on the introduction of Gruson turrets into the coast defense system of the United States and the first order has actually been given for the mounting of one of these enormous structures in lower New York harbor. The turret in question will be utilized for the protection of the great 16-inch 126-ton gun now nearing completion at the Watervliet arsenal for the United States. This gun when finished will not only be the heaviest gun in the world, but the longest and most powerful gun ever built. It will exceed by several feet in length the great Krupp gun exhibited at the World's Fair in 1893, and in range power will be able to throw its shell fully two miles further than the Krupp monster.

A BIG UMBRELLA.

It Is to Be One of the Attractions of the Paris Exposition.

The gigantic umbrella, which is to be one of the greatest attractions at the forthcoming Paris exhibition, will cover a surface of 15,000 square metres in height, and will consist of a hollow metal column 40 metres in diameter at the base. The covering of this wonderful umbrella will have a diameter of 140 metres, and will consist of multi-colored glass, beneath which will be suspended thousands of electric lamps. These when lighted up at night will produce a most brilliant and fairy-like effect. The inside of the "stick" will be divided into four stories, three below and the above the covering. On the lower floors there will be a cafe, a concert hall, and a theater. On the fourth story, situated at the top of the umbrella and forming a cupola, will be a restaurant. The different stories will be reached by comfortable lifts. The idea of this gigantic umbrella emanates from the brain of a woman—a Mme. Perchin Giverne, who is an umbrella maker.

UMBRELLA FOR THE PARIS SHOW.

Rats for Snakes.

Snakes have the sense of smell. It is difficult to obtain food for rattlesnakes and water vipers. The owner of a small private collection has been trying them on the house rats and mice he has caught about the buildings. He would leave these in the snake cages over night and through the day.

They would run over the snakes with impunity. The snakes would pay no attention to them, but when he happened to secure some field mice and put them in the cage the snakes ate them at once. He then put in several rats and mice of the ordinary house variety that he had caught out of doors, and these were seized by the snakes almost as readily as the wild species.

He then conceived the idea of making an earth box to keep the rats in for a while before feeding, and soon found that if they were put in there for twelve hours or so before they were given to the snakes they would be eaten. The only apparent explanation is that the smell of the earth is desirable by the snakes, and that the smell which the animals acquire about buildings is objectionable.

A County that Runs to Dogs.

The dogs in Barnwell County, South Carolina, are returned at a valuation of $12,830, while the assessed value of the entire property of the county in sheep and goats is $201.

There is nothing that makes a woman quite so mad as to have a neighbor who borrows of her, but who never invites her to her party.

Every dollar lost in playing the races is a dollar found by those who work them.

The egotist naturally leads a lonely life.

WHICH ONE OF YOUR EYES IS THE STRONGER?

Is your right the stronger, or your left eye? You are right-handed; are you also right sighted? Make this test and see. Place an object of about two inches in diameter, perfectly round, on a level with your eyes and move back from it to a distance of ten feet. Then take sight over your forefinger until the objective point and the tip of the finger are exactly in line with the eye from which you are sighting. Now open the other eye. With both your eyes open has the objective point moved to one side? If not the eye with which you first sighted is the stronger, since the addition of the other's vision does not divert the complete vision from the original focus of the one eye. If the objective does move to one side it proves that the weaker eye has done the first sighting, which the stronger eye has diverted as soon as it has opened.

Perhaps there is very little difference in your eyes. Take sight as before, but with both eyes open. Now close the left eye. How far out of line is the right eye? Now take sight again with both eyes open. Close your right eye. How far out of line is the left eye? Whichever is the farther out in these two tests is the weaker eye. If you are strongly right-eyed the right eye will hold firmly to the objective point which has been focused by both eyes together when it is left to view the objective alone. If you are strongly left-eyed, vice versa.

BOYHOOD OF JEFFRIES

THE CHAMPION'S FATHER TELLS HOW HE TRAINED HIM.

Early Characteristics of the Greatest Pugilist in the World—Clergyman Wants Him to Be a Good Fighter if He Has to Fight.

The father of the world's champion pugilist, Rev. Alexander Jeffries of Los Angeles, Cal., the other day gave this account of Jim's training:

"Twenty years ago I little thought that I was training the future champion heavyweight of the world. As I look back now I can remember mainly two things I asked of him—to obey his parents and to do what he did with all his might.

"I used to 'brush' Jim when I thought he needed it. I remember one time I heard him singing an ugly song. He kept the tune going a little too long to suit me, and I told him to quit. I always made it a rule to tell Jim only once what I wanted him to do. So, too, with his brothers. Well, the music went on in spite of my warning, and I went after him. It was all over in the first round. Jim never sang questionable songs after that.

"Whenever I told him anything he knew I meant it. I always dealt firmly with every one of the boys and Mrs. Jeffries also was resolute. While I rarely resorted to corporal punishment as a means of discipline, I found a little strap pretty wholesome once in a while. I never objected to the boys having their fun, but sometimes they went too far.

"I remember one incident that made me mighty proud of Jim when he was a lad in his teens, muscular and large for his age. We were holding a revival in a big tent not far from Los Angeles. The crowd had arrived and everything went on smoothly until I began speaking. I do not recall what I said, but it was concerning salvation and the means of reaching it.

"'You're a liar, sir, and a hypocrite!'

REV. ALEXANDER JEFFRIES.

shouted a quarrelsome fellow in the back part of the tent, glaring straight at me.

"The next thing he knew my boy Jim had taken him by the neck and pitched him bodily out of the tent, and warned him to be a little more decorous at future meetings. Jim often attended my meetings after that.

"When he was 21 years old he said to me: 'Father, I have always stayed at home up to this time; to-day I must begin hustling for myself.'

"So Jim began hustling.

"His temper was generally under control, but it was risky business to go too far with him. This is true, of course, of all men of controllable tempers. Jim generally held his temper, but when he did get angry he meant it.

"Seventeen years ago we moved from near the town of Lancaster, Ohio, to Los Angeles, where I bought a farm of 100 acres. We still live on part of this land, and it was here that Jim learned his trade. I think he was about 15 years old when the idea of winning the championship belt first came to his mind. He never said much about it till late years, but he was determined to win it, and went about it with the same earnestness that always characterizes him.

"Oh, if Jim would only fight for the Lord as hard as he did for that belt! What a power he would be! However, if God sees fit, that day will come.

"It was always my wish to see him succeed in whatever he undertook. As he grew up I hoped to see him enlist on the side of the Lord and I used to preach earnestly to him and the rest. Since he is now a pugilist, I want to see him at the top of the calling. Some day Jim will show the pugilists of the world what a sacrifice he can make by preaching salvation just as I am now doing on the streets of San Francisco. All this fighting is of the 'world, flesh and the devil.' Jim will see it in the fullness of time and renounce it. I have preached to him as I have to friends and strangers."

A Vegetable Arch.

A wonderful growth discovered some time ago in the sandy dry plains of Mexico seems, after all, not to be such a wonder as it was at first believed to be. A species of cactus, the Foquiera, growing in the shape of a tapered column, is rather commonly found thirty feet or more in height. One specimen, however, was found bent into a huge arch, both ends of which entered the soil at a distance of six yards from each other. In the center of the arch a shoot grew out, which is now more than ten feet long. How did this oddity grow thus? The question was answered in a very simple way the other day. An old herder related that, when he was young, he and other cowboys lassied for fun the highest of the tall cactuses they found, and, pulling it down, they buried the top of the column in the sand. This end grew roots, and a few years after the superabundance of vitality of this cactus forced for itself a way out in the new shoot, although this species never grows branches ordinarily. Now the plant looks like a gigantic spur.

Gave Himself Away.

"And you are busy, are you?" interrogated the customer, as he paid his check to the restaurant proprietor.

"Busy! Why, I'm so rushed I don't get a chance to go out to get a bite to eat!" was the unguarded reply.—Yonkers Statesman.

FATHER OF ADVERTISING.

Robert Bonner, the Famous Publisher, Who Died Recently.

Robert Bonner, famous as the publisher of the New York Ledger and owner of fast horses, notably Maud S, died at his home in New York. He was an Irishman by birth and was 75 years old.

Bonner might be called the father of advertising. He saw its value; he dared heights of boldness in calling attention to his wares that amazed his contemporaries. He was always the champion of right and at an early age allowed himself to be turned out of school for his part in defending a boy whom he knew to be innocent. Locating in Hartford, Conn., as a boy he learned the printer's trade and was the quickest typesetter in the office of the Hartford Courant, and on one occasion set up the president's message at the rate of 1,700 ems an hour to enable that paper to get the message out in advance of other papers. From Hartford he went to New York and in the broader field he soon conquered his way to a place among the prominent, leading and successful business men of the metropolis. He sometimes put up every dollar he had in bringing his enterprises before the people, but he would not get into debt and always refused to accept credit. When he began on the Hartford Courant he got his board and lodging, $25 for the first year, $35 for the second, and $45 for the third. He never had any school advantages to speak of, so he endeavored to learn all he could from the copy he set up. He always saved something. He never accumulated money for the sake of getting rich, but he went on the principle of living always within his income and so his bank account grew. One day after he went to New York he found that he had $70 ahead and with this he opened a bank account, keeping up the deposits until they amounted to $1,000 a week.

ROBERT BONNER.

When he bought the New York Ledger it was a little financial sheet. Bonner made it a family journal and employed some of the most famous writers in the country to contribute to it. He paid these contributors such extravagant prices for their work that all the newspapers in the country ridiculed his lack of judgment without considering that he was getting his money's worth out of them as free advertising. So he became immensely rich. He attributed his remarkable success to perseverance more than anything else.

BUILDS HIM A SPLENDID TOMB.

New York Merchant Spending $100,000 on a Mausoleum.

What will be the finest mausoleum in the United States from every standpoint is now being constructed at Winchester, Va., for Charles Broadway Rouss, the blind merchant of New York City, and when the last stone is laid and the last beautiful window finished it will have cost the millionaire $100,000. Nearly a year will be required to complete the structure and when it is done the last resting place of Mr. Rouss and his wife, both of whom are now in good health, will be a perfect copy of the Theseum, in Athens, built about 460 B. C. to receive the remains of Theseus, the Athenian hero, who was killed in Scyros.

TOMB OF CHARLES BROADWAY ROUSS.

The structure is of Grecian-Doric architecture and will be a fitting complement for the monument to Mr. Rouss' son, which stands on the next lot in the Winchester cemetery and which is declared to be the most imposing monument in the South. The mausoleum will be constructed of Vermont granite and the interior finish will be in colored marble. It is in the construction and finish of the interior of the sarcophagus that a fortune will be expended.

Av Coorse!

A family who have recently taken into their employ an Irish general servant say that her blunders cause them amusement enough to compensate for any trouble they may entail. One day the master of the house stated in Bridget's hearing that he intended to have a woodshed built on a piece of ground which at that time enclosed a well.

"And sure, sorr," said the inquiring Bridget, "will you be movin' the well to a more convanient spot whin the woodshed is builted?"

A smile crossed her employer's face, and instantly Bridget saw that she had made a mistake.

"It's mesilf that's a fool I'm think in'!" she said hastily. "Av coorse whin the well was moved, ivery drop of wather would rin out av it!"

Probabilities to Fit.

Wife (at breakfast)—I want to do some shopping to-day, dear, if the weather is favorable. What are the forecasts?

Husband (consulting his paper)—Rain, hail, thunder and lightning.

The charitable man who gives a coat of paint to a window shutter helps the blind.

When a man is all broke up he sees the necessity of mending his ways.

Glue may be obtained from pigs' feet and sugar from a hogs-head.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....AUGUST 3, 1899.

Dropped Their Daily

The publication of the Evening Dispatch was discontinued with its Saturday issue, as the present proprietors wish to devote more attention to job work. They had become satisfied that two daily papers could not be made to pay in Auburn, which is true. The Evening Dispatch should never have been started. The COURIER had been in the field nearly three years, when the Dispatch daily began and could not be rooted out. The most of the people were satisfied with it and staid by it. The circulation of the DAILY COURIER was better when Gordon sold out than it was before he began, and all the talk about a "bigger circulation" was mere nonsense. The only effect the second daily had was to divide the advertising patronage. The present proprietors of the Dispatch, we believe to be honorable gentlemen, and they have shown good business sense in dropping a dead weight. We hope they will make the Weekly Dispatch a financial success.

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

The Consumption Cure

Our county coroner, Dr. E. V. Campbell, of Butler, was in town Friday afternoon. It is quite interesting to talk with him about the discovery which Koch, the great chemist of Germany, made some years ago, which has led up to the new treatment of consumption, known now as the Tuberculin treatment by hypodermic injections.

He went with Dr. Casebeer to see some of the cases he is treating with that method. He had been to North Carolina to visit the sanitarium where they are treating great numbers in that way and reports very favorably of their success. They told him they could not cure all cases but were much more successful with that than any other form of treatment. He is very much interested and thinks it can be carried on as successfully here as anywhere.

He is agent for the Journal of Tuberculasio, a magazine devoted to the prevention and cure of consumption, and gathers all the late information from the best literature on that subject. Many of the physicians in Auburn have subscribed for this important Journal. The Doctor has great confidence in this form of cure.

Funston Can Talk

Gen. Funston writes as breezily as he fights. A Washington friend has received a letter from him, and the following is an extract therefrom. "On general principles I am not an expansionist; but I believe that since we were, by the unfortunate train of circumstances, thrown into this thing, we should stay with it to the bitter end and raw-hide these bull-headed Asiatic ruffians until they yell for mercy. And after the war I want the job of Professor of American history in Luzon University, when they build it—and I'll warrant that the new generation of Filipinos will know better than to get in the way of the band wagon of Anglo Saxon progress and decency."

FROM AN OHIO MINISTER.

I have used Dr. Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup for sore throat, weak lungs, coughs and colds; it surpasses all other remedies I have tried. With many thanks to the doctor for his valuable remedy, I remain—REV. G. W. HAGANS, Clyde, O.

Davenport, the Druggist.

Wheat as Hardy as Rye

We have been examining some varieties of wheat that made excellent crops where common sorts froze out. Samples can be had of J. A. Everitt, Seedsman, Indianapolis., if you mention this paper, or can be seen at this office. 31 are they who tell you other cough syrups are just as good as Beggs' Cherry Cough Syrup. If you can not get it from your druggist notify us at once and on receipt of 25 cents we will send you a bottle. Guaranteed. McCord's.

HUMBUGS

Old Settlers, at Angola, Aug. 17.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Ry. will on August 17, run a special train to Angola and return, leaving Auburn at 8:25 a. m. One fare, 54 cents for round trip. 32

NERVITA PILLS Restore VITALITY, LOST VIGOR AND MANHOOD

Cure Impotency, Night Emissions and wasting diseases, all effects of self-abuse, or excess and indiscretion. A nerve tonic and blood builder. Brings the pink glow to pale cheeks and restores the fire of youth. By mail 50c per box, 6 boxes for $2.50; with a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Send for circular. Address, NERVITA MEDICAL CO. Clinton & Jackson Sts., CHICAGO, ILL.

Davenport, The Druggist.

From Puget Sound.

JUNCTION CITY, Wash., July 24, '99

EDITOR COURIER:—It is with deep regards for the good people of DeKalb that I pen these lines. A twenty-four years residence in DeKalb county has endeared the place to me above all others, not on account of the scenery, for of scenery you have none; not on account of soil, productions or climate for they are all excellent by many other places. But it is on account of the host of dear friends I have left behind. I expect in the near future to write a full account of all my travels and adventures and a description of all the countries visited by me and put the same in book form and present copy to the readers of the COURIER. It shall commence on my twenty first birthday when I left the parental roof and started for the then wild west for the then distant shores of Puget Sound, and it will end with my return to these same shores after almost twenty years of travel and adventures. There on Puget Sound began my travels and here it shall end, for I shall travel no more. I am at last satisfied and expect to live and die on the evergreen shore. I shall never forget the deep emotion that overcame me when after nineteen years of absence the beautiful city of Port Townsend once more burst upon my view. When I left her she was a quiet little village that old timer were wont to call the sleeping beauty. But now how changed. Instead of pine clad hills for a back ground, there loomed up long streets lined with business blocks and stately residences. The low wooden building on the water front had given place to tall brick and stone blocks. As from the deck of the ocean steamer with my family I viewed the approaching city, all the past in visions came before me. My heart was filled with emotion and tears came unbidden to my eyes. My wife asked me what was the trouble, but I could only point to the city and weep. No one knew of my coming and I wondered if any would know me. Should I be welcomed back to the land I once loved to call my home. But all is well that ends well; so all was well with us, for no sooner were we safely landed upon the wharf than an old time friend recognized me and within five hours all the old timers in town knew of my return and we were kindly welcomed and feasted where ever we went. I wish any resident of DeKalb county could stand upon the edge of the bluff above Port Townsend and view this grandest of scenes. My dear readers you are not aware of what beautiful world you live in. There is a panorama more beautiful than pen can paint or words describe. The blue waters of the sound dotted with many green islands; beyond the snowy Cascades shining like a mirror in the sunlight. Behind us the city that sits on seven hills. The evergreen forests beyond and above towering the snow-fields of the unknown Olympies. There we rest until by the COURIER we meet again.

Yours truly,

JOSEPH A. SHADE.

OUR SIX YEAR OLD DAUGHTER.

Our little six-year-old daughter had a very sore throat, badly ulcerated, and coughed almost incessantly. Gave the White Wine of Tar Syrup according to directions and she began to improve immediately and soon got well. Mrs. Groves and I have recommended it to others, and we consider it the very best medicine in use.—REV. D. H. GROVE, Pastor M. E. Church, Clarksville, Mo.

Davenport, the Druggist.

CEDAR.

S. Haad and family Sundayed with L. F. Weygandt and family near Collingwood.

Mrs. Wolf of Auburn visited friends at this place last week.

The surprise at H. L. Houser's on Saturday evening last was a complete success.

Frank E. Smith got his buggy badly broken one night last week by running into Jerry Lung's wagon.

Many nice logs are being drawn to the new mill here.

Mrs. H. T. Smith and daughter took in the sights at Island Park assembly on Thursday last.

B. F. Warner has his wheat all threshed. He had six bushels. Only enough for one grist. Many other farmers in this part of the country are no better fixed.

INCREASE OF DOSE NOT NECESSARY.

There are many medicines advertised to cure constipation and other stomach disorders which really do some temporary relief, among these are the various kind of Pills and the number of Teas. But an experience with these is almost always disappointing. Either it becomes necessary to keep increasing the dose or they become entirely inactive. Not so with DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. Its efficacy keeps up and those who give it a fair and honest trial find that it is always a friend. 10c, 50c and $1 sizes of Davenport the Druggist.

NEWVILLE.

H. A. Potter and wife, of Butler, are visiting in this vicinity this week.

Born to Clyde Blaker and wife, last Sunday a m., a son.

A young miss was added to the family of C. E. Kriebel last week.

The funeral of Mrs. Geo. Blaker last Sunday is said to be the largest ever held in Newville.

Misses Maud and Fozzie Scoville, of Ashley, Miss Nellie Baxter, of Bad Axe Mich, and Miss Versh Cobb, of Auburn were the guest of Miss Mary Coats Monday.

Mrs. Oakley, sr., accompanied by a daughter and granddaughter has returned.

Entertainment at U. B. Church Saturday evening.

JOHNS RE-CAPTURED.

The Hamfatter Once More in His Old Quarters.

The Hotel de Hathaway now has again, all its regular guests. The place made vacant by the sudden disappearance of Dave Johns, is again filled. His nest at the jail is warm again. It was only a few days ago that Johns was put to working out of doors. He apparently don't like to work out doors, for at a time when things looked favorable he took a sneak. The sheriff was gone. This was on Friday. It was soon learned that there was an empty cradle in the jail, a little vacant chair at the sheriff's table. Sheriff Hathaway hath a way of keeping his family together, that is very new and refreshing, after our experiences of the past four years. So he laid his plans to get Brother Johns back again under his wing. Saturday and Sunday, he gave a good deal of attention to the matter, though very quietly. By putting this and that together he believed he could locate his man. Yesterday he spent some time in Wilmington township, with the result, that some time after dark, he and Will Baird, and another whose name we did not learn, drove out to a point not far from Moores, near where a man named Thompson lives, back in the woods, and it was about as dark as Egypt. Sending the man on past, with the team, the sheriff and Baird waited near the usual passage way in the fence, through which Thompson reaches the road. Hathaway sat down in the fence corner next to the gap, and soon saw and heard signs. Two men passed along there so close he could almost touch them. Then sounds like hitching up a rig could be heard, though not a word was spoken, not even to the horse. Not a thing was allowed to creak and all was silent except the wary movements and muffled sounds that to the sheriff's practiced ear, indicated plainly the preparations for flight. He had already made up his mind that Johns was to be driven to Ashley, there to take a train, and that until this could be done in safety he had been harbored there by friends and relatives—in the house at night, in the woods by day. Now all was clear to him as he waited and listened in the darkness. Then came the sound of muffled steps, a man ahead and the rig following. The man was Johns. Quietly he lifted the pole that lay across the gap in the rail fence and carried it around in such away that he almost stepped on the sheriff. Then he motioned the horse to come on, when the sheriff stepped up to him and laid the hand of the law on his shoulders. The fellow was paralyzed at the suddenness of his capture, and Hathaway would have given something nice to see his face just then. But it was too dark. There was no arguing the question. Baird was sent on after the team and the party returned to Auburn, where Sheriff Hathaway turned his prisoner once more into the room he left three days before. No doubt after three nights sleeping among the big mosquitoes of Wilmington swamps, he was glad to get back again. And the happy family in the bastile is once more united.

A Frightful Blunder

Will often cause a horrible Burn, Scald, Cut or Bruise. Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, will kill the pain and promptly heal it. Cures Old Sores, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Corns, all Skin Eruptions. Best Pile Cure on earth. Only 25 cts. a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by H. B. McCord, the Druggist.

OBITUARY

Manda Blaker, nee Manda Lett, wife of George M. Blaker, was born Feb. 16, 1866, in Milford township, Defiance coutny, Ohio. In the year 85 she was brought into secret relation with her Savior and Redeemer by baptism and has continued faithful until the end, passing beyond with a strong faith in Him as her guide and keeper. She was married to George M. Blaker July 8, 1888. After a lingering illness of many weeks her spirit took its flight Thursday evening at six o'clock, July 27, 199, being 33 years, 5 months and 16 days of age.

Father, mother, two sisters and a brother preceded her. Husband, five sisters, three brothers, other relatives and a host of friends remain to mourn her loss, but not as those who have no hope. Funeral service was held in the U. B. church at Newville last Lord's day morning, July 30. Chas. R. Oakley preached the sermon. A large number of relatives and friends followed the remains to their last resting place.

CHAUTAUQUA MEETING

Mountain Lake Park, Md., Aug. 2-30, '99
Half Fare via B. & O. Railroad.

August 1 to 30 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Mountain Lake Park at one fare for round trip. Return Limit: Leaving Mountain Lake Park August 31.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or, B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 34 should never be without a box of Beggs' German Salve; it gives instant relief. Heals sores, cuts, bruises and chafing. H. B. McCord's drug store.

WHEELMEN

FOR SALE.

For sale at reasonable price one 45 ft. power windmill with new force pump, tank, piping, etc. For information call at Hollister House, Auburn, Ind.

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR 1899.

The Trustee of Union township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, to be held at the trustee's office, the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1.—Township expenditures, $800; and township tax 20 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures $850, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

3. Special school tax expenditures, $1200, and tax 25 cents on the hundred dollars.

4. Road tax expenditures, $1200, and tax 25 cents on the hundred dollars.

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $500, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Library expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $500, and tax 6 cents on the hundred dollars.

8. Other items, if any, expenditures $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $5050; and total tax 91 cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed, A. W. MADDEN, Trustee.

Dated August 1, 1899.

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR 1899.

The Trustee of Jackson township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, to be held at the school house of School District No. 5, the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures, $1300, and township tax 15 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures, $845, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

3. Special school tax expenditures, $1000, and tax 12 cents on the hundred dollars.

4. Road tax expenditures, $2107, and tax 25 cents on the hundred dollars.

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $845, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Library expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $45, and tax ½ cent on the hundred dollars.

8. Other items, if any, expenditures, ..., and tax .. on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $6142, and total tax 72½ cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed, W. S. DANCER, Trustee.

Dated July 31, 1899.

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR ENDING SEPT., 1900.

The Trustee of Newville township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, to be held at the school-house in School District No. 3, the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures, $750, and township tax 25 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures, $300, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

3. Special school expenditures, $750, and tax 25 cents on the hundred dollars.

4. Road tax expenditures, $900, and tax 30 cents on the hundred dollars.

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $300, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Library expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $198 03, and tax 3 cents on the hundred dollars.

8. Other items of expenditure, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $3090, and total tax 103 cents on the hundred dollars.

Total assessed valuation of taxable property of the township for the year, $300,365.

Total No. polls in township, 112.

Signed, A. E. CHAPMAN, Trustee.

Dated July 31, 1899.

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR 1900.

The Trustee of Smithfield township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, to be held at the school-house in School House No. 5, on the first Tuesday of September, at 10 o'clock a. m., the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures, $700, and township tax 12½ cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures, $700, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

3. Special school tax expenditures, $800, and tax 12½ cents on the hundred dollars.

4. Road tax expenditures, $1600, and tax 25 cents on the hundred dollars.

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $350, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Library expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $73.74, and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

8. Other items, if any, expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $4250, total tax 65 cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed, N. T. JACKMAN, Trustee.

Dated July 31, 1899.

NOTICE.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on two 25 cent bottles or boxes of Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, if it fails to cure constipation, billiousness, sick-headache, jaundice, loss of appetite, sour stomach, dyspepsia, liver complaint, or any of the diseases for which it is recommended. It is highly recommended as a spring tonic and blood purifier. Sold liquid in bottles, and tablets in boxes. Price 25 cents for either. One package of either guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. E. M. FISCHLER, F. E. DAVENPORT, HOWARD MCCORD.

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR 1899.

The Trustee of Franklin township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, to be held at the school-house in School District No. 5, the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures, $960, and township tax 15 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures, $320, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

3. Special school tax expenditures, $960, and tax 15 cents on the hundred dollars.

4. Road tax expenditures, $960, and tax 15 cents on the hundred dollars

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $320, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Library expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $15, and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

8. Other items, if any, expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $3520, and total tax 55 cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed, J. W. BROWN, Trustee.

Dated August 1, 1899.

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR 1900.

The Trustee of Grant township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, to be held at the office of the trustee in the DeKalb bank building at Waterloo, the following estimates and amounts for said year-

1. Township expenditures, $600, and township tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures, $1200, and tax 12 cents on the hundred dollars

3. Special school tax expenditures, $600, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

4. Road tax expenditures, $1850, and tax 30 cents on the hundred dollars.

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $700, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $200, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $5100, and total tax 77 cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed, GEO. W. CROOKS, Trustee.

Dated July 30, 1899.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR 1900.

The Trustee of Fairfield township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at their annual meeting, to be held at the school house in School District No. 5, the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures, $700, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures, $750, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars

3 Special school tax expenditures, $1000, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

4. Road tax expenditures, $1350 and tax 20 cents on the hundred dollars.

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $650, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Library expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $195, and tax 3 cents on the hundred dollars.

8. Other items, if any, expenditures, $...., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $4,645, and total tax 58 cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed, JOS. HUFF, Trustee.

Dated August 1, 1899.

House and Lot for Sale.

One lot on south side of east Seventh street with small building on premises, formerly used for paint shop. Inquire of George Braun at Hebel's meat market, Auburn, Ind.

YOU ought to know that when suffering from any kidney trouble that a safe, sure remedy is Foley's Kidney cure. Guaranteed or money refunded.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared for Piles and Itching of the private parts. Every box is warranted. By druggists, by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents and $1.00. WILLIAMS MANUFACTURING CO., Props., Cleveland, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Dr. Humphreys'

Specifics act directly upon the disease, without exciting disorder in other parts of the system. They Cure the Sick.

NO. CURES.	PRICES.
1—Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations.	.25
2—Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic...	.25
3—Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4—Diarrhea, of Children or Adults.....	.25
7—Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis.....	.25
9—Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache.....	.25
9—Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo..	.25
10—Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach.	.25
11—Suppressed or Painful Periods....	.25
12—Whites, Too Profuse Periods.....	.25
13—Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness.....	.25
14—Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions..	.25
15—Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains.....	.25
16—Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague.....	.25
19—Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20—Whooping-Cough	.25
27—Kidney Diseases	.25
28—Nervous Debility	1.00
30—Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed...	.25
77—Grip, Hay Fever	.25

Dr. Humphreys' Manual of all Diseases at your Druggists or Mailed Free.

Sold by druggists, or sent on receipt of price. Humphreys' Med. Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

Shoes to Fit All Needs

All Tastes All Pocketbooks

Even if your purse is a double "A" we can find good shoes, and good-looking and stylish ones to fit you.

We make a specialty of getting the very best shoes it is possible to get, and then making the price.

Quality always comes first here; but the prices are moderate for all that.

BISHOP & BEIDLER, YOUR SHOEMAKERS.

Summer Comforts!

There is no time in the year that the COMFORTS of the KITCHEN are more highly appreciated than during the months of July and August. We suggest as one of theses pecial comforts,

GASOLINE STOVES

We have a nice line of them which we are offering at special inducements We have as good a line of REFRIGERATORS as there is made—some people say they are the best. We recommend them as ice savers, easy to keep clean and pure, as well as ornamental. The....

REFRIGERATOR

is another of our special summer comforts which we place within your reach.

While Gasoline Stoves and refrigerators are important factors in summer comforts, yet

Screen Doors and Windows are as important as the others. Don't think it is too late to buy them. It is just the time you need them most. We have a large line of paints, varnishes and painters supplies.

Headquarters for Plumbing Goods,

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE.

Fort Wayne BUSINESS COLLEGE,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Latest and Best Methods.
The Best Equiped.
Superior Courses in all Branches.
Book-keeping, Shorthand, Penmanship, Typewriting, Banking Telegraphy and English.

You Want Success, Write Us for Full Particulars and Circulars.

E. D. DOUGLASS, Pres.

Cider Mill

We will start up our cider mill in Stametstown, Auburn, August 4 and run on Wednesday and Thursday of each week till further notice.

RUHL & BAKER.

Give it a Trial.

It will surprise you. It will restore the life and beauty to your hair, stops dandruff and the hair from falling out. Beggs' Hair renewer. H. B. McCord's.

Seed Wheat

I have a quantity of Winter King seed wheat for sale. It is free from rye or foul seed. Call at my farm 1½ miles north of Newville.—WORTH COATS. 31-39

Junk Wanted

Please save your money. Don't forget to bring all your junk to H. Greenberg, three blocks north of M. E. church in Auburn, who pays for rags, rubber, copper, brass, zinc, lead, scrap iron and all kinds of hides and furs. Also buys and sells second-hand material, stoves and furnaces, etc. Persons having second-hand material to buy or sell, it will be to their interest to see H. Greenberg.

Best Cash Prices

William's Kidney Pills

Has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your Kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your Kidneys and Bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire pass urine? William's Kidney Pills will impart new life to the diseased organs, tone up the system and make a new man of you. By mail 50 cents per box.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

BINDER TWINE

Our famous BLUE LABEL BRAND. It's the best in the world. Price will surprise you. We deliver from Chicago, Omaha or St. Paul, as desired. Write for prices and samples.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO., CHICAGO

We ushered out July with - - - - - -

An Array Of Bargains

such as is rarely one's privilege to see. Every department is anxious to make as large a showing for each month's selling as possible, and all are accordingly making extraordinary efforts to open this month selling with a record-breaking week. For the rest the prices speak for themselves.

1 Lot	Double thread Turkish bath towels, extra large, heavy and good values, cheap at 15 cts,	This week	10c
1 Lot	Newest Tennis patterns and colors, soft, fleecy and durable; worth 7c	This week	5c
1 Lot	Women's Gloves for bicycle and driving, extry fine, and sold by us every day at 25c.	This wk	19c
1 Lot	Women's Corsets in Summer Madras, good style, lace trimmed; worth 25c	This week	20c
1 Lot	Women's Wrappers in figured light percale, with tight fitting vest, full sweep skirt, finished with deep hem; cheap at $1.25	This week	89c
1 Lot	Women's Wrappers, light percale; worth 75c to $1.00	This week	55c
1 Lot	Women's two piece percale suits—waist and skirt—worth $1.50 to $2 75	This week	$1.25
1 Lot	Men's soft negligee percale shirts, with cuffs and collars; cheap at 50c	This week	39c
1 Lot	Kant-open Hook and Eye; worth 5 cts a card	This week, 2 cards for	5c
1 Lot	Men's summer Suspenders, with drawer supporters; worth 25c	This week	15c
1 Lot	Ladies' and Misses' fancy hose, cheap at 50c	This week	38c
1 Lot	Organdies, Lawns and Dimitys that were cheap at 10c a yard	This week	5c

You Can Depend on Getting the Right Prices at this Store.

G. W. LACKEY,

The Big Store, Auburn, Ind.

IDEAL MUSIC,

"Sweet as the angel Israfil's,
When every leaf on Eden's tree
Was trembling to his minstrelsy."

can be produced from an EBERSOLE PIANO. The Ebersole possesses a tone that no other maker has been able to imitate—being full and deep, yet with that clear singing quality which stamps it the peer of all upright pianos for homes of culture and refinement.

Frank B. Long,

119 Calhoun-St. cor Washington,

Fort Wayne, Ind.

Mott's Nerverine Pills

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. $1.00 per box by mail; 6 boxes for $5.00.

MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Prop's, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

WANTED!

We will pay $2.00 per cord CASH for all the good live elm bolts, 10 inches and over in diameter, 32 inches long, delivered on our yard in Auburn.

Greenler Co.

MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

They overcome Weakness, Irregularity and omissions, Increase vigor and banish "pains of menstruation." They are "Life Savers" to girls at womanhood, aiding development of organs and body. Ro known remedy for women equals them. Cannot do harm—life becomes a pleasure. $1 per box by mail. Sold by druggists. MOTT CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents Dandruff and hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Monday's Daily.

—Henry Loehner is building an addition to the residence of S. S. Potter.

—Mrs. C. M. Brown and daughter have returned from their visit at Hamilton.

—Rev. Meese went to Spencerville today in the interest of the Matrimonial reunion.

—L. J. Miller is reported still slowly improving, a fact his friends will be glad to learn.

—Miss Ruby Seydell of Chicago Junction, O., is visiting her aunt, Mrs William Sheffer.

—Mrs. James Griswold was on the sick list a part of last week, but was reported better yesterday.

—Mrs. Hettie Sommers has returned from her vacation and is again at her place in the Lackey store.

—Miss Alda Larimore will go to Fort Wayne tomorrow to spend a portion of her vacation with her sister, Mrs. Fair.

—Henry Fretz of Richland township, was here today, extending invitations for the S. S. picnic to be held Aug. 19.

—Frank Nelson has gone to his home in Jackson township, to remain a while before beginning his next term of school.

—Chas. Comiskey brought to town this morning the first "mess" roasting ears of the field corn variety which was very fine.

—No humbug. Shull's sale of women's fine shoes, $3.00 and $4.00 shoes for $2.00 at Shull's this week. No old styles, all new and up-to-date. tf.

—An immense audience heard the speech of Hon. W. J. Bryan at Rome City last Saturday. Every county in the district was well represented.

—A large platter of rosy, red apples, and Superintendent Bartel's invitation to "help yourselves," was a pleasant after service at the county farm yesterday.

—We are pleased to see Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Waggoner driving yesterday with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gibson. Mrs. W. has been in poor health for some time, but seems much improved.

—Mr. and Mrs. Gulla left at noon for their summer vacation at Mullet Lake, Cheboygon county, Mich., where they have a cottage. The Daily and an abundance of good wishes go with them.

—The Masons at Columbia City are preparing to erect a two-story building with an opera house on the first and lodge rooms on the second floor. It will be a fine structure.

"Foley's Kidney Cure has been tested and to be all you claim for it. I have been giving it to my father and it is the only thing that ever helped him," writes GEO. W. HICKOCK, Curtiss, Wis.

—The old eighty-eighth Indiana regiment will hold its annual reunion at Wolcottville, September 27, with a camp-fire in the evening. Eight members of the regiment have died since the last reunion.

—Will Snyder who has been visiting his brother, S. C. Snyder, went to Chicago yesterday where he will meet his wife who has been visiting relatives there. Then they return to their home at Rockford, Ill.

—Misses Effie and Mary Wise from about three miles east of Auburn hitched up a double team and came in yesterday afternoon and took Mesdames Ehlers, Johnson and Kutzner and Miss Mary Wise to the services at the county farm.

—Brad Ralston, came from Paxton, Ill., Saturday for a visit among the young friends here. Brad has grown wonderfully, and is looking every inch a man. He says the Auburn colony out there are all prospering.

—Mrs. Dr. Baxter is expected home Wednesday, after a three weeks visit with her friends at the old home in Harrison county. She might as well conclude to bring little Marjorie, also, as there are a number of friends waiting for her.

—During the month of August you can buy the largest ironing board on the stoutest folding frame ever placed on the market for $1.00, regular price $1.50. Manufactured by Chester Hoisington, corner of Twelfth and Van-Buren streets.

—E. Hendrickson, wife and daughter and Mrs. Joseph Hendrickson went to Pleasant Lake yesterday to attend the funeral of Samuel Leasure, whose accidental death near Waterloo was noted in these columns. The funeral was largely attended.

—Charlie Rainier left this morning for a commercial trip through southern Indiana in the interest of the firm of Wm. Sheffer & Co. We are glad to note that this enterprising firm is building up a good wholesale trade in their line. They certainly deserve this as no better harness are made anywhere.

—Bert Lane, who was a red cross army nurse in Porto Rico, as well as in hospitals and camps in this country, is ready to serve in that capacity where needed. He has had especial experience in the case of fever patients and those suffering from wounds. Call on him at the residence of S. L. Duck on west Ninth street.

—A Logansport man who is now in Cuba, writes to Postmaster General Heath as follows: "Cannot you issue a ukase, manifesto, proclamation or something of that sort, and call attention to the fact that the postage to Cuba is five cents? Get in the newspapers somehow. The penalty is double the unpaid postage, and it takes so much to get our mail out of hock that we have no money left to buy beer. I paid six cents on a letter this morning, forwarded to me from Logansport, which contained a circular advertising ear muffs for the Klondike.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Mrs. Dr. Darby of Waterloo was here yesterday.

—Miss Anna Bevier of Waterloo was in Auburn yesterday.

—Ladies' $4 00 tan shoes for $2 00 this week at Shull's shoe store. tf.

—S. R. Rickel and wife, of Waterloo, were on our streets yesterday.

—Boston excursion at half rates over Lake Shore Ry., August 11 and 12.

—Mrs. Geo. Braun's little niece returned to her home in Ohio, Sunday evening.

—Dr. Baxter was in Butler township yesterday to see Mrs. Balentine, who is sick.

—Old Mr. Freeman in the south part of the county is reported in extremely poor health.

—Albert Hogue of LaOtto was here yesterday on business. He expects to go on one of the Niagara trips.

—Recorder Jones went out to his farm this morning, and will remain a few days to look after the threshing.

—If you want a pair of fine shoes for a little money, call at Shull's shoe store. $3.50 and $4.00 shoes for $2.00.

—Miss Vera Cobb and Miss Nellie Baxter were the guests yesterday of the latter's cousin, Mrs. Worth Coats, near Newville.

—FOR SALE:—A thorough bred short horn bull calf, four months old. Enquire of A. M. St. Clair, 2½ miles northeast of Auburn. 32

—Trustee A. E. Chapman of Newville, was here this morning and arranged for publishing his estimates as required by law.

—The northern prison at Michigan City now contains twenty-five insane convicts and the number is said to be gradually increasing.

—Dewey has a grand nephew in Muncie, by the name of John Will Dewey. He is four years old and lives with his grandmother.

—FOR SALE:—Two good farm and roadster horses, and one two-seated carriage in good condition. For information call at this office.

—Editor Baker of the Columbia City Commercial is announced as a candidate for the republican nomination for lieutenant governor in 1900.

—Mrs. Tom Patterson and baby came home from Chicago Sunday evening after a two-months visit with friends there, including Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davenport, the ladies being sisters.

—Pearl J. Geeting of Waterloo, and Fletcher Goudy, Leeman Kennel and Myron Curry have enlisted in the thirty-fifth regiment, United States Volunteers, and will go to the Philippines.

—Little Waldo Seller is again troubled with his old plague, the hay fever. Several times he had to spend the early fall at Petoskey, and will go this year as soon as his mother is able to go with him.

—The man who committed suicide at Garrett yesterday by cutting his throat with the sharp edge of a tin can, proves to be Robert Anderson of Chicago, a brickmason. His brother came down and got his body.

—Rev. Meese extends to the Sunday schools of Auburn and vicinity a cordial invitation to attend the Matrimonial reunion in the grove near the fair ground, Tuesday and Wednesday August 15 and 16.

—Rev. J. M. Haines, of Garrett, will deliver a lecture Tuesday afternoon, at the Meese Matrimonial Reunion. His subject is an excellent one. "The Sacredness of Home." It should be heard by everyone.

—Mrs. M. E. Griswold starts for the east tomorrow on an extended trip. She goes first to Catskill, N. Y., and after a stay with Mr. Griswold's relatives there, will go to Providence, R. I., and visit Mr. and Mrs. Brad Harris. The trip will include New York City, and she will be absent about a month.

—Read over the estimates of the different townships, that we publish today. This is as directed by the new law, and will we believe prove satisfactory to the people. The COURIER has always contended that every public officer ought to show his people exactly what he is doing with their money, and for their interests.

—W. C. Hartman returned to Roann this morning on the early train. They are buying a big boiler in Auburn to take down there; they are going to build a second stave mill to run in connection with their big factory. This shows how their business is flourishing From 100,000 to 200,000 pieces of staves, hoops, etc., cut daily, gives one an idea of what they are doing.

—Under the Indiana Reform laws, every county and township officer is required this week to estimate the amount of money necessary to conduct his office for the year beginning Sept. 1. The county commissioners are included also in this duty and must estimate the amount that will be necessary for the general expenses of each county at large. In September the county and township councils will meet, pass upon the estimates and approve or disapprove of them.

—Monday M. B. Masters and wife went out to hunt the festive blackberry They got about ten quarts of fine ones but had to walk several miles to do it. "Where was Moses when the lights went out?" is an old melody. But a living question today is, "Where was Moses, when the light came in—at the top of his hat? The entire top of his hat was pulled off bodily by the big thorns on the brambles. Luckily Mr. Masters is not bald headed, and therefore he suffered no great inconvenience It looks, however, as if his provisions for ventilation were rather overdone. Still he takes it in good part,

Wednesday's Daily.

—Chris. Ashelmen and daughter have returned from their visit in Toledo.

—Estus Roberts, Shelbyville, became entangled in the net while seining, and drowned.

—The county council meets with the board of commissioners next Monday to organize for work.

—C. S. Johnson and fmily of Montpelier, Ohio, are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Johnson.

—M. T. Bishop of St. Joe was in town yesterday afternoon advertising the Island Park excursion, August 15.

—Miss Olive Nelson has returned from Chicago. She will graduate next year in a school of homeopathy there.

—Grandma Barclay went to Cedar Creek today to see her sister, Mrs. Mary Hixon. We believe the latter is still improving.

—For Sale:—A good second-hand phaeton, in first-class condition, at very reasonable terms.—MRS. JACOB WALBORN, Auburn, Ind.

—Mrs. Sophia Keinreich, Goshen, captured a bald eagle on her porch after a hard fight. Its wings measured eight feet from tip to tip.

—To all points in competition where the fare is $2 or more we have free bus and free baggage to the Junction. tf SPROTT & KNAPP, Agency B. & O. Ry.

—Send in your orders for the Daily COURIER, or give your name to the carrier, or any employe of the office, and the paper will be delivered as requested.

—Owing to the ill health of Mrs. McKinley the president has canceled his western trip. Therefore he will not be at Winona in August as has been anticipated.

—A COURIER reporter called on L. J. Miller this morning and was glad to find him so much improved as to be out of doors. He is still rather weak, but steadily gaining.

—Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Boyle drove over from Butler today and were accompanied home by their little daughter who had been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Anna Silver.

—Mrs. W. W. Stevens, of Salem, who is widely known as a lecturer at farmers' institutes, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Cal. Husselman at heir home north of town today.

Tetter, Eczema and Skin Diseases yield quickly to the marvelous healing qualities of Banner Salve made from a prescription of a skin specialist of world wide fame. 25c.

—Excursion to Rome City over the B. & O. on Tuesday, August 15. Fare for round trip, including admission to assembly grounds, 75 cents. Go and enjoy a day of pleasure.

—Isaac Speer of Waterloo was in town today. He is fitting up the rooms in the second story of his brick business room, so they can be occupied by a family or for offices.

—Mr. Garvin the great fruit grower of Bristol was here today with fine plums and blackberries. He sends them by train to Waterloo, and then takes them around by team.

—The Salem Democrat claims to have a subscriber who insists in paying for a year's subscription every time he gets drunk. As the books now stand, his time will not be out until 1927.

—A cheap vacation trip can be taken by buying half-rate tickets to Boston, Mass. On sale August 11 and 12 over Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. Good for return until August 31. 32

—The marshal of Winamac received a hurry message that a crazy man was loose in the woods, but he only found a man there trying to hive a swarm of bees. It was a good joke on the bees.

—Mrs. A. F. Martin of Columbia City is visiting the family of S. B. Jones, at Butler Mrs. Jones being her daughter. She is expected in Auburn tomorrow to visit Mrs. Barns, who is a niece.

—The torn and tattered battle flag of the old Thirtieth Indiana regiment was photographed a few days ago by a Fort Wayne artist. The old flag got its first baptism of fire at the battle of Shiloh.

—Prof. Lollar, superintendent of the Garrett schools came over from Waterloo today, with his father-in law, Isaac Speer. He went on to Garrett while the latter remained here. Mr. Lollar is moving into the residence he recently bought of Prof. Hoke in that city.

—FOR SALE:—A good young black horse with white strip in face; 16½ hands high, weight 120; will work single or double: will make a good family horse. A rare opportunity. Call quick at my residence south of the school building.—W. H. ZIGLER, Auburn Ind.

—Our people should remember the B. & O. excursion to Rome City on Tuesday, August 15, which is W. C. T. U. and temperance day at Island Park. The fare for the round trip from Auburn Junction will be 75 cents. The train will leave the Junction at 6:45 a. m., and returning leave Rome City at 7 p. m.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eckhart reached home on the north bound noon train today, having been absent about two months at various points in the east. They would have remained a month longer, but Mrs. Eckhart's health was such, it was thought best to come home and enjoy a rest. We are glad to welcome them home.

—Agt. DeLapp of the Lake Shore informs us that a special train will be run from Fort Wayne next Saturday night to accommodate those who vist Buffalo Bill's show and wish to attend the evening performance. The train will leave Fort Wayne at 11 p. m. and tickets will be sold for the morning and afternoon south bound trains at one fare—68 cents—for the round trip.

BUTLER.

Tim Otis remains in a very critical condition, with but meager hopes of recovery.

The Canning Co., have thoroughly remodeled their plant and added fully twice the former floor space; put on new steel roof and painted outside so that one would not know the place if he did not have his nose along.

Walter Maxwell is still suffering severely from the kick he received from his horse, but is regarded as out of danger.

Romain C. Campbell was confined to his home by illness part of last Friday and Saturday. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Hamilton, who keeps house for him, is also confined to her bed by illness.

J. A. Campbell and wife returned from their western trip on the 25th of July. They report a very enjoyable time. Cecil Fralich of South Chicago, a granddaughter, came home with them.

Mother Haswell of Troy township, 88 years of age, died last week.

Mary, wife of Wm. Stoy formerly of this county, died at York Center, Steuben county, last week.

Miss Dora Snyder of Norwalk, Ohio, is visiting Florence Campbell and others.

Catharine Greenamyer of Newville is making her home with her niece Mrs. Jessie Harr of this place. She is totally blind.

Ward A. Smith has bought the Ginder property on the south side.

There is a regular tearing up of old broken sidewalks, all over town, and if it continues a month or two we can't walk from one end of town to the other without running the risk of a broken neck.

Some of our merchants change clerks with the dark of every moon. The boys do not seem to have a pull.

Mrs. Della Tomlinson and daughter Mrs. Eldon and her husband are visiting their old home and making some needed improvements.

Coroner E. V. Campbell was called to Garrett last Sunday on account of a suicide. His brother, M. F. accompanied him.

Mary Chambers, an elderly maiden living with her brother Robert Chambers southwest of town, was buried the first of this week.

The writer's absence from the city for three weeks, left Butler's corner in the COURIER vacant.

DR. LUELLA DAY UNDERHILL.

Medical Supt. Chicago Working Woman's Home writes as follows: "As a laxative and remedy for all ailments of stomach and bowels we have found nothing that acts so well as your Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. We have found it invaluable in cases of sick headache and can heartily recommend it to all sufferers from such trouble."

A Good Buying Time

in all lines for summer wear. We're crowding the goods out of sight, making the prices do the work and the opportunities for most economical buying are plentiful. Former prices and profits have been pushed out of mind, and you can buy goods frequently at less than they cost to manufacture.

Corsets

A long waist dress form made from a fine grade of coutille, striped with sateen at..... 98c

One of our newest productions in Corsets is made from fine French Coutille. The hip lines are beautifully curved thereby assuring an easy graceful fit. The Venus back and the clasp 12½ inches long. This corset we will sell at..... 98c

Black Sateen underskirts beautifully made with three ruffles and protected with drill flounce. Always sell at $1.50 as long they last you can get them for..... 98c

Boys' 50c laundried shirts with collars and cuffs, all sizes..... 39c

Linen Towels at 19c a piece or per pair..... 35c

Turkish Bath Towels, extra size at per pair.... 35c

Prerty patterns in Lawns to go at..... 4c

Belts—Leather Belts—all kinds of belts to go at.. 19c

Court Plaster—two 5c pieces of court plaster to sell at... 5c

Men's and Boy's Suspenders at 5, 10 and 15c

Key Rings and Chains at 5, 10 and 15c

Grocery Department.

Sardines, oil, 4c box or 3 for	10c	Graham Wafers per pound	9c
Mixed Spices per box	5c	Soda Wafers per pound	9c
Sweet Chocolate per cake	8c	Ginger Snaps per pound	7c
Flat Iron Starch per box	8c	Royal Shoe Polish per bottle	8c
Mop Sticks	8c	Wash Board a good one for	10c
Cotton belt clothes lines	10c	Fine machine oiler	10c
Slaw Cutters	14c	Full Cream Cheese per pound	12c

Bazar Store

Auburn, Indiana.

PETER KUNTZ, PRESIDENT. Chicago, Ill.

W. H. KECKLER, TREASURER Auburn, Ind.

...THE...

Auburn Lumber Co.

CENTRAL 'PHONE 12.

We sell all kinds of Lumber for Building Purposes, Make Door and Window Frames to Order. We can Sell you Doors and Windows at Money Saving Prices.

Headquarters For

Lime, Bulk Lime

Wood Burnt bulk Lime

The Genuine Article.

We can save you money in Price, Quality and Weight Come and see us and examine our LIME, and you will be convinced. We also carry Cement, Plastering Hair, Plaster Paris, etc. Yours Truly,

AUBURN LUMBER CO.

Near Wabash Depot, Auburn, Ind.

It Pays to Paint.

There is nothing that adds to the selling value or the renting value of a house like good paint—there is nothing that makes home more home-like than good paint.

It pays to paint. The better the paint, the better it pays.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT

pays in the beginning because it goes so far—pays in the end because it lasts so long, and looks so well, as long as it lasts. There is no paint like it for beauty and durability, for economy and satisfaction.

For Sale By

CULBERTSON & BOLAND.

THORN IN ENGLAND'S FLESH.

Possibility of a War with the Transvaal Republic Brings That Little Country to the Front Again—Characteristics of the Boers and Their Land.

THE trouble in the Transvaal is a war of races. In that country of wind-blown veldt and craggy hills the aggressive, restless, absorbing, conquering, colonizing spirit of the Anglo-Saxon faces the stolidly courageous inertia of the Dutch. Three times in the past the blaze of open conflict has flared. The smoldering embers are growing a brighter red, and the time is not distant when once more they will burst into flame. That is the judgment of every unbiased student of the situation. It is their judgment, too, that the coming combat will far surpass its predecessors in fury, in fatalities and in results.

It is a country worth fighting for. Between it and that portion of the United States which lies just to the eastward of the Rockies there is strong similarity. It has the same wide-spreading mesas, carpeted with waving grassea, green in the early spring and brown in the heats of summer. There are the same infrequent and treacherous water courses, the same magnificent distances, the same jutting knobs of granite and other stones, which we call "buttes." The land of the Dutch is possibly less fertile than the American land, although there is no better cattle country. As an offset to this it is the greatest gold-producing area of the earth. It is gold that has caused all the trouble, because the thirst for gold has brought in the tens of thousands of foreigners, mostly Englishmen, who have come to be known as "uitlanders" or outlanders.

PAUL KRUGER.

MAP OF SOUTH AFRICAN REPUBLIC.

The Transvaal was formerly annexed to Great Britain. When the English army was beaten at Majuba Hill Gladstone was prime minister. He concluded a treaty with the Dutchmen which gave them everything for which they had been fighting. It was peace without honor, and the Tories raged as the heathen rage. Mr. Gladstone said that England's "magnanimity" at this crisis would go far toward convincing the Boers that a great and powerful nation was willing to do them justice, and that Englishmen would become immediately popular in the Dutch republic. His opponents said that exactly a contrary result would accrue, and the end of it proved them to have been right. The Boers laughed at the suggestion of "magnanimity." They declared that the English had been whipped to a standstill, and that it was fear, not humanity, which dominated them. This impression of the English army exists almost universally in the Transvaal to-day.

Thorn in Britain's Flesh.

The Transvaal is about the size of France. It is rich in natural resources, aside from its gold and diamond fields, and for nearly two centuries has been filled by the thrifty Dutch emigrants and their descendants, or utilized for the pastures of their thousands of herds of cattle and horses. The country takes its name from the River Vaal, which forms its southern boundary. This may become a new Rubicon if war is declared, and it is probably the best-known stream of the Dark Continent, although from a geographical standpoint it is insignificant compared with such watercourses as the Nile and the Niger. While largely composed of tablelands the country is well watered and fertile. On the tableland can be grown the usual crops of the temperate zone, such as cereals, tobacco, fruits and vegetables, while its ivory and wool markets are among the most extensive in the world. The ostrich is also a native of this country and the trade in its feathers is considerable. An abundance of timber and other building material have given the inhabitants an opportunity to construct substantial and comfortable homes at a small cost, and the traveler is surprised at the advance in civilization which he finds in the towns located hundreds of miles from the nearest railroad.

But the Transvaal has been a thorn to the British Government for over a century. Within the country and near its borders have occurred many conflicts, in which the English have not met the success which has attended their arms in East India and other parts of the world, for the reason that they have had to oppose men of Dutch blood, who have proved by many wars that they are a nation of fighters as well as of farmers. Since the first colony of Dutchmen landed at Cape Colony, in 1652, these people have been the enemies of England, and have shown it in a variety of ways. The present difficulty is based, apparently, on technical grounds, but Kruger, who may be called the Dutch George Washington, has taken every opportunity to arouse the feeling of his countrymen, and of the native African as far as possible, to incite another war. None know this better than the British Foreign Office, and it is endeavoring in every way possible to avoid an open rupture. Should Kruger and his allies come out victorious there is a possibility that the entire southern portion of Africa, from the Limpopo River, which bounds the Transvaal on the north, to Cape Colony will again be under the administration of the Holland emigrants. On the other hand, should they be defeated, it will be a long step toward the complete subjugation of Africa to British interests. Hence the importance of the outcome of the difficulty.

The southern peninsula of Africa is practically divided into several republics of greater or less size under the suzerainty of Great Britain. The proceedings of the Parliament in Cape Colony and the Volksraad in the Transvaal are seldom or never interfered with by the British Foreign Office. The majority of the Cape Colonists are grateful for the garrisons or regiments which are stationed at various towns, not only at Capetown, but in Natal and on the Gold Coast, for they are maintained by the home government and are valuable as a protection, for which no taxation is necessary. This is owing to the fact that the English population has rapidly increased within the past few years, and their sympathy is with their own nationality. The Kaffirs and most of the other black tribes also have a friendly feeling for the English and are opposed to their original Dutch conquerors for several reasons. They are too well aware that government by the latter means cruelty and bloodshed, with the possible resumption of slavery, which was one of the chief causes of several of the wars which have occurred since 1850. The abolition of slavery in the South African republics greatly increased the bitter feeling of the Boers, who by this step lost millions of dollars in human property. It was an act which they will probably never forget nor forgive.

They are also opposed to the English on account of their enterprise in developing the mineral resources in this portion of the continent. The descendants of the pioneers who landed in 1652 and those who have come over from Holland since that time, have been content to utilize merely the agricultural resources of the country. If the average Boer has a productive farm on which he can raise a fair proportion of wheat, corn and tobacco, with enough vegetables to supply the needs of his family and servants, he is satisfied, provided he can sell his grain, as well as the cattle from his pastures, and the wool of his flocks, at a fair profit. The proceeds of these sales are more liable to be turned into gold to be hoarded than to be placed in speculative ventures, where they will return a good rate of interest. He is miserly and believes in accumulating gradually, but surely. If in business in the towns he confines his wares to goods which can be sold to the farmers. He seldom engages in mining or manufacturing.

Up to 1850 South Africa was practically an agricultural and grazing country and its cities depended almost entirely upon the Boer farmers and stock raisers for their business. By the discovery of gold and diamond mines, however, the influx of English and other nationalities was greatly increased. Foreign enterprise has aided in the progress of the country, which, up to this period, had been far behind other portions of the world in railroad building, manufacturing and the application of science and arts.

THE MAIN STREET OF JOHANNESBERG.

THE BOER FORT WHICH COMMANDS JOHANNESBERG.

Boers' First Reverse.

The first reverse which the Boers received at the hands of the English was when they abandoned control of the country around Cape Colony and moved across the Vaal. This "trek," or exodus, was in 1835 and 1836, and constituted the founding of the Transvaal. For nearly forty years after they dominated the territory north of the Vaal to the Limpopo River, although but a few thousand in number. In fact, the white population in 1877 of the Transvaal was but 8,000, while the blacks numbered near 1,000,000. This will give an idea of the ability of the Dutch to govern the native tribes and the success which they attained, for nearly all of the latter were subject to them. Several thousand remained in Cape Colony, and these and their descendants have always remained Boer sympathizers.

The Boers have enacted laws almost entirely for their own race, the foreigners being greatly restricted by the legislation adopted. Under the supervision of Kruger, who has been in every respect a dictator of the Boers, the voting has been almost entirely limited to his countrymen. A foreigner, for example, is obliged to reside in the Transvaal at least five years before he is entitled to cast a vote for any official, and until recently only a resident of Dutch ancestry could be elected to the Volksraad. This law has been changed so that a foreigner could be selected by ballot for a seat in the Second Raad, but as this body could enact no measures without the sanction of the principal body the office was of but little importance, while in a district where the Boers were in the majority a foreigner stood very little chance of being nominated for this office.

White persons not of Boer extraction residing in the region of the Transvaal, for example, are termed Uitlanders, which really means Outlanders—from out of the land. The Uitlanders have been gradually crossing the Vaal, attracted by the mineral and other deposits, as well as the opportunities for agriculture, since 1850. They have increased to about 80,000 in the Transvaal alone, out of the total population of 230,000 white people. About 50,000 are of British descent, the balance being French, Spanish and a few thousand Americans. Owing to the laws of the country, it is estimated that fully four-fifths of them are not entitled to vote, although these are numbered among the wealthiest and most prominent citizens.

President Kruger.

Although to-day over 90 years of age, the President of the Transvaal Republic is nearly as vigorous and capable of exercising authority as when in the prime of life. He is really of German descent and not a Hollander by birth. Over six feet in height, with heavy Teuton features, fringed by a shaggy beard, he is a typical Boer physically. In his character he combines the stubbornness, perseverance and bulldog tenacity of his associates, who have at long settled this part of Africa. He has demonstrated his military ability in defying the power of the English forces in past conflicts. He knows every mile of his country and its strategic features. His police are as well drilled in the art of warfare as his soldiers, and the army of the republic is one of the best equipped in the world, although its force on a peace footing is not over 30,000 men. The Boers, however, have been bred to fighting, and inherit these traits from their ancestors, who have acquired their territory by the rifle. They have been accustomed to the use of firearms from childhood and are among the finest marksmen in the world.

Reindeer Moss.

In Sweden the food given to reindeer is "reindeer moss," a lichen highly prized by the Lappe, and which grows abundantly in the Arctic regions—almost as luxuriantly on bare rocks as in the soil. It covers extensive tracts in Lapland, making the summer landscape look like a field of snow. The domesticated reindeer are never as large as the wild ones. The domesticated Siberian reindeer are larger than those of Lapland. No care at all is taken of the deer. They thrive best by being permitted to roam in droves and obtain their own sustenance. The moss can be used as human food, the taste being slightly acrid. Attempts have been made to feed hay, roots, grain, etc., to the reindeer, but they have not succeeded.

Secret Order in the United States.

There are in the United States over fifty distinct secret orders, with more than 70,000 lodges and 5,000,000 members.

BRYAN IN CHICAGO.

GREAT THRONG GREETS HIM AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Cheer Him Loudly at Entrance and During His Speech—Leader Talks Strongly Against Imperialism and Trusts.

The old leaders and the old platform were reindorsed by the great Democratic meeting at the Auditorium in Chicago held under the auspices of the Chicago platform Democrats. Bryan and Altgeld were the old leaders whose names and whose presence evoked tumultuous cheers. The principles of 1896 were cheered at every reference, and equally emphatic and enthusiastic were the bursts of applause and cheers that greeted every denunciation of the war of conquest in the Philippines. These were the four features of the meeting that stood out boldly and in even measure seemed to hold the affection of the 7,000 men and women who thronged the immense interior.

To Bryan was given a welcome the manifestation of which was limited only by the power of human expression. The audience was singing "America" and the big organ was rolling out its volume of music to the rhythm of voices when Mr. Bryan stepped upon the stage. There was a cheer from the stage and the singing was converted into a roar of answering cheers. Mr. Bryan was received with long-continued applause, the people standing up and cheering for some minutes. He said:

Mr. Chairman and Ladies and Gentlemen: I am not going to trespass upon your time. You have already listened for as long a time as you are accustomed to attend a meeting, and it would not be proper for me to enter at any great length upon any of the questions which are now before the public.

I am somewhat embarrassed in speaking in Chicago, because the advocates of the Chicago platform are divided into two kinds and it is not my business to employ the secret service to ascertain what Democrats are firmest believers in the party's creed. All Chicago platform Democrats "look alike to me," and my aim is not to drive out of the Democratic party any professed believers in the Chicago platform, but to so impress upon all Democrats the importance of the principles at stake that all local differences will be forgotten in the determination to carry this government back to the foundations laid by the fathers.

When Lincoln was appealing to the people of the country in 1858 he gave utterance to a sentiment that must be the sentiment of every one who realizes the magnitude of the struggle in which we are engaged. After paying a tribute to the founders of the country and to the declaration of independence he used these words:

"I charge you to drop every paltry and insignificant thought for any man's success; it is nothing; I am nothing; Judge Douglas is nothing; but do not destroy that immortal emblem of humanity, the declaration of American independence."

So in this country to-day we find some discussing persons, some discussing whether this man or that man or some other man is the best representative of Democratic doctrine. I appeal to you as Lincoln did, to drop every paltry thought about any man, and think only of the principles enunciated by the Democratic party in 1896; principles that carry us back to the landmarks of the constitution.

We are interested first in writing a platform and we want a platform that fits the Democratic party, a platform written like the last platform, not by party bosses, but by the voters of the Democratic party (applause). When we get a platform that fits the Democratic party it will be easy enough to find in state and nation candidates who fit the platform, but it is the principle above the man, and no man is fit to be a leader when he is wanted to lead who is not fit to be a follower when some one else is wanted to lead.

In the brief time that I shall occupy your attention I desire to crowd into a few propositions an argument on three subjects. I need not tell you that the Democratic platform of 1896 will be reaffirmed as the first plank of the Democracy of 1900.

Occasionally some one talks about getting off of that platform, but on investigation it is generally found that the man who wants to get off or it was never, in fact, upon the platform. The people who made the fight and who by winning the fight saved the Democratic party in 1896 are still firm in the faith, and there is only one plank in that platform of which I shall speak tonight, and that is the one plank toward which most of the criticism is directed.

Ready to Defend All Planks.

I would defend every plank where every plank is assailed. But there are some who say that if we will just drop the money question we will make it easy for those who left us to come back. The fight in 1896 was won on the money question. It was the money question expressed in a specific remedy that afforded us the means of distinguishing the believer in bimetallism from the believer in the gold standard.

And if they tell you to-day that events have vindicated the gold standard you can answer them, first, that when Mr. McKinley sent a commission all the way to Europe to get rid of the gold standard he admitted that we were right in 1896 when we said the gold standard was not satisfactory.

Some of you may be so prejudiced that you can not do justice to Mr. McKinley, but I am so fair-minded that I can give him credit for sincerity when he appointed three distinguished men and sent them all the way to Europe to cry out in every market place: "Help, help the American people out of the hole that the gold standard has put them into!"

Not only can you point to the fact that the commission went to Europe as an evidence that the gold standard was not then satisfactory, but you can point to the failure of the commission to secure international aid as an evidence that independent action is absolutely necessary to secure success.

If they tell you that the discovery of gold in the Klondike and the importation of gold from abroad has given us more money and made better times you can reply to them that when they say that they confess the truth of the quantitive theory of money and you can add that if a little gold from the Klondike or a little gold from Europe is able to make a little better times, that if we would open the mints to the coinage of silver as well as gold and take the money out of our own mountains and have our own money now and at all times we could have a great deal better times, and not depend on English gold either from the Klondike or from our own exports.

You can remind them that when we were discussing the silver question and our ability to maintain the parity they said that because of an increasing production of silver we could not keep the metals together. If that argument had weight when they made it we can now say that an increasing production of gold makes it easier to keep the metals together than it used to be when they found fault with us. But this is an old question and one about which we have talked many times.

There is another question half new and half old—the trust question—that was in the campaign of 1896, enough to get all the trusts onto the other side, and yet not enough to make the people understand what the trust question means. And even now you will find people who say that the Republican party is doing all that it can do.

Why, the trust is so bad and so indefensible that even in Ohio in a state convention controlled by Mr. Hanna they had to adopt a resolution declaring trusts to be bad, and when that convention condemns the trusts who in all the world will dare defend the trusts? The trust is bad because of the monopoly feature. When a few people control a product necessary to human existence then those few control to a large extent the lives and the happiness of all who produce those articles, all who work in producing and all who furnish the raw material used in its manufacture.

And can we afford to build up in this nation a system by which a few shall transmit wealth from generation to generation, where the masses can only hope for a clerkship under some trust, and if they say that there is no way to stop the trusts, that the Republicans are doing all they can; remember that it is within the power of the president to appoint an attorney general who will enforce the law against trusts even if he has to go out of the Republican party to get the attorney general.

And if the law upon the statute books is insufficient it is within the power of the attorney general to propose laws which are sufficient, and if the constitution stands in the way it is within the power of the attorney general to recommend an amendment to the constitution which will give to Congress plenary power to deal with this subject.

Scores the Republicans.

But the Republican party is powerless to annihilate the trusts so long as the trusts furnish the money to keep the Republican party in power, so that the administration has it in its power to extinguish the trusts if it so desires.

When we come to the Philippine question again they say: "What can the administration do?" There were two months between the signing of the treaty and the breaking out of hostilities, two months lacking six days, and when we asked them what they were going to do they said they hadn't had time to decide what to do—not time to decide what to do.

Why, there are but two sources of government, force and consent. Monarchies are founded upon force, republics upon consent. Our declaration of independence declares that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. Is that doctrine true or is it false? If it is false how long ought it to take us to decide what to do in the Philippines?

We recognized the truth of that declaration when we went to war with Spain. We said the people of Cuba are and of right ought to be free. Why? Because they live near us? No. Because they are part Spanish? No. They were and of right ought to be free because they wanted to be free and governments come up from the people.

If they were and of right ought to be free, who can draw a line between them and the people of the Philippines? Where is the philosophy that entitles one to liberty and another to vassalage? You say you don't know what to do?

If you find a pocketbook and on it the name of the owner, do you have to count the money in the pocketbook before you know what to do with the pocketbook?

If the doctrine set forth in the declaration of independence is sound then we can not rightfully acquire title by conquest. If the doctrine set forth in the declaration of independence is sound we can not rightfully purchase 8,000,000 of people at $2 apiece from an alien monarch, whose rebellious subjects we ourselves armed to fight against their monarch.

There is a principle involved, and when the principle is once understood its application is not difficult, and if the people of the Philippine Islands are and of right ought to be free, then this nation should, without one moment's delay, announce to those people that we are there as friends and not as enemies to establish a government which shall be their government and not our government when it is established.

Not only ought we to do that now; we ought to have done it in the beginning; and if the promise made to Cuba had been made to the Filipinos not one drop of blood would have been shed in the Philippine Islands. And we would be sending school teachers to Manila to teach them instead of soldiers to tell them that the declaration was a lie.

The Filipinos came into our hands by accident of war, and coming into our hands they must be dealt with according to American principles and not according to European principles. They say that if we were to give these people their independence other nations of Europe would laugh at us.

Not Afraid of Ridicule.

Are we afraid to be laughed at? Why, more than 100 years ago, when there were but 3,000,000 people in this country, our forefathers dared to give the world a declaration at which the people of the old world laughed, but for which our people fought. When the framers of the declaration of independence wrote among the self-evident truths that all men are created equal, endowed with inalienable rights, that governments are instituted among men to secure these rights, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, the people of the old world laughed.

But they didn't laugh long. Because our forefathers maintained their declaration and for more than a century this republic has been the most potent factor in all the world in influencing the destiny of the human race.

Shall we be ashamed to admit now that we believe in the declaration of independence? I repeat that we must deal with these people according to American principles. They desire their independence. Let us say to them, as we said to Cuba, "Stand up, be free!" and then to all the world say, "Hands off, and let every republic live!"

Tell me that we don't know what to do? All we have to do is to read our nation's history, to watch the nation as it traveled the pathway to lead from the little name of might to the lofty name of right, and then you can tell what this nation must do if it is true to its past. You have in your city a poet who has written the best poem on the Philippine question. Dr. Taylor has crowded into a single verse more philosophy as well as poetry, more philosophy than you will find in a whole speech on the side of imperialism, and if he never does anything else he has done enough in that writing of this one poem to give him a claim to the consideration of his fellow men.

Let me quote the verse, although it may be familiar to you:

"Did our liberty bell ring in vain; was the declaration a lie?
Must we turn to the old world again, with the penitent prodigal's cry?
Must we remain so and remain in the rein of Europe and barbaric parade,
And boom out a gun to open a pathway of trade?
Must we strut through the world and bluster and brag?
That the dollar mark's stamped on the brave old flag?"

I ask the question of you, did our liberty bell ring in vain? Why, history tells us that when the declaration was about to be signed the people gathered in the streets and waited for the signal, and finally when those immortal names were fixed to that immortal document the old liberty bell rang out and the people caught up the sound and cheered and cheered again.

And from that day to this that great relic of revolutionary days has been carried from state to state and from city to city, and eyes are filled with tears as they look upon it. Did our liberty bell ring in vain? Shall its tones no more be heard? Was the declaration a lie? Have we been false for 100 years in teaching that governments come up from the people? Must we turn to the old world again with the penitent prodigal's cry? This nation is not a prodigal son.

This nation has not wasted its substance in riotous living. This nation is not ready to turn back and with trembling voice ask to be classed among the hired servants of royalty. This nation has not sinned against heaven, and God grant that the crowned heads of the old world may never have occasion to kill the fatted calf to celebrate the return of this republic from independence back to the creed of Cain.

What should the Democratic party do? Why, there is but one thing that it can do. Sometimes I hear the people say that if the party is not careful about this question of imperialism it is going to lose votes. My friends, when the declaration of independence is repealed there will never more be a Democratic party in this country or a need for one.

Our faith is built upon it and we can not turn our backs upon the teachings of the fathers. Every wrong to be righted finds its inspiration in that document. We can not ask for a single reform without showing that all we ask conforms to the principles of the declaration of independence.

And so the Democratic party must be true to the foundation principles of this government. It believes in the independence of the individual in industrial life and says to the trust, "You shall not crush the life out of the struggling manhood of this country." It believes in independence in the financial world and says to the foreign financier, "You can not make the policy for 70,000,000 of American citizens." It believes in the doctrine of liberty and independence everywhere, and when we plead for the right of people to govern themselves, although they differ from us in color and in race and in history, we are not pleading for them. We are pleading for the safety of our own institutions.

Lincoln said that the safety of this nation was not in its army or its navy, but in the spirit of liberty, in the spirit that prizes liberty as the heritage of all men in all lands everywhere, and he said that if we destroyed this spirit of liberty we plant the seeds of despotism at our own doors.

Answers a Question.

You ask me why the Democratic party believes in giving independence to the Filipinos. I reply, because we can not destroy self-government in the orient without endangering self-government in the United States. It is not for the Filipinos that we plead. It is for 70,000,000 people, the greatest in the world, and yet a people not great enough to do harm to the humblest people in all the world.

We are preparing for the campaign of 1900. The national committee met to-day and prepared for its work. We are going out to fight. You ask me whether we are going to win. I tell you I believe we ought to win and there is no way upon which you can predict success except to deserve success. We are not going to ask, "Is this thing popular?" or "Is the other thing popular?" We are going to ask, "Is this thing right?" and if this thing is right the Democratic party would rather go down as the champion of the right than to win as the champion of the wrong.

Don't be afraid of defeat. I can speak from experience, and having met face to face a large number of those who were kind enough and generous enough to give me their support in 1896, I can say to you without flattery that having seen them, I would rather go down with them to eternal defeat than be president and have to ask England what to do for my country.

Long continued applause followed the conclusion of Mr. Bryan's speech.

Seldom is there smooth sailing in financial straits.

AMERICAN WOMAN HONORED.

Mrs. Sewall, President of the International Council of Women.

Mrs. May Wright Sewall, who has been elected president of the International Council of Women, which met in London, is well fitted by education, tastes and wide experience as a leader of women along higher educational lines for the important public position with which she has been honored. For several years Mrs. Sewall has been president of the National Council of Women, and for a great many years her public work has been devoted almost exclusively to the furtherance of organization among women.

Mrs. Sewall was born in Wisconsin and is a graduate of Northwestern University in the class of 1866. It was, however, one of her greatest griefs that she could not enter Yale University as her father had done, and it was said that it was largely her sense of injustice in this matter that led her to identify herself with the woman suffrage movement. After her graduation she occupied important positions as a teacher until her marriage with Theodore Sewall in 1880, when she and her husband opened a classical school for girls in Indianapolis, and she is still head of that school. Mrs. Sewall has been abroad several times and has devoted considerable of her attention to getting acquainted with the leading women of the old world. As president of the National Council she visited Hamburg, by appointment with the Empress Frederick, who gave her an hour's interview and was deeply interested in the work she outlined. In Brussels Mrs. Sewall addressed the Woman's League of Belgium, and in Paris she spoke in the Marie St. Sulpice before a large audience of leading men and women. This address attracted great attention and was widely noticed in the press of France, Russia, Italy and England. Another great triumph was in 1889, when as a delegate she addressed the Woman's Congress of Paris in the purest French and received commendation from M. Jules Simon and other noted French writers. As a presiding officer Mrs. Sewall is said to be uniformly successful, being dignified, clear-headed and quick to see the point. She is also a newspaper contributor and magazine writer and a lecturer of some renown.

MRS. SEWALL.

LAST FOR FUMIGATING SHOES.

Device for Keeping the Interior of Footwear in Good Shape.

A shoe tree which fumigates the interior of the shoe while it also holds it in shape is a sanitary novelty for which John S. Busky, of New York, is responsible. The last is made of wood in three sections, to permit of its insertion into the shoe easily. The forward and lower part of the last is hollowed out, the opening extending to the sole, so as to allow the bottom of the shoe to be acted on by the fumigating liquid. The interior of the shoe form is loosely filled with cotton, in the center of which is a reservoir to contain the fumigating material, and this is filled by means of a tube leading to the toe of the last, the tube being capped to secure the contents. A bulb is embedded in the top, by means of which the fumigating material is forced through the cotton. Holes through the top part of the last permit of the fumigation of the uppers of the shoe as well as the sole.

SHAPES SHOE AND FUMIGATES IT.

Money in Abyssinia.

The few travelers who have taken the time and trouble to look into Menelek's queer kingdom of Abyssinia tell strange tales of it. Besides the Maria Theresa 1780 dollars, the people of Abyssinia, for small change, used a bar of hard, crystallized salt, about ten inches long and two inches and a half broad and thick, slightly tapering toward the end, five of which go to the dollar at the capital. People are very particular about the standard fineness of the currency. If it does not ring like metal, or if it is at all chipped, nothing will induce them to take it. Then, it is a token of affection among the natives, when friends meet, to give each other a lick of their respective amolls, and in this way the material value of the bar is also decreased.

For still smaller change cartridges are used, of which three go to one salt. It does not matter what sort they are. Some sharpers use their cartridges in the ordinary way, and then put in some dust and a dummy bullet to make up the difference, or else they take out the powder and put the bullet in again, so that possibly in the next action the unhappy seller will find that he has only miss-fires in his belt; but this is such a common fraud that no one takes any notice of it, and a bad cartridge seems to serve as readily as a good one.

Every one longs for appreciation, but a cake baker in a house full of boys is the only one that gets it.

Some people get up surprise parties because it is the only way in which they can get invited.

A little authority of a few dried apples will puff a small man up astonishingly.

Does Your Head Ache?

Are your nerves weak? Can't you sleep well? Pain in your back? Lack energy? Appetite poor? Digestion bad? Boils or pimples? These are sure signs of poisoning.

From what poisons?

From poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

AYER'S PILLS

They daily insure an easy and natural movement of the bowels.

You will find that the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

with the pills will hasten recovery. It cleanses the blood from all impurities and is a great tonic to the nerves.

Write the Doctor.

Our Medical Department has one of the most eminent physicians in the United States. Tell the doctor just how you are suffering. You will receive the best medical advice without cost. Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

A Natural Black is Produced by Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

50 cts. of druggists or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

For sale by all Druggists.—Price 50c. per bottle.

BAD BREATH

"I have been using CASCARETS and as a mild and effective laxative they are simply wonderful. My daughter and I were bothered with sick stomach and our breath was very bad. After taking a few doses of Cascarets we have improved wonderfully. They are a great help in the family."

WILHELMINA NAGEL, 1227 Rittenhouse St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets TRADE MARK REGISTERED

REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant, Palatable, Potent, Taste Good, Do Good, Never Sicken, Weaken, or Gripe. 10c, 25c, 50c.

CURE CONSTIPATION.

Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 315

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

ATLAS OF WESTERN CANADA.

FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Containing five splendid Maps of Canada and its Provinces, as well as a description of the resources of the Dominion, will be mailed free to all applicants desirous of learning something of the free homestead lands of Western Canada. Address F. Pedley, Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada; or C. J. Broughton, 122 Monadnock Building, Chicago, Ill.; M. V. McInnes, No. 1 Merrill Block, Detroit, Mich.; D. Caven, Bad Axe, Mich.; James Grieve, Reed City, Mich.; Agents for the Government of Canada.

PORTO RICO!

Are you interested in the development of this fertile island? Do you seek information concerning its rare possibilities? Our corps of able and experienced men is at your service. Write us for information in any line of business, employment or pleasure seeking. Inclose postal order for $3.00 to cover expenses. Porto Rico Bureau of Information, San Juan, P. R.

SORE EYES? DR. ISAAC THOMPSON'S EYE WATER

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

STEVEN JOHN PAUL KRUGER.

Some Personal Traits of the "Lion of Rustenburg."

The State historian of the South African Republic, Mr. Van Oordt, has recently published a history of the Transvaal, which contains the biographies of its notabilities, among the chief of whom is the President, familiarly known as Oom Paul.

The founder of the family was a certain Jacob Kruger, who arrived in Cape Town in 1713 as a youth of 17 in the service of the Dutch East India Company. Jacob Kruger was a German. A descendant of his, Caspar Kruger, married and settled on the Bulhoek farm, near Colesberg in Cape Colony. It was there that Stephanus Johannes Paul Kruger was born on October 10, 1825. While still quite a child he had to help his parents, in his ninth year sometimes acting as shepherd, and even leading the oxen yoked in the wagon. Later, when yet too small to handle the heavy musket of the period, he went after game with bow and arrows, and returned to the farmhouse with many a hare and partridge.

Then came the trek into Natal, and he went out into the wilderness to begin a life of toil, care and danger. That was the school in which he was reared and in which he was trained to be what he is. He received his baptism of fire in battle with the Matabele before the occupation of Vechtkop, and took part in the repulse of the Zulus in the attack on the laager which followed the massacre at Weenen, in Natal. At 18 he became Assistant Field Cornet, and two years later attained full rank. Later on he served as Commandant and Commandant-General, was one of the Triumvirate during the war of independence (in 1880-83) and has been President since the retrocession of the territory of the republic by Great Britain to its own Government. By his people he is spoken of as the Lion of Rustenburg.

Although a republic, the centralization of administration in the Transvaal is such that nothing can be done without the consent of the Executive Council. The consequence is that business is often months in arrears. Mr. Van Oordt admits the evil of this and agrees with the contention of the Volksraad, that more power should be delegated to the head officials of the Government. President Kruger, however, is most strongly opposed to this, believing that it would be dangerous in a young State circumstanced as the Transvaal is to intrust the Government wholly to officials. "Be trustworthy, but trust to no one," is the President's life motto, which he often quotes, and which is, according to his friends, the plain wisdom of Paul Kruger. It is, says Mr. Van Oordt, the simple philosophy of a man who shrinks from no duty, but only fears and doubts whether others will do theirs.

The personal habits of President Kruger are extremely simple. He never takes strong drink himself. Although fairly wealthy, he lives the ordinary life of a well-to-do Afrikander, indulging neither in ostentation nor festivities. To poor burghers he has lent money without any security, knowing, as he said, that they were honorable men. In character Oom Paul is stiff-necked—obstinate some say—and full of hardihood. This quality he has displayed on many occasions. During the war of independence, with only a small escort, he rode into the kraal of a Kaffir chief, who was making trouble for the Boers, and, though he ran great risk of being attacked, seized him by the neck. The result of the interview begun under such unusual circumstances was that the chief remained quiet during the rest of the war.

While still a youth his gun, which he had overloaded in order to make sure of a rhinocerous he was hunting, burst and shattered the top of his left thumb. Before he could get assistance the wound began festering, for he was far distant from surgical help, and threatened mortification. He thereupon amputated the thumb at the first joint with a penknife, but finding the operation insufficient, he cut off the second joint, after which the hand healed. As his biographer says: "The man who could do this is not the man who could be easily frightened." Many stories are told illustrating his strength of will and endurance of racing contests with Kaffirs lasting a whole day and his personal strength in struggles with animals.

As to his place in history, Mr. Van Oordt says, Paul Kruger has been compared with Washington, with Lincoln, and even with Ulysses and Blucher, and many other illustrious historical personages. It sounds well, says the State historian, but the fact remains that he can be compared with no one. The circumstances of his bringing up, those in which he has gained his influence and ruled over his people for sixteen years, have been compared with no other historical character. To the Dutch of South Africa he is simply Paul Kruger, a man of themselves, born into their troubles and tribulations, who has contributed to their triumphs, and is now, in his last years, steering them through new dangers.

An Interesting Bell.

Among the many bells that swing from ancient belfry, tower, or steeple in fair Florence, Italy, none claims a more absorbing interest than the old bell of the Palazzo Vecchio. As far back as the thirteenth century it was associated with the political life of Florence. During the frequent popular strifes for supremacy its deep voice summoned the citizens to fight for the possession of their beloved bell. But when the city was threatened by a foreign foe, then—whether Guelph or Ghibeline—the citizens were of one mind, and when proud Charles of Anjou sent his plumed heralds to summon the beleaguered city to surrender, Pier Capponi gave this sublime answer: "Blow your war trumpets—we will ring our bells."

But no other bells in Florence can boast of such a glorious setting as the chimes of the Campanile. Standing out as the church does against the deep blue sky, almost as white as the gold flowers in the far away sunny birthplace of Giotto, (the designer and part builder of this beautiful bell tower) and set with richly colored marbles, and adorned with choicest sculptures, Ruskin calls it "the only building in the world in which power and beauty exist in the highest possible degree." A traveller says: "I have listened to the noted bells of many a foreign city, but have not heard the sweetness nor felt the charm as in these Florentine ones. Heard in the storm, the sunshine, at matins, at vespers, on joyous fete days, or in the deep toll which calls the Misericordia to their errand of mercy—faithful still to their duties through six centuries and more, that grand band of men, from artisan to king, serving their fellow-men—the Campanile bells thrill you with their rich, soothing tones, beginning, as it were, with the deep rich tones of an organ, and dying away into the choicest strains. All Italy is proud of her Florentine bells, and well she may be.—New York Times.

TONGA'S KING A BRIDEGROOM.

The Pacific Island Monarch Had All Sorts of Trouble Getting a Queen.

The marriage of King George of Tonga, an island in the Pacific, has been celebrated after postponements that suggest some of the incidents in a tropical comic opera. The news of the marriage has come here by the steamship Mariposa from Honolulu.

The august King who took a degree of B. A. at the Wellington University, New Zealand, where he was the worst player on the college cricket team, is one of the most civilized monarchs in the Pacific. He plays a banjo, speaks several languages and was the father of a law imposing a fine of $5 on any one convicted of cannibalism.

When he arrived at the age of twenty-four years, a short time ago, he announced that he was ready to take a Queen. All the marriageable maidens in the kingdom were paraded before him. He set two aside as the most promising, one the daughter of James J. Kubu, the chief of police, and the other the daughter of a peasant of Niba Island.

Being unable to decide which to marry, he resolved to wed them both. Arrangements were made for a grand double ceremony. The tax collectors worked hard and filled the royal treasury with gold to defray the cost of the festivals.

Just before the day set for the festival Kaapar, the crown treasurer, took all the assets of the King, and putting them on the royal steam yacht, headed a straight course for the horizon.

The grand double wedding had to be abandoned. The two brides were sent back weeping to their parents, and the King and the indignant Chief of Police busied themselves mailing circulars bearing descriptions of the missing money, yacht and thief.

The wicked crown treasurer came to grief however. Having no capable pilot, he ran the yacht on a coral reef. He was captured and put in a leaky jail, from which he easily escaped, not with any of the money, however.

Now all is well and the King is the husband of the beauteous Princess Livinia.

This is the second time some one has carried off all the King's property, and he has written to American safe manufacturers for their catalogues.

The Boys Were Surprised.

In a certain private school it was announced that a new teacher of mathematics was to arrive the next day, and the boys prepared to "initiate" him. Accordingly they went into a narrow lane up which the new teacher would probably pass, and rigged up a complicated apparatus to trip him up and shower him with flour. While thus engaged, a well-dressed young fellow came along and surprised them. He was a stranger, and the boys supposed that he came from a more advanced school near by, this idea being confirmed when he volunteered his services and suggested many improvements in the "trap." When the arrangements were completed the boys and their new friend moved away some distance to await the "initiation." Two hours passed in uncomfortable silence, and then one of the party said:

"I don't believe he'll come to-night."

"Oh, yes," said the stranger pleasantly, "the truth is he has come!"

"What?" cried the boys.

"In fact," continued the young man, "I am the new teacher, and I hope our relations will continue to be agreeable. I am sorry to have disappointed you by coming by an earlier train than I expected to travel by, but it has made us acquainted in a very effective way!"

The boys realized that the new teacher was one too many for them.—Waverley Magazine.

A Remarkable Discovery.

Professor D. G. Brinton, the famous authority upon archaeology and linguistics, has given his valuable library upon these subjects to the University of Pennsylvania, together with many writings embodying his personal researches. It is doubtful, however, whether his papers include the following incident, the truth of which is vouched for:

While in Mexico, on one occasion, the Professor was the guest of the National Historical Society of that republic. One day while discussing with a member on the street the blends of Aztec and Maya blood which enter into the average peon, the Professor called attention to cranial peculiarities transmitted from these ancient races.

"There," he said, pointing to a laborer who was working on the street, "is a type in which apparently the maternal influences were Toltec and the paternal Maya or Carib."

"I see," said the member.

"Notice the man's forehead," said the Professor; "it has all the characteristics of—"

"Phat's that?" interrupted the supposed peon, dropping his pick. "Phat's that ye're saying, ye long-legged pervarikatur? I'll have ye know me fayther was a O'Shannessey and me mayther a Finnegan."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

A silver foxskin was sold in London recently for $1,750 at auction. This is the highest price on record.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

The Soul.—The soul is destroyed or released to the realm of universal forces by the event of death.—Rev. C. W. Wendte, Unitarian, Los Angeles, Cal.

Christ's Divinity.—Faith in Christ's divinity may be difficult, but less difficult than the acceptance of any other possible explanation of his person.—Dr. G. H. Combs, Kansas City, Mo.

Science.—Science knows nothing of a spiritual world, though it leads the mind up to problems which require it to postulate a spiritual world.—Rev. E. P. Mercer, Swedenborgian, Chicago, Ill.

The Divine Methods. — The divine methods are wise in matters of religion as all else. God requires that man shall recognize his duty in spiritual things.—Rev. Dr. Geo. H. Adams, Methodist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Larger Faith.—The religion of a larger faith calls Christian men to a larger and more adequate faith in God as the invincible power of righteousness.—Rev. I. P. Coddington, Universalist, Rochester, N. Y.

A Primary Conviction.—The idea of immortality is so ingrained into my whole nature—it is so universal among men—that it seems like a primary conviction.—Rev. M. D. Shutter, Universalist, Minneapolis, Minn.

Science.—Science reveals man as God's likeness, that cannot help being immortal. Though the grass seemeth to wither, and the flower to fade away, they reappear.—Rev. Mary B. C. Eddy, Christian Scientist, Concord, N. H.

Too Suspicious.—There is no reason why a Protestant should not be permitted in a Catholic pulpit and preach the truth which he sincerely believes. We are still too suspicious of one another.—Rev. Chas. H. Eaton, Universalist, New York City.

Coolness and Good Judgment.—Never was there a time when coolness and good judgment and close attention to the fundamental principles of our government were more demanded than at present.—Rev. Dr. Conaty, R. C., Washington, D. C.

The Minister's Duty.—The minister must investigate the divine truth. He must study the relation of these truths to the life of those whom he teaches, and he must declare the truth in its entirety.—Rev. J. L. Barton, Congregationalist, Bangor, Me.

Prove All Things.—In the name of the great and electric age, let us wake up and try to be ourselves. Let us prove all things, counting nothing too sacred for our testing, and hold fast only the good.—Rev. B. Fay Mills, Evangelist, Boston, Mass.

Absolute Equality.—Absolute equality among men is neither possible nor desirable, but Christians should so use their money as to bring about a social state in which universal fellow feeling is a possibility.—Rev. Dr. M. C. Peters, Reformed Church, New York.

God as Father.—As Father, the discipline to which God subjects us, even in its bitterest severity, must be salutary and saving. It is our good he seeks. There must be sweetness in the cup of gall.—Rev. Dr. Behrends, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Truth. — Truth is the matching of thought with reality, and when we find that our world is a world of thought relations we must not conclude that some one thought out these things before we found them to exist.—Rev. F. L. Patton, Presbyterian, Princeton, N. J.

Success of Christ's Work.—Opposition, obstacles, outward hindrances; it is not these which will prevent the final success of Christ's work in the world. Failure or success will be from within the church and not from without.—Rev. A. E. Woods, Baptist, San Francisco, Cal.

Our National Life.—It is in connection with our national life, however, that God is now summoning us onward as never before. Under the pressure of his divine providence we now find ourselves as a nation face to face with unprecedented issues.—Rev. W. J. Chichester, Presbyterian, Chicago, Ill.

The Mysteries.—There are those who violently oppose the mysteries which have grown up with religion. They are unwilling to await the process of evolution to gradually cast it off. In their haste they would destroy religion itself or cast it off with the mysteries.—Rev. G. W. Stone, Unitarian, Kansas City, Mo.

Immortality.—Immortality is a fact of nature. Coexistent with the universal belief and persuasion of a supreme being, of an infinite, all powerful and all wise governing power, has been the ever-enduring idea of a life beyond the limit of physical death.—Archbishop Williams, Roman Catholic, Boston, Mass.

Immortality.—The epistles and the Apocalypse are alive with the assurance of immortality, and all answer to a true and vital intuition in the human soul, which no people or person can destroy, and which no careful student of life and history can ignore.—Rev. R. S. Storrs, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Patriot.—The patriot will think on temperance and education and industrial liberty. He will have at least the ultimate unit of human welfare, and his love for his own nation will not be a stupendous provincialism, but a dignified sense of national ability to contribute to the well being of the world. Rev. C. F. Carter, Congregationalist, Lexington, Mass.

A Familiar Friend.

The cleverest daughter recently made a beautiful shade for the piano lamp from a pink evening dress and trimmed it with roses from her last summer's hat. That evening a young man called on her, and to low-toned music they chatted.

"How do you like our new lampshade?" she asked demurely.

He studied it for a moment. "The last time I saw it," he replied, "I was dancing with it."—Harper's Bazar.

"Know thyself," but don't let others get too familiar.

About Lincoln.

At a time when Mr. Lincoln was under great mental stress during the civil war, Mr. George H. Yeaman, then Congressman from Kentucky, called upon him, and thus describes the occasion in the New York Tribune:

"The President was alone at his desk, hard at work, and the Congressman promptly offered to retire and call again.

"'No,' said Lincoln, 'sit down. I'll be through shortly.'

"Presently his little son partly opened the door. 'Papa,' said he, 'mamma says the company will soon assemble.'

"The Congressman rose. 'Please be seated; we'll go to it directly,' said Lincoln.

"He continued his work. His face was very grave; it showed anxiety and melancholy indescribable. Disasters had come in the field, and it was not all harmony among his supporters. Very soon his barber came in, and again the Congressman offered to retire.

"'No,' said Lincoln; 'just excuse me one moment.' He got up, threw off his coat, seated himself in one chair and stretched his long legs across another. The barber lathered his face and commenced stropping a razor. When that was over, the President turned his head and gently asked, 'Now what can I do?'

"The Congressman told his mission; it was considered kindly, decided correctly, and he went his way. We need not compare this with the court etiquette of emperors and kings, nor ask if Washington or Adams, or even Jefferson, would have so received a visitor on business; but it was what Abraham Lincoln did, and if it was informal, it was intensely conscientious, human and democratic."

The Deadly Tree.

The general public and the heads of electric light companies openly disagree as to the effect of live wires on living things, but the story below, found in the New Orleans Times-Democrat, may amuse some people not of the householding or electric stockholding class.

Not long ago a prominent citizen of New Orleans went raging into the electric light company's office, and declared that one of their wires had killed a pet tree on his premises.

"That tree," said he, "has been standing there for twenty years, and we regarded it as one of the family. My children played under it when they were babies, and it is associated with some of the pleasantest memories of my life. When it began to die we all mourned, and we could not imagine what ailed it until yesterday, when I noticed that a wire was lying right across a branch. My poor tree has been electrocuted, and I feel as if murder had been done in my house."

Considerably moved, the agent of the company went to view the scene of the tragedy, and found the tree still alive, but feeble. When he came to trace the wire, he discovered one end nailed to the roof of an old barn and the other twisted around a discarded pole. It had been cut off for at least two years, and forgotten. But the occasion demanded something, so he made the following report:

"Tree alive, wire dead. Wire evidently killed by tree. Bill inclosed."

His Mind Was Easy.

Mrs. Smith repeatedly reminded her husband that she owned the silver, that she owned the furniture, and so on, until poor Smith almost wished he'd married a poor girl. The other night Mrs. Smith awoke to hear strange noises in the lower part of the house, and, vigorously punching her husband in the ribs, called:

"John, get up! There are burglars in the house."

"Eh?" inquired Mr. Smith, sleepily.

"Burglars! Downstairs!" howled Mrs. Smith.

"Burglars?" said Smith, as he turned over. "Well, I don't own anything."—Life.

Over the Table.

The comedian boarder reached for an egg.

"Miss DeVere," he said, addressing the sweet singer, "have you heard the story of the hard-boiled egg?"

"No, I think not."

"You haven't? Why, it's old."

Then, to save her life, the landlady couldn't tell whether he alluded to the story or to the egg.

Rich—Yet Starving.

Doctors frequently have very wealthy patients who are starving. They have money to buy food, but their stomach has not the strength to digest it. It lies there a heavy fermented mass, the sole cause of dyspepsia, nervousness and biliousness. The surest remedy to cure a weak stomach is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

When Greek Meets Greek.

"See here," said the grocer, bristling with righteous indignation, as the milkman made his morning call, "I'd like to have you explain how the chalk and white clay I found in the bottom of my coffee cup this morning got there."

"Evidently," replied the milkman, as a peculiar smile chased itself across his countenance, "you have been sweetening your coffee with the same kind of sugar you sold my wife yesterday."

Salesmen Wanted—A good bicycle for $1 and a little work. Address at once Kistlers Exchange Store, Stroudsburg, Pa.

In a Crowded Street Car.

The sour-looking woman trod upon the jolly-faced man's toes.

"Ouch!" he cried with vigor.

"I can't help it!" she snapped. "I wouldn't 'a' done it if you didn't have such big feet."

"True, madam," responded the jolly-faced man, "very true. I acknowledge the corn."—Philadelphia Call.

"Actions of the Just Smell Sweet."

The fragrance of life is vigor and strength, neither of which can be found in a person whose blood is impure, and whose every breath speaks of internal troubles. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Never Disappoints

He Flagged the Moon.

"Say, you want to hear this story," said the Reading Railroad conductor. "It's a good one on Joe Gibson, one of our fellows. Joe's a good deal of a kidder himself, but the boys are having their turn at him now. It happened up in the Trenton yards a few nights ago. Joe's train was to be side-tracked at Nice avenue. Well, when the train arrived at that point Joe jumped off and ran ahead to the switch. He threw the switch over, and waved his lantern to the engineer to come ahead. The next minute Joe happened to glance due east down the track, and he nearly dropped his lantern with fright. There was the great round headlight of another engine beaming down upon him on the very track his train was about to take. Recovering himself, he swung his lantern furiously, at the same time shouting: 'Pull out, pull out! What's the matter?' he shouted. Joe had gathered some new knowledge in the meantime, and his expression changed completely. He didn't say anything, but simply gave the signal to 'go ahead.' When the engineer pulled into the track he saw the full moon climbing up over the track dead ahead of him. Joe had simply flagged the moon, that's all."—Philadelphia Record.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Cures swollen feet, blisters and callous spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for ingrowing nails, sweating, hot, aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Josiah Allen's Wife's New Story.

"Josiah Allen's Wife" (Marietta Holley) has finished her new story, and the first installment is published in the August Ladies' Home Journal. It is in her chafacteristic, humorous vein, but may be said to be a story with a purpose. It bears the name of "My Stylish Cousin's Daughter."

Requital.

Sandy McQuirk (to porter, who has been about ten minutes looking after his luggage)—Mon, I con-see-der ye've been verra obleegin'. Well ye tak a peench o' snuff?—London Tit-Bits.

I never used so quick a cure as Piso's Cure for Consumption.—J. B. Palmer, Box 1171, Seattle, Wash., Nov. 25, 1895.

Office Culture.

"Are you worried by this new spelling reform, Bilker?"

"No; my typewriter girl has always used it."—Chicago Record.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, LTD., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

The first camp meeting in the United States was held on the banks of the Red River, Kentucky, in 1799.

Niagara Falls Annual Excursion.

On Tuesday, August 15th, the Nickel Plate Road will run its Seventeenth Annual Excursion to Niagara Falls. Tickets are good returning for fifteen days. Tickets to Toronto will be sold in connection with this excursion at $1.00 extra and to the Thousand Islands at $6.50 extra. The usual privilege of stop-over at Chautauqua Lake will be granted without extra charge. Secure your Sleeping Car reservations early. Tickets good returning on any one of our Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains. Remember the date. For further particulars inquire of Agents Nickel Plate Road.

FREE FOR 10 DAYS.

5 DROPS [TRADE MARK]

By sending 4 cents in postage we will, by return mail, send you a Sample Bottle of our famous Remedy, "5 Drops," for the positive cure of the following diseases: RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Toothache, Nervousness, Neuralgic Headache, Heart Weakness, Earache, Malaria, Dropsy, Creeping Numbness, BRONCHITIS and LA GRIPPE. Don't fail to avail yourself of this great opportunity, and REMEMBER it is only for 10 days from issue of this paper. Large Bottles (300 doses) $1.00. SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO., 160-164 E. Lake street, Chicago, Ill.

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price 75 cents.

Just So.

Jeweler's Son — Papa, how do you just a watch?

Jeweler—Ad—just, my boy; not just just.

Jeweler's Son—Well, papa, if you add just to just, it's just just, isn't it?—Jeweler's Weekly.

Eagle Linen Letter Paper and Envelopes are the proper thing. Tell your printer to use this brand on your next order.

$2.00 Fort Wayne to Chicago and return every Sunday via the Nickel Plate Road.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

WANTED.—Case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. Send 5 cents to Ripans Chemical Co., New York, for 10 samples and 1,000 testimonials.

Herrings.

More herrings are eaten than any other kind of fish.

From Mrs. Sunter to Mrs. Pinkham.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 76,244]

"One year ago last June three doctors gave me up to die, and as I had at different times used your Vegetable Compound with good results, I had too much faith in it to die until I had tried it again. I was apparently an invalid, was confined to my bed for ten weeks. (I believe my trouble was ulceration of womb).

"After taking four bottles of the Compound and using some of the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, at the end of two months I had greatly improved and weighed 155 pounds, when I never before weighed over 138. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine I ever used, and I recommend it to all my friends."—MRS. ANNA EVA GUNTER, HIGGINSVILLE, MO.

Mrs. Barnhart Enjoys Life Once More.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had been sick ever since my marriage, seven years ago; have given birth to four children, and had two miscarriages. I had falling of womb, leucorrhœa, pains in back and legs; dyspepsia and a nervous trembling of the stomach. Now I have none of these troubles and can enjoy my life. Your medicine has worked wonders for me."—MRS. S. BARNHART, NEW CASTLE, PA.

WABASH

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS

To Western Points,

August 15, Sept. 5 and 19, Oct. 3 and 17, 1899.

On the above dates the WABASH will sell from its principal stations East of Chicago and Toledo, Ill., LOW RATE HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSION Tickets to points West, South, and Southwest, granting a liberal return limit. A postal card addressed to any Wabash Ticket Agent, or to either of the following Passenger Representatives will bring you prompt and explicit information regarding rates, routes, time of trains, through car service, condition of tickets, etc., etc.

REMEMBER

The WABASH is the only line east of Chicago and St. Louis giving its patrons seats, without extra charge, in ELEGANT RECLINING CHAIR CARS running through to St. Louis and Kansas City without change.

This is your chance to go West cheap. Communicate with us.

P. E. DOMBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
A. F. WOLFSCHLAGER, P. & T. A., Detroit, Mich.
THO'S FOLLEN, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
GEO. D. MAXFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

PENSIONS Get Your Pension DOUBLE QUICK! Write Capt. O'FARRELL, Pension Agent, Washington, D.C.

"A Good Tale Will Bear Telling Twice." Use Sapolio! ...Use... SAPOLIO

Got the Earth.

She was dusting the windows of a Throop street residence when Jinks hailed her.

"Madam, could you throw me down a match?"

"Yes; here's one."

"Thank you! Madam, this match hasn't any head on it."

"Well, what do you want, anyway."

"I guess I want the earth."

"You do? Well, I can accommodate you."

Then she overturned a flowerpot and Jinks got the earth.

Doesn't your boy write well? Perhaps he hasn't good ink.

CARTER'S INK IS THE BEST INK.

More used than any other. Don't cost you any more than poor ink. Ask for it.

LADIES: The Periodical Monthly Regulator never fails; overcome yourself; write for free box. NEW YORK CHEMICAL CO., Box 78, Milwaukee, Wis.

When Writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

R. R. EXCURSIONS

B & O R.R.

W. C. T. U. LOW RATE EXCURSION AUG 15, TO ROME CITY, VIA B & O

There will be a grand excursion over the B. & O. to Rome City Aug. 15, in the interest of the W. C. T. U. at a very low rate, going by way of Avilla. The W. C. T. U. days there are Aug. 14 and 15, the latter being the big day. Good speakers and good music are assured, including Auburn's famous "Hoosier Quartet." M. T. Bishop of St. Joe is chairman for this Congressional district and will do all possible to make it a success.

NATIONAL MEETING OF THE AMERICAN WHEELMEN, BOSTON, MASS', AUGUST 14 TO 19, '99.

On August 11 and 12 the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell tickets to Boston, Mass., (via New York and all rail or Sound Line steamers) at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Boston to and including August 20, 1899 (except as provided in following paragraph:)

Extension of Return Limit: By deposit of ticket with agent of terminal line at Boston or before August 19, and on payment of a fee of 50 cents at time of deposit, an extension of return limit may be obtained to reach original starting point not later than August 31, 1899.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. Ticket Agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 31

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS OUTING, PUT-IN-BAY, OHIO, AUG. 2 TO 5, '99.

On August 2 the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell special excursion tickets to Put-in-Bay, Ohio, at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Put-in-Bay, to and including August 6, 1399.

For further information, call on or address nearest B. & O. Ticket Agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

C & N-W Ry

LOW RATES TO COLORADO AUG. 5, 6 & 7, VIA CHICAGO & N-W RY

Chicago & North-Western Railway August 5, 6 and 7; one fare for the round trip, plus $2.00 from Chicago to Denver, Pueblo and Colorado Springs, limited to return August 31, 1899. The "Colorado Special" leaves Chicago 10:00 a. m. daily, arrives Denver 2:55 next day and Colorado Springs same evening only one night enroute. All meals in dining cars. Pacific Express leaves Chicago 10:30 p. m. daily, arrives Denver and Colorado Springs the second morning, no change of cars either train For particulars apply to agents of connecting lines or A. H. Waggener, 6 Jackson place, Indianapolis, Ind. 31

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE—in Effect June 25 1899.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations	Mail	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne	11 45 am	4 40 pm	5 55 am
New Era	12 12 pm	5 08	6 40
Auburn Junction	12 25	5 21	7 10
Auburn	12 29	5 25	7 35
Waterloo	12 41	5 36	8 15
Summit	12 51	5 46	8 35
Stonberville	12 54	5 49
Pleasant Lake	1 03	5 56	8 56
Angola	1 15	6 08	9 35
Jackson	3 25	8 25	3 40

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations	Fre'gt	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson Lv	5 55 am	11 45 am	6 15 am
Angola	11 00	3 10 pm	8 44
Pleasant Lake	11 35	3 29	8 55
Stonberville		3 36	9 00
Summit	11 20	3 39	9 04
Waterloo	12 41 pm	3 55	9 23
Auburn	1 20	4 05	9 33
Auburn Junction	1 35	4 08	9 35
New Era	1 54	4 18	9 45
Fort Wayne	3 30	5 50	10 02

For rates on tickets or freight to all points call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent Auburn.

—"Let me see your black kid gloves," said a lady to a clerk. "These are not the latest style are they?" she asked, when the gloves were produced. "Yes, madam," replied the clerk, "we have had them in stock only two days." "I didn't think they were, because the fashion paper says black kids have tan stitches and vice versa. I see the tan stitches, but not the vice versa." The clerk explained that vice versa was French for seven buttons, so she bought three pairs.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

As an honest remedy, Foley's Honey and Tar does not hold out false hopes in advanced stages, but truthfully claims to give comfort and relief in the very worst cases, and in the early stages to effect a cure.

—The G. A. R. posts of Steuben and Noble counties have been invited to attend the reunion of the DeKalb county Batalion at Garrett August 24. John W. Hanan of Lagrange will deliver the principal address which will be well worth hearing.

THE MOST FATAL DISEASE.

More adults die of kidney trouble than any other disease When the first symptoms of this disease appear, no time should be lost in taking Foley's Kidney Cure, which is guaranteed or money refunded: 50c and $1.

—Lightning saved a farmer much labor, near Dillsboro. It struck a barb wire fence leaving a path of dead weeds six feet wide and a mile long.

PILES! PILES!

Why be bothered with this annoying complaint when Banner Salve will cure you. 25c.

—Five hundred thousand acres of marsh land in the southern part of Porter and Lake counties will be drained.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

is easily cured by the use of Beggs' Diarrhœa Balsam; it is safe and sure. H. B. McCord's drug store.

—The Knights of Pythias are taking steps to build a $14,000 monument to J. H. Rathbone, founder of the order.

Be Careful

No woman can be too careful of her condition during the period before her little ones are born. Neglect or improper treatment then endangers her life and that of the child. It lies with her whether she shall suffer unnecessarily, or whether the ordeal shall be made comparatively easy. She had better do nothing than do something wrong.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

is the one and the only preparation that is safe to use. It is a liniment that penetrates from the outside. External applications are eternally right. Internal medicines are radically wrong. They are more than humbugs—they endanger life.

Mother's Friend helps the muscles to relax and expand naturally—relieves morning sickness—removes the cause of nervousness and headache—prevents hard and rising breasts—shortens labor and lessens the pains—and helps the patient to rapid recovery.

From a letter by a Shreveport, La., woman: "I have been using your wonderful remedy, Mother's Friend, for the last two months, and find it just as recommended."

Druggists sell it at $1 per bottle.

THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.
ATLANTA, GA.

Send for our free illustrated book, "Before Baby is Born."

Thursday's Daily.

—Mrs. Sherman Trall, goes to Niagara Falls tonight.

—Miss Laura Keoran visited friends in Jackson township today.

—Miss Eula Bean of Lagrange is here, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Robbins.

—Mesdames Jason Poland and Frank Kline drove over from Angola yesterday to visit Auburn friends.

—W. R. Davis agent for the Kimball piano, has been transferred to Dayton, Ohio, where he will go at once.

—A. Lewis came home from Lakeside last evening. Mrs. Lewis and nephew, Samuel, will stay a while longer.

—Raymond Nelson and Miss Bessie Keeran drove in from Concord last evening to hear the band concert.

—Mrs. Hines is just completing some substantial improvements upon her property on South Jackson street.

—Misses Hazel Urie and Grace Haverstock returned to Butler today after a brief visit with Miss Anna Cuppy.

—Myrtle Boyle came over from Butler this morning, for a few days visit with her grandmother, Mrs. Ann Silver.

—The Lake Shore is putting down several miles of new eighty-pound steel rails between Waterloo and Kendallville.

—Angola Republican:—The Auburn Daily COURIER has increased its size. That means both popularity and business.

—Salt water seeping through the ground from abandoned gas wells in the gas belt is spoiling fresh water wells.

—D. M. Link has purchased the Refner property on North Jackson street and will make some needed improvements before moving into it.

—Mrs. Will Eckhart and little son and Mrs. Marion Willis went to Toledo today to visit relatives there. Will Eckhart will join them Saturday.

—Mrs. Barns, Mrs. W. C. Hartman and little Stanley drove over to Butler this forenoon, where they visit the family of S. B. Jones and other friends.

—George Swanders brought to this office yesterday a double apple, a rare specimen of fruit. It was perfectly formed and presented a rather curious appearance.

—The postal department will make an attempt to bar from the mails the advertising puzzles, forming words and counting dots or spokes in a wheel, holding they are schemes to deceive the credulous and uneducated.

—The Waterloo telephone exchange was placed in operation Tuesday and that town is now in full communication with the outside world. The exchange starts with about fifty subscribers who have the benefit of both day and night service.

—Mr. and Mrs. Cal. Husselman were on the lawn to hear the band last evening. It was noticed also, that they enjoyed a few dishes of that delicious ice cream. They have no reason to be ashamed of their make of ice cream. It was the clear stuff.

—Mrs. Cuppy returned from South Whitley today with her son Will. He stood the trip very well and there is strong hope of his ultimate recovery. Mrs. Cuppy, however, is much worn by her care for the lad which has been unceasing for nearly two weeks.

—The only cause of complaint the Presbyterian ladies had at their social last night, was the suddenness with which their brothers and husbands got tired and went home, leaving the ladies to carry home the dishes, etc. Brethren, you should not so do.

—Talma Rummel, ex-trustee of Troy township was here yesterday on some business matter. He is one of the new officers known as the "advisory board" in his township. As he served two terms in the office of trustee years ago, his experience will come in good play.

—There is a notice in the postoffice here, offering a reward of $500 for the return, or information that will lead to the return of Joseph Trimborn, a wealthy citizen of Great Falls, Montana. He disappeared April 20, last, from the Grand Hotel in New York City, and nothing has been heard of him since.

—Robert S. S. Reed threshed his wheat Tuesday and had a fine stack of straw near his barn. Today there is a big pile of ashes where the stack stood, a mischievous son of a neighbor having set fire to the straw. Luckily the wind was blowing away from the barn at the time and the loss of the straw represents about all the damage that was done.

—It always pays to advertise in a live paper like the COURIER. This morning Henry Dice left a notice for the Daily, describing a pocket book he had lost. We set the notice in type, and the "influence" started at once. In an hour his pocket book was returned to him. Bert Myers had found it. The money, about $10 was gone, but some valuable papers were in it all right. So, he don't mind the loss of the $10. He thinks some tramp took it from his vest, as it hung in the house. They had gone off and left the door open.

—About twenty five enthusiastic and wide-awake members of the Modern Woodmen camp in this city went to Ashley last evening to assist in the instituting of a new camp at that place. The boys all report a glorious time, being royally entertained by the Ashley camp which is composed largely of the solid business and professional men of the town. The Auburn team has been invited to do some work at Waterloo in the near future, and as the new suits will be here in a few days Waterloo may expect Auburn to do the work up brown at that time.

Two Facts About Arbuckles' Coffee

It has set the standard of quality for all competitors for the last thirty years. The strongest claim any competitor can make is that his coffee is "Just as good as Arbuckles'."

THREE CONCLUSIONS

The best Coffee is Arbuckles'. The only Coffee to buy is Arbuckles'. The right thing is to insist on having Arbuckles'.

No. 72 A School Bag. 14 inches wide, 10 inches deep, made of handsome colored netting. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 73. Scholars' Companion. A most useful article for school children. Highly polished wooden box with lock and key, containing lead pencil, pen holder, rule and rubber. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 15 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 74. Noiseless Spring Tape Measure. Sixty inches long, nickel-plated metal case, well-finished. It can be carried in the vest pocket. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2c. postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 75. A Fifty Foot Measuring Tape. A very useful article in the household and on the farm. Brass case, nickel-plated linen tape fifty feet long. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 13 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 76 Lady's Belt Buckle. Silver plated artistic design. Sent postpaid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 8 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 77. Telescope Drinking Cup. This article is prevented from falling apart by its unique construction. Nickel-plated and highly finished. Enclosed in embossed nickel cover no larger than an ordinary watch when telescoped, when extended holds as much as a coffee cup. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 13 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 78 An Album of Illustrated Natural History. Fifty colored pictures of Animals selected for their beauty and rarity. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 79. Pepper and Salt Holders.

Made of German Silver without seam or joint except where tops screw on and off. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 12 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 80 A Spring Balance Scale.

Will weigh from one ounce to 20 pounds. Sent by express, charges prepaid by us, on receipt of 3 cent postage stamp and 400 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office as well as your Post Office.

No. 81 Men's Suspenders.

Elastic Web Suspenders, durable, neat, well mounted. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 16 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 82 Barber Swing Strop. A double strop, one of leather and one of canvas, bound together. Length, 22 inches, width, two inches, trimmings nickel plated. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 19 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles Roasted Coffee.

No. 83 A Table Cover.

Handsome cloth, variegated figured pattern with fringe, 22 inches. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 23 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

Any one Book of the following List will be sent post-paid on receipt of a 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from the wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 84 A ONE NIGHT MYSTERY, and two other great detective stories, by "OLD SLEUTH."
No. 85 ADVENTURES OF A BASHFUL BACHELOR, by CLARA AUGUSTA. A mirth provoking story.
No. 86 TEMPEST AND SUNSHINE. A Novel, by MRS. MARY J. HOLMES. The most popular female writer of fiction of the age.
No. 87 THE SUNNYSIDE COOK BOOK, by MRS. JENNIE HARLAN. This is one of the most comprehensive, common sense Cook Books ever published.
No. 88 OLD SECRETS AND NEW DISCOVERIES. This book takes the reader out of the beaten tracks of knowledge, and will be found both entertaining and useful.
No. 89 THREE THOUSAND THINGS WORTH KNOWING, by R. MOORE, author of "Moore's Universal Assistant." This book is an encyclopedia of highly useful information in condensed form.
No. 90 THE CITY OF DREADFUL NIGHT, and other stories—by RUDYARD KIPLING.

No. 91 The First Prayer.

A beautiful imported Picture 15x20 inches in size. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 92 The First Kiss

A beautiful imported picture 15x20 inches in size. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 93 Two is Company.

The original was painted by Percy Moran. This reproduction in 14 printings is a genuine work of art. Size 16½x25½ inches. Sent post-paid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 94. A Basket of Beauties. A magnificent picture of Roses by Paul de Longpre, the great painter of flowers. We believe this to be one of the handsomest flower pictures ever offered to the public. It is 16½x25½ inches in size. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 95 Three Beautiful Flower Pictures. Each measuring 9½x17 inches. The titles are "Summer Fragrance," "A Vase of Lilies," and "Fresh and Sweet." These three pictures all go together, and will be sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 5 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 96. Noah's Ark. A menagerie, consisting of 12 pairs of Animals—Elephants, Camels, Deer, Horses, Cattle, Donkeys, Goats, Lions, Bears, Tigers, Dogs and Cats. Each pair is coupled and stands alone. They are lithographed in many colors on heavy cardboard, cut out and embossed. Every feature of the Animals is distinctly shown. The elephants are 7 inches high and 10 inches long, and the other Animals are proportionately large. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 15 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 97. Eighty-one Gold Eyed Needles.

Put up in a pretty morocco case, assorted sizes, and made by the best English manufacturers. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 98 Hair Pin Cabinet A metal box lithographed in colors, containing One Hundred Hair Pins, assorted sizes and styles; straight, crimped and invisible. The different styles are in separate compartments. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 10 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 99 A Pocket Mirror and Comb. Set in neat leather combination case, with white metal frame. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 7 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 100 Safety Pin Book Contains twenty-four nickel-plated Safety-Pins three sizes which enter the shields from either side, requiring no guiding when being secured or released. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 8 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

This is a picture of the Signature on Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee Wrapper, which you are to cut out and send to us as a voucher.

No other part of the Coffee Wrapper will be accepted as a voucher, nor will this Picture be accepted as such.

Arbuckle Bros.

SOME OF OUR SIGNATURES ARE PRINTED ON RED BACKGROUND.

This represents one page of a List which is found in each pound package of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee, and with each package in which the List is found the purchaser has bought a definite part of some article to be selected by him or her from the List, subject only to the condition that the signature on the package is to be cut out and returned to Arbuckle Bros. as a voucher, in accordance with the directions printed in connection with each item illustrated and described in the List. This List will be kept good only till May 31, 1900. Another page of this List will appear in this paper shortly.

Address all communications to ARBUCKLE BROS., NOTION DEPT., NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

Friday's Daily.

—John Weihmiller of Richland was here today on business.

—W. J. Wallace and his son, Roy came down from Hudson. He says Auburn still has a pleasant home look to him.

—Nearly every merchant in Noblesville, Ind., has a kissing bug displayed in his window, and a local paper says no two are alike.

—Prof. J. C. Teeters of Berea college, Berea, Ky., is here with his family and will spend the summer vacation with the relatives of both.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—Bert Kimball, a young aeronaut, was drowned at Baw Beese park yesterday afternoon. His parachute dropped in the middle of the lake.

—Solomon Shilling and his son-in-law John Doil, were in town today on business. They were looking up agricultural machinery at McDowell's.

—Remember, that when in need of a vehicle of any kind you can always find what you want at D. N. Myer's sales room, in Auburn. Surreys, Bug-Phaetons, etc.

—The new auditorium at Island Park has been completed. It cost $5,000 and is said to be as fine a building of that kind as can be found at any of the big summer resorts.

—Mr. Margaret Shaffer and daughter, Mrs. Amelia Snyder of Fort Wayne, are guests of S. S. Potter and wife. The first-named lady is a sister of Jacob Lochner.

—One of the "tame" Texas ponies was taken through town this afternoon led behind a buggy, while a man on each side steered him with fifty-foot ropes. It was a laughable sight.

—Misses Vera Cobb and Nellie Baxter drove out to the county farm yesterday, and were greatly interested in what they saw of the people there. Mr. and Mrs. Bartels take pains to make all visitors welcome.

—L. J. Miller is reported to be gaining slowly though suffering considerably at intervals from a sort of smothering about the throat and lungs. His many friends will join the COURIER in the hope that he may soon recover.

—Mrs. C. H. Jackson came down from Angola on the forenoon train and is a guest of Mrs. Frank Zimmerman. Her son, Howard, came down on his wheel, reaching this place half an hour ahead of her. They go to Chicago tomorrow to visit a week or two.

—C. A. Potter this morning resurrected an old trunk that is quite a curiosity. It was once the property of his great-grandfather and is evidently much over a century old. It is large and strongly built and covered with deerskin, a material much in use a century ago for such purposes.

—Mrs. Clara McClellan, took the afternoon train to Fort Wayne from which place she goes to Wabash, to join her mother, Mrs. Walborn, who is there visiting the family of her other daughter, Mrs. L. T. Rice. Cozetta Bishop goes with her. All will return about next Wednesday. Of course they will read the Daily COURIER while there.

—Ella Gregg, who has been in Chicago for some time, was well complimented lately. She is an active member in the Ravenswood Epworth League, and was chosen as their delegate to the International convention to Indianapolis. It was not only an honor, but they paid all her expenses. The DeKalb girl, as well as the DeKalb boy, is liable to get into honorable notice.

—Dr. McGoogan, special collector of revenue, says that officers of fraternal insurance societies and mutual benefit associations who are required to give bond are neglecting their duties to the government. Every bond given by such an officer, is required, under law, to bear a fifty cent revenue stamp. There are very few of these documents which have been stamped, although the law is explicit on the subject.

—Wm. Stahl of Fairfield was here yesterday, and ordered the old Reliable COURIER sent to his son Martin. He also reports a bridge accident near his home southeast of the Center. The first of the week, Henry Freed, who has a threshing outfit, was running his engine over the bridge when it broke through, the hind wheels going to the bottom. Fortunately nothing was broken, and they were soon at work again. Trustee Huet at once had the bridge fixed up safe, by means of big tile.

Saturday's Daily.

—Remember the Meese Matrimonial Reunion at Auburn, Aug. 15. tf.

—Read our Saturday's article "Heard at the Band Stand." It may interest you some Saturday evening

—Rev. Meese is busy distributing announcements of his matrimonial reunion to be held here August 15 and 16.

—The reunion of the 100th Indiana regiment will be held at Albion, Sept. 21. The veterans are assured of a royal welcome.

—One of the largest loads of buggy wheels ever seen in Auburn was hauled from the Wabash railroad to the Eckhart factory today.

—Wm. Dove, who has been down from Chicago several days visiting the relatives in this and Allen counties, returned home today.

—John Springer, a farmer living in the vicinity of Leo, was badly injured yesterday by his team running away with a mowing machine.

—Mrs. John Miller, late Mrs. Porter, was in town today arranging for the removal of her household goods to her new home near Mooresville.

—Four white men walked out of a saloon in Anderson, the other day, because the saloon-keeper refused to let a negro they had with them drink at the bar.

—We didn't see any signs at the grocery last year "Apples at five cents a peock." Five cents didn't go far buying apples at that time and the apples were of poor quality.

—Salem, Indiana, merchants have a cinch on the water troughs of the town, and compel farmers to buy something at the stores before they can water their horses.

—Hayden Wheelock returned last evening from St Mary's, O., where he went a few days ago with the horse and buggy presented to Mrs. Dr. Collett by her father, T. C. Ford.

—Mrs. Mary Doolittle and son Newton of Chicago, who have been guests of Mrs. Wm. Bailey and other relatives for some time, returned to Chicago on the excursion today.

—J. W. Brown, trustee of Franklin township, was a caller today. We talked the other day with one of his fellow trustees who says Mr. Brown is one of the best men on the board.

—Twenty-six tickets were sold at the Lake Shore station for the excursion to Rome City, a much smaller number than was anticipated. Waterloo, Angola and Pleasant Lake sent good delegations.

—If the correspondent for the Garrett Herald had built as good a record for correct and gentlemanly behavior, as the colored driver he sneers at, then, he too, might associate with our best citizens.

—Wm. Bailey received a letter from his brother Milton, who left for the west last week. He arrived in Eagle Grove, Iowa, all right. He was accompanied by Tilden Purdy and Jay Swanders.

—J. M Kinney of Kendallville has secured the contract for grading the road bed for the spur track of the Wabash from Hudson to the new cement works at Haywood City and will commence work in a few days.

—The report has reached Ft. Wayne that Cyrus Rhinehart of Maysville was shot while doing picket duty in the Philippines. He was a member of the Zollinger battery before enlisting for service in the Philippines.

—Mrs. Minnie Hildebrand who has been visiting in the family of her father, John Knoder, went to Fort Wayne today, where she will reside hereafter, Mr. Hildebrand's work being on the Fort Wayne division of the Wabash railroad.

—Geo. Henderson has sold his fine, new residence on South Main street, to P. D. West. It is a most desirable property, but Mr. Henderson has better business prospects elsewhere. He may locate in Chicago. We shall be sorry to lose as good citizens as Mr. and Mrs. Henderson.

—A large barn belonging to Osborn Brothers, just north of Corunna, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon together with a large amount of hay and grain, buggies and farming implements. The loss was heavy and the insurance only about $200 We have not learned the origin of the fire.

WHO IS TO BLAME. Women as well as men are made miserable by kidney and bladder trouble. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great kidney remedy promptly cures. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Volume XXIX | Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, Thursday, August 10, 1899. | Number 32.

J.E. Graham, D.D.S.
DENTIST
Over Davenport's Drugstore, Auburn, Ind.
CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK A SPECIALTY.
All Work Guaranteed { { Gas Administered.
CENTRAL 'PHONE 513.
Will be at Waterloo each Thursday in Dr. Darby's Office.

C. S. SMITH,
Auburn, Ind.
Attorney-at-Law
AND NOTARY PUBLIC.
Office over Bazar Store, formerly occupied by Judge Hartman.

Sprott & Knapp,
Abstracters of Titles to Land and Lots,
AUBURN, IND.
☞Office in Gandy Block, North of Court House.

BANK First National
Auburn, Ind.
Capital Stock and Surplus
$60,000
Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest if left six months. County and Town Orders bought and sold. Money to Loan.
CHARLES McCLELLAN, President.
D. A. GARWOOD, Cashier.

Physicians T.G.Matheny, M D J.B.Casebeer, M.D
Matheny & Casebeer
have again associated themselves in the practice of Medicine, Surgery & Obstetrics. Office On 9th St.
Western 'Phone:
Office..... No. 9
Matheny's residence..... " 88
Casebeer's " ..... " 175

BANK Farmers,
Auburn, Ind.
(Incorporated and Under State Control)
Capital Stock and Surplus
$50,000
Transacts a General Banking Business and Pays Interest on Time Deposits.
Albert Robbins, Pres. J. C. Henry, V-Pres.
A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Physicians D. J. Swarts, M. D Vesta W. Swarts, M D
and SURGEONS
Office at Auburn Sanitary Baths, corner Main and Sixth Streets,
Professional Calls Promptly Answered.
'PHONES: Western..... No. 19 Central Union..... No. 19

DENTIST F. W. HOFFMAN,
Auburn, Ind.
Office in Gandy Building, Northeast Corner of Court Square.
WESTERN 'PHONE 103.
Crown and Bridge Work a Sprcialty

P. V. HOFFMAN,
LAWYER,
Auburn. Indiana
OFFICE over Hebel's Grocery.

Dr. Z. H. Stamets,
Physician & Surgeon
Office on Main St., opposite Swineford Hotel.
Western 'Phone 104
Special attention given to techinal examinations and treatment of chronic and obscure cases, also special attention given to surgery and diseases of women. Calls answered at all hours. Office apart from residence.

I. O. BUCHTEL HOMEOPATHIC
Physician and Surgeon.
Special attention given to hronic and Obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.
Office and residence over Madden Bros Marble Works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, day or night.

Away Down in the Earth.

The deepest hole in the earth is at Schladebach, near Ketschau, Germany. It is 5,735 feet in depth and is for geologic research only. The drilling was begun in 1880 and stopped six years later because the engineers were unable with their instruments to go deeper.

Queer Endowment.

A church in London still possesses an income originally given to it for the purpose of buying faggots for burning heretics.

WABASH WRECK

CEDAR CREEK THE SCENE OF A BAD SMASHUP.

TWO FREIGHTS COLLIDE, KILLING ONE MAN AND NEARLY DESTROYING BOTH SECTIONS.

Last evening at about nine o'clock, there was a bad wreck at Cedar Creek, resulting in the loss of one man's life, and the destruction of an engine, two box cars, a lot of hogs, and other property, besides extensive damage to three other engines.

A heavy train with two engines was going east and had received orders to sidetrack at LaOtto to allow the westbound freight, also a double header, to pass. At LaOtto, after doing their work, the conductor signalled to the engineer to go ahead. He probably meant to go ahead to the east end of the long switch on this side of the Grand Rapids crossing It appears that the engineer understood the signal only in its general sence, to go ahead, which he did without stopping at the end of the switch. Why the conductor did not discover the mistake and stop the train, does not appear plain. They went on, and on reaching Cedar Creek, they saw the light of the west bound train, but as the night was dark, mistook it for a switch light. The west bound train, also, thought they saw a switch light, and having orders to meet the other at LaOtto, kept right on, both going at a high rate of speed, till they were near enough to see their mistake. Both at once slowed up and the head engine going east reversed, and tried to stop. But the engine behind evidently pushed it on. All four of the engine crews saw the danger and jumped, escaping with slight injuries. But an apprentice fireman on the rear engine of the east bound train, did not seem able to move rapidly and when the collision came, he was just getting out, and was caught between the edge of the cab and the edge of the tender, on the right hand side, and crushed dying almost immediately. The two front engines struck squarely and were badly injured but did not leave the track, nor did the rear one on which the man was killed. But the rear one on the west bound train was utterly ruined and thrown off at the south side, turned over, plowed into the ground, and a box car ran up and was left piled on top of it. This box car, and another in the other train were the only ones ruined although several were injured. The ruined box car that come from the west, had hogs, nearly all of which were smashed together at one end and killed. Two tramps in the same car, were not injured. The hogs not killed outright, were shot and the carcases will be taken away or buried. As only the three engines remained on the track, it was an easy job to build a new track around them and this morning all the trains ran nearly on time. But it will be quite a job yet, to get the trucks of the three engines in shape so they can be hauled away. The young man who was killed is named Replogle, his home being in Peru. He was learning the work and this was his first trip, going along to see how the regular fireman did his work.

Volcanic Eruptions

Are grand, but Skin eruptions rob life of joy. Bucklen's Arnica Salve, cures them, also Old, running and Fever Sores, Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Corns, Warts, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Chapped Hands Chilblains. Best Pile cure on earth. Drives out Pains and Aches. Only 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by H. B. McCord the Druggist.

Free of Charge.

Any adult suffering from a cold settled on the breast, bronchitis, throat or lung troubles of any nature, who will call on O. P. Raber, Corunna, will be presented with a sample bottle of Boschee's German Syrup, free of charge. Only just one bottle given to one person, and none to children without order from parents.

No throat or lung remedy ever had such a sale as Boschee's German Syrup in all parts of the civilized world. Twenty years ago millions of bottles were given away, and your druggists will tell you its success was marvelous. It is really the only Throat and Lung Remedy generally endorsed by physicians. One 75 cent bottle will cure or prove its value. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. 2

Nursing Mothers
dread hot weather. They know how it weakens and how this affects the baby. All such mothers need Scott's Emulsion. It gives them strength and makes the baby's food richer and more abundant.
50c. and $1. All druggists.

Here's a few items which may interest you. May seem a little early, but if you expect to buy later why not buy now and get first pick? We are showing an exceptionally pretty line of the nicest assortment we've had in several years.

New Fall Prints

A complete stock of

New Fall Hats

In this line you will find all the new shapes and colorings and at the prices you wish to pay.

A magnificent lot of

New Fall Neckwear

Clubs, Tecks, Flowing Ends, Band Bows and Puffs, made right in every respect and color which you cannot help admiring. Call in and look them over whether you wish to purchase or not.

A fine assortment of NEW SUSPENDERS. More styles and prettier designs than ever.

OVER TWENTY PATTERNS NEW FALL CARPETS. Those who have had a peek at them say they are the prettiest they have ever seen.

A big stock of BOYS' CLOTHING, beyond doubt the most desirable we have yet shown.

We are offering Shirt Waists, Wash Dress Goods and Summer Clothing at unheard of prices.

Come often.

We Are Saving You Money.

Schaab & Bro.,
Auburn, Ind.

What a Scoundrel.

The man who chopped down Andy Boyd's fruit trees may not be as much a demon as Leutgert but he is on the right track for it. Three or four years ago, Mr. Boyd planted a new orchard of choice fruit on his farm in Wilmington township. There were sixty-five or seventy of them and they were growing nicely. A few days ago, Mr. Boyd discovered that some scoundrel had cut down a lot of them. He had gone through row after row and cut everyone about six or eight inches above the ground. He had also girdled several others. It had of course been done in the night, and it is not known who the miscreant was. It would not have been very good for the fellow's health, if Mr. Boyd had caught him at the work.

KIDNEY TROUBLE Is a deceptive disease—thousands have it and dont know it. If you want quick results you can make no mistake by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. Sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney trouble. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Use for Volcano Dust.

Volcanic dust carried by the wind from the mountains of Puy in Auvergne enriches the soil of Limagro with phosphoric acid and potash. According to M. Nivols, inspector general of mines in France, it is owing to this natural fertilizer that the soil is so rich. A field at Gerzat, Clermont-Ferrand, has yielded a fine crop of hemp eighteen years running without any other manure.

The World's Most Costly Church.

There are magnificent churches in this country, but nothing to compare with the Church of Our Savior in Moscow, which cost more than any other church in the world. It was built to celebrate the deliverance of Moscow from the French, and $4,000,000 was spent on it.

Bank Statement!

Report of the Condition of the FARMERS BANK at Auburn in the State of Indiana at the Close of Business, July 27, 1899.

RESOURCES.
Loans and Discounts	$160,669 28
Overdrafts	7,714 06
U. S. Bonds and Securities on hand	5,000 00
Due from Banks & Bankers	57,238 78
Banking House	13,000 00
Other Real Estate	628 41
Furniture and Fixtures	1,501 61
Current Expenses	158 46
Revenue Stamps	327 00
Currency	3,629 00
Specie	6,414 63
Cash Items	116 74
Total	$256 397 97
LIABILITIES.
Capital Stock paid in	$ 45,000 00
Surplus Fund	1,332 92
Undivided Profits	1,809 38
Discount, Exchange and Interest	566 29
Individual Deposits on Demand	44,960 89
Certificates of Deposit on Demand	152,397 85
Bank Deposits	10,330 64
Total	$256 397 97

STATE OF INDIANA, DEKALB CO., } ss.

I, A. C. Robbins, Cashier of the Farmers Bank of Auburn, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge.

A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 2nd day of August, 1899.

J. E. ROSE, Notary Public.

House and Lot for Sale.

One lot on south side of east Seventh street with small building on premises, formerly used for paint shop. Inquire of George Braun at Hebel's meat market, Auburn, Ind.

WORN-OUT WOMEN

Most women are drudges. Some are willing, some are unwilling. Some women drudge for themselves, some for their family. Their routine is endless; no matter how ill they feel they work.

Women never half take care of themselves. Early decay and wrecked lives abound, mainly through neglect. Every woman should have the book called "Health and Beauty," which the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail on request. It tells women some easy things to do to protect health, and all about the virtues of Pe-ru-na for women's peculiar ills. Miss Lizzie Peters, Mascoutah, Ill., writes:

"I am perfectly cured of female weakness by taking Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin. I have gained thirty-seven pounds since I began taking Pe-ru-na. My friends are wondering what makes me look so bright and healthy. I would like to let the world know what a wonderful medicine Pe-ru-na is."

Woman's diseases are mainly catarrh of the pelvic organs. Pe-ru-na drives out every phase of catarrh.

Mrs. Eliza Wike, No. 120 Iron Street, Akron, O., writes:

"I would be in my grave now if it had not been for your God-sent remedy, Pe-ru-na. I was a broken-down woman, now I am well."

A VERY SERIOUS CHARGE.

David Heckathorn of Fairfield Arrested for Attempted Murder

Many readers of the COURIER especially throughout the north and west part of the county know David Heckathorn who resides on his farm in Fairfield township near Hudson. He has lived in that locality for many years and in addition to his farm work has been engaged in the sawmill business. For several years past Heckathorn has been addicted to drinking and when in his cups was considered more or less dangerous. Some years ago his wife obtained a divorce, and since that time he has on different occasions acted in such a violent manner toward her as to cause his arrest. Only last spring he was arraigned in the circuit court and placed under bonds to keep the peace.

A few days ago, it seems, Heckathorn got into one of his tantrums while intoxicated and proceeded to raise cain generally. As a result an affidavit was filed by his former wife charging him with assault and battery with intent to kill upon the person of his youngest son, Orrin Heckathorn, aged about 22. The affidavit stated that the old man had beat and struck the son with a gun and also threatened to shoot him, in fact the gun was drawn and cocked before he could be disarmed. Constable Quince was given the warrant and yesterday afternoon arrested his man and brought him to Auburn. A preliminary examintion was held last evening before Esquire Walter, the defendant entering a plea of not guilty. After hearing the evidence of the witnesses and the statement of Heckathorn himself, the justice remanded him to jail until the next term of the circuit court, placing his bond at $1000.

At one time Heckathorn was well fixed financially, but the numerous suits filed against him as a result of his actions toward his family have been costly and a good deal of his property has been frittered away. The present case is the worst yet brought against him and is likely to end more seriously than he anticipates.

WOMEN'S HAIR.

Fluffiness a Necessary Feature of the New Coiffures.

Never have so many clever little combs, so many pins surmounted by butterflies or bows, or so many bows of gauze, so many innocent-looking and ornamental but most efficacious contrivances been seized upon for belaying and making fast refractory tresses, says the Houston (Tex.) Post. And not for many years, so say the suspicious, has so much "borrowed" hair been disported as now lends fluffiness to the uncovered head and the newly necessary bang. But in the disposition of ornament or addition no small amount of art is required, for it is above all things urgent that the hair shall not appear borrowed or belayed.

The most successful coiffure for the bareheaded girl is a loose pompadour, wide at the sides, with the rest of the hair dressed in a high top knot, to which, for the summer hotel piazza, a flower, a wisp of tulle or a gauzy scarf, half ornament, half protection, is attached. For the tennis court, the golf links or the woods ramble there is as yet no prospect of the revival of last summer's sun bonnets; but women young enough not to be made ridiculous, whether hatless or with whatever variety of hat affected, show not infrequently the long braids of the schoolgirl.

Hicks' August Weather.

In his outlook for the weather during the remainder of August Rev. Irl Hicks of St. Louis makes the following predictions:

There will be a rapid reaction to storm conditions about the 6th and 7th, and these conditions will culminate in electrical storms with great bluster and some rain in numerous localities on and touching the 8th. Very warm weather may be expected from the 6th until storms culminate about the 8th. Progressive change to cooler, traveling from west to east behind the storm conditions about the 9th.

The next regular storm period falls from the 11th to the 15th. This will bring return of falling barometer, easterly and southerly winds and very warm days. About the 12th to 14th a hot wave will culminate over the Central states, ending in thunder storms, general bluster and local rains about the 14th to 17th, marked change to cooler over most parts of the northern hemisphere.

From the 18th to the 20th a warm wave, low barometer and general storm tendencies will appear. August close in a reactionary storm period. The month will end quite warm, with local summer showers in transit from west to east. We fear that most sections will lack for rain this month.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court as administratrix of the estate of SILAS B. JOHNSTON, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MARY E. JOHNSTON, Administratrix.

July 28, 1899.

Rose & Rose, Attorneys for Estate.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Heard at the Band Stand

"A Chiel's amang ye, takin' notes, An' faith he'll print it."—ROBERT BURNS.

CHAPTER II.

The colony was a little late in gathering, and some were not there at all. After discussing the Kendallville telephone about the Auburn bankers and business men going into a trust to raise skunks, they concluded it might possibly be a hoax. So, they dropped that and drifted over onto the troubles of Will Wolf. The Veteran thought it was a mean thing to treat Will that way, as he had done what he could to uphold the honor of the flag in the Spanish War. But the Citizen said that was no excuse for Will's having more wives than the law allowed. A vote was taken, however, and it was the unanimous opinion that Lyme Lockwood was at the bottom of the thing. At least they said, he was jealous of Will, and when the latter got married to his last wife, Lyme couldn't bear to see it. So he hunted up the woman who made the charge that got Will cooped up. They said it was a bad that a former county officer should be mixed up in matters of this kind and be so bold about it, Not one of the colony will ever vote for Lockwood again.

Our reporter got onto the names of two of the married men, who bought beer for those Garrett women and in that way got a saloon man into trouble.

They got to discussing the neat piece of detective work recently done by Sheriff Hathaway, when he caught Dave Johns, and they contrasted it with the way Sheriff Stroh chased over the country after Shilling. Stroh took several men along to help, or rather to do the work, or he would send his right hand man, Platter, neither of whom cared to tackle a man. This talk brought in the fine detective work of the Stroh combination, when they went to get the "Flora Bank robbers" down by the Junction. It makes Frank Boyle laugh his jaw out of joint yet when when he thinks of it.

The big, square, living well, now being sunk at the east end of the jail came in for its share of comment, and it was generally conceded that it was a remarkably foolish piece of business. It would be a great calamity if the east end of the jail should fall over into that "old swimmin' hole," and drown half the gentlemanly fellows now inside. The colony is made up of heavy tax payers, who have a great interest in keeping down public expenses. With a vote of thanks to the COURIER reporter, they adjourned.

Another View of It

TO THE EDITOR.

Dear Sir:—In your article in yesterday's COURIER, "Give Them Their Share," you refer to the case of some "high toned lads who have an ambition to become drunkards," and say: "The saloon keeper is the only innocent party of the three, as far as this transaction is concerned." It is evident from your article, and from the facts in the case, that a "confirmed soak" bought the liquor for these boys. It certainly is as much a crime to sell to a confirmed old soak, as to minors, so the saloon keeper knew he was guilty, in this transaction. He knew that the "old soak" aforesaid, was rapidly becoming what he now is, a public expense. So, with numerous other cases that have been made imbecile, and turned over for honest taxpayers to support. The saloon proprietor comes here, and with two saloon men of Garrett for bondsmen, plants a nuisance in our town. No one supposes that the "old soak" has been buying liquor for ten or fifteen minors, and handing it out at the back door of a saloon and the proprietor not know anything about it. It is time for an outraged community to assert its right to self protection.

Yours truly,
A TAX PAYER.

Auburn, Ind. Aug. 5, '99.

No Right To Ugliness.

The woman who is lovely in face, form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and all run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples, skin eruptions and wretched complexion. Electric Bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate the stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming, woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at H. B. McCord's Drug Store.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

AT THE ALTAR

There was a quiet wedding last evening at the residence of Wm. Elson, corner of Sixth and Cedar streets. His daughter, Olive, was united in marriage to George Gordon of Garrett, Rev. W. L. Meese officiating. The groom is a worthy young man, a plumber by trade, and the bride is well known in Auburn society as well as in the part of the county where she lived. She will be especially remembered by G. A. R. and W. R. C. circles, where she was prominent since she was a child. She was the reader and speaker, in fact, the elocutionist of most of their gatherings, and her removal from Auburn will be felt as a loss by them. The COURIER joins heartily in good wishes for the young couple.

Got Caught.

We overlooked an important item yesterday. It was the trial of Wm. Sherlock for furnishing liquor for minors. It appears that he has been in the habit of doing this more or less, and in this way earn a few nickels for himself from the boys, which came very handy to get a sandwich or some beer. For, as he has no visible means of support these little items come handy. It appears he was usually at Devenny's saloon, but whether the latter knew what was going on we cannot say. The boys would go around to the rear of the saloon, make a certain rap on the door or window, or some other sign. Then Sherlock would take out the beer in a pail or something, get his money and pay for the beer out of it, and keep the rest as his commission. Some of the best families in town might have found their silly boys at that back door, had they been on the lookout. They could have prevented this trouble by insisting on knowing where and in what company their boys were, or by keeping them at home. However, Wednesday evening, Sherlock was called up before 'Squire Walter, and the boys, some of them, swore to the facts, and as a result Sherlock was given a fine, which with costs, amounted to $31.40. Not being able to fix it up, he was taken to jail where it will take him about thirty-two days to "work it out." And strange as it may seem, these boys are ambitious to become like him. Wouldn't it be wise to stop and think the matter over before they decide such a vital matter.

Chorus Class.

There is a great number of young people as well as adults who have fine voices, and many of whom have had vocal instruction, and yet do not put their talent into practical use, because of an inability to read music at sight and a lack of knowledge of the underlying principles of music in general. With this fact in view, a number of my musical friends have requested me to organize a vocal class. After a careful consideration I have decided to do so.

The main feature of the work will be sight-reading and ear training with the fundamental principles of harmony and composition which make rapid progress in these possible.

Chorus drill and the musical analysis of choruses studied, will be another interesting feature. I will use the "Normal Course," the same as that studied with Mr. Cole, the supervisor of music in the Boston City schools. There will be a class each for adults, young people and children in the kindergarten if desired.

Price of general admission $2 for term of twenty lessons. Those desiring futher information or wishing to join the class will call and see me as early as possible, that I may secure my charts and necessary music for the work.—FLORA L. HOFFMAN.

To Make Life Happy.

Sweet music appeals to the heart and soul and lightens many of life's burdens. If you have ever heard the sweet-toned Steger Piano you will appreciate this. To reach the highest standard of excellence has always been the aim in the manufacture of the celebrated Steger Piano. Only the best material is used, insuring great durability. Every piano fully guaranteed.

The Steger factories, thoroughly equipped with the best and most improved machinery, located at Steger, Ill., are among the largest in the West.

Intending purchasers will find it profitable to write for a full descriptive catalogue, which will be mailed free upon application. STEGER & CO., (Established 1879.) Chicago, Ill.

PILES! PILES!

Why be bothered with this annoying complaint when Banner Salve will cure you. 25c.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNR, . . PUBLISHER.

1899. AUGUST. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
•	•	1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30	31	•	•
•	•	•	•	•	•	•

N. M. 6th. F. Q. 14th. F. M 20th. L. Q. 27th.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

A TOWN WRECKED.

Terrific Tornado on the Florida Coast

Tallahasse (Fla.) special: The town of Carrabelle, a prosperous port on the Gulf of Mexico, southwest of here, is reported almost completely destroyed by a terrific wind and rain storm which passed through this section.

Unconfirmed reports say that the steamer Crescent City has been lost between Apalachicola and Carrabelle. Several persons are reported drowned at St. Marks. A few houses were destroyed at St. Teresa. A passenger train was blown from the track, thirty-five miles below Tallahasse and badly wrecked, but no one was injured. Much injury has been done to crops.

Insane Over the Dreyfus Case.

Henry Kilbert, a wealthy shoe merchant of Evansville, Ind., has gone insane over the Dreyfus case. Kilbert has displayed a deep interest in the Dreyfus case ever since the noted Frenchman was taken to Devil's Island and imprisoned. He has talked of little else, and in his violent moments raves and swears at the French army for causing the arrest of Dreyfus. Kilbert has been confined in the Southern Indiana Insane Hospital and his case is one of the worst ever seen in the institution. He has a family and comes from the best Hebrew families in Henderson, Ky. He is 42 years old.

Suicide of a Prominent Man.

J. H. Turpie, one of the best-known residents of Lafayette, Ind., committed suicide recently. He plunged headforemost from a third-story window of the Hotel Lah and struck the paving on Fifth street. An ambulance took the body to a hospital, but life was found extinct. There is not any known reason for the act.

Mr. Turpie lived with his family in the aristocratic part of the city, near the hotel. He was assigned to a room at midnight and two hours later his body was found in the street.

For a Larger Army.

It appears probable from the developments of the past few days in the War Department that Secretary Root has in contemplation an army of 40,000 available men for the Philippines.

While Mr. Root has been at the head of the department only a brief time, he has been making diligent inquiries among the bureau chiefs regarding supplies and equipments and the trend of his questioning has been in the direction of an increase in the military force in the eastern archipelago.

Dynamite Used Again.

Cleveland special: The withdrawal of several companies of troops was followed by another dynamiting outrage, but fortunately nobody was hurt. The explosion occurred under a Jennings avenue car on which there were six passengers. It smashed the flange of one of the wheels and splintered the running board at the side. The passengers were badly frightened but none were injured and the car proceeded on its way to the end of the run.

Nellie Berger Found.

Nellie Berger, the 16-year-old girl who was abducted from her home near Gilead, Miami County, Ind., about three weeks ago, was found at Freetown, near Seymour, by Sheriff Fultz and ex-Sheriff Gast of Fulton County. Her abductor, William Jones, was arrested, and both he and the girl were taken to Indianapolis.

The Enemy Routed.

Manila special: Advices from Cebu say the Americans attacked the insurgents in trenches last week and with the assistance of the Charleston routed the enemy with little loss to the Americans.

Fire at Chicago.

Fire broke out in Armour's fertilizer warehouse, Chicago, and for a time threatened the whole stockyard district. Quick work by the department confined the flames to the building.

To Use Automobiles.

The Postoffice Department is experimenting with automobiles for delivery. If they are a success all the large cities will be equipped with them.

Strike Ended.

The tailors of New York City have won their strike, practically all of the contractors having signed agreements for the coming season.

Hospital Ship Relief.

The hospital ship Relief has arrived at San Francisco with about 400 wounded and sick soldiers. Many are in a serious condition.

Cuban Newspaper Seized.

Gen. Ludlow, Military Governor of Havana Province, has suppressed the scurrilous Cuban newspaper, El Reconcentrado.

Filipinos to Remain.

Immigration Commissioner Powderly has decided to allow the Filipinos recently brought to San Francisco to remain for the Omaha Exposition, the exposition company having agreed to maintain them and send them back in a year.

Gold from Alaska.

Gold of the placer and quarts kind came from Alaska and the British Yukon on the steamer Al-Ki which has arrived in Seattle, to the amount of about $300,000. Probably one-half the amount is Treadwell product.

New Railway to Be Built in Ohio.

A railroad to connect the Northern Ohio Railway at Copley and the Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling at Warwick with Barberton is to be built by a company being formed by O. C. Barber and J. K. Robinson of the Diamond Match Company.

Suspension Causes a Run.

The uneasiness engendered by the announcement of the Jacques Cartier bank suspension at Montreal had the effect of causing a sharp run upon the other French banks. The banks met all demands and confidence was rapidly restored.

DYNAMITE PLOT IN KOREA.

Attempts of Conspirators to Blow Up Houses of Officials.

Advices from Seoul, Corea, give details of a series of dynamite outrages there, evidently the work of a band of conspirators, whose head is Prince Pak Yung-Hyo and whose efforts were directed to demolishing the homes of the premier and members of the royal household department. One night the people of Seoul were thrown into great excitement by six terrific explosions. An investigation disclosed that attempts had been made to wreck vengeance on Sin-Ko-Sin, the present premier; Pak-Ki-Yang and Pak-Chung-Yong, members of the household department, by blowing up their residences. The explosions were repeated in different parts of the city on three subsequent occasions. The last was in the house of Prince Pak, which demolished a part of the building, injuring two coolies. Police investigations in the latter case led to the arrest of seventeen persons, of whom six were women. One has confessed that the whole of the plot was hatched at the house of Prince Pak Yung-Hyo, and that some of the men who are under arrest are the men who have been laying the bombs about in the streets.

LOST IN UNDERGROUND RIVER.

Mystery of a Laborer's Disappearance While Digging a Minnesota Well.

Harry Hurl, a farmer living five miles east of Stephen, Minn., came to town and reported that while two of his hired men were digging a well on his farm and had got down to the depth of forty-four feet, the bottom suddenly fell in, one of the men was thrown into a well of water and disappeared and has not been seen or heard of since. The other man when he felt that the ground was giving away under him caught on to the rope that was used in hoisting the dirt up and was drawn to the top. Mr. Hurl then got a rope and chain about 100 feet long and attached a weight to it and dropped it in this well, but it did not touch bottom, but was washed rapidly west, showing that a large body of water was underneath.

TRIES TO PROTECT HER NAME.

Florence Campbell Confesses She Sent Herself Poisoned Cherries.

At San Francisco, Miss Florence Campbell, daughter of Judge Campbell of Wheeling, W. Va., who created something of a sensation by charging that Mrs. Rathorn tried to kill her by sending her poisoned cherries, has made a confession wherein she admits the story was a plot of her own. She expected to be made the co-respondent in a divorce suit which Mrs. Rathorn threatened to bring. To prevent that disgrace, if possible, and to protect her family name, she says she sent herself the poisoned fruit, using a letter in her possession, which was addressed by Mrs. Rathorn, thinking this letter and the relations existing between them would easily fasten the guilt upon Mrs. Rathorn.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL HUNG.

Crime Which May Result in Lynching in a Texas Town.

Fannin County, Texas, is in a state of indignation over a terrible crime. An 11-year-old white girl, the daughter of Alonzo Newton, a farmer, was found hanging lifeless from a tree near the family home by her father. The child was left alone in the morning when her father went to his work. As soon as Mr. Newton discovered the murder of his child he aroused the neighborhood. News was sent to Bonham, the county seat, seven miles distant, and Sheriff Ribbling's forces, the police of the city, headed by Chief Jackson, and the citizens searched diligently for a clew to the crime. The people of Fannin County are terribly aroused and a lynching may be the outcome.

OVER THIRTY ARE INJURED.

Trolley Car Jumps the Track—Passengers Hurled in Every Direction.

A trolley car left Phoenixville, Pa., on the Montgomery and Chester trolley line, loaded with seventy-four persons. The seating capacity was forty-five. All went well until the motorman lost control of the car and it shot down a steep incline at a rapid rate. When nearly opposite the grocery store of James Nodlit the car left the rails and, after running about fifty feet obliquely across the street, dashed into the side of the store of Mr. Nodlit. The excited passengers were hurled in all directions, over thirty being injured. The car was badly wrecked and the building somewhat damaged.

Another Kentucky Tragedy.

Bet Clardy killed Will Southall near La Fayette, Ky., and Charles Southall mortally wounded Clardy. The Southall brothers were working in a tobacco field. Clardy approached and without warning shot Will Southall twice with a shotgun, killing him instantly. Charles Southall then felled Clardy with a stone and struck him repeatedly on the head, fracturing his skull.

Passenger Crashes Into a Freight.

Erie passenger train No. 7, west bound, crashed into a freight express which had been derailed a mile east of Lackawaxen, Pa., and was wrecked. Four cars, including two sleepers, were burned. Two persons were killed and twenty-one injured. The wreck was caused by a landslide.

Twenty Hurt in Train Wreck.

Twenty persons were injured in a wreck on the Pittsburg and Western Railroad at Herr's station, Pa. None of the injured is likely to die, but several are badly hurt. The smoker and middle coach of the accommodation train, which were crowded to the limit, were smashed to splinters.

Three Drowned in the Ohio.

Three people ended their lives in the Ohio river in front of Evansville, Ind. They are: August Mattingly, 17 years of age; Miss Pearl Cheaney, 14 years of age, and Miss Marion Onan, 20, of Henderson, Ky. The young people were caught in the rapids in front of the mail line wharfboat and their skiff capsized.

Dominion Speaker Is Dead.

The speaker of the Dominion House of Commons, Sir James Edgar, died unexpectedly at Toronto Recently he underwent an operation for Bright's disease and was believed to be rapidly recovering when complications set in.

Conductor Beaten and Robbed.

A trolley car, loaded with eighty passengers, mostly women and children, was held up by four highwaymen in Brooklyn. The conductor was beaten nearly to death and robbed of all the money in his possession. The robbers were captured.

Poisons Babies and Herself.

Mrs. Mary Stevenson, aged 25, living in Detroit, administered morphine to her two daughters, Ella, aged 6, and Emma, aged 8, and then swallowed a quantity of the poison herself. Ella died.

Canada Wants Too Much.

There is another hitch in the Alaskan boundary controversy. Canada wants to establish docks, wharves and and other terminal facilities at the proposed leased port on the Lynn canal.

Three Hundred Homeless.

The village of Tupper Lake, N. Y., was almost entirely wiped out by fire. Save two hotels, the opera house, the Catholic church and a few straggling tenement houses on the outskirts, not a single block or house remains. Not a business establishment of any kind escaped. Three hundred persons are left homeless and destitute. The loss is placed at $200,000.

YAQUIS ON THE WARPATH.

Several Mexicans and Americans Reported to Have Been Killed.

A special from Ortiz, Mexico, says: "Any doubt that the Yaquis are on the warpath in earnest was dispelled when news reached here that several Americans and Mexicans had been killed in pueblos, or towns, in the Yaqui river valley, east and southeast of this station. The courier who came in with the news of the slaughter declares that he saw a desperate fight at a point forty miles southeast of Ortiz, and that he has positive evidence that J. F. Remley, a merchant of Hermosillo, and E. Miller, a photographer in his employ, were among the killed. Remley was one of the best-known Americans in Sonora. The inhabitants of the towns in and near the Yaqui valley are in a state of terror. Gen. Torres, commander of the First military zone, which includes Sonora, Sinaloa and Lower California, who was in the field with the Twelfth regiment, is reported among the slain. If the outbreak is of the proportions of the war ended in 1897, the number may be placed at between three and four thousand. This outbreak is a surprise to the State and army officials."

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH A DRUG.

Disappearance of an Ohio Man Solved by the Finding of His Corpse.

The nude body of Charles E. Clark, who disappeared a week before from McGonigle's station, Ohio, where he was employed as a train dispatcher by the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railway, was found on the bank of the Miami river, six miles south of Hamilton, by Rial Vevis. Near by lay his clothing and a tin cup showing traces of hydrocyanic acid. As Clark once studied medicine and pharmacy, it is believed that he committed suicide with this drug. Clark was a verse writer and a political speaker. His habit of constant study inclines his parents, who live at College Corner, to believe that he had become demented. He was 28 years old and single.

Murder of an Alleged Witch.

The report comes from the Indian Territory of the horrible murder of an old white woman in the Seminole Indian country by three Seminole women. Of late there have been several deaths and other misfortunes among the tribe, and it was finally decided that this old woman was a witch. She was attacked by three Indian squaws, who beat her to death with clubs.

Two Killed in a Collision.

A light engine going west on the Union Pacific collided with an overland passenger train one and one-quarter miles west of Walcott, Wyo. Fireman Koneld was killed. Engineer Walter Marsh of No. 4, a resident of Laramie, was fatally injured, dying a few minutes after being picked up. Both engines and mail cars were demolished.

Indian Kills a White Girl.

Eugene Pakahpuer, a graduate from the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa., shot and killed Edith Morell, aged 17 years, at the home of Mrs. J. F. Morell, in South Amherst, Mass. The Indian had been employed on the farm for about a year. The murder was the result of Miss Morell's refusal of his attentions.

Two Fires at San Jose.

Fire destroyed the palatial residence of Mrs. Mary Hayes-Chineweth at Edenvale, San Jose, Cal. Loss $175,000, insurance $75,000. A second fire destroyed the fruit warehouse of J. B. Inderreiden & Co. of Chicago, causing a loss of $40,000, insurance $25,000.

Cuts Throat While Insane.

"Honest" John Salisbury, a former member of the Board of City Aldermen at Kansas City and for many years a prominent live stock commission man, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a pocketknife. He had been mentally unbalanced for several months.

Revolver Play Ends in Death.

While at Parish's home in Lima, Ohio, Harry Huffman pulled a revolver and told Ed Parish that he would show him how to kill Mexicans. The pistol was discharged and the bullet entered Parish's breast, killing him. Huffman was arrested.

Louis Billow Has Confessed.

Louis Billow, who is under arrest at Ellensburg, Wash., for murder, has confessed that because Miss Hess of Fremont, Ohio, refused to marry him he blew up her house with dynamite and shot her father dead.

Death of Kate Chase Sprague.

Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague died at Edgewood, her country home near Washington, in her fifty-ninth year.

Killed in a Saloon Fight.

In a fight in a saloon in Omaha, Neb., Ed Joyce was instantly killed and Ed Callahan mortally wounded.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 68c to 69c; corn, No. 2, 30c to 32c; oats, No. 2, 20c to 21c; rye, No. 2, 51c to 52c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 18c; eggs, fresh, 11c to 13c; potatoes, choice, 30c to 35c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, choice light, $3.75 to $4.75; sheep, common to prime, $3.25 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 67c to 69c; corn, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c; oats, No. 2 white, 27c to 28c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, $3.00 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 69c to 71c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 31c to 33c; oats, No. 2, 20c to 22c; rye, No. 2, 54c to 56c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.25; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 68c to 69c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 35c to 36c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 22c to 23c; rye, No. 2, 55c to 57c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $4.50; sheep, $2.50 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 34c to 36c; oats, No. 2 white, 28c to 29c; rye, 53c to 55c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 70c to 71c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 32c to 34c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 23c to 25c; rye, No. 2, 51c to 53c; clover seed, new, $3.90 to $4.00.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 70c to 71c; corn, No. 3, 32c to 34c; oats, No. 2 white, 23c to 26c; rye, No. 1, 51c to 53c; barley, No. 2, 39c to 41c; pork, mess, $8.50 to $9.00.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $5.00; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.25; lambs, common to extra, $4.50 to $6.50.

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $3.00 to $5.00; wheat, No. 2 red, 76c to 77c; corn, No. 2, 37c to 38c; oats, No. 2, 27c to 28c; butter, creamery, 15c to 19c; eggs, Western, 12c to 16c.

CROPS LAID WASTE.

DEVASTATING STORMS SWEEP FIELDS OF GRAIN.

Loss Throughout the Northwest Will Reach the Millions—Growing Grain Beaten Into the Earth by Torrents of Hail and Heavy Winds.

Reports received from nearly all of the grain-growing States in the western Mississippi valley indicate that immeasurable and widespread damage to crops has been done by hail and wind. The States that have suffered the most are Minnesota, South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska. In Iowa Monday night a terrific storm of drenching rain, accompanied by a furious and devastating wind, mowed down the grain, and where the damage did not amount to a total loss it left the fields in such condition that the farmers in many sections have practically given up hope of saving half of the crop they planned on. The storm took on frigidity and the accompanying element of disaster as it spread over Minnesota and South Dakota. The rain was turned to sharp-edged hail in many places and to sleet that cut the grain with almost as evil results in others.

No accurate figures on the total damage can be made, but it is conservative enough to say that fully half a million acres of richly fruited crops have been leveled by the storm. Not only one cereal, but all of the various kinds that are particularly easy prey to wind and hail met injury. Corn was crushed or torn up altogether; unharvested wheat was flattened, and wide strips of country cut down as if by a mighty, all-powerful clipper of an angry god.

Dispatches indicate that the storm was central in Iowa, where it seemed to gather and to leap along on its northerly and westerly course. Not only damage to crops is reported, but many farmers have the added loss of barns and sheds that were overturned or unroofed by the furious gusts of wind. Northwestern Iowa was among the first sections visited by the gale. Plymouth and O'Brien counties tell of the most serious loss there. Hail fell in pelting showers and the only comfort the farmers got from the storm was the subsequent rain, which fell in torrents, over one and one-half inches of water being precipitated in Sioux City.

From Marshalltown, Iowa, is wired in a story of exceptional damage. Thousands of dollars' damage was done to crops by the wind. Corn was injured here as much as grain, and many farm buildings were also blown down and windmills wrecked, the whole loss being beyond estimate.

Minnesota evidently suffered more from hail than from rain and wind. The hail grew in size and the impetus behind it seemed to increase when the gale reached South Dakota. The damage in this State, where the crops are ready to be harvested, is unknown, but it is understood to be heavy. But little grain in this section that lay in the path of the storm had been cut, so the injury is beyond estimate.

Corn and uncut grain in Nebraska were knocked flat by the wind and then drenched and thrown into soddy heaps by a heavy rain. A number of buildings were also demolished. These reports are duplicated in a thousand others from all parts of the States which fell under the aim of the storm.

Farmers generally were anxious for a little rain, but most of all they dreaded wind and hail. Coming at this season of the year, which is high tide in harvesting, the damage is necessarily much greater than it would have been had the storm been timed differently and of a different nature. The storm was very severe over the northern part of Nebraska.

COURT AWARDS MILLIONS.

Old Patents Held by a Tooth Crown Company Are Valid.

A decision rendered by Judge Townsend in the United States Circuit Court at New York is estimated to affect claims amounting to $10,000,000. The decision is in favor of the International Tooth Crown Company and sustains the validity of 1881 patents held on the system of applying tooth crowns. Although the patents expired during the litigation, the decision confirms the right of the complainant company to collect royalties on all infringements covering the whole existence of the patents.

ON ASTOR'S NATURALIZATION.

London Paper on His Becoming a British Subject.

The announcement that William Waldorf Astor has become a British subject is commented on by the London Chronicle in ironical fashion. The paper says: "We fear that New York will fiercely resent its loss. And just as we were hoping that the last obstacle to an Anglo-Saxon understanding was removed, here comes a new one."

Only three other Americans ever became British subjects. They are Benedict Arnold, Judah P. Benjamin, Secretary of State in Jefferson Davis' cabinet, and A. Oakey Hall, once Mayor of New York.

THE RICH MAN'S BURDEN.

Some Chicago Millionaires Hard Hit by the Tax Gatherer.

The Cook County board of review has been inquiring after the heretofore undertaxed fortunes of some of Chicago's struggling millionaires, and the figures set opposite the names of some of the rich men have been turned upside down. The reviewers did not stop with sweeping off the records values fixed by the Board of Assessors in cases where schedules were not filed. They proceeded to demonstrate that the assessors who had turned in sworn statements were equally deficient as guessers, and raises ranging all the way from 10 to 3,000 per cent tell the story in convincing figures.

MARSHALL FIELD.

In point of aggregate of increase the hardest blow was dealt to Marshall Field, who must pay personal property taxes on a full value of $2,500,000, instead of the $1,250,000 at which the assessors had rated him. This means that the dry goods merchant's assessed valuation for 1899 is $500,000, as against $21,000 last year.

After landing on Mr. Field, the reviewers developed reserve power by jumping the return of Otto Young of Otto Young & Co. from $15,000 to $500,000. This constituted the greatest percentage of increase, though it was nearly equaled in the case of Harlow N. Higinbotham of Marshall Field & Co., whose sworn schedule of $24,485 read $500,000 when the "O. K." stamp of the review board decorated its face. Mr. Young's new assessed valuation is $100,000. It was $1,500 in 1898. Mr. Higinbotham's for 1899 amounts to $100,000 also. When he paid taxes a year ago it was on the basis of $2,000.

PHILIP D. ARMOUR.

Charles T. Yerkes felt the effect of the reviewers' action to the extent of $900,000, as they raised his assessors' estimate of $100,000 to an even million. The late street railroad president's 1899 assessed valuation will be $200,000, as against 1898's record of $6,000. Nelson Morris keeps Mr. Yerkes company with a boost of $650,000 at the hands of the revisionists, the assessors' rating in the packer's case being raised from $100,000 to $750,000. When Mr. Morris settles his tax bill next spring it will be on the basis of an assessed valuation of $150,000, instead of $1,000 for 1898.

Philip D. Armour was not so heavily punished as his fellow-millionaires. The reviewers only added $450,000 to the assessors' estimate of $300,000 in his case, explaining afterward that they regarded $750,000 a fair valuation of the packer-philanthropist's personal wealth, on the ground that the great bulk of his moneyed capital is invested in the firm of Armour & Co. and its various allied interests. Nevertheless, Mr. Armour will come to the support of Cook County on an assessable basis of $150,000 for $4,000 when he last contributed.

UNCLE SAM MAY FEEL LIKE TRADING ELSEWHERE IF DOG ISN'T CALLED OFF.
—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

WITH TATTERED FLAGS.

Nebraska and Utah Volunteers Parade in San Francisco.

Two hundred thousand persons is a conservative estimate of the crowd which gathered along Market street, Golden Gate and Van Ness avenues, San Francisco, and gave the Nebraska volunteers a welcome home which the men will remember as long as they live. The sight of their once spotless silk flag, which was presented to them by the people of Nebraska, coming home with only the blue field and a few tattered ribbons of stripes left, set the people along the line of march wild with enthusiasm. Another feature that made the thousands mingle tears and cheers was eight ambulances filled with the sick and wounded at the end of the procession. Many of the sick were consumptive, going home to die, and all bore the stamp of hardship and suffering. The spectators showered the poor fellows with flowers and cheered them from the time they left the dock until they turned into the Presidio military reservation. The volunteers and the Utah light artillery were in heavy marching order.

They looked like seasoned veterans. All of the business houses along lower Market street suspended business for half an hour while the regiment passed in review. The gun stores vied with one another in an endeavor to make the most noise, and the factories blew their whistles, while the steam craft in the bay responded with loud toots to the shrill sounds from the shore.

The parade was led by a detachment of police and the Nebraska band, with a detachment of regulars. Then followed the Nebraskans. The sick men of the regiment were conveyed in ambulances from the Presidio. The Utah battery was next. The Nebraska men carried their Springfields and rolls of blankets. After the ambulances with the Utah sick came battery O, Third artillery, and troop G, Sixth cavalry.

FAST MAIL WRECKED.

Northwestern Train from Chicago Ditched Near Boone, Iowa.

As the Chicago and Northwestern's famous fast mail from Chicago was rounding the "Kate Shelley" curve just west of Boone, Iowa, Tuesday morning the engine and four cars comprising the train left the track, plunged over the steep embankment and were dashed to pieces against the side of a small hill. Four men were killed and seven others were injured. Although the cause of the derailment is unknown, it is thought to have been the result of a heavy rain which fell at 3 o'clock—two hours before the wreck.

Less than an hour before the fast mail made its fatal jump the Overland Limited, carrying hundreds of sleeping passengers, sped around the curve in safety. Had the rails weakened under its wheels the hospitals and undertaking establishments at Boone would have cared for scores instead of ten victims. A heavy fruit train also made the curve safely less than twenty minutes before the wreck.

The front truck of the engine was torn from its fastening and was hurled over the slope into a corn field 150 feet away. The driving wheels were twisted under the front part and the boiler and cab were smashed. Masterton and Schmidt, their crushed bodies scalded with steam and burned with coals from the fire box, were found dead under the wrecked remnants of the cab.

The express and postal cars were likewise dismantled. Messenger O'Brien was pinned under his safe, and Figarfoos, his helper, was found under a mass of wreckage. The first three cars were shattered the worst. Conductor Rose and Brakemen Dornan and McVarnes were in the rear car and were unhurt save for bruises.

TRACED BY A TOMBSTONE.

Strange Manner in Which a Separated Couple Were Reunited.

After a separation of six years, Mrs. Ethel Fredler of Louisville found her husband recently through the agency of a tombstone.

About seven years ago Miss Ethel Treaner of St. Louis, daughter of E. T. Treaner, fell in love with Charles Fredler. The young man was making only a small salary, and for this reason the parents of the girl objected to the match. A secret marriage resulted. Afterward Fredler told the firm of his secret, with the result that his compensation was sufficiently increased for the couple to inform their parents of their matrimonial venture.

When the panic came the firm in which Fredler was employed assigned. Fredler suddenly left St. Louis, leaving a note to his wife to the effect that he would not return until he had acquired wealth.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Fredler and her mother were driving in Louisville when they passed a dray containing a tombstone bearing an inscription with the date of the birth and death of Charles Fredler. They learned that the stone was to be sent to St. Louis, and found out the name of the consignee. Taking the next train for St. Louis, they visited the store, where Mrs. Fredler was confronted by her husband

FAILED TO RETAKE CALAMBA.

Filipinos Repulsed by Americans, Who Lose One Killed.

The Filipino insurgents Sunday made an attempt to recapture Calamba, which was taken by the Americans on Wednesday. A force of 2,400 rebels attacked the town simultaneously on the north and south. In repulsing the attack the Americans did not even require all their force. Two companies of the Twenty-first regulars, some cavalry and one gun were sufficient to repulse the attack on the north, while 400 men from the Washington Volunteers drove the enemy back on the south. The American loss was one killed and seven wounded.

CURRENT COMMENT

Though the late Robert Ingersoll had many oratorical triumphs he is charged with at least one disastrous failure. It occurred at an evening meeting of the delegates to the Republican National convention in 1888. Before the convention met there had been much favorable mention of the name of Walter Q. Gresham as a candidate. Indiana had, however, instructed for Harrison. Ingersoll favored Gresham and he took the first opportunity to make a speech in his favor. The delegates who sat and listened to the famous orator had no idea what his object was. They heard him describe in eloquent terms the qualities to be desired in a candidate. They were spellbound as he glorified the history of the party. Finally, he came to the climax. As he named Walter Q. Gresham a chill seemed to fall on the audience. Ingersoll stood with a smile on his face to watch the effect of his words. Gradually it faded away. The entire Indiana delegation got up and left the house in a body. There was no applause. In some way the great orator had entirely spoiled the chances of his favorite. Finally he put on his hat and went out, a thoroughly disappointed man.

It seems a little strange that yellow fever should make its appearance at Hampton, Vt., while no cases are reported from the Gulf States. Once during the '50s Norfolk and Portsmouth were visited severely by yellow fever, both places being then in filthy condition. Since then Virginia has been free from the disease. It is not agreeable to learn that in spite of all the precautions which have been taken yellow fever has found its way into this country. But it is much better the disease should break out at a place like Hampton, off the highways of trade, than in New Orleans or Charleston.

In the great amount of matter which has been printed in regard to the trans-Siberian railroad which Russia is building, the fact has been almost overlooked that she is also constructing one of the greatest ship canals in the world. It will reach from the Baltic to the Black Sea, a distance of 1,080 miles, or more than a hundred miles further than from Chicago to New York. It will be 217 feet wide and 29 feet deep, so that the largest war vessels may steam through without danger of stranding. Its estimated cost is $125,000,000.

The letters addressed to the President average 1,200 a day. Eighty per cent of them never reach the eye of either the chief executive or his private secretary. They are sorted by the clerks under the direction of Private Secretary Porter and sent to the proper departments for attention. The largest proportion of the letters ask for financial assistance. The next largest number pray for the President's assistance in purely personal matters. A large per cent are from people who imagine that vast fortunes are in the vaults of the treasury, to obtain which it will be only necessary for the President to make the proper order.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Double Tragedy at Clarksburg—Fatal Row at the Breakfast Table—Convicts Escape from Reformatory—Crushed Between Cars.

The village of Clarksburg was the scene of a double tragedy the other day. During a family quarrel Wesley Bockover was fatally shot by his stepson, William Frondolph, aged 18 years, who afterward committed suicide by shooting himself. Bockover was shot below the left shoulder and died two hours later, bleeding internally. Frondolph shot himself in the right temple, the ball passing entirely through his head. Death came almost instantly. Frequent family quarrels have existed.

Looks Like a Murder.

The coroner's inquest held at Brazil developed facts which lead to the belief that Robert Currie, who was found on the Vandalia road, had been murdered and robbed and his body placed on the track to hide the crime. No blood was found on the track or on the ground where the remains lay, indicating that circulation had ceased some time before the body was run over.

Quarrel Ends Fatally.

Joseph Bagwell fatally shot Joseph Robinson at Point township. They became involved in an altercation at the breakfast table. Angry words were exchanged, until Robinson drew his revolver and fired at Bagwell, the bullet missing its mark. Bagwell returned the fire twice, one bullet striking Robinson in the breast and causing his death soon after.

Convicts Make Their Escape.

William Otterbach and Albert Spall, convicts confined in the Jeffersonville reformatory, escaped recently. The prisoners were employed on the prison farm and took advantage of Keeper Kinkel's absence during dinner hour. Otterbach and Spall were sent from Jackson County for burglary and had but a few days to serve.

Railroad Clerk Crushed by Cars.

Charles Jossick, assistant in the clerical department of the Lake Shore freight offices at Mishawaka, was instantly killed. Jossick was passing between two freight cars while switching was in progress. The bumpers caught him, crushing his body above the hips.

Within Our Borders.

Howard County has a big apple crop

Kokomo automobile works will be enlarged.

Shelby County will have rural mail delivery within two months.

The gypsy pest has again broken out in the vicinity of Terre Haute.

Lightning badly damaged a barn and killed three horses for John Miller, near Scottsburg.

Chesterton Council has passed a bicycle ordinance, with a 50-cents-a-year and lamp-bell attachments.

South Bend labor unions have raised $7,000 for the labor day celebration and are still after more.

High school building, Crothersville, struck by lightning and burned to the ground. Loss $13,000.

At Bicknell, William Pinkstaff's livery stable was destroyed by fire and horses cremated. No insurance.

James Fisher's threshing machine Richland, was destroyed by a stick of dynamite hid in a sheaf of wheat.

Rev. Joseph Samuel Coffman, known to Mennonites throughout the United States, is dead at Elkhart, aged 51 years.

James E. M. O'Hair, Greencastle, is dead, aged 95 years. He was the father of twelve children, all of whom are living.

At Logansport, William Stevens and Elmer Garver were struck by lightning and instantly killed. Abraham Downman was fatally shocked.

Business men in the northern part of the State are kicking on some Chicago salesmen who are supplying their customers with clothing and provisions.

Miss Stella Fouts, New Washington, will soon be married to Will Brown, Manson, Iowa, the result of answering an advertisement. Her people are wealthy.

Lightning struck the farm residence of John Martinsen, near Tracy, and destroyed the building, with all its contents. Loss $5,000, insured for $3,600.

John Heaton, Delaware County, had Benjamin Reese arrested for cutting wheat on Sunday. Heaton was acquitted, as the work was regarded as necessary.

Engine I, that runs on the C., I. & E. between Matthews and Swayzee, was buried several months in the sand at the Johnstown flood, and was dug out and refitted.

In bankruptcy proceedings against A. I. Friend, one of the leading clothing merchants of Fort Wayne and Muncie Judge Baker has restrained the Fort Wayne Trust Company, trustee, from disposing of any of the stock until after the hearing.

A wagon loaded with sixty gallons of nitroglycerin was driven into Van Buren The driver dismounted to transact some business. The horses became frightened and ran down the principal street of the town, causing a panic. The horses broke loose from the wagon and left it standing in the street.

John Wools, aged 52 years, was found dead hanging at the end of a halter strap in his barn in Jackson township. He had committed suicide by tieing one end of the rope to a pole running across the barn ten feet from the floor. Mr. Wools was one of the wealthiest farmers in the county. The cause of the act is a mystery.

William Richards while swimming in Robinson Park, Fort Wayne, was seized with cramps and drowned almost within reach of his companions.

Fire destroyed the large farm residence of W. C. Fisher, about four miles north east of Franklin. It is supposed the house was set on fire while the family was attending church.

One hundred and fifty men in the tin plate trust's plant in Anderson and seventy-five at Middletown went out on a strike. The trust refused to change from two twelve-hour to three eight-hour shifts.

A riot occurred at a dance given at the farm residence of John Turner, south of Marion, in which twenty men were injured.

Will McCarty, who was in the county jail at Shoals on a charge of larceny, was allowed to remain in the corridor one night and made his escape by opening the doors with a key made from a jewsharp

A fierce windstorm struck the town of Somerset, doing considerable damage The west end of the old brick woolen mill was blown down. The building was unroofed and the east end of the structure was knocked down, demolishing the residence of Miss Sarah Zook. Hundreds of shade and fruit trees were uprooted.

JENNIE'S DOOR.

My pathway through the meadow ran,
Where divers tones sweet chorus made;
The meadowlark his plaint re-told,
The bumblebee his trombone played,
But not on bird or bee my thoughts,
My heart with joy was running o'er,
For well I knew that well-worn path
Would bring me soon to Jennie's door.

I hastened down the woodland path,
Unheeding every devious turn,
Beneath the mighty maple trees,
Among the nodding, feathery fern,
Unseeing, I the way pursued,
Nor paused its beauties to explore,
For well I knew this winding course
Would bring me soon to Jennie's door.

* * * * * * * * *

Long years have come and gone since then,
And time my feet hath widely led
Through many strange and wind ways
Where weeds and thorns were thickly spread.

Yet, now, when lower dips the sun,
I hasten as I did of yore
To tread with lightened steps the path
That leads to mine and Jennie's door!

Mrs. Polk's New Bonnet.

"IT does seem like some folks has everything in this world and other folks has nothin'," Mrs. Tom Polk shaded her eyes with her hand as she watched a carriage and pair of horses climb the hill on which her home stood. The sole occupant of the vehicle gave her a pleasant bow in passing.

"See them plumes on her hat? They're real ostridge, I know, an' here I've got to wear that ol' sailor every time I set foot off the place."

"She looks so sad," spoke up Mrs. Polk's mother from the doorway. "She must 'a been through a heap of trouble."

"I'd like to know what call she's got to look sad," tartly rejoined Mrs. Polk, still gazing after the carriage as it rolled on down the road, "livin' in that great house, 'n not a chick nor child to bother her. If she was like us, struggling' along to keep our heads above water, an' more mouths to fill than vittles to put in 'em, she might have reason for lookin' sad."

"Marthy Polk! What has come across you? I do b'lieve it's because Ann Enos had on a new bunnet in meetin' Sunday that you've been so snappish all the week."

"Well, 't does go agin me," reluctantly confessed her daughter. "If I hadn't wore my ol' hat three years already, I wouldn't say a word. Ann is sech a hand to brag an' put on airs anyhow, an' when she tol' me Sunday, after preachin', that she knowed me a mile off by my hat, it was the straw too much fer me."

At that moment the youngest Polk bumped its head against the table leg, filling the air with a succession of shrieks which the grandmother tried to hush on her capacious bosom, while Mrs. Polk picked up her neglected iron and went to the stove for a hot one.

"I s'pose 'taint no use frettin'," she said, "but there's Sam needs a coat, an' Sarah Jane's got no shoes, an' the twins is nigh naked, an'—Oh! Lord, but the por have troubles enuff," and Mrs. Polk groaned and banged the iron down on the coarse shirt she was ironing.

Outside, the twins made mud pies, blissfully unconscious of their parent's woes, and Bobby lay flat on his back in the doorway, blinking up at the sky, but watchful lest his mother step over him and thereby check his growth. It was Bobby's ambition to be tall, like Lemuel Fink, who ran the scow up at the Ferry, and every week he measured himself against the end of the house, where a number of lines scratched with a mussel shell showed how much he gained.

"She might've let Tom built that new-fangled hen house fer her, 'stead o' havin' carpenters out from town," Mrs. Polk went on, in an injured tone.

"Sakes alive! Mis' Thornton ain't been moved out here two months yet, what'd she know about Tom?"

"She knew enuff," snapped Mrs. Polk. "Tom heard she was goin' to build it, an' he went to see her, an' she told him she'd partly engaged a fellow from town. He had done promised me the money to buy the children some things an' me a new bunnet, but that's the way it always is."

Bobby rolled over on his stomach and eyed his mother inquiringly. She was crying, and he didn't remember ever seeing her cry but once before in his life—that was when the twins caught fire at butchering time, she cried that day when all was over and she found they weren't much hurt.

"I jes' had my heart set on that bunnet; I had planned it all out, red roses an' ribbon streamers an' all, then Tom didn't get the job." She wiped her eyes on her apron, and Bobby swung himself out the door and went around to the wood-pile, where he sat down. He poked his bare toes in the loose chip dirt and grew thoughtful.

He was very fond of his mother; indeed, people sometimes taxed her with showing partiality to Bobby. He was a round-faced little chap, with rosy cheeks and eyes blue as the skies, and a mop of curly brown hair that was the bane of his own life and his mother's pride. A tuft of it protruded now through the torn crown of his hat.

Perhaps if he went up to the big house Mrs. Thornton would give his mother a bonnet; she seemed such a kind lady. He had seen her one day at the Ferry, and she smiled and patted his head as she asked: "Whose little man are you?"

His twinkling eyes fastened on a white Bantam hen scratching away in the dirt not far from him. A bright idea dawned on him; he would take Mrs. Thornton his bantams, then the bonnet would be a certainty. All the afternoon he hugged the delightful thought to his bosom; at night he captured his chickens and stowed them under a coop out of sight, and the first thing in the morning he was up and away over the fields by the short cut, his pets under his arm.

"There's the raggedest little boy here to see you, ma'am," said the maid, when Mrs. Thornton came into the breakfast room. "He's got two chickens."

"Let him come in here," Mrs. Thornton said. Her heart was tender toward all children.

A sudden terror seized Bobby when he was ushered into the beautiful room. The lovely lady held out her hand to him and he moved cautiously over the floor, his bare feet sinking into the carpet at every step. It seemed dreadful to him to walk on such pretty flowers.

"Do you want to sell your chickens, or did you just bring them to show me?" Mrs. Thornton asked.

"Yessum," answered Bobby, "For a bunnet."

Mrs. Thornton looked puzzled. "I don't believe I know what you mean."

"With red roses on it," she said. Bobby waxed bolder at her pleasant smile. "It's fer mother, so's she kin go to meetin'."

A light dawned on his hearer. "You want to sell me your chickens to buy your mother a bonnet, is that it?"

Bobby nodded. "An' she wants red roses on it."

"Does your mother know about it?"

"No'm. It's to s'prise her."

Bobby had a surprise himself, then. The lovely lady caught him in her arms, rags, chickens and all, and kissed his rosy cheeks. "You blessed child," she cried. "Sit down and tell me all about it." So Bobby, nothing loth, went over, as well as he could, the talk of the day before. Mrs. Thornton smiled and sighed, and then kissed him again.

"Now," she said, when the story was ended, "you must eat breakfast with me."

When the meal was over she ordered the carriage, and she and Bobby drove to the little red house on the hill, where consternation reigned because no one knew what had become of him.

Mrs. Thornton went into the kitchen and up to Mrs. Polk, holding tight to Bobby.

"I've brought your boy back to you," she said. "Were you frightened? Did you think he was lost?" and then she stretched out her hands. "How I do envy you." The piteous look that came into her face went straight to Marthy Polk's heart.

They cried for a few minutes in each other's arms, while the seven Polk children looked on in amazement. The baby, not being accustomed to such procedings, began to whimper, and as the mother picked it up she drove the rest of them out the door and closed it on them.

"Land above knows what I'm crying fer," she said, dusting a chair for her visitor, "when I'm that thankful no harm had come to the child, but children have strayed off in the swamps before now, an' I s'pose I was wrought up some on that account."

"He's a boy to be proud of," said Mrs. Thornton, when she had related the history of Bobby's visit to her, although some of his revelations she wisely kept to herself. "I wish you could have seen him standing there with his chickens in his arms, so anxious to part with them to buy his mother a bonnet."

"He's got the tenderest heart, Bobby has," said Bobby's mother, "an' I guess he's heard me complainin' about the hard times we have to get along. 'Pears like a body oughtn't to worry over not gettin' any new clo'es when they're blessed with the good children we are; every one says they are the best set along the river road. But I used to be powerful dressy before I was married; since then the young 'uns have taken the money so——" apologetically.

"I don't believe you know how greatly you are blessed." Mrs. Thornton's face wore that piteous expression again. "I would change places with you this minute, if I could. Oh! Mrs. Polk—we had but the one—and he was taken—then my husband—and now I am all alone." She closed her eyes and drew a sobbing breath, while Marthy Polk clasped her babe to her breast and suddenly felt how rich she was, compared to this other woman.

"I was never so beat out in my life," she declared to her mother as they turned away from the gate, where the entire Polk family had escorted the visitor. "She give that boy a five-dollar gold piece for them bantams; an' she says she's likely to need Tom off an' on all summer at carpenterin' jobs."

"Ain't she a nice lady?" chimed in Bobby, as he balanced himself on the topmost fence-rail.

"She is so," answered his mother, surveying him fondly. "What a boy!" she whispered to the old lady. "Who'd a thought o' him doin' sech a thing! Mis' Thornton said if I'd no objection she was goin' to send him a settin' of some choice eggs she's got, but she vows all her fine poultry ain't so precious to her as them bits o' things Bobby sold her."

And Mrs. Polk wore her new bonnet with more pride than she ever had done any head adornment in her life.—Ohio Farmer.

TO DISPLACE PNEUMATIC TIRE.

Spring Contrivance that Takes Up the Jar in Bicycle Riding.

A style of bicycle intended to displace the pneumatic tire is the subject of a patent granted to David R. C. Devine, of Philadelphia. The wheel has two rims. The inner one is connected to the hub by the ordinary means of spokes, but between the inner and outer rims is an arrangement of flat springs having one end fastened firmly to the outer rim, while the other end is fastened by a yielding slot connection to the inner one. This combination is said to be more comfortable to ride than the pneumatic tire, as there is a wider range of movement.

SPRINGS IN THE WHEEL FRAME.

Even a woman will give money the right of way when it wants to talk.

LET US ALL LAUGH.

JOKES FROM THE PENS OF VARIOUS HUMORISTS.

Pleasant Incidents Occurring the World Over—Sayings that Are Cheerful to Old or Young—Funny Selections that You Will Enjoy.

"You had better not go boating with Ada," said Tommy to his sister's fiance.

"Why not?"

"'Cause I heard her say she intended to throw you overboard soon."—Boston Traveler.

Very Necessary.

Employer—Why do you ask four weeks' vacation this year?

Flippe—Two for the vacation and two to rest up afterward.—Philadelphia North American.

Test of Beauty.

Gladys—I am afraid you aren't as pretty as nurse.

Mamma—What makes you think so?

Gladys—We've been walking in the park a whole hour, and not a single policeman has kissed you.—Boston Traveler.

Took His Advice.

Edna—Why do you wear gloves while learning to play poker?

Edith—Because Jack told me never to show my hand.—Chicago News.

Mean.

Young Wife—I have been cooking all morning; the cook helped me a little when I was nearly done.

Husband—Did she begin in time to save it?—Meggendorfer's Humoristische Blaetter.

No Disturbance.

Mrs. Gofrequent—Your husband goes out a great deal, doesn't he?

Mrs. Selldom-Home—Yes, but we always have seats next to the central aisle, and it never disturbs anybody.—Chicago Tribune.

Art for the Jury.

"I have a lovely idea to use in connection with my divorce proceedings," said the society woman to her sympathizing friend.

"And what is it, dear?"

"I mean to illustrate the principal phases of my petition with moving pictures!"

"How perfectly charming!"—Cleveland Plaindealer.

Same Eggs.

Customer—Are these eggs strictly fresh?

Shopman—Yes, sir. You haven't found anything wrong with the eggs you've been getting here for the last month, have you?

Customer—No.

Shopman—Well, there are a part of the same lot.—Boston Traveler.

Perhaps.

"What kind of monkey talk is that they use in golf, anyway?"

"Oh, I don't know. It has something to do with the missing link, I suppose."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Perfectly Killing.

"Of course, the play of 'Hamlet' with Hamlet left out would be entirely lifeless."

"Yes, as dead as if they gave up the ghost."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Heart Breaking.

Stern Parent (anxious to impress the lesson)—Now, my son, tell me why I have caned you?

Tommy (bitterly)—Boo—oo—; there, you've give me a good hidin'—boo—oo!—an' you don't even know what you've done it for!—Fun.

A Unanimous Demand.

"We had a row out in our suburb about naming five new streets."

"How did you settle it?"

"Why, we had to name them all Dewey."—Detroit Free Press.

Uncle Was Fond of Him.

Miss Frank—George seems awfully fond of his uncle.

Miss Sharpe—Why?

Miss Frank—He's let him have his watch, chain, stud and ring since I have known him, and that's only a month.—Boston Traveler.

Serious Mistake.

"The worst enemy I ever made," said the statesman, "was the man I got a government job for a few years ago."

"What ingratitude!"

"No, it was downright anger. There was a good salary attached, but he had to work."—Indianapolis Journal.

Willing to Be Impressed.

He—Your heart must be made of stone. I don't believe anything could make an impression on it.

She—You never tried diamonds.—Boston Traveler.

His Meaning.

A poet sings of the "unseen spirit in the trees."

Evidently they were apple trees, and he was thinking of the cider that was latent in them.—Boston Transcript.

Turning in a Tip.

"Mamma, what would you do if that big vase in the parlor should get broken?" said Tommy.

"I should spank whoever did it," said Mrs. Banks, gazing severely at her little son.

"Well, then, you'd better begin to get up your muscle," said Tommy, gleefully, "'cos papa's broken it."—Harper's Bazar.

Makes That a Business.

Pilson—Are you going to take part in that guessing contest?

Dilson—Oh, no; they'd rule me out as a professional.

Pilson—Professional?

Dilson—Yes; you know I am connected with the Weather Bureau.—Ohio State Journal.

Conceit.

Pat—Ah, now, Tim, sure it's time dat boy's hair was cut!

Tim—Ah, then, ye don't know the consait of the young divil! Shure, he'd be axin' fur a hat next!—Fun.

Feminine Kindness.

Miss Antique—No, I am not going to Mrs. Whitehair's reception.

Miss Budd—Why not?

"Oh, she always talks about old times, and that makes me tired. I don't see how you can stand her."

"But, my dear, her subject is new to most of us, you know."—New York Weekly.

Saved in the End.

"Doesn't it cost you a good deal to run this yacht, old man?"

"Yes; but my wife can't spend a cent when she's here."—Life.

Unconscious Irony.

"I have always been very much pained," said the man who always has a regretful look in his eye, "to observe the American eagerness to make money."

"I understand you have written a book on the subject."

"Yes. But I am not going to publish it—not until I see some method of making it pay."—Washington Star.

A Regular Boarder.

Guest—You've met that lady before?

Landlord—O yes! She's an old customer. Every time she's on a wedding journey she puts up at my house!—Jugend.

A Good Boy.

Uncle George—No; Tommy isn't so bad. He's what I call a good boy. When he asks liberty to go out to play and it is refused him he never makes any fuss.

Aunt Hannah—And sits right down in the house?

Uncle George—Oh, no; he goes right out and has his fun, just the same as if he had been given permission.—Boston Transcript.

Worried by Trifles.

"She's one of those girls who worry over trifles."

"What's the trifle that's worrying her now?"

"Her bathing suit."—Chicago Post.

Matter of Identification.

Coroner—Were there any marks about the deceased by which you would be able to identify him?

Witness—Yis, sor. He stuttered.—Chicago Tribune.

Now She Is Mrs.

Mr. Singleton—Miss Willing—er—Nellie—you don't care if I drop the "Miss" and call you Nellie, do you?

Miss Willing—No, indeed! Why, only yesterday I remarked to mamma that I was getting awfully tired of being called "Miss."—Chicago News.

Hearing Is Knowing.

"I hear Miss Squallini has a very fine voice."

"I guess you didn't hear it, or you would know better."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Latest.

"Do you think it is quite the thing to go on the stage?"

"Yes, if it is an automobile."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Department Store.

A Punjab journal some years ago recorded the story of the way in which an English shopkeeper supplied all the wants of a customer, an Anglo-Indian, at home on a brief furlough.

The gentleman had completed the purchase of an outfit in a well-known establishment in Westburnia, when he was asked by the grateful proprietor, "Can we do anything more for you today?"

"Thank you, nothing," was the reply. "I have all I want—except a wife."

"Will you be pleased to step this way?" said this prince of shopkeepers. He led his customer up to one of the apprentices, a lady-like girl, whom he introduced as the daughter of a deceased officer.

The journal goes on to say that the introduction led to a courtship, which in turn led to a happy marriage. In a few weeks the shopkeeper lost his sweet-faced clerk, and one of the Punjab stations gladly welcomed her as the wife of the returned traveler.

Fortunately the shopkeeper knew much to the credit of his customer, or this hurried but satisfactory little romance would never have occurred.

A CURIOUS COUNTRY.

In the Landais Everybody Goes Mounted on Stilts.

Probably the most curious community in Europe at the present time is that of the Landais, the famous stilt-walkers, who make their home in a little corner of Gascony, bordering on the Bay of Biscay. From time immemorial stilts have been used by the inhabitants of that region, both men and women, but especially by the former, since the women of the Landes are mostly stay-at-home bodies.

Dressed in sheepskin coats, with rough, baggy trousers, footless knee-stockings of heavy wool, and their heads surmounted by the dark-blue head-dress of the Gascons, these men present a picturesque sight. The stilts they use reach only to the knee, and are strapped there, the stilt-walker being about four feet from the ground.

The peasant also carries a staff, by means of which he can either raise himself on to his stilts or descend from them with utmost ease. Among the shepherds the chief occupation throughout the day is the knitting of stockings, and while at work on this usually feminine industry, the peasant steadies himself by sticking one end of his balancing-pole into the sand, the other forming a support, as shown in the illustration.

The occupations of the Landais have changed little during the last century, comprising chiefly the tending of sheep, resin gathering, and charcoal burning. But the sheep are generally poor, and their wool does not bring a particularly good price in the French market. The resin-gathering industry is a more profitable one, and the skilled resineur is a person of some importance.

Naturally enough, among the chief amusements at the annual fetes of the various towns are the stilt races, which are of great interest on account of the expertness of the competitors. It is a practically unheard-of thing for a Landais to fall when once correctly mounted. His speed over the plains of the Grandes Landes is almost beyond belief, his pace being as fast as a good horse can trot.

THE NEW GIBSON GIRL.

Miss Maxwell of Kentucky Is the Only Model for Miss Pipp.

People often wonder from where Chas. Dana Gibson gets his models for what has come to be generally called the Gibson girl, in contra distinction to the girls of any other artist. His first is said to have been Jobyna Howland, who afterward became J. K. Hackett's leading woman. His new model, and for whom all others have been deposed, is Teresa Ryan Maxwell, a statuesque, but willowy, haughty, but winsome, Kentuckienne. He has made hers the figure and features of Miss Pipp in his "Mr. Pipp" series.

AUTOMOBILE IN WAR.

Adapted as a Gun Carriage, It Forms a New Instrument of Destruction.

Among the recent applications of the automobile is its adaptation as a gun carriage. One form, invented by Mr. Frederick Simms, shows a light carriage fitted with a motor of one and a half horse-power. On the carriage is carried a small Maxim gun and 1,000 rounds of ammunition. The motor is capable of propelling the carriage at the rate of eighteen miles an hour, and the gun is so arranged that it can be fired while the vehicle is going at any rate of speed. In practical tests it worked well on all sorts of ground. Its adoption is now being considered by the English government. Another motor, designed by the same inventor, has two Maxim guns arranged inside a movable turret and surmounted by an electric searchlight.

NEW INSTRUMENT OF DESTRUCTION.

The Cyclienne's Skirt.

According to the Wheel (London) the police of St. Petersburg affect to regard the skirt of the cyclienne as a menace both to the safety of the wearer and the public in general, and have laid down a law that no lady cyclist shall ride through the streets of the Russian capital unless clad in the bifurcated garment.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK.

Opposition.—Opposition tests religion, so that we may see of what sort our religion is.—Rev. Geo. Hughes, Episcopalian, Cambridge, Mass.

The Church.—The church needs a special blessing and is urged to consecrated giving, then the windows of heaven will be opened and abundant showers descend.—Rev. Dr. Adams, Methodist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Rich Men.—Rich men will have to prove that they are of real social use, or else they will be destroyed. Appalling as is the wealth of this country, it is not greater than the tremendous needs.—Rev. Dr. Peters, New York City.

A World About Us.—Empirically, we find a world about us, and we conclude that there must have been a cause. Metaphysically we conclude that if there was such a cause he must be infinite, all-wise and all-powerful.—Rev. Dr. Patton, Presbyterian, Princeton, N. J.

Modern Revivalism.—Modern revivalism is almost inseparably associated with and based upon religious conceptions and doctrines that have become discredited and outgrown among the ablest and most scholarly and most devoted men.—Rev. W. H. Ramsey, Farmington, Me.

Bible Seers.—The Bible seers reveal a spiritual world seen with spiritual senses, touched and opened for the purpose; a world peopled with men and women who have passed from earth and live in the enjoyment of every faculty and sense and power, though in spiritual and not in natural bodies.—Rev. L. P. Mercer, Swedenborgian, Chicago, Ill.

The Prayer Book.—In the Protestant Episcopal Church it is claimed by many that the prayer book offers a standard for the limit of thought in the individual members of the church. Our prayer book is a composite work, the product of different ages and nationalities and schools. It is a growth of centuries.—Rev. Heber Newton, Episcopalian, New York City.

Christian Character.—There is only one thing under the sun for this day and all coming days, and that is Christian character. That is the only thing that will endure out of the wrecks of time, and that we can carry with us on the morning of eternity. We may sell and get gain; if we have nothing more to live for, life is a failure.—Rev. S. A. Northrop, Baptist, Kansas City, Mo.

Socialism.—Henry George was one of the most able exponents of socialism. There is scarcely a novelist who does not fill his works with this false philosophy. Some men get hold of the theory and model it to suit their own purposes. It serves as a political balm for the wounds. It brings us all to the cradle of happiness, and we swing each other in the sunshine of equality.—Rev. S. J. Burke, R. C., Holyoke, Mass.

The New Theology.—The new theology means to get back of all theories and traditions, creeds and dogmas to the divine revelation in the Scriptures and in Christ. It seems to the popular mind a shockingly revolutionary measure to advocate a new theology, inasmuch as theology and religion are generally confounded with each other. But they are no more the measure of each other than a man's clothes are the measure of the man. A new suit of clothes is a good think at least once a year. So a new theology at least shows a man to be interested in his intellectual and religious clothes.—Rev. Robt. McDonald, Baptist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Labor and the Church.—I believe that the church must help solve the great problems that now confront the American people. A spiritual life consists not only in mediation and prayer, but in bringing spiritual principles to bear upon the community and state. We can not ignore the fact that under present social conditions it is becoming more and more difficult for the masses to earn a livelihood. The large corporations in this country have been enabled to add greatly to their wealth during the past year. By shrewd business methods they have succeeded in strangling competition and thereby decreasing the number of wageworkers.—Rev. F. W. Millar, Universalist, Chicago, Ill.

Sarasate and His Imitator.

Of Sarasate, the famous violinist, a pleasant story was told recently at a reception in Washington. The great master enjoys nothing better than giving or receiving a joke. Sometimes his bon mots are a trifle savage. One evening at a social function a young violinist, who had a much higher opinion of his own musical ability than any one else, had the bad taste to play one of Sarasate's compositons with variations of his own creation. The latter were inappropriate and inartistic, and jarred upon the ears of all.

The performer ended his work and made his way to Sarasate, doubtless expecting a few words of recognition or praise. Sarasate said nothing, and the player finally asked, "I hope you recognized that piece?"

Sarasate promptly replied: "Certainly. It was a piece of impertinence."

An Old Long Island Tree.

The "eagle tree" of East Moriches, L. I., an oak centuries old, is said to be dying. It had been occupied by a pair of bald-headed eagles since the end of the last century, whether the same pair all this time is not sure, but such is the belief. The building of a railroad 100 yards from the tree drove them away awhile, but in 1887 they returned and the household was maintained until a hunter wounded the male eagle so badly that he died at the foot of the tree which was his home. They say the hunter would have been lynched if he had been caught. Ospreys are said to have afterward occupied the nest which the eagles abandoned, but this does not seem likely. The owner of the land where the tree grows says he does not own the tree, which had rights there before he came, and it shall never be cut down.—New York Sun.

FARM BUILDINGS.

Here's a Neat House for Six Hundred Dollars.

The plan and elevation here given are of a cottage suitable for a young couple beginning life as housekeepers. It is neat and convenient, has three room in the rear of the kitchen may be under the whole house, part of which reached by a stairway from the dairy room in the rear of the kitchen may be used for a dairy and store room, for use in the winter. The cellar is seven feet in the clear, the lower story is eight feet six inches, and if desired to enlarge the house by finishing the upper floor by and by, when the little family needs to be provided for, that part of the house may be finished and three rooms and some closets added to the available space at very little cost. If this house is thus built, about five hundred dollars will finish it sufficiently for the occupation of the lower floor and the cellar. To complete it as shown with plain trimmings, and a brick foundation and cellar wall will add a hundred dollars to this estimate. The whole building finished with the upper floor divided off will add two hundred and fifty dollars more, thus making the entire completed house cost under nine hundred dollars. If the owner excavates the cellar and hauls the materials, and grades around the house, helps with the painting and such ordinary carpenter's and painter's work as any smart man may do, so much more may be saved.

FRONT VIEW.

The ground plan is twenty-four by thirty feet. The materials may be dressed boards set on end, and battened, or dressed siding. The parlor has a pretty bay window, with a large double window in the front. The kitchen has a door under the stairway, and a closet is under the stairs opening into both the kitchen and dining-room. A closet is made under the stairs in the parlor. The stairs are made so that there will be a bedroom over the parlor and over the kitchen; the third is over the dining-room. A large closet may be made on the second floor over the vestibule in the front part of the hall. A porch is made at the rear of the kitchen with a door opening from the hall on to it. There is a roomy closet in the front of the hall, with a window in it, a glazed door in the hall admits light from this closet, which may be used as a coat and cloak room.

FLOOR PLAN.

HONORS FOR A COLORED GIRL.

Graduated at the Head of Her Class in a Vermont College.

Miss Annette Anderson has recently graduated from Middlebury College, Vermont, with the highest honors. Though a colored girl she was made valedictorian of her class and so interested were the people in her that they came from miles away to hear her speak. She lives at Shoreham, Vt.

MISS ANNETTE ANDERSON.

Ever since entering college she has been regarded as the brightest scholar.

Bench and Bar.

A Georgia justice of the peace once took it upon himself to charge a jury as follows: "Gentlemen, this is a case which has been tried by me before, and I decided in favor of the defendant." As the jury took the hint and found for the defendant just as the justice had done before, although the evidence was overwhelmingly in favor of the plaintiff, the higher court refused to let the verdict stand. It also commented as follows: "A justice of the peace is generally a man of consequence in his neighborhood. He writes the wills, draws the deeds, and pulls the teeth of the people; also he performs divers surgical operations on the animals of his neighbors. The justice has played his part on the busy stage of life from the time of Mr. Justice Shallow down to the time of Mr. Justice Biggins. Who has not seen the gaping, listening crowd assembled around his honor, the justice, on tiptoe—to catch the words of wisdom as they fell from his venerated lips?

"And still they gazed,
And still the wonder grew,
That one small head
Could carry all he knew."

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....AUGUST 10, 1899.

OBITUARY.

Edmund Freeman was born October 22, 1813; died August 1, 1899, aged 85 years, 9 months and 9 days. He was born near Clarksburg, West Virginia, and with his parents moved to Richland county, Ohio, in 1820. He was married to Martha Dancer September 14, 1832, and to them were born thirteen children, eleven living till maturity. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman moved to DeKalb county in 1854, to the farm on which they both died. Mr. Freeman was reared in the M. E. church and has been a member since 1830. For the last dozen or more years of his life he has been blind to this world's sights, but a more patient sufferer could not be found. As far as known he leaves a brother, sister, two sons, four daughters, grandchildren, great grandchildren and many friends. The funeral was at the home, August 4, and interment in Woodlawn.

Another pioneer has gone
Who in life's early bloom,
With parents long since passed away
Sought here a forest home.

He lived to see great changes made
In this wilderness land;
He saw the forest disappear,
All by man's magic hand.

He saw the stately mansions rise
Where in his youthful day
Nought but the Indian wigwam stood
Which long since passed away.

He lived not only to behold
The forest disappear,
But one by one he saw called home
His wife and children dear.

So now grown old and full of years,
Grandma and children gone,
He, too, is gently called away
To his eternal home.

But years are moving swiftly by,
And time will soon be o'er;
Then we shall meet dear grandparents,
Where partings are no more. ***

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR 1900.

The Trustee of Richland township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board, at its annual meeting, to be held at the office of the Trustee in the Exchange bank building at Corunna September 5 at 9 o'clock a. m., the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures $641.43, and township tax 8 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures $1427.55, and tax 15 cents on the hundred dollars.

3. Special school tax expenditures, $852.20, and tax 8 cents on the hundred dollars.

4. Road tax expenditures, $1445.94, and tax 20 cents on the hundred dollars.

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $839.68, and tax 8 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $664.68, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

7. Library expenditures, . . , and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

8. Other items, if any, expenditures, ..., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $6334.89, and total tax 64 cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed, J. M. FINCH, Trustee.
Dated August 1, 1899.

NOTICE.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on two 25 cent bottles or boxes of Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, if it fails to cure constipation, billiousness, sick-headache, jaundice, loss of appetite, sour stomach, dyspepsia, liver complaint, or any of the diseases for which it is recommended. It is highly recommended as a spring tonic and blood purifier. Sold liquid in bottles, and tablets in boxes. Price 25 cents for either. One package of either guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. E. M. FISCHLER, F. E. DAVENPORT, HOWARD MCCORD.

The Match Factory.

The following marriage licences have been issued since July 22, as shown by the records in the office of County Clerk Long:

John E. Miller and Rachel Porter; Robert E. Sheidler and Mary M. Stansbury; John Baker and Arvilla Draggoo; William Robert Lee and Clara Shaffer; Adam D. Yingling and Lillian M. Beree; George H. Gordon and Myrtle Olive Elson, and Otis E. Hamilton and May Hamilton.

Attention, Farmers.

The Auburn Handle Factory will pay the highest cash prices for ash handle block delivered at their factory on the Lake Shore tracks, cut 58 inches long. Also want ash logs cut 9½, 14½ and 19½ feet long. All timber to be smooth and sound.—J. M. CHERRY & CO. 32tf

LIVERITA
THE UP-TO-DATE
LITTLE LIVER PILL
CURES
Biliousness, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Sick-Headache and Liver Complaint.
SUGAR COATED.
40 PILLS LIVERITA 10 CENTS
100 PILLS 25 CTS.
Sold by all druggists or sent by mail.
Kervita Medical Co., Chicago
Davenport, The Druggist.

In the Rocky Mountains.

Sight seeing among the Rockies cannot be completed in a day or two and see the whole of the sights even in one county. We were so informed by our guide, and so on another day arrangements were made for our party to take a drive up one of the canyons to the south farther than the one we heretofore described. The party being one of ten persons we procured a good substantial wagon and pair of horses and started early in the morning. We started for the mountain road, and before we had gone very far we learned that the load was as much as the team was able to manage, so one after another climbed out and walked. When we saw the wagon after leaving the trail it was empty except for the driver, but on our striking the trail again we all got on board and wended our way along for a time when we were informed that we were near the place among the mountains where the author, Helen Hunt Jackson, had been buried, and we again left the wagon to try and get to that memorable spot. On our arrival there we found the trees and on the pile of stones there lay the cards of many persons who had visited what was once the grave of one of America's famous authors. Among those we noticed was a party from Angola who had been there on the 30th of June, a Mr. Eugene Carver and others. We then moved on up the trail or road until we passed a place called Wade's ranch, where we rested the team and began examining the mountain stream for trout. We found a few specimens, but were informed that hunting and fishing were not allowed there, so we simply had the pleasure of seeing and not of catching them. We climbed several cliffs and looked at many higher ones, and on our way down I gathered some spruce gum and found a tree which had been rubbed by a deer, leaving many hairs sticking to the bark and gum. During the afternoon we had a fine shower and having waited for the rain to let up we arranged the wagon with a cover and started down the mountain road. When we had gone part way it cleared up and we took off the wagon cover; we looked up the mountains and saw that while we had been in a shower of rain, higher up among the peaks it had been snowing and they were quite white, so that we resolved to go up Pike's Peak the next day.

We managed to get to the cog road in time for the first train and on going up we saw plenty of snow. We had to look fast as the car moved up rapidly, and at some places the grade was reported 23-100 up. While the morning was somewhat cloudy and the car very full we had some very fine scenery. The clouds floated below us and houses looked like small pens. We passed the timber line to find more snow and great piles of rocks and clouds around us. On reaching the summit we looked down and could see nothing but an open abyss as the clouds obstructed the view. On our return to the foot of the mountain I found that I was quite deaf for a time, and was informed that it was owing to the altitude we had been in. We then had the pleasure of drinking from the mineral springs at Manitou and later viewing some of the scenery in that town. The next day our party decided that we would visit the Garden of the Gods among the mountains, and as most of them had not as yet had a burro ride it was resolved that the trip should be by that means of conveyance. We procured a lot of these trusty animals and so proceeded on our way. It may have been as much sport for some of those who saw the party as it was to see the garden, but the ladies got along as well as could be expected under the circumstances and no great injury resulted, notwithstanding one of the burros lay down under its rider. After this trip we were not again asked by the ladies to get burros

We next visited the South Canyon and the Seven Falls and viewed the Eagle's nest. To say these places are grand would be to repeat what we have heard from many who have seen them. Having spent some time among the mountains in the adjoining vicinity of Colorado Springs we concluded that it was quite time to move to another place although many places had not been visited by us. So we went to Denver and spent some time viewing the capitol of the great state. There we took a scenic car, and was shown many places of interest and notoriety among them Long's peak, somewhat higher than Pike's peak. Our party having seen a little of the Rockies then wended our way across the great plains and saw a few of the acres of a sea of corn growing thereon. When we arrived at Omaha, who stopped for a time and visited the exposition, where we saw some of the relics taken from the fleet once the fame of Spain but which was sunk by our navy off Santiago de Cuba. The exposition at Omaha is a good one and when we were there it was but very sparingly attended. The exhibits were good in nearly all of the departments and especially in the government building. The grounds are nicely located, the buildings in good condition and we trust that the enterprise will be more liberally patronized during the time it continues to be open. From Omaha we again boarded the North-Western railroad train and wended our way homeward. Of course we visited Chicago one day and are now at the old post.—W. H. LEAS.

Church Dedication

The church in Jackson township known as the Lockwood church will be dedicated on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 26 and 27, Rev J. J. Fred, well known all over this part of the country is expected to be present. All invited to attend.

THE TWIN CITIES.

A visit to Ashley and Hudson the other day found the twin cities moving on as evenly as usual. They are near enough together to be good neighbors, and yet far enough apart to be distinct towns. There are several unusual conditions there. One town, Hudson, is wholly in Steuben county, while Ashley is half in DeKalb and half in Steuben. The latter when incorporated had to consult the officials of two counties. Its corporation funds come from two counties, as do also its school funds. South of the main street the politicians send to the conventions at Auburn; north of that the delegates are chosen to go to Angola at a different date. And so we might go on indefinitely.

The first familiar name we saw was that of G. H. Yesbera on his Ashley store. If you trade at his store you are in DeKalb county; if you trade across the street you are doing business in Steuben. But all seem to be flourishing and, for a town built up in patches, it looks as well as could be expected. Half-way between the two towns is the passenger station of the Wabash railway. It says "Ashley" on each end. It should read "Ashley" on the east end and "Hudson" on the other, or "Ashley-Hudson" on both ends. This is the way it is given in their time-tables, and the tickets are sold at the same price to either town.

At Hudson we met some old friends, including Mr. Kirkland, and missed seeing others whose familiar names were on signs along the street. Hudson is divided exactly by its business street, into business and residence districts. The business buildings are on the west side and the residences across to the east. Of course there are also residences on all outlying streets. At the west side in a prominent and very pleasant place we found R. H. Weamer and family, that is his wife and daughter Sadie. Here we were welcomed and most hospitably entertained during our stay. They like their new town and its people, and are doing well as printers generally. They say the Banner is prospering and they are satisfied with the outlook They have ample grounds, plenty of fine fruit of all kinds and a splendid garden. In fact we brought home a fine mess of green corn that Farmer Weamer had cultivated on purpose for us, in anticipation, no doubt of this call. They sent best regards to all Auburn friends.

CEDAR

Jacob M. Smith has been walking on three legs most of the time since Sunday last on account of a sprained ankle caused by a little fooling.

The bad wreck at our place on Wednesday evening of last week brought a great number of sight seers to this place for the following three days. It took about four days to get the wreck cleaned up.

Karle Heitz reports a girl at his house who will call him papa later.

O. C. Himes cut his foot badly on Monday of this week, while splitting wood the ax caught in the clothes-line with above result. O. C. says he will take Wm Merica's plan in the future and let his wife split the wood.

Mrs. Ida Stonestreet was called to Grand Junction, Mich. on Friday last on the account of the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. John Merica formerly of this county.

Several who attended the wild west show at Fort Wayne, from here on Saturday last report the show not much good.

Rev. Finney of Fort Wayne occupied the pulpit at the Dunkard church here on Sunday last.

One of our merchants visited friends at Kalamazoo last week.

Miss Della Draime of Lafayette, Ind. is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Haag of this place.

His Life Was Saved.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from a frightful death. In telling of it he says; "I was taken with Typhoid Fever, that ran into Pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of Consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave me great relief. I continued to use it, and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvelous medicine is the surest and quickest cure for all Throat and Lung Trouble. Regular size 50 cents and $1. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

Sunday Accidents.

Near Bar Harbor, Maine, about twenty were drowned Sunday. A big excursion brought people to see the warships at that place. They changed about eight miles away, from cars to a boat, and as they crowded aboard, a large slip attached to the pier, used for people to walk from the pier to the ship's deck, broke and let them into the water. More may be lost when all returns are known.

Another bad accident was on a trolley line, near Bridgeport, Conn. A crowded car jumped off a bridge to the bottom of an old pond fifty feet below. About twenty-eight were killed.

FOR SALE.

For sale at reasonable price one 45 ft. power windmill with new force pump, tank, piping, etc. For information call at Hollister House, Auburn, Ind.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Letter From Manila

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Matt Zirwes from her brother, Will Clark, now with Company D of the Twentieth United States Infantry.

MANILA, P. I., June 15, 1899.

DEAR SISTER:—I received your letter today. I have written two other letters but perhaps you have not received them. I am feeling fine now and more like my old self, in fact my health is excellent. I do not like the city of Manila very much. I am always glad to hear from home, and receive the COURIER every time the mail comes in.

We expect some hard fighting in about four months when the rainy season is over. It rains every day here now. I had a letter from Howard McCord and received the writing paper; it was quite a treat to me, as good paper is scarce here and hard to get. I don't know as yet what I may do when I get out of the army. I may stay in Manila awhile, as there are some good openings here. I have learned a great deal since I came into the army, and don't believe Auburn is the best place in the world to make money. There is but little here that I can write of that would be of interest to you. We now have a good place here and are doing police duty which is not hard work. We expect to go out in the field after the rainy season and will probably then have plenty of hard work and fighting if the natives do not give up their hopeless task.

I can think of nothing further at present, so will close with regards to all.

Your brother,
WILL CLARK.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

County Council.

The new Board met today and organized by electing Albert Robbins president and Oscar Taylor vice-president, or "president pro tem" as the new law calls it. Auditor Seiler is ex-officio, the secretary of the board. Of course there was no work to be done, and they adjourned to meet as provided by law, on the second day of the commissioners' session in September. That is on "the first Tuesday after the first Monday in September." All the members were present; Albert Robbins, G. I. Patterson, Sol. Barney, G. W. Geddes, Oscar Taylor, B. F. Cornelius and John Yarde, Jr.

Farmers' Day.

The Robison Park managers are going to take especial pains to make "Farmer's Day" attractive. There will be a barbecue, balloon ascension, pony races, bicycle races, a good band, the usual good theater, and as sale bills say, "many other things too numerous to mention." Remember the date is August 25, and the place is the famous and beautiful Robison Park.

Seed Wheat

I have a quantity of Winter King seed wheat for sale. It is free from rye or foul seed. Call at my farm 1½ miles north of Newville.—WORTH COATS. 31-39

NOTICE

After August 15, Ruhl & Baker, Auburn, Ind., will run their cider mill every day except Sunday. Bring on your apples. RUHL & BAKER.

Notice to Bidders.

Notice is hereby given that I, Wilson S. Dancer, trustee of Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, will let to the lowest responsible bidder, the contract to construct and erect a new brick school-house in School District No. one (1) of said township, in accordance with the plans and specifications therefor now on file in my office, and which said plans and specifications are open to the inspection of all intending bidders.

Sealed bids for said work will be received at my office until 2 o'clock p. m. of Saturday, the 2d day of September, 1899, when all bids will be opened and publicly read.

I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated this 8th day of August, 1899.

WILSON S. DANCER,
Trustee Jackson Township.

D. A. Hodge,
..The..
Jeweler
Everything in his line and at the lowest, living prices.

Get your watches, clocks and jewelry repaired and regulated by a skilled man.
Hodge,
THE JEWELER

BUTLER.

The large frame barn and contents consisting of hay, grains and farm implements on the James Gaff farm one and one-half miles east of Butler, was destroyed by lightning last Thursday night. The loss will amount to $700 or $800, and is covered by insurance in the Home of New York.

James Decker's dwelling on the old Geo. Ziegler farm two miles northwest of Butler, was struck by lightning on Thursday night and considerable damage done. The inmates were severely shocked, but not seriously hurt. Insured. The two large barns on the James Draggoo farm in Concord township were burned by lightning on the same night. The place was occupied by Henry Hutton, who loses heavily; all the grain, some grain, one horse and two cows were destroyed. Mr. Hutton had a fair amount of insurance in J. A. Campbell's agency, but we believe the buildings were not insured.

—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Knapp, son and daughter Carl and Inez, of Auburn, and Mrs. H. Weaver and son of Elkhart, were the guests of Mrs. Frona Chilcote of the west end last Tuesday.

The writer in his recent trip west was continually surprised at the very small number of people traveling. Very few of the trains had more than two coaches for general purposes, and these were seldom half filled. This seemed to hold good even on through trains on trunk lines. One of the prettiest towns one strikes in a long distance is Cedar Rapids, Iowa. This town seems to have been started with the beautiful in mind, and has kept it up as the town has grown from a village to a small city.

Mr. Irwin, a young man of good address of Detroit, is visiting in the family of W. D. Fretz.

John Wilson and wife have returned from an across the country visit to Van Wert, O. They report a very enjoyable trip.

The National Church Mutual Insurance Company of Lisbon, Iowa, has been securing business from church people and ministers, at rates that were claimed to be very cheap, but in reality were from 60 to 125 per cent above the regular licensed companies authorized to do business in the state, has made an assessment upon its patrons of 40 per cent on the premium notes given by the assured. A case in point was a minister of our place who insured $500 on his household goods for five years, giving a note for $12.50, 50 cents more than twice the cost in any good company and is now called upon to pay $5 as a single assessment. Look out for cheap mutual insurance. If Auditor Hart gets after them, they will wish they had given Indiana a wider berth.

OBITUARY.

Died at his home in Butler, Ind., Aug. 3, 1899, in his fifty-eighth year Samuel W. Otis.

Samuel Wilson Otis was born on Black River, Ohio, July 9, 1842. His parents moved to Indiana in 1844, settling in Steuben county, where he grew to manhood, and received his education In 1865 his father sold his farm, and removed to Mishawaka. On the 10th of May 1867, he was united in marriage to Elizabeth Covert of Scott township, near his former home. In 1865-6 he attended the Eastman Commercial college in Chicago. In 1866 they removed from Mishawaka to Kendallville, where he engaged in grocery trade. In 1867, he with his father's family moved to Butler and engaged in the furniture and undertaking business, in which he continued until his death. He leaves a wife, one sister and three brothers to mourn his death.

Mr. Otis was a good citizen, a nominal believer in spiritualism. He was of late a frequent visitor at the M. E. church and Sunday school, being led there by a sweet little girl of about five years, that they had taken to raise. He was a Mason in high standing and loved and respected by all who knew him.

SEDAN.

Lloyd Treesh and wife of Kendallville visited father and mother, L. W. Treesh over Sunday and also attended Sunday school at this place.

Delbert Sherlock and Miss Effie Dellenbach, of Fairfield called on S. W. Guthrie and wife Sunday. Delbert has a fine new buggy and made to order by the Kiblinger factory, Auburn.

The ladies missionary society of this place will meet with Mrs. Levi Hewett on Thursday.

Adam Morrisson is quite sick at his home in this place. Mr. M. is an old soldier of the rebellion.

T. C. Benson and family spent Sunday at Island Park, Rome City.

Will Casselman has work at Kendallville and will move there in the near future.

Township picnic Aug. 19. A good band will be there, good speaker, good crowd, and good time. Come everybody.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhinesmith, of Ashley, are spending a few weeks with O. L. Wheaton and wife.

—The union communion meeting of the Fairfield pastorate will be held in the Lutheran church at this place next Sunday, Aug. 13. Rev. Rice, of Elkhart, will be present and will talk to the people on Saturday evening. A cordial invitation is extended.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

FARMER'S DAY
....AT....
Robison Park,
FORT WAYNE,
Friday Aug. 25, '99
Barbecue,
BALLOON ASCENSION,
BICYCLE RACES
BRASS BAND MUSIC

Zoo & Pony Track
Theatricals, High-Class Vaudeville.
Meals and Refreshments
Served On the Grounds
The Management have made great preparations to accommodate large crowds. The Greatest Day of the Season
Farmer's Day.

R. R. EXCURSIONS

B & O R.R.

HALF RATES TO COLUMBUS, O., AUGUST 20 TO 25, 1899, VIA B. & O.

On August 18, 19, 20 and 21 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Columbus, Ohio, at one fare for round trip, on account of the national meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Return limit: Leaving Columbus, to and including August 28, 1899 (except as provided in following paragraph).

Extension of return limit. By deposit of ticket with Joint Agent of terminal lines at Columbus on or before August 28 an extension of return limit may be obtained to leave Columbus to and including September 15, 1899.

For further information, call on or address nearest B. & O. Ticket Agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill. 32-33

C & N-W Ry

$31.50 COLORADO AND RETURN.

Chicago & North-Western Railway, September 5, 6 and 7; $31.50 from Chicago to Denver, Pueblo and Colorado Springs and return, good to return until September 30, 1899. The "Colorado Special" leaves Chicago 10:00 a. m. daily, arrives Denver 2:55 next day and Colorado Springs same evening, only one night enroute. All meals in the dining cars. Pacific Express leaves Chicago 10:30 p. m. daily, arrives Denver and Colorado Springs the second morning, no change of cars either train. For particulars apply to agents of connecting lines or

A. H. Waggener, 6 Jackson place, Indianapolis, Ind. 34 35

Plumbing
Having secured the services of a first class plumber I am now prepared to do plumbing in a first-class manner. Also Roofing, Spouting and Galvanized Iron Work..... of all kinds a specially. Large stock of Tanks made of galvanized steel. Prices and work guaranteed.
F. M. RUSH.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents Dandruff and hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

IDEAL MUSIC,
"Sweet as the angel Israfil's,
When every leaf on Eden's tree
Was trembling to his minstrelsy."
can be produced from an EBERSOLE PIANO. The Ebersole possesses a tone that no other maker has been able to imitate—being full and deep, yet with that clear singing quality which stamps it the peer of all upright pianos for homes of culture and refinement.
Frank B. Long,
119 Calhoun-St. cor Washington,
Fort Wayne, Ind.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS
A. A. FEVERS, Long Fever, Milk Fever.
B. B. SPRAINS, Lameness, Rheumatism.
C. C. EPIZOOTIC, Distemper.
D. D. WORMS, Bots, Grubs.
E. E. COUGHS, Colds, Influenza.
F. F. COLIC, Bellyache, Diarrhea.
G. G. Prevents MISCARRIAGE.
H. H. KIDNEY & BLADDER DISORDERS.
I. I. MANGE, Skin Diseases.
J. K. BAD CONDITION, Starting Cond.
50c. each; Stable Case, Ten Specifics, Book, &c., $5. At druggists or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Medicine Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York. VETERINARY MANUAL SENT FREE.

NERVOUS DEBILITY,
VITAL WEAKNESS
and Prostration from Overwork or other causes.
Humphreys' Homeopathic Specific No. 28, in use over 40 years, the only successful remedy.
$1 per vial, or 5 vials and large vial powder, for $5. Sold by Druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price.
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared for Piles and Itching of the private parts. Every box is warranted. By druggists, by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents and $1.00. WILLIAMS MANUFACTURING CO., Props., Cleveland, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

HOW SHE KNEW.

Mrs. Madison—I heard that that Mrs Beacon from Boston is a brilliant conversationalist. Mrs. Upton—Well, she isn't. I met her at a musicale yesterday, and she hardly had a word to say.—Brooklyn Life.

SO SHE THOUGHT.

He—Chappie is in love, but doesn't know it. She—Lucky girl!—Puck.

We ushered out July with - - - - -

An Array Of Bargains

such as is rarely one's privilege to see. Every department is anxious to make as large a showing for each month's selling as possible, and all are accordingly making extraordinary efforts to open this month selling with a record-breaking week. For the rest the prices speak for themselves.

1 Lot	Double thread Turkish bath towels, extra large, heavy and good values, cheap at 15 cts.	This week	10c
1 Lot	Newest Tennis patterns and colors, soft, fleecy and durable; worth 7c	This week	5c
1 Lot	Women's Gloves for bicycle and driving, extry fine, and sold by us every day at 25c.	This wk	19c
1 Lot	Women's Corsets in Summer Madras, good style, lace trimmed; worth 25c	This week	20c
1 Lot	Women's Wrappers in figured light percale, with tight fitting vest, full sweep skirt, finished with deep hem; cheap at $1.25	This week	89c
1 Lot	Women's Wrappers, light percale; worth 75c to $1.00	This week	55c
1 Lot	Women's two piece percale suits—waist and skirt—worth $1.50 to $2 75	This week	$1.25
1 Lot	Men's soft negligee percale shirts, with cuffs and collars; cheap at 50c	This week	39c
1 Lot	Kant-open Hook and Eye; worth 5 cts a card	This week, 2 cards for	5c
1 Lot	Men's summer Suspenders, with drawer supporters; worth 25c	This week	15c
1 Lot	Ladies' and Misses' fancy hose, cheap at 50c	This week	38c
1 Lot	Organdies, Lawns and Dimitys that were cheap at 10c a yard	This week	5c

You Can Depend on Getting the Right Prices at this Store.

G. W. LACKEY,
The Big Store, Auburn, Ind.

Shoes to Fit All Needs

All Tastes All Pocketbooks

Even if your purse is a double "A" we can find good shoes, and good-looking and stylish ones to fit you.

We make a specialty of getting the very best shoes it is possible to get, and then making the price.

Quality always comes first here; but the prices are moderate for all that.

BISHOP & BEIDLER,
YOUR SHOEMAKERS.

Summer Comforts!

There is no time in the year that the COMFORTS of the KITCHEN are more highly appreciated than during the months of July and August. We suggest as one of theses pecial comforts,

GASOLINE STOVES

We have a nice line of them which we are offering at special inducements

We have as good a line of REFRIGERATORS as there is made—some people say they are the best. We recommend them as ice savers, easy to keep clean and pure, as well as ornamental. The....

REFRIGERATOR

is another of our special summer comforts which we place within your reach.

While Gasoline Stoves and refrigerators are important factors in summer comforts, yet

Screen Doors and Windows are as important as the others. Don't think it is too late to buy them. It is just the time you need them most. We have a large line of paints, varnishes and painters supplies.

Headquarters for Plumbing Goods,

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE.

Monday's Daily.

—Mrs. Wm. Walsworth was better yesterday, but is not so well again today.

—Full directions for preserving fruit with Paraffine Wax, free at Davenport's.

—Chapman's Flux Syrup is guaranteed to cure Stomach and Bowel trouble. D5—17—W2t.

Friday, August 25, will be farmers' day at Robinson park, as noted in another column.

—S. Carll, the oldest Odd Fellow in the state, died at his home in Fort Wayne last week.

—Little Gladys, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McDowell, is wrestling with a case of measles.

—Sol. Barney and O. P. Widney were here from St. Joe today. The former called on the COURIER.

—The army mortality from sickness, in the Philippines, has been lower than any other American war.

—John Shugers returned from Coldwater today, where he had been to see his sons Frank and George.

—Miss Bernice Case returned to her home at Fairfield Center today after a pleasant visit with Auburn friends.

—The Church of God congregation have placed a fine new clock in their house of worship on Jackson street.

This is a great year for big corn, almost as great as last year. Peter Lochner reports stalks over 13 feet high.

—Mrs. James Griswold has gone to Eaton Rapids, Mich., for a visit of several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Julia Flint.

—Edward VanFleit of Garrett has been reappointed to the position of truant officer for this county by the state truancy board.

—FOR SALE—or will trade for town property, one heavy draft Norman stallion. Call on A. D. Moore, Moores, DeKalb county, Ind. 32-34

—John Thomas of the COURIER force left Saturday evening for Hamilton where he will spend a well-earned vacation with his parents and friends.

—The Kiblinger company received two car loads of sleigh stock this forenoon from Lowell, Mich., and will soon have turned out a number of fine cutters.

—Geo. Booth is a sort of "trusty" in the jail crowd. He makes himself useful and don't give any trouble, going of errands and doing work wherever needed.

Tetter, Eczema and Skin Diseases yield quickly to the marvelous healing qualities of Banner Salve made from a prescription of a skin specialist of world wide fame. 25c.

—Wednesday, August 16, is republican day at Island Park assembly and it is expected that either Senator Fairbanks or Senator Foraker will be secured to deliver the principal address.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Zimmerman and daughter Georgia, will leave Wednesday for a two weeks trip around the Great Lakes. They will also stop a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Guild at Mullet Lake.

—South Whitley News:—The Daily Dispatch, published at Auburn, has been discontinued by its publishers. The venture was not a paying one, as one daily covered its field and there was no room for a second.

—M. Kline goes up to his Richland farm now about once a day. He is hauling down wood for winter, and getting other needed supplies, and says he thinks he will be able to put in the cold weather season in comfort.

—It is stated that no more unlimited local tickets will be sold over the Lake Shore road. These tickets will be limited to one day after the date of sale. The return coupon of round trip tickets, however, will be good for thirty days as heretofore.

—The Modern Woodmen have recently received a lot of fine new lodge paraphernalia, including handsome uniforms for the working team. This lodge is rapidly growing in membership and influence and is one of the strongest fraternal organizations in Auburn.

—FOR SALE:—A good young black horse with white strip in face; 16½ hands high, weight 1200; will work single or double: will make a good family horse. A rare opportunity. Call quick at my residence south of the school building.—W. H. ZIGLER, Auburn Ind.

—Chas. Pommert's barber shop has been fixed up in elegant shape and is now one of the nicest rooms in town. New paper of a solid color and with rich border adorns the walls and everything about the shop is as bright as a new dollar. The work was done by Geo. Quince —Rugman & Hartman have had considerable trouble in the digging of the VanGorder ditch on the west county line, on account of high water. Mr. Hartman thinks the worst of the trouble is now over and that they will be able to complete the job within the next few weeks.

—Adam Husselman had quite a loss by sneak thieves Saturday evening. He brought in a basket of eggs and while his team was hitched on the east side of Ollie Clay's store, some one stole the basket and his six dozen eggs. He says the hens are willing to lay more eggs, but he feels the loss of a good basket.

ce, is there?"
ose is it?"
a portrait of a girl I used to a great deal of, and—"
r name, sir?"
ll, you eat for it yourself, Ma-bout nineteen years ago, but, to e truth, I always did think the ng expression' was a little over-
Put on your spectacles and look again, and then compare it with flection in that mirror over there se—what are you getting mad
?"—Waverley Magazine.

host o versa kind.
chest
fect ever, make anoth soever with

A m
the po out, b
tim.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Postius Sealing Wax, 5 cents at Davenport's.

—The Wabash will run another excursion to Detroit on Sunday, August 13.

—Mrs. L. D. Britton has gone to Corunna to spend a week or two with her children there.

—A. D. Moore was here today, being one of the viewers on the Myers ditch in Franklin township.

—Miss Laura Keeran was called to Waterloo today as a nurse in the family of Rev. W. F. Dingel.

—M. B. Masters is furnishing his customers with some excellent green corn, raised in his garden in East Auburn.

—D. A. Sanders, head of the big Goshen lumber firm of Sanders & Egbert, was in town a few hours today.

—Architect Wing of Fort Wayne was here today on business connected with the work at the court house and jail.

—Henry Shaffer, of Allen county, was in town today the guest of his daughter, Mrs. E. M. Bishop, and family.

—The Filipinos last week captured a coast trading vessel owned by Americans and burned her. This was near San Fernando.

—FOR SALE:—A thorough bred short horn bull calf, four months old. Enquire of A. M. St. Clair, 2½ miles northeast of Auburn. 32

Hon. J. M. Robinson presided at the big meeting on Bryan Day at Rome City, and received almost as much attention as Mr. Bryan himself.

—Don Revis, who has been in the employ of I. N. Cool at Paxton, Ill., for several months, is here for a visit with John Palmer and wife and other friends.

—The recruiting office at Fort Wayne is again open and not less than fifteen men are wanted there to join the Thirty-first regiment, now being organized at Fort Thomas, Ky.

"Foley's Kidney Cure has been tested and to be all you claim for it. I have been giving it to my father and it is the only thing that ever helped him," writes GEO. W. HICKOCK, Curtiss, Wis.

—Commissioners have been busy yesterday and today, overseeing the settlements with trustees. We believe it is to close those accounts up to April 27 last, when the new laws went into force.

—Little Stanley Hartman is having trouble with his mouth, caused by running the point of a pencil into the roof of it on Saturday. It bothers him about eating, but we hope is not very serious.

—A. Lewis and family drove to St. Joe Sunday to see Mrs. Lewis' brother, Samuel Widney, whose leg was broken in an accident a short time ago. He is not improving as rapidly as might be wished.

—All members of DeLong Post, G. A. R., should be present at the regular meeting next Monday night when arrangements will be made to attend the meeting of the DeKalb County Battalion at Garrett.

—During the month of August you can buy the largest ironing board on the stoutest folding frame ever placed on the market for $1.00, regular price $1.50. Manufactured by Chester Hoisington, corner of Twelfth and Van-Buren streets.

—Congressmen Dolliver, of Iowa, and Hanly of Indiana will be the principal speakers at Island Park assembly on Wednesday, August 16, republican day. There will be plenty of good music, and excursion trains will be run on all railroads.

—J. Grenville Mott of Michigan City was here today. He has been back from his European trip about two weeks, all having had a splendid summer abroad. His son did not go out with them, as he is in Yale, but his wife and daughter accompanied him.

—Mrs. A. F. Martin who was up from Columbia City last week, brings word that her brother, G. M. Scott, is now living with them, as his health is so poor he cannot do work as he formerly did. We are sorry to hear of his poor health. But he is sure of a good home.

—Our friend John H. Topper has bought out a grocery in Butler and will go into business there. While it is always a little risky for a farmer to change off and go into business in town we trust the prudence of our friend will enable him to build up a good business.

—Ora Snyder of Pierceton, was a caller today. The COURIER family and his, were old-time neighbors. He has been visiting his cousins, the families of Henry Shaffer and Peter Shaffer, and while here is the guest of another cousin, Mrs. E. M. Bishop. He reports his father Cyrus Snyder in rather poor health, but his mother and grandmother, Mrs. Smith are well.

—Viewers have been considering a change in the road north of Waterloo. They wish to have the road that goes north from Uniontown, and around north of the fair ground, run along the east side of the fair grounds. This has been tried several times but so far has not been carried out. The extra twenty feet in the width of the road from the fair grounds to Uniontown has been abandoned.

—We are in receipt of a letter from Frank Myers at Toledo, in which after alluding to the $3 he sends on subscription, he adds that the Old Reliable reaches them regularly and is a welcome visitor. Mrs. Myers has not had very good health this season, but the rest of the family have been well. Frank is still with the big Simmons boot and shoe house, and we judge is prospering. Both send best wishes to all the old friends in Auburn.

Wednesday's Daily.

—Chapman's Flux Syrup cures Cholera Morbus and Diarrhoea. D5-17-W2t.

—The finest Sealing Wax and Paraffine at Davenport's.

—Remember the excursion to Rome City next Tuesday, August 18.

—Mrs. Wm. Walsworth is reported considerably better today, which we are glad to hear.

—Pearl Sprott is at Winona, having gone over to Warsaw with Mrs. Geo. Chapman when the latter returned home.

—D. A. Hodge took a number of fine pictures of the Cedar Creek wreck which he has on exhibition at his jewelry store.

—Trustee Dancer of Jackson is going to build a new school house. Contractors should read his notice which we publish today.

—I have money to loan, taking mortgage on farm or town property as security. Office over Farmers bank.—E. L. CASEBEER —Several township trustees seem to have overlooked the fact that the law says they must publish their estimates for the coming year.

—If any subscriber fails to get his paper, please notify the office by telephone. We expect to keep extras enough to supply all.

—FOR SALE:—Two good farm and roadster horses, and one two-seated carriage in good condition. For information call at this office.

—Eph Raub brought us the other day, specimens of the prettiest apples we have seen. They are now fully ripe. We do not know the name.

—Don't forget the date of the big excursion to Rome City—Tuesday, Aug. 18. Train leaves Auburn Junction at 6:45 and fare for the round trip 75 cents —In some northern Indiana towns crickets have made their appearance in great swarms. Nobody seems able to account for their appearance in such numbers.

—Frank Allen, son of the late Os Allen, of Hicksville, was calling on friends here last evening. He had been camping among the lakes of Steuben, and was on his way home.

—George Morr and Frank Mutzfeldt have taken the contract to "break in" one of the western horses recently sold here, and from all reports have had no end of fun with the animal.

—Mr. and Mrs. Cal. Husselman of this place and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Widney of St. Joe, took the morning Wabash train today to attend the horticultural meeting at Rome City.

—Nathan Meyer, a Wabash hat manufacturer, has started a Belgian hare breeding farm and expects to raise a million bunnies per annum. The fur is high priced and is used for making crush hats.

—On Tuesday next, August 18, is W. C. T. U. and temperance day at Island Park assembly. Excursion train via the B. & O. leaves the Junction at 6:45 a. m. Fare for the round trip 75 cents.

—G. S. Erlston of Chicago Junction has a sound memory, for every year, promptly, he sends in a remittance for himself and for his sister at Cleveland. We have just received $3.00 and wrote 1900 for both names.

—J. M. Cherry, head of the new firm which is preparing to start a handle factory in Auburn, was a caller today. Work on the factory buildings is coming on rapidly and the new plant will soon be in working order.

—Eli Miers, of west of town was a caller today. Having been a citizen of DeKalb for fifty years he remembers the muddy roads of pioneer days, and takes an active interest in road improvement now. He is watching with especial interest, the street improvements in Auburn.

—The Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan Soldiers' and Sailors' association will hold a reunion at Walkerton Thursday, Sept. 7. It will be a big affair. All soldiers, including those of '98, are invited to attend. A feature of the program will be the arrest and conviction of a southern spy.

—You ought to see the collection of photos and curiosities in D. A. Hodge's show window. They are those brought home from Cuba and Porto Rico by Bert Lane. There are scenes, also from the camps in the south. The curiosities consist in pistols, knives, cartridges, a machete, etc., all objects of interest to us just now.

—Waterloo will have a street fair and carnival August 18 and 19. There will be various amusements such as races for horse, bicycle, foot races, potato, sack and barrel races. There will be three bands, and all will be ably to enjoy it. The evening of the 18th, will be a good play at the theater "The Breezy Time" by Fitz & Webster at the Waterloo opera house.

—W. H. Wells, the engineer who was in the first engine going west when the wreck occurred at Cedar, was in town yesterday. It was his engine, No. 369, that was reversed and he is the only one of the four engineers who escaped blame when the matter was investigated. The others have been discharged. Mr. Wells' home is at Ashley and he is a brother of Chas. Wells, who lived here recently.

—Bert Lane is selling a large photo of Morro Castle, the big fortress that guards the entrance of the harbor of Santiago. The photo was taken by Mr. Lane, from the deck of the transport ship Logan, as it lay a little way off near the entrance of the harbor. Those who get this picture will know they have the real scene. It gives one a vivid idea of the strength of this famous fortification and shows us how lucky we were to get it, without the loss of life caused by a direct assault.

A Good Buying Time

in all lines for summer wear. We're crowding the goods out of sight, making the prices do the work and the opportunities for most economical buying are plentiful. Former prices and profits have been pushed out of mind, and you can buy goods frequently at less than they cost to manufacture.

Corsets

A long waist dress form made from a fine grade of coutille striped with sateen at..... 98c

One of our newest productions in Corsets is made from fine French Coutille. The hip lines are beautifully curved thereby assuring an easy graceful fit. The Venus back and the clasp 12½ inches long. This corset we will sell at..... 98c

Black Sateen underskirts beautifully made with three ruffles and protected with drill flounce. Always sell at $1.50 as long they last you can get them for..... 98c

Boys' 50c laundried shirts with collars and cuffs, all sizes..... 39c

Linen Towels at 19c a piece or per pair..... 35c

Turkish Bath Towels, extra size at per pair..... 35c

Pretty patterns in Lawns to go at..... 4c

Belts—Leather Belts—all kinds of belts to go at..... 19c

Court Plaster—two 5c pieces of court plaster to sell at..... 5c

Men's and Boy's Suspenders at 5, 10 and 15c

Key Rings and Chains at 5, 10 and 15c

Grocery Department.

Sardines, oil, 4c box or 3 for	10c	Graham Wafers per pound	9c
Mixed Spices per box	5c	Soda Wafers per pound	9c
Sweet Chocolate per cake	8c	Ginger Snaps per pound	7c
Flat Iron Starch per box	8c	Royal Shoe Polish per bottle	8c
Mop Sticks	8c	Wash Board a good one for	10c
Cotton belt clothes lines	10c	Fine machine oiler	10c
Slaw Cutters	14c	Full Cream Cheese per pound	12c

Bazar Store

Auburn, Indiana.

PETER KUNTZ, PRESIDENT. Chicago, Ill.
W. H. KECKLER, TREASURER Auburn, Ind.

...THE...

Auburn Lumber Co.

CENTRAL 'PHONE 12.

We sell all kinds of Lumber for Building Purposes, Make Door and Window Frames to Order. We can Sell you Doors and Windows at Money Saving Prices.

Headquarters For

Lime, Bulk Lime

Wood Burnt bulk Lime

The Genuine Article.

We can save you money in Price, Quality and Weight Come and see us and examine our LIME, and you will be convinced. We also carry Cement, Plastering Hair, Plaster Paris, etc. Yours Truly,

AUBURN LUMBER CO.
Near Wabash Depot, Auburn, Ind.

It Pays to Paint.

There is nothing that adds to the selling value or the renting value of a house like good paint—there is nothing that makes home more home-like than good paint.

It pays to paint. The better the paint, the better it pays.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT

pays in the beginning because it goes so far—pays in the end because it lasts so long, and looks so well, as long as it lasts. There is no paint like it for beauty and durability, for economy and satisfaction.

For Sale By
CULBERTSON & BOLAND.

THE HERO OF MANILA IN HIS NEW UNIFORM.

WITH a fine disregard of Admiral Dewey's possible wishes, the Navy Department, after asking him to prescribe his own uniform, has proceeded to fashion one for him in the interim. Of course the department has not the slightest intention of slighting the admiral, and it has taken the greatest care to forestall his desires, but the fact remains that history may repeat itself and the admiral modify this dress.

When Farragut was commissioned an admiral the style of his dress was left to his own choosing, and the modest old gentleman designed something eminently fitting his quiet tastes. So unpretentious was his garb that it left nothing gaudy enough for his immediate junior, and the result was a subsequent order from the department directing him to cover nearly half of his sleeve with gold oak leaves. That the old gentleman was indignant is putting it mildly, and, because of his very positive stand, he was allowed to retain his own dress, while his junior gloried in something showier.

The distinctive markings which the department has chosen for Admiral Dewey are, with one minute exception, such as Admiral Farragut chose for himself, and it is thought that this association with his old master of war may be all the more pleasing to Admiral Dewey, whose tastes in such matters are also refined and quiet.

It is highly probable that Admiral Dewey will never need but half of the eight uniforms which the new regulations prescribe for him.

When calling on the President or some similar dignitary and at general muster on the first Sunday of every month, Admiral Dewey will wear what is termed "special" full dress—the garb, in fact, in which the accompanying cut shows him. This is his very swellest outfit, and consists of a double-breasted coat, with tails lined throughout with white silk serge; trousers, also of navy blue broadcloth, with gold lace down the outer seams, a gold-banded cocked hat, epaulets, sword and full dress sword belt. The coat sleeves will be adorned with two two-inch stripes of gold lace with a single one-inch stripe between, and all surmounted by a single star. It is in this star that the distinctive marks differ from Admiral Farragut's, his star bearing a small frigate embroidered in silver in the center, while Admiral Dewey's is plain. There will be a broad band of gold lace around the collar. His epaulets, like his shoulder straps, shown at the bottom of the picture, will bear four silver stars of five points each, the outer two being superposed upon gold fouled anchors, the anchors being the distinctive marks for an admiral as compared with the four plain stars of a general.

The full dress uniform is to be worn on all other occasions of ceremony, such for instance as in making the first visit to other officers of flag rank and on social occasions to which officers are invited in their official capacity. The coat of this uniform is like the evening dress of the civilian, and with the exception of the collar and the buttons down the front is adorned just as the "special" full dress coat is—epaulettes, sword and cocked hat being worn also.

On occasions of "ordinary ceremony," such as in boarding ships of war, in making the first visit in port upon commanding officers, on parades of ceremony with enlisted men under arms, and at the ordinary Sunday inspections—excepting, of course, the first one of the month—the admiral will wear the "dress" uniform. This uniform is a frock coat, plain blue or white trousers, cocked hat, epaulettes, sword and plain leather belt. The admiral's belt for this dress is the same as that prescribed for all other officers, and is of black grained leather of not more than two inches in width. The belt plate or buckle is of yellow gilt, and consists of a wreath of oak leaves surrounding the naval coat of arms of thirteen stars encircling a spread eagle on an anchor.

When calling on foreign officers other than commanding officers, and on social occasions when frock coats are appropriate, the admiral will wear the foregoing uniform with the exception of sword and belt. On all service duty on board ship, and at all times not provided for by the regulations for the foregoing uniforms, the admiral will wear the "service dress" uniform. Two uniforms are set for evening wear and are described as "A" and "B." "A" will be worn in the evening on occasions of ceremony to which the admiral may be invited in his official capacity, and "B" will be worn on social occasions to which he may also be invited in his official capacity. "A" uniform consists of an evening dress coat and waistcoat, laced trousers, cocked hat, epaulettes, sword and full-dress belt worn under the waistcoat, while "B" is the same with plain trousers and blue cap.

By the time Dewey has provided himself with all the adornments which an admiring government prescribes he will have parted with fully $2,000 of hard-won pay. Half of the clothes he will never wear, but he must keep them on hand for the coming of the unexpected—the bugaboo of official life and the bane of the man whose figure will change.

FOR GOVERNOR OF KENTUCKY.

State Senator William Goebel, the Candidate of the Democracy.

State Senator William Goebel, the nominee of the Democratic party for Governor of Kentucky, has taken an active part in politics since he ended his law studies. He has lived in Covington thirty-three years.

SENATOR WILLIAM GOEBEL

Senator Goebel was born in Pennsylvania and was brought to Covington by his parents in 1866. He was educated at Gambler College and at the Cincinnati Law School. He has been a member of the State Senate for eight years, and was president pro tem. of that body for one session. He has led hot campaigns to carry through legislation as well as to secure his own election. The present elections act in Kentucky bears his own name, and was passed through his efforts a year ago. His fight for the repeal of the Southern Pacific's charter was a long and strong one. Mr. Goebel announced himself some time ago as a free silver, 16 to 1, Bryan man. Till then it had been very generally supposed he stood firmly for sound money. He is accounted one of the shrewdest politicians in Kentucky.

Once Was Enough for Him.

"It is a Sanford man," says the Kennebec (Me.) Journal, "who has this statement sewn to his undershirt: 'My appendix has been cut out,' and he explains his case in this way: 'You see, these are the palmy knifing days to the surgeon. If a man falls in a fit, faints or happens to lose consciousness for any reason, they cart him off to the hospital and operate for appendicitis without waiting for him to come to and say what ails him. I've been sliced open once and I don't hanker for encores.'"

Every woman occasionally curls her hair and starts out fiercely to be Happy in Spite of Fate. (By fate is meant an unappreciative husband.)

Notwithstanding the watchfulness of the attendants the rain sometimes beats its way into the circus tent.

REALISTIC LAKE BATHING.

Chicago Small Boy Defies the Law and Scorns Clothing.

Summer is the joyous season when the small boy goes down to the lake front, climbs over the frowning wall of the Illinois Railroad Company, trespasses upon the right of way regardless of the warning signs, and takes off his clothes in view of the audience when he has reached the breakwater, says the Chicago Chronicle. Then he jumps into the shallow water and flounders gleefully in the sand for some time. Passing railroad trains filled with passengers disturb him not. He pays no heed to the disturbed gaze of the resident on Lake avenue, who views his antics with undisguised disfavor. He wants to swim, and there is the water, and what more is necessary? Anon comes the railroad policeman with raucous voice and threatening club, hurtling across the tracks, filling the air with strange oaths and acting generally as though he were trying to disperse a riotous mob. Then the small boy takes his clothing, usually consisting of two pieces, and hies him along the piling to the convenient shelter of a boathouse. If the uniformed minion of the corporation pursues him he slips into the clothes with two motions and defies the law. If the copper gets tired of the job and weakens in the pursuit the small boy drops the clothes and dives into the water again.

If only one small boy did this he might not attract much notice. But there is more than one small boy in Chicago who pants for the cooling waters of the lake on sultry days, and when scores of them line the breakwater pier they occasion some comment among passengers on the suburban trains. The boys have never acquired the bathing-suit habit. The law prescribes it, but the small boy never did have much respect for the law and ignores it unless it begins to chase him with a club. Therefore the spectacular effect of the bathers is a bit startling to the eye as viewed from the flying trains.

They don't give the boy much of a chance in Chicago. If he flies a kite in the streets he is arrested; if he plays base-ball on forbidden territory he is chased from it by the police; if he throws stones, one of the prerogatives of all boys in all times, he is breaking the law, and if he goes swimming in the great, cool lake which stretches so invitingly before him he is harried by the police and arrested if they get near enough to him. The city eternally forbids him to swim in the big lake unless surrounded by proper facilities in the way of bathing suits and bathhouses, but it does not furnish the suits or build the houses. If both were supplied by the municiaplity the small boys in droves would take advantage of them. There are two or three public bathhouses in Chicago, but they are not what the average healthy boy wants. They are all right for the purposes for which they were designated—to furnish bathing facilities in crowded tenement districts. But the boy who wants to cool off and splash around in the water does not want to go into a building under a roof and slip into a warm, nauseating pool, the limits of which he can see with half an eye, and whose scant dimensions are shared by a hundred others at the same moment. He wants to get into the lake—into the limitless, heaving body of blue water which lies at the very door of Chicago—with nothing over him but the blue sky and plenty of room for 100,000 other bathers.

"POLICE!"

Finding himself without the facilities in the way of bathhouses and bathing suits, the small boy is obliged to make shift with what he finds—the lake and the pier—and if he unconsciously furnishes a summer spectacle to all beholders he feels it is not his fault. In the meantime bathing must be done from the piers with such scant protection from the gaping world as is furnished by the advertising signs and the boathouses.

Of course it is against the law—nearly everything the small boy does or wants to do in Chicago is against some law. But, while the law expressly forbids bathing in public without the outward and visible signs of a bathing suit it offers no recourse to the panting youngster who, free from school and home duties, wanders about toward the great, blue, cool looking lake on a hot day and is possessed of a desire to "go in." He sees no reason why he should not. The lake is public property. He climbs on the pier or walks out on some rotting stringer, "shucks" his clothing and wades slowly into the water. Perhaps a score or a half-dozen go in together. In half an hour a few more boys, drifting idly along, see the bathers and are inspired with the same desire to swim, and in they go. Policemen often try to arrest the lawbreakers, and there is a hasty exodus of the happy boys when they see the minions of the law coming.

BOYS BATHING ON THE LAKE FRONT.

GREAT PRINCE OF INDIA.

He Has Placed His Herd of Elephants at Disposal of Lady Curzon.

The pretty, girlish creature whose beauty once captivated the marriageable men of Chicago and Washington society circles, but who married an English lord and is now vicereine of India, has just added to her list of unsought admirers the Maharajah of

LADY CURZON, FORMERLY MISS LEITER OF CHICAGO.

Durbhunga, one of the premier noblemen of Hindoostan and a trusted adviser of Lord Curzon. This Hindoo prince has respectfully placed at the disposal of Lady Curzon the splendid herd of elephants that are among his vast possessions, thus making Lady Curzon the possessor pro tem. of more of these lordly creatures than any other woman in the world. Her ladyship has developed a great liking for the elephants, and frequently takes advantage of the friendliness existing between the viceroy and the maharajah to ride forth on one of the gorgeously caparisoned elephants of state.

With that happy spirit of frank friendliness in the company of underlings that only an American woman knows how to indulge without loss of dignity, the vicereine has made herself the idol of the attendants at the palace of the Indian prince. To penetrate the reserve of an Oriental of high degree is a feat that not every white man or woman, even among the upper ten of India, can boast of having accomplished. To be given the freedom of the magnificent palace of his highness the Maharajah of Durbhunga is a compliment even to a viceroy and vicereine.

The elephants belonging to the rajah are under the control of an old man upwards of eighty years of age. Each elephant rejoiced in an appellation taken from the names of mythological or historic heroes; and it is their veteran keeper's boast that every elephant is known to him by name.

The title dates back only to 1808, when the then Maharajah Chutter Singh was formally recognized and invested by the British Government. But the origin of the family can be traced as far back as the reign of the Emperor Akbar, whose lieutenants they were in the province of Behar.

The growing friendliness of such a man for Lord and Lady Curzon is viewed with pleasure by those interested in the welfare of India, for if the hearts of the native princes are with the Queen's representatives the stability of the Government is doubly assured. To have won so emphatic a demonstration of regard from the Maharajah of Durbhunga shows that in the future of the great Indian empire the American wife of Lord Curzon is destined to play a significant part.

Development of English Language.

If some recently published statistics are to be trusted the English language is developing more than any other, past or present. While the German contains 80,000 words, the Italian 45,000, the French 30,000 and the Spanish only 20,000, Dr. Murray's English Dictionary is expected to contain no less than 250,000 words, more than half of which have come into use during the last half century. A great part of these additions are, of course, technical or scientific terms, which the wiser German translates.

Rockefeller's income is $40,000 a day.

GOGGLES FOR SOLDIERS.

Wear Violet Glasses to Detect Filipinos Puffs of Smokeless Powder.

Imagine facing an army of goggled-eyed soldiers, each man in rank wearing great goggles to completely cover the eye and shut out every ray of pure white light, advancing upon you, like some great-eyed destructive monster. This is what the Filipinos must do when the United States puts into operation the scheme which has been projected and adopted by the War Department. The department proposes to furnish to each soldier fighting under the Stars and Stripes in the Philippines a pair of great glasses which he must constantly wear in active service in the field.

The reason? Why, to detect and locate the ambushed enemy and its Indian fighting sharpshooters, to obviate the dangers and difficulties introduced into modern warfare by smokeless powder. How? Well, there is an easy explanation.

It was discovered in experimenting with smokeless powder that it was absolutely invisible to the eye, until an accident developed one unknown condition. Through a violet glass the flash and smoke could be descried as clearly as the old black powder. Experiments followed and the condition remained unchanged, with the result that the department ordered for every soldier in the field violet glasses to be worn constantly on duty, which would shut out the pure daylight and enable them to readily detect the position of any sharpshooter, even though equipped with smokeless powder.

EQUIPPED WITH GOGGLES.

This is the explanation, but what a novelty! To what extremes may we not come in our efforts to combat the inventions of modern scientific warfare? The twentieth century soldier will soon vie with the armored athlete, who to-day battles on the foot-ball field for the honor of his alma mater. What will be the next step toward it?

Anecdote of Rosa Bonheur.

Mme. Rosa Bonheur (Rosa stood for Rosalie) was not without a sense of humor, so it is told of her that while presiding over a school of design in Paris, the pupils being girls, the artist was disgusted with the class, because, imitating their teacher, the young women had cut their hair short. "Grand Dieu!" cried Rosa Bonheur, "how horrid you all look! This is not a class of boys. You silly creatures, let your hair alone and do your best so as to retain all the advantages of your sex."

A Celestial Reproach.

Dorothy—Mamma, if I should die, would I go to heaven?

"Why, yes, darling; of course you would."

"And if you should die, would you go to heaven, too?"

"I hope so, dear."

"I hope so, too; because it would be very awkward for me to be known as the little girl whose mother is in hell."—Life.

Drilled Dogs.

For some time past a lage battalion of dogs has been drilled in the village of Lecrench, near Cologne, to operate in conjunction with the German ambulance corps. Each dog is supplied with a saddle, in which are pockets containing all that is necessary for the first dressing of a wound, also a large

POLITICS OF THE DAY

NOT A ONE-IDEA MAN.

The notion that William J. Bryan is a man of one idea has been industriously propagated. But nothing is farther from the facts. Mr. Bryan is certainly the most eloquent advocate of bimetallism before the country. But it should not be forgotten that he first attracted the attention of the American people by his great free-trade speech in Congress. This remarkable speech, says an exchange, delivered shortly after he became a member of the House of Representatives, gave him a national reputation. Mr. Bryan has as firm a grasp of the question of monopolies and trusts, of taxation, and of militarism and imperialism as he has of that of free coinage. He is to-day, in his speeches and writings, discussing these questions with as much ability, vigor and lucidity as he ever exhibited in the discussion of the silver question.

The pretense that Mr. Bryan represents nothing but 16 to 1 is ridiculous. He stands in the broadest sense for all the fundamental doctrines of Democracy—for self-government, home rule and equal taxation, and against militarism and imperialism. The advocacy of free coinage at 16 to 1 is merely an incident in Mr. Bryan's career. The people, whether Democrats or Republicans, who insist that "there is nothing to Bryan but 16 to 1," not only do the Democratic leader a great injustice, but they discredit their own intelligence. The author of the greatest anti-protection speech delivered in Congress during the last quarter of a century and of so many powerful expositions of the evils of militarism and imperialism, is not to be classed as a one-idea man.—Mishawaka Democrat.

Democratic Creed.

When Rev. Sam Small was contemplating starting a Democratic paper in Washington, which he did not start, he asked me to give in the fewest words possible an answer to the question, "Why I am a Democrat," which I did as follows:

"I am a Democrat because:

"The principles of Democracy constitute the essence of government of the people, by the people, and for the people;

"Democracy is the only hope of constitutional government on this continent and throughout the world;

"Democracy means the least quantity of government compatible with the maintenance, well being and progress of society;

"Democracy means a return to the simplicity of the fathers in official station;

"Democracy is the only firm and consistent foe of paternalism, anarchy and class legislation;

"Democracy means the political equality of all men and that one set of our citizens shall not be enriched by legislation to the impoverishment of all others;

"Democracy means perfect honesty and strict economy in the public service—less taxes and more money—to the end that the condition of the toilers of the land may be bettered;

"Democracy means Jefferson's wise and successful foreign policy—peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none;

"Democracy means a restoration of the American flag to the rich empire of the high seas, from which it has been banished by the greed, stupidity and maladministration of the enemies of Democracy;

"Democracy means freedom of conscience, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of the ballot and holds as among the highest crimes any interference with or coercement of the suffrages of the people;

"Democracy means an enlargement and enforcement of the Monroe doctrine until it shall become an irresistible power among all the nations of the earth;

"Democracy means that all governments must respect our flag and the inviolability of our citizens, wherever they may sojourn or withersoever they may travel until the sentence, 'I am an American,' shall become a safer passport than was the far-famed 'Romanus Sum.'"—Champ Clark.

Protectionists on Defensive.

The weakness of the Republican tariff system can be proved by a careful investigation of the causes of Mr. Gage's announced deficit of nearly $90,000,000. It will be shown that the Dingley law is not a revenue producer. It will be shown that the Dingley tariff is a prohibitive tax on imports. It will be shown that as our ports are closed to goods of foreign manufacturers by the operations of high protection the opportunity has been utilized by aggregated capital to multiply trusts and monopolies. It will be shown that the exactions of this system of concentration have grown more oppressive upon labor and production. It will be shown that though there has been a slight increase in the wage scale of the country labor has not been benefited, because the opportunities of labor have been narrowed by the increase of trusts, and that there are actually more idle men in the country to-day than a year ago when the wage rate was lower. The protectionists will be on the defensive from the opening to the close of the Fifty-sixth Congress, and they are going to have a hard time explaining away a multitude of hard, stubborn facts.—Hamilton (Ohio) Democrat.

Income Tax Necessary.

The war brought into bold relief the necessity for an income tax, so that we may reasonably expect popular support in our effort to secure an amendment to the constitution specifically authorizing such tax. The money question is neither dead nor sleeping. Can the gold standard be regarded as satisfactory when a Republican President sends a commission to Europe to secure aid in getting rid of it? In a letter written to Lord Aldenhen, Nov. 25, 1898, two years after the presidential election, and two weeks after the last congressional election, Secretary Hay declared that the President and a majority of the cabinet still believed in the great desirability of an international agreement. Every argument made in favor of an international agreement is a condemnation of the gold standard.

The failure of the commission to secure foreign aid in the restoration of bimetallism is conclusive proof that we must act alone if we expect relief from monometallism, while our opponents refuse to suggest any other ratio in which bimetallism is possible. If our opponents say that the increased production of gold has made times better, they admit the correctness of the quantitive theory of money, whereas in 1896 they denied it. If a little more gold unexpectedly discovered in the Klondike has made conditions better, how much greater would be the advantage if silver from our mountains was allowed to flow through the mints into the arteries of trade?—William J. Bryan.

Nose and Face Retaliation.

The Executive Department at Washington seriously proposes to fine the American people $18,000,000 a year for an offense committed by the Brazilian government. This is the way of it: We consume 60,000,000 pounds of coffee a year. More than ten-elevenths of it—or practically all—comes from Brazil. But Brazil imposes import duties—not nearly so heavy, it is true, as our own average—upon many articles which we sell to that country. Our government complains of this and has asked Brazil to to quit it, in order that our people may sell more of our products to Brazilians. Brazil needs revenue and hesitates to yield to this demand. Our government therefore threatens—under a provision of law which permits the President to legislate in such cases—to levy a retaliatory duty of 3 cents a pound on all the Brazilian coffee we use. That is to say, it proposes to make everybody in the United States pay 3 cents a pound more than now for every pound of coffee used. With our enormous Dingley tariff duties in force, why should we complain that Brazil imposes much lower import dues for the sake of revenue? And why should the American people be required to suffer for Brazil's offense?—New York World.

Tin Plate Greed.

With a protective tariff of $30 a ton on tin the tin plate trust has no fear of foreign competition. Absolutely protected in a gigantic monopoly, this combine robs the public with unrestrained rapacity and endeavors to keep the wages of its employes down to the starvation limit. Forced by the workmen in its employ to give a slight advance in wages, the tin trust looked about for the means of making a good thing out of the situation. With the consumers at its mercy, the trust immediately raised the price of its commodity 50 cents a box, which gave them a premium of about 45 cents on the deal. In less than a year the price of tin plate has been raised from $2.65 to $4.37 a box, and the people who are compelled to use this article have no way of evading this outrageous and oppressive tax.

Nobody gets any good out of this trust except its managers. The government gets no revenue, for the duty is prohibitive. The workmen get no benefit, for the trust is supreme. The people get no consideration, for they must pay the prices demanded or go without the commodity. The duty on tin plate should be reduced. Then the government would secure revenue, the people would be benefited and the rapacity of the trust checked. But no relief will come while the Republican party is in power. Trusts are here to stay until Democracy obtains control of national legislation.

Some Defense of Trusts.

Because thieves sometimes steal from each other is no excuse for outlawry. Because cut-throats sometimes kill each other affords no palliation for murder. And it is no defense of trusts that they sometimes come to grief through the operation of natural causes. It is rather evidence of their error. And when trusts fortify themselves against the operations of natural law, and guard with shrewd devices against the possibilities of an unlucky chance, the law should be invoked against them. Competition should be free and trade should be fair.—Portland Oregonian.

Trade and the Flag.

The greatest increase in the export trade of the United States in the last eleven months is with Australia. According to the official returns just published, this export trade amounted to $19,901,196 in the eleven months of 1898, and increased to $27,670,221 in the eleven months of 1899. There is in this little to justify the common assertion of steamship bounty mongers that "the trade follows the flag." In the Australian case the flag does not even follow the trade.—Philadelphia Record.

Disregarded at Washington.

Reports from the Philippines as to the hardships of some of our soldiers, due to excessive floods, will not be comforting news to the friends of the brave men who are thus in defense of their flag undergoing privations that threaten life and health in addition to the ordinary dangers from a treacherous enemy.—Philadelphia Call.

Why He Favors the Reform.

Alger has pronounced himself in favor of the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people but says that it will be years before this reform can be accomplished. That is probably the reason that he is in favor of it.—Peoria Herald-Transcript.

When two women pass each other on the street and only one of them turns around to look back, it is easy to determine which one it is that is wearing her old clothes.—Rochester Herald.

Why does the mother of a homely baby always say it resembles her husband's folks?

CRIMINALS AMONG WOLVES.

Great Cunning Manifested by These Animals in California.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the Government of Manitoba, has, under the title, "Wild Animals I Have Known," given a series of observations on the cunning of beasts. That quality is in general the device of the weak, but the helplessness which it indicates may be of different grades. There is the cunning of wolves, which use their wits to rob man of his flocks and cattle, that of the domesticated creatures, which sometimes delight in criminal acts, and the cunning belonging to self-preservation among those animals on which others prey.

Mr. Thompson claims for certain animals, says the Scientific American, a share of the deference paid to depraved greatness. For example, there was the wolf which, in the fourteenth century, terrorized all Paris for ten years; a lame grizzly bear which, in two years, ruined all the hog-raisers and drove half the farmers out of business, in the Sacramento Valley, and a certain wolf in New Mexico, which was reported to have killed a cow every day for five years.

This wolf grew to be so well known that an increasing price was set upon his scalp, until the sum reached a thousand dollars. Ordinary means of hunting or trapping failed completely. The wolf and his mate brought up their cubs among some rocky precipices, within a thousand yards of the farm, and killed cattle daily.

At this period Mr. Thompson made the acquaintance of the vandal, and tried to kill him by scientific methods. He melted cheese mixed with fat of a heifer in a china dish, cut it into lumps with a bone knife, to avoid the taint of metal, and concealed in the lumps strychnine and cyanide, in odor-proof capsules. In doing this he wore gloves steeped in cow's blood, and even avoided breathing on the bait.

One of these lumps, placed in a tempting position, disappeared. Mr. Thompson followed the track to the next lump, and the next, and noticed that those also were gone. At the fourth he found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves now took to stampeding and killing sheep. Half a dozen goats are usually kept with each flock, as leaders, and they are not easily stampeded at night; so when wolves are about the sheep crowd about these leaders and remain there while the shepherds drive the wolves away. The object of the wolves is to stampede the sheep, and then pick them up, day by day, afterward.

One night they ran over the backs of the huddled flock, and killed all the goats in a few minutes. The sheep were then available for prey.

Traps to the number of a hundred and thirty were set in different parts of the big ranch. The trail of the pack was followed, and it became apparent that the leader, warned by the scent, stopped all the rest, and advanced alone to the trap. He scratched until he laid bare a dozen buried chains and pickets. Then he entered an H-shaped series of traps, realized his danger, and slowly backed out, putting down each paw backward until he was off the dangerous ground.

Afterward he sprung as many traps as possible, by scratching clods and stones at them with his hind feet.

Shooting Bullets Into Snow.

Some experiments were made recently in France on the penetrative power of bullets through snow. The results were astonishing. The Lebel rifle was used, and at a distance of 160 feet the bullet penetrated only five feet into the snow target. A bullet from a Lebel rifle has been known, it is said, to go through a tree of three and a half feet in diameter. That it should only penetrate eighteen inches farther into such soft stuff as snow seems altogether startling. The explanation suggested by the experimentalists is that the rotating bullet picks up particles of snow as it goes in and so gets "balled," or blocked up.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?
It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.

It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It makes a better circulation in the scalp and stops the hair from coming out.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.

It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.

Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.
Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

ALL'S WELL WITH THE SHIP.

As the ship speeds beneath the silent sky,
O'er the vast expanse of the moonlit sea,
And one lies quiet listening dreamily,
How sweet it is to hear the watchman's cry:
"All's well—the lights are burning bright!"
And then to sleep in safety thro' the night.

When the ship fights her gallant, steadfast way,
Amid the sounds of tempest and of rain,
'Tis sweet to hear the watchman's voice again,
As one lies sleepless, longing for the day:
"All's well—the lights are burning bright!"
Ah, what a comfort in the stormy night!

Three lamps there are—Faith, Hope and Charity,
Which we may light to keep our souls from harm,
In our long voyaging through storm and calm;
And sweet it is, while on life's restless sea,
To hear the watcher, Conscience, in the night,
Whisper: "All's well,—the lights are burning bright!"

—Mary E. Simms, in New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE LUMP OF COAL.

A Marine Episode That Thrills.

The cattle-boat Goshawk's midday sights had shown her to be in latitude 12 degrees 34 minutes south by 36 degrees 42 minutes west longitude, which meant that she was coming up to that dangerous collection of reefs and rocks known as the Abrolhos Shoals. The chart which covered them was from a French survey in 1861, and as any amount of unrecorded changes might have been wrought since then by that minute mason of the deep, the coral insect, Captain Grimshaw was very much on the qui vive so long as his ship was in the neighborhood. For, being a wise master-mariner, he depended but little on either the chart or the Abrolhos Light itself.

But if the captain did not fancy this particular patch of the sea for reasons relating to navigation, the third engineer did for purposes of his own. In short, he hoped to earn the ship's insurance money and a couple of hundred pounds for himself somewhere in the vicinity. It was an excellent locality for a plausible story about the Goshawk running on some uncharted shoal and sinking as she backed into deep water. So when he was relieved of his half watch at 6 o'clock by the chief engineer, he went straight to the engine-room mess table for his tea, carefully forgetting his blue jacket where it hung on a rail on the forward side of the engine-room bulkhead. Having partaken hastily and sparingly of the bad tea and potato hash supplied, he turned into his own room, locked the door, and arranged a pair of trousers to hang so that one of the legs might cover the keyhole. Then he knelt, though not exactly in prayer, beside his sea chest, and proceeded to unpack it, till at length he reached a small wooden box with a sliding top. At first sight it did not appear why his hand should tremble a little as he pulled the lid aside and drew from its well-wadded cradle a very common-place lump of coal.

It was exactly like any other piece of coal about the size of a large fist—say the mate's—and it had all the jetty sparkle and shine of the newly broken article. The only difference between it and the other lumps in the bunkers was that $200,000 worth and a few men's lives lay in its nascent possibilities.

On closer inspection, however, it revealed one little peculiarity, a little square projection such as any lady or gentleman who does not use a stem winder may see in his watch any night of the week. Tom Tudor's own watch key, which he now tried upon it to see if everything was in proper working order, fitted it exactly as a matter of fact.

"Another hour and it will be pretty nearly dark. That will be my time," he thought to himself with anything but a fiendish chuckle. As yet he was considerably removed from the villain teres atque rotundus of a sanguinary fiction. Of a truth he was conscious at the moment of a curious sickness, a tickling in his stomach which not even the recent potato stew could account for. No, it was the thought of the coming appalling moment of flame and death—and the captain's daughter. Curse the captain's daughter! When he had entered into this nefarious contract with certain unnamable people at home, he had not counted on this disturbing element. That he, hard-hearted and hard-headed scoundrel as he was, should feel this immense tenderness for a pretty ailing girl, away with her father for a voyage on account of her health, was an aberration beyond all calculation. Was it love? It worried and pricked him, and it awakened old unwelcome chords in the atrophied sense of fitness which had been his conscience. Yes, it was love, and—bless Alice, the captain's daughter!

"If she hadn't been so hard on me last night I could never have done it," ran his thoughts, waking a fierce tenderness in his sallow, handsome face. "A touch of her hand and the Goshawk would have stemmed the Thames River again! Suppose the ship sank in a couple of minutes, before they had time to lower the boats! There are sharks about! I don't mind sending an old fireman or a trimmer to hotter furnaces. But the flop of the brutes round her sweet body! It's horrible. I can't do it after all!"

He bent his forehead against the raised lid of his trunk. "But I'm talking meeting house rot. The cursed thing is calculated to give the ship half an hour. There'll be lots of time for everybody to get clear except the poor fellows who get blown to atoms from the stokehole. Then the weather's quiet, and we're right in the track of ships—certain to be picked up within forty-eight hours."

He dandled the black mass on his fingers.

"Five turns of the key, and then five minutes before the explosion, every turn a minute! If I push the job through I'll never tackle another. By the powers I wish we were all safe in the boats!"

He replaced the grim handful of doom in its cradle again, replaced it in its box, and went up to the windy deck. The heat below laid a fiery hand on his throat and brain.

A slice of young moon, with a few attendant stars, slowly climbed into luminance against the last ardors of the sunset, as he leaned moodily against the deckhouse.

How the miserly hour caught up its golden coin of minutes and fled!

"Time-time, time-time, time, time," sang the watch bell monstrously soon.

"It's got to be done!" he muttered between his set teeth, as he stepped unsteadily out of the moonlight along the engine-room passage, once more unpacked the fatal lump, turned the key five times, and with a flying heart descended the steam ladder to the engine-room, the bomb ticking in the loose breast of his shirt as he went.

"Hullo, Tudor. Forgot your jacket?" sang out the chief, as he stooped over the rails and tried the heat of his bearings.

"Aye," replied the third engineer, as he passed.

In the fierce tunnel of light from one of the open furnaces the nude stokers, and a trimmer piling forward the coal to them from behind, seemed like gnomes of some Eastern legend. Poor chaps! A chatter like the sound of a sewing-machine from the thing in his breast seemed to chant their requiem.

He slipped the black thing of evil below an end of one of the boilers, caught up his jacket and ran on deck. Under the shadow of one of the after lifeboats he stood, sick with terrible expectancy, awaiting the end with his gone! * * * Three!

Then a little figure in white came forward out of the darkness of the poopdeck. It was the captain's daughter.

"Is that you, Mr. Tudor?" she said, sweetly.

"Yes," he replied hoarsely. Three minutes and a half gone.

"I want to tell you how sorry I am for being nasty with you last night. I—I didn't mean it."

"Alice, Alice! Quick, for pity's sake. Can you love me even a little? Quick, quick!"

"What's all this hurry about, Mr. Tudor? Put that watch in your pocket. What a question!"

But in her face he saw something sweeter than the silver moonlight which revealed it. * * * Four minutes and a half!

With a bound he was in the passage again, slipped noiselessly past the chief, who did not see him, his back being turned, caught up the accursed thing under his jacket, and like a flash tore up to the deck again.

With all his strength he threw the Lump of Coal far into the dimpling sea, and sank on the deck, the perspiration running from every pore.

Then with a terrific rattling thunder an immense flower of fire arose out of the deep, a great, sudden billow snatched at the ship, heaved her aloft like a cork, and raced whitely away into the moonlit distances. Then all was still, save for the fretting and fuming of the sea as it slowly settled again.

The whole ship's company came peering on deck in a dazed state of alarm. The captain sprang on the bridge beside the mate and shouted some orders unheeded.

But nobody except the girl in white noticed the broken man lying prone in the shadow of the deckhouse.

Like a sudden hideous revelation the explanation came to her. His wild eyes, his sudden question, the watch in his hand, his mad, headlong race below, all was clear now.

Unnoticed in the general panic, she crossed the deck to him. He was lying face down, on the cold iron plates of the deck. She touched him on the shoulder and he looked up with a white face.

"I know it all, Tom," she said brokenly. "May God help us both."

"God help us? You help me, Alice! Your love could save me yet, perhaps."

"I loved you all along. But after this"—she sobbed.

Presently she spoke again.

"Now get up and go below. This must never be suspected, even by my father. It will be safe with me. I still love you enough for that." He kissed the skirt of her dress and pressed her hand like a benediction on his head.

When Captain Grimshaw reported the phenomenal seismic disturbance he had encountered in the neighborhood of the Abrolhos Reef, it created a considerable sensation in the scientific world. And from the records of the registry in a certain church, within hearing of Bow Bells, there is the best of reason for supposing that Alice Grimshaw's love persisted and was allowed the best opportunities for saving the soul of the third engineer.

The Fading of the Substance.

"John Billus, I found this photograph in the inside pocket of an old vest of yours hanging up in the closet. I'd like an explanation. Whose is it?"

"Can't you see it's an old picture, Maria? What's the use of stirring up memories that—"

"I want to know whose picture that is."

"Rather a pleasant-faced girl, isn't she?"

"I want to know her name."

"No jealous fury in that countenance, is there?"

"Whose is it?"

"It's a portrait of a girl I used to think a great deal of, and—"

"Her name, sir?"

"Well, you sat for it yourself, Maria, about nineteen years ago, but, to tell the truth, I always did think the 'pleasing expression' was a little overdone. Put on your spectacles and look at it again, and then compare it with the reflection in that mirror over there and see—what are you getting mad about?"—Waverley Magazine.

WANTS TO DIE POOR.

AN ECCENTRIC MAN TRYING TO SQUANDER A FORTUNE.

So His Family Cannot Inherit It—Has Got Rid of $3,000,000, and Has $400,000 More to Spend—"Brooklyn's Monte Cristo."

The main object that James A. H. Bell, formerly known as the "Monte Cristo of Brooklyn," has in life is to spend every dollar of his money before he dies. Mr. Bell is doing this to spite his sons. He made a will once, cutting them off with $1 apiece, but a lawyer told him such an instrument would not stand in court, and he determined to get rid of his fortune in his own way before he died.

There was a time, and only a few years ago, when James A. H. Bell was worth fully $4,000,000. To-day he may have $400,000. He has spent and given the rest away, principal, interest and all. Now he has gone to Europe to get rid of the $400,000.

Mr. Bell's troubles began in a quarrel with his wife over the marriage of their eldest son, Charles A. Bell. The mother sided with the boy, and said he had married a good girl. This angered Mr. Bell, who didn't like the young bride. He drove his son away, and from then on Mr. and Mrs. Bell seldom spoke. The broken-hearted mother died a few years later.

John Graham Bell, another son, did not "take to business." He wanted to be a teacher of music. This angered his father, and after consulting a lawyer he entered upon the course he is now pursuing.

His Son Died in a Hospital.

John Graham Bell, the son, never prospered. Ill health and an enfeebled will made of him driftwood in life's stream. One day three months ago the stream carried him to St. Peter's Hospital. He had no money. He told the superintendent of the hospital that he was a son of the eccentric millionaire of No. 45 Sands street, the "Monte Cristo of Brooklyn." The superintendent sent bill after bill to the Sands street mansion. There was never any reply. The superintendent engaged a lawyer. At first the lawyer was diplomatic.

JAMES A. H. BELL.

"Your son is too ill to be removed from St. Peter's to a charity hospital," he wrote. "We would spare you the disgrace of sending him to such an institution. We are sure this—to you—trifling bill has escaped your attention. We are sure that with this reminder it will be promptly met."

It was not. The aged father read it in a cafe on the Champs Elysee, Paris, where he was visiting. He lit a cigar with it and laughed. It was only when his housekeeper warned him that a suit was impending that he returned from Paris. He arrived. "I will settle this matter and go back to-morrow," he said. And, though his son died that night, he kept his word. I am shaking the dust of America off my feet forever," he said, as he boarded the steamer. And as the old man crossed the dock to the vessel he could, had he chosen, seen his other son, Charles A. Bell, the dock agent.

Mr. Bell's main hobby has been to dissipate his fortune as quickly as possible. He gave a friend his yacht, one of the finest ever anchored in the Sound. His home was a great gallery of valuable paintings from abroad. He has given some of them to the Brooklyn Institute. More have gone to friends, and many to strangers. He has met several men on the street or in Prospect Park whom he has taken home and presented with a painting worth double their own fortunes. He threw gold and silver coins to children in the park, as George Francis Train does. He called passers-by into the house if their faces or manners caught his fancy and gave them pieces of the gold and silver family plate. He gave a Stradivarius violin to a little girl in London whose brother he met aboard ship.

He met persons when he was shopping and invited them to his home to look over his curios, the relics of travel, worth more than their weight in gold, and asked them to accept their choice of the collection. He presented Brooklyn Institute his library, one of the finest in America. It comprised 15,000 volumes.

Like most wealthy widowers, Mr. Bell has had trouble in the form of breach of promise suits. So great and so frequent has been this trouble that the Brooklyn Monte Cristo made his last housekeeper sign a contract promising him that she would not sue him for breach of promise before he would engage her.

Invoking the Scriptures.

The latest Mark Twain story has it that the humorist while the guest of an athletic Englishman accompanied his host on a long walk and fell into a conversation on the whole duty of man kind. Twain ended this by tapping his chest and remarking: "Mark, the perfect man." Shortly afterward, however, he grew tired and wanted to make for home, when his host quoted another scriptural passage: "Whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him, Twain." And he went.

A man has not only to fight against the possibility of what a woman finds out, but also what she dreams about him.

THE JOLLY JOKER.

Tommy—Paw, what is a pessimist? Mr. Figg—He is a man who, of two evils, prefers both.—Indianapolis Journal.

Wig—Dedbroke tells me that he hopes to marry soon. Is the girl well off? Wag—I think so; she refused him.—Philadelphia Record.

Teacher—Now, Johnny, which would you rather have your father promise to give you—a silver watch or a gold one? Johnny—A silver one, 'cause I'd think he meant it then.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Squelched.—"Sir," began the book canvasser, "I have a little work here——" "Sorry," interrupted the busy man, "but I have a great deal of work here. Good-morning!"—Chicago News.

"Well, Ned finally proposed last Sunday evening." "Was he embarrassed?" "Embarrassed? I should say so! Why, he made such hard work of it I was afraid he'd desecrate the Sabbath!"—Puck.

Parson Goodman—Oh, brethren! what shall we do to be saved? Deacon Joslyn (just back from a New York trip, and very tired)—Don't blow out the gas, and use the rope in case of fire.—Judge.

Wife (earnestly)—George, dear, I have prayed so fervently of late for a tailor-made gown that I feel it would be flying in the face of Providence not to go and get measured at once.—Brooklyn Life.

"About the hottest thing I have seen lately," Asbury Peppers remarked, as he speared the best slice of melon, "was an old salt, with a peppery temper, who had just been mustered out."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Layman—Is it true that you can never get a direct answer from a lawyer? Lawyer—I think it would depend upon what your understanding of the word "direct" is, and upon the character and disposition of the lawyer.

"Freddie, do you know what the Bible says about a lie?" asked his mother with feigned severity. "Yeth, ma'am," lisped Freddie; "a lie is an abomination unto the Lord and a very refuge in time of trouble."—Kansas City Star.

Mamma—Johnny, what did you mean by saying "No" when I asked you if you went bathing, when you knew you were telling a wrong story? Johnny—Didn't you tell me the other day to be a man and learn to say "No?"—Boston Transcript.

"It ain't only English people drops their aitches," said a little boy to the new teacher. "I never heard no American pronounsce the aitch in my name." "What is your name?" asked the teacher. "Johnny," said the little boy.—Harper's Bazar.

Mr. Uncertain—You keep a private yacht, don't you, Dubious? Mr. Dubious—Oh, yes. Mr. Uncertain—Well, next to money, what is the most important adjunct necessary to the maintenance of a craft of that kind? Mr. Dubious—Credit.—Stray Stories.

Skeptic—You still believe in spiritualism, and yet at the seance last night the medium called up your grandmother and she didn't know how many daughters she had. Believer—Oh, well, grandmother's memory was getting very poor a few days before she died.

Young lady (out yachting)—What is the matter, Captain? Quarterdeck? Captain—The fact is, my dear young lady, we've broken our rudder. Young lady—I wouldn't worry about that. The rudder is mostly under water, anyhow, you know, and it isn't likely people will notice it.

"If I give you a quarter," said the old lady, kindly, "what assurance have I that you will not immediately go off and get intoxicated?" "Madam," replied the polite tramp, "it would give me the greatest pleasure in the world to demonstrate to you that it isn't enough for the purpose."—Chicago Post.

President of the Company—I guess you'd better discharge that boy. Manager—Why? He seems to be a nice, quiet kind of a boy, and I haven't noticed that he has neglected his work. President—That's all very true, but I don't think he has the making of a financial genius in him. He's been around here for more than three weeks now and hasn't given either you or me to understand that he knows more about the business than we do.

Tourist (looking back upon a difficult bit of mountain path he has just traversed)—Ugh! that's as ugly a bit of dangerous climbing as I've ever been over. There must have been a lot of accidents there. Why don't they put up a notice board to the effect that it's dangerous? Guide—There was an accident there once, sir, and they put up a notice at the entrance to the pass; but as nobody else came and fell down the chasm they did away with the board.

"And," said the short little woman after giving her order to the waiter, as she tried in vain to touch her toes to the floor, "and, John, I want a hassock." John nodded, and, as he handed his order to the waiter, said: "Yes, and bring a hassock for the lady." The waiter did not go, but brushed the tablecloth with a towel and rearranged the articles on it several times, while his face got very red. Then he came around to John's side, and, speaking sotto voce, said: "Say, mister, I haven't been here long, and I'm not on to all these things. Will the lady have the hassock broiled or fried?"—Chicago Chronicle.

Her Sincerity to Be Doubted.

"Dear Jack, I do wish you were here this very minute."

Violets Chemically Perfumed.

As violets are much in evidence along the London thoroughfares, writes a correspondent, the following incident may be of interest. I was in a chemist's shop when a coster girl entered with a large basket of violets and set it on the floor. I bought a bunch and then noticed the chemist's assistant pass a small glass phial to the girl, the contents of which she emptied into the basket. "Tricks of trade," said the chemist, with a smile, while the merchant gave him a look of sly humor from under her hat. "What was that she bought?" I asked. "A penn'orth of wood violet," he replied. "Those French violets don't smell. They rest on moist moss in the basket, and the moist moss absorbs the perfume. That penn'orth will sell the basket." Then he told me that a "penn'orth" of musk perfume was used to improve the selling quality of pots of musk, and that he had had a hawker similarly ask: "A penn'orth of white rose, Guv'nor." As I went away I figured to my mind an old lady bending over that basket in response to the merchant's observation: "Fresh, ma'am? Just smell for yourself."—London News.

A Good-Luck Cross.

Recently discovered in the grave of Queen Dagmar is supposed to keep away evil influences. There is no more evil influence than ill health, and there is nothing which has so great a power to keep it away than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which cures dyspepsia and indigestion. A private revenue stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Natural Bridge of Agate.

The most valuable natural bridge in the world is to be found in Arizona, lying across a deep chasm forty feet in width. It is a petrified tree about four feet in diameter and about 100 feet in length. It is pure agate all through, and therefore is much more valuable as regards material than any bridge of marble or granite would be. But the most expensive material of which a bridge has ever been built is probably telegraph wire. One was built over the Jhelum River at Kohala, in the Punjaub, in the place of a bridge which was swept away by the floods in 1892. A similar bridge was constructed during the first Soudan campaign over the Kokora River for military purposes.

Niagara Falls Annual Excursion.

On Tuesday, August 15th, the Nickel Plate Road will run its Seventeenth Annual Excursion to Niagara Falls. Tickets are good returning for fifteen days. Tickets to Toronto will be sold in connection with this excursion at $1.00 extra and to the Thousand Islands at $6.50 extra. The usual privilege of stop-over at Chautauqua Lake will be granted without extra charge. Secure your Sleeping Car reservations early. Tickets good returning on any one of our Peerless Trio of Fast Express Trains. Remember the date. For further particulars inquire of Agents Nickel Plate Road.

Woes of the Cultured.

"Your daughter seems to be suffering from the heat."

"No; she's just home from college and she's prostrated by the faulty grammar."—Chicago Record.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
Is a Constitutional Cure. Price 75 cents.

One on Uncle Sam.

Stubb—That old man an artist? Why, I don't believe he could draw a straight line.

Penn—Perhaps not; but he can draw a pension.

I believe Piso's Cure is the only medicine that will cure consumption.—Anna M. Ross, Williamsport, Pa., Nov. 12, '95.

Living 16,000 Feet Above Sea Level.

The highest inhabited spot in the world is the custom house at Ancomarca, Peru, 16,000 feet above sea level.

$2.00 Fort Wayne to Chicago and return every Sunday via the Nickel Plate Road.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

When a man disputes with a fool the fool is doing the same thing.—Carlock Tribune.

"Honor is Purchased by Deeds We Do."

Deeds, not words, count in battles of peace as well as in war. It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story of its merit. It has won many remarkable victories over the arch enemy of mankind—impure blood. Be sure to get only Hood's, because

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

To Indicate Inflation of Tires.

A neat little attachment for bicycles consists of an air-pressure indicator which shows the hardness of the tire without the necessity of soiling the hands to test it, the new device consisting of a cylinder to be attached to the valve with a spring-controlled piston inside which rises as the pressure increases.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy, gives instant relief to corns and bunions. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Cures swollen feet, blisters and callous spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for ingrowing nails, sweating, hot, aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Resignated.

"Phwat koind av a horse is a cob, Larry?"

"Wan thot's raised intoirely on corn, Dinny."

The most amiable people are those who least wound the self-love of others.—Bruyere.

To Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 41,207]

"DEAR FRIEND—A year ago I was a great sufferer from female weakness. My head ached all the time and I would get so dizzy and have that all gone feeling in the stomach and was so nervous and restless that I did not know what to do with myself.

"My food did me no good and I had a bad case of whites. I wrote to you and after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as directed, I can truly say that I feel like a new woman and cannot tell you how grateful I am to you.

"I have recommended it to all my friends and have given it to my daughter who is now getting along splendidly. May you live many years to help our suffering sisters."—MRS. C. CARPENTER, 253 GRAND ST., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Over eighty thousand such letters as this were received by Mrs. Pinkham during 1897. Surely this is strong proof of her ability to help suffering women.

ATLAS OF WESTERN CANADA.

100 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Containing five splendid Maps of Canada and its Provinces, as well as a description of the resources of the Dominion, will be mailed free to all applicants desirous of learning something of the free homestead lands of Western Canada. Address F. Pedley, Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada; or C. J. Broughton, 125½ Monadnock Building, Chicago, Ill.; M. V. McInnes, No. 1 Merrill Block, Detroit, Mich.; D. Caven, Bad Axe, Mich.; James Grieve, Reed City, Mich.; Agents for the Government of Canada.

IOWA FARMS $22 PER ACRE. 5 YEARS TO PAY. CASH BALANCE 2 CROPS TO PAY.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in civil war. 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

WABASH

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS To Western Points.

August 15, Sept. 5 and 19, Oct. 3 and 17, 1899.

On the above dates the WABASH will sell from its principal stations East of Chicago and Toledo, Ill., LOW RATE HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSION Tickets to points West, South, and Southwest, granting a liberal return limit. A postal card addressed to any Wabash Ticket Agent, or to either of the following Passenger Representatives will bring you prompt and explicit information regarding rates, routes, time of trains, through car service, condition of tickets, etc., etc.

REMEMBER

The WABASH is the only line east of Chicago and St. Louis giving its patrons seats, without extra charge, in ELEGANT RECLINING CHAIR CARS running through to St. Louis and Kansas City without change.

This is your chance to go West cheap. Communicate with us.

P. E. DOMBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
A. F. WOLFSCHLAGER, P. & T. A. Detroit, Mich.
THO'S FOLLEN, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
GEO. D. MAXFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

Tell Your Printer to Use

Eagle Linen

WATERMARK

When You Order

Letter Heads and Envelopes.

If you once use it you will have nothing else.
Be sure it has the Watermark as shown above.

"The Best Is Aye the Cheapest."
Avoid Imitations of and Substitutes for

SAPOLIO

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

LADIES: The Periodical Monthly Regulator never fails; convince yourself; write for free box. NEW YORK CHEMICAL CO., Box 78, Milwaukee, Wis.

F. W. N. U. - - No. 32—'99.

When Writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought
In Use For Over 30 Years.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

WABASH

GOING EAST.

No. 2	6:25 am—Daily
No. 8	8:34 am—Daily
No. 4	4:59 pm—Daily
No. 70 (local freight)	2:05 pm—ex Su
No. 96	11:35 am—ex Su
No. 98	8:30 pm—ex Su

GOING WEST.

No. 1	10:21 am—Daily
No. 9	5:30 am—Daily
No. 3	7:48 am—Daily
No. 71 (local freight)	9:15 am—ex Su
No. 95	6:02 pm—ex Su
No. 97	7:52 am—ex Su

All these trains stop for passengers.
For rates, tickets, time tables, etc. apply to I. M. ZENT, Agent, Auburn, Ind
Chas. M. Hays, V. Pres. and Gen't Manager.
C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent

B. & O. R. R.

Schedule In Effect Nov. 22 '98
Leaves Auburn Junction.

WEST BOUND.

No. 3 Express, to Garrett only	8:53 p m
No. 5 Daily	4:30 a m
No. 7 Daily	4:17 p m
No. 17 Daily Except Suday	12:25 p m
No. 47	1:58 a m

EAST BOUND.

No. 4 Express	4:30 a m
No. 6 Daily	8:05 p m
No. 8 Daily	2:35 p m
No 14 Daily	11:17 p m
No 16, Daily, except Sunday	11:08 a m

F. D. UNDERWOOD, General Manager,
D. B. MARTIN, Manager of Passenger Traffic.
G. H. YOUNG, Auburn Junction, Ind
THOS. H. SPROTT CHAS. H. KNAPP

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE—in Effect June 25 1899.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations	Mail	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne	11 45 am	4 40 pm	5 55 am
New Era	12 12 pm	5 08	6 40
Auburn Junction	12 25	5 21	7 10
Auburn	12 29	5 25	7 35
Waterloo	12 41	5 36	8 15
Summit	12 51	5 46	8 35
Steubenville	12 54	5 49
Pleasant Lake	1 03	5 56	8 56
Angola	1 13	6 06	9 35
Jackson	3 25	8 25	2 40

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations	Fre'gt	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson dp	5 55 am	11 45 am	6 15 am
Angola	11 00	2 19 pm	8 44
Pleasant Lake	11 35	2 29	8 55
Steubenville	..	2 36	9 00
Summit	11 59	2 39	9 04
Waterloo	12 41 pm	2 55	9 23
Auburn	1 20	3 05	9 33
Auburn Junction	1 35	3 08	9 36
New Era	1 54	3 18	9 46
Fort Wayne	2 50	3 50	10 02

For rates on tickets or freight to all points call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent Auburn.

R. R. EXCURSIONS

B & O R.R.

W. C. T. U. LOW RATE EXCURSION AUG 15, TO ROME CITY, VIA B & O

There will be a grand excursion over the B. & O. to Rome City Aug. 15, in the interest of the W. C. T. U. at a very low rate, going by way of Avilla. The W. C. T. U. days there are Aug. 14 and 15, the latter being the big day. Good speakers and good music are assured, including Auburn's famous "Hoosier Quartet." M. T. Bishop of St. Joe is chairman for this Congressional district and will do all possible to make it a success.

L. S. R. R.

HALF RATE EXCURSION TO BOSTON, MASS., AUG. 11 AND 12.

On August 11 and 12 the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. will sell tickets to Boston, Mass., at half rates, good returning until August 31. Particulars from ticket agents or write to A. J. Smith, G. P. & T. A., Cleveland, Ohio. 32

Cider Mill

We will start up our cider mill in Stametstown, Auburn, August 9 and run on Wednesday and Thursday of each week till further notice.

BUHL & BAKER.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

As an honest remedy, Foley's Honey and Tar does not hold out false hopes in advanced stages, but truthfully claims to give comfort and relief in the very worst cases, and in the early stages to effect a cure.

FOR SALE.

For sale at reasonable price one 45 ft. power windmill with new force pump, tank, piping, etc. For information call at Hollister House, Auburn, Ind.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

is easily cured by the use of Beggs' Diarrhœa Balsam; it is safe and sure. H. B. McCord's drug store.

Old Settlers, at Angola, Aug. 17.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Ry. will on August 17, run a special train to Angola and return, leaving Auburn at 8:25 a. m. One fare, 54 cents for round trip. 32

Give It a Trial.

It will surprise you. It will restore the life and beauty to your hair, stops dandruff and the hair from falling out. Beggs' Hair renewer. H. B. McCord's.

Sheriff'S Sale.

By virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, in a cause wherein William McCullough, Theodore Gary, partners doing business under the firm name of Ashley Banking Company are plaintiffs, and Emma C. Yackee, Chris G. Yackee are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of Seven Hundred and Nine Dollars and Twenty-seven Cents ($709.27), with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at PUBLIC SALE, to the highest bidder on

Saturday, August 12, 1899

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., of said day, at the door of the court house in Auburn DeKalb County, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate towit:

Lot sixteen (16), block twenty-eight (28) in the town of Ashley, DeKalb county, Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN H. HATHAWAY,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana,
Auburn Indiana, July 19, 1899.

A HUSBAND SAYS:

"Before my wife began using Mother's Friend she could hardly get around. I do not think she could get along without it now. She has used it for two months and it is a great help to her. She does her housework without trouble."

Mother's Friend

is an external liniment for expectant mothers to use. It gives them strength to attend to their household duties almost to the hour of confinement. It is the one and only preparation that overcomes morning sickness and nervousness. It is the only remedy that relaxes and relieves the strain. It is the only remedy that makes labor short and delivery easy. It is the only remedy that puts the breasts in condition so that swelling or rising is impossible. Don't take medicines internally. They endanger the lives of both mother and child.

Mother's Friend is sold by druggists for $1.

Send for our free illustrated book.

The Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Thursday's Daily.

—Remember the Meese Matrimonial Reunion at Auburn, Aug. 15. tf.

—Mrs. A. F Martin of Columbia City is a guest of the COURIER family, who are relatives.

—Frank Dills is in charge of the log yard at the Auburn Hardwood Company's sawmill. He is a capable hand in any place.

—Rev. Clark has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Christian church at St. Joe and moved his family to Hillsdale.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—The marriage of Mr. Gordon and Miss Elson last evening adds another to the list on the rolls of the Meese Matrimonial Association.

—Huntington county's first month of rural free mail delivery has proved a distinct success and it is probable that the route will be extended.

—Sam Hays of Ligonier, who left two years ago for the Klondike, has returned home poorer but much wiser. The journey home required thirty-nine days.

—Mrs. Lucien Snyder and son Robert and Miss Mabel Snyder, all of South Bend, arrived yesterday for a visit with the former's aunt, Mrs. John Keeran, and family.

—Mrs. Will Leedy of Fort Wayne was entertained at dinner today by Dr. Vesta Swarts. Mr. Leedy has charge of the advertising department of the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.

—Mrs. William Walsworth entertained the ladies' missionary society of the M. E. church yesterday afternoon and surprised them with a nice lunch, every article of which was "home made." All report a most enjoyable time.

—The COURIER was on hand at the wreck and the description we give is based on what we saw and heard there. Auburn and Garrett were well represented in the crowd, and people from all the neighborhood were on hand.

—Rev. W. C. Dunlap, formerly pastor of the Lutheran church at St. Joe, has accepted a call to St. Mathew's church at Oswego, N. Y. He has many friends in this county who will be glad to learn of his advancement.

—Farmers in Franklin and Smithfield townships have lost a number of sheep during the past few weeks, and the township trustees will have to pay out quite a sum of money on account of the depredations of sheep-killing dogs.

—Alfred K. McIntosh, a young farmer of Smithfield was here last evening on some business and took in the music of Auburn's big band. He also took the opportunity to pay his weekly subscription in advance, for which he has thanks.

—The citizens of Lagro, the oldest town in Wabash county, have petitioned the town council to order a special election, looking to the surrender of the town charter. Lagro flourished in the early days of the Wabash and Erie canal, but is now retrograding.

—John Lochner, the enterprising correspondent, was at the wreck early this morning getting at the facts for his papers. He and a number of other persons had kodaks and the purchase of many of the pictures was made right then and there. They will be worth preserving.

Angola Republican:—The Auburn Daily Dispatch was discontinued last Saturday. The proprietors will continue the weekly Dispatch and devote special attention to commercial work. The Daily COURIER which started first nearly five years ago, still lives and is growing larger and better.

—One man was hurt at the wreck this forenoon. He was helping to get one of the engines in shape to be moved when the heavy driving rod came loose and fell over, striking his leg just above the ankle. No bones were broken but the limb was bruised, swelled a good deal and was quite painful. We left him holding his foot in an engine bucket of cold water and expecting a speedy cure.

—The compulsory education law, as amended by the last legislature, makes attendance at school for the entire term compulsory upon all children between the ages of six and fourteen years, except in cases of children between the ages of twelve and fourteen years, who are actively engaged in the support of themselves or those depending upon them. In their case twelve weeks' attendance will suffice, but it must be continuous.

—Waterloo Press:—Last week the writer had a very pleasant visit with Judge and Mrs. J. I. Best of Minneapolis and several members of the family. They are all pleasantly located in a beautiful city and rendered us many favors. Mr. and Mrs. B. sent their remembrance and sincere regards to all their Waterloo friends. Mrs. B. is still compelled to use a cane as a result of her fall some years since. She makes a handsome grandmother and, with her husband, is devoted to her grandchildren.

—The Columbia City Post says a neat swindle is being worked with great success in nearby towns. A woman book agent appears in towns and goes from house to house leaving books for examination. Next day a man calls to see if the books are wanted. A few days later the woman agent appears, and on being told that he has taken away the sample books, weeps copiously, says the villain had been collecting her books all over town, pleads poverty and so on, and accepts proffered compensation. That portion of our population unduly affected by woman's tears will please bear in mind that these are of superficial order and cost something—if payment is made. Let'er weep.

Friday's Daily.

—Daniel Blocher of Waterloo transacted business in Auburn today.

—Henry Fulks and daughter of Grant township were trading in town today.

—Robert Showers is making improvements on his house on South Cedar street.

—FOR SALE—Good second-hand organ; will be sold cheap. Inquire at this office.

—John Fretz of Waterloo was here today visiting his daughter, Mrs. Harry Brannan, and family.

—Mrs. A. F. Martin who has been visiting the COURIER family, returned today to her home in Columbia City.

—Miss Bessie Keeran, who has been visiting relatives here for several weeks, returned to her home in Fort Wayne yesterday.

—S. J. Brandon's house, south-east of town was struck by lightning last night and the chimney knocked off, but no other harm done.

—WANTED:—Capable man to manage a corps of canvassers. Good opportunity to right party. Address at once, KEYES, DAVIS & CO., BATTLE CREEK, MICH. 32

—There were a number of cases appealed from the Board of Review at Auburn, to the State Board of Review at Indianapolis. But they have all been withdrawn.

—A porch wedding is reported from Franklin. It took place at 8 p. m. on the front veranda of the home of the bride, Miss Lulu G. Wells. The lawn was lighted with Japanese lanterns.

—A cheap vacation trip can be taken by buying half-rate tickets to Boston, Mass. On sale August 11 and 12 over Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. Good for return until August 31. 32

—Waterloo will have a big harvest jubilee August 18 and 19 under the management of Harley Wareham and Wm. XX McDonald. There will be plenty of amusement for all who attend.

—There is no truth in the report that the conductor on the west bound train in the Cedar Creek wreck, had ran away. Mr. Zent says he was here last evening. It would do him no good to run away.

—The state horticultural society and the Noble county society, will hold a joint meeting at Island Park assembly, August 9 and 10 H. M. Widney of St. Joe is on the program to read a paper on "The Pleasures of Horticulture."

—An alleged book agent has been traveling over the southern part of the state, leaving books where he fails to sell, and taking a receipt so that he can keep track of them. The receipt turns out to be a ninety-day note for $300.

—The new building of the cement plant being built at Hayward, or near where Hayward will be, is to be 202x343 feet, built of brick and steel, and it is reported that it will be the largest and best structure of the kind in the United States.

—The editor of the Shipshewana Tribune, John W. Nusbaum, confesses that he killed a large rattlesnake in the lake there the other day. Perhaps the good editor is not aware that rattlesnakes do not live in the water, says the Goshen Democrat.

—John Lochner got a snapshot picture of the engineer of the head engine of the east-bound train in the Wabash wreck yesterday. The engineer was standing on top of his demoralized engine. Mr. Lochner has pictures of the wreck taken from many different points.

—The Richland township Sunday school association will hold a picnic in the grove one mile east of Showers' corners on Saturday, August 19. The ladies band of Waterloo has been engaged for the occasion and a general good time will be had. All are cordially invited to attend.

—Commissioner Gunsenhouser reports the barn on the James Gaff place, one and one-half miles east of Butler, struck by lightning and burned last evening. It was filled with hay and all kinds of grain and farm tools. It was a large one, 40x80 feet, and the loss is about $1,200, with some insurance.

—Clarence Arnold, a teacher in the Fort Wayne schools, and Miss Orphna Barrett were married at the "Dutch Ridge" church near Huntertown yesterday in the presence of a large number of invited guests. The newly wedded couple are prominent young people and have a wide circle of friends.

—Simps Johnson had a chance to view the remains of Leutgert, the man who is believed to have killed his wife at Chicago and boiled her remains in a soap vat. He says the body lay in state for some time so anyone could see it, and the features were so calm and pleasant to look at that it was difficult to believe him guilty of so horrible a crime.

—The aged father of Charles Bartels is visiting him now. His home is at Garrett, or at least a part of the time, as we believe he is staying a part of the time with each of his children. There are three generations named Charles; himself, Chas. Jr., and "young Chas.," besides about half the other male members of the Bartels families have the same popular name.

—Chas. Eckhart is looking as if his summer trip had benefited him, though Mrs. Eckhart found the long trip too much for her. They visited various parts of the middle states, and especially in the region where Mr. Eckhart passed his early years. But they did not find the degree of prosperity they had expected. Many farmers have become discouraged and have neglected their farms, many have even been sold at sheriff's sale. Many factories have not prospered and there is an air of despondency generally prevailing.

Saturday's Daily.

—Wm. Poorman is an old vetran who pays his paper ahead. He is now on the list of 1900.

—H. R. Culberteon, wife and daughter, Nellie, went to Wawasee today to be absent a week or so.

—Oliver Miller has been appointed postmaster at Gage, Steuben county, to succeed Salina Butler, removed.

—Little Florence Buss has been out in the country for a few days visiting her grandparents, Mr and Mrs. C. C. Buss.

—The steeple of the M. E. church at Corunna was struck in the big storm the other night and knocked off. No other damage.

—Sixty-two persons were admitted to the soldier's home at Lafayette last month and the population of the place is now over 600.

—Mrs. Alza Good of California, who has been several days visiting the relatives, went back to Butler today. She will soon return home.

—Will Heyler and wife have taken up their residence in the south one of John Lochner's new houses on Jackson-st. Mr. Lochner and family occupy the corner house.

—Frank Kircher, over at Garrett, is building a nice brick house, near where the old race track was. Picker Bros., are doing the brick work and Sol. Shearer the carpenter work.

—John Elson has a large number of snapshot pictures of the wreck, some of which go to Peru to the trainmen who were in it, so to speak. They want to see what they passed through.

—Chas. Comiskey brought a corn stalk to town this morning that measured eleven feet in length. It was cut at random from a field in which there is plenty more of the same kind.

—Mrs. Ruth Saxton is visiting the family of her daughter, Mrs. Bindhammer in Chicago. Being a constant reader of the Daily while here, of course it will be sent to her there.

—Mrs. Maud Eggleston and child of St. Louis are expected home on the evening train over the Wabash. She will visit a month or two with the family of her father, J. A. Sawyer and other relatives.

—It remains for an Elkhart genius to discover the proper place for his worn out overalls. He puts them on his horse, a pair in front and a pair behind. The animal appears grateful during the season of gad flies.

—J. W. Leonard, formerly of Fort Wayne has been promoted from second to first lieutenant in the Twenty-second United States infantry, now located at Manila. The promotion was made for gallantry in the field.

—A Marshall county farmer sowed sixty bushels of wheat last fall on twenty acres of ground and recently threshed the crop which yielded only 45 bushels. What the farmer would like to know is, what became of the other fifteen bushels.

—During the month of August you can buy the largest ironing board on the stoutest folding frame ever placed on the market for $1.00, regular price $1. 0. Manufactured by Chester Hoisington, corner of Twelfth and Van-Buren streets.

—The Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette says Architect Weatherbogg of that city has secured the contract for a new school house in Jackson township, this county, to cost $2,500. Must be some other Jackson township, as we have not heard that Trustee Dancer has any improvement of that kind under consideration.

—The Lake Shore sold 288 excursion tickets to Fort Wayne for the forenoon train alone. Besides there were a number who went down on mileage. They had a number of coaches standing here on the side track, and when these were hooked on the train had ten coaches and two baggage cars. The coaches were crowded.

—A. B. Walsworth, who acts for the DeKalb Farmers Insurance Co., was here today on the rounds to see what damage the storm had caused them. He has word of five buildings injured, but none destroyed. Phil. Gonder's barn in Wilmington, S. B. Brandon's barn in Jackson, Milt Clark's barn in Butler township; Dan. Wyatt's granary in Concord, and a building, name not learned, in Fairfield.

—Dr. J. R. Gorrell of Newton, Iowa, was in town a few hours yesterday, the guest of his old friend Joseph Rainier and family. The doctor located at Newville forty years ago where he practiced his profession until the breaking out of the war of the rebellion, during which he was surgeon of the 129th Indiana infantry. At the close of the war he went west and located at Newton where he has since resided.

Bismark's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills. They develop every power of brain and body. Only 25 cents at H. B. McCord's Drugstore.

MICA AXLE GREASE lightens the load—shortens the road.
helps the team. Saves wear and expense. Sold everywhere.
MADE BY STANDARD OIL CO.

We own and occupy the tallest mercantile building in the world. We have over 2,000,000 customers. Sixteen hundred clerks are constantly engaged filling out-of-town orders.

OUR GENERAL CATALOGUE is the book of the people—it quotes Wholesale Prices to Everybody, has over 1,000 pages, 16,000 illustrations, and 60,000 descriptions of articles with prices. It costs 72 cents to print and mail each copy. We want you to have one. SEND FIFTEEN CENTS to show your good faith, and we'll send you a copy FREE, with all charges prepaid.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO. Michigan Ave. and Madison Street CHICAGO

INCREASE OF DOSE NOT NECESSARY.

There are many medicines advertised to cure constipation and other stomach disorders which really do some temporary relief, among these are the various kind of Pills and the number of Teas. But an experience with these is almost always disappointing. Either it becomes necessary to keep increasing the dose or they become entirely inactive. Not so with DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. Its efficacy keeps up and those who give it a fair and honest trial find that it is always a friend. 10c, 50c and $1 sizes of Davenport the Druggist.

—The following tip is for those who are worried by mosquitoes and is a good thing to remember during camping out season: "Throw a bit of alum, about the size of a marble, into a bowl of water, and wet the hands and face and any exposed parts lightly with it. Not a mosquito will approach you. They hum about a little and disappear. I never had any occasion to use a mosquito curtain and am glad to think that I can perhaps benefit others (traveling in particular) by this little bit of information.

DR. LUELLA DAY UNDERHILL.

Medical Supt. Chicago Working Woman's Home writes as follows: "As a laxative and remedy for all ailments of stomach and bowels we have found nothing that acts so well as your Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. We have found it invaluable in cases of sick headache and can heartily recommend it to all sufferers from such trouble."

—Fifty years ago Mrs. Tobias Wagner, of Columbia City, attended a wedding in Kosciusko county on horseback. When she was ready to return, the groom broke off a willow twig, gave it to her, with the directions to stick it in the ground when she reached home. She did so and it grew until now—fifty years after—it stands as one of the majestic trees of Columbia City, measuring sixteen feet and two inches in circumference four inches from the ground.

THE MOST FATAL DISEASE.

More adults die of kidney trouble than any other disease. When the first symptoms of this disease appear, no time should be lost in taking Foley's Kidney Cure, which is guaranteed or money refunded: 50c and $1.

—Minneapolis is to have a tea saloon. This is an enterprise recently begun in various towns and cities, to furnish a place of refreshment for laboring men, with a view to preventing the consumption of alcoholic beverages. Good tea is furnished at one cent per cup.

HUMBUGS

are they who tell you other cough syrups are just as good as Beggs' Cherry Cough Syrup. If you can not get it from your druggist notify us at once and on receipt of 25 cents we will send you a bottle. Guaranteed. H. B. McCord's.

—Forty-five counties in prohibition Kansas possessing poorhouses and farms, are without a single pauper, and in thirty-seven counties there were no criminals for trial in the district courts.

YOU ought to know that when suffering from any kidney trouble that a safe, sure remedy is Foley's Kidney cure. Guaranteed or money refunded.

—A resident in Kendallville was twice struck by lightning during the storm Thursday night, disproving the old adage that lightning never strikes more than once in the same place.

WHEELMEN

should never be without a box of Beggs' German Salve; it gives instant relief. Heals sores, cuts, bruises and chafing. H. B. McCord's drug store.

Meese Matrimonial Meeting.

Remember the date and place of the annual meeting of the Meese Matrimonial Reunion. It is at Auburn on the fair ground east of town, August 15. All come with baskets and the whole family, and have the best meeting we have had.

CHAUTAUQUA MEETING

Mountain Lake Park, Md., Aug. 2-30, '99
Half Fare via B. & O. Railroad.

August 1 to 30 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Mountain Lake Park at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Mountain Lake Park August 31.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or, B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 34

Junk Wanted

Please save your money. Don't forget to bring all your junk to H. Greenberg, three blocks north of M. E. church in Auburn, who pays

Best Cash Prices

for rags, rubber, copper, brass, zinc, lead, scrap iron and all kinds of hides and furs. Also buys and sells second-hand material, stoves and furnaces, etc. Persons having second-hand material to buy or sell, it will be to their interest to see H. Greenberg.

William's Kidney Pills

Has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your Kidneys? Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your Kidneys and Bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire pass urine? William's Kidney Pills will impart new life to the diseased organs, tone up the system and make a new man of you. By mail 50 cents per box.
WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Fort Wayne BUSINESS COLLEGE,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Latest and Best Methods.
The Best Equiped.
Superior Courses in all Branches.
Book-keeping, Shorthand, Penmanship, Typewriting, Banking Telegraphy and English.

You Want Success, Write Us for Full Particulars and Circulars.

E. D. DOUGLASS, Pres.

MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

They overcome Weakness, Irregularity and Omissions, Increase vigor and banish "pains of menstruation." They are "Life Savers" to girls at womanhood, aiding development of organs and body. No known remedy for women equals them. Cannot do harm—life becomes a pleasure. $1 per box by mail. Sold by druggists. MOTT CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

Rotary Motion and Ball Bearings.

Mott's Nerverine Pills

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. $1.00 per box by mail; 6 boxes for $5.00.
MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Prop'rs, Cleveland, Ohio.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Volume XXIX | Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, Thursday, August 17, 1899. | Number 33.

J.E. Graham, D.D.S.
DENTIST
Over Davenport's Drugstore, Auburn, Ind.
CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK A SPECIALTY.
All Work Guaranteed — Gas Administered.
CENTRAL 'PHONE 513.
Will be at Waterloo each Thursday in Dr. Darby's Office.

C. S. SMITH,
Auburn, Ind.
Attorney-at-Law
AND NOTARY PUBLIC.
Office over Bazar Store, formerly occupied by Judge Hartman.

Sprott & Knapp,
Abstracters of Titles to Land and Lots,
AUBURN, IND.
☞Office in Gandy Block, North of Court House.

BANK First National
Auburn, Ind.
Capital Stock and Surplus
$60,000
Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest if left six months. County and Town Orders bought and sold. Money to Loan.
CHARLES McCLELLAN, President.
D. A. GARWOOD, Cashier.

Physicians T.G.Matheny, M.D J.B.Casebeer, M.D
Matheny & Casebeer
have again associated themselves in the practice of Medicine, Surgery & Obstetrics. Office On 9th St.
Western 'Phone:
Office ..... No. 9
Matheny's residence ..... " 88
Casebeer's " ..... " 175

BANK Farmers,
Auburn, Ind.
(Incorporated and Under State Control)
Capital Stock and Surplus
$50,000
Transacts a General Banking Business and Pays Interest on Time Deposits.
Albert Robbins, Pres J. C. Henry, V-res.
A. C. ROBBINS Cashier.

Physicians D. L. Swarts, M. D. Vesta W. Swarts, M. D
and SURGEONS
Office at Auburn Sanitary Baths, corner Main and Sixth Streets.
Professional Calls Promptly Answered.
'PHONES: Western ..... No. 19 Central Union ..... No. 19

DENTIST F. W. HOFFMAN,
Auburn, Ind.
Office in Gandy Building, Northeast Corner of Court Square.
WESTERN 'PHONE 103.
Crown and Bridge Work a Specialty

P. V. HOFFMAN,
LAWYER,
Auburn. Indiana
OFFICE over Hebel's Grocery.

Dr. Z. H. Stamets,
Physician & Surgeon
Office on Main St., opposite Swineford Hotel.
Western 'Phone 104
Special attention given to techinal examinations and treatment of chronic and obscure cases, also special attention given to surgery and diseases of women. Calls answered at all hours. Office apart from residence.

I. O. BUCHTEL, HOMEOPATHIC
Physician and Surgeon.
Special attention given to hronic and Obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.
Office and residence over Madden Bros Marble Works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, day or night.

Convincing Argument.

"What was your father whipping you for last night?" asked one small boy of another. "Oh," replied the other, "we had an argument about my Sunday school lesson, and he was proving to me that the whale actually did swallow Jonah!"—Troy Times.

In France, during the period of the Capetain and Valois dynasties, the year began with Easter.

ABOUT WHAT IT WILL COST

To Run Our County Government During the Coming Year.

The officers of DeKalb county, in accordance with the new reform law, this week filed with the county auditor their estimates of amounts of money necessary to operate their offices during the coming fiscal year. The following are the figures, which will be submitted to the county council at the annual meeting, which will be held on Tuesday, September 5.

COUNTY CLERK.

Salary	$ 2,400 00
Stationery and supplies	700 00
Other expenses	300 00
Court expenses	8,276 00
Insanity inquisitions	880 00
Change of venue cases	1,500 00
Total	$14,056 00

COUNTY AUDITOR.

Salary	$2,500 00
Clerk of county board	600 00
Stationery and supplies	561 90
Other expenses	980 00
Total	$4,641 90

COUNTY TREASURER.

Salary	$2,100 00
Stationery and supplies	405 25
Other expenses	100 00
Total	$2,605 25

COUNTY SHERIFF

Salary	$2,300 00
Stationery and supplies	295 00
Other expenses	20 00
Total	$2,615 00

COUNTY RECORDER.

Salary	$1,500 00
Stationery and supplies	198 50
Other expenses	40 00
Total	$1,748 50

COUNTY SURVEYOR.

Salary	$ 939 00
Probable deputy hire	1,244 00
Stationery	75 00
Other expenses	320 00
Total	$2,578 00

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT.

Salary	$1,240 00
Stationery and supplies	108 50
Other expenses	97 80
Total	$1,446 30

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

The following are the estimates made by the board of commissioners to cover the general expenses of the county for the year.

Court House and Jail:—
Janitor	$ 360 00
Incidentals	325 00
Lighting and heating	490 00
Board, clothing and washing for prisoners	800 00
Total	$1,975 00
County Asylum:—
Repairs to buildings	$ 200 00
Merchandise	1,200 00
Superintendent	600 00
Employes	750 00
Medical attendance	100 00
Burial of inmates	75 00
Total	$3,025 00
Care of orphan children	$ 100 00
Bridges:—
New bridges	$5,320 00
Bridge repairs	1,140 00
Total	$6,460 00
Commissioners Court:—
Salary of commissioners	$1,125 00
Expense of bailiff	100 00
Other expenses	75 00
Total	$1,300 00
County Attorney:—
Salary	$ 100 00
Special services	250 00
Total	$ 350 00
Repairs free gravel roads	$ 50 00
Election expenses	1,900 00
Benevolent Institutions:—
Hospital for insane	$ 500 00
Deaf and dumb	50 00
Feeble-minded youth	150 00
Reform school for boys	150 00
Reform school for girls	175 00
Total	$1,025 00
Publication delinquent tax list, etc	$ 100 00
Board of review	310 00
Miscellaneous	2,185 00

The total estimated cost of aid to poor for the county is $3,965, the amounts ranging from $10 in Butler township to $1,000 in Union. The above figures show a grand total for the county of $52,434 20. To this must be added the estimates of the coroner and county assessor, which have not yet been filed but probably will be within the next few days. It is safe to say that when the final footings are made the total will be under $55,000.

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents at H. B. McCord's drug store. Every bottle guaranteed.

Mightiest of Streams.

The latest estimate of the quantity of warm water flowing northward through the Atlantic in the form of the gulf stream makes it many times as great as all the water discharged into the oceans by all the streams and rivers of the earth.

Here's a few items which may interest you. May seem a little early, but if you expect to buy later why not buy now and get first pick? We are showing an exceptionally pretty line of the nicest assortment we've had in several years.

New Fall Prints

A complete stock of

New Fall Hats

In this line you will find all the new shapes and colorings and at the prices you wish to pay.

A magnificent lot of

New Fall Neckwear

Clubs, Tecks, Flowing Ends, Band Bows and Puffs, made right in every respect and color which you cannot help admiring. Call in and look them over whether you wish to purchase or not.

A fine assortment of NEW SUSPENDERS. More styles and prettier designs than ever.

OVER TWENTY PATTERNS NEW FALL CARPETS. Those who have had a peek at them say they are the prettiest they have ever seen.

A big stock of BOYS' CLOTHING, beyond doubt the most desirable we have yet shown.

We are offering Shirt Waists, Wash Dress Goods and Summer Clothing at unheard of prices.

Come often.

We Are Saving You Money.

Schaab & Bro.,
Auburn, Ind.

Administratrix' Sale.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Silas B. Johnston deceased, will offer at public auction at the residence of the decedent in the town of Auburn, in DeKalb county, Indiana, on the personal property of said estate, consisting of household furniture, beds and bedding, carpets, dental furniture, tools and stock, iron safe, buggy, and other articles too numerous to mention specifically. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock a. m.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1899,

TERMS:—Sums of five dollars and under, cash; over five dollars a credit of nine months will be given, by the purchaser giving his note with interest from maturity, waiving relief from valuation and appraisement laws, and with approved security.

MARY E. JOHNSTON, Administratrix.
J. E. & J. H. Rose, Atty's for Estate. 33-43

To Make Life Happy.

Sweet music appeals to the heart and soul and lightens many of life's burdens. If you have ever heard the sweet-toned Steger Piano you will appreciate this. To reach the highest standard of excellence has always been the aim in the manufacture of the celebrated Steger Piano. Only the best material is used, insuring great durability. Every piano fully guaranteed.

The Steger factories, thoroughly equipped with the best and most improved machinery, located at Steger, Ill., are among the largest in the West.

Intending purchasers will find it profitable to write for a full descriptive catalogue, which will be mailed free upon application. STEGER & Co., (Established 1879.) Chicago, Ill.

August Flower.

"It is a surprising fact," says Prof. Houton, "that in my travels in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's August Flower than any other remedy, for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feelings from irregular habits exist, that Green's August Flower is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion." Sample bottles free at O. P. Raber's, Corunna. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. 1

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court as administratrix of the estate of SILAS B. JOHNSTON, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MARY E. JOHNSTON, Administratrix.
July 25, 1899.
Rose & Rose, Attorneys for Estate.

WABASH

GOING EAST.

No. 2	6:25 am	Daily
No. 8	8:34 am	Daily
No. 4	4:59 pm	Daily
No. 70 (local freight)	2:05 pm	ex Su
No. 96	11:35 am	ex Su
No 98	8:30 pm	ex Su

GOING WEST.

No. 1	10:21 am	Daily
No. 9	5:30 am	Daily
No. 3	7:48 am	Daily
No. 71 (local freight)	9:15 am	ex Su
No. 95	6:02 pm	ex Su
No. 97	7:52 am	ex Su

All these trains stop for passengers.
For rates, tickets, time tables, etc. apply to I. M. ZENT, Agent, Auburn, Ind
Chas. M. Hays, V. Pres. and Gen't Manager.
G. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent

B. & O. R. R.
Schedule In Effect Nov. 22 '98
Leaves Auburn Junction.

WEST BOUND.

No. 3 Express, to Garrett only	5:58 p m
No. 5 Daily	4:30 a m
No. 7 Daily	4:17 p m
No. 17 Daily Except Suday	12:25 p m
No. 47	1:58 a m

EAST BOUND.

No. 4 Express	4:20 a m
No. 6 Daily	6:05 p m
No. 8 Daily	9:25 p m
No 14 Daily	11:17 p m
No 16, Daily, except Sunday	11:08 a m

F. D. UNDERWOOD, General Manager.
Q. B. MARTIN, Manager of Passenger Traffic.
G. H. YOUNG, Auburn Junction, Ind
THOS. H. SPROTT CHAS. H. KNAPP

L. S. & M. S. R. R.
TIME TABLE—in Effect June 25 1899

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations	Mail	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne	11 45 am	4 40 pm	5 55 am
New Era	12 12 pm	5 08	6 40
Auburn Junction	12 25	5 21	7 10
Auburn	12 29	5 25	7 35
Waterloo	12 41	5 36	8 15
Summit	12 51	5 46	8 35
Steubenville	12 54	5 49
Pleasant Lake	1 08	5 56	8 56
Angola	1 12	6 00	9 25
Jackson	2 25	8 25	2 40

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations	Fre'gt	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson	dp 5 45 am	11 45 am	6 15 am
Angola	11 00	2 10 pm	8 44
Pleasant Lake	11 35	2 29	8 55
Steubenville		2 36	9 10
Summit	11 50	2 39	9 04
Waterloo	12 41 pm	2 55	9 23
Auburn	1 20	3 05	9 33
Auburn Junction	1 35	3 09	9 38
New Era	1 54	3 18	9 46
Fort Wayne	2 50	3 50	10 02

For rates on tickets or freight to all points call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent Auburn.

Working Night and Day

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar-coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by H. B. McCord's drugstore.

HAPPENINGS OF THE DAY.

Latest News by Wire Taken from Saturday's Daily.

There is a report of renewed trouble in the Samoan Islands.

Reports from Ponce, Porto Rico, are that 500 lives were lost by the great hurricane.

The British are preparing 12,000 troops to go from India to South Africa in case the Boers do not settle down.

Latest from the Indian war in Northern Mexico is that the Mexicans have defeated a large body of the Yaquis in a pitched battle.

—According to the reports made to the state authorities there are from 75,000 to 80,000 people in Indiana who receive aid as paupers.

The revolution in Santo Domingo is spreading. A body of soldiers sent by the government to disperse a body of rebels, deserted their commander, and went over to the enemy.

The great storm that has been sweeping the islands of the East and West Indies, has proved very destructive. Yesterday it struck the island of Porto Rico, and destroyed a great deal of property, and several lives were lost.

On Friday, yesterday, there was another forward movement against the Filipinos. Gen. McArthur with a strong force marched from Calulut ten miles through mud and water caused by heavy rains and surprised a strong force of the enemy at Santa Rita. The Filipinos made but little show of fight.

Hard storms are reported in various parts of the United States. In Dakota much wheat is not cut and some is in the shock. Several counties have been storm swept, and half the crop of wheat and oats destroyed. About half of it was insured. It appears they insure their standing grain.

The belief now is that the famous Dreyfus case will last at least a month. Its great importance and the great interest felt in the outcome, make it advisable to go over the ground fully and carefully. Today was to be an open session of the court and Gen. Mercier who was minister of war at the time of the first trial, will be called as a witness.

Capt. W. R. Myers, late Secretary of of State and well known all over Indiana, had an exciting time at his home at Anderson Thursday. A telephone pole was being put up on a spot in front of his house, that he objected to, and he drove the men away with a big stone. The Captain carries his point generally, and he is so far, ahead in this case.

The report of U. S. Pension Commissioner Evans, shows the total paid out in the last year is $138,253,923. The amount appropriated was $140,000,000. The total number of pensioners are 991,519, a decrease in the year of 2,195, because 43,186 names had been dropped and only 40,991 new names added. Out of 111,387 claims filed in the year, 89,054 certificates were issued.

The survivors of the Klondike gold hunters who tried to reach the gold fields by a new route known as the Edmonton trail have returned to Wrangel, Alaska. They report great suffering and blame speculative steam boat owners and other interested parties, for inducing them to try a new route, and one that was too dangerous to attempt. Many perished. It was impossible to get through on that route and they came back penniless.

Red Hot From The Gun

Was the ball that hit G. B. Steadman of Newark, Mich., in the Civil War. It caused horrible Ulcers that no treatment helped for 20 years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him. Cures Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Boils, Felons, Corns, Skin Eruptions. Best Pile cure on earth. 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist.

Expenditures and Tax Levies

FOR THE YEAR 1900.

The Trustee of Butler township, DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board, at its annual meeting, to be held at the school house in School District No.—the following estimates and amounts for said year:

1. Township expenditures $500.00, and township tax 4 cents on the hundred dollars.

2. Local tuition expenditures $500.00, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

3. Special school tax expenditures, $668.00, and tax 10 cents on the hundred dollars.

4 Road tax expenditures, $1491.00, and tax 25 cents on the hundred dollars.

5. Additional road tax expenditures, $250.00, and tax 5 cents on the hundred dollars.

6. Library expenditures, .. ., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

7. Poor expenditures for preceding year, $58.77, and tax 1 cents on the hundred dollars.

8. Other items, if any, expenditures, ..., and tax .. cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $3117.77, and total tax 50 cents on the hundred dollars.

Signed, A. N. THRUSH, Trustee.
Dated August 9, 1899.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Heard at the Band Stand

"A Chiel's amang ye, takin' notes, An' faith he'll print it."—ROBERT BURNS.

CHAPTER III.

When the COURIER reporter next met with the Colony at the Band Stand the personnel had somewhat changed. The Story Teller had joined them and been initiated, though not by the process in vogue at the Pfefferl rooms where the other club meets.

The Traveling Man had stirred the members to a laugh by a short note.

While enroute home over the Lake Shore on the main line lately he remembered, being awakened by the lustly call of the brakeman. "Wanseon, Wanseon," when a half sleeping German roused up and snorted out, "Ya, He was on, but he got him off already at Toledo."

That reminded the Citizen of Tom Sprott's story.

Tom was at Chicago, and passing along by an Italian fruit stand, was tempted to invest in some lovely California pears. The Dago was waiting on another customer and Tom saw him count out six luscious pears, and receive for them, 25 cents. The price looked reasonable and Tom duplicated the other man's order. The fruit was counted out and Tom handed out his quarter. The Dago said "Fifta cents." Tom was astonished, but the son of sunny Italy insisted, for did he not recognize in Tom's well kept appearance, one of the millionaires so common in free America. Tom argued the question, while the first purchaser stood by to see how it would terminate. The fruit vendor kept saying "fifta cents alwa", when Tom turned to the first purchaser and asked: "Didn't you get your six pears for a quarter?" "Of course I did," said the man, that's the price now." "There," said Tom, "Do you hear that?" The Dago grabbed the quarter, handed out the six pears, with a fiery. "Here, taka de G—d d—ma pears," and Tom came home and told the joke to someone.

After discussing for a time, the fact that the J. L. Davis property had paid $2200 into the Coffinberry bondsmen fund, they agreed generally that if all would chip in their share, this old matter would soon be forever closed.

Nearly everyone in the Band Stand colony had read and pondered over the big letters on that Waterloo bill, so generously posted up over town. And there was one clause, that none could understand, not even the Traveling Man. The bill reads that every one ought to come and have a good time. Then another sentence started out well but stopped short in the middle It was a puzzle. They finally decided that no one but Jack Ralston could explain it, and he was sent for.

Pending his arrival they took another whack at the big square well east of the jail.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Another Victim.

Sheriff Hathaway has a new name on the register at the county boarding house, that of James Budd, formerly a private in Company K of the 157th Indiana regiment, who like his friend William Sherlock ran up against that section of law which provides punishment for those who buy liquor for minors. It seems that on or about January 5, 1899, Budd purchased and gave to one Addie Dills, a female under the legal age, a quantity of beer. A warrant was issued for his arrest but he succeeded in evading the officers until yesterday afternoon, when Constable Quince, accompanied by Marshal Hilkey, trailed him from an up-town saloon to the Junction. When accosted by his old army comrade, the marshal, Budd seemed awful glad to meet him, but when confronted by the warrant in the hands of the constable soon changed his tune. He came along willingly, however, and when arraigned before Esquire Walter entered a plea of guilty to the charge and was fined $20, the lowest amount under the law. The fine and costs aggregated $29.50, which Budd will "board out" at the county bastile.

SCROFULA
thin blood, weak lungs and paleness. You have them in hot weather as well as in cold.
SCOTT'S EMULSION cures them in summer as in winter. It is creamy looking and pleasant tasting.
50c. and $1.00; all druggists.

Minus a Wheel.

Last Monday a man giving his name as Gordon and claiming to reside at or near Garrett, rented a bicycle from Marion Willis, ostensibly to go to that place and promising to return by six o'clock that evening. Tuesday came and still the man and wheel were missing when Mr. Willis began an investigation. It was learned that Gordon began work on the sewer Monday morning but was discharged after a few hours, but neither Mr. Willis or Sheriff Hathaway were able to learn his whereabouts after leaving Auburn, and so far he has not been heard from.

The wheel was a Clipper, manufactured at Grand Rapids, Mich., and was numbered 11,663. It developed that while here Gordon made his home with William Shellhouse, on the avenue, but the family knew nothing about where he had gone. Mr. Willis has sent a description of the stolen wheel to agencies and repair shops in outside towns and may be fortunate enough to recover his property.

Struck by a Wheel.

It is a question which had more experience in a given time last evening, M. B. Masters or a wheelman who ran into and over him. He had been down near the Junction and was coming up the road home after dark, when a number of wheelmen came up behind him. Some of them passed him, and he was walking at one side of the road, when another struck him fairly and knocked him over. The wheelman also fell violently, but was not hurt, though the handles of the wheel were bent. The night was quite dark, but one would think that in such a plain road, a collision is not necessary. One danger is, that so many wheelmen look down, rather than ahead, and we suppose it was this that prevented him from seeing Mr. Masters.

New School House

Trustee Dancer, of Jackson will build a school house in Dist. No. 1. This was the only school house he has had that was not on the right section corner. Now he puts in half a mile south of the old site, and that brings it in the right place. It is a fine site as can be found in the county. He will try a new experiment and one that may prove valuable. He will have a good basement under it and put in a modern heater. He believes it will be a saving of fuel, and be every way more satisfactory. The heat will be better distributed, will take less labor, and there will be no litter on the floor, from the wood brought in. Other trustees will watch this experiment with interest.

Millions Given Away.

It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who are not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs are surely cured by it. Call on H. B. McCord, druggist, and get a free trial bottle. Regular size 50c and $1. Every bottle guaranteed or price refunded.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned administrator of the estate of Edward Freeman deceased, will sell at public auction, at the residence of Alexander S. Freeman in Jackson township, in DeKalb county, Indiana, on the personal property of said estate, consisting of growing grain, cows, hogs, household and kitchen furniture, wheat, corn, oats, poultry and other articles. Sale to begin at 10 o'clock a. m.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1899,

TERMS:—Sums of five dollars and under, cash; over five dollars, a credit of eight months will be given, purchaser giving note with approved security, waiving relief from valuation and appraisement laws, with interest after maturity.

ALEXANDER S. FREEMAN, Administrator
J. E. & J. H. Rose, Att'ys for Estate. 33-43

Notice to Bidders.

Notice is hereby given that I, Wilson S. Dancer, trustee of Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, will let to the lowest responsible bidder, the contract to construct and erect a new brick school-house in School District No. one (1) of said township, in accordance with the plans and specifications therefor now on file in my office, and which said plans and specifications are open to the inspection of all intending bidders.

Sealed bids for said work will be received at my office until 2 o'clock p. m. of Saturday, the 2d day of September, 1899, when all bids will be opened and publicly read.

I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated this 8th day of August, 1899.

WILSON S. DANCER,
Trustee Jackson Township.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNES, - - PUBLISHER.

1899. AUGUST. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
•	•	1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30	31	•	•
•	•	•	•	•	•	•

N. M. 6th. F. Q. 14th. F. M. 20th. L. Q. 27th.

CIRCLING THE GLOBE

CONCISE HISTORY OF SEVEN DAYS' DOINGS.

Intelligence by Electric Wire from Every Quarter of the Civilized World, Embracing Foreign Affairs and Home Happenings.

Vapor Bath Explodes.

The Rev. G. W. Martin, pastor of Grant Street M. E. Church, Hartford City, Ind., met with an accident that will cost his life. He was using a patent vapor bath device, when an explosion occurred. The rubber covering which encircled all but his head, took fire, and his naked body was frightfully burned before assistance reached him, and he could not be released. The explosion was caused by adding turpentine and vinegar to the solution which produces the vapor.

Four Firemed Killed.

Four firemen lost their lives in a blaze on an upper floor of the Mercer Chemical Company's building at Eleventh and Harney streets, Omaha, Neb. The fire in itself was insignificant, the fatalities resulting from contact with a live wire. The dead firemen are Joseph Adams, lieutenant of No. 3 engine company; Otto Geiseke, tillerman of the big truck; George Benson, pipeman, No. 3 engine company; Charles Hopper, relief driver, No. 3 engine company.

Terrible Work of Cyclones.

Ponce (Porto Rico) special: A hurricane struck here at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning and lasted until 3 p. m. The rivers overflowed, flooding the town. It is estimated that 200 persons were drowned.

The town and port are total wrecks. It is believed that the damage done will amount to $500,000. No news has been received from the interior since the storm broke.

Bullets Instead of Food.

The Vienna Neue Freie Presse says the peasantry of portions of Bessarabia, a government of Russia, bounded on the south by the Danube and the Black Sea, have revolted, being desperate by famine. Troops, it is added, have been sent there, and several encounters have taken place. A score of peasants have already been killed and many have been wounded.

Fatal Railway Wreck.

Ottawa special: The Ottawa express on the Canada Atlantic Railroad, was wrecked near Coteau junction while running at a fast rate. The engine left the track, taking with it the baggage car and a second-class coach. The first-class coach and two Pullmans did not leave the track. Seven people were killed. A number were injured, but none of them seriously.

That New Triple Alliance.

Rio de Janeiro special: In spite of denials on the subject, it is said that President Roca of the Argentine Republic, who is now here as the guest of Brazil, is desirous of negotiating an alliance between Argentina and Brazil and Chili against the United States. The Presidents of these republics will meet at Buenos Ayres next month.

Merritt Denies a Rumor.

Since the visit of Gen. Wesley Merritt to Secretary Root, in New York, rumors have been current that Gen. Merritt will succeed Gen. Otis in the Philippines. Gen. Merritt says: "Any story that I may succeed Gen. Otis in the Philippines is without foundation. If I am ordered to Manila I will obey orders."

Boy Is Suffocated.

The 12-year-old son of Marshall Mowrer of Servia, Wabash County, Ind., was killed while playing about the Chicago and Erie Railroad elevator at that place. The boy jumped into an oat bin from which the grain was being drawn, and was carried down and suffocated before help could reach him.

China Yields to Uncle Sam.

According to Hong Kong advices an agreement has been reached between Great Britain and the Chinese Government that the United States shall have an executive settlement at Hankow.

A Million Dollar Loss.

Valparaiso (Chili) special: A tidal wave burst into the bay, tearing down the embankment and sweeping off a number of cars, locomotives and tons of merchandise. The loss is estimated at a million dollars.

Quarantine Raised.

A dispatch from Ponta Delgrada, Azores Islands, says: The quarantine against the United States vessels has been withdrawn, except in the case of ships coming from Virginia ports.

Filipinos Want $7,000,000.

A Madrid cablegram says: It is asserted that the Filipinos demand $7,000,000 for the release of the Spanish prisoners in their hands.

Five Children Cremated.

Five negro children were burned to death on McKewan's plantation, near Jackson La. The parents locked them up in their house and went to church. On their return the charred remains of the little ones were found.

The Pope Ill.

Vienna special: The Allegemeine Zeitung says that the pope is ill, in consequence of the great heat, and has had several fainting fits.

Dr. Lapponi, his physician, was hastily summoned.

Actor's Little Child Killed.

At Los Angeles, Cal., a 3-year-old daughter of Lawrence Hanley, the actor, was crushed to death under a trolley car. The child was crossing the street with other children and, becoming bewildered at the rapid approach of the car, ran across the track.

Detroit Match Factory Sold.

Edwin Gould's match factory at Detroit, known as that of the Continental Match Company, has been closed suddenly. The plant, for which Gould paid about $200,000, has been sold to the Diamond Match Company for $750,000, according to rumor.

FEW FAILURES DURING JULY.

Good Business Conditions Are Reported by R. G. Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say: "July failures have been smaller than in any month of which there is record excepting May, and trading failures smaller than in any other month. London again recognizes the financial power of this country. The Bank of England virtually admits that it cannot draw from New York the gold it needs; exchange moves to the importing point; over $1,000,000 starts from Sydney to San Francisco. London's net buying of stocks has been 40,000 shares, and bills against produce to be shipped are very heavy. This describes a revolution in finances not unlike that in industries. Europe searching for wool here at 50 cents scoured and for pig iron at $20 a ton. A vast demand for both materials has fallen upon the commercial world, which this country alone appears able to meet for its own needs. Wool shipments from Australia have been surprisingly little below those of last year, but Europe talks of a wool famine, while this country has on hand a year's consumption or more, besides this year's clip, and prices are not yet as high as they were in February of last year, when stocks were many million pounds larger. Failures for the week have been 182 in the United States, against 196 last year, and 23 in Canada, against 21 last year."

PANIC AMONG THE PASSENGERS.

Niagara Falls Excursion Train Narrowly Escapes Disaster.

A heavily loaded Niagara Falls excursion train on the Lake Erie and Western road had a most miraculous escape from being wrecked at the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago crossing at Lima, Ohio. The train was the fourth section and was composed of chair and day coaches, occupied by excursionists from Indiana and Illinois. There were twelve coaches in the train, which had started to pull out, when a switch engine on the other road backed up toward the crossing with a gondola car ahead of the engine. When the engineer discovered the Lake Erie and Western train had the target he suddenly stopped. The patent coupler was broken by the sudden application of the air and the car shot forward and crashed into the fifth car of the excursion train, which, fortunately, did not leave the track. The passenger train had just begun to pick up speed and was not stopped until the truss rods, equalizers and steps had been torn off four coaches, creating a panic among the passengers, but, fortunately, no one was injured, although the platforms were filled with people.

DIVORCE RUSH IN OKLAHOMA.

Revival of the Once Flourishing Business in That Territory.

The rush of divorce seekers to Oklahoma has begun again. At the opening of that country the first Legislature passed a very liberal divorce law, and thousands of people from New York City and other large cities of the East, and even from London, rushed to the territory, and after a three months' stay, entered suit for divorce from an objectionable husband or wife. The rich and the poor alike availed themselves of the liberal divorce provisions of the law to get a divorce, but Congress two years ago knocked the business in the head by passing a law making it necessary for a residence of one year before divorce suit could be filed. This law, from all indications, was passed in the interest of South Dakota, but the Legislature of South Dakota passed a law making it necessary to reside in the State one year before suit for divorce could be filed, hence the rush to that State has stopped, and Oklahoma once more will be the divorce Mecca.

RACE RIOT IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

One White Man and Five Negroes Wounded During the Melee.

A race riot occurred at the Poe cotton mills near Greenville, S. C., in which one white man and five negroes were wounded. Reports were circulated among the negroes that one of their race had been lynched, and 300 of them appeared at the mills. Messengers summoned white men from Greenville and a pitched battle ensued. Ben Odom was the only white man wounded. The names of the five wounded negroes are unknown, as they were immediately taken off by members of their race to prevent their arrest.

MOTHER SLAYS HER DAUGHTER.

Murder at Canton, Ohio, Caused by a Young Girl's Love Affair.

Ruth Swartz, aged 16 years, was killed by her mother, Mrs. Catherine Wise, at Canton, Ohio. The murderer then went a mile and a half and threw herself into a pool of water at an abandoned stone quarry. The facts brought out by an investigation of the county coroner are that the young girl had loved in an unfortunate way. During the night the mother arose, went downstairs and slashed her daughter's throat with a razor, which was left lying on a table in the room.

Tossed by a Locomotive.

Gus Egloff, the famous bicycle rider, escaped death by the fraction of a second. While completing a triple century on Long Island the wheelman dashed in front of a locomotive. As he passed a cylinder of the locomotive smashed into his rear wheel, crushing it to pieces. The impact was so great that Egloff was thrown fifteen feet in the air.

Range War Growing Serious.

Northeastern Colorado is the scene of a war between sheepmen and cattlemen. Four horsemen, carefully disguised, rode into some large flocks of sheep belonging to the Warren Live Stock Company of Cheyenne, which were being grazed along Two Mile creek. The men were well armed and shot and killed 150 sheep and badly crippled twenty-five more.

Car Blown Up in Cleveland.

A Wade Park avenue electric car of the Big Consolidated line in Cleveland was blown up near the Euclid avenue barns. The car was badly torn. The motorman was badly hurt. There was one passenger on the car, but he escaped injury.

Doctor Dies on the Street.

Dr. C. W. Adams, a prominent Kansas City physician, who was one of the founders of the University Medical College of that city and for five years dean of the faculty, died on the street from an overdose of chloral.

Southern Pacific Express Ditched.

The engine and a portion of a southbound Los Angeles express train on the Southern Pacific Railroad were derailed near Don Palos, Cal. Engineer C. J. Ford is reported to have been killed.

Five Drowned in River.

By the capsizing of a row boat on the Patapsco river, near Baltimore, the following persons were drowned: Andrew Deems, William J. Lyman, James Walsh, Edward Garry and Mrs. Hoover.

Chicago Tie-Up is Ended.

After a tie-up of eleven days the sympathetic strike of the building trades in Chicago has been called off.

Another Movement to Liberia.

Recently J. H. Johnson of South McAlester, I. T., one of the leading and progressive negroes of the territory, called a meeting there, the result of which was the drawing up of a petition praying the general government to aid colored people in emigrating to Liberia. The petition has been numerously signed and will be presented to Congress.

SECRET DIED WITH HIM.

Miner Leading a Party to Rich Gold Fields Is Drowned.

John F. Robertson and a party of eleven prospectors, who set out from Dawson City a year ago to prospect along the Porcupine river, returned to the Klondike recently in an emaciated condition. They reached Dawson on the steamer Sault Ste. Marie, which picked them up at the confluence of the Porcupine and Yukon. The unfortunate prospectors left Dawson because of the report of a miner who came in from the headwaters of the Porcupine and told of rich finds there. The Robertson party, led by the miner, started for the scene of his reported finds, but during their journey the miner was drowned, and although they searched the country thoroughly, Robertson and his party failed to find a trace of the dead man's El Dorado. They were finally taken on board a whaler, where they spent the winter.

TRANSVAAL ROW IS SMALL.

Ill Treatment of an American in the African Republic Not Serious.

The reported indignity to an American citizen at Johannesburg, South Africa, arising out of his being mistaken for a Kaffir, has not been reported to the State Department, and the view prevails among officials that it is hardly likely to assume an international aspect. The relations between the British colonists of South Africa and the Americans in that quarter have been of the most satisfactory character, so much so that their interests have been regarded as alike in the recent controversy over the rights of the Uitlanders in the Transvaal. For this reason the incident at Johannesburg is felt by officials in Washington to be exceptional and in no way indicative of hostility to Americans.

WHITECAPS WREAK VENGEANCE.

Drag J. M. Britton from His Home and Beat Him Almost to Death.

Joseph M. Britton was taken from his home in Newark, Ind., and severely whipped by White Caps. The house was surrounded by a number of men, and while one held Mrs. Britton and three others guarded her son a third looked after the younger children. The others then assaulted Britton, knocking him down with brass knuckles. They dragged him out of the door and whipped and kicked him until he was so badly injured that he is unable to lie down. Mrs. Britton says she recognized several of the White Caps, and that they are citizens of the village. Britton, it is alleged, has been making unlawful sales of intoxicating liquors.

Will Burn His Big Library.

At Toledo, Ohio, in the middle of the street in front of the Memorial United Brethren Church, the elegantly bound volumes which compose the library of Marshall O. Waggoner, formerly one of the most pronounced agnostics in the world, will be burned. He was recently converted to Christianity and made a public declaration of faith.

Find Grape Crop Destroyed.

Prof. J. S. Lowe of Ashtabula, T. S. Clymonts of Cleveland and S. F. Higley of Geneva, members of the Northeastern Ohio Grape Association, have completed their inspection of a large number of vineyards in the lake shore grape belt. They find that grapes are almost totally destroyed by dry rot, entailing a loss of nearly $1,000,000.

Young Boy Stabs His Father.

Captain A. B. Watkins, a county official and well known in Tennessee, was stabbed to death by his 11-year-old son Clarence at Chattanooga. Watkins was whipping the boy on account of breach of family discipline, when the lad became enraged, pulled his knife and plunged the blade through his father's heart.

Farmers Are Short of Help.

So bountiful are the crops in the West that farmers have been unable to get help enough to harvest them. In Nebraska farmers offered $2 a day for farm hands, and could not get them, and reports from the wheat fields of South Dakota tell of the demand for men, which was also quite as great in western Iowa.

Price of Lumber Goes Up.

The third advance in the price of lumber has begun to retard building operations. The last advance makes $1.50 since June 20 and $3 per 1,000 since the spring of 1898. The cause is given as the inability of the lumber people to supply the demand on account of extensive building all over the Northwest.

Woman Prevents a Suicide.

Robert Law, a young farmer near Yankton, S. D., attempted suicide by hanging. His sister Ellen found him hanging from a limb, apparently dead. She cut him down and he will recover.

Blind Chaplain Struck.

Chaplain W. H. Milburn of the United States Senate was sunstruck while delivering a lecture before the Epworth League assembly at Lincoln, Neb.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $6.25; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 68c to 70c; corn, No. 2, 30c to 32c; oats, No. 2, 19c to 20c; rye, No. 2, 52c to 54c; butter, choice creamery, 17c to 18c; eggs, fresh, choice creamery, 17c to 18c; eggs, fresh, 11c to 13c; potatoes, choice, 30c to 35c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, choice light, $2.75 to $4.75; sheep, common to prime, $3.25 to $4.75; wheat, No. 2 red, 67c to 68c; corn, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c; oats, No. 2 white, 23c to 25c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $3.00 to $4.25; wheat, No. 2, 69c to 70c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 31c to 33c; oats, No. 2, 21c to 23c; rye, No. 2, 54c to 56c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 67c to 69c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 32c to 34c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 21c to 23c; rye, No. 2, 55c to 57c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $4.75; sheep, $2.50 to $5.00; wheat, No. 2, 71c to 72c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 25c to 26c; rye, 58c to 55c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 69c to 71c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 33c to 34c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 19c to 21c; rye, No. 2, 53c to 55c; clover seed, new, $3.70 to $3.80.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 69c to 71c; corn, No. 3, 31c to 33c; oats, No. 2 white, 23c to 26c; rye, No. 1, 52c to 54c; barley, No. 2, 39c to 42c; pork, mess, $8.25 to $8.75.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $5.25; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.50; lambs, common to extra, $4.50 to $6.50.

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $5.25; sheep, $3.00 to $5.25; wheat, No. 2 red, 75c to 76c; corn, No. 2, 37c to 39c; oats, No. 2, 26c to 28c; butter, creamery, 15c to 19c; eggs, Western, 10c to 14c.

THE GREAT DREYFUS TRIAL AT RENNES.

THE ACCUSED, THE PLACE WHERE THE COURT-MARTIAL IS SITTING AND SOME OF THE PROMINENT WITNESSES.

1—Captain Dreyfus.
2—M. Hanotaux.
3—M. Cavaignac.
4—Colonel Picquart.
5—Casimir-Perier.
6—General Zurlinden.
7—General Boisdeffre.
8—General Chanoine.
9—General Billot.
10—General Mercier.

FIGHT AT SAN FERNANDO.

Ten Americans Killed and Seventeen Wounded in the Battle.

Ten American soldiers were killed and seventeen wounded in a battle north of San Fernando at daybreak Wednesday morning. The troops, under Gen. MacArthur, numbered 4,000. Shortly after daybreak the advance out of San Fernando to the north was begun. Five miles out they encounted the Filipinos, whose force numbered 6,000. A fierce battle, lasting about five hours, ensued. Finally the enemy was routed and retreated, leaving many dead and wounded. The Filipinos resisted the American advance desperately, and there was heavy firing on both sides.

GEN. M'ARTHUR.

It having been suspected for some time that insurgents were entering the city of Manila under the guise of peaceful Filipinos, the provost marshal began an investigation, and soon discovered that rebels had entered the city and were actively plotting to instigate riots. At midnight Tuesday night the headquarters of the enemy was located in a cigar factory at Binondo. A company of the Sixth infantry under Capt. Ames proceeded to Binondo and surrounded the building. The factory was then raided, and forty-three of the insurgents were captured, including a number of officers. Several other insurgents were in the building, but they escaped through the roof to adjacent buildings.

In the appeal to the powers for "Filipina independence" Aguinaldo uses his old argument that the sovereignty of the Philippine Islands had been conquered from Spain before the treaty of Paris, and, therefore, Spain was not in a position to cede the territory of the United States. They argue that the possession of 7,000 Spanish prisoners, captured, with their arms, fighting against the Filipinos, "is eloquent proof of the nullity of Spanish sovereignty, as when they surrendered Spain's hold was irrevocably lost."

The Filipinos attempt to make capital of the statement that Admiral Dewey had such confidence that Aguinaldo would observe and fulfill the rules of war that he gave him 100 Spanish prisoners which the American navy had captured. Finally the Filipinos appeal to the powers to influence Washington to bring to a termination "the unjust war which is devastating the country."

IN HONOR OF DEWEY.

A Magnificent Arch to Be Built in New York.

When Dewey reaches New York in October he will find among the many decorations in his honor a triumphal arch and colonnade at Fifth avenue and Twenty-fourth street. It will require the work of twenty or thirty sculptors for several weeks to complete the work and enough have volunteered to make certain the erection of the arch. They will work gratis. Were they to charge at the professional rate, the arch would cost $200,000; as it is only the material will have to be paid for—which means $10,000. The material will be "staff," like the peristyle at the Chicago World's Fair.

The arch is to be on the general lines of the Arch of Titus, but having in effect four piers instead of two, the long piers being pierced through the sides. At one end of the colonnade subsidiary sculptural groups representing the army and the navy are to be placed, and at the other end similar groups representative of the East and West Indies. These, emphasizing the colonnade, will only enhance the effect of the arch itself, at which the main sculptural adornment will be focused or concentrated. The enrichment of the arch is to symbolize America's power as a maritime nation and New York's importance as the country's commercial center.

The four piers, which will be formed by the piercing of the great piers, are to form a series of allegorical subjects: Patriotism, which will be figured as the call to arms; War, which will represent the fight; The Return, picturing the homecoming of the victors, and Peace, where the volunteer soldiers will be shown taking up again their civil occupations. The keystone of the arch will be surmounted on either side by a great eagle, above whose wings will appear the motto or greeting of the city to the welcome hero. Over the apex of the arch a quadriga of sea horses will draw a ship, at its prow Victory with wings upraised.

TRIUMPHAL ARCH TO BE ERECTED IN HONOR OF DEWEY.

JIMINEZ PAID THE EXPENSES.

Claims to Have Used Fortune for San Domingo Revolution.

Gen. Jiminez stated at Havana Tuesday that all the expenses that had been incurred up to date in directing the San Domingo revolution had been paid from his private fortune, but that soon he expected plenty of funds. He showed a cablegram purporting to be from a Paris banking house, whose name he withheld, offering him 500,000 francs. Jiminez cabled accepting it, asking that it be remitted at once.

Gen. Jiminez said that between 300 and 400 men had already been sent from Havana, and were at or on their way to San Domingo. The probability is that another expedition will start soon.

From the character of instructions sent to Gen. Brooke Wednesday it is evident President McKinley and Secretary Root have been giving serious consideration to the threatened San Domingo revolution. Gen. Brooke fears from the operations of Jiminez that he is really planning for an extensive filibustering expedition from Cuba. His frequent conferences with other exiles from San Domingo have led to this suspicion, and Gen. Brooke wired the War Department for instructions. They were wired him Wednesday, by direction of the President, and they are to the effect that he must prevent such an expedition at all hazards.

GREAT ANTI-TRUST MEETING.

St. Louis to Entertain Governors and Attorney Generals.

Mayor Ziengenhein of St. Louis announces that ample arrangements will be made for the anti-trust meeting of Governors and Attorney Generals, to be held in that city Sept. 20. A suitable hall will be provided and every convenience placed at the disposal of the guests. This meeting was called some time ago by Gov. Sayers of Texas. He extended a general invitation to all the Governors and Attorney Generals in the United States to be present. Replies have been received from many of them, indicating that they will attend, and it is believed now that more than three-fourths of the States will be represented.

GOLD CERTIFICATES ARE OUT.

First of New Issue Distributed Among New York Banks.

The United States sub-treasury at New York distributed Tuesday among twenty banks the first supply of gold certificates received from Washington.

The supply was $2,160,000 in the denominations of $20, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000. The greater number were of the $50 denomination. The banks gave in exchange gold coin from their own vaults of the sub-treasury, but not standing to the credit of the Government.

JULY FIRES COST $11,426,000.

Total Losses in the United States and Canada Figured Up.

The New York Journal of Commerce announces that the fire loss of the United States and Canada for the month of July, as compiled from its daily records, aggregates $11,426,000. The paper's aggregate of losses for the first seven months of 1897, 1898 and 1899 are, respectively, $64,566,750, 067,105,850 and $77,128,150. During July there were 206 fires of a greater destructiveness than $10,000 each.

NATIVES DRIVEN OUT OF A CITY.

San Fernando Cleared of All Persons Except Property Owners.

Word has been received by the War Department that Gen. MacArthur, at San Fernando, has issued orders excluding from that town all persons who do not own property. Several hundred natives were affected by this order. Great excitement accompanied its carrying out. The guards formed a line extending across the village and under rigid surveillance the natives were forced to march out. The natives were allowed to take what they could carry. With unremitting vigilance the work was carried on till all were gone.

Most of those expelled were Macabebes. They have always been thought friendly to the Americans. Gen. MacArthur finally came to the conclusion, however, that expulsion was necessary, owing to their insincerity. They were suspected of a plot to massacre the garrison. This is the inauguration of a new policy in the Philippines.

By Oct. 22 there should be nearly 50,000 men at Manila or on the way there. All are expected to reach the islands before the beginning of the dry season. Gen. Miles has suggested to the War Department that recruits should be especially adept with small arms, and acting on his advice the department has given special orders for target practice.

A report from Manila notifies the department of the arrest of Captain Otis of the Washington regiment. Gen. Lawton ordered the arrest. The charges are slowness and reluctance in obeying orders to wade through the marsh under fire at Calamba.

ARREST OF FAITH HEALERS.

Zion Followers Held Responsible for a Woman's Death.

De Witt C. Holmes, an elder of Dr. Dowie's Zion in Chicago, and Mrs. Henrika Bratz, also connected with the same institution, were arrested and driven to the county jail in a patrol wagon Tuesday afternoon to answer for the death of Mrs. Annette Flanders of 1608 Indiana avenue, who died July 28 while treated by members of the Zion organizations.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict holding the pair responsible for the death of Mrs. Flanders in having prayed for, instead of furnishing medicine, to the dying woman. It was late in the night before members of the organization could secure a judge who would give them bail, and it was 11:30 o'clock when Judge Waterman consented to do so.

It would appear that San Domingo is the real thing.

It was not ties of affection that effected the railroad trust.

When they talk of his resignation, Oom Paul winks—the other eye.

Report from Guatemala says there is no revolution there. How dull!

The Chicago baseball club has no difficulty in being beaten any old time.

In all justice, it will be said that The Hague peace conference was peaceful to the last.

It really seems incongruous that there should be all this heat over the Alaskan matter.

For reasons all can understand, the Turk will probably never be an assimilator or a gobbler.

No one was really so much impressed with the importance of The Hague conference as the conference itself.

In so far as hymn book royalties are concerned, Prof. Excell and Dr. Schel did well and raised—about $10,000.

American capitalists have purchased a Mexican mountain for $500,000. This may seem steep, but so is the mountain.

Census enumerators who tell what they learn are to be subject to a fine of $500. Are there to be any ladies among them?

A plaster of ham fat is advocated for the bite of the kissing bug. When des tiny starts hostilities it adds insult to injury.

The country will naturally be somewhat disturbed and anxious to know if the dog that bit Rudyard Kipling was copyrighted.

The Milwaukee Sentinel suggests a civil service competitive examination for baseball players. The proposition ought to make a hit.

A story comes back from the fossil hunters that they have dug up a skeleton weighing 40,000 pounds. Those awful fossilifers!

A Paris paper announces that Fatty de Clam will be turned loose. It is hoped that they will still keep the managerial snakes caged up.

PLUNGED TO DEATH.

TROLLEY CAR DISASTER NEAR BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

Hurled from a Trestle and Fifty Feet Down a Ravine—Thirty-five Persons Killed and Twelve Injured—No One on Board Escapes.

Forty-three passengers on a trolley car on the Shelton street railway were dashed down a ravine at Peck's mill stream, five miles from Bridgeport, Conn., at 8:13 Sunday afternoon. Twenty-six were killed outright and two died at the hospital.

Over Peck's mill stream is an iron bridge 650 feet long. The distance from the top of the structure to the bed of the stream is fifty feet. All of the water was drawn off a few months ago to permit the buttresses for the bridge to be laid. The street railway line was opened to the public the previous Thursday for the first time.

The car jumped the rails on the trestle over the stream and plunged down the embankment fifty feet below, where it was buried in the mud. The motorman, George Hamilton, saved himself from death by jumping on the trestle as the car plunged into the abyss.

The alarm was given and hundreds of farmers from the vicinity were soon on the scene. Other cars that were following the fatal one arrived, and in a short time hundreds of volunteers were at work. The work was retarded owing to the difficulty of gaining a secure foot passage in the narrow ravine. Farmers and their wives and daughters came with blankets and woolens, and all of the physicians in Bridgeport and Stratford who were available were summoned.

The car was soon separated, the bottom portion being lifted off. The top was buried several feet in the mud and the bodies of the dead and dying were strewn about. The seats were smashed to splinters. Strange to say, few of the bodies were badly mangled. All of the persons killed sustained fractured skulls.

As fast as the bodies were taken out they were placed in ambulances and the vehicles provided by the farmers. The dead were removed to the town hall in Stratford, where the coroner and his assistants examined the effects found upon them.

John and Daniel Galvin of Ansonia, as far as is known at present, were the only ones except Motorman Hamilton who escaped being hurled into the ravine. They were on the rear end of the car, and when it left the rails they took no chances, but jumped and landed safely on the trestle.

The cause of the accident is uncertain. The car is too badly wrecked to give an indication of possible defects of its wheels. South of the trestle is quite an incline, on which the car ran down at a very high rate of speed. After it ran on to the trestle for about ten feet the trucks left the rails and the car continued on the ties for about seventy-five feet, when it went off the trestle and dropped into the ravine below, overturning completely and up-ending. When the car struck, the motor, which weighed four tons, and the heavy trucks crushed into it, instantly killing many of the passengers.

SCORE ARE DEAD.

Maine Excursionists Near Bar Harbor Drowned by Collapse of a Pier.

Twenty or more excursionists from various parts of Maine were drowned and forty-one others were injured at Mount Desert ferry, eight miles from Bar Harbor, Me., Sunday morning by the breaking of an old and weak slip.

The Maine Central Railroad ran excursion trains from all over its line in Maine to permit of people visiting the warships of the North Atlantic squadron, which had arrived in the harbor from Newport, R. I. The trains were switched of the Boston and Maine road to the short line of the Maine Central, which at Mount Desert ferry connects with the small steamer Sappho, which plies between that point and Bar Harbor.

The first train brought 1,300 persons, and as the crowd had been told by train hands that the steamer could not accommodate one-fourth of the number there was a rush for the ferry slip as soon as the train stopped. About 200 gained the decks of the steamer and as many more were on the slip, when with a crash that sounded like the explosion of a boiler the weakened structure broke in two in the center and the people were swept off each end into the water.

It was high tide at the time and the 200 people were penned into a box-like area of 20 by 30 feet and beyond the assistance from the people high above them on the wharf. Their only means of escape was by diving down five feet under the side wall planking and swimming to the shore. Few could do this, for the crowd was panic-stricken, and the members of it fought like wild animals for their lives.

The people on shore for several minutes kept crowding forward, forcing some fifty more upon the struggling mass of humanity in the water below.

The railroad and steamboat employes hastened to the rescue, and with ropes, planks and a ladder quickly aided 156 persons to safety, and there were numerous heroic rescues. Fred C. Greenough, station agent, who was among the first hurled into the water, held many women and children up to willing hands of the workers above, and he did not leave the inclosure until every person above water had been got out. He was the hero of the hour, and his nerve and coolness quieted the panic-stricken people more than any other one thing, and when, exhausted, he was drawn up a mighty cheer went up from the crowd that by the arrival of another train had grown to fully 2,500 people.

Forty-one of the rescued were so seriously injured that they required immediate medical and surgical attention, and they were removed to a hotel close by.

FACE DEATH IN LAKE.

Passengers Spend a Night of Terror on Lake Michigan.

Two hundred passengers on the steamer City of Grand Rapids, which left South Haven, Mich., for Milwaukee Saturday night, faced death through the long hours of the night in a violent northeaster, which caused the leaking boat to nearly founder and which threatened to rend the vessel from stern to bow at any moment. With the water in the hold within two inches of the fires the captain put about for South Haven and after a desperate struggle with the waves and water the steamer reached that port at 6 o'clock Sunday morning almost in a sinking condition. One force pump of all on board was serviceable and this lone pump alone saved the passengers from what seemed certain doom.

Sparks from the Wires.

A. K. of P. lodge will be instituted at Havana.

John L. Sullivan, ex-champion pugilist, will open a saloon in New York.

Iron mills at Harrisburg, Pa., will increase wages of puddlers 25 cents a ton.

Hazelbridge, a horse valued at $3,500, fell dead on the track at Greenville, O.

BABYLAND.

Have you heard of the Valley of Babyland,
The realm where the dear little darlings stay,
Till the kind storks go, as all men know,
And, oh, so tenderly bring them away?
The paths are winding and past all finding,
By all save the storks who understand
The gates and the highways and the intricate byways
That lead to Babyland.

All over the Valley of Babyland
Sweet flowers bloom in the soft green moss;
And under the ferns fair, and under the plants there,
Lie little heads like spools of floss.
With a soothing number the river of slumber
Flows o'er a bedway of silver sand;
And angels are keeping watch o'er the sleeping
Babes of Babyland.

The path to the Valley of Babyland
Only the kingly, kind storks know;
If they fly over mountains, or wade through fountains,
No man sees them come or go.
But an angel maybe, who guards some baby,
Or a fairy perhaps, with her magic wand,
Brings them straightway to the wonderful gateway
That leads to Babyland.

And there in the Valley of Babyland,
Under the mosses and leaves and ferns,
Like an unfledged starling, they find the darling,
For whom the heart of a mother yearns;
And they lift him lightly, and snug him tightly
In feathers soft as a lady's hand;
And off with a rockaway step they walk away
Out of Babyland.

As they go from the Valley of Babyland,
Forth into the world of great unrest,
Sometimes in weeping, he wakes from sleeping
Before he reaches the mother's breast.
Ah, how she blesses him, how she caresses him,
Bonniest bird in the bright home band,
That o'er land and water, the kind stork brought her
From far off Babyland.

—ELLA WEELER WILCOX.

DUNMORE'S REVENGE.

A TALE OF CUBA.

By Karl Stanley.

The Valley of the Yumuri is one of the loveliest in Cuba. Its cane-fields, with their pea-green verdure, and the darker hue of the pines scattered at irregular distances over them; its orange groves and its broad plantations; its farms and cottages, bright in the sunlight—make the valley, though small, peculiarly beautiful.

It is so shut in on every side by mountains and high precipices that it seems like a little world by itself. More than this it seemed to Dick Dunmore when he brought his fair young wife with him, and settled in the coziest cottage in the whole valley. It was an Eden to him!

Their house, which looked like a bird house when viewed from the top of the ridge, was perched on a small hill, and with the little farmyard back of it, and the kids lying on the grassy knoll in front, made a lovely picture.

Dick had practiced the healing art ever since he took his diploma; he decided to follow the same calling when he married and settled in Cuba.

Many letters had reached me, begging me to come and make them a visit; but it was not until they had been married nearly three years that fortune led me that way, and I looked them up in their valley home.

When I first reached the little cottage, Dick was absent, and Lucia, his pretty wife, received me with unaffected delight, while on my part I thought Dick's praise had come far short of the reality.

She bustled about, getting up a delicious warm supper before I could stop looking at her, and waited on me, with a coquettish white apron tied on over her gay dress.

"I am so glad you came to-night," she said, over the urn of fragrant coffee; "to-night of all nights, because Dick is away, and I was just getting so lonely."

"Does he often have to go out at night?" I inquired.

"Not often," she said, smiling, "or I should rebel."

"I suppose, then, this was a case of necessity?"

"I don't know," she said, thoughtfully. "If I could be sure it was a case of necessity, I should feel better contented."

I looked up in some surprise, and saw the bright tears in her blue eyes.

"It isn't possible that any harm could come to him?" was my next question.

"He laughed at me when I hinted at such a thing," she said; "but it was all very strange."

"Tell me all about it, please," I said, pushing my chair back from the table. "Perhaps, if we divide the trouble, it will disappear."

She shook her head, smiling sadly through her tears, and then gave me an insight into her fears.

"It was just after dusk," she said, "when a man—a stranger to both of us—came to our door, on horseback, and asked if my husband was a doctor. Dick came to the door, and sent me back; but I listened to all they said, and when Dick came back, I begged him not to go.

"'My Lucia,' he said, kissing me good-by, 'you have always been a brave little wife—don't fail now. A man is dying up there in the mountains—so this man says—but perhaps I may save his life if I go. Will you hinder me now?'

"What could I say?" she continued. "He took his case of instruments, and one of medicines, and rode away on his own horse. But I am sure I saw, hidden in the bushes, a band of men, who stole carefully down the path after them. What if it was all a plot to get him away from home and murder him?"

And she shuddered, and covered her face with her hands.

"The man who was hurt may have been a robber-captain—I have heard of such fellows up among the mountains—and may have sent his men as a guard. I do not believe Dick is in any danger, and we shall see him, back before midnight."

And then, when I saw she was still nervous, I began to tell her of my home and sisters, whom she had never seen, and so the hours slipped away until midnight.

At that moment Lucia held up her finger to enjoin silence, and I heard the sound of a horse's hoofs coming nearer and nearer. She ran to open the door, and Dick sprang to the ground, safe and sound as when he went away.

After our tumultuous greeting, Lucia brought a low chair to be near Dick, and throwing himself back, with a sigh of satisfaction, in the easy chair, he began his story.

He had ridden some distance up the side of the Cumbre, when he and his guide were suddenly surrounded by a band of armed men. He began to be sorry he had not taken his wife's advice, and the more so when they insisted on bandaging his eyes.

After an hour's ride, they stopped, the handkerchief was taken from his eyes, and he was led into an old hut, standing among thick trees, where he found a man suffering from a wound made by a dagger thrust.

The man gave no account of the wound, but wanted to know if his life could be saved.

"I made an examination, bound up the wound, left him some medicine to allay the fever, and was again escorted to the foot of the mountain; and here I am, little wife," Dick said, softly, "with good gold in my pocket."

"I don't care for the gold, Dick; but you shall never run such a risk again!"

He laughed at her fears, but under all his merriment I saw his cheeks grow pale.

When we were alone, the next day, he told me what he had concealed from his wife.

"While I was in the hut," he said, his lips trembling, "the door opened softly, and a tiny note was dropped inside. I had only a glimpse of a dark face, when it was gone; but I dropped my handkerchief over the note, and secured it without being seen. Now what do you think of it, Karl?"

He had put the note in my hands, and I opened and read it. It ran something like this:

"SURGEON DUNMORE, married to my pretty Lucia: Tell her that her Cousin Marguerette is in the hands of the robber-captain. I would appeal to you for help to-night, but that it would surely involve us both in destruction. Come again, a week from to-night, and I will be alone with the solitary guard, left always with me—a man equal in strength to two men. A straight journey through the Lion's Pass will bring you to three paths. I will tie my handkerchief to a tree in the right path. Come armed, and do not come alone.

"MARG. PIRATA DE GOMEZ."

I advised him not to tell Lucia, and agreed to go with him on the designated day.

The week crept by, and at last the day came. We were both armed, and started away at daybreak, leaving Lucia with a neighbor's family, thinking we were going on business to a near city.

"Do you know this Lion's Pass? It has rather a venturesome sound," I said.

"I know it well," he replied.

And then we rode cautiously up the mountain, until we came to the spot where the path divided, and there we found a red-bordered handkerchief, tied in a knot to a tall palm tree.

"This is the path! More slowly," Dick whispered.

And, side by side, we crept along under the shadow of the trees, having first tied our horses at the entrance to the path.

A little further on, we came to the hut, and heard a man's voice inside.

Nearer, nearer we crept to the door, and listened.

"You would have betrayed me, Donna Marguerette! You have knotted your handkerchief to the palm to point the way to our retreat. Is it not true?

But there was not a word in reply—only a sob.

"I loved you, and would have made you queen of my robbers!" he cried, in a passionate voice. "I loved you, yet you are a traitor! Die like a traitor!"

We both leaped to our feet, forced open the door, and entered; but it was too late.

Dick sank down beside the dying girl, and I sprang forward in time to secure her murderer. As her last breath fled, Dick came to my side.

"Bring him out!" he said.

And, between us, we tied his hands and feet, and carried him out doors.

The hut was on the brow of a precipice, at the foot of which rushed a rapid river. Near by, a tall, lithe tree had been bent over for some purpose, and its top fastened to the ground.

With lips as pale as death, Dick bound the robber-captain to the tree, and cut the fastenings. One mighty swish through the air, and the tree stood upright; but the cord snapped, and Marguerette's murderer was hurled over the brink of the precipice to certain death.

Between us we carried the body of Lucia's cousin down the mountain, and she had a peaceful burial in the little valley below.

But Dick sold his pretty cottage and farm, and brought Lucia away to our Northern home.

Years have passed since then, but I never think of the beautiful Valley of the Yumuri without shuddering at the horrible memory of the mountain tragedy.

Why They Didn't Suit.

"I'll have to have these collars exchanged," she said. "They'll never do at all."

"The one you have on looks all right," he asserted.

"Preposterous!" she replied. "It isn't high enough to feel uncomfortable under the chin."—Chicago Post.

Proper Place for Bullet-Proof Cloth.

A Chicago man fired at a piece of bullet-proof cloth the other day and the ball rebounded and hit him in the forehead, drawing blood. This goes to show that bullet-proof cloth should always be worn by the man behind the gun instead of the one in front of it.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

FOR THE PARIS FAIR

UNCLE SAM'S HEADQUARTERS AT THE BIG SHOW.

Architectural Style Resembles That of the National Capitol—Washington and McKinley Statues Repose Side by Side—Description of the Building.

The United States national pavilion at the Paris exposition will be one of the most ornamental buildings on the grounds. The accompanying picture, is the first accurate representation of it, for the "faked" pictures which have appeared in some of the papers gave no adequate idea of anything save its general contour, which has long been known. It is on the Quay d'Orsay on the left bank of the Seine among the buildings of the great powers, and is one of the best locations at the exposition. The plan is square with a large central dome and rotunda, which will be used as a general meeting place of Americans during the exposition. Three sides of the rotunda have rooms 13 by 36 opening out of it. That on the left of the main entrance will be used as a lounging-room for gentlemen, that on the right for ladies and that in the middle as a parlor for both ladies and gentlemen. The second story will be given to the States, where people who so desire can rest and register their names. The third story will be reserved for the private offices of the commissioner general and staff. The fourth floor will be given to the States and used in a similar manner to the second.

UNITED STATES BUILDING FOR PARIS

The building is 85 by 90 feet and 160 feet high from the lower level. There will be two electric American elevators. The style of the exterior of the building is classic, and while different in design from any of the buildings at the Chicago fair yet the feeling there prevalent has been kept and will be in marked contrast to the present French buildings, which are not so architectural in treatment. The main entrance is under a large portico which spans the esplanade, and under this every visitor who walks to the other national buildings will be obliged to pass. In the center arch of this portico, facing the River Seine, will be French's statue of Washington, while a bust of President McKinley will occupy a niche over the door. In the front of the building on the river bank will be a boat landing which will be highly ornamented as a classic barge. All the boats of the American line which connect with the American trolley system at Vincennes will make a landing at this pier.

The interior decorations of the building are in charge of an art commission composed of George B. Post, Charles A. Coolidge, John B. Cauldwell, C. F. McKim, John La Farge, Daniel C. French, Howard Russell Butler, Charles L. Hutchinson, Henry Van Brunt, Halsey C. Ives, R. S. Peabody and Henry Walters—a galaxy of artistic and architectural experts whose intention is to make it the finest example of decorative art which the United States has thus far produced in any exposition.

NEW CENTER OF POPULATION.

Census of 1900 Will Find It Near Eastern Illinois Line.

What will be the center of population of the United States in 1900, as revealed by the coming census. In 1890 it was a rural spot a few miles south of Greensburg, Ind., within the retail commercial radius of Cincinnati. What point will mark the center of population next year?

The entire distance which it has traveled in 100 years, since the taking of the first census, is 505 miles. The average rate of its western movement has been 50.5 miles each ten years. At that rate the center of population in 1900 will be at the intersection of the 39th parallel of latitude and the 87th degree of longitude, at a point about three miles southwest of Bloomfield, Greene County, Indiana, twenty-five or thirty miles east of the Illinois State line.

The exact location of this point cannot be determined until after the census of 1900 has been taken. Many are of the opinion that the western movement will be less than heretofore, and some even declare that the East has outstripped the West during the past ten years in the matter of increase of population, and that the center will not move as far west as 50.5 miles. Government officials who are informed concerning matters relative to population believe that the center will remain in Indiana, and that its location will be somewhere in the vicinity of Terre Haute.

In 1850 the center of population of the United States was at a point almost due south from Parkersburg, W. Va. Ten years later it moved over to the southeastern border of Ohio, and for thirty years remained in that State. In 1870 it was near Chillicothe. In 1880 it dropped down almost to the center of Cincinnati. Ten years later it had crossed into Indiana, and will probably remain there until Illinois shall claim it in the twentieth century. It is noticeable that this center has always followed closely the thirty-ninth parallel of latitude. It is a further fact, curious enough, that the majority of the large cities of the United States, as well as of Northern Europe, are either on or reasonably close to the thirty-ninth parallel.

In determining the center of population of any country, the population is first distributed by "square degrees," as the area included between consecutive parallels and meridians has been designated. A point is then assumed tentatively as the center, and corrections in latitude and longitude to this tentative position are computed. In 1890 the center was assumed to be the intersection of the thirty-ninth parallel with the eighty-sixth meridian west of Greenwich. The population of each square degree was assumed to be located at the center of that square degree, except in cases where it was manifest that this assumption would be untrue, as, for example, where a part of the square degree was occupied by the sea or other large body of water, or where it contained a city of considerable magnitude which was located away from the center. In these cases the position of the center of the population of the square degree was estimated as nearly as possible.

CENTER OF POPULATION MOVES WESTWARD.

Railways and immigration have been the great factors in pushing the center of population westward. Another matter which affected it was the acquisition of Texas and the Gadsden purchase. In calculating the center of population Alaska and our more recent acquisitions are not included.

To Make Glassware Shine.

Tumblers and wine glasses should be washed in hot water and rinsed in cold, and should be dried with a clean cloth as soon as possible, and when perfectly dry rubbed with tissue paper. For cruets, decanters, etc., tear up some clean newspapers into pieces about as big as 10-cent pieces, put into bottles, half-filled with warm water; give bottles a rotary motion. When clean, decant and a little practice throws out the paper. They will be as bright as new. To clean glasses—wine glasses especially—which have become discolored on edges, use cigar ashes, friction and a damp cloth.

STYLISH EFFECTS IN FALL MILLINERY.

A NATURE-LOVER'S WEALTH.

Desire for Wealth Bought Luxuries an Error of Mind.

The following extract from an interview with John Burroughs, recently published in Success, contains things that are well thinking about.

"I consider the desire which most persons have for the luxuries that money can buy an error of mind. It means nothing except a lack of higher tastes. Such wants are not necessary wants, nor honorable wants. If you cannot get wealth with a noble purpose, it is better to abandon it and get something else.

"Peace of mind is one of the best things to seek—and finer tastes and feelings. The man who gets these, and maintains himself comfortably, is much more admirable and successful than the man who gets money and neglects these. The realm of power has no fascination for me. I would rather have my seclusion and peace of mind.

"This log hut, with its bare floors, is sufficient. I am set down among the beauties of nature, and in no danger of losing the riches that are scattered all about. No one will take my walks or my brook away from me. Flowers, birds and animals are plentifully provided. I have enough to eat and to wear, and time to see how beautiful the world is, and to enjoy it.

"The whole world is after your money, or the things you have bought with your money. It is the trying to keep them that makes them seem so precious.

"I live to broaden and enjoy my own life, believing that in so doing I do what is best for every one. If I had run after birds only to write about them, I should never have written anything that any one else would have cared to read. I must write from sympathy and love, that is, from enjoyment, or lot at all."

Thought Her a Vision.

In "Life and Letters of Harriet Beecher Stowe" Mrs. Fields relates an anecdote illustrative of the peculiar faculty of Professor Stowe of seeing visions. From early youth he had possessed the singular power of seeing moving about him persons who could not be perceived by others.

Mrs. Stowe, during her residence at Andover, planned to go to Boston one day on business. Making her preparations hurriedly, she bade the household farewell, and rushed to the station, only to see the train go out as she arrived. There was nothing to do but return home and wait patiently for the next train; but wishing not to be disturbed, she quietly opened a side door, crept noiselessly up the staircase leading to her own room, and sat down by her writing-table in the window.

She had been there about half an hour when Professor Stowe came in, looked about him with a preoccupied air, but did not speak to her. She thought his behavior strange, and amused herself by watching him; at last the situation became so extraordinary that she began to laugh.

"Why!" he exclaimed, with a most astonished air, "is that you? I thought it was one of my visions!"

BENJAMIN IDE WHEELER.

Eminent Professor Chosen President of the University of California.

It is generally conceded that in naming Prof. Benjamin Ide Wheeler of Cornell University to be president of the University of California, a wise selection has been made. Prof. Wheeler has been looked upon for several years past as a very promising piece of presidential timber. He has been professor of Greek and comparative philology at Cornell since 1886, and he is now 45 years of age. His position as a classical scholar is thoroughly established, and his current papers on Alexander the Great in the Century Magazine have shown the wider public how broad a grasp he has upon the great movement of the world's political history, and also how entertainingly he can write. Prof. Wheeler is anything but a recluse student of the type that gives a life's devotion to the dative case; and he is widely known in New York for his effectiveness as a campaigner and his unusual aptitude for practical politics.

PROF. BENJAMIN IDE WHEELER.

Be thankful for what you have and console yourself with the thought that what you have not would render you miserable if you had it.

It is a good idea to trust very few people; those who are not dishonest may be careless.

A TERRIBLE TALE OF THE SEA.

Dreadful Experience of Survivors of Wreck in Australian Waters.

That is a terrible story of shipwreck the details of which the last Australian mail brings. The bark Loch Sloy, Captain Nicol, had been 113 days out from Glasgow, and was almost in sight of her first port (Adelaide), when in the early morning she came to utter wreck on the southern point of Kangaroo Island. Of thirty-five souls on board four only got ashore through the surf—two seamen, an apprentice, and a passenger named Kilpatrick. The last named only escaped the waves to meet a death of lingering torture on land. The three others have been rescued in the last stages of misery and exhaustion. The grimmest feature in this grim story is that no one had an inkling of the catastrophe until it was a fortnight old.

No one dreamed that human beings were struggling and starving and perishing within a few miles of succor until a fortnight later one of the shipwrecked sailors (Macmillan), in a state of utter collapse, reached a settler's house some twenty miles from Cape Borda. He and his wrecked companions had lived for days on food washed ashore from the wreck. He, as the strongest, had wandered away to get them water, and on his second return, after two days' absence, had found them gone. Sometimes, half delirious he had roamed the island alone, until by following the Rocky River he struck a habitation.

Search parties immediately scattered out, and next day one of the lighthouse keepers from Cape Borda came upon two more survivors, the apprentice, W. J. Simpson, a lad of eighteen, and the other seaman, William Mitchell. They were crawling along in an awful condition, clothed in a few rags, with torn feet, and with strength only to lift a head and groan in answer to the call of rescue. For a time, count of which was lost, they had lived upon limpets and two dead penguins they had found, the remains of which were suspended round their necks, together with a flask of water. In the early days of their misery, Kilpatrick, the passenger, who was too weak to climb, had been hauled by them up a cliff one hundred feet high, with a rope made by tearing into strips a roll of flannel washed ashore. Later on he had refused, despite their entreaties, to leave a water-hole they had encountered on the way. His body is all the rescuers can now hope to find.

Woman's Inhumanity to Man.

It must be owned that there is too much truth in it. Woman's inhumanity to man is a good deal in evidence. The late Senator Morton of Indiana was, it will be remembered, an invalid and a cripple. He came into a company at the capital one day in a state of great indignation because, in a street car crowded with young women, not one had offered him a seat, and he had been compelled to make the journey painfully and precariously supported upon his crutches. The like of this may very often be seen. Humanity, consideration for weakness and helplessness, is the root of which chivalry is the fine flower.

It is a startling proposition that man's inhumanity to man is less than woman's, but the time seems to give it some proof. At any rate, a man evidently disabled would not be allowed to stand in a public conveyance in which able-bodied men were seated, even in the most unchivalrous part of our country, which have given some reasons for believing to be the city of New York. And, if that be true, it seems that the assumption of that right of an able-bodied woman to remain seated while a disabled man is standing is an assumption that the claims of chivalry are superior to those of humanity. On the other hand it may fairly be said that the selfishness of women with regard to the wayfaring man is more thoughtless and perfunctory than the selfishness of men with regard to the wayfaring woman. In this country, at least, this latter is in all cases felt to be a violation of propriety and decency. The native American feels himself to be both on his defense and without defense when he is arraigned for it.—Scribner's.

The Bicycle Ambulance.

Without doubt the cycling novelty of 1899 has been the bicycle ambulance invented by a Chicago policeman. It is only necessary to mention a few points to show what a decided improvement it will be on the present style of vehicle for conveying sick or injured persons to the hospital.

The bicycle ambulance requires no outlay for its support, which, in the case of the poorer institutions of our great cities, is quite a consideration. It is provided with tires larger than those ordinarily used on the bicycle, for the express purpose of making the trip over the uneven streets of a city more comfortable to the patient.

The first of these ambulance machines, for although there has been a so-called military bicycle ambulance invented, this has never been a success, is constructed by utilizing the framework and wheels of two diamond framed tandems side by side and about three feet apart, the same being connected by means of a light framework of seamless tubing, the whole being very neat in appearance and detachable with very little effort.

The entire machine does not weigh over 150 pounds. It can be easily operated by two men on an ordinary road at a speed of ten miles an hour and can be controlled perfectly by means of the patent device that is connected with the wheels and acts as a brake at the will of the rider.

A Bright Idea.

"How did the burglars happen to miss your jewelry?"

"Only yesterday morning something told me they were not safe in the tomato can in the cellar where I usually keep them, and I had accordingly concealed them in a jewel case in my room."—Detroit Journal.

Misapprehension.

Guest—What have you got?

Waiter—I've got liver, calf's brains pig's feet ——.

Guest—I don't want a description of your physical peculiarities. What you have got to eat is what I want to know.

FLASHES OF FUN.

"How do you keep moths out of your clothes?" "By always wearin' 'em."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Teacher—Willie, where is the capital of the United States? Willie Todate—In the trusts.—Town Topics.

"He says his wife can't cook a little bit." "That's unfortunate." "Yes, but that isn't the worst of it. She insists on cooking a lot."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Lady (in a bird store)—Pretty Polly; does Polly want a cracker? Polly (scornfully)—No, thank you. Not if it's as stale as that remark.—Chicago News.

St. Peter—Which wife do you want to live with? Shade—Are they all here? St. Peter—Yes. Shade—I thought you said this was heaven.—Detroit Free Press.

"Is Mrs. Barkis on your calling list, Mrs. Montmorency?" "Yes; but not on my visiting list. We call the telephone book our calling list now."—Bazar.

"I'm afraid we must be divorced, my dear," said Mr. Newlywed to his young wife; "the doctor says I have rheumatic tendencies, and must give up all sweet things."—Bazar.

Ada—"Wasn't there some talk of Maude marrying a duke?" Dolly—"Yes; but you see the duke didn't say anything about it."—Philadelphia North American.

Miss Passee—Cholly seems to think that I'm keeping my age remarkably well. Miss Curt—Yes, he told me that he never heard of a single instance where you gave it away.—Philadelphia Record.

"Don't touch me," said the chrysanthemum, as it leaned away from the rose. "I would be foolish to attempt it," replied the rose. "It's a well-known fact that you haven't got a scent."—Chicago News.

The good man—Sir, do you know that you are going forward to a terrible punishment? The inebriate—No! Zat so? I didn't know I was headed for home. Much 'blige', ol' man, f'r puttin' me on.—Ex.

"What makes young Mr. Bught wear his hair so long?" said Maud. "Oh, it isn't his fault, poor boy," replied Miss Cayenne; "he has been lionized so much he doesn't feel comfortable without a mane."—Washington Star.

"I can't believe that this wireless telegraphy is possible." "Why, of course it is. Hasn't your wife ever let you know clear across a crowded room that you were making a fool of yourself?"—Philadelphia North American.

"It is only a matter of time," said Golfer, "when the expansion policy will carry us into Canada." "What makes you think that?" "Oh, we need the land on the other side of the border for golf links."—Philadelphia North American.

"Yes, indeed, Bradley Biggs is a real widower." "What do you mean by a real widower, Lucy?" "Why, he is so afraid some strange woman will marry him that he takes his mother-in-law around with him all the time."—Detroit Free Press.

Miss Dreamier—"When you stood on the brink of Niagara, and looked into the seething, surging, unfathomable depths below, did you not feel that you would like to jump in?" Mr. Tourier—"No; I hadn't received my hotel bill then."—New York Weekly.

"Let's see, Senator, are you serving your first term in Congress?" "Well, I don't know whether that would be a correct way of stating it or not," replied Senator Smallbore. "You see my constituents may decide to make it my last."—Ohio State Journal.

Little Johnny—"Mrs. Talkemdown paid a big compliment to me to-day." Mother—"Did she really? Well, there's no denying that woman has sense. What did she say?" Little Johnny—"She said she didn't see how you came to have such a nice little boy as I was."

"The minister," observed the church member, as if the idea had just occurred to him, "can take a vacation, but Satan never takes a vacation." "True," replied the other church member, "but Satan can stand the heat a great deal better than the minister."—Puck.

Cynicus—Every woman should make a will. Mrs. Gushington—Really, Mr. Cynicus, do you think we are of enough importance for that? Cynicus—Oh, it isn't that, but think of the satisfaction of changing it every time you have a quarrel with one of your prospective heirs.—Philadelphia Record.

Kate—"I suppose I ought not to tell on him, but it is a fact that Harry asked Maude to marry him once and she refused him." Emma—"That must account for it." Kate—"Account for what, pray?" Emma—"They were saying the other night that Harry is the luckiest fellow they ever saw."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Rockefeller's Hobby.

Mrs. William Rockefeller's hobby is for carnations, one of the greenhouses at her country place at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson being devoted exclusively to their culture. She has recently received 200 Malmaison carnations from France, having paid $2,000 for the plants. She is said to spend thousands of dollars every year for the plants she imports for her pleasure.

Misfit.

President Kruger, according to a story in the National Review, has his own opinion about office-holders.

Two of the president's young relations applied to him for office. He considered awhile, and said, "I can do nothing; the high offices of the state are in firm hands, and for little clerkships you are too stupid."

After all, there is nothing a woman enjoys so much as widowhood, providing her husband's life insurance was not scrimpy.

A widow doesn't feel entirely bereft so long as she has enough money in the bank to buy a cow.

A man always wonders what his wife will say after the company has departed.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....AUGUST 17, 1899.

He Had a Close Call.

Frank Furnish, who is employed in the blacksmith department at the Kiblinger factory, had a little experience this morning that he does not care to have repeated, and one that gave himself and his fellow employes quite a scare. In attempting to place a belt on one the line-shaft pulleys Mr. Furnish's shirt was caught by a set-screw projecting from another pulley, and in much less time than it takes to tell it the garment was stripped from his back and wrapped around the rapidly-revolving shaft and Frank dropped to the floor, thoroughly frightened but not much hurt. His only injuries were a few bruises and scratches, but hereafter when Mr. Furnish changes shirts he will do so in a more leisurely manner and without the aid of machinery. It was indeed a close call and a fortunale escape from serious injury.

DeKalb County Institute

All arrangements have been made for a successful county teachers institute and Supt. Coe, has used every possible means to make it one of the best. For instructors he has Prof. Frank M. Stalker of the Indiana Normal; Prof. Charles M. Curry of the same; and will have with us, as visitors and helpers, State Supt. Jones and Ex-state Supt. Geting as well as other prominent educators. It will be held in the M. E church at Auburn, Aug. 28, to Sept. All trustees, and persons interested are requested to be present. The teachers will be there of course. Let us have a live institute.

Farmers' Day.

The Robison Park managers are going to take especial pains to make "Farmer's Day" attractive. There will be a barbecue, balloon ascension, pony races, bicycle races, a good band, the usual good theater, and as sale bills say, "many other things too numerous to mention." Remember the date is August 25, and the place is the famous and beautiful Robison Park.

House and Lot for Sale.

One lot on south side of east Seventh street with small building on premises, formerly used for paint shop. Inquire of George Braun at Hebel's meat market, Auburn, Ind.

Seed Wheat

I have a quantity of Winter King seed wheat for sale. It is free from rye or foul seed. Call at my farm 1½ miles north of Newville.—WORTH COATS. 31-39

POSTPONED.

The dedication of the Lockwood church will not take place on the date expected, but will be postponed. The date will be advertised in due time.

FOR SALE.

For sale at reasonable price one 45 ft. power windmill with new force pump, tank, pipings etc. For information call at Hollister House, Auburn, Ind.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

NERVITA PILLS Restore VITALITY, LOST VIGOR AND MANHOOD

Cure Impotency, Night Emissions and wasting diseases, all effects of self-abuse, or excess and indiscretion. A nerve tonic and blood builder. Brings the pink glow to pale cheeks and restores the fire of youth. By mail 50c per box, 6 boxes for $2.50; with a written guarantee to cure or refund the money. Send for circular. Address,

NERVITA MEDICAL CO.

Clinton & Jackson Sts., CHICAGO, ILL.

Davenport, The Druggist.

THEY CAME TO GRIEF.

THREE MEMBERS OF THE NOTORIOUS "LAKE SHORE GANG" CAPTURED AT WATERLOO,

For several years past an organized gang of hoboes, which includes some of the toughest specimens of humanity ever allowed to run at large, has been operating along the line of the Lake Shore road between Toledo and Elkhart. On numerous occasions members of this gang have got into trouble through their brazen defiance of law, and several times have even gone so far as to attempt murder in connection with the crime of robbery. Several of them are now serving time in the Michigan City prison for offenses ranging from larceny to assaults with intent to kill, and three more, now confined in the jail here, will in all probability join their comrades at the town by the lake as the result of a hold-up at Waterloo.

About 8 o'clock yesterday morning a freight train pulled into Waterloo and three tough looking tramps were seen to jump from a box car and hurry away. A fourth man at once informed several persons standing near by that the gang had robbed him of his money, about $15, while in the car and a posse was organized the capture them. Two of the fellows were found secreted under an old building near the opera house and the third in the tall grass near by, and they were placed under guard at the engine house. Later on they were given a preliminary hearing before Esquire Soule, who placed them under bonds of $500 each to await the action of the grand jury. They gave their names as Frank Cody, Clayton Mills and Edward Hamilton Albert Stone, the man who was robbed, was also held as a witness. Sheriff Hathaway was notified and went over to Waterloo, accompanied by John Picker and Ed Freygang, returning about noon with the four men. The chances for a penitentiary term for the three fellows are very good and it is hoped that the prompt action of the Waterloo people in this instance will be repeated at other points on the line until the gang is broken up.

Hearing of Ditch Petition.

In the matter of the petition of Emmet J Armstrong et, al. Ditch No. 696½.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed with the Auditor of DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and viewers appointed who have viewed and reported said view which is on file in my office. The hearing of said petition upon its merits will be heard by the Board of County Commissioners of DeKalb county on Thursday, the 7th day of September, 1899, the same being the fourth day of their September term.

The prayer of said petition is that a ditch be constructed on the following route, to-wit:

Beginning thirty-five [35] rods north of the southwest corner of section number twenty-three [23], township thirty-three [33] north, range twelve [12] east, DeKalb county, state of Indiana, and ending in the Clark ditch at a point sixty-nine [69] rods east of the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of section number twenty-six [26] of Jackson township, said DeKalb county, Indiana.

The proposed work will affect the lands of the following persons:

Amos Friend,
William Means,
Chas. V. Hoffman.
George Kester.
Joseph Kester.
Jackson Township.

FRANK P. SEILER,
Auditor DeKalb Co.

August 16, 1899.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned administrator of the estate of Edmund Freeman deceased, will sell at public auction, at the residence of Alexander S. Freeman in Jackson township, in DeKalb county, Indiana, on the personal property of said estate, consisting of growing grain, cows, hogs, household and kitchen furniture, wheat, corn, oats, poultry and other articles. Sale to begin at 10 o'clock a. m.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1899.

TERMS:—Sums of five dollars and under, cash; over five dollars, a credit of eight months will be given, purchaser giving note with approved security, waiving relief from valuation and appraisement laws, with interest after maturity.

ALEXANDER S. FREEMAN, Administrator

J. E. & J. H. Rose, Att'ys for Estate, 33-t3

Notice to Non-Resident.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss. In the DeKalb Circuit Court, October term, 1899.

Henry Frick is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court on uotes and judgment, and in attachment, by William E. Ruperight, and that the same will be heard and determined on the ninth day of October, 1899, the same being the seventh juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences October 1899.

Witness, the Clerk of said court this 15th day of August, 1899.

MICHAEL F. LONG, Clerk.

W. H. Leas, Att'y for Plaintiff.

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

We own and occupy the tallest mercantile building in the world. We have over 2,000,000 customers. Sixteen hundred clerks are constantly engaged filling out-of-town orders.

OUR GENERAL CATALOGUE is the book of the people—It quotes Wholesale Prices to Everybody, has over 1,000 pages, 16,000 illustrations, and 60,000 descriptions of articles with prices. It costs 72 cents to print and mail each copy. We want you to have one. SEND FIFTEEN CENTS to show your good faith, and we'll send you a copy FREE, with all charges prepaid.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO. Michigan Ave. and Madison Street CHICAGO

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

A shipment of three millions in gold dust is on its way from Alaska.

An Indiana man has reached New York City have gone from Kokomo to that place in an automobile in twenty days.

Parties are hunting for Guy Cable of Oaktown, Ind. He is said to have stolen twelve horses and buggies in two weeks.

The capture of a large number of Filipino trading vessels is reported. The intention is to cripple their business and also prevent them from bringing arms into the island.

A white woman has been appointed as postmistress at Lake City, S. C. They have had no postoffice or mail since the people there shot and killed the negro postmaster a year or so ago.

The Cuban judges at Havana have decided that Americans may hold office in the island. An old Spanish law says no foreigner can hold any office, but the judges say Americans are no longer foreigners.

Brazil and the Argentine Republic are talking up a union so as to make one great nation of the two. It meets with much favor among the people. The president of the latter is visiting the president of Brazil.

Gen. Toral, who surrendered Santiago, has been acquitted by a Spanish court-martial. It was decided that Toral did the best he could, but was compelled to surrender to the Yankees, who had the upper hand of him.

State officials in Nebraska, are going to wage war on all trusts. They will tackle the Standard Oil Trust first. They assert that John D. Rockefeller, instead of trying to obey the anti-trust laws, is doing all he can to evade them,

A dispatch from Manila dated this morning, says there was a battle yesterday at Quingua four miles northeast of Malolos. Americans attacked and drove off a body of 500 natives under their best general, Pilar. We lost one man killed.

The Mexican troops had two battles with the Yaqui Indians, Aug. 10, defeating them with loss in both cases. There are some American miners and mine owners, in the territory involved in the war aud measures are being taken to insure their safety.

Quite a number of towns in various parts of the country complain of the bug nuisance. After a warm shower, the sidewalk will be covered by a black bug, or beetle that looks some like a cricket. Wonderful stories are told of their number

Our state authorities think they have found the location of a lottery in Indiana soil. It is said to be at present located at Clarksville, a small town near Jeffersonville, but was at one time operated from the latter place. It is largely patronized by negroes in the southern states,

A good lesson will be taught the foreign trading firms who are sending arms to Aguinaldo. One of these ships gave a bond, on leaving Canton, China, with a lot of arms and war material, that she would land them at Singapore. But she landed them for Aguinaldo. Now must pay the bond.

Coast trading vessel Saturnus, owned by Americans, ran ashore last Friday, near San Fernando, north of Manila, was looted by natives, who stole all the cargo. Our ships found her and tried to haul her off the beach but could not. The natives set her on fire and she was destroyed. Our ships shelled the town but do not know how much harm was done.

Sheriff'S Sale.

By virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, in a cause wherein Lizzie E. Baxter Administratrix of the estate of James B. Baxter, deceased is plaintiff and Mary E. Wheelock, Alpheus Wheelock and Cyrus C. Walters are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one thousand thirty-one dollars and forty-three cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at Public Sale, to the highest bidder,

Saturday, September 9, 1899,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the court house in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

All that part of lot numbered seventy-two (72), in the original plat of the town of Auburn bounded by a line commencing on the north line of said lot eighty four and one-half (84½) feet west of the northeast corner of said lot; thence west on said north line to the northwest corner of said lot; thence south to the southwest corner of said lot; thence east on the south line of said lot fifty-five (55) feet and nine (9) inches; thence north to the place of beginning.

Also all that part of lot numbered twenty-five (25) in the original plat of the town of Auburn bounded by a line commencing at the northeast corner of said lot, and running thence west on the north line forty-four (44) feet; thence south parallel with the east line of said lot to the south line thereof; thence east on said south line to the southeast corner of sal l lot; thence north on the east line of said lot to the place of beginning; all in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs. I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs. Said sale will, be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN H. HATHAWAY,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana,

Auburn Indiana, August 14, 1899.

J. E. & J. H. Rose, Attys for Plaintiff.

New Law Firm.

D. M. Link and P. V. Hoffman have formed a law partnership and Mr. Link has moved into the office with Mr. Hoffman. We look on this as a wise move. Both are active attorneys and as a firm will, we believe be successful, especially as each has already a good practice. The location, as said, is in the office over Hebel's grocery.

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

HICKSVILLE FAIR

COME AND SEE THE AGRICULTURAL MONUMENT.

A DUPLICATE OF THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The primary object of any fair should be a means of giving farmers an opportunity of comparing notes with their fellow farmers. For who can know how and when to improve, or whether he should be encouraged or discouraged, if he has no means of comparing his results with those of others. I do not think that the Hicksville Fair association is deterorating.

From what I have seen of the good features that go to make an educational fair, and from what I have not seen that would tend to demoralize and degrade, I am sure that the Hicksville Fair, although there is some room for improvement, is a credit to the management and is worthy of the support of all the farmers in western Ohio and eastern Indiana.

Too many fairs are degenerating, and there are fairs showing improvements. We have a few fairs in mind which have been striking exceptions in the matter of success last season. Hicksville is one, but these fairs have every one been clean.

The fair which would be long lived and continuously successful must be decent in tone and decidedly agricultural in character. The hand writing is on the wall for every other kind of a fair.

Without the patronage of the country folks no fair can be successful, and the average countryman will go farther and stay longer to see a good trotting or pacing meeting than any thing else on earth. I don't blame them in that respect. I am a countryman fifty-two weeks in a year.

I do believe it is a living truth that Hicksville has the best fair in western Ohio. The fountain water is the purest to be found on any fair ground in the state.

You get your premium money promptly. You don't have to fight or run a foot race to get it. The secretary sends you a check good at any bank or business house in Hicksville. They pay 100 cents on a dollar. If they have money left the large hearted managers use it to beautify the grounds.

Every family of hard working people with five in a family, for every day spent at the fair will add one year to their lives. Every dollar to the amount of three dollars spent at the fair is better than money at ten per cent interest. Every doctor attends the fair for his health. Bring your family and you will find old familiar faces. They will keep bobbing up every now and then, and friends that have not met for years will shake hands and argue the good and bad points of stock and thoroughly enjoy themselves. Come boys and bring your girls. If you have not got a horse and carriage, borrow one of the girl you don't like, and bring a girl you do like.

One word to croakers and fault finders. You go home at night with lots of pelts. If you see a man with a Roman nose, you want to see a Grecian nose, and if you meet a man with a Grecian nose then you want to see a Roman nose. Come this year and be men; examine the stock of all kinds and profit by it. Don't miss the hogs; see if they are razor backs, wind splitters, regular Arkansas hogs. See if their noses, metaphorically speaking, would reach through a rail fence and harvest corn from the third row. See if the largest thing about them is their squeal. See if they are kin.

When Hicksville has her fair you can't keep the people away in good weather. I want two weeks of perfect fall weather for our next fair, September 12 to 15, 1899, so I consulted the most celebrated hoodoo weather prophet in Defiance county. He would not tell me short of two bits. I gave them to him and he tasted them to see if they were real money, then he gave me a rabbit's foot, a bird claw and two blades of grass and told me to wear them in my hat for two weeks, and if I followed his instructions my wish should be granted. I am just as sure we will have ten thousand people on the Hicksville fair ground Thursday as I am that we will have good weather.

One word to the citizens of Hicksville. I heard a person say they had never attended a fair since they lived in Hicksville. Don't say it again. It is every citizen's duty to do what they can for the progress of Hicksville. Without the Hicksville fair your property would be worth less. All improvements add value. Come to the fair if you take any interest in yourself and town's progress and have a good sociable time. When I attend the fair I meet the same boys, and the same girls that I went to school with forty years ago Come old school mates, let us meet this year and be young for one day at least.—A FRIEND OF GOOD FAIRS. tf

NOTICE.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on two 25 cent bottles or boxes of Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, if it fails to cure constipation, billiousness, sick-headache, jaundice, loss of appetite, sour stomach, dyspepsia, liver complaint, or any of the diseases for which it is recommended. It is highly recommended as a spring tonic and blood purifier. Sold liquid in bottles, and tablets in boxes. Price 25 cents for either. One package of either guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. E. M. FISCHLER, F. E. DAVENPORT, HOWARD MCCORD.

Obituary.

Clarence, infant son of Perry and Florence Long, was born April 8, 1899; departed this life at the tender age of four months and six days. Little Clarence was a beautiful child and during his short life had entrenched himself in the affections of parents and friends. This little bud which was unfolding his beauty with the passing days has blossomed into the beauty of the angelic life above, where the presence of death is never felt. Let us look upward, whither his little spirit has fled, to be forever happy in the presence of Jesus, who doeth all things well. Let each of us trust and obey the voice of Jesus until the end comes; then we too shall join the redeemed throng on high. Little Clarence leaves to mourn his death, father and mother, two sisters, Ethel and Ruth, besides many other friends. The funeral service was held at the house this forenoon at 10 o'clock; interment in Woodlawn cemetery.

Sudden Death at Sedan.

Word was received last night by Lewis and John Rohm of the sudden death of their mother, Mrs. Martin Whetzel, which occurred about 7 p. m. at her home in Sedan. Shortly after supper Mrs. Whetzel, who seemed to be in her usual health, went into the garden to gather cucumbers, and a few moments afterwards was seen to fall to the ground. Neighbors were called in who assisted Mrs. Whetzel to the house and placed her in a chair, but before medical aid could be summoned she had breathed her last. The deceased, who was a sister of John Treesh of this city, was thrice married and besides a sorrowing husband leaves several children. The funeral will be held at Sedan tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. D. Brosy officiating.

Sedan Flower Park.

The Sedan Flower Park will be open to the public next Sunday, Aug. 20, at 4 p. m. There will be preaching by Rev. E. E. Campbell from the subject "Paradise." A cordial welcome is extended to all.—SIMON HAINES.

Attention, Farmers.

The Auburn Handle Factory will pay the highest cash prices for ash handle block delivered at their factory on the Lake Shore tracks, cut 58 inches long. Also want ash logs cut 9½, 14½ and 19½ feet long. All timber to be smooth and sound.—J. M. CHERRY & CO. 32tf

William's Kidney Pills

Has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your Kidneys? Have you ove worked your nervous system and caused trouble with your Kidneys and Bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire pass urine? William's Kidney Pills will impart new life to the diseased organs, tone up the system and make a new man of you. By mail 50 cents per box.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

IDEAL MUSIC,

"Sweet as the angel Israfil's,
When every leaf on Eden's tree
Was trembling to his minstrelsy."

can be produced from an EBERSOLE PIANO. The Ebersole possesses a tone that no other maker has been able to imitate—being full and deep, yet with that clear singing quality which stamps it the peer of all upright pianos for homes of culture and refinement.

Frank B. Long,

119 Calhoun-St- cor Washington,

Fort Wayne, Ind.

HUMPHREYS' VETERINARY SPECIFICS

A. A. CURES FEVERS, Lung Fever, Milk Fever.
B. B. CURES SPRAINS, Lameness, Rheumatism.
C. C. CURES EPIZOOTIC, Distemper.
D. D. CURES WORMS, Bots, Grubs.
E. E. CURES COUGHS, Colds, Influenza.
F. F. CURES COLIC, Bellyache, Diarrhea.
G. G. Prevents MISCARRIAGE.
H. H. CURES KIDNEY & BLADDER DISORDERS.
I. I. CURES MANGE, Skin Diseases.
J. K. CURES BAD CONDITION, Staring Coat.

50c. each; Stable Case, Ten Specifics, Book, &c., $5. At druggists or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Humphreys' Medicine Co., Cor. William & John Sts., New York. VETERINARY MANUAL SENT FREE.

NERVOUS DEBILITY,

VITAL WEAKNESS

and Prostration from Overwork or other causes.

Humphreys' Homeopathic Specific No. 28, in use over 40 years, the only successful remedy.

$1 per vial, or 5 vials and large vial powder, for $5 Sold by Druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price. HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., Cor. William & John Sts., New York.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared for Piles and Itching of the private parts. Every box is warranted. By druggists, by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents and $1.00. WILLIAMS MANUFACTURING CO., Props., Cleveland, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

FARMER'S DAY

....AT.....

Robison Park,

FORT WAYNE,

Friday Aug. 25, '99

Barbecue,

BALLOON ASCENSION,

BICYCLE RACES

BRASS BAND MUSIC

Zoo & Pony Track

Theatricals, High-Class-Vaudeville.

Meals and Refreshments

Served On the Grounds

The Management have made great preparations to accommodate large crowds. The Greatest Day of the Season

Farmer's Day.

Round Trip $6.25

Every man, woman and child should have an outing at least once a year. Niagra Falls is the greatest natural wonder of the world. If you wish to visit this exhilarating and recreative spot, you will never have a better opportunity than on

August 24th

When the Wabash Railroad will sell tickets at the above rate. Arrange for your vacation to commence on that date. Take the whole family. It will give you a new lease on life and will be an education for the children (half the above rate if under 12; if under 4, free.)

A Good, Long Limit

Of 15 days will give you plenty of time to see the sights at Niagra and to take advantage of some of the many

Attractive Side Trips

Which will be offered at greatly reduced rates. The Thousand Islands of the St. Lawrence, famed the world over for their picturesque beauty, can be visited at an additional cost of $6.50. A visit to Toronto, the Queen City of Victoria's "American Domain," a grand trip across Lake Ontario, will cost but $1.00 additional. Canada's Great Industrial Fair at Toronto opens August 28th.

A Special Train.

Lunch Car. A car stocked with delicacies and substantials, sold at very low figures—not to make money, but simply as a convenience to patrons, will be part of the equipment.

Sleepers and Free Chair Cars Will make up the balance of the train. Sleeper fare, $2.50 each way.

Our Niagara Falls Excursion Leaflet

Gives time of special train, list of attractive side trips, bill of fare of the Lunch Car, Railroad and Sleeping Car rates, tells how to see all the wonders of Niagara to the best advantage, list of hotels and their rates and an estimate of necessary expenses while at the Falls. Ask nearest Wabash agent for one, or write to

C. S. CRANE, G. P. A. and T. A. St. Louis, Mo.

NOTICE

After August 15, Ruhl & Baker, Auburn, Ind., will run their cider mill every day except Sunday. Bring on your apples. RUHL & BAKER.

Give It a Trial.

It will surprise you. It will restore the life and beauty to your hair, stops dandruff and the hair from falling out. Berge' Hair renewer. H. B. McCord's.

SPECIALS FOR AUGUST

.....At the Big Dry Goods Store.

SHIRT WAISTS

Stylish waists—all of them, but the season is waning and they must go. A great opportunity for belayted buyers that won't last long at the prices.

One lot of about three dozen, most all sizes; neat patterns; good values at 50c. To clear them out quickly we mark them.... 18c

What is left of our 75c line of white pique; colored percale and Madras—all this season's goods; strictly up-to date styles, at.. 49c

All $1.00 and $1.50 values to be cleared out at 79c.

MUSLIN UNDERWEAR

Our sales in this line have been phenominal, people know a good thing when they see it. The quality and prices speak for themselves. We are closing out one line consisting of Children's Misses' and Ladies' Gowns, Ladies' Skirts and Drawers at 25 per cent. less than our usual low price. It will pay you to investigate.

MILLINERY

Sailor Hats—about one dozen of them. Two weeks ago they sold readily at $1.00 and $1.25. Yours to choose now at 50c, but be early or you are liable to be disappointed.

Have you seen the Stylish Golf Hats. We have them in the fine quality Wool and French Felt with folded silk band and rosette; fine long quill. Very swell, and the prices are less than you would expect to pay.

WRAPPERS

You cannot afford to make wrappers when you can buy them ready to wear at our prices.

Up to-date well made Percale Wrappers worth 75c, some stores ask even more than that price. Here this week at..... 49c

The $1.00 ones go at 73c while they last.

WOMENS' NECKWEAR

A fortunate chance awaits those of you who have need for neck dressing. Some of the dantiest creations of the season await you here with prices crually cut.

GOLF CAPES

You will think it is early perhaps, but we have sold some already. The cool evenings demand them. The styles are very attractive and we have priced them low for the early autumn trade. Would be glad to have you see them.

As the fashions bloom you can see every petal of newness unfold at the Big Store.

G. W. LACKEY,
Auburn, Ind.

"SOROSIS"
THE
New Shoe for Women!

$3.50 ONE PRICE TO ALL THE WORLD $3.50

A Perfect Shoe at a Fair Price

And the Best Shoe at Any Price!

They Are Made on Anatomical Lines

They Fit the Foot, The Eye, and the Purse

Save One-Half of Your Shoe Bill by Wearing . . Them!

Call at Bishop & Beidler's and They Will Be Pleased to show Them to You.

See Our Opening Sale Window

Bishop & Beidler,
Exclusive Agents. AUBURN, IND.

Summer Comforts!

There is no time in the year that the COMFORTS of the KITCHEN are more highly appreciated than during the months of July and August. We suggest as one of theses pecial comforts,

GASOLINE STOVES

We have a nice line of them which we are offering at special inducements

We have as good a line of REFRIGERATORS as there is made—some people say they are the best. We recommend them as ice savers, easy to keep clean and pure, as well as ornamental. The....

REFRIGERATOR

is another of our special summer comforts which we place within your reach.

While Gasoline Stoves and refrigerators are important factors in summer comforts, yet

Screen Doors and Windows are as important as the others. Don't think it is too late to buy them. It is just the time you need them most. We have a large line of paints, varnishes and painters supplies.

Headquarters for Plumbing Goods,

PIONEER HARDWARE STORE.

Monday's Daily.

—Gen. Blair of Waterloo was here this afternoon on a business trip.

—FOR SALE:—A lady's wheel in good condition.—A. E. MASTERS, E. Ninth street.

—It costs ten cents to use the Central Union telephone line between Auburn and Waterloo.

—Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Collett returned to St Marys today going to Fort Wayne on the forenoon train.

—FOR SALE—or will trade for town property, one heavy draft Norman stallion. Call on A. D. Moore, Moores, DeKalb county, Ind. 32-34

—Mr. and Mrs. Al Bishop have been rejoicing since yesterday over the birth of a fine girl baby. Dr. Vesta Swarts says all are doing well.

—Editor Briner, of the Hamilton Hustler, was the guest of Frank Thomas and wife yesterday and while here gave the COURIER a fraternal call.

—Edward Shilling of near Spencerville was in town early this morning with a load of the finest apples we have seen this season which he disposed of to dealers.

Tetter, Eczema and Skin Diseases yield quickly to the marvelous healing qualities of Banner Salve made from a prescription of a skin specialist of world wide fame. 25c.

—The Sunday school picnic at Union Chapel, five miles east of town, Saturday was attended by a large crowd and it was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the kind yet held in that neighborhood. A number went out from Auburn.

—B. F. Moffit was here Saturday and in speaking of the extreme heat of the day before, said that in spite of that he had handled that day at the thresher about 1100 bushels of grain—oats and barley. Ben is better than several dead men yet.

—During the month of August you can buy the largest ironing board on the stoutest folding frame ever placed on the market for $1.00, regular price $1.50. Manufactured by Chester Hoisington, corner of Twelfth and Van-Buren streets.

—LOST.—One four-year-old bay horse with roached mane, and one eight-year-old, bay horse, weight about 1400; last seen near county line between DeKalb and Noble. Reward will be paid for their recovery. Address H. P. Graham, Kendallville, Ind.

—Owing to the accident to one of the Denison ice wagons Saturday, John Ketel was somewhat delayed in filling orders but did the best he could under the circumstances, his customers realizing the fact that such accidents and delays are unavoidable.

—Nellie and Carey Boyer drove out to A. B. Walsworth's yesterday, taking little Stanley Hartman with them. They had a grand time. While there, they met the son and two daughters of Charles Bassett of Anderson. The oldest, a son, lives with his grandfather Ainsworth at Hicksville, and drove over here Saturday with the other two, his sisters who had been visiting him a few days. He drove back home today.

—A touching little incident occurred on the sewerage ditch on south Jackson street last week. A little tot of a child was looking down into the deep trench, and losing its balance fell in a fluffy heap to the bottom. The mother, who was standing near, reached down as the workmen handed the little one up to her, caught its hand and pulled it up in safety. The child did not even whimper or show a sign of fright but seemed glad to get to its mother again. Our informant they were Mrs. W. H. McDowell and baby, but is not certain.

HUMBUGS

are they who tell you other cough syrups are just as good as Beggs' Cherry Cough Syrup. If you can not get it from your druggist notify us at once and on receipt of 25 cents we will send you a bottle. Guaranteed. McCord's.

BUTLER.

T. C. Eralick and children, of South Chicago, are visiting with Mr. Fralick's father J. A. Campbell.

Walter Maxwell is improving slowly, but is having a serious time of it.

Mrs. William L. Blair is reported as slightly improved, but her recovery is a matter of some doubt.

New sidewalks are being placed in many parts of town, not before they are wanted however.

E. V. Campbell and wife visited Orland last week.

Mrs. Mary Hamilton is visiting friends at Angola this week.

Old Settlers meeting at Angola promises to be a memorable occasion.

J. A. Campbell and A. J. Monroe, of Indianapolis adjusted the Henry Hutton loss in Concord last Friday.

The writer, wife, daughter and her husband drove across the country to VanWert, Ohio, last week going to a point on the state line near Edgerton, Indiana, on Friday afternoon. A very hard electrical storm prevailed during the night. Many corn fields were badly blown down. As we go south the wheat yield increases rapidly and in Van Wert county runs as high as 35 bushels to the acre. The country is very low, but the roads have been piked and covered with crushed stone, and are very fine driveways. The oil field is gradualy expanding, and now embraces some of VanWert county, with strong indication that this county will soon be a gas and oil center and wealth will flow in untold thousands. Returning, we came by Paulding, that has grown almost beyond our knowledge, then through the old reservoir, that is a garden spot, to Antwerp, and Hicksville and home. Corn is an immense crop all over these counties—but is badly blown down.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Remember the county institute August 22.

—Stella Tarney was calling on friends in town yesterday.

—Chapman's Flux Syrup is guaranteed to cure Stomach and Bowel trouble. D5—17—W2t.

—Mrs. C. C. Hoffman, north of town, is reported sick. Dr. Vesta Swarts is in charge.

—Mr. Schneider, husband of Minnie Wilson, died at Little Rock, Sunday, a telegram says.

—Laura Keeran reports from Waterloo a girl baby born to Rev. and Mrs. Dingel yesterday.

—FOR RENT:—The front offices on the second floor of the Kiblinger Block. Inquire of D. A. Hodge on the first floor.

—Allen Weaver has changed his address from Oakesdale, Wash., to Wilson Creek, an item his friends out here should make a note of.

—Harry Draggoo and others interested in the race track say that anyone is welcome to use the track now for driving or speeding their horses.

—To all points in competition where the fare is $2 or more we have free bus and free baggage to the Junction. tf SPROTT & KNAPP, Agency B. & O. Ry.

—The Fort Wayne Journal of Sunday, has a nice writeup for the coming Old Settlers meeting at Angola including pictures of Judge Powers and several pioneers.

—The B. & O. will run another excursion to Sandusky next Sunday. The train leaves the Junction at 4:30 a. m. and the fare for the round trip is the usual one dollar.

—Steuben county was first settled in 1831 by Gideon Long and John and Jacob Stagner. The first board of commissioners met in March, 1838, and first circuit court in April, 1838.

—The C. E. of the Lutheran church will give an ice cream social on the public square on Wednesday evening of next week, August 23. All are invited and don't forget the date.

—We were misinformed yesterday as to Mrs. Judge McClellan's being at Richmond, Va. She is at Detroit visiting her sister, Mrs. Myles. She came back that way from her trip to Detroit.

"Foley's Kidney Cure has been tested and to be all you claim for it. I have been giving it to my father and it is the only thing that ever helped him," writes GEO. W. HICKOCK, Curtiss, Wis.

—Postmaster Forkner is investigating the matter of free delivery, and we understand has about made arrangements for two short routes, as an experiment. Each will start from Auburn, of course.

—Paul McClellan, one of the boys who sometimes sub as Daily carriers, was feeding a corn sheller the other day, and by accident got his fingers in the cogs, mashing the middle one on the right hand pretty badly.

—The Wabash Plain Dealer recently published the obituary of a citizen of that place and said many nice things about him. The man didn't happen to be dead, however, and called at the newspaper office to thank the editor for his kind send-off.

—While coming to town on his wheel a few evenings since a young man named Sheffer collided with a buggy at Wagner's blacksmith shop. The wheelman was thrown under the horse and though he escaped serious injury, his bicycle was a complete wreck.

—Clarence, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Long, died at their home in East Auburn last evening, after an illness of a few days, aged four months and seven days. The funeral services will be held at the house tomorrow at 10 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Brosy.

—A telegram sent over by kindness of Isaac Speer, at Waterloo, brings word that Frank Rempis was accidentally shot at Denver yesterday. No particulars, except that he is at the St. Luke Hospital. He is a son of Charles Rempis, who left this morning for Denver. Frank lost his wife some years ago, but has two grown children.

—Geo. W. Deal who resides near Auburn and Miss Clara Ludwig whose home is at Churubusco were quietly married at the Hollister House parlors yesterday afternoon by Rev. W. L. Meese. Mr. Deal will be remembered as one of the recruits taken south last year by Geo. W. Everett, when he came home for men to fill Company K.

—J. W. Metcalf, on Saturday brought in some specimens of the soy bean and cow pea that he is raising. Their growth this year is immense. One stalk of soy bean contains 192 pods the branches being several feet long. He had about 10 lbs of the soy seed and 2 of the cow peas and they planted nearly an acre. It is his first experience with both, but he thinks them so far a great success.

ST. JOE.

Frank Barney has been sick for the past few days.

G. Martin Body has been quite sick for several days but is better now.

Wm. Leighty has moved into the residence lately purchased of J. H. Abel.

H. Hathaway has bought the Hart property at the west end and will move there in a few days.

Clyde Woodcox has bought the Hines residence and will move there soon.

G. W. Woodcox is again employed at the St. Joe elevator.

The annual meeting of the Christian church will convene at this place Aug. 25, on Friday and continue over Sunday. Meeting will be held at the park, Rev. Selly of Cincinnati, will be the main speaker.

Wednesday's Daily.

—The comedy event of the season will be "A Breezy Time."

—Attorney Will Lose of Waterloo was here on legal business yesterday.

—Master Sherbie TenEyck is recovering from an attack of typhoid fever.

—Chapman's Flux Syrup cures Cholera Morbus and Diarrhoea. D5-17-W2t.

—Reserved seats on sale at Davenport's Thursday morning for the Opera House Saturday evening.

—FOR SALE:—Good second-hand organ; will be sold cheap. Inquire at this office.

—Mrs. Barns is gaining slowly and sat up a short time yesterday, and a little while today.

—When you go to buy bluing insist upon having, Russ' Bleaching Blue and none of the many imitations. 35

—Mr. and Mrs. John Treesh went to Sedan today to attend the funeral of the former's sister, Mrs. Martin Whetzel.

—Wilson Trout of Chicago is here, a guest of his half-brother, Gene Trovt. He had been at Mt. Clemens for treatment.

—Ask your grocer for Russ' Bleaching Blue, do not be deceived by fraudulent imitations, see that the name Russ appears on all packages. 35

FOR SALE: A good dwelling house, large and commodious, with good cellar; central location in Auburn. Cheap. Call on JOHN W. BAXTER.

—A tri-state evangelistic temperance meeting will be held at Rome City, August 18 to 20. Mrs. Mary Ehlers will deliver an address next Sunday evening August 20.

—The annual meeting of the Disciples will be held at St. Joe, August 25 to 28, inclusive. Isaac Selby, speaker. The meetings will be held afternoons and evenings and there will be several interesting lectures on Bible topics.

—Culbertson & Boland today received a large consignment of the celebrated Wilson heating machines for this fall's trade. It is claimed that they will heat the same amount of space with half the fuel that other stoves consume. d2w1

—A Lake Shore freight car, standing in the yards at Kendallville, was broken into Monday night and a large number of fine shoes stolen. The work is attributed to a gang of tramps who were seen about the yards during the afternoon.

—C. C. Buss reports that the county farm oats crop amounts to 1330 bushels this year. He thrashed on Monday afternoon 940 bushels from about 11:30 to 6 p. m. This is something like record breaking, averaging about 200 bushels per hour.

—Dr. Baxter went south this afternoon, being called to his old home at Corydon, by the illness of his brother Elmer, the young man who was here for some time. He has typhoid fever and is not expected live. The Doctor will be gone a week or so.

—The grading is nearly completed for the branch railroad from Helmer to Hayward City and it is expected that cars will be running by September 5. The contracts for the construction of the big cement factory will be let this week and Picker Bros. have a bid in on the brick work.

—The count at the northern prison dropped to low watermark Monday when the number of inmates was 773, the lowest in several years. When the courts open up this fall the roster will doubtless be largely increased and DeKalb county will be one of the counties represented.

—After several months of separation, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Askew were yesterday again united in marriage at Fort Wayne where Mrs. Askew has been residing since she left Auburn. This action was not unexpected among their friends and the COURIER hopes their second embarkation on the matrimonial sea will be one of happiness, and that the reunited family circle will be broken only by death.

WHEELMEN

should never be without a box of Beggs' German Salve; it gives instant relief. Heals sores, cuts, bruises and chafing. H. B. McCord's drug store.

The Oddfellows Picnic

The second annual picnic of the Odd-Fellows of DeKalb county was held Aug. 10, in the grove just east of Garrett and was attended by members of all the Subordinate and Rebekah lodges of Odd Fellows in the county. The Garrett Odd Fellows furnished free lemonade and cigars and their band furnished the instrumental music. The program was made up of addresses by Hon. J. M. Robinson of Fort Wayne, Rev. Neher of Auburn, Mayor C. W. Camp and Rev. Stewart of Garrett and Sol. Barney of St. Joe. Songs by the Misses Nellie Richards and May Shilling of Auburn, the Misses Patterson and Widney of St. Joe and Mesdames Merica and Reyher and Messrs. E. C. Reyher and Chas. Stewart of Garrett. There were recitations by Sidney Farmer of Auburn, Mrs. Jessie Baxter of Waterloo and Mrs. Maud Jenkins and Violet Everett of St. Joe. About noon the weather cleared up and in the afternoon there were nearly six hundred people on the ground. After the exercises a permanent organization was formed with Sol. Barney, of St. Joe, as president, Dr. Chas. Stewart of Garrett and Mrs. W. H. Rakestraw of Auburn vice-presidents and M. Brumstetler of Butler as secretary. The second Thursday in August was selected as the annual day for picnic and Auburn was selected for the next location.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

is easily cured by the use of Beggs' Diarrhoea Balsam; it is safe and sure. H. B. McCord's drug store.

Reliable Offerings

.....Especially adapted to August requirements, bearing prices that are right at their worth, that makes them liveliest values. We feel assured of your interest in these offerings—items that prove only an index to the many good things we've made ready for the August buyer.

Men's Work Shirts at.....	24c	Boys' Knee Pants in Scotch plaids, all-wool.....	48c
Men's Work Shirts, double fronts and backs.....	48c	Boys' Knee Pants, black chiviot, worth 75c, now.....	48c
Men's Work Shirts, yoke-back, double stitched, all colors in plaids and stripes.....	45c	Half Soles per pair from.....	10 to 13c
Men's Outing Shirts, stronly made, in plaids.....	48c	100-piece decorated dinner set.....	$6.85
Men's Overalls in blue.....	35c	100-piece white semi-porcelain dinner set at...	$6.35
Men's Overalls in brown.....	40c	White semi-porcelain cups and saucers, per set.....	35c
Men's Overalls, blue, extra heavy and durable.....	45c	7-inch white semi-porcelain dinner plates, per set	35c
Men's Overalls, in stripes extra heavy.....	48c	Meakin's Royal Semi-Porcelain dinner sets, $9 to	$14
Boys' Overalls with bibs.....	24 to 38c	White Bowl & Pitcher full size and new shape.....	75c
Boys' Knee Pants, from 5 to 14 years, for.....	24c	Metal back combs at	5 to 10c
		Wire Hair Pins, per bunch...	3c

On Saturday, August 19th, for that day only, we will sell Mason's 1-qt self-sealer jars at.....

39c Per Doz.

Whole Cloves.....	20c
Cinnamon Bark.....	20c
Mixed Spices per box.....	5c
Poison Fly Paper.....	4c
Cream Tartar.....	25c
Table Mustard a glass.....	5c
Buttermilk Soap per box.....	10c
Yeast Foam.....	4c
Red Seal Lye for disinfecting per can.....	8c

Bazar Store

PETER KUNTZ, PRESIDENT. Chicago, Ill. W. H. KECKLER, TREASURER Auburn, Ind.

...THE...

Auburn Lumber Co.

CENTRAL 'PHONE 12.

We sell all kinds of Lumber for Building Purposes, Make Door and Window Frames to Order. We can Sell you Doors and Windows at Money Saving Prices.

Headquarters For

Lime, Bulk Lime

Wood Burnt bulk Lime

The Genuine Article.

We can save you money in Price, Quality and Weight Come and see us and examine our LIME, and you will be convinced. We also carry Cement, Plastering Hair, Plaster Paris, etc.

Yours Truly,

AUBURN LUMBER CO.

Near Wabash Depot, Auburn, Ind.

It Pays to Paint.

There is nothing that adds to the selling value or the renting value of a house like good paint—there is nothing that makes home more home-like than good paint.

It pays to paint. The better the paint, the better it pays.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT

pays in the beginning because it goes so far—pays in the end because it lasts so long, and looks so well, as long as it lasts. There is no paint like it for beauty and durability, for economy and satisfaction.

For Sale By

CULBERTSON & BOLAND.

THE PLODDER'S PETITION.

Lord, let me not be too content
With life in trifling service spent—
Make me aspire!
When days with petty cares are filled,
Let me with fleeting thoughts be thrilled
Of something higher!

Help me to long for mental grace
To struggle with the commonplace
I daily find.
May little deeds not bring to fruit
A crop of little thought to suit
A shriveled mind.

I do not ask for place among
Great thinkers who have taught and sung,
And scorned to bend
Under the trifles of the hour—
I only would not lose the power
To comprehend.
—Independent.

Scott's Revenge.

IT was nearly midnight. Stanley Robshaw, a rising young lawyer, was humming to himself the latest comic song as with his latchkey he let himself into the quiet house where he rented a suite of rooms.

It struck him as odd that the staircase gas jets had already been extinguished. Probably the janitor and his family had already retired to rest in the basement; but his friend Grand, the well-known surgeon, who resided on the ground floor, was not in the habit of going to bed so early. Perhaps, however, he had been called out; but, even in that case, why was there no light? Such were Robshaw's reflections as he groped his way upstairs to his sitting-room, which room was also in darkness.

The lawyer was in the act of feeling for his matches in their accustomed place upon the mantelpiece, when he fancied that he heard, close to him, the sound of some one breathing.

"Who's there?" he exclaimed.

Scarcely had he spoken, when an arm was passed round his neck, and a linen rag, that smelt strongly of chloroform, was thrust against his nostrils and crammed into his mouth. At the same time a cord or strap was passed round his legs and drawn tight. All this happened in an instant. Stanley Robshaw resisted violently, and almost got his mouth free from the gag. Then came a crushing blow on the head, and he knew no more.

* * * * * * *

The beating of a million Nasmyth hammers, the jangle of hundreds of brazen bells, the roar of waves on an iron-bound shore—these and similar noises were coursing with lightning speed through Stanley Robshaw's brain as he recovered consciousness. Gradually his heart regained its normal beat, and he remembered what had happened and realized how he was situated.

He was sitting in his accustomed easy chair, to the legs and arms of which his ankles and wrists had been firmly bound—so tight that the pain of the thongs had probably some part in restoring him to consciousness. A wooden gag was fixed in his mouth. One of the gas jets had been lighted, and the shutters were closed.

Three men were in the room, busily engaged in packing into a portmanteau the handsome silver cups with which the sideboard was laden—for the lawyer had at one time been a famous athlete.

A half-gasp, half-groan, whistled through the prisoner's nostrils, and attracted the attention of the busy trio.

"He's coming around," muttered one of them.

"Leave him to me," was the whispered response of another; "I'll settle his hash, while you and Tom pick up the swag."

And, crossing the room, he placed himself directly opposite Stanley's chair, in such a way that the light shone straight upon his face.

"Do you know me, Mr. Stanley Robshaw?" he demanded, in a stern and menacing tone.

Stanley gazed steadily at him. As he looked the room and its inmates seemed to disappear. As a long-forgotten dream he saw, looking down from the dock of a crowded court, a tall, wiry figure, clad in rusty black. Once more he beheld those steely blue eyes, and that cadaverous, long-drawn face, framed by wiry locks of iron-gray hair. Once more he saw those thin, murderous lips open, and heard, in measured, relentless tones, the prophetic threat: "We shall assuredly meet again, Mr. Robshaw; and then, for the last time, you will have seen the light of day."

Yes, he did indeed know Kingson Scott, alias Ryder, the blackleg, the swindler, the man whose cleverly devised insurance fraud had driven him into a suicide's grave his old school and college friend. Despite his snow-white hair—now closely cropped—and his stubbly beard, he knew the fellow, and he writhed in agony of spirit as he realized that this man—this wild beast, rather—had him in his power. He knew well the meaning of the mocking glare in his enemy's eyes. He was doomed; well, he would meet death as an American should. Realizing his wandering senses, he gazed steadily back at his foe, and nodded a reply.

"Oh, do you know me! Then you perhaps remember where we last met, and what I said to you that day? Yes, Mr. Stanley Robshaw, I told you we should meet again. The hope of coming face to face with you once more has kept me alive through the ten long years I have spent in a living tomb. I was not a young man when your pitiless invective—your charming love for that precious decoy of ours—sent me to undergo all the horrors of penal servitude. No doubt you thought I should never return; but I could not die and leave my debt to you unpaid.

"I told you that the day when we met once more would be the last time you would behold the light. It was no idle threat. You need not indulge in any hope that your friend the doctor will come to your rescue. My plans are too well laid for any fiasco. Dr. Grand has been summoned to attend a serious case at Evanston, a compound fracture of the skull, I believe our 'wire' said, and the last train will have gone before he will discover the hoax.

"You are an authority on commercial contracts, I believe, so you may like to know the terms of the bargain between me and my pals. It is very simple—they take the swag, and I take you. I want none of your cursed wealth; I want vengeance only.

"Do you see this little phial, with camel's-hair brush, all complete? Well, curse you! blister you—yes, I'm going to blister you! This bottle is labeled 'Liquor vesicatorius fortis,' and, if your Latin is as rusty as mine, we'll just call it 'tincture of cantharides.'

"Now, Mr. Stanley Robshaw, I'm going to paint your pretty optics with this soothing eye-lotion, and then you must excuse me and my friends for declining your hospitality any longer. I know all about this stuff, for I was blistered in the hospital at that infernal prison.

"Your eyes will gradually get redder and redder, while the skin all round them will swell and swell, till the big, bladdery blisters completely hide them. Afterward the blisters will burst, but you won't have any eyes then. It's a lovely idea of mine, and beats vitriol hollow. And now, look straight into my face. I know how much you love me, and it's an additional pleasure to reflect that the last face you'll see this side of the grave is that of your greatest and deadliest foe."

Stanley Robshaw fixed his eyes firmly and scornfully on the baleful countenance that glared upon him. For a moment each stared steadily at the other; then the ex-convict's gaze dropped. Even in the moment of his triumph he could not, unabashed, meet that clear, honest look.

At that instant a cab was heard to stop in the street below, and, a few seconds later, a latchkey grated in the lock of the front door.

"Dowse the glim," whispered Kingston Scott, crossing to the door, which he bolted, while another of the miscreants turned out the gas.

In the breathless silence that ensued, footsteps were heard ascending the stairs, and a cheery voice shouted:

"Are you in bed, old man?"

Then the door was tried, and a moment later the young doctor retreated to his own floor.

"Lucky we've list slippers on," growled one of the burglars, lighting a small dark-lantern.

"Yes," assented his leader, adding in a whisper, "hold the glim here while I put some soothing ointment on this poor, afflicted gentleman's lovely optics; and then we had best cut our lucky. The 'sawbones' must have caught his train, hang him."

And, while the other held the lantern, the callous monster coolly proceeded to paint the unhappy lawyer's eyelids with the deadly tincture.

Stanley Robshaw did not flinch, but coolly faced his enemy. A nervous tapping of one foot on the ground, which he could just reach, was the only sign of emotion that he exhibited.

"Blow it, he's a plucky 'un!" was the unwilling testimony to his firmness borne by the man who held the light.

The operation was completed, a "second coat" was laid on, and the three rogues prepared to withdraw.

"By-by, Stanley, dear," sneered their leader, as, in the rear of the procession, he passed through the door, which he locked on the outside.

They stole quietly downstairs, and noiselessly opened the front door.

At that instant a police whistle was sounded, and the burglars' victim, to his intense relief, heard the sound of a violent scuffle. One or two revolver shots followed.

Before the poise of the reports had passed away Dr. Grand was hammering at Stanley's locked door with a heavy poker. The bolts gave way, and he entered. The gas was at once lighted, and disclosed Stanley Robshaw's apparently inanimate form lying bound in the easy chair.

The ropes were at once cut, and a policeman was summoned, by whose aid the doctor carried his insensible friend down to his consulting room. Here restoratives were at once applied, and the hapless man presently recovered consciousness.

His first act was to point to his eyes.

"Quick—quick!" he panted; "for heaven's sake, save my eyesight! That villain has painted my eyes with cantharides tincture."

"Great heavens. Are you sure?" anxiously asked his friend, springing up from the seat he had just taken.

While he closely examined the lawyer's eyes, the latter related everything that had befallen him. At the conclusion of his narrative an expression of ineffable relief appeared on the surgeon's face.

"Calm yourself, old fellow, it's all right; but no thanks are due to Mr. Kingston Scott for your escape. You owe that to Mr. Jonas Smithers, who is one of my regular patients. He is a hypochondriac, and has periodical attacks of nervousness. Whenever Smithers hears, or fancies that he hears, noises in his ears, he imagines that he is going deaf. He then comes to me and demands to be blistered forthwith. If I refused to operate he would simply go to another medical man, who might perhaps be led to give credence to his symptoms, and might really blister him. So I keep for Mr. Smithers' especial delectation a harmless decoction of weak tea and a little iodine, and it is this which has been labeled 'liquor vesicatorius fortis,' that the miscreants have employed. The word 'fortis' misled them, and saved your eyesight, for the real stuff was on the shelf above. I'll apply something to counteract the iodine, though it's hardly strong enough to be felt after to-morrow; and then you must take a composing draught and go to bed. The bruise on your temple will be all right in a week."

At this moment a knock was heard at the hall door. The constable who had been left on duty there answered it, and the police inspector was introduced into the surgery a moment later.

"Can I have Mr. Robshaw's statement, doctor?" he asked.

"Not to-night, inspector; he's too much upset. Call to-morrow. Did you capture them all?"

"Well, sir, we did—and we didn't. One man, the leader of the gang, an ex-convict named Scott, alias Ryder—formerly a parson, they say——"

"Yes, what of him? I trust the rascal hasn't escaped?"

"He's beyond the power of human justice, sir. One of his mates fired at us, and the bullet passed through Scott's brain."

There was a moment's silence, which was broken by the inspector.

"I don't understand, doctor, how you knew they were upstairs!"

"My friend Mr. Robshaw told me, inspector!"

"But how?" was the natural query.

"Well, I was rendered suspicious by a bogus 'wire,' which called me to Evanston; and I took a special train back. When I failed to gain admittance to Mr. Robshaw's rooms, I returned to my own, where I tapped on the ceiling with a long stick. In reply Mr. Robshaw tapped 'Burglars!' in the Morse telegraphic code. I at once telephoned to the police station—and you and your men did the rest."

THE old home garden once again,
I see it as of yore;
The maples tall, the trellis green,
The open kitchen door.
The grandsire gray; our dear lame boy,
The curly head of three;
Our nut-brown maid and the swing in the shade
Of the century basswood tree.

The baby face is backward bent,
Toward that face so old;
The dimpling cheeks are deeply framed
In curls of shining gold;
And "Swin' me aden, and sin' to me,
G'anpa, sat 'ittle son'
Abouts 'swin' swon', se dals is lon'," "
Commands Her Majesty.

The bees boom in the currant bloom
And high up in the tree
The robins join their bacchanal song
To summer's melody.
And swaying slow, and crooning low,
All in the golden day,
The baby swings and grandpa sings,
With quavering voice, the lay:
"Swing, swong the days are long,
The woodchuck and the sparrow,
For our little dog has lost his tail,
So—he must be hanged to-morrow."

Down twenty years, through mists of tears,
I look back to that day,
When in a student's silent room,
With its trophied walls of gray,
A maiden "got her Latin out,
While Roman legions strong,
By Caesar led, with steady tread,
Marched to the old 'Swing, swong.'"

So long ago pale drifts of snow
And petals from rose blooms,
In changing shade their palls have laid
For years, above three tombs.
Upon the blue Pacific waves
Look out those eyes of blue;
Ah, "Golden Hair," nor time nor care
Divides my love and you.

The grandsire gray, the nut-brown fay,
Our crippled lad so dear,
Have sailed afar beyond the bar,
And left but memories here.
But memories? Nay; a nut-brown fay,
With eyes so gray of hue,
(Her legacy) climbs to my knee,
And thus begins to sue:
"Wok me aden! Aunt Essie, p'ease,
An' sin' 'at 'ittle son'
Abouts 'Swin' swon, se days is lon'"
She cries imperiously.
No song of bird or bee is heard;
October sad is here;
But—Rose in Bloom, no touch of gloom
Remains while thou art near.

So rocking slow and to and fro,
In the firelight's flickering gray,
We two float down to "Slumber Town"
Upon the olden lay;
"Swing, Swong, the days are long,
The woodchuck and the sparrow;
For our little dog has lost his tail,
So—he must be hanged to-morrow."
—Ethelyn Bryant Chapman.

High Heels.

High heels, it is said, owe their origin to Persia, where they were introduced to raise the feet from the burning sands of that country.

PESTS AGAIN APPEAR.

GRASSHOPPERS REPORTED IN PARTS OF THE WEST.

Entomologist Bruner, of the United States Experiment Station in Nebraska, Writes Upon the Variety and Habits of the Pestiferous Insect

Entomologist Lawrence Bruner of the United States agricultural experiment station at the University of Nebraska has sent out the following circular on grasshoppers:

"During the past few years more or less injury by locusts, or grasshoppers, as they are usually called in this country, has been reported from various localities in the interior of North America. By means of specimens obtained and examined at the State University it has been learned that at least four or five distinct kinds of insects are sufficiently numerous in several localities to cause alarm. They are the following:

"The two-lined locust (melanoplus bivittatus), the differential locust (M. differentialis), the red-legged locust (M. femur-rubrum), the lesser migratory locust (M. atlanis) and the Rocky Mountain or migratory locust (M. spretus).

ROCKY MOUNTAIN LOCUST—DIFFERENT STAGES OF GROWTH OF YOUNG.

"The presence in uncommonly large numbers of the last named insect at several points seem to warrant us in urging the proper authorities in infested districts to action with a view to the destruction of the pest wherever found.

"While this particular species is in reality no more destructive to crops than would be an equal number of individuals of any of the others named above, its habit of getting up into the air and migrating in a body to some new locality renders it capable of greater injury. It is by this means that the insect escapes from various enemies and unfavorable climatic conditions.

"The various species that are figured herewith will readily be recognized by the readers of this short sketch. While it is impossible to enter into any extended discussion of locust increase and the consequent injuries arising from such multiplication of the insects, a brief statement may not be amiss. During normal conditions of weather, etc., the insects of any region are kept within bounds by means of their natural enemies and no dire results follow. When these conditions are disturbed in any way and restraining influences are withdrawn the more hardy species increase very rapidly. Such increase in numbers of course means the requirement of an increased amount of food, and we see the result more plainly. Some kinds of locusts prefer different haunts and food plants from what others do, and hence the seeming difference in the amount of harm done by each.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN LOCUST—MALE.

"When the natural checks upon locust increase fail and these insects multiply abnormally it is necessary to use artificial means for reducing their numbers. It is chiefly to suggest what can be done in this direction that the present circular has been prepared.

"First of all, I wish to suggest that our native birds be protected, since nearly all of them are especially fond of locusts as a diet during the summer months. When our prairie chickens and other grouse were still numerous no harm whatever was reported as coming from 'native grasshoppers.' Quail, plovers, blackbirds, sparrows, hawks and even ducks are known to feed largely upon these insects. A single bird of any of these species will destroy thousands of them. Where the birds are destroyed the extra thousands of locusts soon increase beyond the normal and injury results. Year after year the gap is made wider and the possibility for harm increases. Even frogs, lizards, snakes and other animals that come under our ban destroy many of these destructive locusts and every time we thoughtlessly kill one of them we make it possible for their natural food to do us harm.

LOCUST KILLED BY FUNGUS DISEASE.

"Only a few weeks ago the writer saw dozens of birds engaged in feeding upon the young of the migrating locust in Sioux County, where the insects had hatched in one of the valleys by millions.

"Aside from the birds, reptiles and some of the smaller mammals that habitually feed upon locusts these insects are attacked by numerous kinds of other insects. These latter of course increase and decrease according as their food increases or decreases, but they also are affected by climatic conditions. Conditions that are unfavorable to the increase of these enemies do not seem to appreciably affect the hoppers, hence the frequency with which the latter become destructive does not seem to be materially affected by parisitic and predaceous insects.

THE TWO-LINED LOCUST—FEMALE.

When we have removed about the only check to the increase in destructive numbers of the locusts we most naturally seek such relief artificially.

"Thus far we have been only partially successful in our attempts at destroying grasshoppers by the use of fungus diseases. Unlike the chinch bug fungus the one that attacks locusts in North America is comparatively slow in its action and only appears to take hold of the insects after they are about half grown. This being true we must look elsewhere for a means of warfare.

"If we carefully watch where eggs are deposited in rather large numbers we can destroy these by harrowing or disking the ground and exposing them to the drying influence of the sun or to the keen eye of birds. Deep plowing during fall and early spring will bury locust eggs so deeply that the young 'hoppers when they hatch are unable to reach the surface.

"By all odds the best method of destroying these insects is the use of the 'hopper dozer,' or kerosene pan, which is shown herewith. This is made of stovepipe iron by turning up the sides and ends so as to make a long flat pan about four inches in depth. This is then mounted on runners varying in height according to the requirements. On the frame back of the machine is stretched a piece of cloth to prevent the insects from jumping over the pan. When ready to begin work this pan is partially filled with water and then some coal oil is added. If the ground is level no cross pieces are necessary, but if the machine is to be used on sloping ground it should be made as indicated in the illustration to prevent the oil and water from running to the end. The height of the runners will necessarily vary from two to eight or ten inches, according to the crop to be protected and the age of the insects to be captured. The 'dozer' may be of any length desired up to sixteen or eighteen feet. If small it can be drawn by hand, but when larger a horse or two is preferable. When full the insects can be removed, a little more oil added and the machine again started. In this way a number of bushels of hoppers may be destroyed during a single day. The cost is trifling and the remedy very effectual. In a garden an old hen with chicks will prove quite valuable, while a flock of turkeys will do much good in ridding the premises of the pest."

"HOPPER DOZER" FOR CAPTURING GRASSHOPPERS.

THE DIFFERENTIAL LOCUST—MALE AND FEMALE.

Too Much Culture.

"Aunt Penelope Wiggins," as everybody called her, was visited one summer by a niece from the East, a Vassar College graduate. "Aunt Penelope" was one of the most hospitable souls alive, but she was not greatly impressed by the superior learning of her young relative, and one day she freed her mind about her thus:

Talk to me about what a college education does for a girl! What do you suppose Matilda said to me the first day she came? She said:

"I'm so glad to meet you, aunty! You accent your name on the Aunty Penultimate, don't you?"

Did you ever hear such nonsense? I had to tell her my name wasn't Aunty Penultimate, but Aunty Penelope, and I thought she would die a-laughing!—Youth's Companion.

Where the Wine Comes In.

"It seems a trifle strange," remarked the funny man, "that you preachers, who always object to Sunday labor, are obliged to do your hardest work on Sunday."

"You are mistaken," replied the preacher. "We always collect our salaries on week days."—New York Journal.

If you live a natural, common sense life, you will be abused, but you will be happier, and live longer.

The silent watches of the night hang in front of jewelry stores.

FOR YOUNG MEN.

As a rule we get what we work for. Success always depends upon effort and never upon that vague, mysterious thing which some young men call luck and regard as something that is regulated by a blind fate or destiny or something else that is beyond his control. Of course there are times when the young man who starts out with fair prospects and works intelligently and hard fails to achieve the things he set out to accomplish. But there is reason for this, and the difficulty lies in the fact that the reason lay too deep for his comprehension. But there is nothing to discourage in this failure to achieve. Let the same young man keep right on striving and if you follow his course you will invariably find that his later successes will far more than compensate his early failures. He will have his times of seeming adversity, but these little discouragements only serve to strengthen and broaden his capabilities and render him abler to achieve greater things. Honest, intelligent, persistent labor brings its reward. Luck is the vague hope of the lazy. It exists only in the mind of the indolent and worthless. Banish all ideas of luck and work for success and you cannot help but achieve it.

Keep Posted on Current Topics.

It is shameful that so many young men know nothing of public affairs, local, State or National. It is a duty every young man owes to himself and the commonwealth to keep posted on matters that pertain to the common weal. Familiarize yourself with the questions at issue in your own district or ward. Study their merits. Get at the bottom. Know the parties interested and learn their views and study and criticise their actions. Read your home paper. Read its political discussions, and if it be a partisan sheet read the organ of the other party and form opinions for yourself. Get in touch with what is going on in the world. Read a daily or weekly, or both, and have the leading events of the world thoroughly fixed in your mind so that you can make an intelligent remark on any public question. Learn the names of the prominent figures in public life. Study their thoughts and actions. Get to know them personally, almost, through the papers. They can teach you much, and you cannot afford to miss their influence. While it is well to read the papers thoroughly, you should do more. There are plenty of magazines, to be had at reasonable prices. They contain the thoughts of the brightest and brainiest men of the day, expressed in their best language. It is an education to thoughtfully read the papers and magazines. And when you have done this there still remains no end of good books which you may either get at a public library or purchase very cheaply. There is no excuse for a young man's being ignorant these days with so many opportunities at hand for being well read—educated.

Carry Some Life Insurance.

If you are a young man, having a wife or mother depending on you for support, you should carry some life insurance. You should carry all you possibly can pay for; for if they require your help now how much more they would requite it if you were gone! It needs little argument nowadays to convince men that they ought to be insured. Everybody of intelligence realizes its importance. The question of what form of insurance should be taken perplexes most men. Insurance companies make great efforts to get their patrons to take endowment policies, combining investment with insurance. This is not a good form of policy for the man of average means who is capable of saving and investing his surplus in a way that will suit him best. Buy your insurance like you buy anything else—for its market value. You want protection. Then get the policy that for a stated premium will leave your wife or mother the greatest possible amount of money in case you die. Don't mix investment and insurance. It pays the companies far better than it pays you, and if you can save without doing it in that way you can make much better use of your savings.

Electricity for Farm Work.

The German government has placed some of its lands at the disposal of experimenters, who are trying to discover the best methods of applying electric power in agriculture. Both in Germany and in France agricultural societies are encouraging farmers to study, practically, what is called "agricultural electrical engineering." Wind-power and water-power are utilized to produce electrical energy, which can be transmitted by wire to any desired place on the farm, and employed to drive ploughs, pumps and threshing machines, and for many other purposes. Gas and petroleum motors are also coming into use for agricultural purposes in Germany.

Sacred Names Freely Used.

Two youngsters, respectively 8 and 7, went to Sunday school recently and heard their new teacher relate the flight into Egypt for the first time. The story made a profound impression on their infant minds, and the next day the pair were "playing" it in the nursery, with an overturned chair for the ass. "Come along, Mary!" cried the 8-year-old to his small sister. "Hurry up; the ass is all ready." "I can't, yet; Jesus isn't ready. Tell Joseph to wait till I find Jesus' hat." Then mamma sailed in and suggested the children should amuse themselves by playing something less realistic and more secular.

A Singular Tree.

The "Alizier" is a tree, the leaves of which are green above and white and cottony beneath. When rain is in the air the leaves reverse themselves. It is a French tree, with sweetly scented white flowers and a red berry. It grows to about twenty-four feet in height, and announces rain or sunshine with absolute certainty. If its leaves are green, take your walking-stick; but should they be white, then certainly take your umbrella.

A story on a married man isn't really interesting unless his wife caught him at it.

The average man spends a lot of time searching for what he hopes he won't find.

SERMONS OF THE WEEK

Criticism.—The higher criticism of the Bible is a noble example of criticism. No skeptic ever discovered anything or can discover anything.—Rev. Calthrop, Syracuse, N. Y.

Divine Methods.—The Creator has divine methods of calculation. He only knows the capabilities of man and all that immortality bespeaks.—Rev. George Adams, Methodist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Eye of Wisdom.—Within its circle of going and coming the unknown of all things becomes known, and the ultimate of all things is revealed to the eye of wisdom.—T. B. Wilson, Theosophist, Kansas City, Mo.

Democratic Principles.—Our age has in other respects made great strides in the development and application of democratic principles, but those principles have not been put into practice in our cities.—Rev. Dr. E. G. Hirsch, Hebrew, Chicago, Ill.

Real Relationship to God.—The first condition of power is a thorough apprehension and comprehension of our relationship. It fills with love the man who thus comprehends his real relationship to God.—Rev. John F. Carson, Presbyterian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Bible.—The Bible is the one book that no intelligent person who wishes to come into contact with the world of thought and to share the ideas of the great minds of the Christian era can afford to be ignorant of.—Rev. H. R. Rose, Universalist, Auburn, Maine.

The Besetting Sin.—The general indictment that is brought against men is that they love the world, the material things of life. This is possibly the besetting sin of mankind. Many worship the world before God.—Rev. W. B. Stradley, Episcopalian, Atlanta, Ga.

The Glory of Israel.—The glory of Israel found its highest consummation in the great prophet of Nazareth, whose spirit, teachings and example still lead the thoughts of men, still furnish the loftiest inspiration for noble living, for purest loving.—Rev. George W. Stone, Unitarian, Kansas City, Mo.

Common Days or Lives.—I would like to hold the thought before you that, when looked at from a high point of view, there are really no common days, nor common lives, nor common events, so long as they are linked with some genuine moral purpose.—Rev. George L. Perrin, Universalist, Boston, Mass.

Privileges of This Age.—Notwithstanding the marvelous advantages and privileges of this age, there is also an abundant evidence that men are becoming more "unthankful" than ever before, and that human "wants" are increasing faster than they are being supplied.—Rev. E. P. Woodward, Portland, Maine.

Evangelization.—Evangelization conduces to civilization, but civilization has no necessary bearing on evangelization, that is to say, there is in civilization no energy inherently calculated to yield gospel effects. Culture is not even third cousin to holiness.—Dr. Parkhurst, Presbyterian, New York City.

Immortality.—Any theory of existence which omits a belief in immortality reduces the human soul to a lower materialism than that of the imperishable atoms of matter which science recognizes as indestructible and continuous, although subject to perpetual change.—Rev. William C. Doane, Episcopalian, Bishop of Albany, New York.

Sunday.—Sunday is the day of periodic rest. It is the workingman's day. As laid down in the fourth commandment the day has a basis in nature. The necessity for the day was made in man. Take out of the American nation all that the American Sunday has done and how great would be the loss.—Rev. M. L. Haines, Presbyterian, Indianapolis, Ind.

Sin in the World.—There is sin in the world. On this point there can be no shadow of a doubt. No man is so dense as to deny the existence of sin. None of us are free from it. The catalogue of sin and wickedness is large, but the promise of the Almighty stretches down from heaven to sinners for their salvation.—Rev. Walker Lewis, Methodist, Atlanta, Ga.

Time or Eternity.—Be strong, loving, patient men; your homes are being built on sand or rock, for time and eternity. Be strong, therefore, to show your manliness to the weak ones whom God has given you to love, cherish and protect. Prove your manhood by being in all things manly and kind at home.—Rev. Benj. F. Fritz, United Brethren, Columbus, Ohio.

The Temperance Element.—The temperance element in the Catholic Church is very strong. The Catholic Temperance Union of America has a large membership. The prohibition question was thoroughly discussed at the third plenary council of Baltimore, which was held in 1866, and as a result Catholics were advised to stay out of the saloon business.—Rev. F. Baumgartner, Roman Catholic, Detroit, Mich.

Drawing People to the House of God.—Within the last few years we have made great efforts to draw the people to the house of God. We have built fine churches, secured talented musicians; we have shortened our sermons; we have chosen practical themes; we have treated the problems uppermost in the public mind. Still the drift toward our churches is not as strong as it should be, and we are to discover the reasons why people do not go to church.—Rev. H. E. Foss, Methodist, Bangor, Maine.

Not Exacting.

In one of Miss Mulock's stories she says that "a cheerful heart seeth cheerful things," and gives this incident in proof of it:

A lady and gentleman were in a lumber yard situated by a dirty, foul-smelling river. The lady said: "How good the pine boards smell!"

"Pine boards!" exclaimed the gentleman, "just smell that foul river."

"No, thank you," was the reply, "I prefer to smell the pine boards."

The good may die young, but the bad nearly always outlive their usefulness.

Does your head ache? Pain back of your eyes? Bad taste in your mouth? It's your liver! Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, headache, dyspepsia, and all liver complaints. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers
50 cts. of Druggists, or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

SYRUP OF FIGS

NEVER IMITATED IN QUALITY.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS

is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.
LOUISVILLE, Ky. NEW YORK, N. Y.

INSOMNIA

"I have been using CASCARETS for Insomnia, with which I have been afflicted for over twenty years, and I can say that Cascarets have given me more relief than any other remedy I have ever tried. I shall certainly recommend them to my friends as being all they are represented." THOS. GILLARD, Elgin, Ill.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
TRADE MARK REGISTERED
REGULATE THE LIVER

Pleasant. Palatable. Potent. Taste Good. Do Good. Never Sicken. Weaken. or Gripe. 10c. 25c. 50c.
... CURE CONSTIPATION. ...
Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Montreal, New York. 316

NO-TO-BAC Sold and guaranteed by all druggists to CURE Tobacco Habit.

W. L. DOUGLAS
$3 & $3.50 SHOES UNION MADE.

Worth $4 to $6 compared with other makes.
Indorsed by over 1,000,000 wearers.
ALL LEATHERS. ALL STYLES
THE GENUINE have W. L. Douglas' name and price stamped on bottom.
Take no substitute claimed to be as good. Largest makers of $3 and $3.50 shoes in the world. Your dealer should keep them—if not, we will send you a pair on receipt of price. State kind of leather, size and width, plain or cap toe.
Catalogue D Free.
W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE CO., Brockton, Mass.

WABASH

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS
To Western Points.
Sept. 5 and 19, Oct. 3 and 17, 1899.

On the above dates the WABASH will sell from its principal stations East of Chicago and Toledo, Ill., LOW RATE HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSION Tickets to points West, South, and Southwest, granting a liberal return limit. A postal card addressed to any Wabash Ticket Agent, or to either of the following Passenger Representatives will bring you prompt and explicit information regarding rates, routes, time of trains, through car service, condition of tickets, etc., etc.

REMEMBER

The WABASH is the only line east of Chicago and St. Louis giving its patrons seats, without extra charge, in ELEGANT RECLINING CHAIR CARS running through to St. Louis and Kansas City without change.
This is your chance to go West cheap. Communicate with us,
P. E. DOMBAUGH, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. THOMPSON, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
A. F. WOLFSCHLAGER, P. & T. A. Detroit, Mich.
THO'S FOLLEN, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
GEO. D. MANFIELD, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. S. CRANE, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

DROPS OF WATER.

A Student's Experiment Which Proved to Be Very Painful.

To learn just how much pain would be caused by the constant dripping of water on the body, several students at Wichita, Kan., have tried it.

A gallon of water was to be loosed drop by drop from a height of three feet, two drops falling at intervals of about two seconds. A gallon of water contains about 61,440 drops, and at this rate it would take over thirty-four hours to complete the task.

One of the students was seated at a table and allowed his left hand to be fixed immovably to the table, so as to insure every drop striking the same spot on the back of the hand. The apparatus for dripping the water was adjusted and the experiment began. For the first forty-five minutes he experienced no inconvenience, save his hand becoming uncomfortable from being wet constantly with the cold water. Arrangements were then made to keep the water at blood heat, and it soon became more comfortable. In about two hours a slight redness began to appear, which gradually got as big as a quarter. The third half hour the drops were scarcely felt at all, the hand being apparently numb to the water, although sensitive to the touch of anything else. The red spot increased until it was larger than a silver half dollar, and the dripping of the water began to become slightly painful. It was noticed that if any one told a story or did anything to divert the student's attention from his hand he did not notice any pain at all, but concentration of thought upon his hand made the pain grow. The water was kept steadily at close to 96 degrees.

After about six hours and a half the red spot, which had been first a bright red, slowly turned to purple, and a blister began to rise. The pain had increased gradually up to this stage, and the young man said he felt as though every falling drop came with the force of a hammer, the pain reaching the shoulder, and even a little beyond. After the blister had raised the blows from the drops were not so severe, but he said they were bad enough, being a dull feeling like slowly pushing down upon it.

After about eight hours and twenty minutes the water was shut off. About 15,900 drops had been let fall, the rate being a little above the schedule, only one quart two ounces of water having been used.—Philadelphia Times.

Rush of Blood to the Face.

Judge Blank was in a reminiscent mood. "Ah, yes," he said. "Sleigh-riding in those old days was different from what it is now. We didn't use a sleigh, in fact.

"It was usually a bob-sled, or a pair of bob-sleds," he proceeded, "with a wagon-bed for a body, filled with straw, and we sat down in the straw, ten or a dozen of us—it was always even numbers, mind you—with a discreet farm-hand for a driver.

"We didn't care how cold it was. We bowled along merrily over the country roads, and if we hadn't sleigh-bells enough, we used cow-bells. Race? Yes, we used to race sometimes.

"It was during one of those old-fashioned, country bob-sled rides, by the way, that I won my wife. The moon went behind a cloud, and I asked the fateful question in a whisper. But I must have been blushing fearfully."

"Why so?"

"Because I froze my feet!"—Youth's Companion.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Cures swollen feet, blisters and callous spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for ingrowing nails, sweating, hot, aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Japanese Methods.

An English dealer, interviewing Oka, the great modern carver of ivories, said to him: "Why do you waste your time on carving the under part, which is never seen? You could work much quicker and make money far more rapidly if you were to leave that part plain." And the carver answered: "God, who gave me skill and taste, can see the under part. I dare not leave it uncarved."

Hall's Catarrh Cure

Is taken internally. Price 75 cents.

Give me a sober nation and I will take care of the revenue.—W. E. Gladstone.

I shall recommend Piso's Cure for Consumption far and wide.—Mrs. Mulligan, Plumstead, Kent, England, Nov. 8, 1895.

Who makes quick use of the moment is a genius of prudence.—Lavater.

"One Year's Seeding, Nine Years' Weeding."

Neglected impurities in your blood will sow seeds of disease of which you may never get rid. If your blood is even the least bit impure, do not delay, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla at once. In so doing there is safety; in delay there is danger. Be sure to get only Hood's, because

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Tell Your Printer to Use

Eagle Linen
WATERMARK.
When You Order
Letter Heads and Envelopes.

If you once use it you will have nothing else.
Be sure it has the Watermark as shown above.

DREYFUS TRIAL IS ON

FAMOUS PRISONER BEFORE THE COURT MARTIAL.

Accused Officer Declares His Innocence and Dramatic Situations Follow—Answers Questions in a Clear Voice—Face Pallid and Hair Gray.

Promptly at 7 o'clock Monday morning the trial of Captain Dreyfus began at Rennes, France. Soon after the prisoner entered the court room former Ministers Hanotaux and Lebon, General Mercier and Paul Cavaignac came in, followed by other prominent witnesses. The seats were filled with ticket holders long before the opening of the court. Thus was the opening of one of the greatest trials of history, and the detailed events will be recorded, to be handed down to posterity among the pages of records of national history of the nineteenth century.

Although the features of Captain Dreyfus were noticeably pallid he entered the court room with a firm step and answered the questions of the judge as to name, age, etc., with a clear, determined voice. Dreyfus has become partly bald since he was sent to Devil's Island, and his hair is gray and closely cropped. He took a seat with perfect composure, facing the judges with hands resting on his knees.

The officers of the court took their places on the stage, which occupies one end of the hall. The judges looked much in earnest and a trifle nervous. Dreyfus, who was sitting to the right of the court, was ordered to stand, and the act accusing him of betraying the French military secrets to a foreign power was read. At the conclusion of this the prisoner gave his name, age and grade, and said: "I am Captain Alfred Dreyfus, who is named in this accusation." His voice was firm as of one who answered a familiar question. As Dreyfus spoke the audience strained forward breathlessly.

The recorder of the court then called the roll of witnesses. At the conclusion of the roll call physicians' certificates, etc., were presented explaining the absence of Du Paty de Clam and others.

Major Carriere, government prosecutor, then told the witnesses that possibly four days would be spent in the examination of the secret dossier and that they must retire until called. Colonel Jouast, president of the court, read a decision that, inasmuch as the defense offered no objection, the trial would proceed without the absentees.

DREYFUS AS HE NOW APPEARS.

Dreyfus was brought in from the anteroom under guard. The reading of the act of accusation, which is identical with the charge of the first court martial, took half an hour.

At the conclusion the prisoner was ordered to stand and Colonel Jouast said: "Captain Dreyfus, you have heard the accusation. Do you recognize this?" (handing him the bordereau).

Dreyfus—I do not.

Jounst—Is that your work?

Dreyfus—It is not. I am innocent.

As the prisoner said this he trembled palpably, and in a voice throbbing with emotion he repeated: "I am innocent; upon my honor and everything I hold dear—my country, my children, I am innocent."

An examination of the prisoner followed.

Dreyfus answered the questions promptly, emphatically and distinctly, without that reputed impediment in his speech due to his long isolated imprisonment. His replies to questions relating to different documents which concerned the treason were always of the same tenor: "I had no knowledge of it," or simply "Never." Again there would be a detailed explanation of how he knew certain things under innocent circumstances.

After ten minutes' questioning the tone became conversational, and it was difficult to hear what passed between the president and Dreyfus. To the question: "Have you ever (naming several dates) visited Germany or Italy?" the answers were "No" and "Never," with a burst of indignation which sounded through the hall.

The question was repeated: "Did you cross into Italy carrying documents for a foreign power?"

The answer came with intense emphasis: "No; absolutely never!"

This caused a buzz of comment from the officers present, and the court cried: "Silence!"

After a short secret session the court announced that it would deliberate on the dossier behind closed doors. The court then adjourned for the time, thus ending the first scene in the final act of a drama of extraordinary human interest.

Told in a Few Lines.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll left no will.

Bank of Spain has decided to make all payments in silver.

Bessie Smith, 2, New Castle, Pa., played with matches. Now dead.

The Alton will secure control of the Union Transfer Company, Chicago.

Small dealers of Boston are organizing against the big department stores.

Gen. Ludlow of Havana has suppressed the scurrilous Cuban newspaper, El Reconcentrado.

Alfred Vanderbilt and his party of globe trotters sailed on the Empress of India for Yokohama.

Negotiations are now pending to induce the powers to allow Italy free hand if the peaceable acquisition of San Mun Bay, in China, is impossible.

Two rolling mills of the Dupont powder works, Wilmington, Del., blew up. No one injured.

A. J. Padan, a Los Angeles, Cal., insurance agent, is busted. Liabilities $158,635, assets $140.

Seventy-five houses on the camp ground of the Evangelistic Association at Sugar Loaf, Pa., were destroyed by fire.

A building collapsed in New York, seriously injuring Antonio Petraine, Salvator Viscardi and Michael Antonio.

The first post of the veterans of the Spanish-American war was organized in Milwaukee. It is known as Dawson Post, No. 1.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Conductor Mistakes Orders with Fatal Effect—Decides Against Faith Curists—Fatal Ending of a Neighbors' Quarrel—Prevents a Lynching.

One man was instantly killed and another fatally injured in a collision of freight trains on the Wabash at La Otta. A second section of freight train going east, pulled by two engines, had orders to meet a west-bound train at La Otta, but it seems the conductor misunderstood the situation and started the train. At a point three miles east of La Otta the train ran at full speed into the west-bound train, also pulled by two engines. The four locomotives telescoped and piled together and not one of the twelve men on them would have escaped alive had they not jumped. In jumping Elmer Replogle, who was learning the road as fireman, fell against a companion and was thrown under the wreckage and crushed to death. The cars were piled up in heaps and some stock was killed.

Interprets the Medical Law.

Attorney General Taylor, at the request of the State Medical Board, has decided that it is a violation of the law for an unlicensed person assuming the title of a "doctor" to prescribe or pursue any practices for the cure or relief of diseases, injury or deformity, especially where any fee is charged for such service. He also holds that faith curists, mental healers and metaphysical medicators, who advertise themselves as physicians and accept fees for treating diseases by silent or other form of practice, by moral advice or by profound thought or by absolute non-action, unquestionably violate the law.

Quarrel Ends in Shooting.

A fatal shooting affray occurred near Capron. The victim is George Quackenbush, one of the wealthiest farmers in that community. The shooting was done by J. W. Lockwood, another substantial citizen. The men had not been on friendly terms for several months, the trouble originating over a quarrel between their children at school. Quackenbush was passing the Lockwood place, and it is alleged that Lockwood came out, revolver in hand, and called him a thief. Quackenbush made a reply and Lockwood opened fire with his revolver, emptying the weapon. Four of the five shots took effect.

Sheriff Heads Off Lynching.

Plans laid for the lynching of Clyde Jones, confined in jail in Peru for the abduction of Nellie Berger, were frustrated by the energetic measures taken by Sheriff Dunn and the knowledge that he and his deputies would shoot to kill any mob attempting it.

Within Our Borders.

Mishawaka Board of Health has made vaccination obligatory.

Increase in prices of iron pipe is retarding work in the oil field.

John Cary, 22, Lagrange, shot himself because he couldn't go to college.

Honey Creek township will ship 2,000,000 quarts of blackberries this season.

William Murray left Crawford County when he found a bundle of switches at his door.

Commissioners of Crawford County refused to order an examination of county records.

Estus Roberts, Shelbyville, became entangled in the net while seining and drowned.

John Wyler, 10, was drowned while swimming in the St. Joseph river, near Fort Wayne.

The Government has stocked several ponds in the southern part of the State with black bass.

A kissing bug kissed a rooster on the side of the neck at Goshen the other day and it died instantly.

Rev. F. H. Gwynne, Oregon, will preach in the Presbyterian Church at Elkhart for $1,300 a year.

The Vincennes Street Railway, Citizens' Gas Light plant and Vincennes Electric Light plant have been consolidated and sold to Hambleton & Co. of Baltimore, Md.

At Franklin, Night Policeman Otis Myers, while making his rounds, was struck and seriously injured by some person unknown. Myers was an important factor in recent poker room raids.

Marion Kephart of Kokomo was killed in a Panhandle wreck a mile south of there. Five wheat cars were demolished and the track obstructed. The wreck was caused by the train breaking in two.

Oscar Milly and George Evans, farmer boys, were killed by lightning south of Washington. Milly's body was torn open from the back of his head to the soles of his feet and his breast was burned and cut into shreads.

A serious fire occurred at the Acton camp meeting grounds near Indianapolis. Five cottages were destroyed and the fire was prevented from spreading by the raring of adjoining buildings. With the cottages pulled down, eight buildings were wrecked. Men, women and children were forced to run from the cottages within reach of the fire in their night clothes.

Engineer Ensley of the Cleveland division of the Big Four was dangerously injured, the result of a fight in an engine cab while the train was running. Near Farmland a brakeman got into a fight with the fireman. The fireman was being worsted and was about to be thrown from the engine when the engineer took a hand. The fierce three-cornered fight raged until the brakeman seized a hammer and felled both his opponents. He then ran back to the caboose. The fireman rallied sufficiently to take the train into Farmland.

Marion normal college is increasing its facilities.

Farmers are all tickled over the new forestry law.

Peru has an organized gang of juvenile thieves.

Methodist Church, Scottsburg, burned by incendiaries. Loss $2,500.

During a storm near Oliver two men were instantly killed and two fatally injured by lightning.

While Vernon Schepple, aged 13, was burning stumps near Shelbyville, using coal oil, his clothing caught fire and the child was almost burned to death.

Samuel Gamble, farmer near Wabash, trimmed a corn too close. His leg has been amputated.

James E. Stevenson, a Shelbyville miner, went to sleep on the tracks near Sullivan. Left leg mangled and head injured.

Jacob N. Land, for twenty-five years a justice of the peace at Carlisle, is dead of Bright's disease at Battle Creek, Mich., where he went for treatment.

Elisabeth, the 15-year-old daughter of James Feathers, was drowned in Raccoon creek, north of Brazil. She was with her mother and two small brothers, who watched her drown, but were unable to save her.

Began Smoking Late in Life.

General Benjamin F. Tracy, former Secretary of the Navy, and who is at present an associate of General Benjamin Harrison in representing this Government in the matter of the Venezuelan boundary dispute, finds the keenest enjoyment in smoking. During his recent voyage to Paris he passed a good deal of his time in the smoking room of the steamer. But the General was nearly 50 years old before he acquired the taste for tobacco. Previous to that time smoking made him ill.

During the early '70s he was engaged as counsel in a celebrated case and was compelled to devote not only the day, but the greater part of the night, to his task. Once, when he was thoroughly fagged out, an associate suggested that a cigar with his coffee might have a soothing effect. General Tracy succumbed to the temptation, and before he was aware of it had finished his third cigar. They seemed to quiet his nerves, and he was able to work over his papers the whole of the night. Since that time, perhaps out of gratitude for the effect of those three cigars, General Tracy has been a smoker.—Philadelphia Times.

Brain Work and Exercise.

Three hours of brain work will destroy more tissue than a day of physical exercise. Many men and women earn their living by their brains. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters makes the mind active and vigorous. This medicine is an appetizer and a cure for dyspepsia. A private stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Favorite Flowers of Royalty.

The queen's special flowers are lilies of the valley and violets, and her intimate friends, knowing her favorite blossoms, send her these in profusion on her birthday, at Christmas and the New Year. Violets, the pet flowers of the late Emperor Frederick of Germany, have become quite sacred in the eyes of his widow. The duchess of York prefers lilies of the valley and white roses—the roses of York—for her own wear. The princess of Wales is the most ardent enthusiast for flowers among the royal family, and is never content unless her rooms are simply one mass of scented blossom. As for the prince of Wales he cannot endure to be without his "button-hole."—Manchester Guardian.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Antique Portrait.

At Pompeii a mosaic life-size portrait of a woman, the first antique portrait in mosaic ever discovered, has been found near the house of the Vettii. The workmanship is so fine that it is difficult to discern that it is not a painting.

$2.00 Fort Wayne to Chicago and return every Sunday via. the Nickel Plate Road.

Pathetic.

Sandy Pikes—Horrors, Billy! It says here dat man is 90 per cent. water.

Billy Coalgate—By de great Hobokan Hobo! Is dat possible dat ders only room fer 10 cents worth of beer?

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

A successful officeholder is one that can succeed himself.

NO REMEDY EQUALS PERUNA, SO THE WOMEN ALL SAY.

Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Pe-ru-na. She says: "Only those who have suffered as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief in Pe-ru-na. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Pe-ru-na I ever bought proved a good friend to me."—Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Pe-ru-na is everything to me. I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good." Pe-ru-na has no equal in all of the irregularities and emergencies peculiar to women caused by pelvic catarrh.

Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., for a free book for women only.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

CARTER'S INK
Is what Uncle Sam uses.

Coffee for Inebriates.

A traveler has made the observation that coffee drinking people are very seldom given to drunkenness. In Brazil, for instance, where coffee is grown extensively, and all the inhabitants drink it many times a day, intoxication is rarely seen. The effect is not only noticeable among the natives, but the foreigner who settles there, though possessed of ever such a passion for strong drink, gradually loses his liking for alcohol as he acquires the coffee drinking habit of the Brazilian.

A Helping Hand

To all Suffering Women.

In addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience in treating woman's diseases is greater than that of any living person—male or female.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man; besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman, whose knowledge from actual experience is greater in this line than any living person.

The following invitation is freely offered; accept it in the same spirit:

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled; for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for some years past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women a year.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.
LYNN, MASS.

SAPOLIO

IS LIKE A GOOD TEMPER, "IT SHEDS A BRIGHTNESS EVERYWHERE."

PENSIONS Get Your Pension DOUBLE QUICK!
Write Cont. O'FARRELL, Pension Agent, Washington, D.C.

LADIES: NEW YORK The Periodical Monthly Regulator never fails; convince yourself; write for free box. CHEMICAL CO., Box 78, Milwaukee, Wis.

SCHIEFFELIN'S DR. ISAAC THOMPSON'S EYE WATER

When Writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

Rotary Motion and Ball Bearings.

MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

They overcome Weakness, Irregularity and omissions, increase vigor and banish "pains of menstruation." They are "Life Savers" to girls at womanhood, adding development of organs and body. No known remedy for women equals them. Cannot do harm—life becomes a pleasure. $1 per box by mail. Sold by druggists. MOTT CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Junk Wanted

Please save your money. Don't forget to bring all your junk to H. Greenberg, three blocks north of M. E. church in Auburn, who pays

Best Cash Prices

for rags, rubber, copper, brass, zinc, lead, scrap iron and all kinds of hides and furs. Also buys and sells second-hand material, stoves and furnaces, etc. Persons having second-hand material to buy or sell, it will be to their interest to see H. Greenberg.

Mott's Nerverine Pills

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. $1.00 per box by mail; 6 boxes for $5.00. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Prop's, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Fort Wayne BUSINESS COLLEGE,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Latest and Best Methods.
The Best Equiped.
Superior Courses in all Branches.
Book-keeping, Shorthand, Penmanship, Typewriting, Banking Telegraphy and English.

You Want Success, Write Us for Full particulars and Circulars.

E. D. DOUGLASS, Pres.

INORECASE OF DOSE NOT NECESSARY.

There are many medicines advertised to cure constipation and other stomach disorders which really do some temporary relief, among these are the various kind of Pills and the number of Teas. But an experience with these is almost always disappointing. Either it becomes necessary to keep increasing the dose or they become entirely inactive. Not so with DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. Its efficacy keeps up and those who give it a fair and honest trial find that it is always a friend. 10c, 50c and $1 sizes of Davenport the Druggist.

—Wisconsin Good Templar:—The mistake of the state is locking up the drinker instead of the drink.

DR. LUELLA DAY UNDERHILL.

Medical Supt. Chicago Working Woman's Home writes as follows: "As a laxative and remedy for all ailments of stomach and bowels we have found nothing that acts so well as your Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. We have found it invaluable in cases of sick headache and can heartily recommend it to all sufferers from such trouble."

The Yaqui Indians in northern Mexico, have gone on the war path. The Mexican government has sent an army of 5,000 men to put a stop to their depredations. A hard battle is expected. The Indians have been getting a good deal of liquor lately, and hence the trouble.

PILES! PILES!

Why be bothered with this annoying complaint when Banner Salve will cure you. 25c.

—The Montpelier, Ohio, fair ground will be sold at sheriff's sale September 4. The county fair is almost a thing of the past.

THE MOST FATAL DISEASE.

More adults die of kidney trouble than any other disease When the first symptoms of this disease appear, no time should be lost in taking Foley's Kidney Cure, which is guaranteed or money refunded; 50c and $1.

—Nearly one million brick will be used in constructing the new buildings at the state home for feeble minded children near Fort Wayne. The brick will all be made at the institution.

YOU ought to know that when suffering from any kidney trouble that a safe, sure remedy is Foley's Kidney cure. Guaranteed or money refunded.

In Spain, the republican and social ist parties have agreed to organize a campaign demanding the expulsion from Spain of all the religious orders.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

As an honest remedy, Foley's Honey and Tar does not hold out false hopes in advanced stages, but truthfully claims to give comfort and relief in the very worst cases, and in the early stages to effect a cure.

Cider Mill

We will start up our cider mill in Stametstown, Auburn, August 9 and run on Wednesday and Thursday of each week till further notice.

RUHL & BAKER.

CHAUTAUQUA MEETING

Mountain Lake Park, Md., Aug. 2-30, '99
Half Fare via B. & O. Railroad.

August 1 to 30 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Mountain Lake Park at one fare for round trip.

Return Limit: Leaving Mountain Lake Park August 31.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or, B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 34

Thursday's Daily.

—A daughter was born to Rev. W. P. Pearce and wife of Goshen, a few days ago.

—Miss Maggie Seibert is here from Spencerville and will visit friends a few days.

—FOR SALE:—Good second-hand organ; will be sold cheap. Inquire at this office.

—The annual meeting of the Modern Woodmen of Indiana, will be held at Fort Wayne, September 4.

—Jacob Link reports his aged mother, as quite sick. She makes her home with him, and was ninety-one years old yesterday.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 8

—Live stock traffic on the B. & O. has been unusually heavy during the past week and the west-bound merchandise runs were very heavy.

—W. J. Bryan addressed an immense crowd at Winona yesterday, notwithstanding a heavy rain. It is estimated that ten thousand people were present.

—Jacob Link in renewing his subscription today, says that letters from his son Joe, up in Benzie Co. Mich, says that he gets his COURIER regularly and they all enjoy it.

—A musical entertainment and social will be given at Grove Bethel, on Saturday evening, August 19. No admission will be charged to the entertainment. Music by Imperial quartet.

—The G. R. & I. grain elevators at Lagrange were destroyed by fire yesterday, together with its contents and a residence and lumber shed near by. The loss is nearly covered by insurance —Mt. Hope postoffice, better known as Coleman's Corners, is "coming out of the kinks" in great shape lately. A new store and a blacksmith shop have been built as well as two new residences, and the village wears a gratifying air of prosperity.

—Three life prisoners were this week paroled from the northern prison by Gov. Mount upon recommendation of the prison board. These paroles, it is said, are the last that will be issued to "life" men, every case of which has been thoroughly investigated.

—Old Mr. Wilcox has applied for an increase of pension basing his claim on the increasing growth of a tumor that had its origin in the service. He is a a worthy man and whatever money he gets now or may get, is sure to be used for his and his wife's comfort.

—"Uncle Billy" Wyatt was in town yesterday. He is trying to get some appliances to relieve his trouble in hearing. Mr. Wyatt is one of the earliest settlers in the county, and has a large number of relatives and acquaintances who are interested in his welfare.

—John W. Baxter returned at noon today from Burkeville, Va., where he was called some days ago on business. He reports Alpheus Wheelock recovered from his recent illness and says the new factory in which the latter is interested will be ready to begin operations in about two weeks. The company has several good contracts ahead and excellent prospects for business.

—The supreme tribunal, Knights of Pythias, which has been in session in Indianapolis, has concluded the trial of the case of Thomas G. Sample, supreme chancellor, against Henry Wellenboss, and made a finding of guilty of all the charges of violation of obligations and the breaking of Pythian law, and sentenced the defendant to suspension from all rights and privileges of the order for a period of two years.

—The scab is raging among Indiana sheep as it has not done in years. The state bureau of statistics has received reports which show that in the state there are 9,391 sheep affected with scab. It is announced that Purdue University will soon publish a bulletin containing valuable information relative to the nature of the disease and the methods of dealing with it. The last legislature killed an excellent bill for the protection of the herds from infectious and contagious diseases.

A HUSBAND SAYS:

"Before my wife began using Mother's Friend she could hardly get around. I do not think she could get along without it now. She has used it for two months and it is a great help to her. She does her housework without trouble."

Mother's Friend

is an external liniment for expectant mothers to use. It gives them strength to attend to their household duties almost to the hour of confinement. It is the one and only preparation that overcomes morning sickness and nervousness. It is the only remedy that relaxes and relieves the strain. It is the only remedy that makes labor short and delivery easy. It is the only remedy that puts the breasts in condition so that swelling or rising is impossible. Don't take medicines internally. They endanger the lives of both mother and child.

Mother's Friend is sold by druggists for $1.
Send for our free illustrated book.
The Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Arbuckles' Coffee

Is the Standard of Coffee Excellence by which all Coffee Quality is Compared.

No. 51 Dining Room Table Cloth.

Table Cloth, white with red bars. Size 50 x 68 inches. Sent postpaid on receipt of 9 cent postage stamp and 60 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 53. A Dress Pattern.

When ordering, be sure to state the color desired. No samples will be given out.

12 yards Printed Organdie, 29 inches wide, 5 colors to select from, Pink, Blue, Black, Pearl and Nile Green. Sent postpaid on receipt of 3 cent postage stamp and 100 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 56 Six Handkerchiefs.

Six Ladies' Pocket Handkerchiefs, hemstitched, colored borders, size 12 x 12 inches. Sent postpaid on receipt of 3 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 55 Four Handkerchiefs.

Four Gentlemen's Handkerchiefs, hemstitched, colored borders, size 19½ x 19½ inches. Sent postpaid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 52. Lady's Apron.

Fine quality white lawn, wide strings and fancy lace insertion. Size 32 x 40 inches. Sent postpaid on receipt of two cent postage stamp and 25 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 54. A Pair of Window Curtains.

Each Curtain a yard wide two and three-quarter yards long. Sent postpaid on receipt of 9 cent postage stamp and 65 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 58. A Pair of Shears.

Of the best American make, 8 inches long. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 15 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 59. Razor made by J. R. Torrey.

The J. R. Torrey Razor is known as the best made in the United States. The printed guarantee of the manufacturer goes with each razor. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 28 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 57. A Pair of Scissors.

Made by the best American manufacturers and well finished, 5½ inches long. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 15 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 60. Lady's Belt.

Latest style, grain leather tan color 1½ in. wide, nickel plated buckle. Belts are following sizes only, give size in inches when ordering, from 22 to 26 in.; from 27 to 32 in.; from 33 to 36 in. Sent post-paid on receipt of a 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from the wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 61. Man's Belt.

Grain leather, tan color, nickel plated buckle and rings. When ordering give size of waist in inches. Belts run from 34 to 42 inches in length. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 62. A Carving Knife and Fork.

A first-class set, mounted with genuine buck-horn handles. Knife blade 8 inches long. Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 90 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office as well as your Post Office.

No. 63. A Butcher's Knife.

Six inch blade, hard wood handle, good materials and well finished. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 64. A Kitchen Knife.

Will cut bread, slice ham and saw the bone. Serviceable [illegible] in every kitchen. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 14 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 65 A Lady's Pen Knife.

Has two finely finished blades. Handle beautifully variegated in imitation of onyx. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 20 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 67. Picture Frame.

Cabinet size frame silverplated. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 12 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 66. A Gentleman's Pocket Knife.

Two-bladed knife made of best materials and finished in workmanlike manner. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 40 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 70. A Gentleman's Watch.

The "New Haven" is a watch of the ordinary size. Stem wind and stem set, dust proof, nickel-plated case, solid back. Quick beat movement, highly polished steel pinions. Modeled after a standard watch, reliable time-keeper. The printed guarantee of the maker accompanies each watch. Sent post-paid on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 90 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

No. 71. Enameled Alarm Clock.

Highest standard of Alarm Clock. Seamless frame, ornamental hands, French pattern and second hand. Will run thirty hours with one winding. Sent by express, charges prepaid, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 80 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office and your Post Office as well.

No. 68. An X-L Revolver.

Highest grade material and workmanship, 32 calibre, centre-fire double action. Sent by express, charges prepaid by us, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 150 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office as well as your Post Office.

No. 70 A Porcelain Clock.

Imported porcelain frame, beautifully decorated. Movement made by New Haven Clock Co., guaranteed by them a good timekeeper, 5 inches high, same width. Sent by express, charges prepaid by us, on receipt of 2 cent postage stamp and 115 signatures cut from wrappers of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee. When ordering name your nearest Express Office as well as your Post Office.

This is a picture of the signature on Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee Wrapper, which you are to cut out and send to us as a voucher.

No other part of the Coffee Wrapper will be accepted as a voucher, nor will this Picture be accepted as such.

Arbuckle Bros.

SOME OF OUR SIGNATURES ARE PRINTED ON RED BACKGROUND.

This represents one page of a List which is found in each pound package of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee, and with each package in which the List is found the purchaser has bought a definite part of some article to be selected by him or her from the List, subject only to the condition that the signature on the package is to be cut out and returned to Arbuckle Bros. as a voucher, in accordance with the directions printed in connection with each item illustrated and described in the List. This List will be kept good only till May 31, 1900. Another page of this List will appear in this paper shortly.

Address all communications to ARBUCKLE BROS., NOTION DEPT., NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

Friday's Daily.

—Trustee Huet, of Fairfield, was a caller yesterday.

—Chapman's Flux Syrup cures Cholera Morbus and Diarrhoea. D5-17-W2t.

—Remember the opening of the opera house for the season, Saturday evening, August 19.

—Prof. James Troop, of Purdue University, Lafayette, was the guest of Cal. Husselman today.

—Miss Blanche Maurer has been taken down again, this time the trouble being muscular rheumatism.

—Peter Ditmars of the Junction went onto the Weekly's list of 1900 today, and has thanks for same.

—Miss Bertha Blaney is home from a visit with her grandfather, G. B. Monroe, in Richland township.

—Frank Nelson is taking a bicycle tour in Ohio. He will visit friends at Defiance, Lima and other points.

—Mr. and Mrs M. E. Olds and son of St. Joe, spent Thursday with the family of E. Zimmerman. The ladies are sisters.

—Charles Comesky had a field of potatoes ruined by the big rains the other day, that would have yielded at least 500 bushels.

—Dr. Stamets reports a baby girl at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Preston on North VanBuren street yesterday forenoon. All doing well.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rose expect to go to Minneapolis early next week, to visit the relatives there including her sisters, Mrs. Judge Best, Mrs. W. S. Best and Mrs. Webster.

—The ladies band, of Waterloo, will furnish music for the meeting of the DeKalb County Battalion at Garrett August 24, a big attendance is anticipated and Garrett promises the old veterans a royal welcome.

—The DeKalb County Mutual Insurance company, though its secretary, W. F. C. Francis, is making its first assessment for the year on the members. The total losses of the company so far this year are $1, 46.34.

—Miles Baxter and wife went up to Hamilton this week to visit his father Andrew Baxter, who had been hurt by a fall down the cellar stairway. He is recovering now. He has been crippled some years owing to injuries received accidentally.

—We present in another column the estimates filed by the board of commissioners and county officers showing the probable cost of running the different branches of the county government for the coming year. It is worth preserving for future reference.

—The commissioners this afternoon opened bids for two new bridges, one known as the Showalter bridge on the line between Franklin and Wilmington townships, and the other the Murray bridge in Concord township, near Newville. The bids for the two bridges ranged from $845 to $1.485 and the contract was awarded to the Wabash Bridge Co., at the former figures.

—Mrs. E. W. Davis, of Hatch's Mills, Laporte Co., is here, a guest of Mr. ana Mrs. Barns, she being a sister of the former. She is a member of the State Horticultural Society and has been attending the big meeting at Rome City. She says the meeting has been a pronounced success. They were the guests, at Island Park, of the Noble County Horticultural Association which treated them royally. She expects to return to her home tomorrow evening.

—Colonel I. B. McDonald, of Columbia City, trustee of the Soldiers' Home near Lafayette, desires to secure a good and healthy young lady, who can read and write well, and about sixteen to twenty years old, who wishes to become a trained nurse. She will be trained for two years in the hospital of the Indiana State Soldiers Home, free of charge, and will also be furnished with board and laundry and paid the sum of $1.25 a week during the first three months. After that her wages will be increased if she proves to be faithful and efficient.

Preserves

—fruits, jellies, pickles or catsup are more easily, more quickly, more healthfully sealed with Refined Paraffine Wax than by any other methods. Dozens of other uses will be found for in every household. It is clean, tasteless and odorless—air, water and acid proof. Get a pound cake of it with a list of its many uses from your druggist or grocer. Sold everywhere. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

Refined Paraffine Wax

Saturday's Daily.

—L. H. Higley is here from Butler every day now, as he has charge of the Dispatch in the absence of Mr. Smith.

—Charles and George Kagey of St. Joe and Frank Bishop of Fort Wayne were guests of E. M. Bishop and family last evening.

—A new school house will be built near Cedar lake in Smithfield township, to cost $1,270. Thomas Haggerty of Hamilton has the contract.

—The editor's sister, Mrs. Davis, returned this afternoon to her home near Laporte. She went to Waterloo and took the 4:32 train for the west.

—Samuel High, of Jackson township, was here today arranging for their Sunday school picnic, which will be held Saturday, September 22.

—Mr. Leas, the Waterloo merchant, has secured Bert Lane's collection of Spanish war pictures and relics for exhibiton in his windows next week.

—Bert Lane was at Waterloo yesterday and says everybody is "fixing up" for the harvest jubilee to be held there Friday and Saturday of next week.

—Several DeKalb county citizens will engage in the business of buying and shipping apples this season and there will be a good demand for barrels.

—Milford Mail: Postmaster Forkner of Auburn, went south over the Big Four, on Saturday morning to Warsaw to investigate the rural free mail delivery at that place, with a view of asking for a route to be established at Auburn.

—It is not generally known that under the new pension law half the pension money may be set aside for the support of the family upon application by the wife of the pensioner before a justice of the peace or authorized court. It is a good provision.

—Lottie Elvira, infant daughter of Alison and Ruby Smith, was born in Auburn, Oct, 29, 1898, and departed at the tender age of 9 months and 19 days. Thus another precious little lamb has been folded in the Master's arms. Lottie leaves to mourn her death a father, mother and three grandparents, besides many other relatives. The funeral service was held from the house on south Main street this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment took place in Evergreen cemetery, Rev. J. D. Brosy officiating.

—Mrs. Dr. Chamberlain of Waterloo drove over here yesterday evening, bringing with her Mrs. John W. Patterson, formerly of that place, but now of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. They spent the rest of the day shopping and visiting their old neighbors, the COURIER family.

—John Picker was at Hayward City yesterday and "blew in" last night about 9 o'clock—that is he got in just ahead of the wind storm. He says things are booming at the new cement town and that the new industry being established there will astonish the people by it magnitude.

—Hicksville News:—S. C. Snyder of Auburn is said to be interested in the skunk farm business and will join the trust on those animals now forming in New Jersey. The trust no doubt will be a very strong affair, and if it should bust, as trusts sometimes do, we would give thanks that our home was not in Auburn or New Jersey.

—W. H. Leas, of Waterloo was here yesterday, and is looking as if his far west trip had agreed with him. He was accompanied by Mrs. Leas as well as by his uncle Jacob Leas of Hudson, and his wife. They saw more wonderful and interesting things, than one can tell or write, though his letters to the COURIER were very graphic.

—Auburn girls who have been casting loving glances at Joni Thomas, our handsome compositor who is now enjoying a vacation at his home in Hamilton, will doubtless be interested in this item from the Hamilton Hustler:—"Miss Bernice Dargitz, of Pioneer, Ohio, is the guest of her gentleman friend, Jontie Thomas, at this place, this week."

—F. M. Merica and wife drove over from Garrett today and called on Drs. Swarts. Mrs. Merica is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Jones of Garrett, but their home is at Lagrange where Mr. Merica is in charge of the town schools. His brother Charley is now at Waukesha, Wis., in charge of the state industrial school, a very honorable and paying position.

KIDNEY TROUBLE Is a deceptive disease—thousands have it and dont know it. If you want quick results you can make no mistake by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. Sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney trouble. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Volume XXIX | Auburn, DeKalb County, Indiana, Thursday, August 24, 1899. | Number 34.

C. S. SMITH,
Auburn, Ind.
Attorney-at-Law
AND NOTARY PUBLIC.
Office over Bazar Store, formerly occupied by Judge Hartman.

J.E. Graham, D.D.S.
DENTIST
Over Davenport's Drugstore, Auburn, Ind.
CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK A SPECIALTY.
All Work Guaranteed } Gas Administered.
CENTRAL 'PHONE 513.
Will be at Waterloo each Thursday in Dr. Darby's Office.

Sprott & Knapp,
Abstracters of Titles to Land and Lots,
AUBURN, IND.
☞Office in Gandy Block, North of Court House.

BANK First National
Auburn, Ind.
Capital Stock and Surplus
$60,000
Certificates of deposits issued, drawing interest if left six months. County and Town Orders bought and sold. Money to Loan.
CHARLES McCLELLAN, President.
D. A. GARWOOD, Cashier.

Physicians T.G.Matheny,M.D J.B.Casebeer,M.D
Matheny & Casebeer
have again associated them selves in the practice of Medicine, Surgery & Obstetrics. Office On 9th St.
Western 'Phone:
Office..... No. 9
Matheny's residence..... " 88
Casebeer's " ..... " 175

BANK Farmers,
Auburn, Ind.
(Incorporated and Under State Control)
Capital Stock and Surplus
$50,000
Transacts a General Banking Business and Pays Interest on Time Deposits.
Albert Robbins, Pres J. C. Henry, V-Pres.
A. C. ROBBINS, Cashier.

DENTIST F. W. HOFFMAN,
Auburn, Ind.
Office in Gandy Building, Northeast Corner of Court Square.
WESTERN 'PHONE 103.
Crown and Bridge Work a Specialty

Physicians D. J. Swarts, M. D Vesta W. Swarts, M. D
and SURGEONS
Office at Auburn Sanitary Baths, corner Main and Sixth Streets,
Professional Calls Promptly Answered.
'PHONES: Western..... No. 19 Central Union..... No. 19

P. V. HOFFMAN,
LAWYER,
Auburn. Indiana.
OFFICE over Hebel's Grocery.

Dr. Z. H. Stamets,
Physician & Surgeon
Office on Main St., opposite Swineford Hotel.
Western 'Phone 104
and treatment of chronic and obscure cases, also special attention given to surgery and diseases of women. Calls answered at all hours. Office apart from residence.

I. O. BUCHTEL, HOMEOPATHIC
Physician and Surgeon.
Special attention given to chronic and Obscure cases and catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and lungs; also to diseases peculiar to women and children.
Office and residence over Madden Bros Marble Works, Auburn, Ind. Office apart from residence and private. All calls attended to promptly, day or night.

It's easy to haul a big load up a big hill if you grease the wagon wheels with
MICA Axle Grease
Get a box and learn why it's the best grease ever put on an axle. Sold everywhere. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

HAPPENINGS OF THE DAY.

Latest News by Wire Taken from Saturday's Daily.

Speaker Reed, having secured a profitable business partnership is going to resign his seat in congress. A special election will be called to fill his place.

Mr. Labori, who was shot while acting as counsel to Dreyfus, is getting better. His assistant is carrying on the defense. So far the evidence seems to favor the accused.

Schuyler Colfax, now mayor of South Bend, is spoken of as the possible republican candidate for governor. He is a son of the of the late Vice-President Schuyler Colfax.

Railroad contractors for new lines in the west and northwest, are having trouble to get hands. Laborers can get better pay at better work by working for farmers, who are having a big harvest to care for.

Croker, the Tammany leader, when he went to Europe recently, was a rabid expansionist. Since his return, he is against it. It is believed that Ex-Speaker Reed, who is also in Europe, caused the change. It well known that Mr. Reed is a strong anti-expansionist.

Gen. Miles will be sent to Manila in October, so as to be ready to begin active operations at the end of the rainy season. Then, with an increased force and new energy put into the campaign the war will soon be over. Then if we don't want the islands it will be time to let go.

SanFrancisco parties have been discovered sending arms to the Yaqui Indians in Mexico. This is a crime as we are at peace with Mexico. But some people will do anything for money. It is believed that some of the arms used by the Filipinos were sent them by Americans.

The celebrated Dreyfus trial is still a subject of excitement in France. The shooting of his attorney, and following this, a refusal to stop the trial till he recovers, or dies, or another can be chosen, has turned public opinion against his persecutors, and it looks as if he would eventually be set free.

The revenues of the Philippine Islands have greatly increased since the United States got possession of them. This is caused by increase of business and more efficient and honest methods. The export of sugar has kept up in spite of the war in the one island of Luzon, which is the largest of the group. The export of hemp has greatly increased.

It is stated in yesterday's cable from Manila, that the revolt among the natives, is spreading to other islands, heretofore supposed to be friendly. This is a serious matter, and will necessitate a larger force to secure peace. If it should appear that the islands generally are opposed to annexation or American rule, then as soon as peace is secured, it will likely be the policy of this country to let them go, after reserving for ourselves, perhaps, the largest island, Luzon.

It begins to look as if the administration is at least awaking to the fact that we have a war on our hands and a most troublesome one. Orders were issued yesterday for ten more regiments of volunteers making in twenty now being raised, or in all, about 25,000 men. It is the course that should have been adopted six months ago, and no one seems able to tell why it was not adopted. We cannot afford to let a small army stay there and fight the natives two or three years.

Recruiting for the rebellion in Santo Domingo has been going on at different points in Cuba, especially by Gen. Jiminez, who is to be the head of it and be the new president. But the Havana authorities, which means substantially the American authorities have concluded that if he could be found he should be put under arrest. He was later found to be on board a vessel and about to go from Cienfuegos to Santo Domingo. He refused to be arrested and made a big howl about it, but when he saw that force would be used he gave up and is in custody. It is likely he will be held until the law points involved can be settled. In the meantime we are keeping a watch on vessels that may be carrying war material to the rebels.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at H. B. McCord's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Ladies' Suits and Golf Capes

We are now in a position to show a very handsome line of SUITS AND GOLF CAPES. Manufactured by the best firms in the land. Up-to-date in every particular and at prices to suit your purse. The prevailing colors are black, blue, brown and grey, sensible, serviceable and extremely stylish. We are very anxious to have you see these goods—come whether ready to purchase or not.

We are also prepared to show you the most complete stock Dress Goods ever seen in Auburn.

BLACK GOODS
Are even more popular than they were last fall. We have them of all kinds.

BLACK CREPONS
The most beautiful patterns and textures at $1.00, 1.25, 1.50, 1.75, 2.00 and 2.50.

BLACK SILEALS
Look like satin and retain this look, and very much better to wear..... $1.00 & 1.25

BLACK CAMEL'S HAIR
Extremely popular in cities at per yard..... $1.25

Serges, Henriettas and Brocades of all descriptions.
Our showing in Colored Dress Goods is simply immense.
Plaids for Skirts, heavy and durable, 50c, 60c and 75c.
Plain Coverts (all colors) for Suits, extra good values at 50c and 75c the yard. Other weaves too numerous to mention.
We ask you to call and see the New Goods. We will try hard to please you.

We are Saving You Money.

Schaab & Bro.

Our buyer is in the city this week purchasing heaps of New Dry Goods, Clothing and Carpets.

KIDNEY TROUBLE Is a deceptive disease—thousands have it and dont know it. If you want quick results you can make no mistake by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. Sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney trouble.
Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

To Make Life Happy.

Sweet music appeals to the heart and soul and lightens many of life's burdens. If you have ever heard the sweet-toned Steger Piano you will appreciate this. To reach the highest standard of excellence has always been the aim in the manufacture of the celebrated Steger Piano. Only the best material is used, insuring great durability. Every piano fully guaranteed.

The Steger factories, thoroughly equipped with the best and most improved machinery, located at Steger, Ill., are among the largest in the West.

Intending purchasers will find it profitable to write for a full descriptive catalogue, which will be mailed free upon application. STEGER & Co., (Established 1879.) Chicago, Ill.

SUMMER CATARRH
Catarrh of the bowels, because it is most prevalent in the summer months, is called summer catarrh.
It surprises many that bowel trouble is catarrhal. Dr. Hartman's books make this plain. Its surprises many that bowel trouble is catarrhal. Dr. Hartman's books make this plain. Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for them. They tell all about catarrh and how Pe-ru-na cures it wherever located.

"I had chronic diarrhoea for fifteen years," writes Mr. T. E. Miller, Grand Prairie, Tex. "I tried many medicines and doctors in vain. At last Pe-ru-na was recommended, and it relieved and cured me at once."

Mr. John Harting, 633 Main St., Cincinnati, O., writes: "My wife and myself took your Pe-ru-na for chronic diarrhoea and it cured us. No doctor or medicine we tried before helped us."

Mr. Edward Wormack, Ledbetter, Tex., writes: "Pe-ru-na for bowel troubles is unequalled by anything in my experience. I owe my life to Pe-ru-na, and shall always recommend it to those suffering as I was."

Mr. John Edgarton, 1020 Third Ave., Altoona, Pa., says: "I suffered from dysentery for three years. I took Pe-ru-na and am now well."

Letter From Washington

DEAR MOTHER AND SISTER:—We returned to Washington last night after an absence of two weeks. We first went to Mount Vernon and Alexandria, then to Baltimore, where we saw all the points of interest. We then went to Philadelphia where we saw all the sights. After spending a few days there we went to Atlantic City, where we had a nice time excepting that I was badly sunburned about the face and legs. There were thousands of people there, so many that there was hardly room left for the newcomers. The day we left, 16,000 excursionists came to send Sunday. The paper said that it would be impossible to find room for all of them. I enjoyed the ocean bathing very much. We also took a sail on the ocean and went down to Lonport, another summer resort. We left Atlantic City last Friday, and spend Saturday in Philadelphia, where we saw the Cramp's ship yard, the place where most of our large warships are built. We also saw a beautiful and large park here. On Saturday night we went to Baltimore and there on Sunday we took a steamer, making an excursion to Annapolis, the capital of Maryland, and here is the United States Naval Academy where tuey train young men for the navy.

I am glad that we took the outing, as I think that papa needed it very much. I also enjoyed it much.

WALTER PENFIELD.

For Maumee Valley

—Dr. C. E. Slocum of Defiance was here this morning on his way to the old settlers' meeting at Angola. He is to read a paper on the Geology and Prehistoric Races of the Maumee Valley, at the meeting of the Ohio Historical Society of Columbus next week, and stopped here awhile to get a few pointers to use. He knew we have drilled deep gas and water wells, and that several of our citizens had examined the various mounds and other prehistoric evidences in DeKalb county. He expressed gratification at the information he received.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Long take this opportunity to thank the kind friends and neighbors for assistance and sympathy during the sickness and death of their dear baby boy. Their kind acts will be cherished always.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sawyer take this opportunity to thank the kind friends and neighbors for assistance, kindness and sympathy in the death and burial of their infant daughter. These acts of kindness will be remembered.

Heard at the Band Stand

"A Chin[illegible] takin' notes. An' faith he'll print it."—[illegible]URNS.

CHAPTER IV.

The COURIER reporter was a little late at the regular session this week, and some items of interest got away. The colony had been discussing the work done by the recent Board of Review. Some took one side and others took the opposite. It was decided that while the Board may have made some mistakes they had done much good. They had brought to light and placed on the tax list, large sums that had been running free. But stranger than all, they found some money that had been lent by parties living here, by putting the transaction in the name of a non resident who could not be taxed here, and would be pretty certain not to have to pay a tax on that particular paper, where he resided. They got hold of this scheme, by calling up from Washington, P. J. Lockwood, in whose favor they found mortgages amounting to $3,500, which had not been placed on the tax duplicate. Philo shifted about and equirmed a good deal, and finally admitted that the sum named, while it appeared on the records as his property was really the property of Judge Penfield. His explanation would make it appear that Judge Penfield, in order to avoid paying taxes on that sum, had given the money to Lockwood to loan out in Lockwood's name. Lockwood being a resident of Washington the assessor in that city would know nothing of it, and if it could not be kept from the assessors here, it could be shifted back onto the Judge just as it was finally done, when Lockwood was cornered. The "Colony" is made up of exceedingly conscientious men, and they were shocked, that a judge of our court, whose duty it was to see violations of the law punished, would himself, set such an example. The Colony is made up of heavy taxpayers who believe every man should pay a tax on every dollar. They asked the reporter to put their views in print.

The new trunk line railroad to be called the Black Diamond, and which is to run from Port Royal, S. C., to Chicago, Ill., is to have twenty branches running to other points. The Colony, at the proper time, will suggest the names of two or three prominent men of this vicinity as president, vice-president, traffic manager, etc.

The session closed by a unanimous vote of confidence in D. A. Garwood's judgment on a much discussed domestic topic, namely: The reason Wash Ackew did not marry some other woman, was because he wanted Winnie worst, (Wiener wurst.)

And the waves on the Power House cellar swayed to and fro, breaking sluggishly on their white oak shores, and its odors went marching on.

Letter From Mrs. Sparling.

Mrs. Dr. J. H. Sparling writing from Fitchburg, Mass., under date of August 10, says: "About two weeks after I returned ('her father had died at their home in Canada') Harold fell into a great pan of hot suds, hands first—scalded his hands and arms also across his bowels badly, but it has been astonishing how rapidly the wounds have healed. Today is the first time he has had his clothes on since three weeks ago last Saturday, July 15.

We so praise God for sparing Harold to us. I don't suppose the suds had been out of the boiler three minutes when he fell into it. He might just as well, (only for God's providence,) have gone in on his hands or sat down in it, either of which would undoubtedly have meant death. He is almost as good as new again, his hands and arms perfectly well and the other sore is almost well."

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give her no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidney and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up strength. Only 50c. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist. Guaranteed.

Our New Gas Engine.

The COURIER office, today puts in a new gas engine to run its presses. It is one of the latest improved makes of the Garrett Gas Engine Co., and as far as we are able to judge is a fine one The boiler of our engine gave out some days ago, and we have been having both Daily and Weekly printed at the Dispatch office. It was a neighborly kindness on their part, which we fully appreciate, and should they ever have the misfortune to break down, we hope to be in a position to return the favor.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE
Makes the food more delicious and wholesome
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

FROM A NEBRASKA SOLDIER.

The following letter to Miss Nellie Ober, written by Sherman Jones of Company C, First Nebraska volunteers, on board the United states transport Hancock and dated July 23, will doubtless be read with interest.

MY DEAR COUSIN:—This afternoon it has entered my head to write a letter to you or at least begin one, as I don't suppose I shall feel like writing it at all at the present time, which shall be a sort of a description of our trip from Manila to San Francisco where we expect to pass our last days as soldiers in the United States army. Our regiment having done its part in putting down the Phillipino rebellion, at last got orders to get ready to start for home on the 15th of June. By the 22nd, every thing being ready, we embarked on the steamer Hancock them lying out in mid-bay; however we did not get to start for home as soon as we got on board, but had to wait ten days until the boys from Utah could get ready to go with us. Of course we got very tired lying out in the bay so long and wondered why the officers did not hurry matters up a little more; but we had to rest patiently wait until the boat was ready to sail for that was the only way we had to get home.

Well, on the first day of July we bade farewell to the city of Manila and Manila bay and steamed out past the island of Corregidor into the China sea. Once there we began to notice the rocking of the vessel and in spite of the belief that most of us held we would not experience any sea sickness there was quite a good bit of it noticeable during the first two or three days of the trip. After a run of five days during which we passed the island of Formosa and a few other islands in that same vicinity we sighted the shores of Japan and on the evening of the 5th we entered Nagasaki harbor and cast anchor. Here we were all given permission to go on shore during the time the vessel remained which was four days and during that time we got a very good idea of Japanese people. Nagasaki is a once clean city, built all around the mountains which rise very high. The mountains are covered with a heavy growth of pine trees ex-where the ground has been terraced up and fixed so that it could be planted to vegetables. Horses are something rarely seen in this place the means of locomotion being a light cart drawn by man. I suppose you have seen pictures of them. The speed made by these conveyences is really somewhat surprising, almost as fast as any other way. The thing is called a Jinrickisha. While here we saw several of the temples all of which are built on the side of high mountains. Around one of them called the shino temple there is a very fine park in which are the trees which Gen. Grant and his wife planted while on their way round the world in 1879. The one Gen. planted is of a very stunted growth for its top died some time ago. The other one is a nice looking tree about twelve feet tall with nice thick foliage. Our guide told us that a monument was to be erected to Grant in the park near the trees. All the Japanese seem to think a great deal of him. On the second day of our stay there, a few of us took a trip on the railroad out into the county about forty miles. I believe the scenery along this road is about the finest I ever saw. During the forty miles we went through seven tunnels one of which was at least two mile long. Most of the people were at work in their fields at that time. It seemed that every spot was cultivated that possibly could be, nearly all the mountain sides being terraced. After getting out into the country we could not [illegible] we had to talk by sign. In the little town where we tried to get something to eat the people would gather around us and stand gaping at us as though we were great curiosities. The people all seemed to be very friendly to us and showed their good will toward us by charging about three prices for everything they sold us. During our stay in Nagasaki, we ate up nearly every thing they had so that when we were ready to leave we could hardly get a square meal. It was here that our ship was coaled up. We had hardly pulled into the bay before the ship was surrounded by flat boats loaded with coal. Men women and children help to coal a vessel. All the coal is first put in baskets holding somewhere near ten pounds and these baskets are passed up from one person to another in a continual stream. Everbody seems to enjoy themselves and laugh and talk all the time while at work.

We left Nagasaki on the evening of the 9th and after a three days trip through the Inland sea we reached Yokohama. This passage through the Inland sea is a very interesting one. Land is seen all the way, and we saw a great number of beautiful little islands. At some places the passage was so narrow that not more than one ship could go through at a time. While in this sea we ran against a small Japanese sailing boat. It was just at dusk one evening when we struck it. Two of the occupants were knocked overboard and the boat was all torn to pieces. The damage was decided on and paid to the owner and then we left them. I guess they were able to get to shore all right as it was not very far off.

We were in Yokohama two days and while there, we took the train and went up to Tokio. This is a very fine city and contains very many places of interest to visitors. We saw the grounds round about the palace but could not get admitted to the palace as the guards there said we would need a passport to do so and we did not have one. There are many temples in Tokio also a very fine national museum. Yokohama is a fine place. A great many Europeans and Americans live there and have very fine homes. I believe I should like to live there myself. The climate is almost like that at home.

The Japanese people have a pretty good opinion of themselves. One of the students said that he rather thought when he finished school he would go to America as a missionary. When we left Yokohama we got a big cheer from the crew on the Britton lying in the harbor there. The day we last saw her happened to be just one year from the time when we saw her first and she escorted us into Manila bay.

We are now nine days from Yokohama and expect to be in SanFrancisco in at least one week more. We have met with but one storm so far, but that was a pretty bad one. The ship pitched like everything and the waves washed away up over her sides. Many of boys found themselves attacked by that dizzy feeling again, but I escaped from it. Today is Sunday but every day is alike on this boat. We have nothing much to do except sleep and eat and talk over the good times we will have, and the good things we will get to eat when we get home. We have found out that our Uncle Sam is not a very generous povider in the way of getting much of a variety for us to eat.

MONDAY, AUG. 2.

More than a week has passed since I wrote the above and now I am on American soil again. You cannot imagine how nice it is to be so near home after an absence of a year or more. Nothing of any importance happened since writing the last until Saturday evening about one o'clock when some one on deck caught a first sight of land. Every body at once rushed up to get a glimpse of the promised land and from that time until we had passed through the Golden Gate and dropped the anchor, nearly all of us staid on deck. Because it was so late when we got in there was hardly anybody out to meet us but at about 12 o'clock the Governor of Nebraska the Adjutent General and a few other men from Lincoln came out in a launch to see us and say that our people were going to give us a big blow out when we get home.

We had to lay out in the bay until the next morning at ten o'clock and then as we had passed a good examination by the quanantine officers we pulled up the ancor and started into the docks. When we got there we found a big crowd of people waiting for us and they cheered us with all their might. We did not get to go off from the boat until Monday morning and then we began our march out to camp The streets all along the way were lined with people and the noise from the firecrackers at times was so loud that no commands could be heard. We found a nice camp awaiting us with everything fixed up comfortable. We expect to be here for at least three weeks, but the time will not seem long as the people here are going to show us a nice time and we will not have much to do. I want to go down home in a few days and see the folks. I am not sure yet whether I shall decide to go back to Nebraska or not. I don't suppose the folks will want me to go back soon.

Well I guess this is all I will write for this time. I hope this will find you well and happy. So good bye.

From your cousin,
SHERMAN JONES.

Is Baby Thin
this summer? Then add a little
SCOTT'S EMULSION
to his milk three times a day.
It is astonishing how fast he will improve. If he nurses, let the mother take the Emulsion. 50c. and $1.00; all druggists.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA.

JAMES A. BARNES, - - - PUBLISHER.

1899. AUGUST. 1899.

Su	Mo	Tu	We	Th	Fr	Sa
•	•	1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30	31	•	•
•	•	•	•	•	•	•

N. M. 6th. F. Q. 14th. F. M. 20th. L. Q. 27th.

NEWS IN BRIEF GUSTS

BLOWN IN FROM ALL PARTS OF THE EARTH.

An Important Record of the Week As Told by the Telegraph—Latest from Foreign Shores—Crimes, Casualties, Fires, Etc.

Ten New Regiments.

An order has been issued directing that ten additional regiments of infantry volunteers be organized for service in the Philippines. The regiments will be numbered from thirty-eight to forty-seven, and will be organized at the following places in the order named:

Fort Snelling, Fort Crook, Neb.; Fort Riley, Kan.; Camp Meade, Pa.; Fort Niagara; Fort Ethan, Vt.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Jefferson Barracks, Mo.; South Framingham, Mass.; Camp Meade, Pa.

Bloodshed in Paris.

Paris special: As an anti-Semite group was standing at the corner of the Faubourg St. Dennis and the Rue de Valenciennes some passers-by were greeted with cries of "Down with the Jesuits," whereupon they were surrounded and threatened by the demonstrators.

A supposed anarchists then fired several revolver shots, wounding three men. One of them, a man named Camille, was taken to a hospital, seriously wounded.

The alleged anarchist was arrested.

Six Drowned in White River.

A carriage containing six persons was precipitated in White River, at Washington, Ind., as it was being driven aboard a ferry boat, and all were drowned.

The dead are:

Mrs. Albert Hensel.
Four Hensel children.
Miss Amy Dillon.

The horses had just stepped aboard the ferry boat when the hawser parted and the boat swung out, dropping the carriage with its occupants into the river.

A Gloomy View.

The correspondents of the London papers in Rennes are almost unanimous in taking a gloomy view of the prospects of Capt. Dreyfus. They seem to believe that it is likely that he will be found guilty.

The representative of the Daily Telegraph says that unless the German Government reveals the name of the real traitor, it is quite on the card that the same verdict will be rendered as in the previous court martial.

Assault on Angeles.

Manila special: Eight hundred insurgents attacked Angeles, Friday morning, but the Twelfth Regiment drove them into the mountains. Three ditched locomotives were captured. None of the American troops were injured. The insurgent loss is not known.

Mr. C. T. Spencer of Kentucky, a reporter of the Manila Times, was killed during the fight at Angeles.

Many Are Dying.

An official dispatch from Gen. Davis, at San Juan, says he cannot reach the interior points with food for a week. The roads are all washed out. One-third of the island has not been heard from, for the roads are utterly impassable. At least 2,000 were killed outright by the hurricane. Many are dying daily from their injuries, hunger and privations.

Pays the Penalty.

Bruno Kirves, the Dayton murderer, was electrocuted in the annex of the Ohio Penitentiary Thursday morning at 12:21. He maintained his composure to the very last. Once during the day he remarked that "It would be sweet to live but he was prepared to die."

The electrocution was without incident and very successful.

Rice Culture in Texas.

It is now conceded that rice cultivation in Texas is proving a success. Capt. Dunovant of Eagle Lake, planted as an experiment 300 acres, which promises to be a successful venture—so much so that the Captain says he will put in 2,000 acres next year. It is claimed ten barrels of rice can be raised on each acre of ground.

Germans to Sail the Shamrock.

Emperor William's yacht Meteor has finished her racing season. Capt. Ben Parker, the skipper of that craft, and eleven members of her crew have received permission from his Majesty to start for the United States immediately in order to help sail the Shamrock in the races for the America's cup.

Train Fell into the River.

Valparaiso special: The terrific gales and heavy floods continue. Near Santiago de Chile a train fell into a river from a railway bridge and fifty persons were drowned. A house has been washed away here and its nine occupants were drowned.

Arrest of a Priest.

A dispatch from Ville Franche, France, announces that a priest named Vial has been arrested there, charged with being connected with a plot to change the form of government.

A $250,000 Blaze.

At Jamestown, N. Y., fire did more than $250,000 damage, destroying the Jamestown Cane Seat Chair Factory, Swanson Bros.' livery stable, the Jamestown Ax Company's factory, and the Brooklyn Flouring Mills, and badly damaging several other buildings.

Five Sailors Drowned.

Keeper Pugh, of Gull Shoal life-saving station, N. C., reports the schooner Aaron Reppard wrecked three miles south of that station. Five of the crew of eight persons were lost.

Ens'gn Attempts Suicide.

W. T. Coleman, an ensign on the battleship Iowa, who was to have been court-martialed at San Francisco on a charge of having been intoxicated at the Puget Sound naval station, attempted suicide by shooting with a navy revolver. He will recover.

Murderer Surrenders Himself.

Fred Eastwood, of Greenfield, N. J., who shot and killed Frank Fenn, his brother-in-law, and attempted to murder Mrs. Eastwood, Mrs. Marietta Brown, Mrs. Frank Fenn and Edgar C. Brown, at Middlebury, has surrendered himself after a vain attempt at suicide.

NATIONAL PARK ASSOCIATION.

Organization to Preserve Minnesota Forests—Officers Elected.

Preservation of the forests of northern Minnesota is the reason for the formation of the Minnesota National Park and Forestry Association, which was organized at the Chicago Athletic Association in Chicago. Sixty delegates were present. The association plans to have Congress set aside a strip of land in the northern part of Minnesota as a national park and game preserve. Next October the association will invite President McKinley and his cabinet to visit the forest lands in question. Judge Page Morris, member of Congress from the Duluth district, was present and pronounced the scheme impracticable, and said his constituents would oppose it vigorously. Woodcutting supported many of the people in that section. The following officers were elected: President, Cyrus Northrup; first vice-president, Theodore Roosevelt; second vice-president, Judge H. H. Lurton; third vice-president, Judge H. N. Hubbard; treasurer, J. H. Witbeck; corresponding secretary, J. S. Cooper; recording secretary, H. M. Bracken.

KING OF KLONDIKE IS BROKE.

Alec McDonald, Former Millionaire, In Quest of Another Fortune.

Erstwhile Millionaire Alec McDonald, king of the Klondike, is "broke." He has again shouldered his pick and, leaving his newly made wife in Dawson, has gone forth to again seek fortune. McDonald filed a formal declaration of insolvency at Dawson on June 29. He places his liabilities at $6,000,000, while assets are problematical, but he is believed by many to be worth $20,000,000. McDonald has made the sacrifice. He had too many irons in the fire and was tired of the worry and care. He has turned over all his claims to creditors. When McDonald went to England a few months ago to organize a syndicate to control the transportation and provision business of the far north he left his affairs in the hands of incompetent agents. On his return creditors made demands which he could not meet.

INCREASE IN IRON OUTPUT.

Supply Now Equal to the Demand—New Orders of a Week.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The output of iron furnaces in blast Aug. 1 was 269,032 tons weekly —60.8 per cent more than in 1892 and 2.07 per cent more than last year. The supply appears to be at least equal to the demand, although new demands for the week have covered 2,100 tons for new buildings at Chicago, with much for bridges, and 4,000 tons for eastern buildings at Pittsburg. Wool is a little less active after its great rise, and inside quotations are sometimes accepted, but sales at the three chief markets have been 20,206,690 pounds in two weeks, against 23,495,800 in the same weeks in 1897, and 16,436,600 in the same weeks of 1892. Failures for the week have been 136 in the United States, against 196 last year, and 29 in Canada, against 18 last year."

YOUNG LOVERS DIE TOGETHER.

Parental Opposition Causes Double Tragedy at Arapahoe, Neb.

Workmen repairing the high school building at Arapahoe, Neb., brought to light a double tragedy. In one of the rooms was found the body of James Bloodworth, a revolver tightly clasped in one hand. He had evidently been dead for several hours. Lying partly across the body of Bloodworth was that of Miss Grace Cooper. She was breathing but unconscious when found and died shortly after. Both had been shot through the temple. Bloodworth was 21 and Miss Cooper was 15. They had been keeping company for some time, to which the parents of the girl objected. A note signed by both of them stated it was a case of suicide and gave the opposition to their love as the cause.

HALF OF CASS LAKE IN RUINS.

Fire Sweeps the New Frame Town in Chippewa Indian Reservation.

Cass Lake, on the Great Northern, in the Chippewa Indian reservation, Minnesota, was visited by a destructive fire. Fifteen buildings were entirely destroyed on the main business street as a result of a gasoline stove exploding in Jerry Bell's barber shop. It is a frame town and less than a year old. There was no adequate fire protection, but half of the town was saved by great exertion. The loss is estimated at about $100,000. Cass Lake is the town from which the Secretary of the Interior recently ordered the settlers to remove and which order was later rescinded.

Port Arthur Now a Seaport.

Port Arthur, Texas, is now a seaport. The steamship St. Oswald, beautifully decorated with flags and streamers, entered the ship canal the other day and steamed through at a speed of eight knots an hour. She was royally welcomed by almost the entire population of the city.

B. & O. Moves to Balk Tramps.

A radical change is being made in the appearance of the baggage, mail and express cars on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The platforms and hoods are being removed to increase the element of safety and save weight. The favorite riding place of tramps is also eliminated when the platforms are removed.

Motorman Uses His Revolver.

William T. Caple, a non-union motorman of the Big Consolidated Company at Cleveland, fired two shots at William Little, a teamster, both bullets taking effect. In return Little picked up a hatchet lying in his wagon and hurled it at Caple, striking the motorman in the head and making a frightful wound.

Fierce Fire at La Crosse, Wis.

At La Crosse, Wis., fire broke out in the two-story building corner Pearl and Front streets, occupied by Davis, Sorenson & Co., manufacturers of bar fixtures and office furniture. It was totally destroyed. Loss, $50,000.

Royalist Plot Discovered.

Including Paul Deroulede, sixteen members of the Anti-Semitic and Patriotic leagues and young royalists have been arrested in Paris under a general charge of forming a conspiracy to overthrow the Government.

Failure of Russian Crops.

The State Department in Washington has received a report from Consul Heenan at Odessa, Russia, stating that the failure of the crops in many of the provinces of European Russia is much more serious than is generally admitted.

Passes to be Called In.

In consequence of the new anti-rebate law going into effect in Texas general managers of all railroads will call in every pass and no more will be issued except for charity, to employes and peace officers.

Powder Mills Are Blown Up.

Three powder mills connected with the plant of the Aetna Powder Company, near Aetna, Ind., blew up. The explosion was caused by a fire igniting a quantity of dynamite in process of manufacture. The loss was about $5,000.

Horrible Death in a Grain Elevator.

Robert Shatto, aged 17, met a horrible death at Columbus, Ind. He was working in a hopper-shaped wheat bin at Gritzner's elevator. His legs became submerged in the wheat, and, drawn by the suction of receding wheat, he was unable to extricate himself. He was covered by 400 bushels of wheat, from which it required an hour to recover the body.

PICKED UP STARVING MINERS.

Steamer Albion Brings News of Cutter Bear's Relief Work.

The steamer Albion has arrived at San Francisco from Cape Nome. She reports that 100 people, men and women, without food or means, were picked up on the Kotzebue beach by the revenue cutter Bear and taken to St. Michaels. On the Albion were eight passengers who passed most of the winter in Kotzebue, picked up enough dust to pay them for their experience in the far North, and then made their way to Cape Nome. The Albion left nearly three months ago to gather up reindeer on the Siberian coast and carry the animals to St. Michaels. The old revenue cutter Thetis went on the same mission, and the Bear, the whalers' savior, had instructions to do similar work on her way to the Arctic. All these vessels performed the work allotted to them.

CASHIER KILLS SELF AND WIFE.

Prompted by Jealousy, Thos. Houlihan Commits Fearful Deed.

Jealousy led Thomas Houlihan, of Chicago, to kill his wife and then himself. He used a revolver, firing only two shots. Each of them proved of true aim. Houlihan had been employed as a cashier for the A. Booth Packing Company and his wife Lizzie managed a little restaurant they owned at 110 Dearborn avenue. It was in a rear room, near the kitchen, where the shooting occurred. It is supposed they had a quarrel. Houlihan fired one shot at his wife, the bullet striking her in the right side of the head. She fell dead, and an instant later the husband sent a bullet into his brain, the ball entering near the right ear. Neighbors heard the shooting, and notified the Chicago avenue police. When they arrived both Houlihan and his wife were dead.

BATTLE IN SANTO DOMINGO.

Insurgents Routed with Heavy Losses on Both Sides—May End Revolt.

It is reported from Puerto Plata that the Government forces of San Domingo, commanded by Gen. Escoboza, have defeated the insurgents. The rout was almost a massacre. The wounded on both sides are numerous. The engagement is considered by the Government as decisively ending the Jiminez uprising. The Government plan for the gradual withdrawal of paper money from circulation has established confidence. Short-term bills of exchange on Europe sell for 800 per cent silver. The Dominicans almost without exception are for the use of American money.

HERMIT DIES IN POVERTY.

Former Wealthy Iowan Passes Away in the Indian Territory.

E. M. Hunter, aged 87, who has been living a hermit life in Pawnee County, Indian Territory, for nearly a year, died in an old barn near Pawnee City, where he had taken refuge some time ago. He died in abject poverty, but a number of years ago was a prominent and wealthy citizen of Sac City, Iowa, owning much property and being well known over the State. For some unknown reason he had shunned all society and refused to have anything to do with any person for several years.

Sold to the Paper Trust.

At Hamilton, Ohio, deeds have been filed in the county recorder's office transferring the Harding Paper Company plant to the American Writing Paper Company, the so-called paper trust. The nominal consideration was $100,000, but the revenue stamps attached show the actual value of the property to be $400,000.

Ore on Jesse Spalding's Land.

Thoburn Gibson has discovered an ore deposit upon the lands of Jesse Spalding, between Crystal Falls, Minn., and Amasa, that shows up to be 600 feet long and averages thirty feet wide. The ore assays 64.40 in iron and .08 in phos. The find is worth $50,000.

Placing Blame for Electrocution.

The coroner's jury at Omaha placed the blame for the electrocution of four firemen at the Mercer Chemical Company's fire on Aug. 9 on the Thomson-Houston Electric Light Company and the city electrician, charging criminal negligence.

New President for Miami University.

The trustees of Miami University at Oxford, O., have elected the Rev. David Stanton Tappan, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Portsmouth to succeed Dr. Thompson as President of the university.

Church Gets Infidel's Money.

The will of Joseph Benorst, who died at Kansas City, proves to be a most remarkable document. Although he was an infidel, Benorst left all but $4,000 of his fortune of $150,000 to religious and charitable organizations.

Youngstown Mill Destroyed.

The old mill of the Struthers Iron Company at Struthers, Ohio, was destroyed by fire. Loss $50,000.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago—Cattle, common to prime, $3.00 to $6.50; hogs, shipping grades, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, fair to choice, $3.00 to $5.00; wheat, No. 2 red, 71c to 73c; corn, No. 2, 30c to 32c; oats, No. 2, 19c to 21c; rye, No. 2, 53c to 54c; butter, choice creamery, 18c to 20c; eggs, fresh, 11c to 13c; potatoes, choice, 28c to 35c per bushel.

Indianapolis—Cattle, shipping, $3.00 to $5.75; hogs, choice light, $2.75 to $4.75; sheep, common to prime, $3.25 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2 red, 66c to 67c; corn, No. 2 white, 33c to 34c; oats, No. 2 white, 22c to 24c.

St. Louis—Cattle, $3.50 to $6.25; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $3.00 to $4.25; wheat, No. 2, 72c to 74c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 31c to 33c; oats, No. 2, 21c to 23c; rye, No. 2, 55c to 56c.

Cincinnati—Cattle, $2.50 to $5.75; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 70c to 72c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 22c to 23c; rye, No. 2, 56c to 58c.

Detroit—Cattle, $2.50 to $6.00; hogs, $3.00 to $5.00; sheep, $2.50 to $4.50; wheat, No. 2, 70c to 72c; corn, No. 2 yellow, 33c to 35c; oats, No. 2 white, 26c to 27c; rye, 54c to 56c.

Toledo—Wheat, No. 2 mixed, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 33c to 34c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 20c to 21c; rye, No. 2, 54c to 55c; clover seed, new, $4.05 to $4.10.

Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2 spring, 72c to 73c; corn, No. 3, 32c to 33c; oats, No. 2 white, 24c to 26c; rye, No. 1, 54c to 55c; barley, No. 2, 39c to 41c; pork, mess, $8.00 to $8.50.

Buffalo—Cattle, good shipping steers, $3.00 to $6.00; hogs, common to choice, $3.25 to $5.25; sheep, fair to choice wethers, $3.50 to $5.25; lambs, common to extra, $4.50 to $6.75.

New York—Cattle, $3.25 to $6.25; hogs, $3.00 to $5.25; sheep, $3.00 to $5.00; wheat, No. 2 red, 78c to 79c; corn, No. 2, 36c to 39c; oats, mixed Western, 26c to 32c; butter, creamery, 16c to 21c; eggs, Western, 11c to 15c.

THE DREYFUS TRIAL.

DRAMATIC FEATURES OF THE FARCE AT RENNES.

Shocking Disregard for All the Necessary Restraints that Are Put Upon Testimony—Court Refused to Adjourn Because of Labori Being Wounded.

The public and dramatic features of the Dreyfus trial Wednesday were the refusal of the court to allow a postponement on account of the wounding by an assassin of M. Labori, counsel for Dreyfus; the recital of the cruelties to which Dreyfus was subjected on Devil's Island, with ex-Colonial Minister Lebon's attempt to explain and justify these barbarities; the virulent attacks of Gen. Roget upon the accused and Col. Picquart, apparently introduced to provoke an outburst of personal violence, and the rebuke given by Dreyfus to those who are converting his trial into an opportunity for his enemies to attempt to exculpate themselves.

During the day there was the usual shocking disregard for all the necessary restraints that are put upon testimony. Three witnesses were examined, each of whom was allowed to make profession of faith in the guilt of the prisoner, to argue against him and to work on the prejudices of the court by giving out the impression that to save this man was to condemn the whole army.

One of these witnesses was the brutal Lebon, former minister of the colonies, who was responsible for the savage treatment of Dreyfus in Guiana. This model of justice declared that his respect for the chose juges, which was founded upon illegalities and perjuries, was strengthened by his personal opinion of the culpability of the condemned. Next came the effort to intensify prejudice against the accused through the testimony of Henry's widow. This woman said in referring to her wretched husband: "You know his sentiments, gentlemen. He committed forgery on account of Col. Picquart's proceedings, and it was in order to save the army, compromised by the dishonesty of its enemies." The man was, in fact, a coarse criminal, possibly a traitor himself, and his conception of honor was what might be expected in any forger or swindler. If she possessed good taste and sensibility Mme. Henry would court seclusion and silence. The last of the three witnesses was the vindictive Gen. Roget, who was permitted, like Mercier, to deliver a long and bitter speech against the prisoner.

The refusal of the court to allow an adjournment is variously interpreted. While it is admitted that the defense is handicapped by M. Labori's absence, there is also a disposition to believe that the court is already convinced that there is no real case against Dreyfus.

In Dreyfus' Favor.

Thursday for the first time the Dreyfus court martial listened to testimony in favor of the accused. Col. Picquart and M. Bertulus, examining magistrate, were both on the stand giving their grounds for belief in Dreyfus' innocence. M. Bertulus was the first witness to testify in favor of the prisoner. Bertulus was the examining magistrate whose seizure of papers at the house of Mme. Pays led to his belief in the guilt of Col. Henry. M. Bertulus repeated his testimony before the court of cassation, including Henry's famous confession to him when he begged him to "save us for the honor of the army."

When Henry was examined by Bertulus, the latter said to him: "Esterhazy and Du Paty de Clam are guilty. Let the latter blow his brains out, justice will have its course with Esterhazy. He is now making charges against you which may lead your enemies to accuse you of supplying him with documents." Henry, on hearing this, was speechless. Then throwing his arms around the magistrate's neck, he cried: "Save us for the honor of the army; Esterhazy is a scoundrel."

The next witness was Lieut. Col. Picquart. He first told of his connection with the general staff and how he became interested in the Dreyfus affair, evidently referring to the crooked practices of the generals. After his recital of his first acquaintance with the case, Col. Picquart said: "I have other things to say, and will tell all, but now I do not wish to break the direct chain of evidence." Picquart was content to talk without notes. He seldom hesitated, and showed a wonderful memory. He said the resemblance of Dreyfus' handwriting to the bordereau was only a rumor. Dreyfus gazed gratefully at his defender.

Col. Picquart asked how Dreyfus could know the military secrets which had been betrayed when he (Picquart), as chief of the intelligence bureau, did not know them and which could have been known only in the bureau of Du Paty de Clam. The innuendo in this last remark caused a sensation. The court here adjourned.

Revolt Is Feared.

The authorities claim to have definite information of a plot involving an uprising in Rennes, and have adopted extreme measures to squelch the conspirators and their allies. Instructions have been issued to the troops to fire upon any crowd at the first sign of a demonstration. Drums have been stationed with each command—three rolls of a drum being, according to French law, equivalent to the reading of the riot act in England. When five rolls of the drums are beaten it is a signal for the troops to fire. It is believed that the agitators are plotting a Jewish and Dreyfusite massacre.

DRIVEN FROM ANGELES.

Nearly Three Thousand Filipino Rebels Put to Flight.

The Filipinos sustained a severe defeat before Angeles. Ten companies of the Twelfth infantry, with two cannon, attacked 2,500 insurgents who were entrenched near the town. A fierce fight followed, in which the Filipinos were worsted and driven away in disorder. Their loss was 200 men. The Americans had two killed and twelve wounded. The taking of Angeles is considered a very important strategic movement and has been the endeavor of the Americans ever since the beginning of the rainy season.

Secretary Root's new "bird's-eye map" has been completed and he follows and notes every movement of the American troops. The gunboat Wheeling has returned from a cruise along the northern coast of Luzon. Her officers report that the insurgents are in possession of all the villages. Disquieting advices are received from the islands of Negros and Cebu. Many of the leading men of these islands, it is said, have joined the insurgents and outbreaks are feared.

Notes of Current Events.

President McKinley has promised to visit Milwaukee, Oct. 11.

Maxet committee of New York has adjourned until Sept. 12.

American coal operators aim to boom their coal at the Paris exposition.

John Burch, Middlesboro, Ky., sentenced to hang, gets a respite until September.

Dave Ogden, a St. Louis carpenter, has sold his claim in an Arizona copper mine for $300,000.

DOWIE SEEKS REVENGE.

Head of Zion Scores Chicago Newspapers and Doctors.

John Alexander Dowie vented his wrath against the doctors and the newspapers of Chicago Sunday in an address before a large meeting at Zion Tabernacle. The fierce abuse, in language most foul, had for its purpose revenge against the doctors because they caused the arrest of one of the elders of his church and one of its members for malpractice and criminal negligence in the case of Mrs. Flanders, who died recently. The newspapers and their employes were scored for reporting the affair. He mentioned one after another of the newspapers and told of wrongs they had done to him. He accused all of lying and called reporters as a whole a disreputable set, qualifying the term with numerous foul adjectives.

Of Joseph Medill he said: "Joseph Medill was a wicked man. He was a bad man. He lied about Zion."

Of Mr. Flanders, the husband of the woman who died under the care of members of Zion, who was in the audience, he said:

DOWIE'S HOTEL AND HOSPITAL.

"You should have committed suicide when you said you would. Then there would have been one dirty dog the less in Chicago."

Of Lawyer Stevens, also in the audience, he said:

"Stand up, you scoundrel. In the name of the most high God I brand you as a liar, a traducer of a widow and a scoundrel."

One of his remarks was the prophecy that before long all the wicked Chicago papers would be driven from the field by the Zion Morning Sun and the Zion Evening Star, and another was a threat that Gov. Tanner and the State Board of Health, or "death," as he called it, would be held financially responsible for the arrest of the Zion workers in the Flanders case.

MAY DISRUPT FRANCE.

Paris Press Fears that a Revolution Is Imminent.

The Paris papers, without distinction, express indignation at the outrage of which Labori is the victim. The Temps deplores the "state of disorder into which the Dreyfus affair has dragged the country" and says that it is "high time for us to stand up and be ourselves again."

Continuing its review of the situation, the Temps observes: "Casimir-Perier testified to his wishes for a reconciliation, and we now see how far from it we are. Perhaps this pistol shot marks the culmination of the crisis and will restore us to the path of good sense."

The Liberte, which holds the Government responsible as the "apostle of the anarchy that has existed for the last two years and that has sown broadcast the seeds of civil war," says: "The outrage is only an incident in the era of catastrophes toward which the country is rushing."

The Journal Des Debats says: "The revolver shot is bound to be the end, and one fine morning it will be closely followed by the horrors of civil war, if violence, hate, contempt for justice and law and all the fanatical, anarchic and homicidal passions continue to poison the air we breathe."

The Figaro says: "In all the long series of crimes in the pages of our history this is the first time when assassination has struck down an advocate, and that, too, at the very hour when preparing to plead in defense of his client, to establish truth and to confound accusers."

WHITE EXPECTS TO DIE.

Sheriff of Clay County Says He Will Surely Be Killed.

John Feland, a prominent eastern Kentucky politician, says that while at Lexington he met and had a long talk with Beverly White, sheriff of Clay County, from whose house Tom Baker was assassinated while being guarded by the State troops.

"Sheriff White told me," said Feland, "that he knew his days on earth were numbered. He was confident that some of the Baker crowd would kill him just as soon as a good opportunity was presented. He added, however, that he was prepared for the worst and touched his belt, in which he carried two huge Colt's revolvers and a bowie knife. White remarked that he might leave Clay County, but for the fact that all of his relatives and property are located there."

REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION.

French Discovery that Is Said to Have Proven Effective.

A new remedy for tuberculosis developed in France has been reported to the State Department by United States Commercial Agent Atwood at Roubaix. It is a treatment called to the attention of the Academy of Medicine by Dr. Mendel, and consists in the daily injection into the bronchial tubes of essence of eucalyptus, thyme and cinnamon, held in solution in olive oil. The oil in descending slowly comes into contact with the walls of the tube and upper lungs. The gas set free saturates the air in the lungs and acts on the mucous membranes. In sixteen casts treated after one or two weeks there was in all a lessening or complete cessation of the cough or expectoration as well as a return of sleep, appetite and strength.

BUILDING STARTS AGAIN.

The Strike of Chicago Brickmakers Brought to a Close.

Building operations in Chicago and Cook County have been resumed. The strike of the brickmakers, which lasted a week, is off. Both sides claim the victory. The men believe they have proved their charge that the yard owners have been in combination. They further claim they have succeeded in breaking up the "brick trust," as they term it. On the other hand, the manufacturers insist there is no such combination and that the strike has been a failure. In the entanglements resulting from the strike, a number of central labor bodies and contractors' associations became involved, so that the cause for which the strike was declared was completely lost sight of.

Told in a Few Lines.

Benjamin Tresselt, Buffalo, N. Y., died of hydrophobia.

Mary Robinson, New York, committed suicide by throwing herself in front of a train.

Clarence Watkins, 12, Chattanooga, Tenn., stabbed his father in the region of the heart. May die.

STATE CAPITAL

INDIANAPOLIS INTERVIEWED BY THE CHAT.

The newspapers of the State are now engaged in an exciting debate as to who was or is the greatest man ever given by Indiana to the nation. The discussion grows out of the fact that Indiana is soon to be represented in the National Pantheon at Washington by a statue of Gov. Morton, who during the war presided over the destinies of the Hoosier State. Some of the papers, while admitting that Gov. Morton is worthy of marble immortality, are not agreed that he is the greatest statesman of the State. The Marion Chronicle, for instance, in an impartial review of the claims of all the candidates, comes to the conclusion that Robert Dale Owen stands for more that is good and great in the history of the State than any other on its roll. Owen was a son of Indiana only by adoption. He was born in Wales and came to this country with his father, who was the unsuccessful founder of a socialistic colony on the banks of the Wabash in the early years of the century. He was the leader of the convention which drew up the constitution of the State and is given credit for writing into that document the first clear presentation of the modern idea of the legal rights of women. He was also the father of the public school system of Indiana, which in many ways is still a model. As a member of Congress he was the legislative father of the Smithsonian Institution, the greatest organization in this country for the advancement of science. During the war he was the agent of the Federal Government in the purchase of arms in Europe, and he was one of the most trusted friends of President Lincoln. It was a letter written by him to Lincoln which was one of the decisive influences leading to the promulgation of the emancipation proclamation.

ROBERT DALE OWEN

-:—:-

United States Senator Beveridge of this State went to the Philippines to personally study one of the great problems that Congress will be called upon to solve and the accompanying illustration, from the Chicago Record, shows him in the field as a courier delivers a dispatch to Maj. Gen. Lawton. He was caught by the camera standing to the left of Gen. Lawton. Senator Beveridge rode almost through the island of Luzon, 500 or 700 miles, and took a trip of 2,000 miles through the various islands. Several days were spent on the firing line, and altogether the Senator's trip was a remarkable one.

INDIANA SENATOR IN LUZON.

-:—:-

"Every time a man is killed in the Philippines," said Lieut. Rowell, the recruiting officer for Indiana, "it helps the business of enlisting men for the army. Every time a man dies of disease in the army it has a decreasing effect on the enlistments from his home district, but if he be killed in battle it acts as a spur on his friends." Indiana is making a very good showing in the matter of furnishing men to fight the country's battle in the Philippines. The Thirty-first volunteer regiment was to have been filled up from Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and Indiana, but, through the efforts of Lieut. Rowell and his assistants, Indiana turned up 350 good men, and it was announced that the regiment was full. Officers from the various volunteer regiments are working the State for recruits and will continue to do so until they receive word that their regiments are completed. The men recruited in Indiana are all sent to Indianapolis and from this city to the places where the regiments are located. There is no slack in the enthusiasm, patriotism or number of men who present themselves to be sworn into the army.

-:—:-

The convicts at the Michigan City penitentiary are making their own shoes now and raising all their own tobacco. Each man is allowed by the State four ounces of tobacco each week. Heretofore the State authorities have been buying this, and as it paid the revenue tax it cost 33 cents a pound. Now the authorities raise tobacco and pay no tax, so they can raise it for 11 cents a pound, and this will save the State $1,500 a year.

-:—:-

Bureau of statistics finds that 38,404 men are employed on Indiana farms and receive average wages of $13.89, with board, a month. Women employed as domestics number 11,714, with average weekly wages of $1.55, with board. Center township domestics receive an average of $2.75, with board. The twenty-one farm hands in Center township receive an average of $15 a month, with board. The Marion County hands receive an average of $13.26.

-:—:-

To secure a seine license, write the fish commissioner for a blank bond. Fill out accurately. Spell all names properly. Procure sureties that are worth $500 more than the encumbrance upon their real estate and all exemption. Place a 50-cent revenue stamp upon it. Enclose bond and one dollar to the commissioner, who will issue license if bond is accepted. Seine cannot be longer than 100 feet, nor wider than 8 feet at widest place, nor less than one and one-half inch mesh. License good for five years to be used only from July 1 to Sept. 30.

A Matter of Memory.

Charlie—Don't you remember? It was that day you borrowed 5 shillings of me.

Jack (hastily)—I don't recollect anything of the sort.

Charlie—But you paid it back next week.

Jack—Oh, yes; I remember that perfectly.—Tid-Bits.

Appropriate.

Edmund—I'll have to send Miss Wheeler some flowers. What kind do you think would suit her?

Luther—Century plants.

HUSTLING HOOSIERS.

ITEMS GATHERED FROM OVER THE STATE.

An Interesting Summary of the More Important Doings of Our Neighbors—Weddings and Deaths—Crimes, Casualties, and General Indiana News Notes.

Minor State Items.

Evansville water pipes have electrolysis.

A public hospital has been opened in Franklin.

Mrs. Susan Fullen, aged 90 years, of Bedford, is dead.

Henry F. Meier, of Columbus, drowned while seining in White River.

Mrs. Conrad Lucas of Montpelier, Spanish war widow, has received a pension.

A new Christian Church has been organized at Columbus, the result of the recent split.

A Martinsville elevator burst recently, letting 6,000 bushels of wheat on the ground.

Work has begun on the powerhouse at Greenwood for the Indianapolis and Greenwood electric line.

Mrs. Lavina Corn, wife of a rich Cuban planter, lost a sack containing $1,145 worth of diamonds at Muncie.

It develops that Guy Kable, the young horse thief who escaped from the Columbus jail, has stolen 112 horses and buggies in the last two weeks.

Mormon elders are holding a series of meetings and conferences at Jeffersonville, to arrange for a thorough evangelical canvass of South Indiana.

The 3-year-old child of Greely Van Winkle, a farmer near Anderson, is at the point of death, the result of being stung hundreds of times by bees.

Gottlieb Keehner, a Greentown butcher, went to Kokomo with a badly lacerated face and said that his wife tried to kill him. He wants the knot untied.

Vigo County Commissioners want to let a contract for a $16,000 trestle on a public road, but the people think it is too much money, and are getting up an injunction.

Peru was visited by a cloud of beetles that caused business houses to be closed and stalled several trains. Horses were maddened by being bitten and frightened.

Robert Bucknell, who rose from a Terre Haute civilian to be Lord Mayor of Oxford, England, told the Terre Haute Commercial Club how they do business in England, the other night.

At Connersville, Charles Campbell, aged 12 years, lost his life riding a horse. Passing through a covered bridge at a rapid gate, the boy collided with a projecting post and died in a few hours.

A woman near Mitchell fell out with the family doctor because he cured her husband of rheumatism. This rendered him worthless as a barometer, which resulted in her getting her new Sunday hat wet.

Wheelmill No. 3, of the J. W. Randall Powder Mill, Fontanet, exploded, and Matt Maiser, assistant superintendent, was fatally burned. Night Superintendent George Barber was badly burned, but will recover.

While riding a bicycle Miss Mabel Skidmore of Union City, collided with a horse and buggy driven by William Fisher of Winchester, at a high rate of speed. She was seriously injured, her skull being fractured.

A young man attired as a soldier has been making good wages in Northern Indiana, selling "lizard cactus seed direct from Porto Rico." One woman at Valparaiso has already raised a fine crop of mustard from it.

S. E. Nicholson of Kokomo, talked temperance at the Battle Ground camp meeting, Lafayette, recently. The new officers of the association are: President, Dr. A. C. Brook; Secretary, Rev. George W. Switzer; Treasurer, Dr. George F. J. Keiper.

Near Oriole Bill Pearson and George Henely got into a fight and Charles Harvey attacked Pearson with a knife, stabbing him over the eye, cutting that member and his nose in two. Pearson will lose one eye. Harvey has not been arrested.

The arrest of Mrs. Laurelia Simmons at Terre Haute, on the charge of bigamy, at the instance of her former husband, has caused a $5,000 damage suit filed by Simmons against Richard Compton, at Brazil, charging him with alienating his wife's affection, to be dismissed.

The village of Hartford has struck a novel way of getting rid of tramps. When one strikes the place, the Town Marshal puts him to pulling weeds. By the time word reaches all the hoboes to avoid the place, the streets will be clean, and the town will also be free from tramps.

Frank Werry, who lives in Pigeon Creek bottoms, Grass Township, Spencer County, says he killed a rattlesnake five feet long and eight inches in diameter, and that it jumped eight feet at his dog. There were nine rattles on it when killed, and no telling how many rubbed off in the fight. He says that its mate was killed there, several years ago.

Patents have been issued to Indiana inventors as follows: Alphege Burke, Valparaiso, fishing-line float; William H. Dalbey, Indianapolis, post-hole digger; John W. Hosler and C. F. Pressler, Fort Wayne, acetylene gas machine; Oscar G. Kluger, Indianapolis, sheep shears; Richard W. Lundy, South Bend, machine for lifting and conveying straightened bars; J. W. Maxey, Plymouth, churn; Granville F. Packard, Fort Wayne, electric meter; Isaac H. Peppard, Bluffton, hood-wink; Jacob H. Snow, Indianapolis, scoop scale; Herman W. Timmons, Groveland, fence-post bracket; Frederick H. Urban, Brazil, fireproof chimney; Seth Ward, Sr., Princeton, back band hook; Daniel W. Williams, Richmond, bicycle tire shield.

John Rasp of Shelbyville, struck at a small tree with a hatchet, and, missing the tree, struck his 2-year-old granddaughter with the blade of the hatchet, cutting open the skull and fatally injuring her. The aged man is almost bereft of reason over the unfortunate affair.

Valentine Kelley, aged 70 years, who lived with his son at Clarksville, was killed recently by a train of the Pennsylvania Company. He was known as the "Laird of the Loop," having gained much notoriety on account of forty years' litigation over a str

THE LAW OF RECOMPENSE.

There is no wrong, by any one committed,
But will recoil;
Its sure return, with double ill repeated,
No skill can foil.

As on the earth the mist it yields to heaven
Descends in rain,
So on his head whoe'er has evil given
It falls again.

It is the law of life that retribution
Shall follow wrong;
It never fails, although the execution
May tarry long.

Then let us be, with unrelaxed endeavor,
Just, true and right,
That the great law of recompense may ever
Our hearts delight.

Lottie's Blue Eyes.

THE harrowing conviction was forcing itself upon Miss Sophia's mind that her brother, Rev. Harmond Pendleton, at the mature age of 44, had actually fallen in love. This fact was in itself an offense to Miss Sophia, but it was not all, for the minister had committed the supreme folly of losing his heart to a chit of a girl, and a most objectionable young person altogether in Miss Sophia's eyes.

"Now if he had only fallen in love with Mary," mused Miss Sophia. "She is a most estimable young woman. But that doll-faced, vain, frivolous Lottie——" and Miss Sophia groaned. "A man of his age and a minister of the gospel to lose his wits over a pink and white complexion and yellow hair! Oh, it is too bad. If I only knew of some way to disenchant him!"

Just then two girls and a young man passed along the street. One of the girls was tall, dark-haired and stately; the other was pink-cheeked and yellow-haired. Her hands were full of roses and her laughing blue eyes were uplifted to the face of the young man by her side.

Miss Sophia snorted with disgust.

"Flirting, as usual, the shameless piece!" she ejaculated. "A nice minister's wife she would make! Harmon's an idiot!"

Then Miss Saphia suddenly awoke to the fact that the hired girl had been left much too long to her own devices, and rose hastily to her feet. In so doing she tripped over a stool and gave her ankle a severe wrench.

A little later Rev. Harmon Pendleton returned home and found Miss Sophia with her foot on a stool and her ankle swathed in bandages.

"Why, Sophia, what has happened?" asked the minister.

"I've sprained my ankle," replied Miss Sophia, with grim disgust. "I can't so much as put my foot on the door."

"Why, this is indeed bad," murmured Rev. Harmon.

"And that is not all," said Miss Sophia. "Martha has just had word that her mother is very ill and to come home immediately. What to do I can't imagine."

"Why, get another girl."

"Since when has it become so easy to get help in Westonville at a moment's notice?" ejaculated Miss Sophia, with extreme scorn.

"I met Miss Armiger down the street," said the minister with sudden inspiration. "She intends stopping on her way home. Perhaps she can think of a way out of the difficulty."

"I don't doubt it; Mary Armiger is a most superior young woman," said Miss Sophia, with emphasis.

"Yes, she is indeed," readily assented the minister.

"So utterly unlike her sister Lottie," suplemented Miss Sophia.

"Yes, they are very unlike, certainly," said the minister quietly.

"Did you meet Lottie also?" asked Miss Sophia, furtively watching her brother's face. "She passed with Charlie Saunders, making eyes at him as usual. What an audacious flirt that girl is."

"Oh, I have not seen Lottie," replied the minister, and then he added: "Here comes Miss Armiger now."

He passed into the hall, returning in a few minutes with Mary Armiger.

"Why, Miss Sophia, I am sorry to hear of your accident," she said.

She had soft dark eyes and a low, sweet voice.

"I was just telling Sophia that perhaps you may be able to help her in her present awkward predicament," said the minister. "Martha's mother is ill, and she is going home this afternoon."

"Why, that is too bad," said Mary Armiger. "How long will Martha be gone?"

"A week at least," replied Miss Sophia.

"How would it do for me to come and keep house for you," asked Mary, after a few moments' thought. "Father and mother are going away tomorrow for about two weeks. There's the Widow Mason's daughter, Sarah, who would, I am sure, be glad to come and do the rough work."

"You would be doing me a kindness I should not soon forget," replied Miss Sophia, with surprising eagerness.

In fact she was really delighted with the plan. What an opportunity it would afford to bring Mary Armiger's sterling qualities under the observation of the minister! He was fully cognizant of her usefulness in the church, her good work among the poor and suffering of the parish; her domestic virtues could now be demonstrated to him.

Miss Sophia looked at her brother. He was gazing gratefully and appreciately at Miss Armiger.

"No one in trouble ever appeals to you in vain, Miss Mary," he said. "But this is really something of an imposition."

"Not at all. I shall be very glad indeed to come. Only," with a slight hesitation, "I am afraid I should be obliged to bring Lottie, as there will be no one at home."

Miss Sophia's brow darkened; the minister's pale face flushed slightly.

"By all means bring Miss Lottie," he said, as Miss Sophia remained silent.

Lifting her eyes one evening a week later, Miss Sophia saw upon the porch quite distinctly, for the moon was shining brightly, Mary Armiger and Charlie Saunders. She stiffened in her chair. Mary and Charlie being together, it followed that Lottie and the minister were bearing each other company. There rose before Miss Sophia's mind's eye a distracting vision of Lottie, lovely in her white gown, with pink roses in her yellow hair. The next moment, however, all thought of Lottie, engaged in luring the minister to return to his former folly, was driven from Miss Sophia's mind, for Charlie Saunders had placed his arm about Mary's waist and kissed her upon the lips.

Miss Sophia gasped in astonishment and horror. Could she have seen aright? Mary Armiger, the model of all that is best in womanhood, permitting an insolent boy to kiss her unrebuked!

As Miss Sophia sat bewildered the couple moved toward her.

"Why, Miss Sophia, you are all in the dark; I'll light the lamp," said Mary, as she stepped through the low window into the room, followed by Charlie.

Miss Sophia sat in grim silence until Mary had lighted the lamp. She fixed her eyes sternly upon Mary. Certainly she had never seen the elder Miss Armiger look quite so pretty before. There was a pink flush in her cheeks and her dark eyes were soft and bright.

"Mary Armiger, did I really see that young man kissing you a few moments ago or did my eyes decelve me?" asked Miss Sophia, with uncompromising abruptness.

Mary blushed, while Charlie, to Miss Sophia's intense indignation, began to laugh.

"I—I am afraid that you did, Miss Sophia," faltered Mary. "You see, I had just promised to marry him."

"What!" gasped Miss Sophia. "That worthless young scamp, who does nothing but flirt with your sister.

"Now, Miss Sophia, that's too bad," cried Charlie. "Lottie and I never thought of such a thing. She knows that I've been in love with Mary for ever so long."

Before Miss Sophia had time to collect her scattered wits sufficiently to make a reply the minister and Lottie entered the room. Lottie's cheeks were pinker than the roses she wore in her hair, and the minister's eyes were radiant.

For a moment Miss Sophia's eyes lingered first upon the girl and then upon her brother, and she made a quick movement to rise from her chair. The minister came to her assistance.

"I wish to go to my room," she said, laying her hand upon her brother's arm, but keeping her face studiously averted from him and the other occupants of the parlor.

When they reached her bedroom door she stopped and turned a rather white face toward him.

"I supose you will permit me to remain until you are married to that doll?" she said.

"Why, Sophia, surely you are not thinking of deserting me, now that I shall need you more than ever?" exclaimed the minister. "You see, if I were going to marry a woman like Mary Armiger, now"—and a suspicion of a smile crossed his lips, but was quickly suppressed—"I should not require any one to keep house for me. But it being Lottie makes it a very different matter."

For a moment or two Miss Sophia said nothing.

"Humph!" she at length replied. "I'll think about remaining."

DIMPLES MADE TO ORDER.

Paris Surgeons Devise a Way to Improve on Nature's Handiwork.

The hall mark of beauty lies in those little indentations made presumably by the finger of Cupid, but which so few women possess naturally. Being able to change the shape of the nose or the color of the eyes it follows that science has taken the making of dimples upon its hands and now one of the cleverest surgical operations results with little pain to the patient in a perfect imitation of the indentation wrought by the god of love and beauty himself. Paris originates it, of course.

The modus as practiced by the skilled surgeon who discovered the secret is to draw up the flesh in either chin or cheeks by means of a glass suction tube, of course an infinitesimal amount of cuticle being all that is necessary to thus secure. This done, the portion drawn up by the force of the air is tied with a bit of silk thread, treated with cocaine, and then snipped off with surgeon scissors. The wound is made less painful by dressing until it is thoroughly healed, when the silk thread is removed and the neatest of little holes, the exact replica of a dimple, is there forever.

MAKING DIMPLES.

Of course, laughter has no specific influence upon the made dimple. The face in repose, in sorrow, in joy, will always be a dimpled one—a drawback that surgery has not yet been able to overcome. The made dimple is not responsive to emotions, but it is a potent factor in the charm of the feminine face.

People can ride a free horse so long that they will kick when the owner asks for the horse.

WOMAN'S LOVE.

THE following from a woman's letter should go to the heart of every man: "What a deal that companionship means! That companionship between a man and a woman that grows sweeter and stronger and stiller as the months go by. I say stiller, because as two people learn to know each other and to read each other's hearts, they do not need to speak every word; a look tells. And this companionship is no more possible between two women than it would be between two parrots. It is formed of a man and of a woman. I am very conventional, my friend; I hope you are, too. I could not love any woman in the world as I could a man, and I couldn't sacrifice for any woman in the world what I would sacrifice for a man. The good God made us that way. He didn't make us to waste our love letters and our coquetries and our hearts on other women; they were intended for men.

"Sometimes the man takes the heart and cares for it and loves it until it beats with pride and joy and love for him; sometimes he takes it and slights it and forgets it and hurts it, and it beats with love for him just the same; and the brain that belongs to it comes and says to it, "He doesn't think, he doesn't know," and the heart excuses, and grows broader and more charitable and kinder; and some day, when it ceases to beat, everybody knows then what a dear, loving heart it was, and most of all its loss is felt by the man who neglected it."

Novelties in Neckwear.

The two collars are of white linen and are worn with wide soft cravats of silk carelessly knotted. There are for wear with shirt waists or tailor gowns. The elaborate stock and cravat has a linen standing collar closed at the back. The silk cravat is drawn through a jeweled slide in front.

The Young Housekeeper.

"The true advice to give a young, restless housekeeper is to put more mind into her work; to find in her daily occupation studies interesting and important, which will surely conduce to her own benefit as well as to the well-being of her household," writes Katharine Roich in the Ladies' Home Journal. "She may easily fill her mind with the annoyances, the disagreeable and monotonous details, the confinement, the interruptions of the daily life, but by intelligent use of her time, by systematizing her work, by simplifying her manner of life, and by resolutely seizing her opportunities she will find time for favorite studies and for interests outside of home. Let a woman gird up her intellect and courage—she needs both—to the high office she accepts. Let her not be anxious, but cheerful, striving every day to make her work more complete, more perfect, and to win from the daily care the refreshment which she needs. While she may be often weary she will not then be restless nor discontented, realizing that she has secured in her home some of the things best worth striving for. And her friends will see in her own intellectual life and character a richness and sweetness of which she may be quite unconscious. For in the quiet of her home, with its thinking and planning, and working, the bearing of many cares, and loving, unselfish ministrations for others, there will spring up in herself sincere, generous sympathies, sound judgments, and cultivation of mind and spirit which will prove her best reward."

Do Not Refuse the Offer.

Never should the mother, through that foolish desire to keep her child as long as possible dependent upon her, or that worse pride which would show itself to be self-sufficient, refuse the proffered help of her child. If she is doing something in which, from the nature of things, she cannot share, let her be careful to substitute some other loving service while declining the one proffered, remembering that love turned away nourishes selfishness, and proffered help refused begets idleness.

She may have to say, "No, dear, you cannot help me to dress the baby," but she can add: "You may hand mamma the clothes."

The Answering of Letters.

Time was when men and women took letter writing very seriously, and sat down to the desk as if to an important task. The scrawls of the modern girl; her hasty dashing off of an epistle to catch a post; her dozen notes scribbled in hot haste and illegible penmanship, sealed with sprawling wax, and dismissed with a sigh of relief, would have filled a young woman of Jane Austin's day with unfeigned horror. Apart from the stilted style, affected by persons who had the courtliness of their period and its leisure, without the inborn grace of the raconteur who is of no period, but belongs to all time, the epistolary remains of the last century and of still earlier centuries, possess an interest which we shall vainly seek in the annals of our own day when we come to search for them in letters. Cowper, Mme. de Sevigne, Mary Mitford, the ladies of the Hare family, Mrs. Browning in a yesterday just past, and others, whose memoirs form part of our literary wealth, are good examples of the perfect letter.—Harper's Bazar.

A Charming Blouse.

There was worn at a smart "at home" the other day a charming blouse of rose pink silk muslin. There was no yoke at the back, although this blouse was really a transparent shirt worn over a slip bodice of pale green glace. The back and two fronts were filled in with six groups of tiny tucks, crossing each other diamond fashion, the spaces between the groups being filled in with large diamonds of delicate white lace, from beneath which the pink mousseline had been cut away. The sleeve was of the coat type, tucked all the way down, the tucks separated by straight rows of lace insertion. The tucked collar was unlined and showed the gleam of the green glace beneath it.

Are Labor Leaders.

Miss Martha M. Hohmann and Miss Marie Geiger have distinguished themselves as labor leaders in Cleveland. Miss Hohmann was recently nominated to the position of vice president of the Central Labor Union. Miss Hohmann is well educated, and an accomplished young woman. Miss Geiger was instrumental in organizing the Garment Workers' Union.

TWO LABOR LEADERS.

Ruined with Rouge.

A writer in the Louisville Daily News gives the girls this sensible hint: "If there is anything that makes me tired it is to see a pretty girl ruin her complexion with rouge and powder and kalsomine and other truck. I saw one at a summer opera the other night who made me rage. She was naturally a pretty girl and had a fine figure, but one forgot all about those things when he came close to her. The natural tintings of the flesh were not to be seen and the tender curve of the cheek was bedizened with rouge and paint, as were the pretty lips. I felt like taking that girl to a lagoon, dipping my handkerchief in the water there and giving her face a good old-fashioned scrubbing. No wonder so many girls have skin trouble. They rub enough stuff on their faces to kill any skin."

For Nervous Headache.

Sufferers from nervous headache seldom find any actual cure for their trouble, but there are certain remedies which alleviate the pain. Most of the so-called "headache powders" have a dangerous effect on weak hearts, and therefore cannot be recommended except in special cases. A safe and simple remedy for general use is to be found in horse radish. Scrape a little of the root, hold it in the hand a few minutes to warm it, and then snuff it energetically. The sensation for the moment is unpleasant, but it is worth while to endure a monetary twinge in order to secure immediate freedom from pain.

Pompadour with a Parting.

Need of Outdoor Exercise.

Let your children have plenty of outdoor exercise, especially in the evening. Wait until they are really sleepy before you send them to bed. Let every child have its own bedclothes. Vary the child's diet with the season. Let them avoid all greasy-made dishes when it is too warm to take much outdoor exercise.

Put fastenings in the placket in two places to prevent gaping and showing the underclothing.

Stiffening is now put in only four or five inches deep, cutting it straight if French hair cloth is used; but if linen, canvas or crinoline it must be cut bias.

Skirts are still made to touch in the front and sides, with quite a dip in the back, but have plaits at the waist line, rather than the perfectly plain effect. None of the new gowns are gathered at the back.

The finish for the bottom may be braid or velveteen, as one fancies; the first for looks and the latter for service. Braids should always be shrunken, and velveteen applied easy, so as not to draw up when it gets damp. When two bias seams come together a straight tape sewed along will prevent sagging at the bottom.

"THE WOMAN IN WHITE."

She Is Now the Wife of Mr. H. S. Sternberger of Cripple Creek.

"The Woman in White" is married. Recently the Iowa girl who so nearly prevented the nomination of William J. Bryan for the Presidency at the Chicago convention in 1896 became the wife of H. S. Sternberger, of Cripple Creek. Her maiden name was Minnie F. Murray.

MISS MURRAY.

Miss Murray was an editor and a Democrat. She was an enthusiastic partisan of ex-Governor Horace Boies, of Iowa, and supported him at all times through the medium of the Nashua (Iowa) Reporter, of which she was editor and part proprietor. In 1896, When Governor Boies had designs upon the Presidency, Miss Murray was so ardent in his behalf that she attended the Chicago convention and electioneered in his favor among the national delegates from one end of the great hall to the other.

On Saturday, July 10, the last day of the convention, after Bland's name had been turned down and before Bryan had become the dominant factor, Miss Murray could no longer contain herself. She saw an opportunity to gain an advantage for her favorite, and acted upon it without delay.

The convention had just adjourned for dinner. Not a delegate had left the hall. Miss Murray was seated in the balcony. She was dressed wholly in white. She waved a handkerchief and shouted the name of Boies.

In a minute she had attracted the attention of thousands of delegates and visitors. Every eye was fastened upon "The Woman in White." For a while nobody knew her name, but even the friends of other candidates shared the enthusiasm of the fair partisan, and shout after shout went up from the thousands of throats below. Louder and louder, and soon the streets of Chicago were resonant with the name of Horace Boies, of Iowa.

Had the convention then been in session it is more than likely that Horace Boies and not William J. Bryan would have been nominated for the Presidency.

TROLLEY CAR FUNERALS.

Threaten to Supplant Those of the Old Style in Chicago.

Trolley car funerals threaten to supplant the old style in Chicago. A saving of expense is one of the chief arguments in favor of the new plan. The undertakers dislike to give up the liberal commissions from livery establishments they once enjoyed, but popular feeling is too strong to withstand. It costs but $11 for a motor car and a trailer, with an extra charge of $8 for every additional car needed.

INTERIOR OF A FUNERAL CAR.

On the line of the Chicago Electric Traction Company, a special funeral car, the Virginia, is provided. It is dark-green in color. At each end is a vestibule, having a door in its front for the admission of the casket. In one of these vestibules the casket remains during the journey to the cemetery, screened from the rest of the car by heavy curtains. The car proper is richly furnished, and accommodates twenty persons.

The Calumet company has no special funeral car, but the back is removed from the seat of an ordinary motor car and on this the casket is placed. On either side of the casket the pall-bearers take their places while relatives and friends occupy the remaining seats. On the Calumet line, which covers a wide stretch of territory, south of 63d street, the number of trolley funerals sometimes reaches five a day. Arrangements with the undertakers in suburbs along the line are made by the company.

END OF A SPENDTHRIFT.

Lloyd Aspinwall, Man About Town and Squanderer of a Fortune.

Less than 50, but an old man in appearance, Floyd Aspinwall, once famous as a "sport," died at a New York hotel. For several years he had lived a retired life, because his means would allow no other kind, but there was a time when he equalled Berry Wall and Freddy Gebhardt. He was handsome, clever and rich. He set a pace that few could follow and that sent to the grave long ere he went, the few foolish young men who did go where he led.

Aspinwall's grandfather was a merchant prince of the metropolis—William H. Aspinwall. The son of this man was Gen. Lloyd Aspinwall, soldier and clubman, who left the spendthrift whose death is now chronicled an immense fortune fifteen years ago. The younger Lloyd Aspinwall took to yachts, fast horses, fancy drinks and handsome women and the combination proved as fatal to him as to hundreds of others. He was a favorite in society years ago and married beautiful Cornelia Lutton. She left him ere long and died two years ago, their daughter following her within a few days. One cause of the separation of Aspinwall and his wife was his fondness for Lillian Russell, when she was a Casino favorite.

LLOYD ASPINWALL.

A single survivor with a memory of youthful days called to see him on the day of his death and that was his brother.

HOLY MAN OF BENARES.

Dead After Many Years of Self-Imposed Suffering.

The famous Hindu holy man is dead. His name was Swami Bhaskarananda and he lived in the city of Benares. This devout Brahmin, who kept himself naked and self-immured, was visited by nearly all the Indian tourists during their stay at Benares, including the Prince of Wales. He spent his life in a rigid posture, giving no heed to his visitors and patiently waited for death in the holy city which, according to Hindu belief, means life everlasting.

Swami Bhaskarananda's whole life was devoted to one object—that of obtaining emancipation for the imprisoned spirit by such bodily austerities as he believed would annihilate its conscious connection with the body and with material things. To attain this end he forsook his kindred and turned his back upon society. He sought out a filthy cave and there sat in a painful posture of the body for many years. That there could be no greater martyrdom than that which this devotee chose for himself is attested by the fact that tourists in India were not content with viewing the Golden Temple, the shrine of the monkeys and the cesspools of the gods, but almost without exception directed their footsteps to the cell of the heathen saint seeking reunion with God. Even Christian martyrology tells no more pathetic tale of the sacrifice of the body to save the soul.

HOLY MAN'S POSTURE FOR YEARS.

DR. JOACHIM.

Recently Celebrated the 60th Anniversary of His Debut as a Violinist.

Dr. Joseph Joachim, who recently celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his debut as a violinist and was signally honored at Berlin, is not so old as his long career would lead one to believe. Joachim, it must be remembered, came before the public, like Rubinstein, when he was a child. He is now 68 years old. He was born in Hungary and studied music at Vienna under Joseph Boehm. Later he was under the care of David and of Moritz Hauptmann. His first visit to Paris was in 1850, by which time, although he was only 19 years of age, he was already celebrated. In the same year, while still in his teens, Joachim was appointed director of the concerts at Weimar, and three years subsequently master of the Chapel Royal at Hanover. His title of musical doctor was conferred upon him by the University of Cambridge in 1877. Although his fame is chiefly due to his rare mastery as an instrumentalist, Joachim is a composer of the Schumann school. In 1882 he was appointed conductor of the Royal Academy of Music at Berlin and musical director of the Royal Academy of Arts. Oxford has given him her degree of doctor of civil law.

DR. JOSEPH JOACHIM.

The Advantage of One Eye.

During the late Spanish-American war a certain old colonel who had lost an eye at the battle of Gettysburg was very indignant because he was put aside as physically incapacitated, when he applied for admission to one of the New York volunteer regiments.

Filled with wrath and chagrin, the Colonel journeyed to Washington, bent on having a personal interview with the President. He succeeded in gaining an audience, and the President, after listening to his plea, said kindly:

"But, my good Colonel J., you have only one eye!"

"Just so, sir," was the prompt rejoinder; "but can't you see the great advantage of my having only one eye? When I aim my gun I sha'n't have to close the other!"

He fought at Santiago.—Youth's Companion.

Zebra Culture.

On several South African farms experiments have been tried with Burchell's zebra. The zebras become as tame as ponies, and are readily broken in for draft work. The object of their tamers has been to breed a mule which, like the zebra, is proof against the tsetse fly. The zebras themselves run well enough in a mule team, though they cannot stand over-driving.

The summer girl should not extend her gadding beyond the age of twenty.

PREHISTORIC MAN.

He Had a Third Eye on the Top of the Head.

Deep researches as to the structure of the human body have recently furnished some startling facts regarding changes which man is at present undergoing physically.

It is believed that man was formerly endowed with more teeth than he possesses now. Abundant evidence exists that, ages and ages ago, human teeth were used as weapons of defense. Unintentionally traces of such use are often revealed by a sneer. The teeth are sometimes bared, dog-like, ready, as it were, for action.

The practice of eating our food cooked and the disuse of teeth as weapons are said to be responsible for the degeneration that is going on. The wisdom teeth, in fact, are disappearing. Human jaws, found in reputed Palaeolitic deposits have wisdom teeth with crowns as large, if not larger, than the remaining molars.

In ancient times a short-sighted soldier or hunter was almost an impossibility; to-day a whole nation is afflicted with defective vision. It is almost certain that man once possessed a third eye, by means of which he was enabled to see above his head. The human eyes formerly regarded the world from the two sides of the head. They are even now gradually shifting to a more forward position.

In the dim past the ear-flap was of great service in ascertaining the direction of sounds, and operated largely in the play of the features. But the muscles of the ear have fallen into disuse, for the fear of surprise by enemies no longer exists.

Again, our sense of smell is markedly inferior to that of savages. That it is still decreasing is evidenced by observations of the olfactory organ. But the nose still indicates a tendency to become more prominent.

Color Your Own Pictures.

Some of our amateur photographers may be interested in learning an easy way of coloring a photograph nicely without having first taken lessons in drawing or painting. This is the method: After you have printed your photograph, and before you mount it on cardboard, hold it against the window, placing the picture side toward the glass; then sketch clearly on the back of the picture the outlines of the parts to be colored. When this is completed place the picture side of the photograph against a blotter and apply the desired colors to the back of the picture, keeping within the sketched outlines. Then prepare a mixture consisting of ten parts benzine and one part raseline, and pour this over the photograph, rubbing it thoroughly into the paper with the finger. Do this on the face and back of the picture. After the picture has become transparent through this process let it stand for an hour or two, then dry it with a cloth and mount it on cardboard. The color will show clearly.

Worse than a Dentist.

There is in Toledo a young grocery clerk who would like to meet the inventor of the self-coiling string-holder. That man is responsible for the grocery clerk's undoing.

The clerk got into the habit years ago of biting off the string instead of breaking it, after tying bundles. Naturally his teeth protested against the practice. At length they gave up and wore out.

He bought false teeth. Before he fairly got acquainted with them, so to speak, the patent string-holder was established in the store. Then, as fate would have it, a young woman whom he secretly admired came in to buy five pounds of sugar.

With the activity of an anxious lover he made up the package and tied it. Then, according to his old custom, he bent forward and severed the string with his teeth.

But he forgot the holder, and he did not realize the end of the cord had wedged itself between two of his new teeth—until, as the spring rolled up the slack, his "plate" was hoisted from his mouth and triumphantly waved aloft at the end of the string.

Bad Postures in Sitting.

Physicians who teach physical culture assert that it is not the ice water we drink, nor the soda water, nor the amount of smoking that men folk indulge in, that causes us to be a nation of dyspeptics, but the bad postures that we adopt when sitting. A correct attitude in sitting requires proper height and width of seat, a desk or table of the proper height when desk work is required, and a proportionate amount of care upon the part of the pupil to sit upon his seat in a proper position. The relation of the person to the seat should be such that while the hips and shoulders touch the back of the seat, the other portions of the back remain clear. The center of the back can not touch the back of the seat without relaxation of the muscles and resulting flatness of the chest, and perhaps of the stomach, provided, of course, the seat has a backward curvature.

Death Mask of Ingersoll.

Taken from the plaster cast made just after death.

Travel in Dancing.

An average waltz takes a dancer over about three-quarters of a mile, a square dance makes him cover half a mile. A girl with a well-filled program travels thus in one evening: Twelve waltzes, nine miles; four other dances at half a mile apiece, which is hardly a fairly big estimate, two miles more; the intermission stroll, and the trips to the dressing-room to renovate her gown and complexion, half a mile; grand total, eleven and a half miles.

AUBURN WEEKLY COURIER.

OFFICIAL PAER OF DeKALB COUNTY

JAMES A. BARNS, Editor.

Registered at the Auburn, Indiana, postoffice as second-class matter.

THURSDAY.....AUGUST 24, 1899.

Meese Reunion Expenses.

We have heard of one or two people who believe Rev. W. L. Meese made money out of his reunions. Well, we wish he could, for it costs him a great deal of time and trouble. But he don't make; he loses. Last year the expense exceeded the receipts by $20; this year, by $25. Last year he was allowed to pay the excess out of his own slender purse. This should not be allowed this year. Surely there are couples enough in the association as well as other friends who will see to it that he does not have to stand this expense all alone. He managed very carefully. There was a large stand to be erected, some water closets, a well was driven for drinking and for watering teams, a band was hired and all this, though carefully managed, cost $30. The collection taken up to date is exactly $5. He should have the difference made up to him.

At Tamarac Church.

There will be an ice cream festival August 12, at 7 p. m. only 5 cents being the charge for both cream and cake. All the proceeds go to the church.

Also, there will be quarterly meeting there Sept. 9 and 10. The preaching is by Rev. Row, Saturday evening Sunday forenoon at 10:30, afternoon at 3, and 7:30 in the evening. All are invited.

Weekly Sentinels.

We gave nearly two years of Daily Sentinels to our Daily COURIER subscribers. Now, we are going to give one year's subscription to the Weekly Indianapolis Sentinel to our Weekly subscribers, free. So, when it comes, read it, show it to your neighbors, and tell them how they can do likewise.

CEDAR.

Calvin Heitz retuned from Chicago last week where he had underwent an operation for rupture.

Phil Holman will return to school at Valparaiso in about two weeks.

Wm. C. Kitchen went to Niagara Falls on the excursion last week.

Our merchant, O. C. Himes, informs us that he has given up the idea of selling out here and going to Kalamazoo to engage in business and will be found here at the old stand with an increased stock for winter where he will be pleased to meet his old customers, also many new ones with prices as low as the lowest, quality considered.

H. L. Hauser is still numbered with the sick.

Considerable cider is being made in this part of the country this fall which is something that has not been done for several years.

Many from here attended the Sunday school picnic at Swan, Ind., on Sunday last.

Mrs. O. C. Himes called on friends at Kalamazoo last week.

Mr. Lancaster of Columbia City loaded a car load of oats here the first of the week.

Several of our citizens Sundayed at Stoner's dam last Sunday.

J. W. Kenton has joined the graders gang at Garrett, Ind.

The Appetite of a Goat

Is envied by all poor dyspeptics whose Stomach and Liver are out of order. All such should know that Dr. King's New Life Pills, the wonderful Stomach and Liver Remedy, gives a splendid appetite, sound digestion and a regular bodily habit that insures perfect health and great energy. Only 25 cents at any drugstore.

FAIRFIELD CENTER.

Mrs. Wm. Lehman is visiting relatives in Buffalo, N. Y.

Prof. E. L. Bower returned to his home in LaAnse, Mich., Saturday.

Mrs. Daisy Shattoo visited friends here Sunday.

Rev. Campbell preached at this place Sunday.

Geo. Reincehl is visiting friends in Eastern Illinois.

Miss Helen Gardner of Sturgis, Mich., is visiting in this place.

Mrs. E. Gonser of Ashley and her son Jacob of Morenci, Mich., were the guests of J. B. Bower and family Sunday.

The C. E. of this place will hold a rally in a grove near here on Saturday, Sept. 9. Good speaking; good music. Everybody invited. Don't forget the date.

LIVERITA
THE UP-TO-DATE
LITTLE LIVER PILL
CURES
Biliousness, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Sick-Headache and Liver Complaint.
SUGAR COATED.
40 PILLS LIVERITA 10 CENTS
100 PILLS 25 CTS.
Sold by all druggists or sent by mail.
Laverita Medical Co., Chicago
Davenport, The Druggist.

"Brown's in Town."

Theater-goers will be in a position to pass unbiased judgment on the new farce, "Brown,s in Town" next Saturday evening, Aug. 26, at Henry's opera house. Many of the situations in the new farce are declared new and original and it is said that the error of slapdash and knock-about has been avoided. "Brown" visited the small villages of Honeysuckle Lodge, because, while he is about to enjoy his honeymoon with his young and beautiful wife, whom he has secretly married, a host of friends and relatives visit the same place. Their coming and going, and the fact that Brown tries to keep his marriage a secret, make the story of the play. The cast is an excellent one, and a few of the members are Mark Swan, Jessie Mae Hall, Maude Knowlton, Monica Lee, C. Horn, W. Cullison and others.

Free of Charge.

Any adult suffering from a cold settled on the breast, bronchitis, throat or lung troubles of any nature, who will call on O. P. Raber, Corunna, will be presented with a sample bottle of Boschee's German Syrup, free of charge. Only just one bottle given to one person, and none to children without order from parents.

No throat or lung remedy ever had such a sale as Boschee's German Syrup in all parts of the civilized world. Twenty years ago millions of bottles were given away, and your druggists will tell you its success was marvelous. It is really the only Throat and Lung Remedy generally endorsed by physicians. One 75 cent bottle will cure or prove its value. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. 2

NOTICE.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on two 25 cent bottles or boxes of Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, if it fails to cure constipation, billiousness, sick-headache, jaundice, loss of appetite, sour stomach, dyspepsia, liver complaint, or any of the diseases for which it is recommended. It is highly recommended as a spring tonic and blood purifier. Sold liquid in bottles, and tablets in boxes. Price 25 cents for either. One package of either guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. E. M. FISCHLER, F. E. DAVENPORT, HOWARD MCCORD.

Attention, Farmers.

The Auburn Handle Factory will pay the highest cash prices for ash handle block delivered at their factory on the Lake Shore tracks, cut 58 inches long. Also want ash logs cut 9½, 14½ and 19½ feet long. All timber to be smooth and sound.—J. M. CHERRY & CO. 32tf

In the Philippines.

Each American soldier in the Philippines is provided with two full suits of khaki, two white duck suits, an unlined blouse, a pair of kersey trousers, a campaign hat, a cork helmet, a pair of leggings, one pair of barrack and one of russet shoes, and both wool and cotton underwear.

House and Lot for Sale.

One lot on south side of east Seventh street with small building on premises, formerly used for paint shop Inquire of George Braun at Hebel's meat market, Auburn, Ind.

POSTPONED.

The dedication of the Lockwood church will not take place on the date expected, but will be postponed. The date will be advertised in due time.

English Spoken Here.

It is said that Spanish business houses are selling out in Manila and English firms are buying. That means that the sign, "English spoken here," is going up to stay.

Seed Wheat

I have a quantity of Winter King seed wheat for sale. It is free from rye or foul seed. Call at my farm 1½ miles north of Newville.—WORTH COATS. 31-39

According to Their Understanding.

The Maid—I found a four-leaved clover this morning. There is an old saying that the finder will be married within a year. The Bachelor—Indeed! I was under the impression that the finding of a four-leaved clover was an omen of good luck!

NOTICE

After August 15, Ruhl & Baker, Auburn, Ind., will run their cider mill every day except Sunday. Bring on your apples. RUHL & BAKER.

Nutritive Value of Fish.

According to chemical analysis fifteen parts of the flesh of fish have about the same nutritive value as twelve parts of boneless beef.

FOR SALE.

For sale at reasonable price one 45 ft. power windmill with new force pump, tank, piping, etc. For information call at Hollister House, Auburn, Ind.

Ink on Furniture.

To remove ink spots from furniture wipe them with oxalic acid, let it stand for a few minutes, then rub well with a cloth wet with warm water.

Give it a Trial.

It will surprise you. It will restore the life and beauty to your hair, stops dandruff and the hair from falling out Beggs' Hair renewer. H. B. McCord's.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Monday's Daily.

The first ship load or clothing and provisions has been sent to the sufferers from the big storm in Porto Rico.

Chas. A. Bookwalter, formerly of Fort Wayne, was on Saturday nominated by the republicans of Indianapolis for mayor.

A small force of our men had a fight with Filipinos Saturday and defeated them, but we lost one valuable man, a lieutenant named, Drew, of the 12th regulars.

After we learned the great loss of life on Porto Rico in the hurricane, comes news that about 300 were killed by the same storm on the island of Andros, one of the Bahamas.

A man who boasts he shot Dreyfus' attorney, has been arrested. But it is believed he is insane, and is not the man. Col. Picquart who saw the shooting and chased the assassin, says this does not look at all like the man.

Hudson City, Alabama, is the only exclusive negro town in the United States. It is three miles from Anniston, has 100 houses, 400 people, three churches, a school house, several stores but no saloons. No white man is a citizen.

A queer accident happened at Iron Mountain, Mich., a few days ago. Two men were drowned near the bridge and a heavy charge of dynamite was exploded directly under the bridge, in order to raise the bodies. But it blew up the bridge, which was 80 feet above, doing a good deal of damage and delaying trains.

The commission in charge of the great Ship canal from Chicago to the Mississippi river is sanguine that the canal will be made. Their reports are all favorable. Then going east, they propose to use the great lakes as far as Buffalo, then make a ship canal around Niagara Falls on the American side to Olcott, then in Lake Ontario to Oswego, then across New York state, via Lake Oneida to Albany.

Walter Wellman, the leader of the latest artic exploring expedition, has returned to Tomsoe in the north of Norway. He had found several new islands or bodies of land near or connected with Franz Josef Land, that had never before been discribed. He also visited a winter station established by the exriorer, Nansen, when he passed there Nansen had left two men in charge. One had died, and the other had cared for his body all the time since. Mr. Wellman had his legs badly injured, compelling him to come home. But he did not get nearer to the North Pole than others have been.

Tuesday's Daily.

A company has been formed at Indianapolis for quick parcel delivery. They say there is money in it.

Officers at Ft. Sheridan, near Chicago, examined the guard house Sunday and found the prisoners had got a key to the store room and secured a lot of razors and some arms. They were going to fight their way out.

While Prof. Baugher was attempting to make a balloon ascension at Bremen Saturday, a dangling rope caught in the top of a school house, tearing his parachute loose. The parachute failed to open, and he fell 200 feet into a crowd of spectators. He may not live, and one man he struck is seriously injured.

Sunday was a bad day in France, especially in Paris, where there was serious rioting all day. The police had hard work to secure quiet, and then not till several persons were injured, two or three churches were injured and other property destroyed. The leaders were arrested, but even now, there is a feeling of danger yet to come.

The Mexican army and the Yaqui Indians were only a few miles apart, when the last messenger came away, and it is believed that by this time a battle has been fought. The Indians have good arms, and as they number nearly 1000 warriors, they may make a hard struggle. It has been some years since Mexico had a serious war with the Indians. And it is only the tribes in the north that make trouble. The great body of Mexican Indians became regular citizens, got mixed up with the Spaniards, and now the very soldiers who are fighting the Yaquis, are mostly Indians or half Indian.

He Fooled The Surgeons.

All doctors told Renic Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on Earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25 cents a box. Sold by H. B. McCord, druggist.

HUMPHREYS'
WITCH HAZEL
OIL
CURES
Piles or Hemorrhoids
Fissures & Fistulas.
Burns & Scalds.
Wounds & Bruises.
Cuts & Sores.
Boils & Tumors.
Eczema & Eruptions.
Salt Rheum & Tetters.
Chapped Hands.
Fever Blisters.
Sore Lips & Nostrils.
Corns & Bunions.
Stings & Bites of Insects.
Three Sizes, 25c, 50c. and $1.00.
Sold by druggists, or sent post-paid on receipt of price
HUMPHREYS' MED. CO., 111 & 113 William St., New York.

ST. JOE.

F. Barney is still on the sick list.

M. F. Body after a week's illness is out again.

S. L. Widney has so far recovered from his broken limb as to get down town on crutches.

S. S. Widney and sister Cora returned Friday after an absence of a week in Defiance, Ohio.

Mac Leighty, wife, daughter and Mrs. Yarnell took their annual outing at Hamilton lake Monday and Tuesday.

Joe Hull and wife, Frank Pence and wife, Will Hollabaugh and wife and a number of others whose names we did not learn took in the sights at Robison Park last Sunday.

The lumber yards at this place owned by Case & Culbertson have been doing a rushing business for the past ten days. Last Friday, teams from one mile south of Mark Center, Ohio, hauled away at one time over six thousand feet of lumber besides a big bill of nails, glass and other material. Low prices and fair dealing are bound to come to the front.

The William Knight ditch over which there has been so much litigation during the last five years, is now being dug. The contractor, Mr. Ollvet, having a gang of men at work for the past ten days.

Our town was nearly depopulated last Saturday, all going to the picnic at St. Joe's suburban town, only a few of the older ones remaining in town. Jake Sechler, Chas. Bartlett, Grandpa Leighty and J. H. Abel staid at home for the purpose of keeping watch of our sidewalk that leads to the B. & O. station.

Esquire G. W. Bartlett has a serious attack of hay fever. No fatal results are apprehended.

Last winter when there was so much being said and done about the incorporation of our town, the opponents of incorporation were told that if we were incorporated our citizens would commence to improve at once, that all side walks would be laid to a grade and that we would have a walk to the depot. Well the matter stands about thus: A surveyor was engaged, grade stakes stuck (iron ones so they would last) and everything started out in fine shape. But the very first walk put down failed to go to grade and all who have put down walks since have paid no attention to the grade adopted, and the walk to the depot is simply a disgrace to this or any other town. All kinds of plans have been talked of to get a new walk. The latest one we hear of is to tax the property of all the town except perhaps the B. & O. to build a walk; another plan is to build one by subscription, but where will we get the subscribers. The fact remains that a walk we must have; the only plan we have heard approved of is to compel the B. & O. people to build their own walks the same as common people, or say we can't. Oh, ye of such great faith in the incorporation, come forth now and show your faith by the work you were to do.

HUMBUGS

are they who tell you other cough syrups are just as good as Beggs' Cherry Cough Syrup. If you can not get it from your druggist notify usat once and on receipt of 25 cents we will send you a bottle. Guaranteed. McCord's.

WEST WILMINGTON.

Grandma Pifer died at the home of her son Levi, August 17, having nearly reached her 88th year. Funeral services were held at Dillon chapel by her pastor, Rev. Snyder. He spoke from the words, "Mary has chosen the better part," which text was chosen by the deceased, after which she was laid beside her husband who died over twenty years ago.

Rev. Weaver and wife of Elgin, O., are visiting relatives here.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Elsworth Eakright, Saturday, a ten-pound boy.

Mrs. Briston of Tolono, Ill., Mrs. Heller of Fort Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pifer of Angola were called here by the death of their mother.

The South Wilmington Sunday school convention held at Mt. Pleasant last Sabbath was well attended.

Madden Bros. completed the Jacob Ginder monument last week. It is the finest monument in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Mrs. Jennie Barton of Bobo is spending a couple of weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Metcalf.

Moudy & Son hulled thirty-one bushels of clover seed for Jacob Obendorf one day last week.

The ladies of South Wilmington are thinking of holding a ladies Sunday school convention soon, so the men can have all the time at the regular convention to air their pet theories.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

is easily cured by the use of Beggs' Diarrhœa Balsam; it is safe and sure. H. B. McCord's drug store.

CONCORD.

Martha George and Mrs. Sam George spent Sunday with Mr. Neff's family.

Dennis Poorman has bought property in Concord from George Johnson.

Cal. Olinger and wife spent Sunday with her father, G. W. Morr and also Mrs. Adam Carper.

George Morr went to Michigan Tuesday to spend a few days with his son Noah and other friends.

Tom Morr and wife spent Sunday at Garrett with Will Pence and family and also his sister Celia.

H. Criss and wife spent Sunday at Is. Layman's and had a good time eating melons.

OBITUARY.

Elizabeth Whetzel was born in Stark county, Ohio, Feb. 23, 1847, and died at her home in Sedan, Aug. 14, 1899, aged fifty-two years, six months and eleven days. In 1870 she was united in marriage to Frederick Rohm, and to this union was born three children. After the death of Mr. Rohm she was united in marriage to Wm. Boorom, and to this union was born one child. In March 1883, she was united in marriage to Martin Whetzel to which union was born three children. Mr. Whetzel had also been twice married, having seven children by the two unions.

Mrs. Whetzel leaves to mourn her, a husband, seven children, eleven grandchildren, five brothers and four sisters and a great many friends. She has been a member of the Lutheran church since about the age of sixteen to which church she remained a faithful member till death. The funeral was Aug. 16, at the church in Sedan, services by Rev. J. D. Brosy and Rev. E. E. Campbell.

Mr. Whetzel and all the children desire to thank their kind neighbors for help and sympathy in their hour of sorrow.

OBITUARY.

Helen Adell, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Miser was born in Auburn Sept. 21 1897, and departed this life last Friday morning, August 17 1899, at the age of 1 year, 10 month and 26 days. Thus in the very dawning of the morning of life, while yet the rose of innocence was on her cheeks, that her little spirit was wafted to the bosom of Jesus on bright angels wings. The death of little Helen, tho' sad, is yet a hopeful event: for in death she escaped the stern realities of life, and is forever free the heart aches, sorrows and sins of this world. In death she gained the Saviour. Tho' absent from her earthly home, she still lives, and lives to die no more. To the sorrowing parents this comforting thought remains, that she has gone on before and in a little while you shall meet her again, if faithful unto death. Then weep not as those who have no faith.

Helen leaves to mourn her death father and mother, 3 grandparents, besides many other friends. The funeral service was conducted from the home on South VanBuren street yesterday at 3 p. m. Interment in Woodlawn cemetery. J. D. Brosy officiating.

Probate Cause No. 5451.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss. In the DeKalb Circuit Court, October Term, 1899.

Burton Shutt, George Shutt and Victor Shutt, heirs of Jacob M. Shutt, deceased, impleaded with others, are hereby notified that Andrew J. Shutt, as administrator with the will annexed of the estate of John Shutt, deceased, has filed in the circuit court of DeKalb county, state of Indiana, a petition making them defendants thereto, and praying thereto for an order and decree of said court authorizing the partition and sale of certain real estate belonging to the estate of said decedent and in said petition described, to make assets for the payment of the debts and liabilities of said estate; and that said petition, so filed and which is now pending, is set for hearing in said circuit court, at the court house in Auburn, Indiana, on the 16th day of October, 1899.

Witness, the Clerk and seal of said court this 23d day of August, 1899.

MICHAEL F. LONG,
[SEAL.] Clerk DeKalb Circuit Court.
Baxter & Brown, Att'ys.

Notice to Non-Residents.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss. In the DeKalb Circuit Court, October Term, 1899.

Lydia A. Burch and J. D. Burch, her husband, are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court to cancel deed and quiet title to real estate by George H. McConnell and that the same will be heard and determined on the 16th day of October, 1899, being the 13th juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences October 2d, 1899.

Witness, the Clerk of said court this 17th day of August, 1899.

MICHAEL F. LONG, Clerk.
D. M. Link and F. S. Roby, Atty's.

BUTLER.

The canning factory opened up for business last Saturday with eighty five women operatives present; molasses was nowhere.

Frank Thiel is improving slowly from an attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. William Blair is reported slightly improved.

J. A. Campbell visited Spencerville and vicinity on business last Monday.

David Steward, wife and two daughters are intending to see the sights at Niagara this week.

The Petoskey excursion bids fair to be well patronized.

A nephew of John Wilson's from near Payne, Ohio, is visiting with him.

The tomato crop does not promise much of a yield.

Wheat and oats in this vicinity are a much better crop than was anticipated. Corn is nearly out of sight; potatoes entirely so.

Genuine Self-Control.

While the distinguished artist was showing his paintings to his guests Bob sat at his mother's elbow rather bored, but quite silent, as became a boy of 7 years. At length a spring landscape—brilliantly and wonderfully impressionistic—was placed against the easel. Bob clapped his hand to his mouth. "Oh!" he gasped, "I very nearly said what I thought." "What was that, Bob?" asked the artist. Bob shook his head stoutly. "I think maybe you would like it better if I thought again!" said he.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

"SOROSIS"
THE
New Shoe for Women!
$3.50 ONE PRICE TO ALL THE WORLD $3.50
A Perfect Shoe at a Fair Price
And the Best Shoe at Any Price!
They Are Made on Anatomical Lines
They Fit the Foot, The Eye, and the Purse

Save One-Half of Your Shoe Bill by Wearing Them!
Call at Bishop & Beidler's and They Will Be Pleased to show Them to You.
See Our Opening Sale Window
Bisohp & Beidler,
Exclusive Agents. AUBURN, IND.

Summer Comforts!
There is no time in the year that the COMFORTS of the KITCHEN are more highly appreciated than during the months of July and August. We suggest as one of theses pecial comforts,
GASOLINE STOVES
We have a nice line of them which we are offering at special inducements
We have as good a line of REFRIGERATORS as there is made—some people say they are the best. We recommend them as ice savers, easy to keep clean and pure, as well as ornamental. The....
REFRIGERATOR
is another of our special summer comforts which we place within your reach.
While Gasoline Stoves and refrigerators are important factors in summer comforts, yet
Screen Doors and Windows are as important as the others. Don't think it is too late to buy them. It is just the time you need them most. We have a large line of paints, varnishes and painters supplies.
Headquarters for Plumbing Goods,
PIONEER HARDWARE STORE.

Electrophotomicrography!
Is the longest word pertaining to photography, but the object of this space is to call your attention the elegant display of Portraits in our window. Don't miss them.
Lybarger, Artist.

Henry's Opera House
J. C. HENRY, Prop. and Mgr.
Saturday Eve. Aug. 26
ONE NIGHT ONLY!

The Great Farce Comedy Play,
Brown's In Town
SeatS on sale at Davenport's Store

IDEAL MUSIC,
"Sweet as the angel Israfil's,
When every leaf on Eden's tree
Was trembling to his minstrelsy."
can be produced from an EBERSOLE PIANO. The Ebersole possesses a tone that no other maker has been able to imitate—being full and deep, yet with that clear singing quality which stamps it the peer of all upright pianos for homes of culture and refinement.
Frank B. Long,
119 Calhoun St. cor Washington,
Fort Wayne, Ind.

William's Kidney Pills
Has no equal in diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Have you neglected your Kidneys? Have you ove worked your nervous system and caused trouble with your Kidneys and Bladder? Have you pains in the loins, side, back, groins and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, especially under the eyes? Too frequent desire pass urine? William's Kidney Pills will impart new life to the diseased organs, tone up the system and make a new man of you. By mail 50 cents per box.
WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props., Cleveland, O.
Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Prevents baldness and hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

SPECIALS FOR AUGUST

.....At the Big Dry Goods Store.

SHIRT WAISTS

Stylish waists—all of them, but the season is waning and they must go. A great opportunity for belayted buyers that won't last long at the prices.

One lot of about three dozen, most all sizes; neat patterns; good values at 50c. To clear them out quickly we mark them.... 18c

What is left of our 75c line of white pique; colored percale and Madras—all this season's goods; strictly up-to date styles, at. 49c

All $1.00 and $1.50 values to be cleared out at 79c.

MUSLIN UNDERWEAR

Our sales in this line have been phenomina', people know a good thing when they see it. The quality and prices speak for themselves. We are closing out one line consisting of Children's Misses' and Ladies' Gowns, Ladies' Skirts and Drawers at 25 per cent. less than our usual low price. It will pay you to investigate.

MILLINERY

Sailor Hats—about one dozen of them. Two weeks ago they sold readily at $1.00 and $1.25. Yours to choose now at 50c, but be early or you are liable to be disappointed.

Have you seen the Stylish Golf Hats. We have them in the fine quality Wool and French Felt with folded silk band and rosette; fine long quill. Very swell, and the prices are less than you would expect to pay.

WRAPPERS

You cannot afford to make wrappers when you can buy them ready to wear at our prices.

Up to-date well made Percale Wrappers worth 75c, some stores ask even more than that price. Here this week at..... 49c

The $1.00 ones go at 73c while they last.

WOMENS' NECKWEAR

A fortunate chance awaits those of you who have need for neck dressing. Some of the dantiest creations of the season await you here with prices crually cut.

GOLF CAPES

You will think it is early perhaps, but we have sold some already. The cool evenings demand them. The styles are very attractive and we have priced them low for the early autumn trade. Would be glad to have you see them.

As the fashions bloom you can see every petal of newness unfold at the Big Store.

G. W. LACKEY,
Auburn, Ind.

WABASH

GOING EAST.

No. 2	6:25 am	Daily
No. 8	8:34 am	Daily
No. 4	4:59 pm	Daily
No. 70 (local freight)	2:05 pm	ex Su
No. 96	11:35 am	ex Su
No. 98	8:30 pm	ex Su

GOING WEST.

No. 1	10:21 am	Daily
No 9	5:30 am	Daily
No. 3	7:48 am	Daily
No. 71 (local freight)	9:15 am	ex Su
No. 95	6:02 pm	ex Su
No. 97	7:52 am	ex Su

All these trains stop for passengers.
For rates, tickets, time tables, etc. apply to
I. M. ZENT, Agent, Auburn, Ind
Chas. M. Hays, V. Pres. and Gen'l Manager.
C. S. Crane, Gen'l Pass'r and Ticket Agent

B. & O. R. R.

Schedule In Effect Nov. 22 '98
Leaves Auburn Junction.

WEST BOUND.

No. 3 Express, to Garrett only	8:58 p m
No. 5 Daily	4:20 a m
No. 7 Daily	4:17 p m
No. 17 Daily Except Suday	12:26 p m
No. 47	1:58 a m

EAST BOUND.

No. 4 Express	4:30 a m
No. 6 Daily	8:05 p m
No. 8 Daily	2:35 p m
No 14 Daily	11:17 p m
No 12, Daily, except Sunday	11:08 a m

F. D. UNDERWOOD, General Manager,
O. R. MARTIN, Manager of Passenger Traffic.
G. H. YOUNG, Auburn Junction, Ind
THOS. H. SPROTT CHAS. H. KNAPP

L. S. & M. S. R. R.

TIME TABLE—in Effect June 25 1899.

TRAINS GOING NORTH.

Stations	Mail	Exp'ss	Fre'gt
Fort Wayne	11 45 am	4 45 pm	5 55 am
New Era	12 12 pm	5 08	6 40
Auburn Junction	12 25	5 21	7 10
Auburn	12 29	5 25	7 35
Waterloo	12 41	5 36	8 15
Summit	12 51	5 46	8 35
Steubenville	12 54	5 49
Pleasant Lake	1 03	6 56	8 56
Angola	1 13	6 06	9 35
Jackson	3 25	8 25	2 40

TRAINS GOING SOUTH.

Stations	Fre'gt	Exp'ss	Mail
Jackson dp	5 45 am	11 45 am	6 15 am
Angola	11 00	2 19 pm	8 44
Pleasant Lake	11 35	2 29	8 55
Steubenville	.....	2 32	9 10
Summit	11 50	2 39	9 04
Waterloo	12 41 pm	2 55	9 22
Auburn	1 20	3 05	9 33
Auburn Junction	1 35	3 08	9 35
New Era	1 54	3 18	9 46
Fort Wayne	2 50	3 50	10 02

For rates on tickets or freight to all points call on or address E. T. DeLAPP, Agent Auburn.

PILES Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is prepared for Piles and Itching of the private parts. Every box is warranted. By druggists, by mail on receipt of price. 50 cents and $1.00. WILLIAMS MANUFACTURING CO., Props. Cleveland, Ohio. Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED
ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY Notice in "Inventive Age" Book "How to obtain Patents" FREE
Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

R. R. EXCURSIONS

B & O R.R.

LOW RATE EXCURSION TO SANDUSKY VIA B & O. R. R.

On Sunday, August, 27 the B. & O. will sell excursion tickets to Sandusky Ohio at rate of $1.00 for the round trip. Train leaves Auburn Junction at 4:30 a. m. Returning leaves Sandusky at 6:00 p. m.

THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT G. A. R., PHILADELPHIA, PA., SEPTEMBER 4 TO 9.

Tickets will be sold at very low rates from all points on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad west of the Ohio river on September 1, 2, 3 and 4, good returning until September 12, inclusive, except that by deposit of ticket with the joint agent at Philadelphia between September 5 and 9, and on payment of fee of cents, return limit may be extended until September 30.

Every soldier knows the connection of the Baltimore & Ohio with the civil war. There are so many points of interest on and about its lines that special stop-overs and side trips have been arranged for the accommodation of visitors to the Philadelphia encampment.

For further information call on or address nearest Baltimore & Ohio ticket agent, or B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

C & N-W Ry

$31.50 COLORADO AND RETURN.

Chicago & North-Western Railway, September 5, 6 and 7; $31.50 from Chicago to Denver, Pueblo and Colorado Springs and return, good to return until September 30, 1899. The "Colorado Special" leaves Chicago 10:00 a. m. daily, arrives Denver 2:55 next day and Colorado Springs same evening, only one night enroute. All meals in the dining cars. Pacific Express leaves Chicago 10:30 p. m. daily, arrives Denver and Colorado Springs the second morning, no change of cars either train. For particulars apply to agents of connecting lines or

A. H. Waggener, 6 Jackson place, Indianapolis, Ind. 34 35

L. S. R. R.

CHEAP EXCURSION TO PHILADELPHIA.

On September 1, 2, 3 and 4 the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway will sell excursion tickets to Philadelphia, Pa., at greatly redued rates, good returning until September 30, account National Encampment G. A. R. Full particulars from ticket agents, or by writing A. J. Smith, G. P. and T. A., Cleveland, O. 35.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Monday's Daily.

—About 200 men are at work on the sewers now.

—Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Hoffman have returned from a week's visit at Chicago.

—Chas. A. Schaab is in Chicago this week buying goods for Schaab Bros.' big store.

—Editor Strayer and wife came over from Ashley to see "A Breezy Time" Saturday evening.

—The Sodan flower park is closed for the season, as Mr. Haines will be away the rest of the summer.

—When you go to buy bluing insist upon having, Russ' Bleaching Blue and none of the many imitations. 35

—FOR SALE—or will trade for town property, one heavy draft Norman stallion. Call on A. D. Moore, Moores, DeKalb county, Ind. 32 34

—Mrs. Bell, wife of the Lake Shore agent at the Junction, is visiting at Liberty, Jackson county, Mich. Mr. Bell will join her the last of the week.

—Dr. Broughton of Waterloo has recently taken a course of study on the eye and is now prepared to do business as a scientific optician. Read his notice.

—Dr. Baxter writes from his old home, that his brother is no better and there is only bare hope for his life. Two other brothers who are physicians are also with him.

—J. E. Rose, wife and daughter Laura started Saturday for Minneapolis where they will visit two or three weeks with the families of Judge Best, Sinclair Best and other relatives.

—At a public sale on the streets of Goshen the other day a horse, buggy and harness sold for $9.75. With that kind of prices in vogue horse-stealing will soon go out of fashion.

—Rev. Ernest formerly pastor of a church at Lawrenceburg, Ind., is now running a saloon in Cincinnati, wearing his preacher coats, buttoned up to his throat. He is evidently crazy.

"Foley's Kidney Cure has been tested and to be all you claim for it. I have been giving it to my father and it is the only thing that ever helped him," writes GEO. W. HICKOCK, Curtiss Wis.

—Mrs. Chas. Sheets and children returned Saturday evening from a visit with friends at Kendallville. The children enjoyed an outing at Pretty lake and Mrs. Sheets also spent a few days at Ashley.

—C. Dick and David Grosh were callers at this office Saturday. The former was nursing a very sore hand, the result of blood poisoning. He is giving it vigorous treatment and hopes to get the best of it soon.

—The Lima, Ohio, Times Democrat of August 18, has this: Born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Longsworth, 1149 West High street, a daughter. Mrs. Longsworth was Miss Ethel McKay, formerly of Auburn.

—During the month of August you can buy the largest ironing board on the stoutest folding frame ever placed on the market for $1.00, regular price $1.50. Manufactured by Chester Hoisington, corner of Twelfth and Van-Buren streets.

—The first horseless carriage or automobile seen in Fort Wayne was on Friday last. It had come through from Cleveland, making an average of about fifteen miles an hour where roads were good. They had some trouble with it in regard to frightening teams.

—Harry Deatrich, who for the past three years has been a popular and obliging clerk at Garrett's grocery, has resigned his position to take a place in the stock room at the Eckhart factory. He will be succeeded in the store by Clarence Stevick of Cedarville.

—G. S. McCord went to Green's Corners this morning to arrange for the furneral of Mrs. Bangs, widow of the late Heman Bangs, whose death occurred last night after an extended illness. The deceased was one of the pioneer residents of the county and had reached a ripe old age.

—Charles Watson, sr., and wife of Jackson township were married Sept. 5, 1839, and preparations are being made to celebrate their sixtieth wedding anniversary. Mr. Watson is 84 and his wife 79. They located on the farm where they now live before their marriage and after erecting a log cabin were married in their own home by Rev. Robe, a Methodist minister then located in Fort Wayne.

—Dayton Chaney and several playmates were giving an imitation of Buffalo Bill's wild west show yesterday one of the acts of which included the lassoing of an Indian. Young Chaney was the Indian, and when the lasso tightened about him he was thrown to the ground with such force as to break one of his arms. Further exhibitions of that kind have been postponed until the noble red man recovers.

—Waterloo Press:—Mr. Sim Mann was very pleasantly surprised last Friday, the occasion being his eightieth birthday. Relatives to the number of thirty-five gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mann in Franklin township, and the surprise was complete. Among the guests present, were two sisters who were over sixty years of age. A fine dinner was served, and the afternoon was spent with good music and a general good time.

—While at work repairing a well on Mort Wilson's place, east of town, last Saturday, Fred Purdy had occasion to go down into the well to fix the pipe. In his descent he loosened three large stones in the wall and these came tumbling down on his head, making several bad scalp wounds. Purdy was almost knocked senseless but managed to crawl out of the well, when he was brought home. It was a wonder that he escaped with his life.

Tuesday's Daily.

—Cook Ford got in a car load of salt today.

—Jacob Krebill called this week and put his name on the 1900 list.

—W. S. Dancer was here for medicine today. Some bowel trouble.

—FOR SALE:—Good second-hand organ; will be sold cheap. Inquire at this office.

—Premium lists of the coming state fair may be had by calling at the COURIER office.

—Geo. A. Lane was at home Sunday. He reports his patient, Mr. Wherley as getting along nicely.

—Geo. Quince and family went to Garrett today to visit his mother and other friends. Amber will remain a few days.

—Sherman Dickinson is remodeling the building he bought of John Lochner and will make it into a comfortable dwelling.

—Teachers' Institute begins here next Monday, and the town will be alive with good looking ladies and gentlemen.

—Philadelphia excursions Sept. 1, 2, 3 and 4 over Lake Shore Railway: greatly reduced rates; good until Sept. 30 for return. 35 —FOR RENT:—Entire upper story of Kiblinger building, suitable for offices, lodge, or living rooms. Call on D. A. Hodge, the jeweler.

—The mortgage exemption in the state of Indiana under the new law amounts in round numbers to twenty-eight millions of dollars.

—Charlie Rugman has been pushing the work of filling the Main street sewer trenches today and an immense amount of dirt has been moved.

—To all points in competition where the fare is $2 or more we have free bus and free baggage to the Junction. tf SPROTT & KNAPP, Agency B. & O. Ry.

—Martin Wetzel, whose wife was buried Aug. 16, informs us that he will go to Fort Wayne and live with relatives as he has no one to keep house for him now.

Tetter, Eczema and Skin Diseases yield quickly to the marvelous healing qualities of Banner Salve made from a prescription of a skin specialist of world wide fame. 25c.

—F. P. Blair, wife and two children of Laporte, and his sister, Mrs. Sam Pepple, and daughter of Smithville, Tex., were over here yesterday calling on friends, including the COURIER folks.

—Mrs. Caroline Cool will have an auction sale of personal property at her home on north Main street next Saturday afternoon. A credit of six months will be given on all sums of $5 and over.

—Wayne Zooker of Fairfield was here a couple of days this week. He has taken out two patents, one for a feed trough and one for a churn and expects to devote some time to this business. We hope he may do well.

—The vandals who have been trying to ruin Andrew Boyd's orchard, northeast of Mooresville, seem determined to finish the job, as we learn that five more trees were killed last night. It is indeed too bad that the guilty party cannot be caught and punished.

—The play Saturday is one of the most popular on the road. Mark Swan is always popular with our people as well as his wife, the wonderful little actress, Jessie Mae Hall. Mr. Swan is the author of the play, "Brown's in town" which had such a wonderful run in Chicago and Cincinnati.

—A. P. Green, has returned from Toledo, and while there he met Billy Bradshaw who used to live here and found him well and prospering. We met Billy and his wife in Fort Wayne, at the time of the centennial there, but have not seen him since. He has many friends here who will be pleased to hear of him.

—Sousa and forty-nine of the best musicians in the world will constitute the band that will appear at the state fair September 20 and 21. Information from the secretary of the fair tells us that visitors to the fair during the day can remain on the grounds until after the concert is over in the evening and the only expense they will incur will be the fee for a seat in the grand stand which is 25 cents.

—Those who left Auburn this morning to join the G. R. & I. excursion to Northern Michigan, so far as we have been able to learn, were: George Grund, wife and daughter Ruth; M. C. Sheets, wife and son Russell; Messrs. and Mesdames C. C. Shaffer, Joseph Johnson, H. B. McCord, Al St. Clair and Mort Wilson; Mrs. Crandall and daughter Grace, Ed Robbins, G. M. Ralston and Sam Hallauer. We hope all may have an enjoyable trip and a safe return home.

—Waterloo Press:—Dennis Triplett, clerk in J. C. Boyer & Co.'s store, captured a "kissing bug" a few nights ago. The animal flew onto the goods in the store, evidently waiting for some young lady customer to come, when Dennis captured and chloroformed it, and holds it now as a trophy and invites all young ladies to call and see it. It is indeed a curiosity and different from any insect familiar to this community, about an inch and a quarter long, brown in color with wings that resemble the feathers of a bird, but its most peculiar formation is in its front paws, or feet, which are precisely like that of a ground mole, and no doubt it is with these "claws" that he inflicts the mischief. It is worth examining and we hope his generation may grow less day by day.

WHEELMEN

should never be without a box of Begge' German Salve; it gives instant relief. Heals sores, cuts, bruises and chafing. H. B. McCord's drug store.

Wednesday's Daily.

—Harley Bumpus is at work on a school house west of Garrett.

—"Brown's in Town" at the opera house Saturday evening, Aug. 26.

—The curtain will rise at the opera house Saturday night at 8:30, standard time.

—Chapman's Flux Syrup is guaranteed to cure Stomach and Bowel trouble. D5—17—W2t.

—Mrs Martin March was taken suddenly ill yesterday with something like paralysis.

—Mrs. George Pebbles has moved into the Mrs. L. Bowers' property on north Main street.

—Mrs. Lulu Green of Churubusco, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Spake, and other friends here.

—Grant Griswold came up from Columbia City yesterday for a visit with Chas. E. McDonald and family.

—Mrs. Frank Hunsen of Kansas City is the guest of her cousin, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Douglas and other relatives.

—Miss Floyd Fee of Hamilton is visiting the family of her uncle, Miles Baxter, and other Auburn relatives.

—"Brown's in Town," in three acts, by Mark E Swan and Jessie Mae Hall; Henry's opera house Saturday evening, August 26.

—Seventeen Fort Wayne saloon-keepers were arrested yesterday for maintaining slot machines in their places of business.

—Mrs Lillie Small and sister, Miss Carrie Grover, returned yesterday from a visit of several weeks with their parents at New Haven.

—Fred Webb of the Wabash dispatcher's office at Montpelier and Miss June Walton of Peru were married at the latter place today.

—Mrs. John P. Widney came yesterday for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. A. Lewis We regret to learn that she is in rather poor health.

—Ask your grocer for Russ' Bleaching Blue, do not be deceived by fraudulent imitations, see that the name Russ appears on all packages. 35

FOR SALE: A good dwelling house, large and commodious, with good cellar; central location in Auburn. Cheap. Call on JOHN W. BAXTER.

—Elza Shaffer of Albion is at Mt. Clemens for treatment. He had a hard attack of grip last winter and since then has had some nervous trouble.

—Captain Ranke of the Twenty-eighth Indiana battery, has been recommended by Governor Mount for appointment in the military forces which are to be raised for service in the Philippines.

—The annual Bishop family reunion will be held tomorrow at the home of Peter Bishop and wife at Spencerville. Four generations of the family will be represented and it will doubtless be an enjoyable meeting.

—Conductors and engineers on the B. & O., it is reported, are to be provided with annual passes for themselves, wives and minor children. All conductors and engineers must have been in the service at least one year.

—LAND FOR SALE:—Twenty-six acres of land, three miles north of Auburn on the Ashley road, for. For particulars call on L. D. Husselman, two miles west of Waterloo, near Mud school house, or address him at Waterloo. 33-tf —At the S. S. picnic at Union Chapel Aug. 12, some one stole the flag belonging to the Sunday school. It had been hung between two trees for its shade, and as night came on, was taken down folded and laid aside. Some one sneaked it off.

Owing to the fact that Director Niles has an engagement at the Ashley carnival, next week's open air concert by the Auburn band will be given on Monday evening instead of Wednesday evening. Our friends in town and country should note the change.

—We have a paper from Little Rock, Ark., with an account of the funeral of the late August Schneider, the husband of Minnie Wilson. It was August 16. He had been secretary and treasurer of the Beebe stave factory in that city, and was highly respected. His health had been poor for some time.

—Fort Wayne Sentinel:—Milo D. Husselman, former city clerk of Auburn, is in the city today getting signatures to a recommendation for his appointment as a lieutenant in the volunteer army. Mr. Husselman was a member of the One Hundred and Fifty seventh regiment and is said to have splendid military qualifications.

—Yesterday afternoon Milan Albright was arrested at his home east of town and brought before Esquire Walter, charged with cutting the trees in Andrew Boyd's orchard, mention of which has been made in these columns. On being arraigned young Albright, who lives on a farm adjoining Boyd's, plead not guilty and later on an information was filed against him in the circuit court and he was released under bond of $500. The case in the justice court was then dismissed. John W. Baxter has been retained to defend him.

—Great Sachem F. D. White of the order of Improved Red Men, has made his report for the year ending at a recent date. He reports that the year just ended was a banner one in the matter of increase in the membership of the order. He reports that there are at present 20,549 members of the order in the state of Indiana. The report was made to the Red Men's League. It represents the largest ever recorded. There is a big increase over the number of last year. There are also a large number of Leagues contemplated. Indianapolis and Lafayette are already organizing leagues.

Reliable Offerings

.....Especially adapted to August requirements, bearing prices that are right at their worth, that makes them liveliest values. We feel assured of your interest in these offerings—items that prove only an index to the many good things we've made ready for the August buyer.

Men's Work Shirts at	24c	Boys' Knee Pants in Scotch plaids, all-wool	48c
Men's Work Shirts, double fronts and backs	48c	Boys' Knee Pants, black chiviot, worth 75c, now	48c
Men's Work Shirts, yoke-back, double stitched, all colors in plaids and stripes	45c	Half Soles per pair from	10 to 13c
Men's Outing Shirts, strongly made, in plaids	48c	100-piece decorated dinner set	$6.85
Men's Overalls in blue	35c	100-piece white semi-porcelain dinner set at	$6.35
Men's Overalls in brown	40c	White semi-porcelain cups and saucers, per set	35c
Men's Overalls, blue, extra heavy and durable	45c	7-inch white semi-porcelain dinner plates, per set	35c
Men's Overalls, in stripes extra heavy	48c	Meakin's Royal Semi-Porcelain dinner sets, $9 to	$14
Boys' Overalls with bibs	24 to 38c	White Bowl & Pitcher full size and new shape	75c
Boys' Knee Pants, from 5 to 14 years, for	24c	Metal back combs at	5 to 10c
		Wire Hair Pins, per bunch	3c

TIN CANS

33c Per Doz.

Whole Cloves	20c
Cinnamon Bark	20c
Mixed Spices per box	5c
Poison Fly Paper	4c
Cream Tartar	25c
Table Mustard a glass	5c
Buttermilk Soap per box	10c
Yeast Foam	4c
Red Seal Lye for disinfecting per can	8c

Bazar Store

PETER KUNTZ, President. Chicago, Ill. W. H. KECKLER, Treasurer Auburn, Ind.

...THE...

Auburn Lumber Co.

CENTRAL 'PHONE 12.

We sell all kinds of Lumber for Building Purposes, Make Door and Window Frames to Order. We can Sell you Doors and Windows at Money Saving Prices.

Headquarters For

Lime, Bulk Lime

Wood Burnt bulk Lime

The Genuine Article.

We can save you money in Price, Quality and Weight Come and see us and examine our LIME, and you will be convinced. We also carry Cement, Plastering Hair, Plaster Paris, etc. Yours Truly,

AUBURN LUMBER CO.

Near Wabash Depot, Auburn, Ind.

It Pays to Paint.

There is nothing that adds to the selling value or the renting value of a house like good paint—there is nothing that makes home more home-like than good paint.

It pays to paint. The better the paint, the better it pays.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT

pays in the beginning because it goes so far—pays in the end because it lasts so long, and looks so well, as long as it lasts. There is no paint like it for beauty and durability, for economy and satisfaction.

For Sale By

CULBERTSON & BOLAND.

POLITICS OF THE DAY

HOW TO LET GO.

There are those among the Republican leaders who believe that the holding of the Philippines is bad policy, but has become a necessity through the treaty of Paris. Many of these leaders would be glad to let go if they could only discover how to do it. It is quite likely that the President begins to understand that his policy of imperialism is unpopular, and it is not unlikely that he will cast about for some method by which to cast off the incubus. Undoubtedly if the Philippines are to be held it must be through conquest and the carrying on of a warfare extending over many years.

Perhaps McKinley could not do better than to study the suggestions made in a recent letter to the New York Independent, written by William J. Bryan. Among other things Mr. Bryan says:

If the doctrine of self-government is sound, the Filipinos are entitled to govern themselves, and the President can now promise them independence as soon as stable government can be established.

If the President is not willing to take the responsibility of enforcing the doctrine set forth in the Declaration of Independence he can call Congress together and let it take the responsibility. A special session would be less expensive than the war, not to speak of the principles involved.

Our nation is protecting the republics of South America from outward interference while they work out their destiny. We can lend the same doctrine to the Filipinos and save the inhabitants from a foreign yoke; we can guard them from molestation while they develop a republic in the orient. They will be our friends instead of our enemies; we can send school teachers to Manila instead of soldiers, and the world will know that there is a reality in the theory of government promulgated at Independence Hall and defended by the blood of the revolutionary fathers.

Trusted Republican leaders believe with Mr. Bryan that the holding of the Philippines by the United States is a bad thing, and the President can listen with profit to the advice given by Burrows, Boutwell, Edmunds, Hoar and others.

There can be no question that a large majority of the people in the United States realize that a grievous error has been committed in regard to the administration's Philippine policy. Will McKinley be wise enough to study the question of how to let go?

Gold Democrats.

It is growing more manifest each day that the gold Democrats are disposed to stand by the national organization and will lend valuable assistance to the party opposed to McKinley in the campaign of 1900.

There can be no doubt that the disaffection of the gold Democrats in 1896 aided materially in the election of McKinley, but the betrayal of these volunteers by the man who benefited through their votes has embittered them and they will never again allow themselves to be made tools of by a political trickster. McKinley has evaded every opportunity to show appreciation of the aid given him and his party by the gold Democrats; he has even failed to carry out the currency "reform" notions which attracted the gold Democrats.

Added to the sins of omission, the rank ingratitude and the insulting disregard of favors extended, McKinley has pursued a policy of imperialism, militarism and subservience to trust control which has alienated every gold Democrat beyond the hope of reconciliation.

Under the circumstances the situation is ripe for a reunion of all the divided Democratic forces, and a wise political leadership will see to it that nothing which will bring about harmony shall be omitted from the program.—Chicago Democrat.

Buying a Senatorship.

In Montana the purchase of a Senatorship entails more unpleasant consequences than it does in the office-hunting State of Ohio.

Mark Hanna bought his way into the United States Senate, and while there was more or less big talk about the magnitude of his crime nothing came of it, and Hanna is a Senator by reason of purchase, which is just as gratifying to him as if he had been the people's choice.

But the Supreme Court of Montana has ordered that one John B. Welcome, a lawyer of Butte City, must plead in an action for disbarment for bribery of legislators in the election last January that seated in the United States Senate William A. Clark, the multimillionaire.

It is alleged that Clark was elected by the lavish use of money; that his agents coolly distributed $500,000 among the legislators, and this allegation has been strengthened by such startling testimony that the Supreme Court has been moved to act as stated.

Now, if Lawyer Welcome is disbarred as a result of proof in the bribery charges, what will the Senate Committee on Elections do concerning Millionaire Senator Clark's claim to a seat in the upper house? It is about time that some of these bribers should be found out and kicked out.

Rolling Up a Republican Majority.

A model Republican citizen of the "better class" of the Quay reformer type has just been committed to jail in Philadelphia for the light offense of voting thirty-seven times at the election last November. When arrested he admitted the crime and declared that he had voted in thirty-seven districts on names registered in those districts. That was one of the ways Stone's plurality over George A. Jenks was piled up.—Pittsburg Post.

Must Get Together.

If the Presidential election of 1900 is to result in the eviction of William McKinley from the White House the job is going to be done by Democrats, not by a heterogeneous aggregation of Populists, greenbackers and silver Republicans. There are in this country enough Democrats to elect a President. It depends upon themselves whether they get together or not. The Democrats of Wisconsin, through their committee, have marked out a line of action which may be followed with profit by Democrats of other commonwealths and by the Democracy of Kentucky in particular.—Chicago Chronicle.

Beware of the Enemy.

In 1896 the Enquirer was the outspoken champion of free silver and its peerless leader. In that campaign its efforts in behalf of the cause were of a character known of all men. It combated with the full force of its energy the enemy—that is, the gold standard leaders, headed by William McKinley, and the more dangerous chairman of the National Republican Committee, Mark Hanna, and it is doing the same thing now and will keep right on doing it. The power of money and the influence of the great trust corporations prevailed, and William J. Bryan met a check. He emerged, however, from defeat, not weaker, but indeed stronger. The cause he championed and the flag he carried could not be downed by any temporary reverse. The cardinal doctrine of the Chicago platform was and is a living, burning issue. It can not be displaced by any minor topic until the sweep of victory gives emphasis to its teaching and weaves its doctrine into the fundamental law of the land.

These observations on the part of the Enquirer are made to give a warning to the Democrats of the designs of the enemy. The Republicans are now trying to create a party division in Ohio under the false cry that there is a faction seeking to make Bryan a follower rather than a leader. This to Democrats should be known as a silly lie. It is a silly lie. Bryan still leads, and his influence has not abated one jot. The cause he advocates is a living cause. Under his magnificent leadership the Enquirer knows enough to know that if all the Democrats are not beguiled by the efforts of the enemy to divide them, victory so signal as to be emphatic waits. It is the time for all Democrats to get together. The champion and national candidate is already in the van; flock under his banner and victory is in sight.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Democratic Year in Ohio.

It is felt by a great many acute politicians that this will turn out a Democratic year in the variable Buckeye State, hence there is more interest than there has been for several years in the Democratic State Convention. The Republicans have a heavy load to carry—in the first place in McKinley and Hanna, and then in imperialism, militarism and the trusts. The election involves to some extent the future of Mr. McKinley, for if his party is defeated in Ohio this fall his renomination next year will become a very doubtful question. Mr. McKinley is not an exceptionally strong man personally in Ohio. He is too well known, and a certain gloss that conceals the real man in other States has worn off in that wide-awake commonwealth.— Pittsburg Post.

Not So Fierce as It Looks.

Uncle Sam—Say, William, why don't you take that away and hire a live man?—New York Journal.

Where Trespass Is Allowable.

Mexico has been granted permission to transport artillery and soldiers through American territory, to put down an uprising of the Yaqui Indians. In fact, Mexico will be welcome to the work of putting down as many Indian uprisings as it cares to undertake.—Peoria Journal.

Not Much of a Gain.

If Mr. Root is to be a colonial secretary simply and the administration of the War Department is to be left mostly to Adjutant General Corbin it is pretty hard to see just where we have gained by Alger's resignation.—Indianapolis News.

The Weak Eyes of Humanity.

It has been reckoned by good authorities on the subject of eyesight that only in one case out of fifteen are both eyes in good condition. In seven cases out of ten people possess one eye which is stronger than the other. In two cases out of five there is more or less astigmatism or distortion of the visual image, while nearly 50 per cent. have only an imperfect appreciation of colors.

Much poring over books in badly lighted rooms impairs it; work in the open air improves it. Shepherds and sailors have good eyesight, and in general savage tribes, which depend upon hunting for subsistence, have the keenest eyesight. Of civilized people, the eyesight of the Norwegians is the best, while the wretched and despised "Bushmen" of South Africa have vision so sharp as to deserve the name of "human telescopes." Color-blindness is far less prevalent among uncivilized races.

When a woman worries herself to death about her husband's getting so thin it's generally because she is getting so stout.—New York Press.

Health lies in labor, and there is no royal road to it but through toil.—Wendell Phillips.

IN THE STARRY SKY.

WHAT MAY BE SEEN THROUGH THE YERKES TELESSOPE.

Powerful Glass at the Williams Bay Observatory—Brings the Moon Within Sixty-four Miles of the Earth—Close Study of the Planets.

For nearly two years the big eye of the Yerkes telescope in the observatory of the University of Chicago, at Williams Bay, Wis., has been spying out the secrets of the stars. It has looked one-fourth further into space than any instrument devised before it. Night after night the huge, grim Cyclopean eye swings slowly round in its ponderous frame, crouched in its big white dome, and keeps a sleepless watch upon the heavens. The great dome is open to the sky. The ponderous tube swings slowly, imperceptibly, with the turning of the earth from sunset to sunrise again. Shut in the black shaft which supports the barrel of the refractor is a clock, a wonderful piece of mechanism, which tells off the motion of the globe on its axis. The telescope shifts, hair breadth by hair breadth, guided by the clock, and making the circuit of the heavens, with tireless eye fixed all night long upon a single star. There is no escape from the big eye. As the earth swings in one direction, the eye silently alters its focus, never aweary and never asleep.

What can the ordinary observer see through the largest and most perfect telescope in the world? What has the big lens so far revealed to the astronomers who have watched it as an oracle since the first day it peered into space? What does the finest telescope in the world look like to a man who doesn't know a telescope from a barrel?

YERKES OBSERVATORY AT WILLIAMS BAY, WIS.

A reporter for the Chicago Inter Ocean visited the Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago at Williams Bay for the purpose of answering these questions. A big telescope is almost human. It is furnished with a curious sixth sense, a marvelous second sight. Mysterious, uncanny, huge, it powerfully impresses one and grows more wonderful on closer acquaintance. The whole observatory is built about its monster eye. For the eye alone are the motors, the flying pulleys, the movable dome, the rising floor, and all the curious instruments varying from the delicately strung spider web of the micrometer to an apparatus weighing fifty tons. Without the huge eye everything would be useless. This eye is the lens of the refracting telescope in the main tower at the western end of the observatory. It is reached by a flight of marble steps from the main corridor. Entering the building in the evening, all is quiet and dimly lighted, the main tower quite dark. About midway of the round dome is the rising floor, over which the telescope swings. It is a triumph of mechanical skill, the only satisfactory means devised for reaching the eye piece of a big telescope as it is tilted up and down or swung around on its axis.

The telescope itself is a big iron tube sixty-two feet long, painted black. In the end which looks out through the dome is the object glass or refracting eye, forty inches in diameter, or four inches wider than the lens of any other telescope of the kind in the world. The iron tube, with its lenses, finder, eye pieces and other appliances, weighs nearly twenty tons. And yet so nicely is it balanced that a strong pull with the hand will swing it a foot or more. The huge telescope is moved on its axis by electricity.

Describing the apparatus, Dr. Hale finally fixed the big eye of the telescope on the planet Saturn. It was a fine, clear night, with little disturbance in the atmosphere, and Saturn appeared to twinkle about half way between the sky line and the zenith. The eye piece which was put on magnified nearly 500 diameters, one-eighth the highest power used. This is how the planet Saturn looked to the reporter gazing through the biggest telescope in the world: It appeared a yellow, round disk about the size of the moon, not flat, but clearly globular. Around it twinkled a purple band a quarter of an inch wide. Next to this was a solid ring encircling the planet, of the same bright yellow color, and quite distinct; next to this was a second narrow violet band, and surrounding that a second broad yellow band like the first. Around the whole sparkled a brilliant violet circle. Saturn's moons appeared as three tiny round yellow marbles grouped to form a pruning hook to the left of the planet's disk, while a fourth one hung a little lower down to itself on the same side. No oscillation was apparent. Saturn's rings and satellites apparently were of the same yellow color of the planet. Sometimes these rings can be discerned in their colors and form a brilliant rainbow about the planet. From the outer rim of the planet proper to the outer edge of the outside ring, the distance, through the telescope, looked to be about two inches. It is, in fact, 172,000 miles! Looking through the huge refractor, the human eye is able to discern a space of 172,000 miles as two inches in the area of the heavens! To the ordinary observer the shining violet rings about the planet form a beautiful feature of the view. These rings, however, are due to imperfections which exist in every telescope, and which astronomers would be only too glad to dispense with.

The telescope was next turned upon Jupiter, the largest planet in the solar system, and as big as all of the other planets put together. The distance from this earth to Jupiter is a trifle of 400,000,000 miles, and it takes forty-three minutes for its light to reach the earth. Jupiter's disk looked about as big as a large marble, probably two inches in diameter. At its side, in a nearly straight line to the right, appeared four small marbles, its satellites. The color of the planet was almost white, a very light yellow. Across the planet appeared three faint purple streaks, on the order apparently of the man in the moon. While at Lick Observatory Professor Barnard discovered the fifth satellite of Jupiter, but was unable to study it to any advantage. The Yerkes telescope brings out this fifth moon very clearly to the eye of the astronomer, and Prof. Barnard has been able to observe it and measure it with great accuracy.

Star clusters seen through the Yerkes telescope are wonderfully beautiful, a great ball, like a swarm of golden bees. The moon was too full for a good view, and showed merely a pale yellowish surface.

About noon Prof. Hale had the telescope turned on the sun. No sun spots were visible, so the telescope was directed along the disk of the sun at the flames which burst through its dense, gaseous cloud wrappings and thrust their tongues far out into space. On a pink background, shading into dark red, and fully rounded, one saw a hooked yellow flame half obscured by what looked like gray vapors. There was an apparent movement, the flame darting high, sinking down, or again bending over to lick the round disk of the sun. Curious as it may seem, a glimpse through this powerful glass is more wonderful to the astronomer than to the man who looks millions of miles into space for the first time. To the astronomer each object is full of details which escape the untrained eye. Every line has a meaning, and in the merest trifles he reads the story of a million years.

The history of the Yerkes telescope itself is the history of the evolution of an eye, of the most wonderful artificial seeing apparatus yet devised. This great eye is 200 times as large as the human eye. That is to say, its diameter is forty inches, while the diameter of the pupil of the human eye is one-fifth inch. It is made of two separate lenses, one of crown glass, two and one-half inches thick at the center, three-fourths of an inch thick at the edge, and weighing 200 pounds; the other of flint glass, one and one-half inches thick at the center, two inches thick at the edge, and weighing 300 pounds. One of these glasses is convex and the other plano-concave. These two lenses are mounted eight and three-sixteenths inches apart in the end of a big steel tube sixty-two feet long, about forty-two inches in diameter, and weighing six tons. No figures, however, can properly express the size, the delicacy, the almost human intelligence of the great machine. The object glass of this telescope is as delicate as a human eye. A superfine silk handkerchief rubbed across its surface would destroy it. And yet, with proper care, it will never wear. The glass for each lens was cast in Paris by the firm of Mantois, celebrated for the manufacture of optical glass. Up to the time of the Lick telescope they had not been able to cast a solid, perfectly achromatic block of glass more than thirty inches in diameter. Then came the American order for two lenses thirty-six inches in diameter. The Frenchmen could but try, although they were skeptical as to the outcome. Nineteen times the trial was a failure. For months the mold was allowed to cool imperceptibly each day until all the heat had gone out of it. Then came the test. Nineteen times the glass contained flaws too great to be remedied—minute bubbles, unequal densities, various other defects. The twentieth trial produced a magnificent piece of glass, which finally became the property of the Lick Observatory. Encouraged by this success, the firm of Mantois set about the manufacture of a glass one-fourth more powerful than the one they had just made. Again and again they tried, schooled by the nineteen failures in making the Lick glass. Each trial required several months. At last the patient French makers were rewarded with two disks forty-two inches in diameter and as nearly colorless and flawless as glass was ever made. These blocks of glass were made into the lenses now in the eye of the Yerkes telescope. The glass was ground and finished by the firm of Alvan Clark & Sons, Cambridgeport, Mass.

Just as Americans have never been able to cast perfect and large disks of optical glass, so the French have not been able to polish the disks perfectly after they are cast. For four years Mr. Alvan G. Clark worked at the lenses. It may be that another such perfect glass will never be made. The secret of the polishing has been handed down for three generations in the Clark family. Previous to the work of the Clarks a German family—the Frauenhofers—had polished these glasses. For a century after the death of the last Frauenhofer it seemed that the art of polishing optical glasses was lost. Then Alvan Clark, a portrait painter in Massachusetts, attracted the attention of English scientists, and he and his family far excelled the German artists in glass. Mr. Alvan G. Clark, the last of his family, attended the dedication exercises of the Yerkes glass, returned to his home, and died within a few days.

The eye piece of a telescope, through which the observer looks, is the part of the instrument which magnifies the objects seen. The number of diameters to which an object can be magnified to advantage depends largely upon the perfection of the object glass. In the Yerkes telescope a glass which magnifies 3,700 times has been employed successfully. Through this the moon would appear as it would to the naked eye at a distance of sixty-four miles. The eye piece ordinarily used magnifies 460 diameters.

EYEPIECE AND MECHANISM.

Incredible as it seems, the delicate measurements of the movements of the stars are calculated by cobwebs nicely stretched and forming the real measuring apparatus of the micrometer. They last for years and are even cleaned of dust with a delicate camel's-hair brush. Taking off the glass covering one evening, Prof. Burnham was examining the webs. He absentmindedly breathed into the aperture, breaking one of the filaments, which it took considerable time to replace. At the Yerkes telescope a device has been perfected for lighting the threads with electricity and making them a faint red color. A white light on them would be so brilliant as to injure the eye of the observer. In addition to its micrometer, the big telescope is equipped with all other accessories, such as spectroscopes, spectographs, spectro heliographs, photo heliographs, etc.

While interest centers around the main dome and its sleepless eye, the Yerkes Observatory would be a big institution if it had only its minor glasses to depend upon. One of these is a twelve-inch refractor mounted in the north dome. A twenty-four inch reflector will shortly be mounted in the south dome. A sixty-inch reflecting telescope is also being built now in the instrument shop of the observatory, and will be mounted in another building at some future time. As it stands equipped the Yerkes Observatory cost $500,000. It is the most complete in the world, with a refracting telescope forty inches in diameter. Next in order is the Lick Observatory on Mount Hamilton, with its thirty-six inch refractor, and third in order is the Imperial Observatory at Pulkowa, Rusia, with a lens thirty inches in diameter.

Home of the Telescope.

The building is in the form of a Latin cross, the longer axis of which lies due east and west. A great ninety-foot dome completes the western end and twenty-six foot and thirty-foot domes terminate the north and south transepts. The body of the building is divided into laboratories, libraries, offices, computing rooms and photographic dark rooms. The ground floor is equipped as an instrument shop, making this the only observatory in the world which manufactures its apparatus under the direct supervision of those who use them. This gives unexampled facilities for the application of new methods of research, and already more than a dozen intricate machines have been constructed and used successfully. The observatory is built of yellow brick, ornamented with fluted columns carved at the bases with gargoyles and other symbolic devices. The corridors and stairs are finished in white marble delicately veined in green and the wood is of massive oak.

The observatory has a little life of its own. Professors in charge have built their homes along the lake, and a small colony of scientists has gathered about the big telescope. Dr. Hale, the director, has a beautiful cottage a short distance away. Prof. Barnard, of the observatory staff, and one of the best-known of American astronomers, has built a homelike house of Southern architecture commanding a grand view of the lake. Here he and his charming wife dispense hospitality to many a visitor, and on the front porch the most distinguished astronomers of this country and of Europe have smoked an after-dinner cigar and discussed the puzzle problems of the universe.

Much of the work at the Yerkes observatory during the past eighteen months has been of a kind which could not be accomplished at any other in the world. In all observations which involve minute measurements of the highest precision the Yerkes telescope is unrivaled. The measurement of the motions of the stars, which approach or recede from the earth, are of great importance, as data gathered from these throw light upon the movements of the entire solar system. To this problem, the greatest in astronomy, Dr. Hale, Prof. Frost and Mr. Ferdinand Ellerman have applied themselves.

The sun, with all its attendant planets comprising our solar system, is rushing toward the star Vega, or Alpha, of the Lyre, at the inconceivable rate of ten miles a second. Vega is one of the most beautiful stars in the heavens and can be seen now near the zenith on any fair evening. Probably since the life of man began, perhaps since the universe was born, our solar system has been speeding toward this star. In the life of a generation the sun comes hundreds of millions of miles nearer its destination. But in many generations, to all appearances, this approach would not be perceptible. The journey, so far as mortals are concerned, must be eternal.

When, where and how, if ever, did this journey begin; when, where and how, if ever, will it end? is the greatest of the unsolved problems of astronomy.

Trees Suggested Skeeters.

'Tis not often one runs across a loquacious street-car conductor. Usually they are just about as talkative as graven images. But there was a new man on the Indiana avenue line and he was hungry for a talk. Along about Forty-seventh street a man took a standing seat on the back platform and the conductor fastened on him instantly.

"That's a fine grove of trees," he remarked, pointing to a grove of maples, "but whenever I see trees I say to myself 'skeeters.' Yes, sir; that's the very first thing I say to myself—'skeeters.' I hate skeeters. I can't abide 'em. Consequently I don't like trees. No, sir; I'm a treeless plain man, I am—a boundless prairie feller. Why, sir, I had a good job and as nice a little home as you ever see down East an' I wuz fixed for life right there. But it was down in Jersey. An' the skeeters bit me till I didn't know my own name; would have answered to the name of Smith or Jones just as well. Well, sir, I throwed up my job an' sold my home and I started for New York. But, Lord love you, sir, I got into trouble quick. They stopped me 'fore I could get into New York. They said I had the smallpox, I was bit up so frightful. But I finally got West, an' here I am. An' whenever I see trees I thinks skeeters. Why, sir, down in Jersey many's the time I've seen them skeeters flyin' about smokin' clay pipes; yes, sir, smokin' clay pipes—to keep the other skeeters off 'em. Once I——"

But here the passenger jumped off between two blocks.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

PRESIDENT ZELAYA.

He Is Regarded as One of the Ablest Statesmen in Central America.

J. Santos Zelaya, the president of the Nicaraguan Republic, whose power has been clipped by Gen. Reyes, the rebel, is regarded as one of the ablest statesmen in Central or South America. He is approaching 50 years old, and is a wealthy coffee planter. From his youth he was interested in politics, and has always been known as a leader of the liberal party. He was educated in Paris, and lived in that city for eight years. During the wars of the Central American states he won the rank of general, and the liberals ran him for and elected him to the presidency. Gen. Reyes declared himself the provisional president of Nicaragua, and Honduras gave him aid.

PRESIDENT ZELAYA.

Colorado's Gold Exhibit.

A solid gold nugget miniature of Pike's Peak, weighing over two tons and worth a million dollars, will be Colorado's gold exhibit at the Paris Exposition. It will reach New York City under guard in a special car, and thence the government will convey it to Paris. The exposition commissioners have guaranteed its safe return. It is purposed to duplicate the mountain in its natural features, so that visitors to its summit will recognize it in the nugget. The signal station on the summit, a squat building only eighteen feet high, but perhaps forty long and fifteen wide, will appear. Climbing up Engleman's Canon will be seen the famous cog road, with perhaps an engine and a coach, the regulation train on the highest railroad in the world.

Madrid's Slums.

Madrid abounds in slums, which are even greater eyesores than those of Whitechapel. There are labyrinths of narrow old streets, bordered by the most uninviting hovels; and from the squalor of these abodes spring the components of the ferocious mobs which are the bane of the city.

GAME FOR TWO LIVES.

The Romantic and Generous Chivalry of "Wildcat" Smith.

Old "Wildcat" Smith, the last of the famous band of Texas pioneers, is living at a hale and hearty age near Caldwell, Texas. He does not look like a lawyer, but he has nevertheless, sat upon a camp stool and decided cases of the greatest importance. He does not bear any very marked resemblance to a general, but he has commanded a considerable force in battle, and while military critics might have complained that he was deficient in strategic ability, none ever charged him with a lack of valor. Few people would discover in his face or manner any of those traits that distinguish a duelist, but he has demonstrated that he possesses them all in an eminent degree by ordering "pistols and coffee for two" more than once. Upon one occasion he had the audacity to invite General Houston, who was at that period president of the republic, to "come out and exchange shots" with him. He says that the old warrior "floored" him by coolly making a note on a slip of paper and putting it in his desk. In answer to the enraged challenger's inquiry, the General simply said: "Mr. Smith, you are the fortieth; when I have killed these other thirty-nine damned scoundrels who have challenged me I will accommodate you. Be patient, sir."

WILDCAT SMITH.

Smith came to Texas in 1836, and served in the Texan army through all the long wars with Mexico. He was also a soldier in the great civil war, and when that ended he enlisted to fight Indians and remained on the border until there were no more Comanches to shoot.

On one occasion Smith was captured by a roving band of Comanches, many of whom were well known to him. They frankly told him that they intended to make him run the gantlet and burn him at the stake when they reached their village on Devil River. The captive had a flask of whisky, which the chief took away from him. After taking several drinks the old warrior asked Smith if he could play "seven up." Smith proudly boasted that he could beat any man living playing that particular game. This answer appeared to put the Indian on his mettle, and he at once proposed that they should halt by the side of the warpath and play for the highest stakes that mortal men ever waged on a game of chance—life. Smith eagerly agreed to the proposal, and they sat down under a tree and dealt the cards on a blanket. The other warriors dismounted and anxiously watched the game. The chief's name was Big Laugh, so called on account of a natural grin that marked his features. After a short time they stood 6 to 6, and it was Smith's deal. He ran the cards off and turned a jack from the bottom. Smith had won his liberty and Big Laugh told him that he might go; but the Texan had something else in view. He might have walked away, but he determined upon another act which marks him as a generous soul possessed of the highest courage. There was a young white girl tied on one of the ponies who was weeping in the most piteous agony. Smith coolly proposed to play another game, staking his life against the liberty of this young girl. Big Laugh was evidently pleased with the white man's courage, and after taking another drink he began to shuffle the cards. The girl was cut loose from the pony and made to stand on the blanket, while the thongs for binding Smith in case he lost were thrown at her feet. Again they played a close game, and at the end of a short time stood 6 to 6; but it was Big Laugh's deal. With what awful interest that poor girl must have watched the turning of that trump. The Indian slowly dealt the cards, and, peeping at the trump, a hideous grin spread over his face.

GAME FOR TWO LIVES.

"I was sure that all was lost, and was just in the act of springing at his throat," says Smith, "when he turned the queen of hearts for a trump. He could not give me, of course, and I held both the ace and deuce of hearts."

Big Laugh was by this time hilariously drunk and in a most excellent good humor. He not only kept his word and gave Smith and the young girl their liberty, but he furnished them two ponies and allowed Smith to take his gun. The liberated captives reached the settlements in safety.

First Bank Run in London.

The first "run" upon the banking institutions in London of which any record exists took place in 1667, in which several Lombard street bankers and goldsmiths who had loaned out the money intrusted to them found themselves unable to meet demands for immediate payment. Many creditors assembled and riots ensued. Four bankers were hanged at their own doors before order could be restored and the creditors persuaded that they were not being swindled.

Disproportion of Sexes.

The disproportion of the sexes is still very great in Australia. In Western Australia, e. g., there were only 54,000 women in a population of 189,000.

At the average picnic there is too much speaking.

THE FRIENDLY VISITOR.

To homes of poverty she went,
Just as a friend,
Upon Love's errand humbly bent,
That she might lend
Some of the faith, the hope, and cheer
Which blest her life,
To those who need to come more near
The peace through strife.

She took no purse, no worldly goods:
She was a friend.
She gave but words, from loving moods
Which heartward tend.
She spoke of simple things, and real,
Those which change not
If plenty crowns or great needs seal
Our human lot.

Great meed of trust, and lasting zeal
For what is good,
She took the poor, and gave rich meal
Of strengthening food.
She clasped a hand, to fill a heart
With precious store;
She gave but hunger for that part,
Not less, but more

Than all the things for which men long
Or toil to get—
The love of being, pure and strong.
And though she met
With scorn from those who listened not,
Wishing but bread,
Her simple word brightened their lot,
Whom thus she fed.

—Leslie W. Sprague in Christian Register.

THE BROKEN ENGAGEMENT.

By Helen Forrest Graves.

When Mary Clarimont's engagement was proclaimed to the world, there ensued a general expression of surprise. People generally are surprised at matrimonial engagements. There is always some cogent reason why things should have been adjusted otherwise—why John should have married Joan and Peter should prefer Betsey. Nobody ever yet was married to suit everybody.

But in Mary Clarimont's case it did really seem as if the course of true love had interfered seriously with the current of common sense and prudence.

Miss Clarimont was only one-and-twenty, a tall, imperial beauty, with dewy black eyes, a skin as fresh as damask roses, and dark-brown hair, coiled in shining bands at the back of her head. Moreover, Miss Clarimont had a "career" before her. She had just graduated from Medfield Medical University, and taken out her diploma as an M. D.

"And only to think of it," said Aunt Jo, bursting into tears of vexation and disappointment, "that she must needs go and ruin all her prospects by getting engaged to Harry Marlow, down in New York!"

"It does seem strange, Aunt Jo, when I sit down and think over it," said Doctor Mary, laughing and blushing. "Six months ago, my profession was all the world to me. I neither wished nor cared for anything outside its limits. The future was all mapped out before me, without let or hindrance; and now——"

"Humph!" growled Aunt Jo. "Any brainless idiot can get married, and keep a man's house and mend his shirts for him, but you were made for something higher and more dignified, Mary."

Mary smiled.

"Dear Aunt Jo," said she, "I shall not let my sword and shield rust, believe me. Harry has only his own talents to advance him in the world, and it will be at least a year before we shall be ready to marry. In the meantime, I shall accept the post of visiting physician to the Aldenbury Almshouse, and practice my profession in Aldenbury, just the same as if there were no engagement!"

"I wish to goodness there wasn't," said Aunt Jo. "I tell you what, Mary, I don't fancy that smiling, smooth-tongued young man of yours, and I never shall."

Still Doctor Mary Clarimont kept her temper.

"I am sorry, Aunt Jo," she said, pleasantly. "But I hope that you will eventually change your mind."

"I used to keep a thread-and-needle store when I was a young woman," remarked Aunt Jo, drily, "and I always could tell the ring of a counterfeit half-dollar when a customer laid it on the counter. I could then, and I can now—and I tell you what, Mary, there's base metal about Harry Marlow!"

Doctor Mary bit her lip.

"Perhaps. We will not discuss the subject further, Aunt Jo," she said, with quiet dignity, and the old lady said no more.

"Aunt Jo is wrong!" persisted the pretty young M. D. to herself.

"Mary is making a fool of herself!" thought Aunt Jo.

Aldenbury was a pretty manufacturing village, with a main street shaded by umbrageous maple trees, a "west end," where people who had made their fortunes lived comfortably in roomy old houses, surrounded by velvet lawns and terraced gardens, and an "east end," where people fought desperately, and not always successfully, to keep soul and body together on the merest pittance.

And a little way out of the village, the almshouse, built and endowed by a certain smuggling sea-captain, whose conscience had stricken him during his latter days, raised its gray-stone gables to the sky, and made a picturesque back-ground to the landscape.

Doctor Mary Clarimont made something of a sensation at Aldenbury. Up to this time, all the resident M. D.'s had been snuffy old gentlemen, with wigs, or pert young ones, with eye-glasses.

A beautiful young lady, who wrote prescriptions and compounded pills and lotions, was a novelty in the town, and by no means a disagreeable one. People rather liked the idea, once they had convinced themselves that the lady doctor thoroughly understood herself and her patients.

And the poor old people at the almshouse grew to love Doctor Mary, and listen with eager ears for the sound of her carriage wheels over the blue-gravel drive which led up to the portico.

It was a brilliant December day when the young physician stood in the neatly-carpeted reception-room, drawing on her fur gloves, previous to entering the neat phaeton once again, while she returned to the white-capped aged dame direction respecting old Ann Muggett's rheumatism, when the matron hurried in.

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Doctor Clarimont," said she, "but I clean forgot the new old woman!"

"The new old woman!" repeated Doctor Mary, with a smile.

"That is," explained Mrs. Cunningham, "she only came last night—a quiet old soul, half blind and quite bad with the asthma. Perhaps you'd better just see her before you go. She brought a card of admission from Doctor Merton, the New York clergyman, who is one of our directors, you know. And she seems a decent body enough."

So Doctor Mary went cheerfully into the little brick-paved room, with its white pallet-bed, cushioned rocking-chair and neatly draped casement, where sat a poor little shriveled up woman, wrapped in a faded shawl.

She looked timidly up as Doctor Mary came in, from under the borders of her cap.

"I'm a poor body, miss," said she, "and I'm sensible I'm making a deal of trouble in the world. But the Lord don't always take us, miss, when we'd like to go."

"This is the doctor," said Mrs. Cunningham.

The little woman would have risen up to make a feeble courtesy, but Doctor Mary motioned her to keep her seat, and asked:

"What is your name?"

"Louise Marlow, miss."

"Marlow? That is an unusual name, isn't it?" said Mary Clarimont, coloring in spite of her self.

"We're English, miss," said the old woman, struggling bravely with her asthma. "There ain't many of us in this country. I've a son, miss, in the law business, as any mother might be proud of."

"A son!" echoed Mrs. Cunningham; "and you in the almshouse?"

"Not that it's his fault, ma'am," the old creature made haste to explain. "My son is to be married to a fine, proud young lady, as is fit for any prince in all the land, and of course he can't be expected to burden himself with a helpless old woman like me. He says I'm to write and let him know how I get along, and if I'm sick or anything, he'll try to see me. I sewed carpets until the asthma got hold of me, and supported myself comfortably. But of course I couldn't lay up anything for a rainy day, who could? And Henry couldn't help me, for he's getting ready to be married, poor lad! So I went to Doctor Merton and asked him, did he know of any decent place where an old woman like me could end her days in peace. And he gave me a card to come here, and some money to pay my traveling expenses—God bless him!—and here I am!"

Mary Clarimont had listened quietly to the garrulous lady, but the color had varied in her cheeks more than once as she stood there.

"Is your son's name Harry Marlow?" she said, slowly and thoughtfully.

"Yes, miss, at your service," said the old woman, with a duck of her white-capped head.

"Is he like this?" asked Doctor Mary, taking a photograph from her pocket.

The old woman, with trembling hands, fitted on her iron-bowed spectacles, and looked at the picture, uttering a little cry of recognition.

"Sure, miss, it's his own self," she cried. "You are acquainted with him, then?"

"Somewhat," said Doctor Mary, composedly, as she returned the photograph to its place. "And now I will leave you something to relieve this difficulty in breathing."

But the old crone eyed her wistfully.

"Perhaps you know the young lady my son is to marry?" she observed.

"Yes," said Doctor Mary, writing something in her prescription-book. "I have seen her."

"Perhaps, Miss," faltered the old woman, "you would give her my humble duty, and tell her I would just like to look at her for once and see what she is like. There's no fear of my troubling her, miss, for I mean to end my days here. But I would like to see her just once. And if it wouldn't be asking too much, miss, would you please write to my son, and tell where I am—for I'm no scholar myself, and I'm his mother, after all."

"I will write to him," said Doctor Mary, quietly, and so she went away.

"I never see a lady doctor afore," said old Mrs. Marlow, with a long sigh. "But she's a pretty creetur, and it seems good to have her around. I hope she'll come again soon."

"You may be very sure of that," said the matron, brusquely. "Doctor Clarimont ain't one to neglect poor people because they are poor."

That evening Aunt Jo, frying crullers over the kitchen-fire, was surprised by a visit from her niece, who came in, all wrapped in furs, with cheeks crimsoned with the frosty air.

"Bless me! This ain't never you?" said Aunt Jo, peeping over the rims of her spectacles.

"I drove over to see you, Aunt Jo," said Mary, "to tell you that you were right. The metal was counterfeit."

"Eh?" said Aunt Jo, mechanically ladling out the brown, curly crullers, although she did not look at what she was doing.

"I have written to Harry Marlow canceling our engagement," said Doctor Mary, calmly, albeit her voice faltered a little. "The man who will heartlessly let his old mother go into an almshouse sooner than take the trouble to maintain her, can be no fit husband for any woman!"

And then she sat down by the fire, and told Aunt Jo everything; for crabbed, crusty old Aunt Jo had been like a mother to her, and her heart was full to overflowing.

When Mary had ceased speaking, Aunt Jo nodded her head.

"You have done well and wisely," said she.

Old Mrs. Marlow died that winter, in Aldenbury Almshouse, with her head on Doctor Mary Clarimont's arm, and never knew that her garrulous confessions had deprived her son of his promised wife.

And Mary says, quietly and resolutely, that her profession must be husband and home to her, henceforward.

"Just what it ought to be," says Aunt Jo. "No woman ever yet succeeded in doing two things at once."—Saturday Night.

By the system of combining weak schools and conveying the pupils to a central school, one town in Iowa is saving $486 a year for each discontinued school.

HUMOR OF THE WEEK

STORIES TOLD BY FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

Odd, Curious and Laughable Phases of Human Nature Graphically Portrayed by Eminent Word Artists of Our Own Day—A Budget of Fun.

"I can't say I am much disappointed in you," said Mr. Bullion, sternly, eyeing his eldest son, who had come home from college in disgrace. "I never expected you to amount to anything."

"No," responded the young man, with a sort of feeble resentment, "I haven't had as good a start in life as you had. You were a poor boy, with every inducement to make somebody of yourself, and I am nothing but a rich man's son."—Chicago Tribune.

Love's Imposition.

"Why, darling," exclaimed the pretty bride of three weeks, as she rushed to embrace her husband. "How good it was of you to skip baseball once and come home early. You're just too sweet."

And he accepted it all without saying a word about there being no game.—Detroit Free Press.

Degraded Taste.

"Is your husband musical, Belinda?"

"No, indeed. He likes tunes."

A Weighty Matter.

"Dasher didn't weigh his chances when he went into that enterprise."

"And yet he speculated on a large scale."—Moonshine.

Got It Bad.

First servant girl—I believe I am becoming afflicted with insomnia.

Second servant girl—Why so?

First servant girl—Here lately when the missus calls me to get up I can't drop off to sleep again.—Ohio State Journal.

Couldn't Hold Himself Up.

Mrs. Jaggs (time 2 a. m.)—What in the world kept you so late?

Mr. Jaggs—W-why (hic) m' dear, jus' as I was comin' (hic) 'long firsht shing know'd was held up by shix or sheven highwaym'n on (hic) darksh street.

Mrs. Jaggs—Well, it's a good thing they happened to be there to hold you up. You never could have done it yourself.

A Hopeless Case.

"Has George ever hinted that he had thought of you as a possible wife?" asked the anxious mother.

"No," replied the girl, a far-away look in her eyes, "and I'm afraid he never will."

"Why," said the mother, "I thought——"

"It doesn't matter what you thought, mamma, dear," interrupted the daughter. "Only last night he complained of feeling drowsy and it wasn't 9 o'clock."

On the Wrong Track.

The Statesman—What do you think of the race problem?

The Rounder—Can't say. Haven't seen to-day's entries.

Words of Wisdom.

"Our naval officers ought to adopt Rudyard Kipling's formula for good health."

"What's that?"

"Keep your pores open and your mouth shut."—Detroit Free Press.

A Ray of Hope.

Servant—Sir, I can no longer stand it to live with the mistress and have given her notice.

The lord of creation (anxiously)—Do you think that will do any good?—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

All Women Can.

"You used to say," said Mr. Meeker, as he edged away from the threatening broom-handle, "that I was the greatest bargain you ever got."

"Yes, and I will show you that I can strike a bargain, too," retorted his better half.

Stained.

City niece—The windows in our new church are stained.

Aunt—Ain't that a pity. Can't they get nothing to take them off?

An Awful Fling.

Mrs. Styles—I'd have you understand that I know a good many worse men than my husband.

Mrs. Myles—My dear, you must be more particular about picking your acquaintances.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Slightly Changed.

Rudolph—Two young gentlemen wish to meet two young ladies with a view to matrimony. Money no object. How will that do, me lord?

Rupert—Money no objection. That sounds better.

Ready for Luncheon.

"I was going to ask you to take luncheon with me to-day," said one board of trade man to another, "but Slims says he has invited you. Sorry he got in ahead of me."

"What time do you lunch?"

"At 1."

"How fortunate. Slims takes his at 12. I'll be with you."—Detroit Free Press.

Domestic Sarcasm.

He (at breakfast)—My dear, the paper says there was quite a fire in our block early this morning. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary."

She—Well, don't let a little thing like that worry you."

He—Why, what do you mean?

She—Nobody will ever accuse you of building it.

His Predicament.

"I see," said the affable friend, "that you occasionally drop into poetry."

"No," answered the laureate, fiercely "I don't drop into poetry. I'm pushed into it by the government."—Washington Star.

The Boss.

Stranger—Is the master of the house in?

Man under bed—Yah. Vat it is? New York Journal.

Weaving a Spell.

He—I am rather in favor of the English than the American mode of spelling.

She—Yes?

He—Yes, indeed. Take 'parlour,' for instance; having 'u' in it makes all the difference in the world.—Boston Christian Register.

The American Plan.

Smith—Are you going to allow your daughter to marry that worthless young dude?

Brown—I haven't decided yet. In fact, I don't know whether my daughter is going to allow me to have anything to say about it.

Had His Preference.

"There is one thing you ought to remember, Remus, and that is that 'honesty is the best policy.'"

"I done year fokes say that befo' sah, but fo' merself I'd radder play de udder kine."—Boston Courier.

Thought It Was a Bad Dream.

Mistress—How was it you were so late this morning? Didn't you hear your alarm clock

Maid—I did, mem; but I thought I had only dreamt it, and it didn't go off again, mem."—Boston Transcript.

Gallantry.

Wheelwoman (to an admirer)—The streets are very quiet to-day, baron.

Baron—How can it be otherwise, madam, when angels are pedaling around.—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

A Cake Walk.

"Have you an agreeable boarding house?"

"Yes, we have; every morning we have a cake walk."

"Cake walk? What's that?"

"Why, the first man at the table gets the hot ones."—Detroit Free Press.

Quite a Fad Nowadays.

"Is Aguinaldo dead or isn't he?" demanded the observant boarder.

"I'm afraid not," replied the other boarder. "I think he has contracted the deathless dying habit, like the Emperor of China."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Beastly.

"I see they made a lion of Scribe over in London."

"Yes, he reminds one of a lion."

"In what way?"

"Wears his hair long and has a den."

A Valuable Book.

"Now, here is a book!" exclaimed the seedy man, as he dashed into the banker's private office.

"Don't want no books!" grunted the banker.

"But this is one you can't help being interested in."

"Haven't time to read books, and——"

"But I am sure you will take this book," persisted the seedy man.

"Look here, sir, do you intend to leave this room, or must I——"

"Don't need to call the janitor; I'll go. This is your book, though."

"My book?"

"Yes, your pocketbook. I found it in the hall." Then he vanished.

In Position.

"Me ould mon an' yer ould mon fought soide be soide, Larry."

"Mabe they did, Dinny; but Ol'll bet me ould mon wux on top."

An Electric Cellar Torch.

An electric cellar torch has recently been invented in Great Britain, and it admits of many uses. The inventor was the son of a physician, and quickly recognized that the principle of his father's laryngoscope might be very well applied to commercial purposes; and his experiments based on this idea resulted in the production of a clean, odorless and reliable appliance for the thorough examination of brewers' casks and vats, cans, etc. It consists of an electric lamp covered with a long glass protector, and it is secured at the end of a handle through which the insulated wire is carried. A small mirror is provided; this folds inward when it touches the side of the cask or jar, and thus reflects the interior in such a way that it may be thoroughly examined.

Machine to Cure Stammering.

In a Pennsylvanian's device for the cure of stammering a pair of slotted metallic plates are connected by a narrow neck and bent into close proximity to be placed on either side of the tongue, the neck having an adjusting screw to clamp the plates in place.

THE GATOR'S MEAL.

The Tragic Fate of a Promising Philadelphia Pup.

"You can't take that in here," said the gatekeeper at the Philadelphia Zoo to a woman with a wiggling little animal in her arms, "it's against the rules."

"Why, little Teddy wouldn't hurt a thing, and I'll promise you he won't leave my arms a minute. I can't take him away back home now, and I do so want to get in and see the animals."

Now it is a hard thing for a man to withstand the fascination of a pretty face, and when a dimpled, beseeching smile accompanies it—well, the young woman got into the Zoo, and little Teddy went in too, leaving the gatekeeper hoping sincerely that nobody in authority would see the animal. It was a very diminutive creature, so small, in fact, that if she had chosen his fair owner might have thrown her handkerchief over him and taken him in without difficulty.

The skies were bright, the animals all in a good humor and Teddy seemed to enjoy it immensely. The big elephant was in his pool taking a daily bath, and when, sucking up a trunk full of water, he treated the spectators to an elephantine shower bath. Teddy's joy knew no bounds, and his mistress thought surely he would break away.

In the course of the afternoon they came to the shady rustic bridge which spans the slimy gully where the huge alligator blinks his life away. The young woman had never seen such a fine specimen, and she was completely absorbed in the spectacle, forgetting even Teddy in her intense interest. Teddy was somewhat nearsighted, and wished to get a closer view of the great, scaly object, so with a gentle tug he disengaged himself from his mistress's arms and jumped headlong into the ditch. The alligator opened his sleepy eyes at this unwonted disturbance, and seeing a visitor lifted his head to make a survey.

Teddy's eyes, meanwhile, were popping out so far that you could knock them off with a stick. The alligator cocked his hungry eye on the dumfounded animal, and struck with the tenderness of his fat little legs, wiggled leisurely toward him. So quickly that Teddy had no time to give a farewell yelp, the denizen of the swamps opened his grinning mouth and swallowed the dog whole. Then, licking his jaws and blinking his eyes, he rolled over and went to sleep, well contented with the free lunch that had been so providentially provided.

The young woman's silent distress was pitiful to see. Without a word she walked hastily to the entrance, and with a sheepish glance at the keeper walked out.

"Ain't that the lady who took the pug in?" said the keeper to his companion.

"Why, sure it is," he made reply. "I wonder what she has done with him?"

A Philosopher's Timidity.

The daughter of the famous scientist, Sir David Brewster, speaks with tender frankness of certain characteristics of her father. Among these she includes a curious timidity and a great dread of pain which he used, to express with much freedom. In this connection she quotes from the letter of a family friend:

"In illustration of the great philosopher's singular timidity my father used to tell the following story: At the time Lord Rosse's telescope was drawing so many scientific men across the channel, Sir David was asked if he were going, too.

"'Oh, no!' he said. 'I am too much afraid of the sea.'

"My father tried to represent to him what a simple matter it was; he thought nothing of it himself; he just went straight to bed on going on board, and awoke on arriving at his destination.

"Sir David exclaimed, in unaffected horror:

"'What! Go to your naked bed in the middle of the ocean?'"

This is a Scotch expression for going really into bed, and was indicative of Sir David's opinion of the enormity of such an idea.

"Another favorite story somewhat betrayed the philosopher's lack of self control. He was talking of a severe fit of toothache he had had, and my father asked him, 'What did you do?' (meaning what remedy was applied).

"'Do?' said Sir David. 'I just sat and roared!'"

He always declined to have recourse to a dentist, never having had a tooth drawn, and his answer to any such proposal always was:

"What! Would you have me part with one of the bones of my body?"

Whatever may have been his physical timidity in some directions, it was truly said of him that he "never feared the face of man," and his great moral courage more than compensated for such weaknesses as he possessed.

An Old Rifle.

Old rifles, like old houses, may have histories that hold a vital meaning. A writer in the Humane Alliance describes one that is greatly valued by the descendants of its original owners. The following bit of its history is of general interest.

One night, when the "men-folk" were away, a panther leaped up on a log at the edge of the clearing, and standing in the moonlight just outside the shadows of the forest, uttered that marvellous cry which sounds so much like the wail of a lost child.

But grandmother's ears were not deceived. She was a young woman then; her eyes were bright, and she saw the panther plainly. The rifle thrust its muzzle through a hole in the shed window, and grandmother and the rifle together drove the messenger of death straight into the brain of the great cat and rolled him over dead. She just felt that she could do it, and so did the rifle; and so the deed was done.

The Most Important Point.

Having an appointment to preach at an insane asylum for the first time the editor of The Christian Register asked the medical director for some points. He said the most important thing was to avoid any attempt on the part of the preacher to accommodate himself to his audience, as if they were different from other people. He said: "If you attempt to adapt yourself to their condition they will instantly discover it, and they will hate you."

He Knew.

Mrs. Jones—Mother writes from Florida that the climate there doesn't agree with her.

Jones—Foolish climate.—Brooklyn Life.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has just unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a quantity of bogus bills, which are very cleverly executed. Things of great value are always selected for imitation, notably Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for disorders like indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation.

Limited Authority.

"And you have made Jim Jackson a deacon in your church?"

"Yes, sah. Dat it, he's a brevet deacon, sah."

"And what's a brevet deacon, George?"

"He's a deacon dat don't handle no money, sah."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"For the Sake of Fun Mischief is Done."

A vast amount of mischief is done, too, because people neglect to keep their blood pure. It appears in eruptions, dyspepsia, indigestion, nervousness, kidney diseases, and other ailments. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures all diseases promoted by impure blood or low state of the system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Found at Last.

Proprietor—I'm looking for a man I can trust.

Applicant—We'll get along then. For ten years I've done nothing but look for a man that would trust me.—Detroit Free Press.

Hall's Catarrh Cure
is a constitutional cure. Price 75 cents.

We would be satisfied if we had all the money that is invested in tea sets that are placed on center tables and never used.—Washington Democrat.

Ladies Can Wear Shoes

One size smaller after using Allen's Foot-Ease, a powder to be shaken into the shoes. It makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Cures swollen feet, blisters and callous spots. Allen's Foot-Ease is a certain cure for ingrowing nails, sweating, hot, aching feet. At all druggists and shoe stores 25c. Trial package FREE by mail. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

Life is not so short, but that there is always time enough for courtesy.—Emerson.

Piso's Cure for Consumption has saved me large doctor bills.—C. L. Baker, 4228 Regent Sq., Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 8, '95.

They that will not be counseled cannot be helped.—Benjamin Franklin.

$2.00 Fort Wayne to Chicago and return every Sunday via. the Nickel Plate Road.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

The last pleasure in life is the sense of discharging our duty.—Hazlitt.

What a Little Faith Did FOR MRS. ROCKWELL.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 69,884]

"I was a great sufferer from female weakness and had no strength. It was impossible for me to attend to my household duties. I had tried everything and many doctors, but found no relief.

"My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did; before using all of one bottle I felt better. I kept on with it and to my great surprise I am cured. All who suffer from female complaints should give it a trial."—Mrs. Rockwell, 1209 S. Division St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

From a Grateful Newark Woman.

"When I wrote to you I was very sick, had not been well for two years. The doctors did not seem to help me, and one said I could not live three months. I had womb trouble, falling, ulcers, kidney and bladder trouble. There seemed to be such a drawing and burning pain in my bowels that I could not rest anywhere. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash and following your advice, I feel well again and stronger than ever. My bowels feel as if they had been made over new. With many thanks for your help, I remain, L. G., 74 Ann St., Newark, N. J."

Ayer's Pills

Is your breath bad? Then your best friends turn their heads aside. A bad breath means a bad liver. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache. 25c. All druggists.

Want your moustache or beard a beautiful brown or rich black? Then use BUCKINGHAM'S DYE for the Whiskers
50 cts. at Druggists, or R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H.

Seven Hundred Years of Coal.

According to the most authentic history of the coal trade, last year marked the seven hundredth anniversary of the use of coal as fuel. Taking the most moderate estimate of the antiquity of man, and considering the fact that the coal was always here, it appears that we were a long time in availing ourselves of this most valuable asset which nature placed at our disposal. Many civilizations flourished and died out without its use, and it may be said that its potentialities, as a factor in the progress of mankind, were never realized fully until the present century. Up to its dawn, aside from the warming of the body and the cooking of food, little importance was attached to the fuel question. For these purposes a few fagots or billets of wood sufficed. But in time we discovered that in the fire there was a giant a thousand times more powerful than the fabled monsters of antiquity.

Avoid drying inhalants; use that which cleanses and heals the membrane.

Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy, cures CATARRH easily and pleasantly. Contains no injurious drug. It is quickly absorbed. Gives relief at once. It Opens and Cleanses the Nasal Passages. Allays Inflammation. Heals and protects the membrane. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Regular size, 50 cents. Family size, $1 at Druggists or by mail. Trial size, 10 cents, by mail.
ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren Street, New York.

CATARRH — COLD IN HEAD

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 & $3.50 SHOES UNION MADE.

Worth $4 to $6 compared with other makes.

Indorsed by over 1,000,000 wearers.

ALL LEATHERS. ALL STYLES

THE GENUINE have W. L. Douglas' name and price stamped on bottom.

Take no substitute claimed to be as good. Largest makers of $3 and $3.50 shoes in the world. Your dealer should keep them—if not, we will send you a pair on receipt of price. State kind of leather, size and width, plain or cap toe. Catalogue D Free.

W. L. DOUGLAS SHOE CO., Brockton, Mass.

WABASH

HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSIONS To Western Points,

Sept. 5 and 19, Oct. 3 and 17, 1899.

On the above dates the WABASH will sell from its principal stations East of Chicago and Toledo, Ill., LOW RATE HOME SEEKERS' EXCURSION Tickets to points West, South, and Southwest, granting a liberal return limit. A postal card addressed to any Wabash Ticket Agent, or to either of the following Passenger Representatives will bring you prompt and explicit information regarding rates, routes, time of trains, through car service, condition of tickets, etc., etc.

REMEMBER

The WABASH is the only line east of Chicago and St. Louis giving its patrons seats, without extra charge, in ELEGANT RECLINING CHAIR CARS running through to St. Louis and Kansas City without change.

This is your chance to go West cheap. Communicate with us,

P. E. Dombaugh, P. & T. A., Toledo, Ohio.
R. G. Thompson, P. & T. A., Fort Wayne, Ind.
A. F. Wolfschlager, P. & T. A. Detroit, Mich.
Theo's Follen, P. & T. A., Lafayette, Ind.
Geo. D. Maxfield, D. P. A., Indianapolis, Ind.
C. S. Crane, G. P. & T. A., St. Louis, Mo.

CARTER'S INK
Is what all the great railways use.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C. Successfully Prosecutes Claims. Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in civil war. 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

WHEN YOU WANT TO LOOK ON THE BRIGHT SIDE OF THINGS, USE SAPOLIO

Tell Your Printer to Use Eagle Linen
WATERMARK.
When You Order
Letter Heads and Envelopes.

If you once use it you will have nothing else.
Be sure it has the Watermark as shown above.

LADIES: The Peerless Monthly Magazine never fails; convince yourself; write for free sample. CHERICAL CO., Box 20, Milwaukee, Wis.

F. W. N. U. - - No. 34—'99.

When Writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Advertisement in this paper.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

Rotary Motion and Ball Bearings.

MOTT'S PENNYROYAL PILLS

They overcome Weakness, Irregularity and Omissions, increase vigor and banish "pains of menstruation." They are "Life Savers" to girls at womanhood, aiding development of organs and body. No known remedy for women equals them. Cannot do harm—life becomes a pleasure. $1 per box by mail. Sold by druggists. MOTT CHEMICAL CO., Cleveland, O.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Junk Wanted

Please save your money. Don't forget to bring all your junk to H. Greenberg, three blocks north of M. E. church in Auburn, who pays

Best Cash Prices

for rags, rubber, copper, brass, zinc, lead, scrap iron and all kinds of hides and furs. Also buys and sells second-hand material, stoves and furnaces, etc. Persons having second-hand material to buy or sell, it will be to their interest to see H. Greenberg.

Mott's Nerverine Pills

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

The great remedy for nervous prostration and all nervous diseases of the generative organs of either sex, such as Nervous Prostration, Failing or lost Manhood, Impotency, Nightly Emissions, Youthful Errors, Mental Worry, excessive use of Tobacco or Opium, which lead to Consumption and Insanity. $1.00 per box by mail; 6 boxes for $5.00. MOTT'S CHEMICAL CO., Prop's, Cleveland, Ohio.

Sold by Fischler & Son, Auburn.

Fort Wayne BUSINESS COLLEGE,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Latest and Best Methods.
The Best Equiped.
Superior Courses in all Branches.
Book-keeping, Shorthand, Penmanship, Typewriting, Banking Telegraphy and English.

You Want Success, Write Us for Full particulars and Circulars.

E. D. DOUGLASS, Pres.

INCREASE OF DOSE NOT NECESSARY.

There are many medicines advertised to cure constipation and other stomach disorders which really do some temporary relief, among these are the various kind of Pills and the number of Teas. But an experience with these is almost always disappointing. Either it becomes necessary to keep increasing the dose or they become entirely inactive. Not so with DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN. Its efficacy keeps up and those who give it a fair and honest trial find that it is always a friend. 10c, 50c and $1 sizes of Davenport the Druggist.

Cuban ex soldiers seem anxious to go into the rebel ranks in Santo Domingo. It looks as if they, or at least many of them, do not desire to return to work on their farms.

DR. LUELLA DAY UNDERHILL

Medical Supt. Chicago Working Woman's Home writes as follows: "As a laxative and remedy for all ailments of stomach and bowels we have found nothing that acts so well as your Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. We have found it invaluable in cases of sick headache and can heartily recommend it to all sufferers from such trouble."

The postmaster-general is making arrangements for letter carriers in large cities like New York to gather up letters from private houses as well as from the mail boxes on the streets. This is a new departure and may prove popular.

PILES! PILES!

Why be bothered with this annoying complaint when Banner Salve will cure you. 25c.

—The state board of charities have asked the ministers of the various churches over the state to set aside the last Sunday in October for a sermon and services having in view the subject of prisons, prisoners and prison reforms, and all matters connected therewith. Amos W. Butler, secretary, at Indianapolis can supply ministers with matter suitable for these meetings

THE MOST FATAL DISEASE.

More adults die of kidney trouble than any other disease When the first symptoms of this disease appear, no time should be lost in taking Foley's Kidney Cure, which is guaranteed or money refunded: 50c and $1.

—A recruiting office for the enlistment of soldiers has been opened at Goshen. Six applications were received the first day.

YOU ought to know that when suffering from any kidney trouble that a safe, sure remedy is Foley's Kidney cure. Guaranteed or money refunded.

Cider Mill

We will start up our cider mill in Stamestown, Auburn, August 9 and run on Wednesday and Thursday of each week till further notice.

RUHL & BAKER.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

As an honest remedy, Foley's Honey and Tar does not hold out false hopes in advanced stages, but truthfully claims to give comfort and relief in the very worst cases, and in the early stages to effect a cure.

CHAUTAUQUA MEETING

Mountain Lake Park, Md., Aug. 2-30, '99
Half Fare via B. & O. Railroad.

August 1 to 30 the Baltimore & Ohio railroad will sell tickets to Mountain Lake Park at one fare for round trip. Return Limit: Leaving Mountain Lake Park August 31.

For further information call on or address nearest B. & O. ticket agent, or, B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent Chicago, Ill. 34

Thursday's Daily.

—Al. Rowland and wife are rejoicing over the arrival of a fine daughter at their home last evening.

—Prof. Harrison returned last evening from his visit with relatives and friends in Ohio and Connecticut.

—Mrs. D. M. Kontz and Miss Ella Caswell of Fremont, came down yesterday to visit Mrs. Frank Hogue. The latter will remain for a week.

—Mr. and Mrs. Al Rowland have been married about eleven years, but have evidently concluded to keep up the reputation of west Seventh street.

—William Elson was at Garrett today to bring over the new engine for the COURIER office. His daughter, Olive Gordon, came back with him and will remain the rest of the week.

—Mrs. Eli Coobran will entertain at tea this evening Mrs. Otho DeLong of Fitzgerald, Ga., Mrs. Chas Madden of Butler, Mrs. Lee McBride, Mrs. Simp. Johnson and Mrs. Chris McNabb.

—Lou Williams of Ashland, O., is visiting his relatives, the Nelsons. They had a family reunion today at the home of Winfield Berry, near Butler, which was an enjoyable affair.

—L. J. Marvin returned yesterday from Hudson where he was getting out the August number of the Clarion. He is planning to go to Chicago to take a course in theology with a view to entering the ministry.

—There is a big force of men and teams at work on the B. & O. improvements at Garrett. Two new stone bridges will be built just west of Altona and the work on the double track will then be extended westward.

—The publication of the COURIER has been attended with considerable inconvenience during the past week and the delay in placing our new engine has made it necessary to print our papers on the Dispatch press. We will all right in a few days, however, and with improved facilities will be able to give our readers better service.

—The bureau of engraving and printing is now engaged in printing a new two-dollar silver certificate, which will be ready in a few days, to take the place of the present certificate of that denomination. The greatest care has been taken by the officials of the treasury department to produce a note which would be not only artistic, but would present as many difficulties as possible to counterfeiters.

The Meese Reunion.

This widely-heralded event, which has become an annual feature in this county, drew a large number of people to Auburn this week many coming a long distance to be present at the gathering of those whose lives and fortunes were linked together by the famous marrying parson, and we regret exceedingly that we could not be present.

The first day's exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Meese. Other features which followed were: Instrumental solo, Miss Lois Prosser; vocal solo, Miss Catherine Silbery of Spencerville; recitation, "Fanny and I," Miss Catharine Henderson of Spencerville, chorus by Auburn young people. P. V. Hoffman delivered a pleasing address of welcome, the audience united in singing "At the Cross," and Miss Selberg again favored them with a solo, "Dreaming of Home." Next followed a recitation, "The Legend of the Organ Builder," by Miss Forrest; an excellent solo, "The Old Spinning Wheel," by Miss Mayme Buckley; recitation, "Roderick Lee," by Miss Forrest, and a march by Miss Dottie Feagler. This closed the exercises of the day and Rev. Meese dismissed the audience with the benediction.

Wednesday's meeting was opened with music by the ladies band of Waterloo, which was followed by a song by the Lutheran male quartet of this city. Mr. DePew led in prayer and joined in singing the old familiar "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." Then followed a selection by the Auburn chorus class and music by the band. Judge Bowersox of Bryan was then introduced and gave an address in his usual able manner which was listened to with marked attention. After music by the band the meeting adjourned to discuss the contents of innumerable well-filled baskets.

The program for the afternoon was:

Music	Ladies Band
Song	Audience
Vocal Duet	Sherman Baber and Fern Emery
Duet	Hazel and Ross Gibson
Song	Grove Bethel Sunday School
Song	Lutheran Male Quartet
Organ Solo	Lottie Garmon
Song	Chorus Class
Recitation	James Walters
Solo	Morris Widney
Instrumental Solo	Dottie Feagler
Organ Solo	Florence Wise
Music	Ladies' Band
Organ Solo	Fern Emery
Vocal Solo	Ross Gibson
Song	Male Quartet
Music	Ladies' Band
Benediction	Rev. Meese

A pressing invitation was presented, signed by a number of citizens of Waterloo, asking the association to meet there next year and upon motion the invitation was accepted.

The reunion of 1899, the fourth held by the association, was one of the most successful yet experienced and we are sorry our time and space forbids a more extended mention of each feature of the splendid program. The Misses Belle Shoemaker and Rilla Murray acted as secretaries of the meeting, and to these young ladies we are indebted for our report. We hope Rev. Meese and the members of his matrimonial association may live to enjoy many more pleasant reunions.

Friday's Daily.

—John Provines of Spencerville was in town today.

—Misses Ida Stafford and Bessie Patterson of St. Joe called on Auburn friends yesterday.

—The Madden marble works sent a fine granite monument over to Butler today. It was for John Hamilton.

—We hear many compliments to Ed Baxter for his ability in his defense of that bold-eyed, bad beauty from Butler.

—WANTED:—Black Walnut logs for timber. Highest cash prices paid for same. Address, The Sanders & Egbert Co., Goshen, Ind. 6

—Kepler Shull and Miss Millie Hamilton of St. Joe will be married at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday evening, August 23.

—The Daily COURIER has at present the largest out-of-town circulation in its history, except for a few weeks while the county trials were on.

—The "club room" keeper at Hicksville who was found guilty of violating an ordinance against the sale of liquor, was fined $150 and costs, about $250 in all. Rather expensive.

—Henry H. Knott of Waterloo dropped dead last evening. He had been taken ill the evening before, but it was not considered serious until the moment of his death at about seven p. m.

—The ladies band of Waterloo have the neatest and most becoming band uniforms we have ever seen used by an organization of that kind. They are all a fine-looking lot of young ladies.

—Miss Keeran entertained her cousins, the Misses Ashton of Newark, O., by taking them down to the old Keeran farm in Butler township where they also visited with their old neighbors.

—Fred Schrader of the Garrett Gas Engine Works was over here yesterday putting up our new engine. Fred is a skillful and capable machinist, having been with his company for two years.

—The Union Pacific Tea Co. of Fort Wayne is offering a premium of an elegant foot bath free to all who buy fifty cents worth of tea. As yet no Fort Wayne dealer has offered coffins as a premium.

—The editor has some young Lombard plum trees that are very full. One limb now on exhibition in the office is about two feet long and has about 65 plums. Credit for the raising should be given to Mr. Masters, who faithfully sprayed and cared for them.

—By the kindness of Mrs. Ober we are permitted to publish a letter from her nephew, Sherman Jones, who has fought through the entire campaign around Manila, as he was a member of the First Nebraska regiment. Many of our citizens will remember his parents.

—The fourteenth annual reunion of the surviving members of the 100th regiment Indiana volunteer infantry will be held at Albion September 20. Ample arrangements are being made to entertain the visiting comrades and their wives. An interesting program is being arranged for the camp fire.

—Rev. Frank C. Colvin and family arrived in town yesterday for a short visit with friends. They had been visiting the former's mother in eastern Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs Colvin will be at Winona attending the Bible school before returning to Cassopolis. Master Waldo will remain here some time with relatives.

—C. C. Shaffer says there was an immense crowd at the Angola old settlers' meeting. There must have been 8,000 present. They were finally furnished three places for their entertainments; a part were taken to the opera house, a part to the park at the court house, and a part to the M. E church. At each place speakers were present to entertain them.

—John Wagner who was here from Mansfield yesterday enjoyed a pleasant chat with his old friend Rev. Meese whom he had not seen for many years In early manhood the two gentlemen worked together on a canal boat, and they were able to recall many amusing incidents of those early days. Mr. and Mrs. Wagner expected to attend the the matrimonial reunion, but owing to a misunderstanding arrived one day too late.

—After wrestling with the law and the evidence and considering the arguments of attorneys from 9 o'clock last night until 6:30 this morning, the jury in the case of state against Stella West of Butler, charged with keeping a house of ill-fame reported that they were unable to reach an agreement and were discharged. The vote, so we are informed, was nine to three in favor of the defendant. What further action will be taken in the case we have not learned.

Notice to Non-Resident.

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss. In the DeKalb Circuit Court, October term, 1899.

Henry Frick is hereby notified that an action has been commenced against him in said court on notes and judgment, and in attachment, by William E. Ruperight, and that the same will be heard and determined on the ninth day of October, 1899, the same being the seventh juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences October 1899.

Witness, the Clerk of said court this 15th day of August, 1899.

MICHAEL P. LONG, Clerk.

W. H. Less, Att'y for Plaintiff.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court as administratrix of the estate of SILAS B. JOHNSTON, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MARY E. JOHNSTON, Administratrix.

July 25, 1899.

Ross & Ross, Attorneys for Estate.

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Saturday's Daily.

—Old Mrs. Pipher, who lived east of town, was buried today.

—Chapman's Flax Syrup cures Cholers Morbus and Diarrhoea. D5-17-W 2s.

—The little child of Mr. Henry Miser who works for A. Lewis died yesterday afternoon.

—Miss Maggie Sibert went over to Spencerville today, having finished her visit with Auburn friends.

—There are now 638 children in the soldiers' and sailors' orphan's home at Knightstown, two of whom are from DeKalb county.

—Mrs. Priscilla Barclay, Mrs. Mary McDowell, and Mrs. Miles Baxter and baby, were guests yesterday of Mrs. Killian at the north end.

—Mrs. Sylvester Shoemaker of Helmer arrived yesterday to visit Mrs. Elizabeth Smith and family. Her husband will join her this evening to remain over Sunday.

—Miss Hanna Niehoff of Fort Wayne will leave next week for Manila to enter the service of the government as a nurse. The young lady is an experienced nurse, having served about a year in the south and in Cuba.

—J. N. Babcock of Topeka, Lagrange county, has been appointed to represent the Twelfth district in the anti-trust convention to be held at Chicago in September. Judge R. S. Taylor of Fort Wayne, is one of the delegates at large.

—The biggest single shipment, of shoes ever brought to Auburn by any dealer was received today at Bishop & Beidler's. The boxes were stacked up on the walk in front of their store, so one had to squeeze to get by. There were in all 55 boxes.

—The institute and annual picnic of the Jackson township Sunday school association will be in Watson's grove, near the Boots school house, on Saturday, September 2. It is expected the ladies band of Waterloo will furnish music for the occasion.

—James S. Dodge of Elkhart county, is a candidate for governor on the republican ticket. Several years ago he edited and published the Butler Record, but getting tired of the business, he returned to the practice of law at his former home, Goshen.

—Mr. and Mrs. Davis, the couple who left New York some weeks ago in an auto-mobile, aiming to make a transcontinental trip, Tuesday gave up the trip. They packed their machine at Cleveland and sent it back to the factory, while they boarded a train for New York.

—A son of Silas Franks, living east of town, met with an accident yesterday while cutting logs. A tree which he was cutting down lodged against another and in falling one of the limbs struck young Franks in the face. His forehead and cheeks were badly cut and bruised, but so far as we have learned no bones were broken.

—Prof. J. C. Teeters was a caller to day. He is well pleased with his situation in the college at Berea, Ky., and likes his work and the prospects of the institution. He has promised the COURIER a letter in the near future, describing more fully the character and work of the college. They return to Kentucky some time next week.

—That Fort Wayne man, Futter, who tried on Thursday to follow the regular order of shooting his wife and after that himself, had better luck than most of these criminal cranks. He missed his wife, she fainted and he thinking she was dead, finished in proper form by shooting himself. He died. His wife lives to realize what a dunce she was to marry such a fellow.

—Governor Mount is in receipt of a letter from the United States Department of Agriculture asking for photographs of some of the good Indiana roads. The Department of Agriculture is securing an assortment of these photographs from all the states with a view to placing them with the United States exhibit at the Paris exposition. Photographs eight by ten, and eleven by fourteen are preferred. They may be sent to the Governor's office and from there will be forwarded to the Department of Agriculture.

Every Month

there are thousands of women who nearly suffer death from irregular menses. Sometimes the "period" comes too often — sometimes not often enough—sometimes the flow is too scant, and again it is too profuse. Each symptom shows that Nature needs help, and that there is trouble in the organs concerned. Be careful when in any of the above conditions. Don't take any and every nostrum advertised to cure female troubles.

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR

is the one safe and sure medicine for irregular or painful menstruation. It cures all the ailments that are caused by irregularity, such as leucorrhœa, falling of the womb, nervousness; pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides, hips and limbs. By regulating the menses so that they occur every twenty-eighth day, all those aches disappear together. Just before your time comes, get a bottle and see how much good it will do you. Druggists sell it at $1.

Send for our free book, "Perfect Health for Women."

THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO. ATLANTA, GA.

We own and occupy the tallest mercantile building in the world. We have over 2,000,000 customers. Sixteen hundred clerks are constantly engaged filling out-of-town orders.

OUR GENERAL CATALOGUE is the book of the people—It quotes Wholesale Prices to Everybody, has over 1,000 pages; 16,000 illustrations, and 60,000 descriptions of articles with prices. It costs 72 cents to print and mail each copy. We want you to have one. SEND FIFTEEN CENTS to show your good faith, and we'll send you a copy FREE, with all charges prepaid.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO. Michigan Ave. and Madison Street CHICAGO

HICKSVILLE FAIR

COME AND SEE THE AGRICULTURAL MONUMENT.

A DUPLICATE OF THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The primary object of any fair should be a means of giving farmers an opportunity of comparing notes with their fellow farmers. For who can know how and when to improve, or whether he should be encouraged or discouraged, if he has no means of comparing his results with those of others. I do not think that the Hicksville Fair association is deterorating.

From what I have seen of the good features that go to make an educational fair, and from what I have not seen that would tend to demoralize and degrade, I am sure that the Hicksville Fair, although there is some room for improvement, is a credit to the management and is worthy of the support of all the farmers in western Ohio and eastern Indiana.

Too many fairs are degenerating, and there are fairs showing improvements. We have a few fairs in mind which have been striking exceptions in the matter of success last season. Hicksville is one, but these fairs have every one been clean.

The fair which would be long lived and continuously successful must be decent in tone and decidedly agricultural in character. The band writing is on the wall for every other kind of a fair.

Without the patronage of the country folks no fair can be successful, and the average countryman will go farther and stay longer to see a good trotting or pacing meeting than any thing else on earth. I don't blame them in that respect. I am a countryman fifty-two weeks in a year.

I do believe it is a living truth that Hicksville has the best fair in western Ohio. The fountain water is the purest to be found on any fair ground in the state.

You get your premium money promptly. You don't have to fight or run a foot race to get it. The secretary sends you a check good at any bank or business house in Hicksville. They pay 100 cents on a dollar. If they have money left the large hearted managers use it to beautify the grounds.

Every family of hard working people with five in a family, for every day spent at the fair will add one year to their lives. Every dollar to the amount of three dollars spent at the fair is better than money at ten per cent interest. Every doctor attends the fair for his health. Bring your family and you will find old familiar faces. They will keep bobbing up every now and then, and friends that have not met for years will shake hands and argue the good and bad points of stock and thoroughly enjoy themselves. Come boys and bring your girls. If you have not got a horse and carriage, borrow one of the girl you don't like, and bring a girl you do like.

One word to croakers and fault finders. You go home at night with lots of pelts. If you see a man with a Roman nose, you want to see a Grecian nose, and if you meet a man with a Grecian nose then you want to see a Roman nose. Come this year and be man; examine the stock of all kinds and profit by it. Don't miss the horse; see if they are razor backs, wind splisters, regular Arkansas hogs. See if their noses, metaphorically speaking, would reach through a rail fence and harvest corn from the third row. See if the largest thing about them is their squeal. See if they are kin.

When Hicksville has her fair you can't keep the people away in good weather. I want two weeks of perfect fall weather for our next fair, September 12 to 15, 1899, so I consulted the most celebrated hoodoo weather prophet in Defiance county. He would not tell me short of two bits. I gave them to him and he tasted them to see if they were real money, then he gave me a rabbit's foot, a bird claw and two blades of grass and told me to wear them in my hat for two weeks, and if I followed his instructions my wish should be granted. I am just as sure we will have ten thousand people on the Hicksville fair ground Thursday as I am that we will have good weather.

One word to the citizens of Hicksville. I heard a person say they had never attended a fair since they lived in Hicksville. Don't say it again. It is every citizen's duty to do what they can for the progress of Hicksville. Without the Hicksville fair your property would be worth less. All improvements add value. Come to the fair if you take any interest in yourself and town's progress and have a good sociable time. When I attend the fair I meet the same boys, and the same girls that I went to school with forty years ago. Come old school mates, let us meet this year and be young for one day at least.—A FRIEND OF GOOD FAIRS. 1f

Sheriff'S Sale.

By virtue of a certified copy of a Decree to me directed from the clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, in a cause wherein Lizzie E Baxter Administratrix of the estate of James H. Baxter, deceased is plaintiff and Mary E Wheelock, Alphous Wheelock and Cyrus C. Walters are defendants, requiring me to make the sum of one thousand thirty-one dollars and forty-three cents, with interest on said decree and costs, I will expose at Public Sale, to the highest bidder,

Saturday, September 9, 1899,

between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the door of the court house in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following real estate, to-wit:

All that part of lot numbered seventy-two (72), in the original plat of the town of Auburn bounded by a line commencing on the north line of said lot eighty four and one-half (84½) feet west of the northeast corner of said lot; thence west on said north line to the northwest corner of said lot; thence south to the southwest corner of said lot; thence east on the south line of said lot fifty-five (55) feet and nine (9) inches; thence north to the place of beginning.

Also all that part of lot numbered twenty-five (25) in the original plat of the town of Auburn bounded by a line commencing at the northeast corner of said lot, and running thence west on the north line forty-four (44) feet; thence south parallel with the east line of said lot to the south line thereof; thence east on said south line to the southeast corner of said lot; thence north on the east line of said lot to the place of beginning; all in DeKalb county, state of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sufficient sum to satisfy said decree, interest and costs, I will at the same time and place expose to public sale the fee simple of said real estate, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge said decree, interest and costs. Said sale will be made without any relief whatever from valuation or appraisement laws.

JOHN H. HATHAWAY,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana.

Auburn Indiana, August 14, 1899.

J. E. & J. H. Ross, Attys for Plaintiff.

Hearing of Ditch Petition.

In the matter of the petition of Emmet J Armstrong et, al. Ditch No. 666½.

